LONGED FOR LUXURY.

Alice Barrett's Love of Fine Dresses Led to Deception and Suicide.

Told Her Mother Falsehoods and Had No Confidant.

Went Alone to Hotel Thorndike and Remained There Two Nights.

Boston, Aug. 2.—The mystery which surrounded the suicide of Alice Barrett, the stenographer in Codman & Codman's office, a week ago, is now practically cleared up. There are still two points in doubt, but they do not bear directly on the girl's death. The first is whether she was an embezzler, which cannot be told at this time.

The second question relates to her reason for visiting the Hotel Thorndike. Her explanation that she was going to stay with Miss Wheelwright seemed sufficent at the time, but in view of Miss Wheelwright's denial, and the fact that this denial is supported by evidence coming from other sources, the visit and her explanation of it, which seemed so simple and natural, now becomes a complicated puzzle.

That she did visit the Thorndike there is no question. She went there on the evening of June 7, and remained over night. She engaged a suite of rooms, for which she paid $5, and occupied them that night. On June 8 she returned to the hotel and took a cheaper suite. For this accommodation she paid $4.

The only visitor she is known to have had is Mr. Foss. He called on the evening of June 8, and remained until 10 o'clock. He supposed, as did the girl's mother, that she was there to meet Miss Wheelwright. He was not aware that she had been at the hotel the previous evening.

The suicide theory, which was combatted by her relatives, by her employers, by her friends, and by many who only knew of her from the statements of these friends, has gained strength from the very first.

The verdict was disputed because the Alice Barrett whom they knew was an entirely different person from the real Alice Barrett. Her's was a dual character. Even her mother was not aware of one side of it. She did not make a confidant of any one.

She covered her extravagant expenditures and several mysterious visits to Boston by a series of clever fabrications.

It is assumed that the story of the loan of $800, which she claimed to have made to Captain John Codman, was invented for the purpose of accounting for the money which she had lost in stock speculations. That she did speculate there is no doubt. To what extent has not been fully ascertained, but it is known that in one "bucket shop" she operated to the extent of about $600, and when she stopped trading there was a balance of $180 on the wrong side of her account.

It is now certain that she had a fondness for the good things of life, particularly fine raiment. This fact is attested by extract from some of her letters. On a salary of $8 per week it was impossible for her to obtain them. In spite of this fact, however, she is known to have spent $300 within the last month.

She may have made some of this money in the stock market, but it is hardly probable that the loss of $800 of her own money would have made such an impression as to drive her to suicide. It seems likely that she found herself in financial quicksand which threatened to engulf her.

She had reason to believe that the firm for whom she worked was about to be dissolved or reorganized. She knew this meant an auditing of the books. This possibly, would have made a damaging showing, and the general supposition is that she went back to the office on that Saturday afternoon for the purpose of destroying these books. The fire started in the toilet room would have destroyed the contents of the safe, whose doors were purposely left open.

Then the letter carrier came up stairs for the purpose of borrowing an umbrella, tried the door, and stood for a moment on the landing, looking for the janitor, from whom he had hoped to obtain such an article. The fire was going. It could not be extinguished. A moment or two would have brought sure detection. Then there might not be merely embezzlement, but incendiarism, charged against her.

She may have been contemplating suicide as a last resort. This would explain the purchase of the revolver. But it was probably not contemplated for Saturday afternoon. Had the fire been successful in destroying the books, and she had been able to leave the building without detection, the probabilities are the revolver would never have been used. But with detection staring her in the face, the probabilities are that she fired the shot rather than face the possible consequences.

LAST RITES.

All That Is Mortal of John P. Lovell Laid to Rest at East Weymouth.

Weymouth, Mass., Aug. 2.—The funeral of John P. Lovell, held from the Congregational church at East Weymouth yesterday afternoon, was very impressive and touching. The entire town turned out to pay its last respects to a distinguished and beloved citizen, and the church hardly held the mourners. The body was taken to the church after prayers at the residence on Staten street, the escort being from the South Shore Knights Templar commandery, Orphans lodge of Masons, Odd Fellows delegations, Sons of Veterans and from the employes of John P. Lovell Arms company.

In the church the casket was placed at the chancel rail, and around it were floral tributes from many friends. The choir sang touchingly, Rev. W. I. Ward of the Methodist church made the invocation, and the eloquent eulogy was given by Rev. Daniel Evans, pastor of the church. Rev. Daniel W. Waldron of Boston made a short address and read an appropriate poem. The service closed with a hymn and the benediction. Following this came the Templar service and then the Odd Fellows' ritual. The casket was opened and for an hour those present passed by it, taking a farewell look at their friend and fellow townsman.

The body was then escorted to Fairmount cemetery, where mortal clay will mingle with Mother Earth. The pallbearers, both honorary and active, were men prominent in business life in Boston and elsewhere, and nearly all were business associates of Mr. Lovell.

WILLIAMS' STORY.

Alleged Murderer of John Gallo Again Tells About Finding Money---Inquest Today.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 2.—The murder of John Gallo at his shanty in Wakefield last week will be the subject of the inquest to be held at Lynnfield Centre this afternoon. District Attorney White will conduct it, and the evidence adduced will be presented at the police court hearing against Williams, under arrest in connection with the case, next Saturday. Officers Neal and Vannah have been following up some of the people who knew Williams best in Lynnfield and Wakefield, and have tried to find out what became of Williams' watch, which he says was stolen at the time he was assaulted near Wakefield Farm, but so far they have been unable to find any trace of it.

In describing the assault upon himself, Williams told Chief Vannah that he had one of his assailants by the throat and gradually overpowered him, when he was hit with a stone by the second robber. Gallo, who is supposed to have been murdered, was an athletic man, and would have given an antagonist a stiff battle.

Williams also said that the money he found in the road in a handkerchief was divided into different bundles. The gold pieces were wrapped in a piece of paper, while the bills—$25 in all—were in two packages, the 10s in one and the 5s in another, each wrapped in yellow paper. Antonio Gallo, the brother of the dead man, has since told the police that his brother kept his gold and bills in separate packages, and that he also separated his 5s and 10s.

The only thing of importance discovered by the officers was the story of the boy who works on the Phillips' farm, where Gallo was employed. He said that Gallo had an ax, and it was usually kept outside the house. On Wednesday morning, at the time of the fire, he saw the fence burning, and ran to get the ax, which he thought was in its usual place, to knock the boards off the fence. When he got there he could not find the ax, but he looked around and finally found it in the grass near the road. He picked it up and knocked the boards off the fence, then gave the ax a throw, and it probably lodged in the place where it was found later. There are spots on the ax, and it has been sent to Professor Wood of Harvard university for examination.

SHOT IN HIS OWN YARD

Owen Barker Mortally Woundee by Highwaymen at Lynn.

Resisted Demand For Money and Received a Bullet.

He Was a Bartender and Usually Carried Day's Receipts Home With Him.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 2.—Owen J. Barker, the victim of the murderous assault and attempted robbery early yesterday morning, is still at the Lynn hospital in a very precarious condition, with slight chances of recovery. Yesterday afternoon Dr. Herbert Newhall, assisted by City Physican Little and Hospital Surgeon Davis, removed the bullet from Barker's back.

The attempt at robbery was one of the most daring ever perpetrated in Lynn. It seems hardly possible that in a thickly settled community, surrounded by houses peopled with occupants, that a citizen, almost at the threshold of his own dwelling, could be submitted to such a savage assault, in which four pistol shots were discharged, without at least one of the desperadoes being captured. But this is a fact, nevertheless.

Barker was found in the yard by a neighbor and was removed to the Lynn hospital. After considerable probing the bullet was removed. His condition is critical, and in the opinion of the hospital surgeons he will probably die.

The highwaymen escaped. Captain Burckes and a number of police officers immediately went to the scene of the assault. By the time they had arrived Barker had partially recovered consciousness and was able to tell the officers something about the shooting.

He said that as he started to open the gate leading to his house from Alley street two men who had been hiding behind the fence jumped out in front of him. One man's face was covered with a handkerchief and both had revolvers. One of the men placed a revolver close to his face and demanded that he give up his watch and money.

Barker immediately showed fight. He is a strongly built, athletic fellow. The man whose face was covered began to beat Barker over the head with the but end of his revolver. The other fellow placed his pistol close to Barker's head and pulled the trigger. He missed his aim, and followed up his effort with two more shots, with no better result, although the fellow was not more than three feet away from Barker as he fired.

The other fellow was in the meantime struggling with Barker in an attempt to rifle his pockets. Barker was fighting desperately all the time, and managed to keep the highwaymen busy.

Suddenly, and with an oath, the larger of the two men leveled his revolver at the breast of Barker and fired. This shot took effect, entering the body of Barker as above described. Furthermore than this, Barker remembers nothing more until he was picked up, except that as he fell the men kicked him repeatedly, and one of them took $2 from his pockets, all the money he had.

The shots and Barker's cries awakened the whole neighborhood, and in a short time a score of men and boys were scouring the neighborhood for the highwaymen. Barker could give only a slight description of his assailants. One he described as being about 5 feet 8 inches tall, of dark complexion and wearing dark clothes. The other fellow was about an inch or two taller, also of dark complexion.

Barker was bartender for Thomas G. King of West Lynn. Mr. King has been sick for some time, and it has been Barker's custom to carry the day's receipts home with him at night. Saturday night, however, he carried the money to Mr. King at the latter's house, and when the assault occurred he had only $2.

The police think that the men who attempted to waylay Barker were familiar with his habits and with the business methods of the saloon.

Oriental Advices.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 2.—The steamer Olympia arrived yesterday morning with Oriental advices to July 17. The Japanese government contemplates the total abolition of export duty from the beginning of next year. Mayou volcano, situated in the extreme south of the island of Luzon, in the province of Albay, 2734 metres above the sea level, has been in violent erruption since the 26th of June. The towns of Libog, Bacacy and Malipot are threatened with destruction. Fifty-six bodies have been recovered, but the fate is unknown of the people living on the sides and at the foot of the mountain, which is surrounded by the finest hemp plantations in the island. It is probable that heavy mortality will be recorded. Bluejackets from the United States ships Yorktown and Boston have been several times attacked by coolies in Kobe, even the policemen taking part against the Americans. James Mullen, a bluejacket from the Boston, was tied by the legs and dragged around the pier, and was then arrested by Japanese policemen. On another occasion a party of American bluejackets were stoned.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Miss Mabel Drew is visiting in Rockland.

Mrs. Charles Sherburne and daughter are at Bornedale.

Miss Anna Starbuck spends the balance of her vacation at Bournedale.

Mr. Percival Hall has returned from his vacation at Sterlington, N. Y.

Mrs. D. C. Landry and daughter have returned from their visit at Nantasket.

A lady bicyclist received a bad toss from her wheel on Quincy avenue on Sunday.

John Federhen, 3d, spent Sunday at Raymond, N. H. He returns Wednesday.

Miss Ethel Staten of New York is the guest of Mr. W. S. Russell of Billings street.

W. S. Weaver, ticket agent at Atlantic depot, spent Sunday with relatives in New Bedford.

William Baxter of New York, formerly of Quincy, is in town with his family on a brief visit.

This is Marblehead week in yachting circles and the Quincy flyers are off for more prizes.

Mr. George Burr and family have returned from their three weeks' visit at Eastport, Me.

Miss Fannie Haven of Providence, R. I., is the guest of Miss Elsie Scharnagel of Prospect street.

Winthrop J. Fearebay of Atlantic started this morning for a ten days' trip through Maine and New Brunswick.

The street railway has begun to move its executive offices to the rooms recently occupied by the Y. M. C. A.

Many Knights Templars, Masons and Odd Fellows of this city attended the funeral of John P. Lovell at East Weymouth on Sunday.

The amount of collection for the water department for the month of July was $11,111.86; the largest amount ever collected in a single month.

John Flaharty and Ambrose Lane, the boys who were missing from West Quincy all last week, have returned. They paid a visit to relatives in Holbrook.

It is estimated that 60,000 people visited Crescent beach on Sunday, and that 2143 including a few from Quincy hired suits at the new mammoth bath establishment. Nearly 500 wheels were checked.

The big doors at the Unitarian church are not closed during the summer but are open every Sunday morning to all. The pastor however has to have his vacation so that he will be absent the next two weeks, and the pulpit will be filled by able preachers during his absence.

Two out-of-town bicycle riders came together in a head-on collision Sunday morning in front of Miss Hubbard's store. Both were thrown into the gutter, but without injury. One of the wheels had a tire cut, the head broken and the hanger cracked, while the other wheel was damaged only to the extent of a broken pedal.

The improvements on Quincy avenue near the Braintree line, recently made by Commissioner Knowlton, are very marked and more in keeping with the Braintree side. Without any special appropriation the commissioner has widened out and rebuilt the street, and the people in the vivinity and those who use the avenue frequently are pleased.

A congregation of about two hundred greeted Rev. W. Sherman Thompson at the Washington Street Congregational church at the Sunday morning service and listened to an able discourse. In the evening another large congregation was present and listened to another eloquent discourse by the same gentleman. Next Sunday Rev. Mr. Benedict occupies the pulpit.

SCENE OF ACCIDENT.

The Old Wigwam Quarry Visited by Many Since Saturday.

Hundreds visited on Sunday the scene of the frightful accident at Badger's quarry on Saturday. During the twelve or more years while Mr. Scott was foreman at this quarry accidents have seldom occurred and none were serious or fatal. Badger Brothers work the old Wigwam quarry, which as long ago as 1836 furnished the stone used by Solomon Willard in the construction of the New York exchange building. This building required a large amount of heavy stone, including eighteen fluted columns of over thirty tons each. One of these was discarded and was set up in the Hall cemetery and is known as the Willard monument, and almost within its shadow the remains of Mr. Scott have been interred.

The funeral of John Scott, one of the victims of Saturday's quarry accident, was held Sunday afternoon from his late residence, a prompt burial being necessary because it was impossible to embalm the body.

Mt. Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows, of which the deceased was a member, attended in large numbers, although it was impossible to give the usual notice.

Rev. A. A. Brown, of the Methodist Episcopal church at West Quincy, conducted the services at the house, and made a touching allusion to the manly qualities of Mr. Scott. There was singing by members of the church choir.

At the grave in Hall cemetery the impressive services of the Odd Fellows were conducted by Noble Grand Ripley and Chaplain MacLeod.

There were some beautiful floral offerings, including a cross from the firm of Badger Bros., an emblematic pillow from the Odd Fellows and other set pieces.

The funeral of Hugh Dawson, the second victim of Saturday's quarry accident, was held this afternoon from his late residence on Squantum street and was largely attended by his fellow workmen. Rev. S. McNeil Keeler of the Presbyterian church officiated and the interment was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Silver Wedding.

About sixty-five friends of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Knight gathered at their home on Water street on Thursday evening of last week to help celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. The evening was very pleasantly passed with singing and instrumental music until supper was announced at about eleven o'clock. After supper games, music and dancing were again indulged in and it was in the early hours of the morning before the last guest had departed. Mr. and Mrs. Knight were the recipients of many beautiful and useful articles in both silver and glass.

Council Business Tonight.

At the meeting of the City Council tonight the Committee on Streets will report on the extension of Brook street under the tracks of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., near the Wollaston depot. The same committee will also report an order laying out Faxon road as a public way. It is also probable that an order will be offered in relation to street watering, making the assessment so much per foot as required by law. Two public hearings have also been ordered for tonight, viz: on the acceptance of Russell Park and defining the lines of Sea street at the causeway.

Burglars Abroad.

An attempt was made at midnight Sunday night to enter the Brooks Adams house on Adams street.

The family are away for the summer and the house is in charge of John Manning, who was aroused by someone trying to force one of the windows. He immediately got up at which the fellow at the window departed. Manning notified the night keeper of the lock up, officer Hanson, who in turn notified Inspector McKay who went to the house and remained until morning but the party or parties did not return.

The "Harbor Fete" at Newport.

For witnessing the illuminations and exhibitions of the annual harbor—or Venetian—fete, to take place in Newport on Wednesday, August 4 next, the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad will run a special train from Boston to Newport, leaving Park square station at 4 P. M. and Newport for the return at 10 P. M. Round trip tickets for this train will be sold at $1 each, the number being strictly limited. Secure them in advance at 3 Old State House or at Park square station and avoid disappointment.

TODAY'S COURT.

George E. Moors was arraigned for the larceny of a bicycle valued at $40 from Clara B. Holbrook at South Weymouth, and was held in $200 until Tuesday.

The case of Michael Salato of Braintree for neglecting to send his children to school was called. He paid $10 upon one complaint and the other was continued until Oct. 2.

HOUGHS NECK.

Col. Thomas Downey and family of Charlestown are here for the summer.

Capt. M. J. Driscoll of South Boston was in the bay Sunday in his steam yacht Skylark, with a party of ladies and gentlemen.

MORE MYSTERY.

Everything Strange That Was Connected with Miss Barrett.

The Missing Quincy Man Returns With Queer Story.

Was Captured on High Sea by Three Unknown Men.

Mr. Alfred E. Campbell, who so mysteriously disappeared July 27, and who was reported by Boston papers as being connected in a financial way with Miss Alice Barrett, who suicided July 24, returned to his home Saturday evening.

It appears from Mr. Campbell that he was out sailing, and in some way became unconscious. That when he recovered he found he had been relieved of about $150 and was on a strange boat about 28 feet long. The boat was in charge of three men, strangers to Mr. Campbell, and no name was visible.

No information is given as to just how Mr. Campbell escaped from his jailers or at what port.

Mr. Campbell, who is secretary of the Squantum Yacht club, is well known in Wollaston and Atlantic. He resided at No. 16 Botolph street, Atlantic, and is a freight clerk in the employ of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad at Boston.

BROKE JAIL.

Quincy Man Released from Weymouth Lockup by Friends.

The Weymouth police are looking for Michael McAuliff of Quincy, against whom they have warrants for drunkenness, assault, and breaking jail.

McAuliff went to the picnic at New Downer Landing on Saturday, and while under the influence of liquor he created a disturbance and was put out of the grove. This did not quiet him, however, and Officer Butler placed him under arrest. While waiting for a car to take him to the lockup at East Weymouth, McAuliff turned and struck Officer Butler three savage blows in the face. The officer hung to his man however, and succeeded in landing him behind the bars at East Weymouth. Sometime between 2 and 3 o'clock Sunday morning a crowd of his friends broke into the lockup and released the prisoner. Entrance was made by filing and prying off the iron bars over the window and also the cell door.

The Weymouth police are not only looking for McAuliff, but also the men who broke into the jail.

Beggars Beware.

Numerous complaints have been made of beggars who have been making a house to house canvass of the city. Saturday, while Officer Ferguson was at dinner, he saw one of these fellows near his home and overhauled him. The fellow said that he was an Armenian soliciting subscriptions for that cause. He was taken to the police station and the law laid down to him, after which he was faced toward the north and told to make tracks and not show up in Quincy again.

ANNUAL CLAMBAKE.

Wollaston Yacht Club Have a Great Time at Peddocks.

Commodore Frank Burgess of the Wollaston Yacht Club mustered together fifty-one of the seventy-two members of the above club and sailed to Peddock's Island on Saturday afternoon. The occasion was the first annual clambake of the club. Black clouds in the west kept many at home, but those who went have nothing to regret, for a more enjoyable time is not on record.

The fifty-one who participated were safely carried to and from the island in the following boats, West Wind, Vice-commodore A. T. Barstow, acting commodore; Magnolia, Rear Commodore E. Hardy; steam yacht Winona, Fleet Captain H. E. Nelson; Clara Lou, Captain W. J. Coombs; White Wing, Captain S. B. Wiley, Jr.; Thelura, Captain E. A. Merrill; Remona, Captain H. M. Metcalf; Ino, Captain Lapham; Belle, Captain F. C. Merrill; Esther, Captain H. A. Newman; Beatrice, Captain W. D. Given; and Premier, Captain E. A. Hayden.

Owing to business, the Commodore was unable to go with the fleet, which was regretted by all.

A snap shot was taken of the party while eating, by Mr. E. A. Hayden.

A game of ball was the feature of the day. The following nines were made up and captained by Mr. E. A. Merrill and George A. Wardwell. Mr. Merrill chose to call his nine the "Lobster Claws." Mr. Wardwell thought no more appropriate name could be found than the "Clam Shells." So the battle began with the "Lobster Claws" at the bat. The first striker up went out on three fairs. Mr. Taylor took two bases but Mr. Dickey, the umpire, objected to the way Taylor ran and called him out, but a well-directed blow between Mr. Dickey's eyes by Taylor stopped his argument, and before Dickey recovered Taylor scored. The next two went out in order.

Mr. N. Hardy came up for the "Clam Shells" and wasn't in it for a little bit, Taylor having great control of the ball. His curves were something of a phenomenal nature. Everybody went out before Taylor, until later in the game Mr. Stanford Hayden, who said he could steer a boat better than he could play ball, came to the bat and lifted the first ball pitched over the hill toward Nut Island. Taylor, the pitcher for the "Lobster Claws," fainted and all sorts of restoratives were administered, but not until Mr. Gram called out: "clams and lobsters are ready gentlemen," did he recover.

After the fifty-one hungry yachtsmen had eaten four bushels of clams and ninety lobsters, the game was resumed. Nothing unusual occurred until Mr. Perley Glass came to the bat. He affected a weak bunt, the ball resting between the pitcher and second base. Mr. Glass could see as well as anyone that to cut second base the distance to third would be shortened; he accordingly did so and on his way he kicked the ball far out into left field. Mr. Glass scored amid applause. Mr. Dickey, who had by this time aroused himself with a howitzer from Mr. Gardner's steam yacht, called Glass out; a delay of five hours gave everyone a chance to tell what he knew about base ball. At the end of that time it was decided that Mr. Glass had a perfect right to introduce any new play that would tend to increase the score for his side.

After five innings had been played time was called by Mr. Dickey, who said his wife expected him home at 7 o'clock, and he felt obliged to let her realize her expectations for obvious reasons. No one objected and the game stopped, the score being 37 to 3 in favor of the "Lobster Claws."

Mr. Frank Staples was scorer for the ball game.

The affair was handled ably by the entertainment committee, consisting of Mr. T.C. Gram, chairman, Mr. C. W. Page, Mr. A. L. Baker and J. S. Baker.

By 8 o'clock every boat was at its moorings in front of the club house.

Strayed to Boston.

Richard B. Hickey of Robertson street, reported to the police on Sunday that his eight-year-old son, Nornel S. Hickey, had been missing since 10 o'clock that morning. The Boston police were notified and later in the day the boy was picked up by officers of Station 12 and returned to his parents.

ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.

Recent Facts Reflecting the Political and Social Life of Europe.

The rinderpest having destroyed cattle as a factor in the all important question of transport in Africa, attention is now being devoted to the jackass, which, being proof against climate, plague and the terrible tsetse fly, seems destined to become the beast of burden of the future for the Dark Continent. Consequently the demand for donkeys has assumed such proportions that English and Dutch dealers have been buying them by the thousands for shipment to South Africa, phenomenal and altogether unprecedented prices being realized. Inasmuch as, according to the ponderous London Spectator, which has never been known to perpetrate a joke, "Ireland is at present the main home and breeding place of the English donkey," the Emerald Isle is deriving considerable pecuniary benefit from the boom in ass flesh, and the lowly and patient "moke" seems destined to supersede the pig as a source of profit to the Hibernian peasant.

That time and distance are insufficient to obliterate sentiments of affection and regard for the mother country has just been shown by the fact that a number of families of Spanish descent in Rio de la Plata have recently subscribed a sum of $200,000 for the purpose of presenting a small cruiser to the government of Spain.

In view of the abuse that is being leveled by certain American magazines and newspapers against the English people for having spent so much money in celebrating the jubilee of the queen while so many of their fellow subjects in India were starving, it may be as well to call attention to the fact that a fund of nearly $10,000,000 for the relief of the sufferers by the Indian famine has been raised by popular subscription in the British dominions. Of this sum $3,000,000 was raised in London alone. The government itself has devoted an immense sum toward the same purpose by means of so called relief public works, and in connection with the distribution of food, over 4,000,000 natives being at the present moment supported and maintained without any return by the British administration.

Russia's government has decided to take no further steps in connection with the trial of Theodore Kovaleff, the Tiraspol fanatic, who, in obedience to the commands of his fellow sectarians, immured and buried 15 of them alive. The authorities feel that the punishing of a man such as this by the ordinary legal methods would merely have the effect of endowing him with the halo of a martyr. Consequently, instead of either being condemned to penal servitude or to death as a murderer, he will be kept for the remainder of his days in a monastery in a remote part of the empire.

After an agitation which began more than 100 years ago, and which has been carried on vigorously ever since, in Norway, the national legislature has at length, by an overwhelming majority, abrogated the law which excluded the Roman Catholic religious orders and congregations from this formerly ultra-Protestant country. Only the Jesuits are to be still kept out. But, with this exception, the emancipation of the Norwegian Catholics is complete. The fact that a number of Lutheran pastors who occupy seats in parliament should have voted with the majority speaks well for the spirit of religious toleration that prevails in Norway.

To what extent flogging is still tolerated by English law is shown by certain prison returns just presented to parliament, from which it would appear that no less than 1,600 floggings per annum take place in the local and convict prisons of the United Kingdom. Besides these there are 670 floggings a year in the military prisons, which means that the floggings of soldiers belonging to the British army average nearly two a day.

La Scala at Milan, which is probably the most famous opera house and home of the lyric drama in the world, is threatened with disappearance. A succession of disastrous seasons has tired the pockets of the association of box owners, who lease the house from the municipality, to such a degree that they have taken legal action against the city, with the object of securing an annulment of the lease and liberation from their responsibilities in connection therewith. They are assured of a verdict in their favor, and it is in cognizance of this fact that the municipal council has already passed by a large majority a vote in favor of demolishing the huge house and selling the site, which is exceedingly valuable.

The De Goncourt will case is to be decided this week at Paris. The claims of the nearest relatives of the testator are founded upon the fact that a bequest to a nonexistent foundation like the De Goncourt academy is null and void. But even if this pretension is admitted, it is unlikely that they will derive any benefit therefrom, as there is a clause which sets forth that if this disposition of the property be set aside by the courts the fortune is to go to a charitable institution for young girls afflicted with incurable maladies, founded by De Goncourt's old friend, the Princess Mathilde Bonaparte, cousin of Napoleon III.—New York Tribune.

Growing Potatoes Without Vines.

Robert Cornwell, a Barton county (Mo.) farmer, living near Golden City, after numerous experiments, thinks he has succeeded in developing a potato that will grow without vines. He says his potatoes grow entirely under ground out of the reach of potato bugs, which cost so much to destroy each season, not to mention the damage they do. He also says a field planted with the vineless potato may be worked with the ordinary harrow.—New York Times.

WATER MEN'S PICNIC.

A Clambake and Series of Sports at Rock Island Farm.

The employes of the Quincy Water department held their first annual outing and clambake at Pawsey's Rock Island farm on Saturday afternoon, and a jolly good time it was.

There was nearly one hundred in the party and besides the employes there were a number of guests among whom were: Superintendent John T. Cavanagh, Commissioner of Public Works Knowlton, Chief of Police Joseph W. Hayden, Inspector Daniel R. McKay, Benjamin J. Weeks, and others.

It was about 3 o'clock when Mr. Pawsey served the clambake, and it was a dandy. It was declared by all to be the best of which they ever partook. Besides steamed clams there were lobster, potatoes, onions, corn and frankforts.

Everything tasted so good that considerable time was consumed in discussing the dinner. Then came a series of sports, among which was a 100 yard dash, putting the shot, tug of war and base ball.

The general committee in charge were: John T. Larkin, Frank Foley and William Warner. On committee on sports were: W. Sarsfield, Daniel Ford and James Rooney; on invitations, Jed Gleason.

The result of the several sports was as follows:

100 yard dash, won by Oley Nord.

150 yard dash won by Daniel Sullivan.

100 yard dash, won by Edward Colligan.

Putting shot won by Richard Hennessey.

Base ball between married and single men, won by the married men.

Tug-of-war between teams captained by Costello and Hennissey, was won by Costello's team. The make-up of these two teams was: Costello's—Kelley, Nord, Cady, La Fells and Landen. Hennissey—Cotter, O'Brien, Nelson, Peterson, Collins.

WON HANDILY.

The T. R. & S. Nine Make It Fifteen Straight.

The T. R. & S. Co. defeated the Boston Reserves Saturday afternoon. The feature of the game was the fielding of Kelley for the visitors. Murphy, Dunn, Raiche and J. Faircloth played a fine game for the home team. This is the fifteenth straight victory for the T. R. & S. Co. team.

Juneau Depopulated.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 2.—The steamer Alki arrived in port yesterday morning. She brought 400 passengers from Juneau, Sitka and Fort Wrangel. Her cargo was light. Her officers report having left a large colony at Dyea, all the members of which were in the best of health and spirits. The steamer brought no information from the interior. Juneau is fast becoming depopulated. Stocks of goods have been so reduced by the purchases of those leaving for up the Yukon that it would be difficult to secure an outfit.

☞ A disturbance in the railroad world has been caused, apparently, by the desire of the Wabash Railroad Company to give its patrons the best possible service. The comforts of the free reclining chair cars, such as the Wabash has always run on its trains west of Detroit, have not been known to Eastern people, and now that these cars are being run East over the Wabash extension to Buffalo and to New York City over the Ontario and Western, the other lines seem to be afraid that they will be too popular. So far as the travelling public are concerned they are not likely to object to them.

Venezuela has 200,000,000 acres of forest, in which grow all the varieties of ebony, as well as rosewood, satin wood and mahogany.

Nearly three minutes are required to bring a big steamer like the Campania to a full stop; and in that time she will have advanced almost half a mile from the place she was when the first movements were made to stop her.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Cool Sundays.

City Council this evening.

August weather has started in well.

A good man for teaming is wanted by Mr. Miller.

Driver Brown of the steamer is having his vacation this week.

Mrs. Charles K. Crane of Wollaston is visiting her sister at Plymouth.

John Ross and John W. Walsh are in Maine spending a two weeks' vacation.

The time of high water for each day the coming week appears in the Houghs Neck column daily.

The regular meeting of the Wollaston Yacht club will be held at the club house Tuesday night.

Miss Irma Tilton, daughter of Mr. C. B. Tilton, was presented with a bicycle by her uncle last week.

City Square is much livelier on Sundays than on week days. Strangers must think Quincy a wide-awake place.

Merry Mount lodge, Knights of Honor, will receive a visit from Past Grand Dictator Hersey on Friday evening.

The second week of August was the hot week of August last year, the noon temperature being above 90 on four days.

Superintendent Lull will be in his office tomorrow afternoon from 5 to 6 o'clock and in the evening from 8 to 9 o'clock.

It is reported that a large party of men and boys were in bathing at the reservoir of the Water company Sunday afternoon.

A party of ladies and children, a dozen or more, from Quincy, have gone this afternoon to Highland park, an attractive summer resort.

The first Sunday in the month was fair, so we need not expect three stormy Sundays this month. There are five Sundays this month too.

The two band concerts Saturday night served to divide the crowd that usually congregates in City Square, yet there was a large crowd present to listen to the concert by Brown's Brigade band. At South Quincy there was another large gathering at the concert by the City band. Both concerts were excellent.

HOUGHS NECK.

Much to the disappointment of many the old steamer at Houghs Neck was fired without notice at about ten o'clock Saturday night. The cottagers not only missed the sight, but they were not alert to protect their property from sparks.

The burning hulk illuminated all the harbor and was seen at Quincy and in neighboring towns. All day Sunday it smoked and smouldered.

Sunday was the biggest day yet at the beach, the electrics doing a great business and others coming by carriages and bicycles. The band was an attraction.

Lloyd Hoey is the Houghs Neck representative of the LEDGER, and for the convenience of those having news for publication, news boxes have been established at Harvey's pavilion and Milton's bakery. The name of the writer of items is required to insure good faith.

By request the LEDGER will hereafter publish each day the hours of high tide for a week for Quincy and vicinity. The time given indicates high water at Boston and there is but a slight difference in the Boston and Quincy tides:

Monday,	1.29 A. M.	1.50 P. M.
Tuesday,	2.11	2.33
Wednesday,	2.55	3.19
Thursday,	3.45	4.14

—An exchange reports a case where a young man purchased 2,000 extra fine cigars, and had them insured for their full value, smoked them up and demanded the insurance, claiming that they had been destroyed by fire. The case was taken to the court and the judge decided in favor of the young man. The insurance company then had the young man arrested for setting fire to his own property, and the same judge ordered that he pay a fine and go to jail for three months.

—Of all the paupers in the public institutions of Massachusetts, three out of every four, according to the Bureau of Statistics, were addicted to the use of liquor, and nearly one-half had intemperate parents.

DRESS PARADE.

There has been a wonderful demand for linen of every tint and quality this season.

Batiste laces wrought on a delicate net ground are much used to trim ecru lawns, linen batistes and similar transparent fabrics.

Among the myriad of comfortable things for the summer girl is the improved summer corset of silk net, with soft, elastic gores, simply edged with feather stitching in silk floss.

Short boleros and etons made of cut work and embroidery lined with thin tinted silk of some becoming color, are considered very smart with any sort of light summer gown.

Many of the newest plain India muslin or flowered organdie muslin dresses have tucked bodices and flounced skirts, with the very fashionable ribbon sash, with long loops and ends at the waist.

Costumes of pure white, from parasol to shoe, are one of the prevailing fashions in summer dress, and they are worn morning, noon and night in all the varying grades of elegance or simplicity.

A handsome imported jacket is made of box cloth, showing a white sailor collar and revers. The model is open fronted and extremely short. The jacket is a pale shade of cream, and is called the Redfern beach jacket.

New and beautiful satin foulards of delicate quality and gay coloring are made into stylish costumes, with pointed bodice and Marie Antoinette fichu of the foulard, with scarf ends that either fall on the skirt front or tie at the back.

Valenciennes lace is used in a very lavish manner upon nearly every article of summer dress. Airy gowns, capes, fancy waists and jackets, skirts, collarettes and lingerie are elaborately decorated with both wide and narrow patterns of this lace.

Belted waists predominate on all dressy gowns for slender, youthful wearers, the greater number having narrow belts of insertion or ribbon, though in some cases ribbon is carried round the waist three or four times, the upper row reaching the bust.—New York Post.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

The santir, a kind of dulcimer, has been used for ages in the Caucasus.

Nearly all islanders are provided with trumpets made of conch shells, the tips being taken off, thus forming a very effective horn.

The yang-kin, or foreign harpsichord, of the Chinese, is a sort of lute with 14 wire strings. It is played with two bamboo slips.

The sona, a Chinese clarinet, is the favorite instrument among the common people, especially at marriage or funeral entertainments. Its scale is from F to G above.

The Arabs have three different kinds of guitars, the one most commonly used resembling in shape the upper half of the rod and disk used by surveyors. It has two strings and is played with a bow.

The negroes of Guatemala have a favorite instrument which they call the marimba. It is a close imitation of the miramba used by the natives of the southeast coast of Africa. There are 28 keys, and the instrument is played with rubber tipped hammers.

In the time of Nebuchadnezzar, B. C. 600, and after, the Assyrians had a number of different musical instruments, the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery and dulcimer being specified, and "all kinds of music" mentioned by Daniel in this connection being supposed by some commentators to refer to drums, cymbals, castanets and horns.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE WEATHER PROPHETS.

It has been a pretty safe game for some time now to "copper" the weather man's predictions.—Indianapolis News.

It appears to be a theory and not a condition that confronts the weather department most of the time.—Chicago Tribune.

In his tendency to lose his head and get excited the weather observer at Chicago seems to partake of the atmosphere around him. He should be provided with a moral barometer that would enable him to steady himself.—Indianapolis Journal.

It is reported from Washington that the weather department expects to forecast for longer periods by the use of kites. This ought to be a decided public gain. With fewer forecasts it is obvious the people cannot be so frequently deceived.—Chicago Tribune.

The weather department at Washington is going to use kites to enable it to predict 16 hours earlier than usual. If the department would use hypnotism to make the weather tally with the predictions, the public would not care for a useless improvement such as 16 hours earlier knowledge.—Chicago News.

POLITICAL QUIPS.

Politicians before election are the original resorters to the faith cure.—Boston Herald.

Some office seekers who think they see consulships coming their way will find that the approaching objects are airships.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

A statesman is a man who indorses us for a job and succeeds in getting us appointed. A politician is a man who is supporting some other fellow for the same job.—Washington Post.

There are still upward of 100,000 applications for office on file at Washington. Thus it appears that even those who went early didn't entirely avoid the rush.—New York Mail and Express.

They are cropping out so fast in southwest Georgia that the drummers, in order to hold their customers, wear white badges displaying the legend, "I am not a candidate for governor."—Atlanta Constitution.

JEWEL AND GEM.

Diamonds were never more fashionable or worn in greater profusion than at the present time.

Bicycle brooches are to the front again. Some represent the entire bicycle, others one wheel only.

A smart belt is made in white kid, with enamel medallions linked together with small gold chains.

Beautiful among watches for women is a ball shaped watch with pendent pin in diamond pave work set in enamel.

A fine tiara in scroll work has an enameled center encircled with brilliants and an aigret of single stones.

A beautiful corsage ornament is in form of a large ribbon bow, incrusted with diamonds and tied in upstanding loops.—Jewelers' Circular.

The Cause of the Breach.

She was the angel of the street,
So fairylike and shy and sweet.
I always stopped to scan her face
And catch the dawnings of new grace.
Sometimes I brought her sweet or flower
And treasured for a pleasing hour
The smile she gave to me in thanks.
But, ah, true friendship seldom sticks!
You see, I'm thirty; she is six.
And how she got the garden hose
Is something that nobody knows.
But I came by—what did she do?
She calmly soaked me through and through!
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Merited Reproof.

"I think I've found the criminal!" shouted the young detective in wild excitement. His confrere looked at him with a chilling glare. "There is a time for everything," he said. "Just now we are engaged in looking not for the criminal, but for clews."—Washington Star.

Neat and Compact.

When summer time was ended, and
She packed her trunks again,
It took two heavy baggage trucks
To haul them to the train.

But when she found her bathing suit
Still hanging on a nail
She put it in an envelope
And sent it home by mail.
—New York Evening Journal.

Accommodating.

Superintendent—I shall have to think the matter over, for you are married, and, frankly, I should prefer to give the place to a single man.

Serious Fighting In Langeborg.

Cape Town, Aug. 2.—Serious fighting took place on Friday in the Langeborg district. The British loss was trifling. The enemies' position in the Gamasiop valley was captured and the rebels fell back in confusion toward Twaiskloof. The government troops have captured all the enemy's positions north of Twaiskloof. Among the British losses were Sergeant Hall and Sergeant Mercer, who were killed. Chief Lukajantjes, who led the rebels, was killed, with many of his followers. A general surrender of the rebels is expected.

War In Gazaland.

Lisbon, Aug. 2.—Official dispatches from Lourenzo Marques, South Africa, confirm the reports of recent fighting between the government troops and rebellious natives in Gazaland. The battle took place on July 21 near Chimbutu, capital of Gazaland. The governor of Portuguese East Africa, Colonel Albuquerque, wit ha small Portuguese force, routed 7000 rebels. The Portuguese losses were two killed and 10 wounded. The natives lost 300.

Reception to Ten Eyck.

Boston, Aug. 2.—Edward Ten Eyck, winner of the diamond sculls, and his father, Jim Ten Eyck, will be given a reception at Faneuil hall tomorrow evening by a committee of the clubs of the New England Amateur Rowing association, headed by James P. Fox and Messrs. Deblois of the B. A. A. and Fred Tudor, Jr., of the Union Boat club. Representative John A. Keliher, once an oarsman, and a lover of acquatics, and who has done much for amateur acquatic sport in this city, will preside. Mayor Quincy will be present and make a speech. Hon. John L. Bates, speaker of the house, Hon. Joseph B. Maccabe, and other well-known men have been invited. An invitation has been extended to his excellency Governor Roger Wolcott, who will be present if possible. Ten Eyck will arrive at the Kneeland street station of the Boston and Albany railroad about 7 o'clock Tuesday evening. Delegations from the different rowing associations will meet him and escort him to Faneuil hall.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

—The poor tenements in Boston pay their owners 20 to 30 per cent. of the investment. The poor man buying flour by the eighth of a barrel pays $1.70 per barrel more than the regular price. Buying coal by the basket he pays $2.75 more than the market price per ton even if he gets an honest basket full. A $15 overcoat bought on the instalment plan costs $30 and other articles are in similar proportions.

MANY FOREIGN KICKS.

Dingley Tariff Bill Said to Obstruct International Commerce.

England, Germany, Italy and Others Protest.

No Action as Yet on Notes and In All Probability There Will Be None.

Washington, Aug. 2.—The state department received many protests from foreign governments regarding the Dingley tariff bill. These were compiled by Congressman Johnson of North Dakota and published in The Congressional Record.

Some of these protests have been made public, others have been referred to the committee of congress having the tariff bill in charge, and little or no attention has been paid to them.

Nearly all these communications revert to the commerce between the several countries and the United States. They insist that the new tariff will retard that commerce, and some of them intimate that it will result in decreasing the demand for American goods. Some suggestions are made that the injury to be done the United States treasury on account of the imposition of the proposed duties will be considerable.

Minister Brum of Denmark called attention to the fact that the tariff on American goods going into Denmark was very favorable, and said that the admission of Danish products on a favorable tariff would only be a fair return.

There were three communications from Baron Fava, the Italian ambasador. The first protested against the duty on Italian oranges and lemons, which, he said, would prove very disastrous to the Italian trade in these fruits. A second communication was against the present duty on candied fruits, which the manufacturers of Leghorn declared would destroy their market in the United States.

In a third communication Baron Fava spoke of a letter of the secretary of agriculture, in which he referred to a ministerial decree of Italy relating to meats from the United States. This decree required a consulate vise for certificates of origin issued by American authorities and accompanying shipments of meats.

Count Lichtervelde, minister of Belgium, sent three communications concerning the tariff. One referred to the retroactive clause adopted by the house, and pointed out that it worked great hardship upon those who were shipping articles which could not be safely transmitted in the winter, such as plants and bulbs.

The other communications referred to the rates on cement and sprats and sardines. The discontinuance of exportation of Belgian cement, it was urged, would result disastrously to grain exported from the United States on account of the higher rates that would be charged, because vessels would have to sail one way in ballast.

The Turkish government protested against the duty of $1 per pound on crude opium.

J. P. Pleda, minister from Switzerland, said that the tariff would be disastrous to three principal industries of Switzerland—Swiss embroidered goods, silks, watches and clocks.

Sir Julian Pauncefote sent two very brief communications, one in December, 1896, informing Mr. Olney that the fishery board of Scotland protested against the high rate on cured herrings, and that at the request of the Marquis of Salisbury he represented to the United States government that the high rates which the Dingley bill imposes on salt mackerel and other cured fish would cause grave injury to the fishermen on the west coast of Ireland. This note is dated June 13, 1897.

That Balloon Story.

Winnipeg, Aug. 2.—A Whitemouth dispatch to The Free Press says further inquiries regarding the large balloon which was seen passing in a northeasterly direction on the evening of July 29, three miles from Whitemouth, have elicited the fact that that evening was remarkably calm and clear. Farmer Henderson was standing at the door of his barn and was taking a glance around the sky when he saw a large object sailing slowly across the horizon. Gradually he made out the car, when he saw a large sail swing into view. Astonishment held him spellbound, and again and again the ghost-like sail swung and jibbed full in view, showing its enormous proportions, then slowly drifted out of sight in the twilight. Henderson, on returning to his house, consulted a newspaper having a picture of Andree's balloon and declares the airship he saw is of the same character. The balloon was floating very low, and Henderson says could not have been more than half a mile away. He could see no signs of life, and it showed no lights. Much excitement and speculation have been raised regarding the fate and prospects of the daring voyagers.

For Yachtsmen.

New York, Aug. 2.—Unless all signs fail, the 53rd annual cruise of the New York Yacht club, beginning today at Glen Cove, the place of rendezvous, will be the most imposing one as a spectacle, and the most interesting one from a sporting standpoint that this famous organization has ever enjoyed. Today's races will be particularly interesting by reason of the value of the prizes offered by Vice Commodore Ledyard, and because of the array of crack boats that will start in the races. In the schooner class the famous two-stickers Colonia and Emerald will have a new rival for speed honors—the new schooner Hildegarde, built for George W. Weld of Boston. It will be her maiden race, and the result will be watched with interest.

President Invites Whitelaw Reid.

New York, Aug. 2.—The president immediately on learning of the arrival of Hon. Whitelaw Reid telegraphed an invitation to himself and wife to make a visit to Mr. and Mrs. McKinley at their country retreat on Lake Champlain, beginning next Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Reid have accepted the invitation. Later Mr. Reid will visit Hon. John Sherman, the secretary of state.

WARS IN OTHER LANDS.

Simla, Aug. 2.—Dispatches to the government show that re-enforcements, with abundant supplies of ammunition, arrived at Dargai at noon yesterday. The march was forced and very rapid, and 19 Sikhs died from sunstroke on the way. Colonel Reid, with large re-enforcements, has reached camp Malakand.

In consequence of the rapid spread of the revolt from 12,000 to 15,000 natives now being under arms, the government has ordered the reserve brigade to assemble under the command of Colonel Wodehouse.

The British regiments will await events at Rawalpindi and the native regiments at Marden. The staff will remain for the time at Nowshera.

Fort Chakdara is strong enough to resist any attack, and it had a good supply of ammunition. The only fear is that the garrison may become exhausted by constant fighting.

The tribesmen are sending forward fresh relays continually. The reconnoitering column Saturday found the enemy in great force blocking the road to Chakdara. During the fighting 100 of the enemy were killed and the British had 14 wounded, among them Captain Baldwin, who was severely wounded, and Lieutenant Keyes, who received a slight would.

The enemy followed up the retiring column and attacked the camp in a half-hearted manner, being repulsed by the garrison.

General Blood, with every available man, will start today for the relief of Chakdara, and the garrison has been notified of his intention by heliograph. Heavy fighting is expected at Amandara.

Maulvi Sidayat Rasoul, who was recently arrested at Lucknow on the charge of insulting Queen Victoria and the British government at a meeting of Mohammedans, called to congratulate the sultan on his victories over Greece, on which occasion Maulvi told the assembly that "But for the sultan's forebearance the old woman's ribs would have been broken years ago," has been sentenced to a year's imprisonment. The government offered to accept sureties for his good behavior in lieu of imprisonment, but he could not produce them.

Albanians Attack Servian Blockhouse.

Constantinople, Aug. 2.—The incursions of the Albanians, who attacked almost simultaneously seven Servian frontier blockhouses along the stretch of frontier between Madliza and Rashka, have led the Survian government to make a formal protest to the powers, and it is believed that this is part of an organized plan to provoke Servia. The matter is being discussed by the ambassadors in conference with a view of getting an explanation from Tewfik Pasha, the Turkish minister of foreign affairs. Word has been received here from Van, the capital of the viloyet of Van, Armenia, that Armenian revolutionists are preparing to cross the Persian frontier.

MURDER AT A ROADHOUSE.

Georga A. Staples Shoots Norman Dacost With a Rifle, Near Randolph, N. H.

Gorham, N. H., Aug. 2.—Norman Dacost, aged about 24 years, and single, was shot and instantly killed by George A. Staples at the Perley Low place on the main road eight miles from the Waumbeck House in Jefferson and four from the Ravine House in the town of Randolph late Saturday night. The murder was probably the outcome of longstanding trouble at the farm.

The place is said to have had rather a questionable reputation, and Staples, who kept it, had had trouble previously with Dacost, the latter having been recently released from the jail at Lancaster. For the past few days Dacost is said to have been staying around the place, and Saturday night tried to get into the house. Staples warned him away, and this began the trouble, which ended in bloodshed. It is stated that during the row Staples picked up a 44 caliber rifle, which had been standing near the door, and fired at Dacost.

Three girls, Ethel Varney, Maude Tibbetts and Emma Knights, and several men, witnessed the murder. The sheriff went from here and brought Staples to this town, where he is locked up to await the result of the coroner's inquest.

Staples says that his act was done in self-defense, and that he can produce evidence to the effect that Dacost had threatened his life. The body is still at the farmhouse awaiting the action of some one in authority to dispose of it.

An Old Man Shot.

Westfield, Mass., Aug. 2.—Hiram C. Burlingame, aged 96, was shot and probably mortally wounded at noon yesterday at his house on Hampton place, about three miles north of Westfield Center, by Edward Fitz, aged 20. Three shots were fired, two taking effect, one in the breast and the other in the abdomen. The miscreant fled and the wounded man managed to crawl about half a mile to the house of his nearest neighbor. Medical aid was summoned and an examination showed the wounds to be probably fatal. Chief of Police Mullen found Fitz at the farm of Ebenezer Hastings in Middle Farms, where he was employed, and placed him under arrest. He was brought to the police station in this town, where he admitted doing the shooting, and told the circumstances leading up to it. His only reason for seeking to take the life of the old man, he says, was to get possession of a revolver. He went to Burlingame's hut and asked if he would sell him a revolver. Burlingame gave a favorable reply and produced the weapon. Fitz then sprang upon the aged man and wrenching the revolver from his grasp shot him twice. Burlingame defended himself as best he could and managed to get his assailant out of the hut. Fitz then went to a window and fired the third shot into the hut, but failed to hit his mark.

Nile Tribes Fighting.

Cairo, Aug. 2.—The Egyptian intelligence department has received word of heavy tribal fighting up the Nile between the dervishes and Jaalins. The dervishes, under one of the generals of the khalifff, defeated the Jaalins in a pitched battle and occupied Metelneh on July 1. The losses on both sides were very large. The Jaalins are said to have lost 2000 killed.

President Attends Church.

Plattsburgh, N. Y., Aug. 2.—The weather was sufficiently pleasant yesterday to enable the president to attend church in Plattsburgh. It had been rumored that he would attend divine service there, and at an early hour people made their way in large numbers to the portals of the handsome Methodist Episcopal church edifice in that village, and it was not long after the doors had been opened that the auditorium was crowded to its full capacity of upwards of 1000 people, and the transept in the rear was also well filled. The president arrived in company with General and Mrs. Alger and Private Secretary and Mrs. Porter. Dr. A. H. Eaton, pastor of the church, delivered the sermon, which was based upon the text, "There is none other name under Heaven given among men whereby we must be saved." A number of people shook hands with the president as he came out. After lunch the presidential party took a short drive. During the afternoon the president received a committee composed of Colonel C. L. MacArthur, Hon. Martin I. Townsend and Hon. John A. Quackenbush of Troy, who asked the president to attend a reunion of the army of the Potomac in Troy on Aug. 19. The president did not give a definite promise, except that he would attend if possible.

Veterans' Union Sensation.

Washington, Aug. 2.—Something of a sensation has been created in the ranks of the Veterans' union by an order from General M. A. Dillon, recently appointed provisional department commander of the Department of the Potomac, suspending the officers and delegates of W. S. Hancock and John A. Logan commands from all the rights and privileges of the union until they comply with crtain orders recently issued by the department commander. The members of the commands affected say they will pay no attention to the order. The difficulty arises out of the dissatisfaction with an order received from the commander-in-chief of the union, conveying the information that the Washington commandry of the U. V. U. had been alienated from the Department of the Potomac. A protest against the order is now pending and will be decided at the meeting of the national encampment next month. General Dillon's order also suspends the colonel of the John A. Logan command (H. L. Street) until he furnishes evidence of his eligibility to membership, which requires service at the front during the war. The latter's friends say he can furnish this satisfactorily.

Almost a Lynching.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 2.—Luther D. Johnson, a farmhand, aged 39, narrowly escaped lynching yesterday by a number of indignant residents of Green's Farms for a criminal assault he is alleged to have committed on the 8-year-old daughter of John Meacham, a hostler. The girl is in a critical condition, but the circumstances connected with it were not made known until Saturday night, and the girl's description of her assailant tallied so closely with that of Johnson, whose actions for some time have been suspicious, that Constable Thomas Quigley took him into custody yesterday. When the news of his arrest spread a large crowd gathered about the house where Johnson was detained preparatory to taking him to Southport, and threats of lynching were so freely made that word was hastily sent to Sheriff Buckley of this city, who at once repaired to the scene and brought the man here for safety.

Preacher Applauded.

Lewiston, Me., Aug. 2.—Rev. A. J. Wheeler, in a lecture at Auburn hall yesterday afternoon, roundly censured the county officials and Lewiston city government for attempting to remove Constables Teague and Dionne for enforcing the prohibitory law. The remarks were greeted with applause.

Nelson Dingley, Sr., Dying.

Lewiston, Me., Aug. 2.—Nelson Dingley, Sr., of Auburn, father of Congressman Dingley, lies at the point of death, having been unconscious since Friday.

MISSING WOMAN FOUND

Alice Barrett Had Massage Operator at Hotel Thorndike.

Codman's Books as Yet Show No Shortage.

Another Point In Mystery Surronnding Life of Sirange Girl Is Clear.

Boston, Aug. 3.—Alice Barrett did have a woman caller at the Hotel Thorndike on June 7, the first of the two nights she occupied a suite there. The woman was a masage operator. Fire Marshal Whitcomb found the woman yesterday and added her testimony to the mass of evidence he has collected in this sensational case.

The woman knew Alice Barrett quit well. Alice, she said, was a regular customer at the Turkish bath which this woman kept. Regularly twice a month, after Jan. 1 of this year, Alice visited the establishment and took a bath. She gave her own name there and got to be well known.

The woman, who is about 40 years of age, but whose name is withheld, called at the Thorndike at 7:20 in the evening. She went away at 9:40. She gave Alice a massage treatment. Supper was served for both in the suite, Alice paying for it. She also paid the price of the massage and "tipped" the woman besides.

She says that Alice also tipped the attendants at the Turkish bath. She was very free with her money. That night, the woman said, was the only night she ever saw Alice Barrett away from the Turkish bath. It was the last time she saw her, also, for Alice never visited the Turkish bath afterward.

There were three or four bouquets of flowers in the suite at that time. In tracing up these flowers the fire marshal found out that they had been purchased on Tremont street and carried away by the person who bought them. No record of the name was kept, however, and Alice was not remembered there. The fire marshal believes that Alice bought them herself and carried them with her to the hotel.

"I cannot find," said the fire marshal, "that Alice Barrett ever speculated at all. I have run down some rumors, but as yet have got no actual facts. I expect a witness tomorrow, though, who is said to know that she speculated."

W. H. Foss was a witness again yesterday at the fire marshal's office. His testimony was not important. At the Codman office is was stated yesterday that the examination of the books now being made has as yet revealed no discrepancy in the cash. The fire marshal says that the $200 paid into the office Friday and two checks for about $70, paid on Saturday, are still missing.

Letter Carrier Wolf testified yesterday to seeing a man in the hallway of the building where the Codman office is situated just before the fire broke out. He did not know the man. He also said that he was not sure, as one of the newspapers stated, the noise he heard was a pistol shot. It might have been a clap of thunder.

The fire marshal heard yesterday that two men were seen on the roof of the building next to No. 40 Kilby street, where the tragedy occurred, just before the fire.

Fire Marshal Whitcomb says he will continue his investigation.

WEEKLY CROP REPORT.

Weather Has Been Most Unfavorable for the Farmer--The Outlook Dubious.

Boston, Aug. 3.—The weather conditions of the past week were of the poorest. Almost daily rains hindered farm operations, and crops, as a rule, are suffering greatly from excessive moisture and lack of sunshine. As to final results much will depend on the weather of the next week or 10 days. The week was unseasonably cool, temperature falling almost to 40 in the interior on the 27th.

The heavy rainfall on the 29th terminated a record for the month which is nothing short of phenomenal. At Hyannis, Mass., 3.52 inches fell in four hours; in Connecticut and Rhode Island the falls were from 2 to 4.5 inches; in the more northern sections the rainfall was lighter.

Maine.

In Aroostook county the week was favorable for haying, but in other parts of the state it was very poor. Large amounts of hay in all stages of curing have been "caught" by rains, and more was housed in a damaged condition. Corn is doing well on light soils; poorly on heavy soils. Oats are showing rust and are lodged on heavy lands; looking finely on warm lands, where nearly a full crop is indicated. The potato rust has appeared on some fields. Poor outlook for apples. Native blueberries fairly plentiful.

New Hampshire.

Another very bad week for haymaking is the report. Only one day that was without rain. Large amounts of hay and fodder crops have been damaged; standing grass is badly overripe. Weeds and grass making great growth. Oats are nearly ripe and badly lodged. Much corn cannot mature. Barley ripening slowly. Potatoes are not promising. Apples will be scarce, and blueberries a short crop in general. A night frost occurred in the Connecticut valley on the 27th.

Vermont.

Between showers last week an effort was made to secure that part of the hay crop not already ruined by the excessive rains. It was discouraging work, and the crop is heavily damaged. Oats are rusting badly; much grain will be cut green; many grain fields cannot be entered with reapers. Potato rust is reported in various localities. Upland corn is doing well.

Massachusetts.

Haying has continued under discouraging conditions, meadows being flooded for a third time this summer. The crop as a whole will fall far short of the usual yield. Considerable loss on tobacco is also predicted. In most towns are reports of potato rot. Corn has made a fair growth. Fruit promises well as a rule. The cranberry yield will not be as large as usual.

Rhode Island.

Grains have been harvested in bad shape, owing to heavy showers; some meadows are not yet mowed. Potatoes nearly all dug; good crop. General appearance of other crops is good, although corn is somewhat beaten down. There will be excellent second crop of grass on many meadows.

Connecticut.

Crops on sandy soils are looking well; on other soils they are poorer than a week ago. Farm work has been nearly at a standstill. All fields are so wet that nothing can be done. Corn and potatoes need sunshine. Much overripe hay will be cut. Peach trees were quite badly broken down by heavy storms.

J. W. Smith,
Section Director.

Bicyclist Killed.

Danbury, Conn., Aug. 3.—C. Edward Lyon, aged 32, teller in the Danbury Savings bank, was instantly killed last night while riding a bicycle, by being run into by a horse. Lyon, with his twin brother, were riding a tandem. They met a team, in which were Mrs. Goetler and her two daughters, going in an opposite direction, and as the bicyclists attempted to cross the road, the horse reared, then shied and collided with the wheelmen. They were thrown to the ground, and Edward, who was on the rear seat, was stepped on by the horse, and the cork of the shoe striking his forehead over the left eye, penetrated the brain, killing him instantly. The brother was also severely cut about the body and badly bruised. The occupants of the carriage were greatly bewildered and drove away without being aware of the fatality.

Kennebec Knights' Pilgrimage.

Augusta, Me., The committees from the several commanderies Knights Templar of the upper Kennebec valley held a meeting in Augusta yesterday afternoon and decided to have a pilgrimage to Fort Popham, Fridey, Aug. 13, leaving Gardiner by the steamer Islander. The commanderies which will participate are: Maine, No. 1, of Gardiner Trinity, No. 7, of Augusta; DeMolay, No. 10, of Skowhegan, and St. Omer, No. 12, of Waterville. This is the first occasion on which the several commanderies of the upper Kennebec have united in making a pilgrimage of this sort. The plan is to have the De Molay and St. Omer commanderies join with Trinity of Augusta and have a short parade in this city, and then go to Gardiner, where there will be a short march. On the return to Gardiner, Maine commandery will entertain.

Universalists' Summer Meeting.

The Weirs, Aug. 3.—The 16th national summer meeting of the Universalists began last evening at the Music hall here, with a reception and social greetings, followed by a song service, in charge of Rev. Q. H. Shinn, D. D., of St. Louis, president of the association, and an address by Rev. G. A. Emerson of Boston. The meetings will continue daily for one week. The officers of the association are: President, Rev. Q. H. Shinn; secretary, E. L. Shinn of Roxbury, Mass.; treasurer, R. P. Morse of Roxbury. The pre-eminent object of the national summer meeting is the generation of missionary power.

Staples Pleads Self Defense.

Berlin, N. H., Aug. 3.—George S. Staples of Randolph, an aged farmer, who shot and killed Norman Decost late Saturday night, claiming it to be in self-defense, was brought here yesterday from Randolph for an examination in the local police court. Judge Stearns presided, and County Solicitor Goss conducted the prosecution, while William H. Paine appeared for Staples. All the testimony tended to show that Decost was a dangerous man and had terrorized all the inmates of the house where the shooting took place. Staples will plead self-defense.

TEN EYCK'S RECEPTION

Worcester Welcomes Henley Champion With Great Demonstration.

Medal For Him and Handsome Purse For Father.

Winner of Diamond Sculls Goes Into Training Today For National Regatta.

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 3.—Edward H. Ten Eyck, the now celebrated American winner of the diamond sculls at the Henley regatta, returned to his home in this city last night, and was given a reception by his fellow citizens which has never been equalled in the city in point of numbers or enthusiasm. It seemed as if everybody in the city who was able to leave his house turned out to greet the young champion.

Never before have the streets in the vicinity of th Union station and in the centre of the city seen such an immense throng. The Union station itself was packed so full of people that long before the train which bore Ten Eyck and his party arrived it was utterly impossible to gain admittance to the big structure. Washington square was a mass of people, and Front and Main streets, as far north as Lincoln square and as far south as Park street, the route of the procession, were so densely crowded that the procession had barely room enough to pass through in a column of fours.

It is estimated that the crowd numbered more than 50,000, and as the modest young champion was escorted between the lines the public voice gave forth cheer after cheer of welcome, while the heavens were lighted with the glare of colored lights, and the echoes rang with the stirring strains of the marching bands and drum corps, which played such tunes as "Home Sweet Home," Yankee Doodle," "See, the Conquering Hero Comes," etc.

Mayor Sprague, the members of the city council and many of the leading citizens acted as a reception committee, and were at the Union station to greet the champion and his father, James A. Ten Eyck, but the jam was so great that anything like order was out of the question.

The moment that Ned was sighted there was a mad rush for him, and still another when his father was seen.

The reception committee was swept aside like chaff, but the travelers were finally escorted to the carriages in waiting for them, and a few minutes later the parade started, Major Harry B. Fairbanks of the Second regiment acting as chief marshal.

Colonel Samuel E. Winslow was presiding officer of the formal exercises upon the common. Mayor Sprague formally welcomed the young man home, and Colonel Rockwood Hoar of the governor's staff presented to Ned Ten Eyck a handsome silver shield and a jewelled minature of the diamond sculls. His father, James Ten Eyck, was given a purse of about $1000, raised by subscription. Letters were read from President McKinley, Governor Wolcott, Senator George F. Hoar, Congressman J. H. Walker and many others.

Later in the evening a reception was tendered the Henley champion at the rooms of the Wachusett Boat club at Lake Quinsigamond. Ten Eyck goes into training today for the nationals at Philadelphia.

North Atlantic Squadron.

New York, Aug. 3.—The vessels of the North Atlantic squadron proceeded to sea yesterday. The New York, flying the flag of Rear Admiral Montgomery Sicard, led the way towards the narrows. Then followed the Brooklyn, called the queen's jubilee ship, the first-class battleships Indiana and Massachusetts, and the second-class warship Maine. The squadron is due at Newport today. Tomorrow officers and men will drill on land. Admiral Sicard said he intended to drill the fleet on its way to Newport. Great preparations are being made aboard the vessels of the home squadron for the reception of Secretary of the Navy Long, who will arrive on the Dolphin at Newport tomorrow. From Newport the fleet will proceed to Portland, Me., and from there to Portsmouth, N. H., whence the Indiana will be sent to Halifax. Admiral Sicard said he intended to return to this port by Aug. 25, when he will expect all the vessels to be ready to take part in extensive maneuvers at sea. Secretary Long has instructed the admiral to drill the ships at sea as though they were in action.

Chasing Porgie Steamers.

Cottage City, Mass., Aug. 3.—The state police boat, Ocean Gem, is busily engaged at present in chasing porgie steamers out of the bay. Officer Dexter of the district force says that on Friday last he sent the Montauk and George Hudson, both of Greenport, L. I., out of the bay. He believes that both steamers had a seine out near Quick's Hole. Since then a number of other seiners have been hovering around Vineyard Sound and Buzzard's Bay. The police boat will endeavor to capture the fishermen who are illegally taking porgies along the shore.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Miss Alice Burrill is among the latest of bicycle riders.

Miss Florence Thomas has gone to Long Island, Maine.

Miss Lillian Foy of China, Me., is the guest of Miss Alberta Turner.

Mrs. Ella V. Carver and children returned Saturday from their vacation.

Mr. Arthur Perry of Johnson avenue is spending his vacation at Brant Rock.

Miss May Storey of West Medford is the guest of Miss Lena Berry of Atlantic.

Miss Lizzie Kliengenhagen of Wollaston Park, is visiting at Plymouth for two weeks.

William Bassett, one of E. H. Doble & Co. clerks, has gone to Plymouth on a vacation trip.

Miss Eva Stewart Sheldon of Wollaston has gone to St. John, N. B., to spend the month of August.

Mr. William P. Nutting and family of Lawrence were the guests of Mr. John D. Nutting on Sunday.

Mr. J. Henry Kolb of Clive street has returned from his long vacation in Maine, looking very brown.

Mrs. Rice and Miss Maud Rice have gone to Long Island, Portland, Maine, to be absent until September.

Mr. Mitchell, president of the Lynn Y. M. C. A. preached at the West Quincy Methodist church, Sunday evening.

Stephen Edwards, Jr., and Martin Cunniff of Atlantic made a flying visit to Worcester, Sunday, on their wheels.

Miss May Purdy of Bigelow street and her sister Miss Sadie, of Taunton, have gone to Maine for a three weeks' vacation.

Another party of ladies and children from Quincy have gone on the street cars today on an excursion to Highland Park, Avon; where there is a splendid grove, and many attractions.

Mr. Edwin B. Langley returned today from Newport News, Virginia. He left here with Capt. Fuller, on the steamer Shawmut two or three weeks ago, and has enjoyed a pleasant trip.

The new street sprinkling assessment will cause some changes. Those estates with a long frontage will have to pay more than in the past, while the small business lots most benefited will escape with a small assessment.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dix of Dedham are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haynes of Hamilton street, Wollaston Park. Mr. Dix and Mr. Fred Haynes enjoyed a fishing trip with Captain W. J. Coombs on his yacht, Clara Lou on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gram, Jr., and Miss Laura Gram of Buffalo, N. Y., are visiting Mr. Gram's brother, T. C. Gram of Wollaston Park. Mr. William Gram is a member of the Buffalo Dental Manufacturing Co., one of the largest concerns of the kind in this country.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Morton left this city today for a western trip. They intend to visit Mr. and Mrs. Paul P. Baxter at Ketchum, Idaho, who are natives of Quincy; Mrs. Baxter is a sister of Mrs. Morton. They may possibly visit the Pacific shore before returning.

That new whistle which has been established at one of our quarries was much in evidence this morning and noon, and promises to become a nuisance. A siren whistle may be a good thing for sounding an alarm to vessels in a fog, but is out of place in a civilized community.

A prominent business man of Wollaston with his wife rode to Abington on a tandem recently and on their return met with a slight accident. The gentleman's "frontispiece" bears evidence of having come in contact with something harder than stack of hay. If you want to know just how it feels to plow up concrete with your face ask Mr. Baker.

HOT LABOR DEBATE

In City Council on Employment of Quincy Men.

Wollaston Asks for $10,000 for Depot Approaches.

Houghs Neck People Against Relocation of Sea Street.

The midsummer meeting of the City Council, after a vacation of four weeks, was in keeping with the weather, a little warm. The discussion was over the enforcement of a sewer contract which calls for the employment of Quincy men, in which a majority of the Councilmen participated.

Twenty members were present at the roll call, but Councilman Cain came in later, and the only absentees were Councilmen Phillips and Rideout.

More for Sewers.

Mayor Adams forwarded a communication from the Sewer Commissioners requesting a further appropriating of $100,000 for pumping station and extensions. Referred to Committee on Sewers.

Petitions.

Several applications for State aid, soldiers relief and minor licenses were received.

One granting Bussell & Kittredge a common victualler's license, and the undertakers licenses were granted. The others were referred.

The following petition was received from Wollaston citizens and referred to the Committee on Streets:

QUINCY, MASS , July 26, 1897.

To the City Council of Quincy:

Your attention is hereby called to the present unsafe and inconvenient condition of Beale street bridge.

The fence recently erected on the east side of Newport avenue at the railroad station by the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R makes it necessary that all patrons of the road living on the west side of the track shall pass over Beale street bridge to and from the Wollaston station.

Beale street bridge in its present condition is entirely inadequate to accommodate safely and conveniently the several hundred people who arrive from some of the trains.

Your attention is also called to the fact that more than two hundred houses have been built and more than two hundred families have settled in that part of Wollaston, viz: north of Beale street and west of railroad, with a belief that access to the railroad station would always remain the same as for the past twenty-five years,—without warning and without hearing, this fence has been erected,—its erection will cause constant inconvenience and danger to a large number of citizens and taxpayers.

Therefore, we the petitioners pray that such action will be taken by the City Council of Quincy as will result in the widening of Beale street bridge and also the extension of Brook street under the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R.

A petition for the acceptance of Whalley road over President's hill was received and referred to the Committee on Streets.

The New England Telephone company petitioned for the location of one pole on Hancock street near Beach street. An order was introduced and took one reading.

Sprinkling Assessment.

The Committee on Streets reported an amendment to the street sprinkling order providing that half of the cost,—$2200—be assessed on abutters at the rate of two and two-tenths cents per front foot. Adopted.

Brook Street Extension.

The Committee on Streets reported as follows:

ORDERED:—That the Mayor be authorized to enter into an agreement with the officials of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company under which Brook street may be extended easterly under the track of said railroad company to connect with Woodbine street, and for the widening and re-building of the Beale street bridge, substantially in accordance with plans presented by said railroad company, provided that said work can be done at an expense to the City of Quincy for a sum not to exceed $10,000, said amount to include all land and grade damages.

Counciman Swithin objected. He understood that a footway would answer all purposes, and thought it would be unwise for the city to expend $10,000.

Without debate the order was ordered to a second reading and referred to the Committee on Finance.

Faxon Road.

The Committee on Streets reported an order laying out Faxon road as a public street, and appropriating $1000 therefor. Read once.

Marine Park.

Ex-Councilman George W. Morton forwarded the following petition:

To His Honor, Charles F. Adams 2d, Mayor of Quincy, and the Honorable City Council:

We, citizens of Quincy, must respectfully ask that the Board of Park Commissioners be authorized to take the land on the north side of Sea street, beginning at the easterly end of Shelton road and Sea street and extending easterly to land owned by the Mandarin club of Boston on said Sea street, to be used forever as a Marine Park or public grounds.

GEORGE W. MORTON,
THEOPHILUS KING,
EDWIN W. MARSH,
GEORGE H. HITCHCOCK,
JAMES THOMPSON,
RUPERT F. CLAFLIN,
MARCUS M. PACKER.

Russell Park.

At 8 o'clock a hearing was given on the acceptance of Russell Park street. No one appeared pro or con, and the order was recommitted.

Sea Street Hearing.

At 8.15 a public hearing was given on the petition that the boundary lines of Sea street between Rye Island and "The Bit" be defined.

Herbert T. Whitman, for the petitioners, said he appeared for Mrs. John Quincy Adams. Sea street was originally laid out in 1808 and was 33 feet wide. While the plans gave the bounds the surveyors were unable to locate it exactly at this point, for they could not tell where they began or ended. The statutes provide that the city shall set stone bounds. Mrs. Adams desired to develope a part of this property. The stakes on the west side were not put in by Mrs. Adams but by himself. He believed that the entire length of the road should be widened. It was his suggestion that the Committee on Streets ask Mrs. Adams to give a strip of land to widen this street. At the time the Manet street railway was built Mr. Adams objected as the street was too narrow and offered to give 30 feet of land if they would build on it, but a location was obtained on the street and the tracks were located in the street and the city lost the land. The road at the causeway, however, was built partially on private land. He did not ask for an appropriation but simply that the bounds be defined.

John Cavanagh said that he had noticed that some stakes had been driven down and he had understood that Mr. Whitman had put them there to substitute the original line. That would cut off the only causeway we had on that road. From Mosquito woods down it was a beautiful view, and he hoped the Council would not allow anyone to take that view away. The causeway had been used for a number of years and he believed he had a right over it and that it was impossible to crowd them onto the marsh.

Hearing closed.

Labor Resolution.

Councilman Little offered the following resolution:

RESOLVED,—That the Council request the Sewer Commissioners to be strictly enforced, the terms of the contract for constructing the sewer on Copeland street.

Councilman Nickerson wanted more light.

Councilman Little said Quincy men were not employed. That those who had been put to work had been discharged on slight pretexts. That the contractor required ten hours' work and paid only $1 25 to $1.50 per day, while a local contractor whose bid was slightly in advance had figured on nine hours and $1.75 per day.

Councilman Nickerson asked if the Councilman knew it was difficult to get Quincy men?

Councilman Little did not know it. Quincy men were not wanted, and the few employed were not told in advance what they would receive in wages, and were discharged on slight pretexts.

Councilman Nickerson desired to hear from Chairman Whitman of Sewer board.

Mr. Whitman said it was the contractors look out to secure Quincy help. It was in the contract that Quincy men should be employed in the trenches but nothing was said about pay. The board was satisfied the contractor would not complete the job on time, but it might be unwise to take it from him. He may have to raise price to get help.

Councilman Pinkham regarded it as a mistake for the Council to interfere with the duties of the executive department.

Councilman Nickerson objected to the resolution if intended to cast reflection on the Commissioners.

Councilman Little did not wish to cast reflection, but to express the sentiments of the Council.

Councilman Poland opposed the resolution. It was wrong to hamper the Commissioners or contractors. The city should not expect to have the money spent here unless there were men here who wanted the work. The contractors want men who don't have to be bolstered up by the councilmen from the ward.

Councilman Little said able-bodied men wanted the work, and they did not require bolstering.

Councilman Geary should always favor such resolutions. It was wrong to compel men to work for $1 25 per day.

Councilman Sprague said the resolution reminded him of the attempt made in the early stages of the sewer work, when Quincy men were employed to dig the test pits, but got sick of it and threw up the job, and it was necessary to employ Italians.

Councilman Little said at the last election the issue had been an honest dollar and protection for honest labor, and men had been elected on that issue.

Councilman Sprague did not believe in paying $2 per day of nine hours to everything that wore "pants."

Councilman Edwards thought it nonsense to assert that Quincy labor could not be obtained.

Councilman Packard considered it within the province of the Council to pass resolutions of all kinds. The members were elected by the people.

Councilman McGrath upon learning that the resolution was to enforce higher pay, which the contract did not call for, thought there was no sense in offering or passing the resolution.

Councilman Field thought it was out of the province of the Council to interfere, and that the former resolution should be rescinded. It called for "living wages." What were living wages? Parker house fare? It might cost a man with a large family more to live than another. A contractor was weak to sign the Copeland street contract to complete within a given time. Another side to consider, was that soon some poor people will be assessed to pay for sewer construction. The Councilmen have taken an oath to protect the taxpayers.

Councilman Little said it was not the poor man who objected to the poor receiving good wages. He queried if the last speaker had not been to Washington and sought government aid to protect the granite manufacturers from the pauper labor of Europe.

Councilman Field replied quickly that he had done a little at Washington, and he hoped the protection secured would be of benefit to the granite workers. They were the ones to be benefited.

The resolution was put and declared lost. It was doubted and upon a standing vote there were 6 yeas and 14 nays.

Another Resolution.

Councilman Little offered a second resolution, as follows:

RESOLVED,—That the Council request all heads of departments to specify in all contracts let in the future, that the hours of labor for workmen shall be nine.

The Council refused to adopt the resolution.

Councilman Cain doubted the vote. On a rising vote the Council refused to adopt the resolution by a vote of 5 yeas to 15 nays.

Adjourned at 8 45 for two weeks.

HOUGHS NECK.

Mr. A. A. Meyers is building a sea wall in front of his summer cottage on Great Hill, Houghs Neck.

Mrs. A. W. Johnson and family of Roxbury are spending the month of August with friends on Crosby street.

Miss Gertrude Tileston and Miss Ethel Bates were the guests of Mr. J. M. Fitts on the sloop Fire Fly on Sunday.

Nobody knew about the burning of the ship on Saturday night until about 10.45 when somebody spied a puff of smoke rising from the stern and then a blaze. It was a great spectacle from the hill.

Mr. M. J. Fitts is a guest of Mrs. J. M. Emery at the Loretto for a few days.

Clams are almost at a premium this summer at the beach. The dealers are getting all the way from twenty-five to fifty cents a peck.

Master David MacNeil of Chelsea is a guest of Miss Sadie MacNeil at the Murray cottage.

Nightingale Avenue.

The Nightingale avenue order appears to have been "one on the Mayor" instead of one on the Committee on Streets. It was the intention of His Honor to have written a veto but before he was aware of it the ten days expired. Now it devolves upon the Commissioner to keep the street in a safe condition from the general appropriation.

W. Y. C. Ladies' Day.

The Wollaston Yacht club will observe its first Ladies' day on Saturday. The yachts will assemble off the club house at 2 30 and the guests of the club will be given a sail in the harbor. Returning from the sail refreshments will be served and there will be dancing in the evening.

—A Taunton man was in rather a peculiar plight, recently. His alleged sweetheart sued him in the sum of $2,000 for breach of promise, and the deputy sheriff who served the papers found the man at the lady's home. When served with the summons he inquired of her what it was for, remarking at the same time, "I haven't done anything." "It is for what you haven't done," she sweetly replied, and he was silent for the time.

What You Can Do.

You can buy pure TOILET SOAPS of reputable makers as cheap as you can get Soaps that you know nothing about. Is this not worth considering, when so many skin diseases are caused by using Soap made of soap grease full of dangerous substances.

We will sell you Colgate's Turkish Bath, Colgate's Palm Oil, Colgate's Rico or pure Olive Oil Soap for 5 cents a cake or 50 cts. a dozen. We have nicer for 10 cents a cake and as high as $1.00 per cake, but they are no purer than the 5 cent kind. They are pure enough to wash the baby.

All the Toilet Waters at low prices, and Perfumes that beat the flowers themselves.

These are simply necessities this warm weather, they are so refreshing.

Old Dog--New Tricks.

Can't teach an old dog new tricks, eh?

Well, that depends on the old dog.

Our belief is that there are two kinds of old age—particularly in business.

Take an old firm which keeps along in the same ancient ruts, year after year, doing certain things simply because "grandfather did," and not doing a lot of other things because "grandfather did'nt"—we grant that it is about impossible to teach that sort of "old dog" any "new tricks."

But there's another variety of old firm—one which has been long established, but which has year by year kept pace with all the improvements and general progress in its line.

New tricks? Why certainly; learning 'em every day.

That's the sort of establishment MERRILL keeps—up-to-date, enterprising, always pushing ahead.

All new goods that have merit can be found at our establishment, as well as the old reliable staples. It is a general opinion that while every other line had new styles and novelties, the grocer kept on year after year buying and selling the same old varieties. There never was a greater mistake made. Come in and see us and we will show you hundreds of articles in groceries never thought of by your fathers. We cannot enumerate them here, but would like to show you what they are, at

Mrs. Charles A. Hanson and children, Miss Julia M. Little, Miss Carrie Underwood, Miss Alice Hardwick, Master Stoddard Hardwick and others from Spear street have gone to Highland park for the day.

The Clark Avenue juniors defeated the Parker Street nine in a one-sided four innings game on Monday by the score of 26 to 3. The feature of the game was the pitching of Donovan, he striking out 11 men.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shaw are guests at Herdsdale farm, Canton, Me. Last Saturday the following Quincy people were registered at the Poland Spring House at South Poland: Mr. and Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. Wilson Tisdale, and Mrs. W. Walter Ewell. Mr. and Mrs. John Shaw will go to Bar Harbor and other eastern points before returning home.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

☞ A disturbance in the railroad world has been caused, apparently, by the desire of the Wabash Railroad Company to give its patrons the best possible service. The comforts of the free reclining chair cars, such as the Wabash has always run on its trains west of Detroit, have not been known to Eastern people, and now that these cars are being run East over the Wabash extension to Buffalo and to New York City over the Ontario and Western, the other lines seem to be afraid that they will be too popular. So far as the travelling public are concerned they are not likely to object to them.

—About 500 stone workers of Lamont, Indiana, struck Monday for an increase of 25 cents per day in wages. They were employed by the Western and Illinois Stone companies.

Cereal Coffee Drinkers BEWARE!

If you have been deceived and tried one of the cheap bran substitutes now on the market, claiming to be the original and to have great food value, and you got a pound of poorly roasted bran for your 25c. and a poor, weak, sickish drink (what can you expect from bran), done get discouraged but try GRAIN-O. It is made from solid grain, nicely browned and 2 lbs. for 25c. Grain-O takes the place of coffee at ¼ the price. Get a package of your grocer today.

CAMPBELL'S STORY.

Says He Was Drugged and Robbed on the High Sea.

The story told by Albert E. Campbell of Mattapan, up to a recent date a resident of Atlantic, as to his whereabouts during the time intervening between Tuesday, July 27, and Saturday, July 30, reads more like a pirate story than anything else.

He says he was invited in the evening by a friend, to visit his yacht at South Boston, and on his way there he took a drink. He remembers nothing more until he came to on a strange yacht with three strange men. Four days later they landed him on Egg rock off Nahant, and then the $150 he had in his possession at the start was gone.

This is his story in brief but it seems strange that he has yet failed to mention the name of the friend with whom he started on his eventful trip, and furthermore no description appears as to the three men on the boat, or that he made any effort to find out who they were. In fact the whole story is one that Mr. Campbell will have hard work to make people believe, although it may be true.

There is no foundation in the stories connecting Mr. Campbell with Miss Barrett, who shot herself in Boston recently.

Of the money a large part of it is said to have belonged to the Squantum Yacht club, of which he was secretary and as such collected the dues. Members of the Squantum club say that they had a number of back dues uncollected, and that Mr. Campbell had been making an extra effort during the past few weeks to collect what was due. How much of the club's money he had with him at the time is not known, but as he was under bonds the club will not lose anything.

Would be Appreciated.

Editors of the Quincy Ledger:

It is understood that the business men of the Centre are contemplating closing their stores on Tuesday as well as on Wednesday and Thursday evenings. We sincerely trust they will, and speedily, that the clerks may be able to enjoy a little of summer. In almost every town and city a great deal of consideration has been shown the clerks, especially during summer months. As it now is in Quincy the clerks work from 63 to 65 hours each week. On Tuesday evenings the trade is very slight. We hope that the considerate business men are in the majority in Quincy and that this matter may receive favorable attention. THE CLERKS.

The New Hall.

"Quincy Music Hall" is the name selected for the new hall which the Quincy Real Estate Trust is building. The contract calls for the completion of the building on November 1, with a bonus if the work is finished by Mr. Perkins before that date. Some engagements of the hall have already been booked.

Brown Professors Protest.

Providence, Aug. 3.—A statement sent out by members of the faculty of Brown university yesterday afternoon, asking the corporation not to accept President Andrews' resignation, is liable to result in more trouble. The statement is an open letter protesting against the action of the corporation in regard to Dr. Andrews, and is signed by about half the professors. The other half refused to sign the letter on the ground that it was not their province to attempt to interfere with the corporation.

Cornerstone Laid.

Millville, N. H., Aug. 3.—The cornerstone of the new building for the Orphans' Home here was laid yesterday afternoon. Rev. G. W. Lay had charge of the exercizes, and the musical features were furnished by children of the school. Among those present were Revs. J. M. Colt and T. J. Drumm of St. Paul's school, and ex-Governor Hiram A. Tuttle of Pittsfield and Hon. John H. Pearson of Concord, members of the board of trustees, and many prominent citizens and ladies of Concord.

Fairfield W. R. C.

Fairfield, Me., Aug. 3.—The E. P. Pratt Woman's Relief corps, No. 17, was organized here yesterday by Department President Nancy J. Colby, assisted by the department officers. The corps starts with very bright prospects, under the following officers: President, Clara Hinds; S. V. P., Addie L. Rand; J. V. P., Olive Savage; treasurer, Ida Bradbury. The regular meetings of the corps will be held on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month.

ON THE DIAMOND.

National League.

At Washington—Two games.

Klobedanz was easy for the Senators in the first game, but the Beaneaters gave them a scare when they pounded Mercer for six hits in the eighth, one of them a triple. In the second German was wild, forcing in a run in the third with bases on balls. Swaim then took his place and pitched in better form.

Miners Ordered to Vacate.

Grafton, W. Va., Aug. 3.—Notice has been served by Superintendent A. P. Goedecke of the Flemington mines to every striking miner in the region occupying the company's houses to vacate the property immediately. Excitement runs high among the miners, as the notice says their goods will be thrown into the street if they are not out within a specified time. An attempt will be made to operate the mines with non-union men.

Was Born In Westfield.

FENCE EXTENDED.

No Wire Fence Opening Now to Reach Wollaston Depot.

On Monday another section of the Wollaston station fence was built. This time it blocks those people who have heretofore availed themselves of the opening in the wire fence. This last move on the railroads part now successfully isolates the station from the people.

By doing as it has done, it is playing its Boston and local traffic directly into the Quincy & Boston street railway's hands, as the company will rush the building of the Wollaston loop.

A lengthy petition is to be presented to President Clarke and the directors of the New Haven road, by several hundred citizens of Wollaston, asking them to order the fence removed. It is hardly to be expected that such good fortune will result from this petition.

It would seem that a better way to attempt to accomplish this end would have been to have addressed the petition to the Board of Railroad Commissioners, setting forth the grievances of the petitioners, pointing out a possible correction of the evil, and also to have asked the Board to have given the citizens of Wollaston a hearing. The board would have undoubtedly given the citizens a hearing, viewed the premises and ordered something entirely different from that which now overshadows the place.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE

is the most dangerous of all human ailments because its approach is unobservable. Its symptoms are common to other diseases, viz., Severe Headache, Backache, Dizziness, Sleeplessness, Blurred Vision, Dyspepsia, etc. Once let it get a firm hold on the system and it is difficult to dislodge. It is caused by inability of the kidneys to filter the Urea from the blood.

Yet it can be

CURED

Let me relate my experience and how I was cured by Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills. Through a fall, a long time ago, I injured my spine, which indirectly affected my kidneys and general health in a very serious manner. I suffered to such an extent, I was obliged at times to cancel my operating engagements. During this time I was under the care of three of Lowell's best physicians, but derived very little benefit. I finally thought I would try Hobbs' Sparagus Pills, and was surprised to experience a benefit from the first dose, and two boxes effected a complete cure of my troubles. To say that I most strongly endorse these wonderful pills, is putting it mild. I don't think there is a kidney remedy on earth that will equal it.—DR. E. H. SIMMONS, Dentist, 219 Central street, Lowell, Mass.

Commissioners Hopeful.

London, Aug. 3.—The Daily Chronicle announces that the final meeting between the members of the bimetallic commission, headed by Senator Wolcott and Lord Salisbury, will take place during the latter part of next week at the foreign office. Most of the members of the cabinet will be present, and it is understood that Lord Salisbury will then inform the commissioners of the government's decision on the question of a more extended use of silver. The commissioners are hopeful of a favorable decision, and of important concessions. After the meeting they will proceed to Berlin and St. Petersburg.

Colonel Grant Interviewed.

New York, Aug. 3.—Colonel Fred D. Grant, who resigned from the police board on Friday last, was asked whether he was a candidate for the American ministry to China. Colonel Grant said: "I do not think the president has considered my name for the office. Of course I could not say anything when the place has not been offered to me." Colonel Grant also denied that he was a candidate for comptroller on the Republican ticket. He said he would remain in this city for the next few months and that he was glad to be out of the police department.

Soldiers and Citizens Mix Up.

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 3.—Three hundred members of the Seventh regiment, Illinois national guard, had trouble with citizens yesterday. After a clash about some kegs of beer, which the soldiers were bringing into camp Lincoln, the citizens ran and part of the guard followed. Three soldiers were prostrated by the heat as a result of the run. Then there was a general mix up of the soldiers and citizens. One citizen was wounded by a bayonet thrust.

Quite a Slump.

St. Louis, Aug. 3.—A special telegram from Florence, Ala., to The Post Dispatch says: All of the property of the Florence Land, Mining and Manufacturing company and the Florence Educational and Development company was sold at auction yesterday to N. C. Elting, agent for creditors, for $60,000. The property was once thought to be worth $3,000,000, and was bought up by the Land company prior to the boom of 1888.

Carrier Pigeon Record.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 3.—"Pedro," a carrier pigeon, owned by Peter Tollons of the Mishawaka Homing club, one of the eight released at New Orleans on Thursday at 9 a. m., arrived at Mishawaha, a distance of 1000 miles, Sunday at 12:30 p. m., making the distance in 75 hours. The actual flying time, 38 hours, beating the European record of 8 days, and the United States record of 15 1-2 days.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

Old Concord Citizen Gone.

Concord, Mass., Aug. 3.—Louis A. Surette, one of the oldest citizens of this town, died at his home last night. He was born in Nova Scotia in 1818, and came to Concord about 20 years after. He held during his life many official positions, and was the oldest past master of the Corinthian lodge. He leaves four sons and a daughter.

Bicyclist Stein Arrives.

Boston, Aug. 3.—Stein, the winner of the Bal d'Or race in France this season, which is one of the greatest cycle races held in Europe, arrived in Boston yesterday direct from Paris, and began training at the Charles River park for the six-day race to be held there, beginning Aug. 16.

BARBAROUS SEALING.

Pelagic Hunters Kill the Mothers and Young Are Left to Starve.

Extermination Will Follow Its Continuance.

Unpaid Claims of Canadians Whose Vessels Were Seized Are Excessive.

London, Aug. 3.—The Times this morning prints a letter from Herman Liebes of San Francisco, one of the principal stockholders of the North American Commercial company, in regard to the seal controversy, which is now receiving so much attention. Mr. Liebes says:

"I and my colleagues of the North American Commercial company entirely disclaim any desire for measures made 'in the interests of one nationality and against the interests of the other,' and we do not and never have suggested that the English government should 'surrender the exercise of a lucrative industry without receiving an equivalent merely in order to increase our actual and prospective profits.'

"Pelagic sealing is open to ourselves and to the whole world, and speaking for myself (and I am sure I should have the co-operation of my colleagues), I shall be perfectly willing to concur in any reasonable arrangement with our own and also with the British government with a view to (either entirely or at any rate for a given number of years) discontinuing the killing of seals upon the islands in question, as also all pelagic sealing, and I would do this not because the killing of young bachelor seals as conducted upon the Pribyloff islands in any way endangers the propagation and existence of the seal (because I am sure it does not), but simply to assist in bringing about an arrangement for the suspension of pelagic sealing in order to avoid what I am absolutely satisfied will otherwise very shortly come to pass, viz.:

"The entire extermination of the seal from the waters in question, and further because I will not share the responsibility of those who, by allowing the present barbarous system to be continued, are rapidly destroying in a very cruel way a very valuable industry.

"I am in a position to prove conclusively that of the seals caught by the pelagic sealers at least 80 per cent are females and the remaining 20 per cent are mostly pups, in which the sex is not distinguishable after the skins are removed from the body. As I have said the skins all come to London to be dressed, and there is not the slightest difficulty in determining the sex of the adult seal from the skins, an inspection of them would convince all who saw them.

The Males Escape.

"The males are much more active than the females, who are all heavily encumbered and float at the top of the water and are unable to escape so rapidly as the males.

"Professor Thompson, in his report, gives the number of vessels and the number of people employed in the catch for the year 1896. There were, according to this report, 65 vessels employed in the work, having in the aggregate crews of 809 white men and 889 Indians, or 1698 in all.

"The skins of the seals when caught are packed by the crews of the ships and forwarded immediately to London for sals.

"Where, may I ask, are the $000 Canadians to whom Sir L. H. Davies alludes as being dependent on the industry, unless they be the shareholders of the companies owning the various vessels and which shareholders certainly during the last three or four years never saw, as the result of seal fishing, a penny dividend, as their skins the last few years not being 30s. pe rskin, and it certainly cost them 40s. to catch them and in some instances much more.

"During the last seven years our company (the so-called great monopolists) have killed only about 15,000 seals per annum, and the average price received for the skins in London were certainly under £5 per skin gross—last year's catch only brought £3 10d. per skin—and inasmuch as the skins cost us over £3 each, to say nothing of our invested capital, you will see the monopoly is not very large, and had we invested our money in government bonds we should have done better.

"A great deal has been said about the Americans not paying compensation to the owners of the vessels seized in the years 1886-7-9 and 1890, a list of which vessels is set forth in the award. The Parisian arbitrators, by their award, did not assess and damages, but left that matter open for further negotiation between the two governments. The owners of the vessels seized were promptly asked to send in their claims, and did so.

"All the merchants who had purchased the pelagic seal catches from the ships which had not been seized by the United States government during the years mentioned in the arbitrators' award were asked to give evidence before the committee of the prices paid to the shipowners for the seals caught during those years, and it appeared that the claims made on behalf of the vessels seized were excessive, both in quantity and price. The numbers claimed were considerably in excess of the largest catch of any of the others vessels, and the prices asked were certainly double the prices obtained by any or the other vessels not seized.

"Every effort is being made by the commission appointed for the purpose for assessing the compensation in British Columbia, consisting of the chief justice of Canada and a judge of the United States, and who are now sitting there to come to a conclusion upon the point. Whatever compensation is awarded will be promptly paid.

Rolling Mills Resume.

Cleveland, Aug. 3.—All departments of the Cleveland rolling mills opened yesterday. About 2000 men were given work. Several departments which had shut down at the time of the coal strike resumed operations. General Manager Chisholm said he did not know how long the works would continue in full operation.

ON GOOD BEHAVIOR.

Striking Miners Have So Far Committed No Acts of Violence.

Pittsburg, Aug. 3.—The striking miners have broken all records, both as to numbers attending their mass meetings and the excellent order and law abiding behavior they have exhibited. Too much praise cannot be given the strikers for this latter condition. They have been subject to the control of the leaders, who, profiting by former experience, have so forcibly instilled into the minds of their followers the stupidity of law breaking that the peaceful attitude and actions of the strikers have been a source of wonder to all the prophets, who have from day to day predicted dire happenings.

The mass meeting of the miners at the McCrea schoolhouse yesterday was the greatest during the strike, and probably the largest gathering of the kind ever seen in Allegheny county. More than 5000 striking miners were gathered for an all-day session, and labor leaders harangued them in various tongues, while bands of music served to stir up the enthusiasm to the highest pitch.

From early morning miners of every nationality were gathered around the schoolhouse. They came in big bands and small ones, but the one that set the camp wild with enthusiasm consisted of 1600 miners from Turtle Creek, and when they came in sight there was such cheering as has not been heard since the strike started. They came down to the camp at the schoolhouse with bands playing stirring airs and banners waving in the breeze.

Cheer after cheer went up from the camp and the marchers returned them with a will. When the miners of the two parties met there was some wild scenes. Men rushed around shaking hands, shouting and even embracing each other.

The feeling in the camp was one of triumph. The miners claim that they are on the high road to success, and the enthusiasm was at a fever heat.

The condition can be said to be critical. Both sides feel that there is a crisis near at hand.

Grand Circuit Races.

Columbus, O., Aug. 3.—The grand circuit meeting opened here yesterday. The track was a few seconds slow on account of the rain the previous night. The most sensational finish ever seen on the track was witnessed in the third heat of the 2:11 pace. There were 19 starters in this race. Billy C won the first two heats. In the third heat there was a bad spill in the second quarter, and the drivers of both Billy C and Nicol B were thrown. Billy C stopped at the three-quarter post, but Nicol B kept right on with the field, running wild. In the stretch the runnaway horse pushed ahead and followed right behind the sulkies of Pearl Onward and Castleton. Just before reaching the wire, the runaway passed in close to the rail, and while the spectators held their breath, expecting to see a smashup, Nicol B poked his head under the wire just ahead of Pearl Onward, who won the heat. The runaway horse slowed up and turned at the first quarter, when he was caught by the stablemen. Although Murphy and McLaughlin, the drivers, were badly bruised by the spill they drove their respective horses in the fourth heat, both having been given places. Nicol B won the heat, pacing clear around the bunch. Darkness prevented the race being finished. Mabel P won the 2:17 pace in straight heats, slowing up each time as she came under the wire, and Dare Devil won the 2:27 trot in easy style.

Day at Champlain.

Lake Champlain, N. Y., Aug. 3.—The review of the Twenty-first United States infantry, under the command of Colonel McKibben, held on the hotel grounds and the reception of the guests of the hotel, were the chief events of the day for President McKinley and party. At 11 o'clock the regiment apeared on the grounds in full dress. At the president's request the restrictions regarding access to the grounds were removed and the general public was admitted. The president and Secretary Alger greatly enjoyed the military spectacle. After complimenting Colonel McKibben upon the appearance of his men the president intimated that a repetition of the military event today would be agreeable. The review today will be followed by a bicycle parade of the bicycle detachment of the regiment.

With the coming of night women are careful to bar the doors of their homes against the intrusion of robbers and assassins. There are more dangerous enemies than either the burglar or murderer against which few women take proper precautions. A woman may own the most magnificent jewels and the costliest plate, but after all is said and done, her health is her most precious possession.

It is this that she fails to guard against the dangers of weakness and disease of the distinctly womanly organism. Nearly every complaint from which women suffer has its inception in troubles of this nature, and is continually aggravated by them.

An unfailing remedy for all weakness and disease of the organs distinctly feminine, and the multitude of ills that follow in this train is found in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly on these organs and makes them strong and healthy. It prepares for happy, healthy wifehood and capable, almost painless motherhood. Over 90,000 women have testified to its wonderful merits. No honest druggist will offer something else as "just as good."

"While I was living at Eagle Rock, Botetourt Co., Va.," writes Mrs. G. A. Connor, of Alleghany Spring, Montgomery Co., Va., "a lady friend came to me and said: 'My daughter, aged 15 years, has repeated hemorrhages at the nose, and she has never the necessary indispositions of womanhood.' I advised her to get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The lady purchased one bottle and it cured her daughter. She was well and happy when I left there."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is a physician that is always in the house, ready to give advice and assistance any moment, day or night. It contains 1,008 pages, 300 illustrations and several chapters devoted to the reproductive physiology of women. Over a million women own and value it. A new edition is just out and for a limited time copies will be given away absolutely FREE. If you want a copy in a heavy manilla cover, send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. Guinette and Bumps now carry the same record, 2:06½.

Arthur W, 2:12¼, will be given a let up, owing to lameness.

Satin Slippers, 2:13, trotting now, has a pacing record of 2:16½.

Whalebone, 17,903, died recently at Quaker Stock farm, Dublin, Ind., from heat apoplexy.

Conde, 2:19¼, won a free for all at Vancouver, B. C., trotting the third heat in 2:28½.

Nancy Time, 2:18¼, by George Simmons, worked a mile for Dick Wilson at Detroit in 2:10.

There are 87 entries to the four $1,200 purses for harness races during the Los Angeles fall meeting.

Sir Brenton, 2:31¼, by Grand Sentinel, while scoring in a race at St. John, N. B., fell and broke his neck.

Rachel C, that lately got a mark of 2:30, is the ninth foal of famous old Emeline to get a standard record.

Frank Van Ness is working Kate Medium. Van Ness has not been with the harness horses for several years.

In the heat Agitato took his record of 2:09 Badge forced the great 4-year-old down to the half in 59½ seconds.

Ambidexter, that recently paced to a record of 2:11¼, is out of the dam of Vassar, 2:07, and Belle Vara, 2:08¾.

Sister Alice, that lately got a mark of 2:18½, will be one of the starters in the $25,000 Futurity at Lexington next October.

Cheyenne, 2:14¼, is in training at Groton, S. D. After his stud season he stepped an eighth over the Groton track in 15 seconds.

Verna Strongwood, together with his sire and dam, is the property of F. B. Lay of Kalamazoo. The colt was sired by Strongwood, 2:12¾.

It looks as though Joe Thayer may have a coming champion in Billy Andrews, a 2-year-old by Bow Bells, out of the dam of Walnut Boy, 2:11½.

ALASKA'S GOLD.

Miners in that cold country must have plenty of food and clothing, and, with gold to buy it, they will stimulate industrial activity and so help on the good times coming.—Troy Press.

There is no good reason why Alaska should not be as rich in gold as California in its palmiest days, and no one need be surprised at an immense increase in the gold production of the frozen territory during the coming year.—Philadelphia Times.

It is a fact well recognized that the production of gold the world over is largely increasing. The discovery of these deposits in Alaska, if as great as represented, must unquestionably have a notable effect in bringing the two money metals into closer relationship.—Boston Post.

These evidences of wealth, particularly the irresistible fascination of gold, have started a tide of emigration to Alaska that will cover her barren wastes with the evidences of civilization. Cities and towns will spring up. Railroads and other means of transportation must follow, and Alaska will not be long in seeking admission to the Union.—Philadelphia Call.

There is gold there, and there may be oil, but if the stories may be believed of the most of those who have come back from that region, glad to escape with their lives in many cases, the prospective wealth to be found there is not worth the time, the risks and privations involved in the quest of it under present conditions.—Pittsburg Commercial Gazette.

POULTRY POINTERS.

Geese and ducks should be full feathered before killing.

If eggs are stored in a damp place, they will soon taste musty.

Minorcas, Leghorns and black Spanish chickens are especially valuable for laying.

When the hens stop laying, a change of food will often start them to laying again.

If the hens are too fat, change the grain ration and give a small quantity of whole oats daily.

One of the best times to commence feeding the fowls to fatten is just before they are fully matured.

Early, well developed pullets make good winter layers. Select them before sending the fowls to market.

Wheat boiled until soft makes one of the best feeds to give young poultry. It is easy to prepare, clean and healthy.

Give the hens all possible freedom and there will be less trouble with soft shell eggs, as they will secure the lime they need.

Ducks will thrive best and fatten fastest on soft feed. One part cornmeal, one part bran and a little meat is a good fattening ration.

As a rule, if the hens become broody and begin to sit in a little time after they have been broken up, it is a good sign that they are too fat.—St. Louis Republic.

TOWN TOPICS.

Chicago's population "estimated" at only 1,828,000? Nonsense. That is too small by at least three figures.—New York Tribune.

With the first exposition building contract let and more to follow, local workingmen ought soon to realize some of the benefits which this great enterprise is bringing them.—Omaha Bee.

With the new and splendid jail facilities Chicago feels amply able to entertain a better class of persons. Prominent citizens who bribe aldermen should not be backward in picking out desirable cells.—Chicago Record.

New York, alone of all the cities of the United States, has today a greater amount of commerce than Boston, and with the harbor improvements which are now being made and which are to follow, the margin between New York and Boston may decrease with every successive year.—Boston Advertiser.

OUR GIRLS.

The man who waits for permission to kiss a woman can usually keep on waiting.—Boston Home Journal.

Whenever there is a big crowd or unusual excitement of any kind you can bet some woman will faint.—Atchison Globe.

A woman is a bundle of intuitions held together with 14 yards of mousseline de soie, 8 feet of baby ribbon and 9 papers of pins.—New York Press.

In the daytime the doorknob of a girl's bedroom is used to open the door with; at night it is used as a nail to hang things on by the armholes.—Exchange.

BEATEN BY BURGLARS.

Three Brothers at New Ipswich, N H., Were the Victims.

Masked Men Awakened Them at Midnight.

Thieves Secured Only Twenty-five Dollars and Left No Clew.

Greenfield, N. H., Aug. 4.—A daring burglary took place about five miles from here at midnight Monday night The scene of the affair was a farmhouse about two miles from New Ipswich, in which live three brothers, William, Charles and Samuel Wheeler, who slept in the same bedroom.

They say that just after midnight Monday masked men awakened them in their beds and demanded their wealth. These men had probably driven to the farmhouse, and leaving the team in charge of one of the men the other two made entrance by a window, from which a pane of glass had been removed, so that the fastenings could be taken down. The burglars, in their stocking feet, crept into the bedroom, and when the sleepers awoke, fearfully beat them with clubs.

Samuel Wheeler grappled with one man, but he was felled to the floor. Both William and Charles were made unconscious from their beating, and Charles has probably received a fractured skull.

Robbery was the object of the burglars call for they ransacked the place and only got about $25 in cash. William Wheeler is considered the richest man in New Ipswich, at least he owns the largest amount of real estate, and it is supposed that the burglars though that they could make a big haul in the farmhouse. It would appear that the men were familiar with the surroundings as the Wheelers say they went to work ransacking as if they knew where to look. The men escaped.

REMAINED AWAY SIX YEARS.

Herbert Marshall Left Home Because Wife Was Disinherited on His Account.

Brockton, Mass., Aug. 4.—Herbert Marshall of Unionville, a little hamlet between this city and Easton, went fishing off Nantasket beach on Oct. 23, 1891 and as nothing was heard from him it was thought that he had either committed suicide or had drowned.

Yesterday he appeared in Easton much to the amazement of those who had known him, and claimed that his absence was due to the action of his father-in-law in cutting off his wife from the property by a provision in his will that she should not have it while her husband was living.

He said that he brooded a good deal over the trouble and decided to go away, but how he got away he refuses to say.

His actions were deliberately planned to lead his friends and even his family to believe that he had committed suicide. For six years he wandered through California, Arizona, and at last went to the Transvaal. While he prospered in a business way, his health failed him in Africa and he was in a hospital for many weeks.

In the meantime his family had given up hope of ever seeing him again and had removed to Connecticut.

Marshall returned about a month ago and hunted up his family, who, of course, were overjoyed upon seeing him.

APSLEY EXPLOSION.

Hudson Wrought Up Over Dynamite Outrage. Strikers Denounce Perpetrators.

Hudson, Mass., Aug. 4.—The excitement over the explosion at the Apsley Rubber company's block yesterday has abated but little, and it has been almost the sole topic of conversation ever since.

The townspeople and business men are greatly wrought up over the affair and hope that the $300 reward offered by the selectmen for the apprehension of the perpetrators, which has been augmented by a further $200 by Mr. Apsley himself, will prove sufficient to bring the guilty parties to justice.

The strikers held a largely attended meeting, which was attended by President Pierce of the Federation of Labor, at which resolutions were adopted condemning the attempt to blow up the building., by whomsoever made.

It is the prevailing opinion here that the strikers had some connection with the affair. State Detective Whitney, who was on the case all day, has discovered nothing that positively connects them with it.

Chautauquans at Fryeburg.

Fryeburg, Me., Aug. 4.—The opening and welcoming exercises of the Northern New England assembly and Maine Chataqua union, which is to hold a three weeks' session here, were held last evening. Special efforts have been made to render the session of 1897 far ahead of any ever held on the grounds in interest and variety. The program of music is full, and especially rich in concerts, with a high order of talent. The lecture platform is to be occupied by some of the brightest speakers in the country. There will be classes in painting, parliamentary law, botany, shorthand, household economics, photography, athletics and physical culture. Among the lecturers engaged are Hezekiah Butterworth, H. V. Abbott of Harvard university, Hon. Gorham G. Gilman, W. D. McCracken obert Woods, Dr. David G. Lyon, Miss Vika Scudder of Wellesley college, Governor Powers, Mrs. Lyman Abbott, Miss Arna Barrows and Mrs. E. S. Osgood. Special excursions have been arranged and field days planed for the different departments.

New England Veteran Firemen.

Boston, Aug. 4.—The quarterly meeting of the New England States Veteran Firemen's league was held here yesterday and the finishing touches to the plans for the tournament at Springfield, Sept. 1, were put on. Five new associations were made members that they might participate in the muster, representing Concord, N. H., Swampscott, Pittsfield, Rockland and Watertown. The following judges were chosen: Playing contest, president, William T. Cheswell of Boston, chairman; ex-Chief William A. Green of Boston, Chief George A. Cushing of Hingham, ex-Chief Edward A. Mott of Taunton, Chief A. J. Hendrick of New Haven, William C. Kentfield of Chicopee Falls and John Mead of Greenfield; timekeeper, Captain Samuel Abbott, Jr., of Boston; judges of special prizes, Chief George A. Steer of Providence, chairman, Chief E. L. Vaughn of Worcester, Chief Henry J. Eaton of Hartford, A. J. Kennedy of New Haven and C. J. Goodwin of Springfield.

Ten Eyck Again Honored.

Boston, Aug. 4.—Edward Hanlan Ten Eyck, the winner o fthe amateur single scull championship at the Henley regatta, was given a reception last night in Faneuil hall, which was a good second to the magnificent ovation tendered him at his home in Worcester the night before. Chairman Kelliher opened the speechmaking, and at his close introduced Mayor Quincy. The latter spoke of what Boston had done and would do for rowing, and paid a high tribute to young Ten Eyck. Young Ten Eyck was presented to the audience, and the shouts that arose made the rafters ring. He declared himself no orator, but expressed, in a few words, his deep appreciation of the honor conferred upon him by this grand reception. Th ecrowd then demanded some remarks from John L. Sullivan, who was seated upon the platform, and the ex-champion was compelled to say a few words. Then the meeting broke up with cheers for Ten Eyck.

Blinded by Vitriol.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 4.—Thomas Kelliher is at the Lynn hospital suffering terribly from the effect of vitriol thrown into his face by Susie Dunihee, and the physicians there say that he will probably lose the sight of both eyes. The woman is under arrest at police headquarters. Kelliher, who is 30 years old, and the Dunihee woman, who is about the same age, have been keeping company for some time, and the trouble is supposed to have been caused by Kelliher's desire to terminate their relations. The affair took place at the woman's residence, 30 Logan street, and as neither party will talk it is impossible to ascertain the details. Both are shoe factory employes, although working in different establishments.

Robert J at Dover.

Dover, N. H., Aug. 4.—The races at the Granite State park yesterday afternoon were witnessed by over 7000 people, and were the best in the history of the track Robert J paced an exhibition mile in 2:06¼, beating the state track record by a number of seconds. He also lowered the track record of 2:12½, made by Gilcurry. After Robert J. performance John R. Gentry came out and cut a second and a half off the record made by his pardner, pacing the mile in 2:04¾ the last half being in 1:01. In the 2:26 pace, Adonis took the first two heats, but A. S. L. proved speedier in the third and then captured the next two and race in fine style. The 2:26 class trot had to be called off on account of darkness.

Pension Agent Indicted.

Providence, Aug. 4.—The federal grand jury in the district court yesterday returned an indictment against William A. Munson, a pension agent doing business in this city, but who is a resident of East Providence, charged with defrauding the government. L. J. A. Mooy, a pensioner, was in the habit of collecting his pension through Munson. Mooy died in 1895, and it is alleged that Munson continued to collect the pension for nearly a year. An inspector, who investigated the case at the request of Mooy's family, discovered the alleged fraudulent transactions. The latter is out on $5000 bail.

Fall River Races.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 4.—The first day's racing at Riverside park yesterday attracted 500 people. The 2:50 class was a walkover for Albertine, who won in three straight. The claim was made that Dora pulled Mary L, but the judges decided in his favor. After dropping the first heat in the 2:24 class, Ferrell's P won in three straight. In this race Cinders broke a sulky and was sent to the stables. Nicotaro was a favorite, but did not make as good a showing as anticipated.

TO WAVE OVER HAWAII

Rumor That Minister Sewall Will Hoist American Flag.

Protectorate to Be Established Over Islands.

Secretary Sherman Reticent--State Department Denies It.

San Francisco, Aug. 4.—The Belgic brings the following Honolulu advices:

The arrival of the steamship Moana from San Francisco, due the 29th, means much for Hawaii. In official circles it is generally understood that United States Minister Sewall will carry out the instructions received in the last mail, said to be to this effect: If the Moana brings word that congress failed to pass the annexation treaty Minister Sewall is to declare a protectorate and raise the American flag. The American minister has had frequent consultations with President Dole within the past week, and it is believed they have agreed on a program.

The general impression here is that congress has decided to let the matter of annexation wait over until the regular session. The intervening months would be a long time for this country to be alone in view of the attitude of Japan, and Secretary Sherman believed a protectorate of the United States is the only way to prevent possible hostile action on the part of Japan. As soon as the Moana arrives it is understood the United States minister will notify this government of his intention to raise the American flag. Diplomatic etiquette will allow a day or two for answer, and it is expected everything will be in readiness to declare a protectorate Monday, Aug. 2.

The foregoing statement comes from a reliable source, and but few persons in Honolulu are aware of the near approach of the most important event in the history of the country.

SHERMAN INTERVIEWED.

Secretary Says, In View of Pending Treaty Comment Would Be Improper.

Amagansett, L. I., Aug. 4.—Secretary of State Sherman was interviewed last night at the cottage where he is staying in regard to advices from Hawaii that United States Minister Sewall had been instructed to declare a protectorate over the island. Mr. Sherman absolutely declined to make any statement in regard to the matter. After he read the dispatch he said:

"In view of the pending treaty with Hawaii it would be manifestly improper for me to comment on this dispatch. I have nothing to say."

Referring to Whitelaw Reid's visit, Mr. Sherman stated that it was only in regard to the submitting of Mr. Reid's report as special ambassador to England. "The question of my resignation," said Mr. Sherman, "was not mentioned. I get tired of denying these absurd rumors that arise from time to time."

Mr. Sherman declared his friendship for Mr. Reid in vigorous terms. Mr. Sherman will leave Amagansett for Washington on Friday next.

REPORT DENIED.

Washington Officials Declare President Will Not Act Without Congress.

Washington, Aug. 4.—It is declared positively at the state department that there has been no change in the instructions given to Minister Sewall or to Admiral Beardslee touching their attitude towards the Hawaiian question. The admiral's instructions were to protect the American interests at all points and to establish a protectorate only in the event of serious disturbance or the commission of some over the act.

It is not understood that the execution of this order was at all dependent upon the action or non-action of congress upon annexation.

At the navy department an even more explicit denial of the story that the flag was to be hoisted Aug. 2 was obtained It was said that Admiral Beardslee's orders only contemplated a landing in an emergency to preserve the status quo and that the landing in that case would not be for a longer period of time than was necessary to restore conditions to their former shape. It was said that as President McKinley had referred the whole matter to congress along with the annexation treaty it would not be courteous to that body for the executive to act of its own volition until congress had expressed its will. It was further said that there was no truth in the oft-repeated story that the battleship Oregon was under orders to go to Honolulu.

It is also said at the state department that no special commissioner has been sent by President McKinley to Hawaii as has been stated in San Francisco dispatches, and that any person representing himself as such has no authority to do so. The interests of the United States in that quarter of the Pacific are entirely safe in the hands of United States Minister Sewall, who is now on the ground,

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

THAT MARINE PARK.

Reasons Why the City Should Establish One as Petitioned for.

The petition of George W. Morton and others presented to the City Council Monday evening, that the Park Commissioners be authorized to take land on the north side of Sea street for a Marine park is one that should be granted.

Should the land in question be taken for a Marine Park as suggested it would make one of the most beautiful summer resorts within the city limits. The lot is near what was formerly known as the Willows and is for the most part covered with beautiful shade trees and is in fact about the only shady spot at Houghs Neck.

One side of the lot borders, or nearly so, upon the water, while upon the Sea street side of the lot is a large house both of which add to the picturesqueness of the place. Aside from that it is easy of access, being reached by street cars which pass through the lot.

It is true that Quincy's public parks or playgrounds in the past have not amounted to much, unless it is Merrymount park.

There are several causes for this, but the chief reason is that the lots have not been developed, being practically in the same condition as they were when purchased by the Park Commissioners several years ago.

The lots secured however are valuable ones and will in time, as the city grows, be developed and used for the purpose for which they were purchased.

The proposed marine park however is one that would come almost into immediate use, and would not only become a favorite resort but would result in much of the now vacant land in that vicinity becoming developed.

St. Ry. Employes' Outing.

Some thirty-five of the employes of the Quincy & Boston street railway had an outing Tuesday evening at Highland Park and a jolly time they had. Through the courtesy of the officials of the road, they were furnished a car and free transportations over the Quincy & Boston and Braintree systems, and the management of the Brockton street railway extended the same courtesy over its line, so that the party went direct from Quincy to the park without charge.

They left Quincy at 6 40 and upon their arrival at the park, housed the car at the Avon stables. They then entered the park and enjoyed themselves to the utmost. When they departed, they may have left a few broken hearts behind, but it was not allowed to mar their pleasure. Quincy was reached somewhere near the bewitching hour of midnight.

"Have They Gone?"

Funny things happen at Wollaston besides fencing in the depot.

It seems that two of the guardians of the peace were yesterday noon after a red-headed boy for stealing, who came into Wollaston from some point of the compass and went down Elm avenue, and on seeing a good woman who resided on the corner hanging out clothes in her yard, rushed into the house and in double quick time, hid in a large closet.

When the officers came up a moment later they enquired of the lady if she had seen such a boy, and, of course, being in the yard about her duties, had not. But imagine her surprise and fright, about an hour afterwards, when the boy burst from the closet with a wild look and exclaimed: "Have they gone?"

All the frighted lady could say was: "You red-headed d—l," as he darted out of the door and vanished.

Bancroft at the Copley Square Hotel on Friday as soon as his successor in command of the regiment has been selected.—Record.

HOUGHS NECK.

One of the pleasing events of the week was the christening of the three months old daughter of Mr. Harry Allen and Mrs. Elsie A. Washburn of Ashmont at the Orietta cottage on Bell street on Monday. Ethel Miriam was the little one's name and Rev. William J. Tilley of Newark, N. J., a sojourner at the beach officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stevens of Malden were sponsors.

All the desirable cottages at the beach are let this month and there is some demand for more. The season is now at its height and many are enjoying the sea breezes and daily baths.

It has been a good season for the young trees at Adams shore and nearly all are alive and flourishing.

The hulk of the burned steamer still smokes.

Rev. William J. Tilley of Newark, N. J., and his sister, Mrs. S. T. Warner of Providence, R. I., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. U. Mowry at the Fayolin cottage on Bell street.

By request the LEDGER will hereafter publish each day the hours of high tide for a week for Quincy and vicinity. The time given indicates high water at Boston and there is but a slight difference in the Boston and Quincy tides:

A number of our citizens enjoyed the historical festival at Plymouth last evening.

The following programme was very finely rendered, interspersed by music by Carter's orchestra from Boston:

1. The Embarkation.
2. Southampton, England — English merry-making—Pilgrims awaiting the arrival of the Speedwell—The Mayflower at anchor.
3. The Compact in the cabin of the Mayflower.
4. (a.) Indian life. (b.) Landing of the Pilgrims on Plymouth Rock.
5. The Courtship of Myles Standish.
6. The Marriage of Francis LeBaron, the "Nameless Nobleman."
7. A Tea Party of the Olden Time.
8. The Flag Dance.

Beer Exploded.

Several about the depot were noticed to grieve Tuesday afternoon. It seems Gallaghers' express had left a half barrel of beer on the platform near their office. It was directly in the hot sun, and suddenly at 3 20 there was a loud explosion and a fountain of foam went into the air at least fifteen feet, emptying the whole barrel, so that only a few drops remained.

Mr. O. C. Colton leaves today for Ohio. He will be much missed by his many friends and associates in this city. May health and prosperity go with him.

G. Anderson of this city who was entered in the Taunton bicycle races on Saturday made good time. The time prize was won in 40 minutes, 5 seconds, and his time was 40 minutes, 38 seconds.

The Lincoln quartette, of which Miss Bessie Drew of Atlantic is a member, leave today for Falmouth where they will give a recital Thursday evening. They will be absent a few days.

Mrs. A. Bradford Hayden and two children, Miss Viola and Master Winnifred, left Tuesday for an extended trip to Grand River, Prince Edwards Island, and other points in the Provinces.

Our genial ex engineer of the fire department, at the Neck, on whose face there was never known to be a vistage of fear, they do say, did show signs last Saturday evening. Ask him about it.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos T. Leavitt of Wollaston have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in their great bereavement in the loss of their little daughter, Romena. She was a beautiful child, the idol of a pretty home.

A car of lumber on a freight train became loosened as the train was passing through Quincy this morning and the School street bridge was damaged somewhat and the lumber scattered along the tracks for some distance.

The Thursday night prayer-meeting of the First Presbyterian church will be conducted by A. DeBarritt, who will explain the workings of the Volunteers of America. The service will be held at 7.30 P. M. All are cordially invited. A collection will be taken.

The Blue Hill Granite Co. has elected these officers: President, James H. Desmond; Vice President, Thomas McDonnell; Clerk, Andrew Milne; Treasurer, Horace E. Spear; Directors, the above with Charles H. Spear, John and Thomas Swithin.

Three Quincy bicycle riders had a narrow escape from a serious accident on the way home from Nantasket Monday which was caused by a carriage crowding them so near an electric car that they had to jump to save themselves. All three received a few cuts and bruises.

The Rev. DeBaritt, assisted by Captain Albert Shaw of the Volunteers of America (musician) also Mr. M. Browne of Moody's Institute will hold a meeting in the first Presbyterian church, Thursday night at 7.30. These christian workers are meeting with much success and it is hoped their meetings will be largely attended. They will also hold a meeting at Bethany Congregational church, Friday night at 7.30.

—"How did they stop the elopement?" asked Maud. "By a detestible piece of trickery," replied Mamie. "Her father put his head out of the window, and shouted that her hat was on crooked, and when she grabbed for it she upset the tandem."

TO FIND SOUTH POLE.

BELGIAN ANTARCTIC EXPEDITION TO GRAHAM LAND.

To American Explorers Is Due the Credit of Rehabilitating the Continent of the South Pole—A Region of Ice and Eternal Winter.

When the Belgian antarctic expedition, which is now on its way to Graham Land, south of Cape Horn, begins its work of polar research in the austral seas, it will usher in a new epoch in the history of the quest for the great antarctic continent. Fortunately for America we can take hearty satisfaction in following the work of the Belgians, since not only was the first antarctic land discovered by an American in 1821—the land the expedition first touches at—but the revival of a belief in an immense ice clad continent at the south pole was due to another American, who was the first to see its extended coast line, masked by giant ice cliffs and guarded by stupendous icebergs that never fail to amaze and awe those who gaze upon them. In fact, it may be said the glory of rehabilitating the mysterious continent of the south pole is due absolutely to American explorers, since the English under Cook, in 1774, exploded the old belief in a Magellanic continent which had engrossed the attention of explorers for two centuries, and Ross in the forties gave it as his belief that the lands seen by the American explorers "did not unite to form a polar continent."

The progress of science, however, has proved the Americans right and the English wrong. Though very little has been added to our knowledge of antarctic lands since the American sealer Palmer discovered what is now called Graham Land in 1821, or since the more famous Captain Wilkes in 1839-40 sighted land from 95 degrees to 160 degrees east longitude, just within the antarctic circle, we know from other austral conditions that there must be a huge circumpolar land mass. The argument is based on the size and character of the icebergs that frequent at certain periods the southern ocean. Curiously enough, the attack on the north polar regions has given us the means of predicating the state of affairs at the south pole. What we know now is this: Icebergs are not the result of the heaping up of ice floes in polar seas. On the contrary, they are not oceanic in origin, but are produced by glaciers that protrude from the great inland ice caps of the polar land masses, and they are large or small in proportion to the size of the glaciers that discharge them. And, moreover, the size of the glaciers depends on the extent of the continental ice cap and the configuration of the coast line where they debouch into the sea.

Naturally neither Wilkes—afterward the hero of the Trent affair—nor Ross knew this fact of iceberg formation in 1840. Wilkes based his belief in an antarctic continent on his observed land masses, while Ross pooh-poohed the continental theory largely because Wilkes was for it. The icebergs now have their say, and in unmistakable terms they indicate a vast iceclad area, for in nothing is the antarctic region so extraordinary as in the size of its bergs. The Greenland bergs, "calving," as the phrase goes, from the mother glaciers that reach to the famous ice cap some 10,000 feet thick that covers Greenland like iceing on a cake, are mere toys compared with the antarctic bergs. One reported recently to the hydrographic office of the United States was shaped like a hook, the short arm 40 miles, the long arm 60 miles long, with a bay 40 miles wide between the arms.

As this floating island, judging from the height of the ice above the water, was about 2,700 feet high, we have here a mass twice as high and vastly greater in bulk than a section of the Blue mountains from above Harrisburg to beyond the Delaware Water Gap. In fact, if we set such a section of our mountains afloat it would have appeared as a surface ice floe compared with this giant berg. Other stupendous bergs of over ten cubic miles in mass have been seen and all with the characteristic straight sides and flat tops peculiar to antarctica.

What these giant bergs call for is an enormous ice covered continent which in certain regions slopes gradually to the sea. The central ice mass must be of great depth. As this great mass moves over the edge of the continent it breaks off its borders, which become the huge bergs, a terror to the navigators since the time of Cook to the present. Thus science establishes the antarctic continent and to modern explorers is left the task of declaring its area and the character of the frozen interior. From the time of Wilkes and Ross little was done to read the secret until the agile Norwegian Borchgrevink, in January, 1895, leaped ashore on Victoria Land, the first man to set his foot upon the antarctic continent. Since then the lectures of Borchgrevink, his controversies with the master of the Antarctic, in which vessel he sailed from Melbourne, and his desperate efforts to get up a south polar expedition have aroused new interest in antarctic explorations the world over. The British have been particularly solicitous. Australia has been urged to spend money to explore Victoria Land as a sort of jubilee offering, and the Royal Geographical society has promised to contribute any sum up to $25,000 to the colonial subscription to carry on the work. So far, however, the Belgians are the first in the field, and upon them depends at present the solution of the south polar mysteries.—Philadelphia Press.

What You Can Do.

You can buy pure TOILET SOAPS of reputable makers as cheap as you can get Soaps that you know nothing about. Is this not worth considering, when so many skin diseases are caused by using Soap made of soap grease full of dangerous substances.

We will sell you Colgate's Turkish Bath, Colgate's Palm Oil, Colgate's Rico or pure Olive Oil Soap for 5 cents a cake or 50 cts. a dozen. We have nicer for 10 cents a cake and as high as $1.00 per cake, but they are no purer than the 5 cent kind. They are pure enough to wash the baby.

All the Toilet Waters at low prices, and Perfumes that beat the flowers themselves.

These are simply necessities this warm weather, they are so refreshing.

Our store is the coolest place in town and we have tables for you to sit down to enjoy your Ice Cream Soda.

THAT $100,000 FOR SEWERS.

Is It Wise to Make Extensions at Present or Is It Better to Wait?

Not much surprise has been expressed at the communication sent to the City Council by the Sewer Commissioners asking for $100,000 to complete the pumping station and for extensions, for as the work on the sewer progresses similar communications will find their way to the City Council at almost stated periods.

With the appropriations already made for this work hardly more than a beginning has been made, although the force main from the pumping station to the outlet at Squantum and the foundation at the pumping station has been about completed.

The brick sewer from the pumping station to Coddington street and the section on Copeland street is also well under way, so that it may be said that the Commissioners have made considerable showing with what money they have had at their disposal. It may also be said that the work now under way will about use up the appropriation.

It is therefore necessary in order that any part of the sewer may be of use that the pumping station should be completed and a good part of the appropriation of $100,000 asked for will be used for that purpose.

Taxes are certainly high enough now in Quincy but just so long as people demand modern improvements such as improved streets, street lights, fashionable schools, sewers and a thousand other things, just so long will taxes remain high.

These things, however, can not be looked upon entirely as luxuries for with an advancing and progressive people they become a necessity, and the question is not, can we afford these things? but can we afford to be without them?

If we say that we cannot afford to be without them, then the only question for the Council to consider must be is it better to do these things now when everything is cheap, or shall we wait a few years when labor is scarce and material possibly much dearer than now, owing to the increased demand.

SORROW TURNED TO JOY.

But It Cost Three Cigars and Three Drinks of Soda.

It is not often that Mr. C. C. Hearn, the well known druggist, forgets anything, but he did forget when closing his store on Tuesday evening that he had left his bicycle leaning against the outside of his store. Sometime later however Officer Barry found the wheel and locked it up in the police station for safe keeping.

This morning when Mr. Hearn got ready to take his morning spin on his wheel he could not find it, although he searched everywhere for it. He eventually made up his mind that it had been stolen and with tears in his eyes made his way to the police station to report the loss. Here his sorrow was turned to joy, for his wheel was safe and sound, and it cost him just three cigars and three sodas to keep the affair quiet.

—There were more than 2000 earnest, eager men in line the best part of the forenoon Monday along the east front of the state house, waiting to get their names on the list of the civil service commission, in order that they might be eligible for places as laborers in the service of the city of Boston. Three-quarters of them were disappointed, as only 500 were needed.

—There has been a record made in Somerville during the last month in the way of hold-ups and robberies that has caused many of the citizens to become alarmed.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

☞ A disturbance in the railroad world has been caused, apparently, by the desire of the Wabash Railroad Company to give its patrons the best possible service. The comforts of the free reclining chair cars, such as the Wabash has always run on its trains west of Detroit, have not been known to Eastern people, and now that these cars are being run East over the Wabash extension to Buffalo and to New York City over the Ontario and Western, the other lines seem to be afraid that they will be too popular. So far as the travelling public are concerned they are not likely to object to them.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

Word comes from London that Henry C. Miner has arranged for a London production of "Shore Acres."

Thomas Hardy, the author of "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," contemplates writing an original play for Mrs. Fiske.

Edgar L. Davenport, brother of Fanny Davenport, and Lionel Barrymore will be in the cast of "Cumberland, '61."

Richard Mansfield has for the present abandoned his idea of a play upon the life of Mozart, but he has two plays by T. E. Pemberton.

Beerbohm Tree has returned "A Hunt For Happiness" to Anita Viranti Chartres in order that a part may be written into it for Mrs. Tree.

Herr Ernst Possart, intendant of the Royal theater at Munich, who has made several professional tours in America, has been ennobled.

The announcement is made that Odette Tyler will never resume professional work. She is the wife of R. D. MacLean of Shepardstown, W. Va.

Beerbohm Tree has secured the English rights of "Le Passe," a new play by M. Porto Riche, which will be produced by Sarah Bernhardt at the Paris Renaissance.

Blanche Walsh will be with Sol Smith Russell as the beautiful virago in "The Taming of the Shrew," and Maxine Elliott with Nat C. Goodwin in the same role.

Lorimer Stoddard is putting the finishing touches to the romantic play he is writing for Robert Taber. The scene is laid in Italy, and the story deals with the carbonari and Garibaldi period.

Three of the notable successes under Charles Frohman's management in New York the past season will be put on the road. These are "Secret Service," "Rosemary" and "Under the Red Robe."

THE PASSING SHOW.

German dramatic critics with a taste for a retired life can easily gratify it by printing the truth about the kaiser's new play. —San Francisco Chronicle.

The "new sayings of Christ," said to have been excavated in Egypt, are hardly needed so long as the old ones are still undigested by Christendom.—Springfield Republican.

Horse cars have vanished, and now "the last of the cable cars" is a familiar line in the newspapers. Events move fast in the transportation world.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Evening Wisconsin protests against the word "audience" to describe the people that attend a baseball game. And yet at one of those games we hear fully as much as we see.—Duluth News-Tribune.

The women will all be down on the Kentucky widow who gave a young man $25,000 to marry her. All the men will now begin to prance around and act as if they thought they were worth something.—New York Press.

Abdul Hamid is debating whether he shall fight all Europe or undertake to face his own army after ordering it to retreat. It is a nice question of personal safety.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The manner in which Mrs. Lease divides her time between politics and mortgages would indicate that she has not quite made up her mind whether she will be a Joan of Arc or a Hetty Green.—Washington Star.

If half the men now living who have shouted themselves hoarse at the mention of the name of James G. Blaine should contribute $1 each for the purpose, one of the most costly monuments in the country could be erected to his memory.—Nashville American.

WHEEL WHIRLS.

A St. Louis confectioner has converted a bicycle into an ice cream freezer, and, mounting his wheel, which of course is stationary, he easily freezes a seven gallon can of ice cream in 20 minutes.

Leaning over causes backache and a contraction of the muscles of the chest. Do not let the body stiffen when one is on a wheel. It prevents graceful riding and will cause uncomfortable straining.

If the wrists become tired while one is riding the bicycle, an authority suggests resting them by holding the handles with the palms turned up. If the elbow joints grow weary and begin to ache, sit up straighter, and thus change the angle of the arm.

An experienced bicycle rider says that one should take a long breath into the lungs before attempting to ride up hill and that only a slow, steady gait should be maintained. Steep inclines should be walked up, as that rests the whole body after a steady "spin."

THE CYNIC.

There is no woman so well off as a widow who has realized on her husband's life insurance.

Women who have tried it say that naming a baby for the doctor doesn't reduce the bill any.

When a woman wants to get out of housekeeping, she pretends to have nervous prostration.

No girl has a right to wear a white dress and blue sash in summer if her mother does the ironing.

A woman never feels so proud of her husband's love as when he falls sick and becomes delirious and refuses to let any one but her come near him.

When a woman says of another woman, "She is very pretty," she expects her husband to speak up promptly and say, "She is not half as pretty as you are."—Atchison Globe.

REAL ESTATE GAINS.

Wards One, Five and Six Make the Best Show.

A further comparison of the real estate gains of the city will be of interest. The order of gain is practically the same for one year and five years, except that Ward Three is ahead of Ward Four for the five years while Ward Four led Ward Three the past year. Most of the increase is in Wollaston, Quincy Centre and Atlantic in the order given, as will be seen by the summary:

	Gain in 1 year.	Gain in 5 years.
Ward One,	$163,200	$892,200
Ward Two,	18,600	156,475
Ward Three,	35,425	322,200
Ward Four,	38,800	159,800
Ward Five,	240,000	962,085
Ward Six,	64,075	782,175
The City,	$560,190	$3,274,935

Resolutions.

At a meeting of the Granite Manufacturers' Association held August 3d, the committee having in charge the matter of a higher tariff made its report.

The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved,—That in the passenge by Congress of a larger measure of protection than heretofore, it cannot fail but to subserve the best interests of our trade and this community, and be it further

Resolved,—That the thanks of the Association be extended to the Hon. Geo. F. Hoar and the Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge our Senators to Congress, and the Hon. John Shaw, our townsman, for their public spirited and energetic efforts to provide an adequate customs tariff equal to the demands of the trade.

A Plea for Justice.

I believe in charity to all men. I saw nothing but what was respectful and proper in the Armenian. He was not soliciting alms, but gave people something in return for their money, which was well worth the price to people of intelligence. If he seemed forward to some it was because he was eager to make himself understood, and they knew nothing of foreign manners. Place yourself in a like position in a foreign country among strangers, how would you feel? I believe in doing unto others as I would like to be done by, in every way, for without charity we are nothing.

Important Anouncement.

Announcement is made to business men that we propose to publish in the QUINCY DAILY LEDGER classifications of many of the business houses and industries of Quincy. In connection with it will be issued fac-simile cards of these business houses, and several of these will be appropriately framed and displayed in different prominent localities. This is a special plan and offers many advantages to business men. Our representative in this matter, W. E. Clarke, will endeavor to give all an opportunity to be represented in this enterprise, and we commend him to the firms on which he may call.

Suit Regarding Water Rights.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 4.—The Lake Sunapee Protective association has retained counsel in preparation for a suit to be brought in the supreme court against the Sunapee Dam company to determine the right of manufacturing corporations to draw a supply from public water sources. The question was agitated 10 years ago, but the company agreed to satisfactorily regulate the water flow, and for some time it did so. Of late complaints have been renewed by property owners and steamboat companies, and it is now proposed to determine for all time the rights of all parties to use the lakes and ponds of state in a public way.

New Library For Lynn.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 4.—Steps will be at once taken for the erection of a public library building in this city to cost $175,000, of which $100,000 is provided by the will of the late Elizabeth Shute, and the remaining $75,000 will be realized from gifts by prominent citizens, among them J. N. Smith, who gives $15,000. The city council authorized the trustees to purchase the required land on North Common and Franklin streets and Franklin avenue, and authorized the closing of Franklin avenue to travel. Henry A. Pevear, Walter D. Faulkner and Judge Rollin E. Harmon were re-elected trustees o fthe public library. Plans are to be asked for immediately.

Mysterious Death at Haverhill.

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 4.—E. W. Sanborn, a cabinet maker of Lawrence, came to this city a few days ago and engaged a room at Mrs. Fenton's boarding house. About 10 o'clock last night he complained of feeling unwell, and leaving his room in which he and several friends were enjoying themselves, went out by the back door upon a platform or staging in the rear. Shortly after he was found lying on the ground, two stories below, with his neck broken and otherwise badly mangled, death having been almost instantaneous. The affair is clothed in considerable mystery, and the occupants of the house tell conflicting stories.

Fighting In Thessaly.

Athens, Aug. 4.—A sharp engagement has taken place between 2000 Turkish troops and the armed population of the villages lying between Metsoso, Trikhala and Kalarrytes. The Turks retreated after losing 70 killed.

M. Ralli, the premier, denies that King George has threatened to abdicate.

This is interpreted to mean that Germany has probably consented to some modified control of Greek finances, acceptable to both Greece and to Europe.

Staples Held.

Berlin, N. H., Aug. 4.—The hearing on the Decost shooting affair was concluded yesterday, and the court decided to hold Staples, who did the shooting, for the October term of the Coos county supreme court. All the witnesses in the case were also held in $200 for the same.

Fined $200 For Taking Porgies.

Ellsworth, Me., Aug. 4. — Captain Phillip H Gray of the steamer Seaconnet, owned in Newport, was tried in the municipal court yesterday and found guilty of catching porgies unlawfully in Blue Hill harbor. Judge Peters fined Gray $200 and cost.

Not Opposed to Investigation.

Boston, Aug. 4.—The Massachusetts branch of the American Federation of Labor yesterday voted down a resolution to restrict immigration into the United States.

—The world's stock of silver money is now, according to the New York Journal of Commerce, a trifle over 4 billions of dollars; of which $3,433,000,000 is full legal tender. Of this amount no less than $2,498,000,000 has been coined since 1873, and of all of this coinage but about 15 per cent. is full legal tender.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

STRIKERS ARE JOYFUL.

Hourly Accessions to Their Ranks From De Armitt's Mines.

Men Are Quiet, Orderly and Sure of Winning.

Governor Atkinson of West Virginia Defines Rights of Speakers.

Pittsburg, Aug. 4.—The striking coal diggers are jubilant and are sanguine of victory. All but one of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company's mines are closed and the men now at work are almost sure to lay down their picks.

Yesterday nearly half of the diggers at this stronghold of the company failed to go to work, and a number of those who did go into the pit have promised to quit as soon as they clean up the coal now lying in their rooms.

At Camp Determination it was reported that every one of the miners of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company who had gone to work was in sympathy with the movement, and only their signatures to a contract prevented them from staying out. The miners are satisfied with the progress they have made. They claim that the offending mines are nearer to suspension than they have been since the strike was inaugurated, and are jubilant over the work they have done.

Peace and order seem to be the watchword of the strikers. They realize that they have the sympathy of the public and if they lose it their cause will get a black eye. At the headquarters of the miners' officials in this city there were many callers during the day. Proffers of aid were numerous, and the majority did not wish the public to know of their sympathy.

Free Speech In West Virginia.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 4.—Governor Atkinson has written a letter to Messrs. Gompers, Sovereign and Ratchford, a committee on behalf of the striking miners, who called on him to inquire concerning the injunction against them and to ask what were their rights in connection with addressing miners. The governor reminded them that his office is executive, and he cannot therefore interfere with the action of the courts, but he goes on to say that in his opinion there is the utmost freedom allowed in the discussion in public places of any subject, the only restriction being that there must not be trespassing upon the property of others nor incitement to riot or unlawful violence. He assures them that he will protect all citizens in the exercise of the right of free speech, warning them at the same time that if they abuse that right by interfering with the rights or property of others he will just as energetically use the power of the state to repress all lawlessness and preserve the peace.

Reign of Terror In Portugal.

London, Aug. 4.—A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Madrid describes a very grave state of affairs in Portugal. According to this correspondent the Portuguese government is setting the constitution at defiance and adopting the most stringent repressive measures. The police, without legal warrants, enter private dwellings at all hours of the day or night, ransack them, seize property and march the owners off to prison on the most trifling or utterly unfounded charges. A veritable reign of terror is fully established, and it is the popular belief that the government contemplates passing its obnoxious financial legislation by means of a coup d'etat.

L. A. W. at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Aug. 4.—The 18th national meet of the League of American Wheelmen is successful beyond question. For three days, wheelmen, singly and in groups, have been arriving in the city from every state east of the Mississippi, and a few from the west of it. The meet proper does not begin until today. The tours and runs committee is conducting runs to a number of picturesque spots near the city. All the visitors are enjoying open house at all the local clubs. Tomorrow will be the banner day on runs, and the racing will begin on Friday.

Three Bitten by Mad Dog.

Washington, Aug. 4.—A mad bulldog yesterday afternoon bit a colored man, a woman and a small boy. It subsequently gave three policemen a lively fight for 20 minutes and died only after it had been riddled by policemen with 28 bullets. Little Johnny Rawson, colored, was the first victim. The dog sprang on him while at play, tearing his foot horribly. Caroline Jackson tried to beat off the dog with a cart whip, but was in turn attacked and badly lacerated, and William Green, who tried to rescue the woman, had his arm almost chewed off

Claim to Palmyra Island.

San Francisco, Aug. 4.—The steamer Belgic brings the news that the right of the British government to take possession of Palmyra island is to be disputed. Luther Wilcox of Honolulu declares that the island belongs to himself, Fred Wundenberg and William Kinney. They secured their right from the Pacific Navigation company, which purchased the island from the Hawaiian government. The government in turn acquired its right through discovery and colonization of the island by Charles Benton in 1862.

"Maine Farmer" Incorporated.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 4.—The Maine Farmer Publishing company was organized here yesterday with a capital stock of $40,000, all of which was paid in. The stockholders are Hon. Joseph H. Manley, Oscar Holway and Dr. G. M. Twitchell of Augusta, and James S. Sanborn of Boston. The above named gentlemen were elected directors of the corporation. Mr. Manley was elected president, Dr. Twitchell, treasurer and general manager, and M. S. Holway, clerk.

General Wolseley Ill.

London, Aug. 4.—Viscount Garnet Joseph Wolseley, field marshal, and commender-in-chief of the British army, is seriously sick.

ON THE DIAMOND.

National League.

At Washington—

The errors made by the Senators in the first game were numerous and of a mirth-provoking description. In the second Swaim proved somewhat of a surprise and the fielding of the locals improved. Nichols replaced Stivetts in the box at the end of the seventh, the latter going to centre.

Six Months In Seclusion.

Auburn, Neb., Aug. 4.—Father Thomas Fitzgerald has gone to Conception, Mo., to enter a monastery and execute the sentence imposed upon him by Mgr Martinelli for the part he took in the fight of three years ago on Bishop Bonacum of Nebraska. He will remain in the monastery in entire seclusion for six months. This closes the famous case growing out of the rebellion of 25 priests of Nebraska against their bishop because of his alleged tyranny.

CHINESE MISSION ATTACKED.

Inmates Flee to Hills and Escape Massacre. Soldiers Disperse the Mob.

San Francisco, Aug. 4.—News has been received from Hong Kong of the capture of the British steamer Pegu by an Achinese pirate on July 14. A gang of Achinese took passage on the Pegu, and while at sea murdered Captain Ross and seven of his crew and wounded 16 others. They looted the ship and then fled to the Acheen coast.

On June 9 the Chinese at Vuchen attacked and destroyed the mission of the Plymouth Brethren, and were about to attack the Catholic mission when the soldiers interfered. The attack on the Plymouth mission was brought about by the report that the missionaries had killed a child. A mob of Chinese attacked the Ladies' Home boarding school, where five white women had taken refuge. Just as the mob broke in the door the women escaped through a back gate to the house of Mr. Blanford. The mob demolished the Ladies' Home and then proceeded to the Blanford place and attacked it. The people there escaped into the hills, where they hid all night in the darkness. The Blanford place was also looted and burned. The mob then proceeded to the Catholic mission, but by this time the soldiers had been summoned and they dispersed the rioters. The next day five women and Mr. Blanford were taken away on a boat.

Grand Circuit Races.

Columbus, O., Aug. 4.—There was sensational racing again yesterday at the Columbus Driving park. The weather was clear and the track fast. Nicol B won the 2:11 pace, postponed from Monday, taking the sixth and seventh heats. Pearl Onward won the fifth heat in a sensational finish, equalling the pacing record for mares, 2:06 1-2, made by Pearl C and Lottie Loraine in the 2:09 pace at the grand circuit meeting on the Columbus track last year. Pearl Onward would probably have won the race had not her driver, Spears, been so badly hurt by an accident while starting Rene in the 2:24 trot that he could not drive again. Splan drove Pearl Onward the next two heats, and she broke in each heat, allowing Nicol B to win the heats and race in slower time. The fastest heat trotted this season was recorded in the 2:12 trot, Grace Hastings taking the second heat in 2:08 1-2. This was the real race of the day, Eloree and Hastings being equal favorites, and both were heavily backed to win. The accident to Spears, who was to have driven Hastings, lessened the chances of the mare to win. All the finishes in this race were exciting. Josephine won the 2:20 pace in straight heats in easy style and the Monk won the 2:24 trot without being hard pushed. It was in this race that Driver Spears was injured. He was driving Rene. Just as the mare reached the wire at the start she stumbled and fell, turning a complete somersault Spears had no bones broken, but he was badly bruised.

President Sees Golf Played.

Hotel Champlain, N. Y., Aug. 4.—The president was at a golf match yesterday on the Hotel Champlain links. He was attended by Smith M. Weed. Mr. McKinley cannot be induced to try his hand. Former Congressman John M Weaver of Plattsburgh called on the president at the hotel. It is probable that the Twenty-first regiment of infantry, with the regimental band, will parade on the hotel ground every day that the president is here. The presidential party, with the exception of Mrs McKinley and Secretary Porter, took another long drive yesterday afternoon to Plattsburgh and on the road adjacent. Mrs. McKinley is not quite well enough to accompany him. Vice President Hobart, Mrs. Hobart and Master Hobart arrived on a special train last night The visitors at the hotel gathered in front of the lobby, where an informal reception was held before the vice president went to his rooms. Among other arrivals yesterday were Mrs. Thomas B. Van Buren and daughter of Englewood N. J. She is an aunt of Secretary Porter.

Many Families Homeless.

New York, Aug. 4.—A three story stable on West Fifty-third street, occupied by the Edward Merrill & Co.'s ice concern and the Ormonte boarding stables, controlled by the Edward Merrill company, was gutted by fire yesterday. Falling walls crushed in adjoining tenement houses and rendered nearly 100 families temporarily homeless, and the furniture of 20 of these was completely destroyed. The loss to Merrill & Co. is between $40,000 and $45,000, and it will cost at least $20,000 to repair the tenements.

Big Gold Shipment.

Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 4.—The steamship Mariposa sailed for San Francisco yesterday with 450,000 sovereigns.

ACCIDENTS AND CRIMES.

George W. Thomas of Boston is held at Bangor, Me., on two charges of forgery.

Joseph Callahan, aged 9, of Lynn, Mass., was seized with a fit while bathing and drowned.

James Barry, an inmate of the Lewiston (Me.) almshouse committed suicide yesterday morning by hanging himself.

Fire yesterday burned 15 business buildings at Lewisburg, W. Va., causing a property loss of $75,000; insurance, $25,000. The fire was incendiary.

John Flynn, 14 years old, of Newark, N. J., was killed yesterday by a blow on the breast in a friendly boxing bout with Frederick Treichler, one year younger.

The body of Karlen P. Puff, aged 18, of Rochester, N. H., who was drowned at Wells Beach, Me., last week, was recovered yesterday three miles off Kennebunk Point.

Pat Buckley, a well-known baseball player of the Meriden (Conn.) team, is in a critical condition as the result of being struck on the head by a swiftly pitched ball.

George Montgomery, steam fitter, with home in New Orleans and relatives in Portsmouth, N. H., fell from a freight train at Lynn, Mass. His back is broken and his right arm was amputated at the shoulder. He will probably die.

The schooner E. J. Ingraham of Bath, Me., picked up a boat carried by the Ellsworth schooner, Arboreer, which was wrecked by the gale, July 14. The boat was found near Monhegan, where the wreck was sighted. This removes nearly all belief that the Arboreer's crew was saved.

SHE EMBEZZLED $3000

Motive for Alice Barrett's Suicide Is Now Made Clear.

There Was No Check on Her Statements.

Last Chapter in Story of Girl Who Longed for Riches.

Boston, Aug. 5.—The last chapter in the mystery of the death of Alice M. Barrett is supplied by W. C. Codman, her employer, in the statement that his books show an embezzlement of about $3000 The exact amount is said to be a little more than $3000, but that element of the case is not material, except to the Codmans. The fact that about $3000 is gone supplies the definite motive for the girl's act, for which the police and fire marshal have been hunting.

A complete chain of circumstantial evidence has been forged. It shows that Alice Barrett was extravagant in her expenditures, that she gambled in stocks, that she took her employers' money in order to keep up this speculation, that she set fire to the books in order to cover up the defalcations, and perhaps with the intention of destroying the building in order to do so, and that she finally shot herself in order to avoid facing the discovery and disgrace which she supposed threatened her.

Messrs. Codman & Codman authorize the following statement:

"Examination of Messrs. Codman & Codman's books has been completed, and a shortage has been found which convinces the firm that the books had been tampered with by their late bookkeeper, Miss Alice M. Barrett. It is believed that the shortage will not exceed $2500 or $3000."

The examination of the books shows that the money was taken in small amounts and carefully covered on the books. She might have gone on in this way for an indefinite length of time but for a chance remark of Mr. Briggs, one of the clerks in the office.

The outside business of the house was conducted by Walter M. Briggs, one of the clerks, and the inside work was performed by Gerald G. A. Street, another clerk. Miss Barrett was supposed to be an assistant to Mr. Street. She was bookkeeper, cashier and stenographer As a matter of fact, however, she acknowledged the authority of no one but Mr. W. C. Codman.

There was no one there to audit her books. Her monthly statements were accepted as final.

A few days before her death Mr. Briggs remarked that there was a possibility of a change in the concern. He said that Mr. Codman was an old man, who would in all likelihood soon retire from business, and that Mr. John Codman, 2nd, would never be able to again take an active part in the affairs of the concern.

He asserted that a change was coming, or had reason to believe so. He communicated his suspicions to Miss Barrett. It was not good news. She knew that the books would show that she had taken different amounts of money. She did not have of her own money the means to make good the defalcation and she knew of no one from whom she could obtain it.

The only thing left for her to do was to destroy the books.

Maine Militia Rifle Teams.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 5.—The following is the make-up of the Second regiment team, N. G. S. M.: Sergeant, Ford Phelan, Sergeant Ed Phelan, Sergeant C. N. Tapley and Lieutenant L. W Adams, company K, Calais; Captain W. A. Paul and Private J. H. Littlefield, company B, Lewiston, and Lieutenant F. H. Greenan, company D, Lewiston; substitutes, M. L. Hutchinson, company H, Eastport; Sergeant McCurdy, company K, Calais. The following are the ones who will be allowed to compete for the championship prize and place on the Second regiment team: C. G. Cooper, A. A. Hutchinson, company L, Houlton; Winnie Judkins and Sergeant F. E. Chandler, company F, Dover; Lieutenant W. B. McPheters and Sergeant C. A. Rogers, company E, Skowhegan; O. C Hayes, company C, Bath; I. C. Marshman, company D, Lewiston. The Second regiment team last year won the regimental match by only 10 points over the score of the First regiment. The contest is likely to be equally close this year, and there is great interest among the men in regard to the result. While the company team matches are confined to each regiment, the total of all the team shooting showed that the Second regiment teams were the strongest Colonel Farrington, the inspector general of rifle practice, is satisfied that the contest will be very much closer this year than last among the company teams, and higher scores will be made in both regiments.

Fifty Years In One Church.

Clinton, Mass., Aug. 5.—Exercises in celebration of the 50th anniversary of the installation of Rev. George M. Bartol, D. D., as pastor of the First church (Unitarian) of Lancaster, were held in that town yesterday afternoon. This church is the oldest in Worcester county, and one of the oldest in the state, and the event was celebrated by the townspeople in general. The program included addresses by Rev. Edward Everett Hale of Boston. Rev. E. A. Horton of Boston and Dr. Bartol, the latter speaking briefly on the work of the parish since he first became its pastor. Dr. Bartol was presented by his townspeople in Lancaster with a solid silver tea set and $100 in gold, and the Worcester Association of Unitarian Ministers presented him with a handsome loving cup. The first church was established in 1653, and previous to Dr. Bartol's pastorate had seven ministers. Dr. Bartol is a native of Portland, Me., and a graduate of Brown university and the Cambridge divinity school. He is a brother of Rev. Dr. Cyrus A. Bartol of Boston.

Dupont's Trial Again Delayed.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 5.—The torpedo boat Dupont, which was to have had her official trip yesterday, made three runs over the 12-mile measured course in the West bay, and then the builders decided to call the run off, as the vacuum on the starboard engine was running low. The run down against a strong wind and tide was made at a 27.7 knot clip and the run back at 28-knot gait, giving an average for the two runs of 27.25. The steam pressure was all right during the entire trial over the engines, for the latter ran beautifully, with no tendency to heat. The work of overhauling the condenser was begun at once, and the trial board will remain at Bristol until it is determined how much of a task it will be to thoroughly clean the great mass of piping which goes to make up this important part of the ship's apparatus. It is hardly probable though that Secretary Long will now witness the trial, as he had intended.

Federation Officers.

Boston, Aug. 5.—The Massachusetts Federation of Labor yesterday elected officers as follows: President, J. D Pierce of Worcester; vice president, J H. Murray of Marlboro; second vice president, Max Reiser of Boston; secretary, George H. Lord of Brockton, treasurer, Charles H. Spenser of Springfield; delegate to the national convention of the American Federation of Labor at Nashville, John O'Sullivan of Boston P. Maloney of the Theatrical Mechanics union, Joseph Walsh of Bakers' union No. 4, John H. Murray of the Marlboro Central Labor union and T. F. Tracy of Cigar Makers' union, No. 97, were elected a legislative committee. For trustees Delegates Hart, Gilmore and Troutin of Springfield were elected. It was voted that the next convention should be held in Springfield, the first Monday in August, 1898.

Academy's 103rd Anniversary.

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 5.—The 103rd anniversary of the institution of Haverhill academy was celebrated here yesterday by a reunion of the old teachers and pupils, many coming from a long distance. The exercises consisted of a banquet with reminiscences, and in the evening the historical address was given by Rev. J. L. Merrill of Newbury, Vt., covering the history of the academy from its earliest days. About 500 people from out of town were present, and among the old scholars were Mrs. Sarah Ann Carleton of Acton,, who attended in 1820; Mrs. Lydia Pearson of Chicago, a member of the class of 1835, and D. F Merrill of Washington, a member of the class of 1835.

Nantucket's Old Windmill Sold.

Nantucket, Mass., Aug. 5.—The historic old windmill and land were sold yesterday at the largest auction ever held in Nantucket. The street and sidewalks in front of the auction room were crowded with people interested in the fate of the old landmark. The bidding started at $100 and was increased to $885, for which bid it was knocked down to the Nantucket Historical association amid great cheering from the crowd assembled, who seemed satisfied that the old relic had found its proper owner. There were only two bidders, one an agent of the association and the other some private speculator.

Professor Allen Stricken.

Boston, Aug. 5.—A Portsmouth (N. H.) special to The Herald says: Frederick DeForest Allen, professor of classical philology at Harvard university, suffered a paralytic shock while riding along Lafayette road, about four miles out of the city, at 7 o'clock last night He was taken to the Cottage hospital, where he died without recovering consciousness about 10 o'clock. He rode from Cambridge and intended visiting his brother-in-law, Charles M. Leighton of Miller avenue, this city.

Burlington's Welcome Guests.

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 5.—President William McKinley was welcomed by the citizens of Burlington yesterday with all the warmth of hospitality at their command, although his first visit to this city as president was strictly informal, as he came for the sole purpose of accepting the invitation of Colonel Le Grand B Cannon to be his guest and visit Fort Ethan Allen and the grave of the patriot. The presidential party took luncheon at Colonel Cannon's home.

JAPAN'S LATEST MOVE

To Insist That United States Abide by Hawaiian Arbitration.

Refusal Will Terminate Settlement Negotiations.

And a Naval Demonstration Will Then Be Made at the Islands.

New York, Aug. 5.—A special to The Herald from Washington says:

Japan will insist that the United States assume a contingent responsibility in the matter of arbitration of her differences with Hawaii on the subject of immigration and the tariff.

It is understood that this is one of the essential conditions upon which Japan will consent to arbitration, and that if this responsibility is not assumed by the United States Japan will break off the negotiations looking to arbitration and back up her demands by naval demonstration in Hawaiian waters.

The state department has not received any official statement from the Japanese government on this matter and the administration has not indicated whether or not it will comply with the Japanese demand when made.

An official of the Japanese legation said, when interviewed: "I am not officially informed concerning the terms of arbitration, but that Japan should ask the United States to take recognition of it an assume an ultimate responsibility for the decision of the arbitor as regards Hawaii being carried out seems to me to be very natural.

"If the United States refuses to give us a guarantee it is probable that the arbitration proposition will fail. We prefer to entertain a grievance and to indemnify our subjects ourselves rather than to arbitrate after the indignity of the refusal by the United States of so just a request.

"Neither the United States nor the Hawaiians can justly plead disinterestedness. Frequently in the Hawaiian-Japan correspondence of late the pending annexation has figured as a factor in the situation. This should operate in the arbitration case as well."

HOPELESSLY INSOLVENT.

A New York Policy Holder Expresses His Opinion of Massachusetts Benefit Life.

New York, Aug. 5.—In response to a circular issued by Edward Woodruff about 100 policyholders of the Massachusetts Benefit Life association met yesterday. Mr. Woodruff announced that he had withdrawn from the committee of which he was counsel, and of which Rev. Thomas Heywood is chairman.

Mr. Woodruff said that the committee were doing things without his knowledge, principally raising money, for which he, as a lawyer, could not be responsible. Neither did he think that the sums asked by the committee to secure information in regard to having the policyholders reinsured in an old line company reasonable. He declared his belief that the Massachusetts company is hopelessly insolvent.

A committee consisting of Frederick Kramer, William M. Douth and George F. Brown was appointed. A plan will be submitted in a few days. Daily meetings will be held in Mr. Woodruff's office to discuss his plan, which is that policyholders of suitable age shall enroll their names with the committee if they desire reinsurance in a reputable old line company. No charge is made until the reinsurance is effected. Then the cost of the work will be divided in some way to be agreed upon hereafter.

The Special Assessment.

Boston, Aug. 5.—It is understood that the amount realized by the special assessment recently levied by the directors of the Massachusetts Benefit Life association aggregate about $125,000. This collection is considered fair, and it is possible that enough will be paid in during the few days remaining to enable the association to pull through. A meeting of prominent policyholders of the association is to be held in this city today, and the condition of the company is to be discussed.

Clergyman Lost Self Control.

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 4.—Rev. Harvey G. Furbey of Philadelphia is the defendant and Walter Geissinger of Philadelphia the plantiff in a civil action for damages, growing out of an alleged assault. These two met by appointment in an Old Orchard hotel one afternoon this week to discuss a matter relating to certain criticisms of the clergyman's pastorate. According to the story of the plaintiff, Rev. Mr. Furbey lost control of his temper and choked Geissinger.

Newburyport Editor Arrested.

Newburyport, Mass., Aug. 5.—E. E. Davies, assistant agent of the New England Watch and Ward society, last night arrested Albert F. Hunt, editor and proprietor of the Newburyport Weekly Item, on the charge of publishing alleged obscene matter consisting of extracts from a certain book. Mr. Hunt was released on bail, and will be arraigned today.

Miss Barrett's Death.

There appears to be no mystery now about the death of Miss Alice M. Barrett. The books of Codman & Codman have been examined by an expert, and show that about $3,000 had been taken by her in small amounts and carefully covered on the books.

Owing to the great age and feebleness of one of the two partners by whom she was employed and the prolonged illness of the other, she had for months at a time practically the sole management of the receipt and payment of money. Her accounts were seldom if ever audited. Her periodical reports to the firm of totals and balances were accepted without question.

From the beginning of the investigation into the mystery of her death the fact was made clear and great emphasis was laid upon it that whatever her wrong-doing may have been, no evidence, no suspicion ever rested against her character, and the general public were reluctant to admit the theory of suicide.

If a man had been found lying dead from a pistol's bullet wound, by the side of an opened safe, and evidence in an adjoining closet of an attempt to burn the company's books, everybody would have at once concluded that he had been robbing his employers, and facing impending discovery, had chosen death as the less dreadful alternative. That a woman could have run such a career and brought herself, in consequence, to such an end, seemed almost impossible.

Liquor Seizure.

The first seizure in Quincy of intoxicating liquors under the new transportation law was made Wednesday afternoon by Inspector McKay and officer Ferguson. It was about 4 o'clock when Dwyer's Weymouth express team driven by Thomas Curran was passing through Hancock street, and had reached a point near Kincaide's furniture store, where it was boarded by the officers who seized a gallon of rum, two quarts of whiskey and one quart of Jamaica rum.

The officers say that the packages were not properly marked as to what they contained, some were not properly addressed and there was no order book. The officers also placed the driver, Curran, under arrest.

The tag on the jug contained the liquor dealers' name but the only address was "For No. 2."

Double Century Run.

Warren F. Taylor of Norwood is to make an attempt to lower the record for a double century run next Sunday. He will start at 3 o'clock Sunday morning, and go through Stoughton, Taunton, Wrentham and other towns, returning to Norwood at the end of his first century. He expects to finish this by 11 o'clock Sunday, re-start immediately and finish the second one by 8 o'clock Sunday evening. Mr. Taylor is the president of the Norwood Cycle club, and a member of the Century Road club. This season he has been trying for the state mileage record for this club. His mount will be geared to 91.

Base Ball.

The Quincy Juniors visited Houghs Neck Wednesday and played two games against the home team, winning both by a large majority. The first game brought out McMasters and Blieller as the battery and the result was a victory for the boys from the Granite City by a score of 42 to 7.

The second game resulted in another victory, 16 to 1, with Taylor and Now as the battery. The only run was made by B. Harvey.

The games were umpired by Brenan.

During the games William Faxon amused the audience with daring acrobatic feats.

INJUNCTION REFUSED

Will Probably Be the Decision in the Squantum Extension Case.

Mr. Schofield, the master appointed by Judge Dunbar of the Supreme court to take the testimony in the petition of Ella V. Carver and Harry W. Read for an injunction to prevent the Quincy & Boston Street railway from building its tracks on Billings and Squantum streets, Atlantic, made his report to the court on Wednesday.

The principal grounds upon which the injunction was asked were that the order was illegal, inasmuch as that it did not clearly define which side of Squantum street the tracks were to be located, and did not give distances, and that it would be a hinderance to public travel and therefore a public nuisance.

There has been a large amount of testimony submitted, which has consumed considerable time, as many witnesses were examined.

The report of the master to the court, Wednesday was clearly in favor of the respondent upon every point. The court however took the matter under advisement and will give its decision today.

The controversy has in no way interferred with the progress of the work which has been rapidly pushed forward so that now but little remains to complete the line.

It is understood that as soon as this line has been completed, work will be immediately commenced on the Wollaston loop.

HOUGHS NECK.

The band concert will be discontinued this afternoon and tomorow afternoon; but will play tonight and tomorrow night.

The salt water has been very warm the last few days and bathers very plentiful.

John A. Duggan has been in town for a few days.

Capt. and Mrs. Daniel Higgins are away for a week.

Mrs. Howard Whall and children are away on their vacation.

Mr. Arthur Peverley leaves today for a two weeks' vacation in Maine.

A patent was issued to John Lizotte of Mellen Bray & Co., this week.

Thomas B. Davenport of Pettengill's jewelry store is enjoying a week's vacation.

John Hancock lodge, I. O. O. F., worked the initiatory on Wednesday evening.

It is reported that 15-minute service between Neponset and Nantasket is to be established Sundays by the electrics.

Company K has voted to parade at Braintree, August 21, on the occasion of the celebration arranged for that date.

The Sewer Commissioners office in the Adams building has now been connected by telephone, the number being 49-4.

All unpaid poll taxes up to 1896 inclusive have been placed in the hands of Constable E. W. H. Bass for collection.

George Johnson of Worcester Academy is spending the rest of his vacation with his parents on Holmes street, Norfolk Downs.

The indications among the granite men are that business in that line is improving, although no marked improvement is expected before fall.

Charles and Helen V. Taylor have sold at private sale to Albert D. Bossom of Chelsea, land and buildings on Hancock street, Quincy.

The yacht race to have been sailed under the auspices of the Corinthian club at Marblehead yesterday was postponed because of lack of wind.

Bicycle dealers report that the demand for wheels has become so great that they have hard work to get new wheels enough to supply the demand.

The value of the granite output by states for 1896 will be given in tomorrow's LEDGER, together with other information on the stone industry.

Officers Ferguson and Bradley, and City Messenger Tirrell are going to Scituate on a fishing trip, Friday, and they confidently expect to bring home a lot of fish.

It has rained hard many times but there never was a much harder rain than between 3 o'clock and 4 o'clock this morning for it seemed to come down in bucketfuls.

All sailing yachts not over 35 feet water line are eligible for the open race of the Corinthian yacht club at Marblehead Aug. 7. Entries close Friday, Aug. 6, at 5 P. M., at the clubhouse.

Electric street car lines are multiplying so fast and so many sections are now reached by this means of transportation that the appearance of a barge upon the street becomes almost a curiosity.

There was quite a difference between the temperature at noon of yesterday and today. Yesterday it was 89 at noon and at 1 o'clock had reached the 91 mark while today at noon it was but 68.

—Capt. Arthur Soule, master of the bark Martha Davis, who is well known among yachtsmen in this vicinity, was married in Honolulu, Hawaiian islands, July 7, to Miss Sadie Lederer of that place. They will visit the groom's parents in Scituate, and will be tendered a reception there.

—The thunder shower which passed over Sudbury yesterday afternoon was the heaviest and most destructive to buildings and roads experienced for a long time. A large barn owned by Samuel Underwood on the Maynard road was burned. The dwelling house and barn of Josiah Parmenter of Wayland were also destroyed by fire as a result of a stroke of lightning.

—Silver certificates sold on the stock exchange yesterday at 57 and bar silver was quoted at 57, as against 57 3-8, the low record last week. The price of Mexican dollars also receded to 44 1-2. Bullion dealers assert that there is no especially heavy offering of silver in the world's markets to account for the continued fall in price, but that there is practically no demand.

—Quarrymen at the Bodwell granite company at Jonesboro, Maine, have given up the strike, and returned to work on the old schedule.

NATIONAL L. A. W. MEET.

Thousands of Wheelmen Are Enjoying Themselves at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Aug. 5.—Close, sultry weather characterized the opening day of the 18th national meet of the League of American Wheelmen, but it failed to suppress the enthusiasm or to lessen the number of arrivals. The number of wheelmen already registered is far in excess of any previous two race meets and up to a late hour last night every railroad train brought additional visitors. Prominent among yesterday's arrivals were Albert Mott of Baltimore chairman of the national racing board; Herbert W. Foltz, chairman of the Indianapolis racing board; Abbott Bassett, secretary and treasurer of the national L. A. L.; Sterling Elliott, ex-president of the league, and William H. Kinker, secretary of the Associated cycling clubs of New York city; A. D. Peck, secretary-treasurer of the Massachusetts division, G. F. Kast, president of the Louisville league wheelmen. Ex-Chairman of the Racing Board Howard E. Raymond and George D. Gideon, last year's chairman Chairman Mott, Thomas Hare, chairman of the race meet executive committee, and Abe Powell, official handicapper for this district, went carefully over the list of entries and examined the record of each professional and amateur. Two entries, delayed in transmission, were received yesterday. They were J. Frank Mohler and Andre Bouling of the City of Mexico. They are the amateur champions of Mexico, and are reported to be very fast riders.

From the first gleam of daylight until long after midnight the asphalt streets suburban roads and park drives were dotted by riders of both sexes. Although the humidity was high, the sun was behind the clouds most of the day and lessened the discomfort considerably The first scheduled run of the meet was started at 9 o'clock from the national headquarters. Over 1500 riders, many of them women, covered the 10 miles to the country clubhouse of the Century wheelmen, riding along the river drive in Fairmount park and the picturesque Wissahickon valley. After refreshments, the return to the city was made and a much larger number rode out the Lancaster pike, the finest macadam road in the country, passing the country homes of some of Philadelphia's wealthiest and most substantial citizens.

By midnight many of the racing cracks had made their appearance, most of whom went immediately to the track at Willow Grove, 14 miles from the city and established themselves in their quarters. Johnny Johnson of Minneapolis met with an accident late last night, and may not be able to ride. He was being paced on the Willow Grove track by Jack Lindley, when the latter's rear wheel broke and threw Lindley, Johnson "spilled" over him and severely bruised his right side.

Siege of Fort Chakdara.

London, Aug. 5.—A dispatch to The Times from Camp Malakand in the Chitral says that Fort Chakdara, which was relieved Tuesday by Colonels Goldney and Meiklejohn of the British force under General Blood, was invested by large bodies of Pathans on the evening of July 26. The natives made repeated charges simultaneously on all sides of the fort, advancing right up to the walls, and giving the garrison no rest day or night. When finally relieved, the garrison, according to the dispatch, was beginning to run very short of food and ammunition.

Unanimous Wish of Colonies.

London, Aug. 5.—The secretary of state for the colonies, Joseph Chamberlain, answering to a question in the house of commons on the subject of the denunciation by the government of Great Britain of the treaties of commerce with Germany and Belgium, said the denunciation was the unanimous wish of the self-governing colonies who desired to deal with England on preferential terms.

Larned Wins Again.

New York, Aug. 5.—Larned was again the central figure of the international tennis tournament on the St. George Cricket club's grounds at Hoboken, N. J., yesterday. He defeated Mahony, who is rated second among the players on the other side, and one on whom the hopes of the English team chiefly rested. Mahony's defeat leaves the score thus far between the two teams a tie.

What You Can Do.

You can buy pure TOILET SOAPS of reputable makers as cheap as you can get Soaps that you know nothing about. Is this not worth considering, when so many skin diseases are caused by using Soap made of soap grease full of dangerous substances.

We will sell you Colgate's Turkish Bath, Colgate's Palm Oil, Colgate's Rico or pure Olive Oil Soap for 5 cents a cake or 50 cts. a dozen. We have nicer for 10 cents a cake and as high as $1.00 per cake, but they are no purer than the 5 cent kind. They are pure enough to wash the baby.

All the Toilet Waters at low prices, and Perfumes that beat the flowers themselves.

These are simply necessities this warm weather, they are so refreshing.

Our store is the coolest place in town and we have tables for you to sit down to enjoy your Ice Cream Soda.

Old Dog--New Tricks

Can't teach an old dog new tricks, eh?

Well, that depends on the old dog.

Our belief is that there are two kinds of old age—particularly in business.

Take an old firm which keeps along in the same ancient ruts, year after year, doing certain things simply because "grandfather did," and not doing a lot of other things because "grandfather did'nt"—we grant that it is about impossible to teach that sort of "old dog" any "new tricks."

But there's another variety of old firm—one which has been long established, but which has year by year kept pace with all the improvements and general progress in its line.

New tricks? Why certainly; learning 'em every day.

That's the sort of establishment MERRILL keeps—up-to-date, enterprising, always pushing ahead.

All new goods that have merit can be found at our establishment, as well as the old reliable staples. It is a general opinion that while every other line had new styles and novelties, the grocer kept on year after year buying and selling the same old varieties. There never was a greater mistake made. Come in and see us and we will show you hundreds of articles in groceries never thought of by your fathers. We cannot enumerate them here, but would like to show you what they are, at Quincy People at Newport.

Among the Quincy people who witnessed the scene of splendor at Newport last evening were: Deputy Sheriff George H. Field, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Holden, Thomas W. Lincoln, Jr., Moreton Swallow, Henry Tirrell, George Richards, Frank F. Prescott and Master Carl Prescott. Mr. Richards was accompanied by Miss Richards and Mrs. Lovell of Weymouth. Mr. and Mrs. Holden flitted about on their tandem. City Editor Prescott of the DAILY LEDGER and son were guests of the press committee and had an exceptionable opportunity in the evening to view the harbor illumination and fireworks from the press boat. It was beautiful weather without rain, but today the city is being drenched by rain.

An extended report of the fete date appears on the fourth page today, but words cannot describe the scene which may never be surpassed in this country.

Six-Day Cycle Race.

One of the most interesting features of the great six-day cycle race to be held on Charles River Park, Boston, Aug. 16 to 21, will be the manner in which the riders will be fed on their long journey awheel. Every rider will, of course, have his trainer and manager, who will be stationed beside the track to coach their man and furnish him with food when desired. At the point where the trainer and manager are located will be cooking utensils, and here the food of a nourishing kind will be dealt out to the rider as he continues on his long ride. He will not have the pleasure of getting off his whe l and sitting up to a table and partake of the delicate viands, as one would suppose, as by doing this he would be left behind several miles, but instead must ride on and eat as he goes. As the men encirc'e the track at a fair rate of speed during the time they indulge in strength-giving food they eat from dishes which they are able to carry in one hand and at the same time be enabled to reach the food easily. The amount of food the men eat in a six-lay race is enormous. By making the runs eight hours for each day in this race, fast time will certainly be made, and the race will be interesting from start to finish.

Counterfeit Pennies.

The sub-treasury is being flooded with counterfeit pennies.

It was not uncommon, in the past, to have a bad penny turn up now and then in the lots sent for examination, but during the past week the percentage of bad pieces has become enormous, as many as 18 being found in one $40 lot.

Curiously enough all these come from Boston houses, so that there is little doubt that the gang is operating in that city or the immediate vicinity.

☞ A disturbance in the railroad world has been caused, apparently, by the desire of the Wabash Railroad Company to give its patrons the best possible service. The comforts of the free reclining chair cars, such as the Wabash has always run on its trains west of Detroit, have not been known to Eastern people, and now that these cars are being run East over the Wabash extension to Buffalo and to New York City over the Ontario and Western, the other lines seem to be afraid that they will be too popular. So far as the travelling public are concerned they are not likely to object to them.

Lowell Man Starts.

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 5.—Frank I. Costello, late second lieutenant of company C, Sixth regiment, M. V. M., and a student at the Harvard medical school, left Lowell last night en route for the gold fields of the Klondyke. There was a tremendous crowd at the depot to see him off, and his fellow members of company C presented him with a repeating rifle. He will go to Seattle and remain there until the opening of the Alaskan spring, when he will leave for the Klondyke.

Booth-Tucker Goes to London.

New York, Aug. 5.—Commander Booth-Tucker of the Salvation Army left this city for London today on the steamship Normania. He goes to lay his plans for colonization in the United States before General Booth.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

Joseph Alonzo Hall, one of the largest landholders and prominent men of Brookline, N. H., is dead.

Jim Corbett, ex-champion pugilist, is to play first base through the Western Association league the latter part of August for a percentage of the receipts of each club.

MARY A. LIVERMORE'S NEW BOOK.

The Story of My Life; or, the Sunshine and Shadow of Seventy Years.

This new and superbly illustrated book is the crowning life work of the famous Mary A. Livermore, and, as she herself states, it is the last that will ever come from her pen. It is a thrilling narrative of her life from infancy to old age, portraying the sunshine and shadow of seventy years of a most marvelous career, told in her own words.

It seems almost incredible that a woman now so famous made "mud pies" in her childhood, was often sent supperless to bed, and was frequently bounced down into a kitchen chair with an emphasis that caused her to "see stars." When a young girl, struggling to support herself, she took in "slop-work," made shirts, and subsequently learned the trade of a dress-maker, at which she worked for twenty-five cents a day. At eighteen she "ran away from home like a boy," and spent three eventful years on a Southern slave plantation—years full of comedy and tragedy, and packed with thrilling experiences

She tells of the eventful Christmas night when she wandered into the church of a strange young preacher, who soon afterwards became her husband. Their comical experiences in their first attempt at housekeeping; the ignominious fate that her husband awarded to her first fish chowder [he buried it after dark in the garden], and the many trials and tribulations that followed are marvelously entertaining. They were poor. She tried her hand at tailoring, and with the money saved by secretly making a pair of trousers for her husband she paid for a year's subscription to a weekly newspaper.

Mrs Livermore threw her whole heart and soul into measures for the relief of sick and wounded soldiers, and spent four years as a nurse in the Union army. Her intellectual greatness and nobility of character led her to rise from those thrilling experiences to become the best known woman of America, and opened the way to her phenomenal platform career, that has continued for more than thirty years. At her feet millions of people have sat and listened in admiration and wonder. The rich and poor, the high and low, the learned and unlearned have been alike thrilled and moved by her burning words. She has swayed brilliant audiences of fashion; has spoken in state prisons, jails, and penitentiaries; to audiences composed of outcasts, and to audiences numbering thousands of children. In this autobiography she gives many reminiscences of her platform experiences, with anecdotes and incidents "too funny for anything."

Many distinguished men and women have long urged Mrs. Livermore to tell the marvelous story of her life. She has received letters from thousands of men and women, unknown to her, expressing the hope that such a volume would be written.

This work is wholly and entirely new. Splendidly illustrated by beautiful and costly full-page photogravure plates and portraits, and over one hundred fine text illustrations. Many of them are intensely humorous, while others depict thrilling scenes full of pathos and tragic interest.

We do not know when 730 pages have given us more genuine pleasure. If we speak warmly of the book, it is because it richly deserves it. It is sold only by agents, and is meeting with a large sale. Agents who introduce a first-class work like this ought to be cordially welcomed. We believe that the best way to keep out poor books is by introducing good ones, and a better one than this has never been brought to our notice. Put it into your homes.

The book is sold only by agents, and is published by the old and well-known firm of A. D. Worthington & Co., Hartford, Conn., whose imprint is sufficient guarantee of the excellence of this first class volume.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

WORKING OUT THE GOLD.

Scenes and Conditions at the Klondike Diggings.

An interesting letter telling of the recent trip of the steamer Excelsior to Alaska has been written by Captain J. F. Higgins of the steamer to a friend in San Diego. He says:

"The word Klondike means deer river and it is called Reindeer river on the charts. It empties into the Yukon 50 miles above the big river. Bonanza creek dumps into Klondike about two miles above the Yukon. El Dorado is a tributary of the Bonanza. There are numerous other creeks and tributaries, the main river being 300 miles long. The gold so far has been taken from Bonanza and El Dorado, both well named, for the richness of the placers is truly marvelous. El Dorado, 30 miles long, is staked the whole length and as far as worked has paid. As each claim is 500 feet along the creek bed, there is 500,000 to the claim. As uniform has the output been that one miner who has an interest in three claims told me that if offered his choice he would toss up to decide.

"One of our passengers, who is taking $1,000 with him, has worked 100 feet of his ground and refused $200,000 for the remainder and confidently expects to clear up $400,000 and more. He has in a bottle $212 from one pan of dirt. His pay dirt, while being washed, averaged $250 an hour to each man shoveling in. Two others of our miners who worked their own claims cleared up $6,000 from the day's washing. There is about 15 feet of dirt above bedrock, the pay streak averaging from 4 to 6 feet, which is tunneled out while the ground is frozen. Of course the ground taken out is thawed by building fires, and when the thaw comes and water rushes in they set their sluices and wash the dirt. Two of our fellows thought a small bird in the hand worth a large one in the bush and sold their claims for $45,000, getting $4,500 down, the remainder to be paid in monthly installments of $10,000 each. The purchasers had no more than $5,000 paid. They were 20 days thawing and getting out dirt. Then there was no water to sluice with, but one fellow made a rocker and in 10 days took out the $10,000 for the first installment. So, tunneling and rocking, they took out $40,000 before there was water to sluice with.

"Of course these things read like the story of Aladdin, but fiction is not in it with facts at Klondike. The ground located and prospected can be worked out in a few years, but there is still an immense territory untouched, and the laboring man who can get there with one year's provisions will have a better chance to make a stake than in any other part of the world."—San Diego Times.

Drill with Magnetic Clamping.

The use of magnets for lifting purposes and as a substitute for clamps is rapidly extending. With the old process holes have to be bored in masses of metal in all sorts of odd and inconvenient places and at angles, so that very often it is necessary to rig clamps for holding the drilling machine to its work. The application of the portable electric motor for this purpose was a long step in advance, and this method has been of great service in dealing with the armor of the new cruisers. When a portable drill, however, is coupled with a magnetic clamping device, the ideal conditions are realized.

Dr. Louis Bell recently described a drill of this pattern. It consists of a motor and its worm driven drill, together with a universal mounting of four adjustable feet. When placed fairly upon a ship's plate or other mass of iron, these drills have an adhesive force of nearly half a ton each. The drill can then be adjusted and clamped by the simple turning of a key, and it will then bore holes up to an inch in diameter as fast as it can be safely worked. —Engineering Magazine.

The White Whale Was Drowned.

The white whale at the aquarium, New York, died the other night from a curious cause. Superintendent Bean found a long piece of a large eel protruding from the whale's blowhole, the valve of which was so wedged by the eel that the hole could not be closed. Dr. Bean thinks that the whale had overloaded its stomach with the live eels, which were kept in the tank with it for it to eat, and vomited, part of the contents of the stomach being forced through the nasal passage into the blowhole. As the latter could not be closed, water must have been drawn through it into the lungs every time the whale "sounded." Dr. Bean is confident that the lungs are full of water, and that the whale was literally drowned. The body was taken to the American Museum of Natural History, where it will be mounted after an autopsy is performed. —New York Tribune.

Priscilla In the Berry Patch.

I'd loved and lost a many time—
Lost love's illusion—had been kissed
In dreams by joy, yet, broad awake,
Proclaimed myself a pessimist,
A melancholy misanthrope
At twenty odd, yet did I catch
A glimpse of heaven the day I met
Priscilla in the berry patch.

Forgotten were the fair but false
Beguilers of my giddy youth,
Drowned were the siren voices all.
Love struck at last the note of truth,
And, though my heart had seemed a tomb,
Hope found the door still on the latch
And entered in when I first saw
Priscilla in the berry patch.

Priscilla, pretty, pink and white,
Sweet, modest little country maid,
Dear child, whose very innocence
Made love and hope draw back, afraid!
Had I but bolder been! Alas,
I was a fool and dared not snatch
The heaven that hung within my reach
That one day in the berry patch!

A braver man than I it was
Who won her. Once again we meet
Upon the spot fond memory
Has kept for me e'er green and sweet.
The rose is faded on her cheek
And thinned upon her head the thatch.
Her children's children romp today
Around her in the berry patch!

A GREAT SURPRISE IS IN STORE

for those who will go today and get a package of GRAIN-O. It takes the place of coffee at about ¼ the cost. It is a food drink, full of health, and can be given to the children as well as the adult with a great benefit. It is made of pure grains and looks and tastes like the finest grades of Mocha or Java coffee. It satisfies everyone. A cup of Grain-O is better for the system than a tonic, because its benefit is permanent. What coffee breaks down Grain-O builds up. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 15c. and 25c.

QUIET AND UNCHANGED.

No Excitement Around Camps of the Striking Coal Miners.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 5.—The miners' strike situation has not changed materially. Everything about the Turtle Creek camp is quiet, the only ripple of excitement being the hearing of President Dolan and the other officials of the miners for riot and unlawful assemblage.

The strikers claim 20 new accessions to their ranks. A careful estimate of the men now at work in Turtle Creek mines shows 215 out of the usual total of 285. No work was done at the Oak Hill or Sandy Creek mines. The camp has been reduced in numbers by 300 men. They were sent to their homes for two reasons—to lessen the expense and because these men were not inclined to respond to the numerous marching orders imposed upon them. The camp has been costing $300 a day to keep it in provisions etc., being at the rate of 7 cents per man per day, as against 19 cents per day in the national guard encampments. The camp is now under strict military discipline and everything is moving like clockwork. The customary march will be made to Plum Creek in the morning and will be continued daily, the miners' officials say, until the suspension in the De Armitt mines is complete.

The miners at Schmeck's mines on the Red Stone branch of the Pennsylvania raidroad came out yesterday, and the mines are once more closed down. When the news was received in this city the price of coal jumped to $1 a ton, and the brokers said that prices were likely to advance to $1.50 before next week.

President W. P. De Armitt of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company says that his men are not in sympathy with the strike movement. "They have been intimidated," he said, "and I have no doubt that all would return to work if the forces of strikers encamped at the different mines were withdrawn."

Ellis Family Is Safe.

Ellsworth, Me., Aug. 5.—A dispatch was received here from Melvin Ellis at Rockland announcing that he and family had not been drowned, as reported. Mr. Ellis, his wife and five sons left here for Rockland two weeks ago in a small schooner and had not been heard from since. A boat that was found adrift i. the bay led to the belief that the schooner was lost.

Sanborn's Death an Accident.

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 5.—Medical Examiner Root yesterday viewed the remains of Edwin W. Sanborn of Lawrence, who died from the effects of a fall Tuesday night, and later held a conference with the companions of Sanborn, and while he has not yet rendered his full decision he declares that death was the result of accident, and that he shall not order an autopsy.

Head Half Blown Off.

Eastport, Me., Aug. 5.—While out in a boat yesterday, Michael Cooney, 21 years old, son of William Cooney of Northampton, Mass., was killed by the accidental discharge of his gun. The charge entered below the ear, blowing half of his head off. His family are prostrated over the affair.

NEWPORT ILLUMINED.

Grand Electrical and Pyrotechnic Display Closes Fete.

Atlantic Squadron Shown In Blaze of Light.

Brightness of Noonday Sun In the Harbor and on Shore.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 5.—The Venetian fete is now a thing of the past, but it will go on record as the most elaborate event of its character ever presented in this, or, in fact, in any country. Only those who were fortunate enough to be present here and witness the magnificent spectacle can form even the slightest idea of the brilliant and inspiring sight.

The efforts of those interested in the two preceding celebrations were merely impartial attempts, and while both fetes were wonderfully successful, they could not for a moment be compared with the phenominal success achieved last night.

The work of several weeks of arduous preparation was last night crowned with success, and the citizens' committee and all who operated with it scored a veritable triumph.

Yesterday morning the harbor was very comfortably filled with yachts of all descriptions and numerous excursion steamers crowded in throughout the day, but the arrival of the great fleet of the New York club brought the climax, and last evening the seemingly countless numbers of tall masts formed a picturesque and bewildering maze, through which scores of small boats and launches found passage very difficult.

Darkness had hardly settled down before the blue light was kindled. Ashor colored lanterns and lights appeared on the houses and in the street, now chokes with curious, surging throngs, electrica. designs, original and brilliant, glared forth. Words of welcome to the yachtsmen, the navy and visitors generally appeared in letters of fire everywhere, and Thames street, from end to end, was illuminated with thousands of lamps that produced an effulgence almost rivalling the noonday sun. But elaborate and surprising as were the land scenes they were outdone on the water. The graceful lines of many yachts were shown by scores of electric lamps, lanterns, depended from the rigging, and colored fires burned all about. The government warships made a magnificent display. Lights beamed out all over the powerful vessels, and their searchlights swept the sky and glared into every nook and corner of the city and harbor.

The cruisers New York and Brooklyn and the battleship Maine made an especially good showing, and the Massachusetts, Indiana and Iowa were also lavish in their decorations. The Dolphin, too, was attractively embellished with electric lights. The Fall River line boats Pilgrim and City of Taunton showed expensive electrical designs, and both were covered from stem to stern with lamps. The Priscilla stopped over on her trip to New York until 11 o'clock and joined in the fete. An immense star and crescent of electric lights surmounted the torpedo station building on Goat Island, and each of the officers showed a flaming star on its ridgepole.

Fort Adams was outlined in fire and myriads of lights on the training ship Constellation, the training station and the Old Colony pier. The boats entered for the Venetian parade began to form in order at 7:30, and soon after they moved amidst the barking of yachts' cannon and the detonation of bombs ashore. From the end of Goat Island 13 Gettysburg bombshells spoke out from all the wharves and piers, rockets went up and candles belched forth showers of fire. As the procession continued the din was kept up on every side, and the principal fireworks display on the end of Goat island increased in beauty. Water fireworks, displays of Japanese rockets, aerial bouquets of fire, streams of colored stars and surprising combinations of fire rapidly succeeded each other and divided honors with the procession of boats. The latter included many novelties, the electrical figures taking many varied forms, from sea serpents to shields and flags.

Slowly, like a huge snake, the line of boats wound round Goat island, while the fireworks continued without cessation, surprise following surprise for over two hours. The fete concluded with the ascension of a pyrotechnic flag 250 feet long and 60 feet wide, which was carried up by a balloon and unfurled in midair.

Blown along by a good southwester, the best breeze of the week, the fleet of the New York Yacht club swept into the harbor from New London yesterday afternoon, filling the already crowded roadstead to overflowing and finishing the second of the runs of the 1897 cruise. It cannot be said, however, that the fleet came in in a bunch, for when the regatta committee at Benton's reef lightship, where the racing finish was made, took the time on the four leading boats, which were the two crack sloops Vigilant and Navahoe, and the two trim schooners Emerald and Colonia, the rest of the fleet were hull down in the southern horizon.

The run from New London was the most satisfactory of the week, for not only did the breeze make the start close and exciting, but the wind held throughout, and all the yachts, from the big schooners, smothered in sail, to the little flyer, with only a few kites set, bowled along right merrily, while not a few of the skippers indulged in playful luffing matches while rounding Point Judith. The entire run was in fact most enjoyable and fully made up for the exasperating conditions of Monday and Tuesday.

MORE KLONDYKE GOLD.

Steamer Arrives at Seattle With $1,000,000. Boston Party Leaves For Alaska.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 5.—Another $1,000,000 in gold came in last night from the Klondyke, per steamer Nellie Ford, Captain Alexander Johnson, which also brought in 11 lucky miners, the owners of the dust.

Captain Johnson reports that there is at least three times as much more at St. Michaels awaiting shipment.

The passengers of the Ford are mostly young men—tenderfeet, to use the mining term, though the richest of the lot, Patrick Murphy, has spent the best 20 years of his life working about the gold fields of North America and South Africa in quest for wealth that until now has never been his. He went to Alaska practically a pauper. Today he has dust in his possession that will bring at the San Francisco mint close on to $200,000, besides three claims, that he believes are worth $1,000,000 apiece more.

The others of the party are: Philip Moxom, who has $40,000; John St. Claire, $85,000; James Anderson, $110,000; Chris Christensen, $60,000; John Abbott, $75,000; William Monroe, $90,000; James Gilbride, John S. Birdsall and Reuben Elliot, each about $80,000. These figures, of course, are but approximations, but they are reasonably close.

The party will probably go to San Francisco by rail, where they will split up for the four points of the compass.

BOSTON PARTY DEPARTS.

Twenty Resolute Prospectros Bid Adieu to Friends---British Own Gold Fields.

Boston, Aug. 5.—The first organized party left Boston for the gold fields of Alaska yesterday afternoon. They call themselves the Haverhill Gold Mining company. There were 20 men and one boy, as follows:

Arthur E. Seymour, Haverhill; J. G. Williams, 37 Sever street, Charlestown; L. C. Hill, Deerfield; George A. Allen, Boston; John R. Nichols, Providence; L. L. Hobbs, Springfield; George H. Wesson, 46 Hawthorne street, Chelsea; C. N. Brown, Alfred E. Rogers, Gales Ferry, Conn.; L. A. Maloy, Hudson; J. C. Spicer, 722 Fourth street, South Boston; Thomas Murtagh, 849 Broadway, South Boston; Charles H. Moseley, 550 Tremont street, Boston; P. A. Cummings and Master Cummings, 309 Bolton street, South Boston; A. R. James, Buffalo; L. L. Evans, Portland, Me.; Charles Thayer, New Haven; Dr. M. Townsend, Albany; Walter L. Dobson, Sr.; Eugene Cummings, Hartford.

Mr. Seymour organized the party and is chief. Mr. Williams is 74 years old and a California Forty-niner. He will instruct his companions in mining and the usages of mining camps. The car containing the gold seekers will be switched at Ogden to the tracks of the Oregon Short line to Seattle, and the steamer will sail from there to Juneau Aug. 10 or 12. There were 200 friends at the Union station to bid farewell to the gold hunters.

Each adventurer is provided with an Alaskan sleeping bag of sheepskin, in addition to a full supply of warm clothing. They had $1000 each in cash. They will go shares on the gold found by any member of the party and the burden of expenses will be borne equally.

Ownership of Klondyke.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Incited by the newspaper publications recenfly tending to throw doubt upon the ownership of the Klondyke gold fields, some of the high government officials who would naturally be expected to deal with it if it comes to a practical issue have been quietly looking into the matter with a view to preparing themselves for the controversy that may arise. Their views are in substance that there can be no valid objection advanced to the title of Great Britain to this territory. A careful examination of all of the reliable charts and maps made far enough back in date to be free from suspicion of influence of the heavy gold finds, has convinced these officers that so far as the Klondyke fields, as defined by the latest reports are concerned, there can be no question but that they lie east of the 141st meridian, which defines the boundary line, and so are within British territory by about 35 miles at least.

The Greeks were physically perfect and beautiful because they were healthy. The man who suffers from ill-health cannot be physically robust and manly. The woman who is sickly cannot be beautiful and womanly. Most all forms of ill-health have their inception in disorders of the digestion. When the digestion is bad the blood becomes impure, and is imperfectly supplied with the food-elements that build up new and healthy tissues, and tear down, and carry away those that are inert and half-dead. The nerves are not rebuilt from day to day with new, vigorous, active fibers. Every organ, tissue, muscle and nerve in the body is half famished for healthy nutriment. Almost any disease in the category of human ills may be the result of this condition. Most frequently it is the most deadly of disorders—consumption. Sometimes it is some other wasting disease. Again, it may be scrofula or some skin disease.

There is a sure preventive and remedy for these conditions and maladies. It is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It corrects all disorders of the digestion. It restores the lost or failing appetite and invigorates the liver. It fills the arteries with the pure, rich, red blood of health. It builds new, firm flesh, healthy, active nerve fibers, and strong elastic muscles. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption, and wasting diseases. It cures nervous prostration. Druggists sell it.

The man who is too lazy or neglectful to take an occasional dose of medicine to ward off the evil effects of constipation deserves to die. And he will surely get his deserts, for constipation is the first cause of much sickness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They never gripe. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. All good druggists sell them. No other pills are as good.

By seasons uv the year,
Jest watch our friendly candidate,
An every time you'll see
How jest 'fore 'lection
He's ez good ez he kin be.

He seems a sort uv average man
In ordinary times,
A chap as how you seldom see
A-spendin uv his dimes.
He ain't egzackley famous fer
His broad philanthropee,
But jest 'fore 'lection
He's ez free ez he kin be.

His wife she calls 'im Peter,
But when he walks the street
The kids around the corner
Holler, "There goes stingy Pete!"
But as Ald. McHooligen
He'll draw his salaree
If jest 'fore 'lection
He's ez good ez he kin be.

When he walks inter Two Johns' place,
The heelers near and far
To hear his ideas on reform
Crowd in around the bar,
And where's a freer hearted man
In all the teown than he
When jest 'fore 'lection
He's ez good ez he kin be?

He has a taste fer good rye bread
An amber colored beer,
An the honest German workingmen
Are kin to him quite near,
For his gran'pap had'n uncle
Born beside the Baltic sea,
So jest 'fore 'lection
He's ez Dutch ez he kin be.

The Poles, Bohemians an Swedes
All know him fer their friend.
The different kinds uv blood he has
There surely ain't no end.
An this may be the reason
Why his beamin face you see
All over town 'fore 'lection, fer
He's ez furrin's he kin be.

Since business is so sluggishlike
An summer come so late
I don't know what this town would be Without its candidate,
With his smile so set an stiddy
An his glad, outreachin hand
He sheds a sort o' radiance
Wherever he may stand.
We hev to take him as he is,
Leastwise that's my idee,
But allus jest 'fore 'lection
He's ez good ez he kin be.

Then, after all the votin's done,
And Mac hez got his seat,
The council gits to business
By givin away the street
Fer trolley cars an gas pipes,
Fer which he gits his fee,
So jest 'fore his term is up
He's ez rich ez he kin be.

WAIT UNTIL SPRING.

Captain Miles Standish Warns Those Afflicted With "Klondycitis."

Great Hardships Confront the Seekers for Gold.

Winter Has Set In and Journey Is Dangerous to Even the Most Robust.

Portland, Me., Aug. 6.—Captain Miles Standish of Montreal, who has been spending the summer in Alaska, has reached the confines of civilization on his return to this city. He knows all about the Klondyke gold craze and his advice to intending prospectors is "Don't." In a letter received yesterday, written on a steamer and mailed in Seattle (Wash.) a week ago Sunday, he writes that the situation on the Klondyke is not very dissimilar to other gold fields—Swift river for instance. The yellow metal is there, but it does not lie around the ground in chunks waiting to be scooped up.

Captain Standish writes that it can only be secured by patient and uncommonly laborious placer mining, interspersed with many weary miles of tramping around from pocket to pocket. He further says that the journey to the "diggings" from Juneau is an enterprise calculated to pall the stoutest heart. It is a series of long "carries" and short sails, and only the most robust can hope to survive it.

Beyond all this it is now beginning to be winter in that region, and anyone who starts must stop over at Juneau or somewhere else until next May. There is not food enough in all Alaska to keep the people for a month.

Over and above all else is a quiet hint dropped by Captain Standish that the larger portion of the Klondyke region is in Canada beyond any doubt, and without stretching an elastic boundary line an inch, and the Dominion police will undoubtedly have something to say about Yankees coming over there and taking away all the gold.

Captain Standish, who is in a position to know, says that there has been conspicuous activity in Dominion mounted police circles for some time, and adds that it would not surprise him in the least to see a complete cordon of men armed with Winchesters and Gatling guns surrounding the gold district when spring opens.

Prospectors Leave Seattle.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 6.—The steamship Cleveland under charter to the North American transportation company sailed for St. Michaels yesterday with 200 prospectors bound for the Klondyke, and 1000 tons of freight. Passengers and freight will be transferred to river steamers at St. Michaels. The Cleveland is the last steamer this year to connect with the Yukon river boats from St. Michaels. Twelve or 15 more steamers are to leave for Alaska this month with prospectors for the Yukon, but all will go to Dyea, and the prospectors will take the land route over the White pass and canoe down the river.

Among the passengers on the Cleveland were Captain F. M. Ray and Lieutenant Richardson, U. S. A., who will be followed next spring by 60 soldiers from Fort Russell.

DR. TRUMBULL DEAD.

Well Known Scholar, Who Held Degree of LL.D. From Both Yale and Harvard.

Hartford, Aug. 6.—Dr. James Hammond Trumbull, Yale '42, who held the degree of LL. D. from both Yale and Harvard, died at his home here yesterday afternoon, in his 76th year.

He was one of the best known scholars in the country and a member of the National Academy of Sciences, American Philological society and many other societies for the advancement of knowledge. Since 1863 he has been librarian of the Watkinson Library of Reference, having selected its books. He was president for 26 years of the Connecticut Historical society, was secretary of the state from 1861 to 1865, was executor of George Brinley and catalogued the famous Brinley library, and edited the history of Hartford county, published in 1886.

Mrs. Trumbull, a sister of Hon. Henry C. Robinson, and their daughter, Annie E. Trumbull, known in literature as "Annie Eliot," survive him. Two brothers, Rev. Henry Clay Trumbull of Philadelphia, of The Sunday School Times, and Gordon Trumbull, the artist, of this city, and a sister, Mrs. Annie Trumbull Slosson of New York are living.

Woman Sandbagged.

Boston, Aug. 6.—Miss Hattie Bond, housekeeper for Mrs. C. N. Arno, who conducts a lodging house at 11 Union Park street, was the victim of a brutal assault and robbery yesterday morning. The crime was one of the most daring that has been committed in the city for some time, and Miss Bond's assailant displayed no little nerve in its perpetration. The assailant was a young man, well dressed and gentlemanly in appearance, who gained entrance to the house by pretending that he wanted to engage a room. Miss Bond showed him over the house, after which he struck her a fearful blow on the head with a sandbag, rendering her unconscious. Not satisfied with this he kicked and gagged her, and, taking a roll of bills amounting to $40, which he had seen Miss Bond place away, he departed without having been seen by anyone but the housekeeper. The boldness of the crime is seen when it is stated that several of the lodgers were in the house at the time, men as well as women. Strangely enough not one of them saw Miss Bond's assailant, though she showed him several rooms in the house.

Knife and Pistol Used.

Boston, Aug. 6.—An Italian row at the North End last night ended in one man being shot in the abdomen, probably fatally, and another being terribly slashed about the face with a razor. Guiseppi De Lucca, 18 years old, and Empirator Damiano, 20, had been playing cards in a house when a quarrel arose as to who should pay for the beer. De Lucca was ordered out of the house, and when he reached the alley, Damiano followed him, coming out through a window. The latter attacked De Lucca with a knife, cutting off the end of his nose and the lobe of his left ear, besides making fearful gashes on the side of his face and on his arm. De Lucca, to defend himself, drew his revolver and fired one shot at Damiano, the ball entering the latter's abdomen, causing a wound that may result in his death. Both men were taken to the hospital.

Sensation at Worcester.

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 6.—The mysterious disappearance of Miss Mabel Sheldon, whose empty canoe was found floating at the north end of Lake Quinsigamond Wednesday afternoon by a couple of fishermen, has developed into a lively sensation, as there is now some doubt as to whether she was drowned. The police spent all day yesterday dragging for her body in the vicinity of the place where the canoe was found, but no trace of it has been found. Napoleon Snow and James Cain, the men who found the empty canoe, say that they first saw it floating about soon after noon, and Francis Carney, a conductor on the Consolidated railroad, who knew Miss Sheldon and her sister very well, having carried both as passengers on his car which ran close to their home, says that he saw the missing young woman and a young man walking through Lincoln park from the direction of the north end of the lake about 2:30 o'clock. He says he is positive it was the missing young woman, as he looked at her very closely to ascertain whether it was she or her sister.

Nantucket to Klondyke by Water.

Nantucket, Mass., Aug. 6.—Captain William T. Swain of this city has purchased the schooner William O. Nettleton with a view of fitting her out for an expedition to the Klondyke gold fields. The Nettleton is a two-masted schooner, belonging to this port, of about 56 tons burden, and is better known as the Boston Packet. Captain Swain's aim is to form a company of 20 who wish to go, each will subscribe $500 and own his share of the vessel and outfit. The vessel will leave here in time to reach Alaska about the first of next April, and it is planned to take along a lot of dories especially adapted for river use, so that they can be easily transported around the rapids which may be encountered. The advantage of going in a vessel like the Nettleton is that, after getting as far as possible with her, each member will have a home till it is decided what move is best to make, after which the vessel can be sold or retained for further use.

Rev. W. G. Tuttle Dead.

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 6.—Rev. William G. Tuttle, aged 78, a Congregational clergyman of this city, died at his home here last night after a long illness. He was a native of Littleboro, Mass., and received his early education at Groton academy. He finished his college preparation in Phillips Andover academy, and graduated from Amherst college in 1846, and from Andover Theological seminary in 1849. After ordination, he preached for some time in his native town, and then went to Harrisville, N. H., where he remained for nine and one-half years. He then settled in Ware, Mass., where he was pastor for 26 years. Ill health forced him to give up active work in Ware, and he came to this city 10 years ago. He leaves a widow and two children, Miss Harriet Wallace Tuttle, for 10 years a member of the faculty of Wellesley college, and Edward Gerry Tuttle, a physician and surgeon of New York city.

Good Shooting at Farmington.

Farmington, Me., Aug. 6.—The clay pigeon shooting for the gold badge and Franklin county championship at the Willows was well attended by local sportsmen and others yesterday. The badge and championship were won by J. C. Corson of Wilton, it being his fourth consecutive victory for the trophy. Should he successfully defend it at the next challenge it will become his property under the stipulations of the donor. The shooting was good, and many more prizes were distributed.

WAS ON MURDER BENT

William Collier Plotted to Kill Rev. Edward Everett Hale.

Captured Lurking Near Hale's Summer Home.

Says He Is Second Messiah Sent to Redeem the World.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 6.—William Collier, the young Memphis divinity student who planned to assassinate Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, came to the pier from Boston about 10 days ago and hired a room of Mrs. Stephen Knowles. He stayed in his room nearly all of the time and wrote incessantly.

He said he was engaged on a most important work and complained of a pain in his head, and said he would like to get some light outdoor work to do in connection with his writing. Seldom could he be induced to come to his meals, and when food was sent to his room he often returned it untasted.

When Mrs. Knowles tried to expostulate with him, he said: "You do not know whom you are talking to; I am the second Messiah, and have come to redeem the world."

He frequently spoke of Dr. Hale, and said that the doctor was a great man to save souls and he would learn from him to do the same.

No one knows where the crank has been hidden for the last week. His father from Memphis has been searching anxiously for him.

Collier was a protege of Dr. Hale's. Overstudy turned his brain and caused him to imagine himself to be a new Messiah with a deadly mission on earth.

Collier is now in Kingston jail. He was supposed to have had something to do with the bold burglary at Dunmere, the residence of R. G. Dun of New York.

On Saturday afternoon Miss Hale saw a suspicious looking man lurking about the premises. This was at the doctor's summer residence, near Matunuc Beach. She notified the police as soon as she could. Officer Northrup of Wakefield found the man Sunday evening hiding in a piece of woods near the town.

When he saw Northrup he at once took flight. When overtaken he grappled with the officer, and a desperate hand-to-hand conflict took place in the darkness of the woods. Northrup received a bad scalp wound by a sharp rock, but finally succeeded in securing his prisoner. He was taken to Kingston, and will be lodged in the asylum until his family can arrange to take him South.

Since his confinement he has talked a good deal, but it was not until Wednesday night that he would say anything about himself and his mission to Matunuc. He declares now that he came here to kill Dr. Hale because "he had been teaching a false religion." "He is an imposter, and I'm going to shed his blood," said Collier repeatedly. "I'm the second Messiah: I'm Christ who has come into the world to shed the blood of sinners, even as Jesus Christ shed his blood for us."

Collier says his father is a lawyer in Memphis, and that his family members are all prominent people. At times he talks intelligently, and appears to be rational, but his periodical ravings are of the wildest nature.

It is thought that Collier would have waylaid and slain Dr. Hale had the opportunity occurred, and every one of the doctor's old friends at Matunuc are thankful over his capture.

Intelligence received from the prisoner's father at Memphis yesterday conveyed the information that young Collier is crazy, and a request is made that he be confined in an asylum until some arrangement can be made for his removal to the South.

From Collier's Home.

Memphis, Aug. 6.—William Collier, arrested at Providence, is the oldest son of Colonel W. A. Collier, a lawyer, and at one time president of the Appeal Avalanche company. Young Collier left Memphis several weeks ago to push street car advertising work for a relative. He intended to enter a Unitarian school. Collier is splendidly educated, and has always shown an aptitude for philosophic and metaphysical subjects. He was esteemed here as a most honorable young man.

Indiana Sails For Halifax.

Washington, Aug. 6.—The big battleship Indiana sailed from Newport, R. I., yesterday for Halifax, where she will be docked, cleaned and painted. She is the first of the battleships that has been sent from the United States to a foreign dock for lack of docking facilities at home. But it is probable that she must be followed by her sister ships, the Massachusetts and the Iowa, and it is not expected now that the New York dock will be repaired in less than a years time, and there is no other dock on the Atlantic coast capable of receiving them.

The navy department has picked out the particularly appropriate name of the Plunger for the submarine boat now building for the navy at the Columbian Iron Works, Baltimore. The craft is slowly approaching completion and should be ready for service next spring.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

The Marine Park.

The writer of the article in Wednesdays LEDGER on the Marine park at Houghs Neck, did not have a very clear idea of the location, and may have misled some. The land or beach that the city is asked to take is the causeway itself, from Shelton road which leads to Post island, as far as "The Willows."

Sea street as laid out is but 33 feet wide, and if it is determined that the location is inland near the fence at the beginning of the Rock Island road there will be quite a tract between it and the water.

It is the intention of Mrs. John Quincy Adams, the alleged owner, to sell or develop this property; in which case it will be built upon for beach houses, and as it is not very desirable for beach lots an inferior class of beach houses will probably be erected. But the ride along this strip of sea shore is enjoyed and it is hoped the view will not be obstructed. If Mrs. Adams will be satisfied with a nominal sum for this beach, the city should take it for park purposes.

THE Q. Y. C. NEWS.

Planning to Entertain the Visiting Yachtsmen.

The Race of the Cruising Class Full of Interest.

Exhibition of Snap Shots Taken on the Recent Cruise.

The regular monthly meeting of the house committee of the Quincy yacht club was held at the club house on Thursday evening. Owing to the unavoidable absence of Mr. Fred B. Rice, the chairman, who is at Nantucket, Commodore Sanborn presided. The plans for the impromptu entertainment, which is to be given on Friday evening, Aug. 20, in honor of the visiting yachtsmen, as well as for the members of the club, were left with Commodore Sanborn.

A very pleasant feature at the club house on Thursday evening was the exhibition of the photographs which were taken by Commodore Sanborn and Mr. Gordon M. Keating, of the party who were on the flag-ship Bonita during the recent cruise. Commodore Sanborn also exhibited three bromide enlargements of groups on the flag-ship, which it is understood he will have framed and hung in the club house.

The skippers of the cruising class in the Quincy Yacht club are taking great interest in the forthcoming handicap scrub race which is to be sailed off the club house on Saturday afternoon, August 7, at 3 o'clock. This will be the second race of the series. Two prizes have been put up. It is understood that Commodore Sanborn, who, with Capt. "Will" Shaw is pushing the race, is the donor.

Yachts will be given ten minutes to cross the line, time being taken as each yacht crosses. Working sails only will be allowed.

This race is attracting almost as much attention and infinitely more discussion than the club's great series of open races. To go into the smoking or locker room at the club house and hear the skippers discuss the merits of the different boats one would think that he was on the eve of a great cup race.

CUP FOR CLEOPATRA.

Won Both of the Races at Marblehead, Yesterday.

The postponed race at Marblehead scheduled for Wednesday was sailed Thursday morning, and in the afternoon there was another race.

In Class A the morning order was: Nettie, Irolita, Little Peter, Clara, Rex and Beatrice. In the afternoon: Privateer, Nettie and Little Peter, the others not finishing.

In Class B in the morning: Hoodlum, Snipe II, Ben-My-Chree and Sphinx. Afternoon: Hoodlum and Snipe II.

In Class C the Quincy yachts were first and second in the morning: Cleopatra, Omene, Alison, Koorali, Arab III. and Whisper. Afternoon: Cleopatra, Kaorali, Omene, Alison and Whisper.

In Class E the morning order was Fantasy, Perhaps and Vitesse. In afternoon: Fantasy, Perhaps, Vitesse and Alpine.

The knockabouts raced only in the morning and crossed the line in this order: Fly, Hazard, Cockatoo, Gosling, Sally III. and Jacobin.

The Water Lily led the handicap knockabouts in the morning, but the Mayona came to the front in the afternoon.

Cups were won by the Cleopatra, Hoodlum, and Fantasy. It was a good test of the boats as there was a stiff northeaster in the morning and a ladies' day breeze in the afternoon.

W. Y. C. LADIES' DAY.

A Review by Commodore, Followed by a Sail in the Bay.

T. C. Gram, the chairman of the committee for the Ladies' Day festivities of the Wollaston Yacht club tomorrow, has issued the following regulations.

At 3 P. M, one gun, from stage float will be signal for yachts to proceed to float and receive the club's guests.

At 3.30 P. M., one gun from Commodore's yacht will be signal for yachts to get into line and be ready to pass in review of the Commodore, to leeward.

At 3.40 P. M, two guns from Commodore's yacht, will be signal for yachts to pass in review and salute Commodore.

After passing in review yachts will "lay to," and wait until the Commodore takes his position in lead of fleet; then proceed once around course No. 1.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of George E. Morris, for the larceny of a bicycle from Clara V. Holbrook at South Weymouth, came up and he was held in $200 for the grand jury.

☞ Eddy Refrigerators represent the finest construction in existence. That's little perhaps, but they save the ice. That's something perhaps. Rock Bottom Prices. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

It has been a busy year for the lawn mower.

Officers Ferguson and Bradley commence their ten days' vacation today.

The Misses Helen and Lettie May Burke are visiting friends in Attleboro.

Miss Nettie Gram of Wollaston Park is visiting at Plymouth for two weeks.

The store of E. H. Doble & Co. is being equipped with the patent oil lamps.

Quincy is largely represented every day at the National league games in Boston.

Miss Annie Kelby of Neponset was the guest of Miss Annie Leary on Thursday.

Miss Ella Horton of Atlantic has returned from her extended visit in Maine.

Miss Ethel Swan of South Peabody is the guest of Miss Margaret Foye of South street.

Swingle & Falconer are now employing something like seventy men at their granite works.

Miss Ida and Miss Maude Cameron have returned from a week's visit at North Scituate.

Officer Nicol is doing day duty in City Square during the vacation of Officer Ferguson.

Henry Coram, the LEDGER agent at West Quincy, has joined the ranks of the wheelmen.

The band concert at South Braintree on Thursday evening attracted quite a number from Quincy.

Brown's brigade band went through the city in an electric car early Thursday evening giving a concert.

Auctioneer Crane is selling the household furniture at No. 6, Old Colony terrace, Wollaston, this afternoon.

"The Ghost of Anne Hutchinson" will suggest a solution for the "fence question" at Wollaston in Saturday's LEDGER.

The dog officers are getting in their work, and parties who have not had their pets licensed are hastening to do so.

William Glennon is out with another invention which he claims beats the world. It is a self winding and chalking line.

John H. Dinegan offers at auction next Thursday, horses, carriages, harnesses, etc., which have been taken on foreclosure.

The trip to Nantasket by electric street cars is becoming very popular and nearly every evening trolley parties take the trip.

Mr. Wm. A. McCabe of 16 Penn street is visiting his cousin, Mrs. Anne Murphy, of Campello, a former resident of Quincy.

Although it rained hard Thursday morning the mud quickly dried and the streets are in a prime condition today for bicycling.

Rev. Fr. Johnstone takes all those who partook in the concert at Music hall last week on an outing to Nantasket next Wednesday.

Mrs. George M. Hobbs and son Norman, and Mrs. William A. McCormick are enjoying a two weeks' outing among relatives at Manchester, N. H.

The design of Swithin Bros. of this city for the granite gateway to Melrose cemetery at Brockton has been accepted. It will cost about $1,000.

Mr. E. F. Brown of Wollaston is nursing a very sore hand, the result of playing ball at the clambake of the W. Y. C. at Peddock's Island last Saturday.

The Misses Alice T. and Anna B. Kelly of Copeland street are in Maine where they will spend the month of August. Miss Alicia Elcock is of the party.

Mrs. George W. Davis of Eustis street, Wollaston Park, extinguished an incipient fire at her home one day this week, caused by the leaking of a kerosene stove.

The Sewer Commissioners did not hold any meeting on Thursday evening, and nothing worthy of note transpired at the meeting of the Water Commissioners.

Mr. Geo. C. Stebbins has had a piazza built on the rear of his house on Broomfield street, Wollaston Park, which adds much to the beauty of his already handsome residence.

Dr. F. H. Drew of Lowell and her daughter, Miss Hilla Lee Drew, returned home after a visit of several days at the residence of Mrs. C. W. Moore, 30 Botolph street, Atlantic.

Charles Francis Adams heads a committee of 22 who are raising funds to erect a memorial to Charles Eliot, the well known landscape gardener who largely laid out the Metropolitan park system.

Frederick Souther is one of the few Quincy men living who went to the California gold fields in 1849-50. He sailed in the ship Richmond "around the horn." It is interesting to talk with him about the voyage.

Fifteen of the employes in the stitching room at the Old Colony Boot and Shoe Company's factory were the guests of Mr. G. A. Dickey on the steam yacht Winona yesterday afternoon. The sail in the harbor was enjoyed by all.

It takes only 35 minutes from Braintree to Nantasket by electrics, and the Braintree & Weymouth road are after a share of the Quincy travel. Their cars run to the depot at East Weymouth, making close connection with the third rail electrics, and the fare from Braintree is only ten cents.

ON THE DIAMOND.

National League.

At Boston—

The tremendous batting of the Baltimores and the bunching of their hits won the game yesterday, and the visitors made more runs off Nichols than any other club has done this year. The Bostons had the unusual experience of having 18 men left on bases, and were twice retired with the bases full. Doyle and Kelley led in the batting. Baltimore practically had the game won in the first inning, and outplayed Boston at every point.

Cramp Calls on Roosevelt.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Charles Cramp of the shipbuilding firm of Cramp & Sons was at the navy department yesterday in conference with Acting Secretary Roosevelt and Captain O'Neil, chief of the ordnance bureau, to learn the intention of the department in the matter of procuring armor for the battleships now building. The response of the Cramps to Secretary Long's invitation to submit proposals for supplying such armor as they need for the ships they are building has been delayed by the absence from the United States of Charles S. Cramp. He has now made answer, and as was expected, declines to undertake the task. He was not averse, however, to undertake to supply the small quantity of diagonal armor, amounting to about 80 tons for each ship, at the maximum price allowed by congress—$300 per ton—his offer to do this being based on a desire to prevent a possible stoppage of work on the ships owing to the lack of this particular armor, which must be worked into the hull structure.

Meanwhile the acting secretary is proceeding to carry out the direction of congress on the lines laid down by Secretary Long, and he has completed the personnel of the special board which is to make an investigation of the cost of establishing a government armor plant. The board will consist of Commodore Howell, commandant of the League island navy yard; Captain McCormick, captain of the Norfolk navy yard; Chief Engineer Perry, from the Monterey; Civil Engineer Menocal, from the New York navy yard; Lieutenant F. Fletcher, from the torpedo station, with Lieutenant W. I. Chambers, from the Minneapolis, as recorder.

Leopold a Good Choice.

Washington, Aug. 6.—No official notice has been received here of the reported selection of the King of the Belgians as arbitrator of the dispute between Japan and Hawaii, but generally the selection is commended. The officials say that Leopold's reputation for fairness and liberality is so well established that there could be no possible objection to the exercise by him of the powers of arbitrator, provided a choice is to be made from among European rulers. It is not believed that our own government will be called upon to advise as to the selection, and it is highly improbable that it will interfere in the matter so long as the wishes of Hawaii are met.

Cretans Hurriedly Accept Autonomy.

Canea, Aug. 6.—The belief of the Cretans that Djevad Pasha, the new military commandant, is really charged by the sultan with instructions to wreck the autonomy scheme has had at least one very important result. The deputies representing the principal provinces have sent to the foreign admirals an official declaration accepting autonomy, and expressing a desire that the Turkish troops should be withdrawn from the island. This is the first document of a unanimous character which has been submitted to the powers in response to their proposition of an autonomous regime.

What You Can Do.

You can buy pure TOILET SOAPS of reputable makers as cheap as you can get Soaps that you know nothing about. Is this not worth considering, when so many skin diseases are caused by using Soap made of soap grease full of dangerous substances.

We will sell you Colgate's Turkish Bath, Colgate's Palm Oil, Colgate's Rico or pure Olive Oil Soap for 5 cents a cake or 50 cts. a dozen. We have nicer for 10 cents a cake and as high as $1.00 per cake, but they are no purer than the 5 cent kind. They are pure enough to wash the baby.

All the Toilet Waters at low prices, and Perfumes that beat the flowers themselves.

These are simply necessities this warm weather, they are so refreshing.

Our store is the coolest place in town and we have tables for you to sit down to enjoy your Ice Cream Soda.

Miss Lora Biganess, cashier of the Boston Branch grocery, has gone to the Berkshire Hills on a two weeks' vacation.

An exchange says that a Massachusetts town which fails to maintain guide posts is liable to an annual fine of $5 for each one it neglects to erect and keep legible.

Masters Geo. H. and Myron R. Stebbins of Broomfield street, Wollaston Park, are visiting their uncle, Dr. H. R. Lowe at Woodstock Valley, Conn.

COUNTY AND VICINITY.

—Henry B. Terry, the trial justice at Hyde Park at the time of the death of Thomas Stith, who was killed by a blast in a sewer trench, finds that death was not due to the criminal negligence or act of any persons.

—The St. Joseph parish at Needham and St. Mary's at Newton Upper Falls in charge of Rev. Fr. Danehy and Rev. Fr. Reardon, have arranged for an annual picnic at Woodland grove in Medway on Saturday.

—The Randolph Manufacturing Co., which manufactures bicycle saddles, has closed its factory until the winter months.

—City Engineer Snow is now one of the Sewerage Commissioners of Brockton. He was the original advocate of the sewerage disposal system of the city.

—The Dedham Historical Society has recently been presented with several historical books, and a pair of pot hooks used in 1791.

—Miss Maud C. Tinkham of Weymouth was thrown from her bicycle on Wednesday and was quite severely bruised.

—Concerning the high tax rate in Brockton the Stoughton Record has a grain of comfort. It says: "Over in Brockton they are faced with a rate of $21 per $1000, but they have been having an unusually large amount of permanent improvements to pay for. Brockton is all right and will handle her indebtedness easily from the improved valuation that will surely come as the result of her present expenditures."

—Randolph is to lose one of its industries, the Paris Suspender Manufacturing Co., which is to move its business to Wakefield.

—The will of John P. Lovell late of Weymouth filed at Dedham on Thursday makes no public bequests. The personal estate is given to his widow and the income of certain real estate in trust.

—Congressmen Lovering has asked that a caucus be held in Rockland to decide the postmastership contest.

—Dr. Clarence P. Whittle of Weymouth, who has been confined to his home for sometime by illness, is out again.

—Miss Laura R. Pratt, for several years in charge of the Garfield primary school at Holbrook, has resigned and will take up kindergarten work. Miss Edith J. Jones of Brookville has been elected as Miss Pratt's successor.

—The Weymouth selectmen have offered a reward of $50 for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who broke into the East Weymouth lockup Sunday morning and liberated Michael McAuliffe of Quincy.

—Russell Emery, the ten year old son of Walter Robinson of Randolph, who was severely bitten by a dog on Monday, has been taken to a hospital in Boston.

—An oil stove caused a $100 fire in the barber shop of John B. Leonard at Hyde Park on Thursday.

—No civil service rules were ever devised and adopted that prevented the appointment to position of any man whom the appointing power honestly favored. Civil service rules, as enforced in this Commonwealth, are a great help to the politicians, for they aid in keeping back the rush for office of those whom the politicians wish to rebuff without injury to themselves.—Charlestown Enterprise.

GRANITE PRODUCT.

1896 the Lighest Year for Some time in Country.

In Massachusetts About Two Thirds of that of 1890.

The Granite and Stone Product by States, with Comments.

A statistical report of the stone industry of the country is issued annually by the division of mineral resources of the United States geological survey of the Department of the Interior. The figures for 1896 have just been issued and the LEDGER is indebted to William C. Day, the chief of the division, for extracts.

First appears a table giving value of the different kinds of stone produced, the product of last year being compared with the year 1895:

Kind.	1895.	1896.
Granite,	$8,894,328	$7,944,994
Marble,	2,825,719	2,859,136
Slate,	2,698,700	2,746,205
Sandstone,	4,211,314	4,023,199
Limestone,	15,308,755	13,022,637
Bluestone,	a750,000	a750,000
Total,	34,688,816	31,346,171

aEstimated.

Commenting on the value the report says:

This table shows that marble and slate are the only kinds of stone which advanced in value of amount produced. The values for the other kinds, except bluestone, which is believed to have held its own, have declined. The continuation of the financial depression is believed to be alone accountable for this condition. As is shown in the reports on slate and marble, these two varieties have advanced for special reasons, namely, on the part of slate a marked increase in export trade, and on the part of marble a much greater tendency toward its use for outside building.

Another table gives the value of the various kinds of stone produced in 1896 by States. The LEDGER will not itemize the value of sandstones, slate, marble and limestone, but gives the value of the granite produced, and combines granite with the others to obain the value of all stones produced. It will be seen that granite is quarried in 25 States, although 8 of these do not individually produce $100,000 worth, and some of these much less. Massachusetts leads in granite, Ohio in sandstone, Pennsylvania in slate, Vermont in marble, and Pennsylvania in limestone. This gives Pennsylvania the lead in the value of stone product. The table by States.

The value of granite paving blocks made in 1896 in the country was $1,231,736, against $1,773,328 in 1895. The product of Massachusetts was reduced from $496,544 to $324,784. Maine and Massachusetts produced over half the pavers used, which was not the case in 1895.

The value of the total granite output in the United States in 1896 falls below that of 1895 by $949,334. This is not so great a difference as that between the figures of 1895 and 1894, but it is nevertheless a serious falling off, due, as heretofore, only to the general depression. It would be a very serious mistake to ascribe the decline in granite output to anything else than hard times, for never before was it put to a larger number of uses than at present, and its popularity for monumental and cemetery work is steadily increasing. It is being used more and more in the form of polished pillars and slabs in our public buildings, while even houses built in blocks for renting in some of our large cities, notably Philadelphia, are to be seen with polished granite pillars supporting the roof covering front porticos. The enduring qualities of granite are sure to appeal to good judgment in building, and where expense is not too serious a consideration granite will have preference over a number of other kinds of building and ornamental stone. The expense attached to the use of granite is largely a consequence of the difficulties in cutting, polishing and ornamenting it. The price of crude granite for monumental use runs from 70 cents to $1 50 per cubic foot, while the price of crude marble for the same kind of use runs from $2 25 to $12 per foot.

While marble costs more to quarry, since it has to be cut out by channeling machines and drills, it is more easily cut, polished and ornamented, owing to its greater softness, and hence such work costs less than the same applied to the comparatively very hard granite.

Improvements in machinery for handling granite and also for cutting, polishing and ornamenting tend to reduce the cost of manufacture to some extent, although prices for finished granite monumental stock are quite firmly maintained in spite of reduced cost of working it.

A future article will tell of the value of the granite product by States for seven years, the uses to which granite is put, and comments on the use of electricity, pneumatic tools and compressed air.

CLOCK FOR WOLLASTON.

One That Has Done Duty in Boston for Fifty Years.

The remodelled Methodist church at Wollaston is to have a clock. A representative of the church purchased on Wednesday for $35 the big clock which for the best part of a half century adorned the front of the old B. & M. station in Haymarket square, Boston, and which during all those years faithfully chronicled the time to the hundreds and thousands of pedestrians who passed that neighborhood daily. It was sold by Contractor Regan, who is demolishing the old station. Mr. Regan was authorized to make the sale by the Boston Transit Commission.

HOUGHS NECK.

Miss Angie Barlow and Master Barlow of Wollaston, Mr. Eben Randall of Eastport, spent the day Tuesday as guests of Mrs. J. W. Maynard at the Eight Bells.

Mrs. J. F. Johnson, Miss Alice and Master Walter Johnson of Roxbury are also spending the month of August at the Eight Bells.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis P. Knight and daughter Gertrude have leased the Berwick cottage for the remainder of the season. Mr. Max Bernhardt of Dorchester is their guest.

The Houghs Necks lost their first game this season yesterday to the Quincys, by a score of 11 to 9.

The city water is beginning to taste like something. It hasn't that pipey taste of last year.

Mr. George H. Brown and family of Rockport, Me., have leased the Merlin cottage for the season, and Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Brown of Boston are their guests.

Another narrow escape at the Neck from drowning. Master Leo Jones of East Boston, while in bathing naked, in back of Great Hill, wandered out over his head and could not swim. He was caught just as he was going down for the second time by his small chums and aid was quickly summoned from the hill.

Mr. Geo. M. Merst of San Francisco is a guest of Mrs. Emery at the Loretto, for a few weeks.

Walter D. Packard of Brockton is to sing a solo by request at the Union chapel Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Henry Curtis has returned to her home in North Stoughton.

Miss Cora Packard of Centreville is spending a few weeks at the beach.

By request the LEDGER will hereafter publish each day the hours of high tide for a week for Quincy and vicinity. The time given indicates high water at Boston and there is but a slight difference in the Boston and Quincy tides:

Monday,	1.29 A. M.	1.50 P. M.
Tuesday,	2 11	2 33
Wednesday,	2 55	3 19
Thursday,	3.45	4 14
Friday,	4 45	5.19
Saturday,	5 55	6.33
Sunday,	7 10	7 47

Tourists Favor Electrics.

The electric street railway lines are becoming an important factor in the tourist business. It is understood that Raymond & Whitcomb have for some time been using the cars of the West End Railway company instead of coaches in showing the patrons of excursions the sights of Boston.

It is generally conceded by those who are familiar with both methods that they experience more real pleasure in looking over the city from an open street car than they do from a slow-moving carriage, that affords no protection from the sun and limits the range of vision dead ahead.

The plan is to put no more than three persons on a seat, and divide the group into two parties, assigning to each a lady who is perfectly familiar with all the prominent buildings and the various historical localities. These lecturers en tour are highly cultivated and embellish their descriptions of the many interesting points with choice and clean-cut English.

They employ no unnecessary or strident gestures likely to attract attention, neither is what they say given in a boisterous tone of voice, such as would make the tourists conspicuous. Everything is marked by refinement and good taste, and the tours in consequence thoroughly enjoyed. This manner of entertaining strangers is a radical innovation, but the success that has so far attended it means that it will be continued.

INDIAN GIRL'S ROMANCE.

Her Lover Who Left Her Sends Good News From Alaska.

When the steamer Portland arrived recently bringing the news of the rich gold discoveries in Alaska, her mails contained a letter which brought joy and renewed hope to Miss Inola Twowee, a beautiful Indian woman residing near Miami, I. T., in the Cherokee Nation.

Several years ago William Sowers was a noncommissioned officer in the regular army, stationed at Fort Gibson. Miss Twowee's father was post sutler. She fell in love with Sowers and they eloped. Soon after Sowers deserted her and fled the country. Charges of desertion from the army were preferred against him and a strong effort to locate him was made, but he could never be found. The letter in question is from Sowers and was received by Miss Twowee several days ago. In it Sowers says he has struck it rich on the Klondike and intends to return home in the spring and claim Miss Twowee as his wife.

He has been seven years in Alaska and gives a graphic description of the hardships he has encountered in his search for gold. In one place he refers to instances where the bones of prospectors lie bleaching in the sun, and he says the banks of the Yukon are strewn with the bodies of unfortunates who entered the country unprepared to face the terrible, cold weather which sets in at the beginning of September.—Exchange.

HARD ON TOBACCO MEN.

A Short Paragraph That Will Cost Them Much Money.

The Dingley law has caused a panic among importers of tobacco, who declare that one short paragraph in the new law means a loss to them of thousands of dollars every year. The paragraph is a part of section 33 of the act which compels importers to pay duty on tobacco at the weight it goes into the bonded warehouse. This takes from tobacco men a privilege that has for many years been accorded to them by the tariff laws. Under the Wilson act and previous laws importers have had their tobacco reweighed at the time of its withdrawal from bonded warehouses, and on this weight duties were collected.

The weight of tobacco is greatly reduced during the bonded period by evaporation.

When tobacco arrives from a long ocean voyage, it is frequently insufficiently cured and has absorbed a large percentage of moisture. This moisture evaporates in the warehouse. Experts estimate that the importer saves $25 to $40 a bale on Sumatra and sometimes as high as $70 a bale on Havana leaf by paying on the dried out tobacco. Importers will now gain nothing by delay, but must pay duties at $1.85 per pound of the weight on their tobacco at the time of its arrival. They estimate that the loss to importers in New York alone will be $500,000 a year.

A Highly Gifted Indian Girl.

Miss Etta Scott of Kokomo, Ind., a teacher in the kindergarten department of the Indian schools at Fort Sill, O. T., returned home the other day, bringing with her a 5-year-old Indian girl who is a prodigy. The dusky damsel, Nahma Coffee by name, speaks English fluently, sings like a lark and executes with ease the most intricate dances. Nahma is the leader of her class and is intrusted with the direction of the drills. She was one of twins, and, according to the barbarous superstition of the Indians, was condemned to die, it being considered an ill omen to raise twins. Nahma, the little papoose, was found in the bushes in a famished condition, and Professor Cox of the Indian school took her in charge, unknown to the parents, and has adopted her as his own child. Little Nahma is remarkably bright and interesting. She holds levees every day and has a constant stream of callers.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Heirs to Vast Mining Lands.

Mrs. Mary Glor of Lagrange county, Ind., and Sarah Myers and John Keefer of Rome City have just been notified that they are heirs to a vast estate situated near Danville, Montour county, Pa.

The estate consists of lands right in the midst of the coal regions and has a valuable mine. There are only five heirs, the other two living near Lawton, Mich.

The estate was left by Keefer's father's grandfather to his father and his heirs. The heirs could give no idea of the amount of the estate further than to say that the Pennsylvania Railway company had offered $500,000 for 500 acres of the land.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Lawyer Reduces His Own Fee.

Judge Hudspeth in the Hudson county (N. J.) orphans' court recently, in announcing his decision in a will case in which only a small estate was involved, said he would allow James Gordon, one of the lawyers in the case, $200 for his services. Counselor Gordon surprised the court by saying the amount was too much.

"I think $100 would be about the correct sum," he added.

"Well," said Judge Hudspeth, "if you demur the court will sustain the demurrer."

The amount was then fixed at $100.

A Farmer's Helper Becomes Suddenly Rich

Walter L. Cochran, who has been doing chores for the farmers near Trenton, has come into a fortune. He had been working for Peter Hughes for several weeks, when he received a letter announcing the death of his father, who had left an estate worth $250,000, of which he was entitled to a part. He received his share in the shape of an annuity and a lump sum of $20,000 to establish some business.

He received his money the other day. He gave to his former employer a gold watch and has now gone to see some of the world.

DIABETES
is a disease which if allowed to fasten its hold upon the victim will surely land him in a premature grave. It is caused by inactive kidneys. They fail to filter from the blood the impurities and poisons which it takes up from the food, and which should be thrown out of the system by way of the urine.

Weak or inactive kidneys and all symptoms of Diabetes can be

CURED

With great pleasure I recommend Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills. I have been for years a great sufferer from acute kidney troubles, and have tried every known medicine without any beneficial results. A physician induced me to try your Sparagus Kidney Pills. After using the first box I am permanently cured. It is impossible for me to say too much in their praise. Jas. H. LYNCH, 26 Irving St., Boston, Mass.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

Lowell's Home Saved.

Boston, Aug. 6.—A dispatch from New York states that John Jacob Astor has just contributed $18,000 towards a fund for the purchase of Elmwood, the estate of the late James Russell Lowell at Cambridge. It is intended to convert this magnificent estate into a memorial public park. The price asked by the Burnetts, the heirs to the property, for the estate, exclusive of the house and the surrounding grounds, is $35,000. About $18,000 of this amount had already been raised, $12,000 of which was guaranteed by the Metropolitan Park commissioners, and the remainder raised through the efforts of Mrs. Richardson, the owner of a neighboring estate. There was still some $15,000 of the necessary amount lacking, and so, therefore, the gift of John Jacob Astor is very timely and will be hailed with much enthusiasm by the people of Cambridge, who have been waiting for several months to see the deal go through.

Dover Races.

Dover, N. H., Aug. 6.—The third day of the harness meeting at the Granite State park was as great a success as the preceding days. The 2:15 trot, postponed, was won handily by Louis Victor. The 2:15 class, pace, was the most exciting witnessed here. Fieldmont won the first heat. In the second Zanita stepped to the front and captured the next three heats. In the 2:13 pace, Dr. Wood and Cracksman were favorites in the pool, both were distanced in the first heat, the talent getting a great setback. The race was easily won by Monopole in straight heats. George G won the first heat of the 2:10 pace a neck ahead of Woodshed. Refina won the next two easily. The race was postponed until today on account of darkness.

Not a Highwayman.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 6.—William J. Sheehan, who was arrested at the gas wharf yesterday on suspicion that he might be the highwayman who shot Owen J. Barker late Saturday night on Alley street, as he closely answered the description of the would-be robber, is charged with vagrancy. The police have investigated his movements immediately preceding the assault and have reached the conclusion that he was in no way concerned in it.

Haverhill's New Academy.

Haverhill, N. H., Aug. 6.—The elegant new school building for the Haverhill academy was dedicated yesterday. The building was built through the bequest of Samuel F. Southard, who died four years ago, leaving about $25,000 to the academy, and part of this was utilized with school money of the town and the academy, and the public schools of the village will hereafter be run in conjunction with each other.

Two Men Injured by Bull.

Milford, Mass., Aug. 6.—An enraged bull, owned by Albert W. Gaskill of Mendon, attacked Mr. Gaskill and Merrick Thayer of South Milford in Mr. Gaskill's barnyard yesterday afternoon, inflicting serious, perhaps fatal, injuries upon both men. Thayer is about 65 years old and Mr. Gaskill 75.

South Pole Expedition to Start.

London, Aug. 6.—A special dispatch from Antwerp yesterday says that the necessary sum of money to defray the expenses of the south pole expedition having been assured by the vote of a further credit of 50,000 francs, the steamer Belgica, with the south pole expedition on board, will leave Antwerp on Aug. 15.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

ELEVATOR EXPLODED.

Six Killed and Score Injured During a Fire at Chicago.

Four Firemen Buried Under Falling Walls.

Buildings Were Shattered by Concussion For Several Blocks.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—Five men were instantly killed and 30 more or less seriously injured by an explosion in the Northwestern grain elevator last night. The elevator caught fire from some unknown cause, and while the firemen were at work a terrific explosion demolished the building, burying the men under the debris.

Three of the dead are firemen—the body of another fireman is thought to be buried in the ruins of the elevator. From the terrible force with which the explosion swept the spot on which they were standing it is certain they must have been instantly killed. Either the bursting of a boiler or the explosion of mill dust caused the havoc. The three firemen who were killed by the falling walls of the elevator were: Jacob J. Schnur, John J. Coogan and Jacob S. Stramer, and a man blown into river by explosion. Body not recovered. The body of Fireman Jacob Struckman was found under the ruins.

The injured are: Charles H. Conway, fireman, burned about face and hands and body crushed, may die; Chief Denis Swenie, right foot crushed, left arm wrenched and painfully burned; Fire Marshal Campion, burned about face; Lieutenant Smith, both legs crushed; Lieutenant W. H. Bartlett, leg crushed; Assistant Engineer Benjamin Blanchard, badly bruised; John F. Smith, injured by debris; William McGuire, 15 years old, both feet crushed; Thomas Engle, pipeman, cut about face and hands and internally injured; Ignatius Bond, cut by falling glass; Captain John J. Evans, struck by debris and rendered unconscious, serious; William Hanley, pipeman, cut in head; William Thomson, hit by falling glass; C. F. Walter, knocked down by explosion and injured about the spine; John Hentz, struck by falling beam and skull fractured; James McGuire, leg fractured; Joseph Lacey, badly burned about face, serious; Frank C. Halley, face burned beyond recognition, may lose sight of both eyes; Captain Martin Lacey, burned about the face and body, wounds on face and forehead; Lieutenant John J. Miller, compound fracture of leg, badly burned, condition critical; Captain William Rooney, badly burned about face, may lose sight of both eyes, condition serious; John Evans, fracture of right arm, badly burned about the face, condition critical; Harry Kugleman, contusions of side and badly burned about face and body, condition serious; William Schubert, bruised and burned; John Hassey, left arm crushed at the shoulder; Lieutenant Frank Donagan, hurt by falling bricks, injured internally, condition serious; Captain Falvey, legs, arms and shoulders badly burned; Lieutenant Frank Nigg, badly burned about face and arms.

Besides these dozens of firemen and passers-by were more or less cut and bruised by glass and flying debris.

The origin of the blaze is believed to have been in the vicinity of the boiler house. Dust as dry and inflammable as gunpowder, that had been piling up for years, formed a ready means for the fire. It spread with great rapidity, and then came a terrific explosion, completing the work of scattering the fire throughout the entire structure.

Just as the firemen were getting into position for advantageous work, and nearly all the members of engine company No. 3 were mounting ladders and bringing lines of hose to play on the interior from the upper windows, there came a roar that could be heard for half a mile; the roof was raised high in the air and the walls came down with a crash.

The force of the explosion was so great that the eastern wall was hurled into the river, the west wall was tumbled down upon the heads of the unfortunate men below, and the roof was torn into fragments and distributed for blocks around. Every window in the vicinity of the elevator was shattered by the concussion; dozens of persons were struck by flying debris, and several small fires resulted from falling timbers that were still in flames. At Jefferson street and Carroll avenue, many blocks distant, great burning masses of wreckage fell upon four wagons loaded with hay and set them on fire.

The elevator was of composite construction, the lower portion being of brick and the upper part of frame covered with corrugated iron. The explosion caused a perfect bombardment of flying bricks and sheets of iron at almost white heat, leaving little of the building save a framework of wood and iron surrounding a great pile of blazing wheat.

The explosion stunned, for a moment, the police and the firemen, but they quickly rallied to help those who had been hurt. Dozens of men lay injured in the withering heat, some not seriously harmed, and others in the throes of death. It was dangerous work to get them out, but it was gallantly and quickly done, and all of the slightly injured were removed. The dead were for the time left where they lay. No man could reach their bodies and live.

The fire was most difficult to control, as the elevator was surrounded by a number of small buildings, which were continually catching fire. The total loss is estimated at $300,000, which is fully covered by insurance.

Detective Put on Priest's Garb.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Aug. 6.—Peter Bons, the tramp charged with the murder of Pearl Morrison at Crystal Falls, has made a complete confession, acknowledging that he assaulted the girl and then strangled her to death. The confession was secured by a detective who visited Bons, clad in a priest's garb, and was heard by others. The excitement over the confession may result in Bons' lynching.

POLICY HOLDERS MEET.

Plans Discussed to Save Massachusetts Benefit Life Association.

Boston, Aug. 6.—There was a conference of the policyholders of the Massachusetts Benefit Life association last night at the Parker House, at which plans were discussed by which the association may be saved to its members. The meeting resulted in no definite action and adjourned till Saturday, when some plan of action is expected to be put into force. The meeting was called by F. A. Gowan of Wakefield, and among those who attended were Colonel Kingsbury, John Haskell Butler and Councillor Ryder. Mr. Gowan explained the purpose of the meeting, and said that he believed few of the thousands of members realized how dangerously near its end the association is unless something is quickly done.

He did not believe the members should allow the directors to vote the company out of existence without a protest, or some action to avert the disaster. He thought there were many members who would do a great deal to keep it alive, and thought if a statement of the exact condition was sent to them an effort would be made to keep it together.

The other members present were in full accord with Mr. Gowan, and a plan was talked about in a way. Several well-known men who were expected to be present were away at summer homes, and an adjournment was taken on that account.

FIGURING ON REINSURANCE.

New York Policy Holders Take Further Steps Toward Withdrawing.

New York, Aug. 6.—The committee recently appointed by the dissatisfied policyholders in the Massachusetts Benefit Life association have engaged the firm of Hoadley, Lauterbach & Johnson to look after their legal interests. Lawyer A. Edward Woodruff, who formerly represented these policyholders, resigned at Wednesday's meeting. Some of the persons present on that occasion intimated that Mr. Woodruff was not giving the matter the attention it deserved.

Rev. Thomas Heywood, chairman of the committee, said yesterday that Lawyer Godfrey Morse of Boston had been retained to take care of the interests of the policyholders living in Boston and the New England states, and that all are expected to co-operate in the purpose of the committee to withdraw from the company. Mr. Heywood said further that an old and reputable life insurance company stands ready to reinsure on favorable terms all the policyholders in the Massachusetts company regardless of age, and that the committee has about $1,500,000 of insurance which it will turn over to the company, the name of which he thought it best to withhold for the present. In no event, said Mr. Heywood, would an amicable settlement be arrived at with the Massachusetts company.

At an informal meeting of the Woodruff faction, held yesterday afternoon, a call was issued asking all members of the Massachusetts company desirous of reinsuring "in a body" to register their names. It is signed by William M Douth and Frederick Kraomer of this city and George F. Brown of Plainfield N. J.

Can't Do Business In Kentucky.

Louisville, Aug. 6.—State Insurance Commissioner Comingore has revoked the license of the Massachusetts Benefit Life association to operate in Kentucky, stating that his reason for so doing was on account of the muddled condition of the company's affairs.

The Unwritten Law.

Middlesboro, Ky., Aug. 6.—Mrs. Lee Combs of Red Bird Creek, Clay county, left her home early Wednesday, saying she would be gone all day. She changed her mind and returned in a couple of hours. Upon entering her home she caught Miss Sallie Hooker, a guest, with her arms around her husband's neck. Mrs. Coombs rushed to her bedroom, seized her husband's revolver and entering the room where the couple were began firing at the girl. Miss Hooker fled through an open window, but the infuriated wife followed, and the fourth shot pierced the girl's heart. Coombs fled, or he would have been killed also. After emptying her pistol Mrs. Coombs fainted, and is now at death's door. Her husband has not returned. Public opinion commends the course of Mrs. Coombs. People declare that "the unwritten law applies to women as well as men."

The Miners' Strike.

Pittsburg, Aug. 6.—The situation in and about the De Armitt mines has not changed materially. The Plum Creek mines are more closely guarded by the strikers, and they have succeeded in still further reducing the number of diggers and slowly but surely decreasing the output. Two hundred and fifty-five men were at work in the Plum Creek mine yesterday. Ten diggers, two day men and three drivers, who attended a meeting, agreed to join the strike. Everything is quiet.

Secretary Long at Home.

Hingham, Mass., Aug. 6.—Hon. John D. Long, secretary of the navy, with Mrs. Long and Miss Helen Long, reached their home here last evening, coming by train from Newport. Mr. Long will spend his vacation during August at home and in Buckfield, Me., his birthplace. The Dolphin will come to Boston in a few days.

Another Drop In Silver.

New York, Aug. 6.—Silver took a further plunge downward yesterday, bar silver being quoted at 55 1-2 cents, against 57 cents Wednesday, and in London at 25 3-4 pence, a decline of a half penny. Mexican dollars went down to 42 1-4. Silver certificates for 1000 ounces sold on the stock exchange at 57.

Chief of Mail Service.

Washington, Aug. 6.—John W. Holliday of Ohio has been appointed chief clerk of the railway mail service. He has been employed in the service for some years and succeeds Alexander Grant of Michigan who has been appointed assistant general superintendent.

HANDED GOLD AROUND.

He Was Fresh From the Klondike and Free With His Dust.

Jimmy the Diver, whose true name is James McMahan, startled a street car load of eastern Christian Endeavorers the other day at Tacoma by insisting upon presenting each with a fat nugget of Klondike gold. Jimmie returned from the new diggings lately with $65,000 worth of dust and nuggets, and he has since been performing "Arabian Nights" feats among his old time friends in saloons and sailor boarding houses. On the occasion referred to he boarded a city park car while slightly under the influence of drink, and at once began telling of the wonders of the new El Dorado placers. There were 20 visiting Christian Endeavorers on the car, and some of the young ladies giggled at Jimmie the Diver. Instantly he jumped to his feet and looked with affected anger up and down the rows of fair faces. Several of the ladies were frightened, but most of them thought it only a joke and continued to laugh at the miner.

"Did any of you ever see a nugget?" Jimmie demanded. Some one answered that there were no nuggets where they came from.

"Well, then, have one," retorted the Diver, and he staggered through the car pressing upon each tourist a nugget valued at from $3 to $10. On another occasion Jimmie presented a scrubwoman with $100.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE ALLIGATOR GOT HIM.

Fate of a Colored Boy In Florida While In Swimming.

Paul Rogers, James Anderson and Willie Samuels, colored boys of 20, left Black point, five miles south of Jacksonville, Fla., at sunrise to bring a boat load of melons down. As they had to await the turning of the tide they went in bathing.

Samuels swam out into the river, and soon the other boys saw him swimming back frantically for life and yelling for help. Behind him, with upraised, open jaws, was a huge alligator, drawing nearer and nearer. In a second later the saurian caught him around the waist and held him in its open jaws despite his frantic struggles.

Samuels' screams filled the air and the alligator sank, leaving the waters dyed with blood for yards around. They then rowed out, but it was too late, as they saw no trace of Samuels or his body, while the water was blood colored for yards. The boys were half scared to death and said they were afraid to go back home and tell his old mother of his fearful fate.

They say that they recognized the alligator as one living at the dock at Black point, and though he had killed dogs before they had never known him to attack a human being. A party will go in search of him, as, having once tasted blood, it will be dangerous for any bathers in that section until he is killed.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Indiana to Go to Halifax.

Secretary Long has decided to send the big battleship Indiana to Halifax to be docked and cleaned. It is felt to be necessary to do this in order to prevent injury to the hull of the ship from corrosion. The department would have much preferred to send the Indiana to Port Royal, S. C., for this purpose, but the opinion of the best navigators in the navy department was that it would be decidedly risky in the present unsatisfactory condition of the approaches to the dock there. While the naval officers naturally deplore the necessity for thus sending our finest ship to a foreign dock, they say the practice is not new or uncommon.

Constructor Bowles of the New York navy yard has just returned to New York after a consultation with the officials here as to the docking of the Indiana. It is the intention of Secretary Long to send him to Halifax in advance of the sailing of the Indiana to make all of the arrangements necessary for the docking of the ship. She will not be fitted with bilge keels at Halifax. This work must wait until the repairs are complete at the New York dock, a work which it is estimated will consume a year.—Washington Post.

Sent to Jail For Eavesdropping.

The old and almost forgotten statute that makes eavesdropping a misdemeanor has been hunted up by the justice at Port Byron, N. Y., and applied in that village.

John Hughes, a colored boy, had been making himself obnoxious by hanging around and overhearing neighborhood gossip, which he would relate to the persons talked about, giving the names of the gossipers. This created numerous quarrels and a great deal of trouble.

Many complaints were made against the boy, but Justice Converse could find nothing to act upon till he put on his spectacles, and, going through his one dusty old lawbook, found the statute spoken of. Hughes was immediately hauled before the bar of justice and sent to the Cayuga county jail for ten days, that being the fullest extent of punishment permissible.—Exchange.

Warrant on the Strength of a Dream.

A telegram from Frederick, Md., says: John M. Carroll, a well known colored man of Frederick, went before Justice Biser the other morning and asked that a search warrant be issued against Matilda Locks, colored, who he said he believed had stolen a gold watch chain that belonged to his dead daughter.

Carroll told the justice he had dreamed that Matilda Locks, who was a friend of the family, had stolen the chain. The dream troubled him so that he arose at 4 a. m. and hurried off to the justice's office. As he made an affidavit to his dream the search warrant was issued, and after a thorough search of the house the chain was found secreted about the clothing of Matilda Locks. She was held for the August term of the Frederick county circuit court.—Washington Post.

Only a day at a time. There may never be a tomorrow.
Only a day at a time, and that we can live. We know
The trouble we cannot bear is only the trouble we borrow,
And the trials that never come are the ones that fret us so.
Only a step at a time. It may be the angels bend o'er us,
To bear us above the stones that wound our feet by the way.
The step that is hardest of all is not the one just before us,
And the path we dread the most may be smoothed another day.

Miss Whitehead Entertains Party of Little Folks at Rock Island.

Arrivals and Personals of Interest to Cottagers.

Miss Hattie Warren Whitehead of Sawyer avenue, Dorchester, entertained a few of her little friends at her pleasant home at Rock Island yesterday. It was a charming day for a piazza party and from two until five o'clock the spacious veranda was as some beautiful garden. Numerous games were played and the little folks thought every new one was the best and were anxious to play it again, but time was short and clever. Mrs. Whitehead held the winning game ice cream and cake. This was truly the best and how the little ones enjoyed it can best be told by Mrs. Charles Whitehead and Mrs. William P. Bullard, who were kept pretty busy by the little feasters.

Among those present were:—Master Marshall and Miss Pauline Rice, Master Charles and Miss Lillian Stuart, Masters Herbert and Alva Boynton, Master Sedrick Lynes, Master Dickie Price, Master Watler Bullard, Miss Beatrice Sprague, Miss Marion Humphrey, Miss Nellie Lincoln and Miss Grace French.

Friday was an elegant day at the Neck. The water was something grand, it being very warm. A great many wheelmen visit here and make use of the free wheel checking.

Rev. Edward W. Virgin of Dedham formerly of West Quincy is to preach tomorrow afternoon at Union Chapel, Houghs Neck.

Mrs. Henry M. Higgins of Hyde Park is spending four weeks at our cool beach.

MY SUNDAY AT HOME.

BY RUDYARD KIPLING.

Then I observed what I have frequently observed before, that a man who is reasonably afraid of an altercation with an alien has a most poignant dread of the operations of foreign law. The doctor's voice was flutelike in its exquisite politeness as he answered:

"But I've given you a very great deal of money, fif—£3, I think."

"An what's £3 for poisonin the likes of me? They told me at Guy's I'd fetch 20—cold—on the slates. Ouh, it's comin again."

A second time he was cut down by the foot, as it were, and the straining bench rocked to and fro as I averted my eyes.

It was the very point of perfection in the heart of an English May day. The unseen tides of the air had turned, and all nature was setting its face with the shadows of the horse chestnuts toward the peace of the coming night. But there were hours yet, I knew—long, long hours of the eternal English twilight—to the ending of the day. I was well content to be alive—to abandon myself to the drift of time and fate; to absorb great peace through my skin, and to love my country with the devotion that 3,000 miles of intervening sea bring to fullest flower. And what a garden of Eden it was, this fatted, clipped and washed land. A man could camp in any open field with more sense of home and security than the stateliest buildings of foreign cities could afford. And the joy was that it was all mine inalienably—groomed hedgerow, spotless road, decent gray stone cottage, serried spinney, tasseled copse, apple bellied hawthorn and well grown tree. A light puff of wind—it scattered flakes of may over the gleaming rails—gave me a faint whiff as it might have been of fresh cocoanut, and I knew that the golden gorse was in bloom somewhere out of sight. Linnæus had thanked God on his bended knees when he first saw a field of it, and, by the way, the navvy was on his knees too. But he was by no means praying. He was purely disgustful.

The doctor was compelled to bend over him, his face toward the back of the seat, and from what I had seen I supposed the navvy was now dead. If that were the case, it would be time for me to go, but I knew that so long as a man trusts himself to the current of circumstance, reaching out for and rejecting nothing that comes his way, no harm can overtake him. It is the contriver, the schemer, who is caught by the law, and never the philosopher. I knew that when the play was played destiny herself would move on from the corpse, and I felt very sorry for the doctor.

In the far distance, presumably upon the road that led to Framlynghame Admiral, there appeared a vehicle and a horse, the one ancient fly that almost every village can produce at need. The thing was advancing, unpaid by me, toward the station; would have to pass along the deep cut lane below the railway bridge and come out on the doctor's side. I was in the center of things, so all sides were alike to me. Here, then, was my machine from the machine. When it arrived, something would happen or something else. For the rest I owned my deeply interested soul.

The doctor, by the seat, turned so far as his cramped position allowed, his head over his left shoulder, and laid his right hand upon his lips. I threw back my hat and elevated my eyebrows in the form of a question. The doctor shut his eyes and nodded his head slowly twice or thrice, beckoning me to come. I descended cautiously, and it was as the signs had told. The navvy was asleep, empty to the lowest notch, yet his hand clutched still the doctor's collar, and at the lightest movement (the doctor was really very cramped) tightened mechanically as the hand of a sick woman tightens on that of the watcher. He had dropped, squatting almost upon his heels, and falling lower had dragged the doctor over to the left.

The doctor thrust his right hand, which was free, into his pocket, drew forth some keys and shook his head. The navvy gurgled in his sleep. Silently I dived into my pocket, took out one sovereign and held it up between finger and thumb. Again the doctor shook his head. Money was not what was lacking to his peace. His bag had fallen from the seat to the ground. He looked toward it and opened his mouth, O shape. The catch was not a difficult one, and when I had mastered it the doctor's right forefinger was sawing the air. With an immense caution I extracted from the bag such a knife as they use for cutting collops off legs. The doctor frowned and with his first and second fingers imitated the action of scissors.

Again I searched and found a most diabolical pair of cock nosed shears, capable of vandyking the interior of elephants. The doctor then slowly lowered his left shoulder till the navvy's right wrist was supported by the bench, pausing a moment as the spent volcano rumbled anew. Lower and lower the doctor sank, kneeling now by the navvy's side, till his head was on a level with and just in front of the great hairy fist, and—there was no tension on the coat collar. Then light dawned on me.

Beginning a little to the right of the spinal column, I cut a huge demilune out of his new spring overcoat, bringing it round as far under his left side (which was the right side of the navvy) as I dared. Passing thence swiftly to the back of the seat and reaching between the spines, I sawed through the silk faced front on the left hand side of the coat till the two cuts joined.

Cautiously as the box turtle of his native heath the doctor drew away sideways and to the right with the air of a frustrated burglar coming out from under a bed and stood up free—one black diagonal shoulder projecting through the gray of his ruined overcoat. I returned the scissors to the bag, snapped the catch and held all out to him as the wheels of the fly rung hollow under the railway arch.

I came at a foot pace past the wicket gate of the station, and the doctor stopped it with a whisper. It was going some five miles across country to bring home from church some one—I could not catch the name—because his own carriage horses were lame. Its destination happened to be the one place in all the world that the doctor was most burningly anxious to visit, and he promised the driver untold gold to drive to some ancient flame of his—Helen Blazes, I think she was called.

"Aren't you coming, too?" he said, bundling his overcoat into his bag.

Now the fly had been so obviously sent to the doctor and to no one else that I had no concern with it. Our roads, I saw, divided, and there was, further, a need upon me to laugh.

"I shall stay here," I said. "It's a very pretty country."

"My God!" he murmured as softly as he shut the door. And I felt that it was a prayer.

Then he went out of my life, and I shaped my course for the railway bridge. It was necessary to pass by the bench once more, but the wicket was between us. The departure of the fly had waked the navvy. He crawled on to the seat and with malignant eyes watched the driver flog down the road.

"The man inside of that," he called "'as poisoned me. "'E's a body snatcher. 'E's comin back again when I'm cold. 'Ere's my evidence."

He waved his share of the overcoat, and I went my way because I was hungry. Framlynghame Admiral village is a good two miles from the station, and I waked the holy calm of the evening every step of that way with shouts and yells, casting myself down in the flank of the good green hedge when I was too weak to stand. There was an inn—a blessed inn with a thatched roof and peonies in the garden—and I ordered myself an upper chamber in which the Foresters held their courts, for the laughter was not all out of me. A bewildered woman brought me ham and eggs, and I leaned out of the mullioned window and laughed between mouthfuls. I sat long above the beer and the perfect smoke that followed till the light changed in the quiet street and I began to think of the 7:45 down and all that world of Arabian Nights I had quitted.

Descending, I passed a giant in moleskins who filled the low ceiled taproom. Many empty plates stood before him, and beyond them a fringe of the Framlynghame Admiralty, to whom he was unfolding a wondrous tale of anarchy, of body snatching, of bribery and the valley of the shadow from the which he was but newly risen. And as he talked he ate, and as he ate he drank, for there was much room in him, and anon he paid royally, speaking of justice and the law, before whom all Englishmen are equal and all foreigners and anarchists vermin and slime.

On my way to the station he passed me with great strides, his head high among the low flying bats, his feet firm on the packed road metal, his fists clinched and his breath coming sharply. There was a beautiful smell in the air—the smell of white dust, bruised nettles and smoke, that brings tears to the throat of a man who sees his country but seldom—a smell like the echoes of the lost talk of lovers; the infinitely suggestive odor of an immemorial civilization. It was a perfect walk, and lingering on every step I came to the station just as the one porter lighted the last of a truckload of lamps and set them back in the lamproom while he dealt tickets to four or five of the population who, not contented with their own peace, thought fit to travel. It was no ticket that the navvy seemed to need. He was sitting on the bench, wrathfully grinding a tumbler into fragments with his heel. I abode in obscurity at the end of the platform, interested as ever, thank heaven, in my surroundings. There was a jar of wheels on the road. The navvy rose as they approached, strode through the wicket and laid a hand upon a horse's bridle that brought the beast up on his hireling hind legs. It was the providential fly coming back, and for a moment I wondered whether the doctor had been mad enough to revisit his practice.

"Get away! You're drunk," said the driver.

"I'm not," said the navvy. "I've been waitin 'ere hours an hours. Come out, you beggar inside there."

"Go on, driver," said a voice I did not know—a crisp, clear, English voice.

"All right," said the navvy. "You wouldn't 'ear me when I was polite. Now, will you come?"

There was a chasm in the side of the fly, for he had wrenched the door bodily off its hinges and was feeling within purposefully. A well booted leg rewarded him, and there came out, not with delight, hopping on one foot, a round and gray haired Englishman, from whose armpits dropped hymnbooks, but from his mouth an altogether different service of song.

"Come on, you bloomin body snatcher. You thought I was dead, did you?" roared the navvy. And the respectable gentleman came accordingly, inarticulate with rage.

"'Ere's a man murderin the squire," the driver shouted, and fell from his box upon the navvy's neck.

To do them justice, the people of Framlynghame Admiral, so many as were on the platform, rallied to the call in the best spirit of feudalism. It was the one porter who beat the navvy on the nose with a ticket punch, but it was the three third class tickets who attached themselves to his legs and freed his captive.

Looking like rockets in the gloom.

"Send for a constable! Lock him up!" said that man, adjusting his collar. And unitedly they cast him into the lamproom and turned the key, while the driver mourned over the wrecked fly.

Till that moment the navvy, whose only desire was justice, had kept his temper nobly. Then he went Berserk before our amazed eyes. The door of the lamproom, generously constructed, would not give an inch, but the window he tore from its fastenings and hurled outward. The one porter counted the damage in a loud voice, and the others, arming themselves with agricultural implements from the station garden, kept up a ceaseless winnowing before the window, themselves backed close to the wall, and bade the prisoner think of the jail. He answered little to the point, so far as they could understand, but seeing that his exit was impeded he took a lamp and hurled it through the wrecked sash. It fell on the metals and went out. With inconceivable velocity the others, 15 in all, followed, looking like rockets in the gloom, and with the last (he could have had no plan) the Berserk rage left him as the doctor's deadly brewage waked up under the stimulus of violent exercise and a very full meal to one last cataclysmal exhibition, and we heard the whistle of the 7:45 down.

They were all acutely interested in as much of the wreck as they could see, but the station smelt to heaven of oil, and the engine skittered over broken glass like a terrier in a cucumber frame. The guard had to hear of it, and the squire gave his version of the brutal assault, and heads were out all along the carriages as I found me a seat.

"What is the row?" said a young man as I entered. "Man drunk?"

"Well, the symptoms, so far as my observation has gone, more resemble those of Asiatic cholera than anything else," I answered slowly and judiciously, that every word might carry weight in the appointed scheme of things. Up till then, you will observe, I had taken no part in that war.

He was an Englishman, but he collected his belongings as swiftly as had the American ages before and leaped upon the platform crying: "Can I be of any service? I'm a doctor."

From the lamproom I heard a wearied voice wailing, "Another bloomin doctor!" And the 7:45 carried me on a step nearer to eternity by the road that is worn and seamed and channeled with the passions and weaknesses and warring interests of man who is immortal and master of his fate.

THE END.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 8. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—The comfort that comes from the Bible.—Isa. xli, 1-6. (A promise meeting.)

"Man is born to trouble," says the wise man, "as sparks fly upward." The experience and observation of all men prove the truthfulness of the wise man's words. Life has been well represented by a vast bundle of burdens from which each new comer must make selection and arrange his pack ere he joins the vast caravan marching ceaselessly across the wilderness of life.

"Into every life some rain must fall, and some days be dark and dreary." The presence of sorrow begets a need in man. That need is comfort. God has something to satisfy every need of the human heart and life, and therefore He has not failed us here, He has not left us comfortless. The Bible is full of precious promises of comfort.

From Isaiah's song of thanksgiving we may learn some of the characteristics of the comfort that comes from the Bible.

1. The comfort of the Bible is divine. Isaiah bursts forth in this psalm of praise in praise to God for His blessing upon His people, the church. He thanks not man, but God, thus acknowledging that the blessings have come from Him; that they are divine. "God is my salvation. I will trust and not be afraid, for the Lord Jehovah is my strength and my song." "It is God," says the psalmist, "who is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." It was God in Jesus Christ who said to all who are weary and heavy laden, "Come unto Me, and I will give you rest," and again, "I will not leave you comfortless." The great beauty of the comfort of the Bible lies in the fact that it is divine.

2. The comfort of the Bible is comprehensive. Isaiah in this psalm is speaking of blessings which have come to God's people as a nation and a church. The Bible has comfort for all—national comfort, ecclesiastical comfort, comfort for the home and personal comfort. It embraces in its fold, also, all the various sorrows of life—sorrows that arise from disappointment in life, from tribulation, from loss of loved ones, from sin. It is indeed comprehensive, extending to all the relations of life and to all the phases of sorrow in life. There is no sorrow or trouble for which the word of God has no balm.

3. The comfort of the Bible is effective. It actually comforts. It was so in Isaiah's case. It is so in the case of all who trust God. There are human remedies for trouble, but they usually only make the trouble worse. But God's remedies never fail.

4. The comfort of the Bible deserves gratitude and thanksgiving from the recipients of it. Isaiah thanked God in this psalm. When God blesses us, we should show our gratitude by thanking Him in thoughts, in words and in deeds. Our lives should be a continual psalm of thanksgiving unto God for His goodness.

Bible Readings.—Ps. xxiii, 1-4; xlvii, 1-3; Isa. xl, 1-5; lxi, 1-3; Math. v, 4; ix, 18-22; xi, 28; Mark x, 46-52; John xiv, 15-20; Acts ix, 31; Rom. xv, 4; II Cor. i, 3, 4; xiii, 11; I Thess. iv, 13-18; v, 14.

Then and Now.

Bishop Thoburn makes an instructive contrast between the present condition of missions in India and the condition in that great empire when he began his work. "When I first went to India," he says, "38 years ago, I sailed in a vessel of 650 tons, and the voyage took 127 days. On my last trip to this country our ship was one-ninth of a mile long, of 10,000 tons burden, and the voyage took only 20 days. When our church began its work in that country, we were limited to a section of the empire having 17,000,000 and speaking only one language. Now God has led us into all parts of India, with 260,000,000 population, and we are preaching in 16 languages."

The Steadying Force.

It is this sense of responsibility which is the steadying force in history, and that cannot be lost out of life, national or individual, with any degree of safety. The notion of accountability to mere authority is often efficient, since it keeps the sentry on his beat, the cashier at his desk and the captain on the bridge. But humanity is also taken account of by a heavenly tribunal, and therefore the most solemn reflection that can ever cross the mind of a human being is, as Webster realized, the persistent thought, "I must answer God."—New York Observer.

Altogether Lovely.

Who can enumerate the reasons for loving Jesus Christ? His infinite love, His mercy, His atonement, His grace, His divinity, His tender compassion, His supreme patience, His matchless sympathy and a thousand other charms, all endear him to the Christian as the One altogether lovely.—William T. Ellis.

The Cause of Mankind.

Educate women, and you educate the teachers of men. If the child is father to the man, the woman forms the man in educating the child. The cause of female education is, then, even in the most selfish sense, the cause of mankind at large.—C. G. Nicolay.

Onward, Christians!

Oft in danger, oft in woe,
Onward, Christians, onward go!
Fight the fight, maintain the strife,
Strengthened with the bread of life.

Onward, Christians, onward go,
Join the war and face the foe!
Will ye flee in danger's hour?
Know ye not your captain's power?

Let your drooping hearts be glad.
March in heavenly armor clad.
Fight, nor think the battle long;
Victory soon shall tune your song.

Onward, then, in battle move.
More than conquerors ye shall prove.
Though opposed by many a foe,
Christian soldiers, onward go.

TENDENCY IS UPWARD

Bradstreet's Reports Continued Confidence In Business Circles.

Wool and Cotton Prices Are Still Going Up.

Wheat Is In Better Position Than For Years. Failures Decrease.

New York, Aug. 7.—Bradstreet's says: General trade shows the most pronounced gains this week at Chicago, St. Louis and Galveston. The feeling of confidence that general business is to improve in the early autumn is marked at these cities, and purchases of dry goods, clothing, shoes and other staples have increased heavily, and are followed by a disposition to crowd prices up. Purchases were restricted at Kansas City, Omaha and some other northwestern points early in the week, owing to extreme heat and fears of damage to the Indian corn crop, but rains and cooler weather have stimulated demand again.

On the Pacific coast business is brisk, the feature in California being heavy wheat shipments to San Francisco, at Portland large exports of lumber, and at Seattle and Tacoma active demand for supplies for Alaska and Northwest territory, and for wheat, fruit and hops.

The movement of general merchandise throughout the country is unquestionably larger than last week; cotton goods and woolen industries are better off, and the stagnation in iron and steel have given way to a growing inquiry and increasing output. But more significant still is the extraordinary expansion in bank clearings this week and last month. The increased value of our export trade in the year ending June 30, 1897, to which reference has been frequently made, is indicated by the statement that it amounts to $1,032,001,000, the largest like total on record, 1.5 per cent larger than in the previous record year, 1292. Compared with the year ended June 30, 1896, the gain is 20 per cent.

Bank clearings have steadily increased since July 1. The gain was only 1 per cent. in the first week of July, compared with a year ago, while in the last week of July the advance was 22 per cent. The gain for the first week in August, compared with the like week in 1896, is 25 per cent. The largest gain in any one section is reported by New England cities, and next by the middle states and then by far Western cities. The only decrease is that at northwestern cities.

The week's banks clearings throughout the United States amount to $1,142,000,000, an increase of 10 per cent over last week.

The upward tendency of prices during the past three weeks is again a feature, wool being firmer and higher for some varieties. Cotton yarns are stronger also, as are some grades of cottons at the West. Shoes are no higher, but leather and hides cost more than a week ago, as do wheat (notwithstanding the reaction in September option), wheat flour, pork, lard, Pacific coast hops, sugar, soft coal and tea. There is a 25 cent advance in Bessemer pig iron at Pittsburg, where makers decline orders for future delivery at current quotations, and for iron bars and iron and steel sheets at Western centers. In fact, our predicted rivival in iron and steel has appeared. Many iron and steel mills are at work on full time, and manufacturers are encouraged at the increase of inquiries. Higher Bituminous coal, due to the continuation of the miners' strike, has had less effect on manufacturing industries at the central West than was anticipated. Quotations for cotton and print cloths remain practically unchanged, while those for Indian corn and for oats are lower on improved crop prospects. Other products quotations for which have declined are coffee, petroleum, turpentine and resin.

Notwithstanding a reaction in speculative prices for wheat, due to liquidation by large holders (anticipated by foreign buyers who kept out of our markets), wheat remains in a stronger position than for years. World's wheat supplies fell off more during July than ever before, the total Aug. 1, 66,340,000 bushels, being the smallest ever reported at a like period, except in 1889.

Recent records of improving net railway earnings are continued in returns of more than 50 of the more important railroad companies for June.

There are 214 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, compared with 259 last week.

Apple Crop Estimate.

Buffalo, Aug. 7.—The National Apple Shippers' association furnishes an estimate of the yield for the crop year of 1897, based on an average of 100 as a full crop. The figures are given for Canada and the various states and are made up to Aug. 1, as follows: Canada, 40 per cent; New England states, 20; New York, 25; Pennsylvania, 50; Maryland, 60; Virginia, 70; West Virginia, 30; Kentucky, 60; Ohio, 30; Indiana, 65; Michigan, 30; Illinois, 90; Iowa, 75; Missouri, 80; Kansas, 75; Arkansas, 90; Tennessee, 70; Colorado, 100; California, 100; Oregon, 100. The above table shows a considerable falling off in the East, while the West, particularly Illinois, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas, shows a decided increase, both as to percentage of crop and a largely increased acreage in bearing. The 1897 crop will be considerable below that of last year, but about equal to the average crop for the United States.

John W. Foster Returns.

New York, Aug. 7.—John W. Foster, the commissioner sent by President McKinley to England to confer with Lord Salisbury relative to the Bering sea matter, and if possible to obtain the reopening of the seal question, arrived in this city on the American liner St. Louis last evening. He was accompanied on the voyage by Mrs. Foster. Mr. Foster, when asked what he had to say concerning the results of his mission abroad, replied: "I do not care to say anything concerning the Bering sea question until I have first seen Secretary Sherman and submitted my report to him."

National League.

At Boston—

For five innings yesterday the Bostons were unable to touch Pond, while the Baltimores hit up Klobedanz in great shape. The home team took a brace and in the next four innings batted Pond out of the box, Nops replacing him in the ninth, while Klobedanz was invincible. Baltimore would have scored in the ninth, but for a magnificent throw of Duffy to the plate, cutting of Quinn, who was running from third base home for McGraw, who injured himself in reaching third. The batting of Duffy and Lowe, and the fielding of Jennings, McGraw and Keeler were the features.

THE WHEELMEN.

Eighteenth Annual L. A. W. Meet at Philadelphia Most Successful Yet Held.

Philadelphia, Aug. 7.—The opening race meet of the 18th anual meet of the League of American Wheelmen was held yesterday at Willow Grove park, 14 miles from this city, before 15,000 spectators. It was the most successful in the history of the organization in attendance, enthusiasm and good racing. Several state records were smashed, and Arthur Gardiner, the Chicago crack, came within two-fifths of a second of breaking Hamilton's world's record for one mile paced. He succeeded in lowering the fast mile made by "Johnny" Johnson at Chicago last year by four-fifths of a second. Gardiner was paced by two quads, one loaded with Wenzel, the Turville boys and Coburn, and the other with W. E. Becker, W. L. Becker, Crooks and Steenson. He crossed the line like a flash, and the time was caught beautifully. He never ceased his pace until the finish, made in 1:39 3-5, breaking the state record of 1:45 3-5, held by Earl Kiser.

Starbuck also took a trial at the record paced by a quad and a triplet. For the first half he made very fast time, but lost behind the triplet. His time was 1:44 3-5, also breaking Kiser's record.

Both these events followed the scheduled races for the day. In the latter the honors among the professionals were won by F. J. Loughead of Sarnia, Ont., who crossed the tape a winner in three trials, two finals and second man in a third final. In one of thes finals the one mile professional he broke the state competition record of 2:04 4-5 by covering the distance in 2:03 3-5. He captured the one-quarter mile championship in 32 seconds.

Among the amateur's honors were more evenly divided, with the best racing done by Peabody, Johnson, Middendorf, Schade, Krick and Miller.

There were early morning runs to League island navy yard, at the lower end of Broad street, a cross rope ferry bridge to Paschalville, returning by way of Woodland avenue, West Philadelphia to Broad street, where the columns merged into the army of wheelmen who had gone through Fairmount park and the Wissahickon drive, and the big scheduled run to the track again. When the head of the line reached Old York road, four miles from headquarters, there were many who had not mounted their wheels. At the track all was bustle among the racing men.

"Johnny" Johnson, who was hurt on Wednesday, was unable to ride yesterday.

CHILDREN IN EGYPT.

A RUDE CONTRIVANCE COPIED AFTER THE FERRIS WHEEL.

Schools, Playgrounds and Holidays—Egyptian Confectionery and Fruit—How a Bright Arab Lad Signs His Name—Tin Used For Slates.

There's a refreshing sameness about the life of healthy, happy children in all parts of the world, though outward appearances differ materially.

In Cairo, for instance, one of the prettiest sights to a visiting European or American is a native Ferris wheel, just enough like and just enough different from the elaborate contrivance in Earl's court, London, or the Midway plaisance in Chicago to be interesting. There are dozens of these rudely constructed wheels in Cairo, mostly built by Arabs who have returned from the Chicago Midway with ideas, and they are well patronized by dusky, grinning babies. They are made entirely of wood, heavily and clumsily framed. The axle of the wheel and the shaft on which each car hangs are roughly rounded and never oiled, so that they creak frightfully, nearly deafening the bystander. But this makes no difference to the eight or ten coffee colored children who squat on their heels in the swings. Indeed, they make fully their share of the noise by adding shrieks of delight to the groaning of the wheel. Some of the children hold baby brothers and sisters in their arms, and why they do not all fall out together is hard to see, for the wheel is turned by hand. An Arab attendant stands at either side and pushes the bar of each swing as it comes to him with all his might, so that the machine goes by fits and starts, and the swings are half the time nearly bottom upward.

Friday is the Mohammedan Sunday and Thursday is school holiday like our Saturday. The playgrounds are always ankle deep in dust, for it never rains in Egypt, but this makes little difference to the children, as they have few athletic games, unless one counts running and scuffling, which are much the same the world over. The younger ones "play horse" with stalks of sugar cane for steeds, and some of the older ones are learning football from the British soldiers, but that is about all.

In America when one sees a large number of pieshops and candy stands he knows a big school must be near by. This rule doesn't hold in Egypt, where men and women eat quite as much sweet stuff as children. All the natives chew sugar cane. The native candy is nearly all of the paste sort, like marshmallows, or mixed with walnut or peanut meats, or with dates or cocoanut. Crystallized sugar, or "rock candy," is also common, and where American children have candy elephants and horses Egyptians eat candy sphinxes and pyramids. Indeed, the Cairene child seems to be always eating either candy or sugar cane or flat, thin crusts of unleavened cake. As for fruit, even a "kwageh," or visiting foreigner, can buy delicious mandarin oranges for half a cent each, and it is not likely that native children pay so much. They call the mandarin "Yussuf Effendi," or "Mr. Joseph."

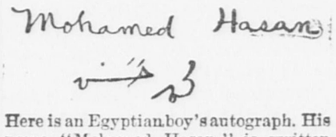
Most of the schools are what we would call parish schools, connected with the mosques. The teacher is always a man, and he always carries a stick, which he doesn't seem to need, for Egyptian children are easily managed, like the Japanese. The natives give the same reason for this as in Japan—they say the children are sunny tempered because they eat no meat.

There are neither seats nor benches in a Mohammedan school. The children sit on the floor and rock back and forth as they sing their verses from the Koran or their Arabic alphabet. The books are put away at night in a box that looks like a crockery crate, and the teacher often sleeps on top of the box. Instead of slates they use bright pieces of tin on which figures and letters can be written and washed off again.

We got our Arabic numerals from the east, but the figures are very different.



Here is an Egyptian boy's autograph. His name, "Mohamed Hasan," is written with two strokes, a dot and two slanting dashes, almost like shorthand.

JOHN L. HEATON.

What Lincoln Advised.

When Abraham Lincoln used to be drifting around the country, practicing law in Fulton and Menard counties, Ills., an old fellow met him going to Lewistown, riding a horse, which, while it was a serviceable enough animal, was not of the kind to be truthfully called a fine saddler. It was a weather beaten nag, patient and plodding, and it toiled along with Lincoln, and his books, tucked away in saddlebags, lay heavy on the horse's flanks.

"Hello, Uncle Tommy!" said Mr. Lincoln.

"Hello, Abe!" responded Uncle Tommy. "I'm powerful glad to see ye Abe, fer I'm gwyne to have sumthin fer ye at Lewistown cote, I reckon."

"How's that, Uncle Tommy?"

"Well, Jim Adams, his land runs long o' mine. He's pesterin me a heap, an I got to git the law on Jim, I reckon."

"Uncle Tommy, you haven't had any fight with Jim, have you?"

"No."

"He's a fair to middling neighbor, isn't he?"

"Only tollable, Abe."

"He's been a neighbor of yours for a long time, hasn't he?"

"Nigh on to 15 year."

"Part of the time you get along all right, don't you?"

"I reckon we do, Abe."

"Well, now, Uncle Tommy, you see this horse of mine? He isn't as good a horse as I could straddle, and I sometimes get out of patience with him, but I know his faults. He does fairly well as horses go, and it might take me a long time to get used to some other horse's faults. For all horses have faults. You and Uncle Jimmy must put up with each other, as I and my horse do with one another."

"I reckon, Abe," said Uncle Tommy as he bit off about four ounces of Missouri plug, "I reckon you're about right."

And Abe Lincoln, with a smile on his gaunt face, rode on toward Lewistown.

COMMENTING UPON the difference in tax rates of Quincy and Boston we have heard some of our prominent citizens favor the annexation of the "City of Presidents" to "the Hub." This is evidently what Boston desires or at least its only alternative, as we read in the Boston Journal this week that the city is running behind and that it is a matter of serious concern financially.

Quincy is not running behind, as its debt outside of water and sewers is not as large as in 1893, 1894 and 1895. The summary of the debt on January 1 for each of the last five years shows the standing:

Jan. 1, 1893,	$323,542 36
Jan. 1, 1894,	339,730.00
Jan. 1, 1895,	311,091.00
Jan. 1, 1896,	264,895.61
Jan. 1, 1897,	306,335 61

To pay as we go and at the same time reduce the debt it has been necessary to increase the tax rate, but this is preferable to paying interest a long term of years, providing we are to remain a separate municipality. But if Quincy is to be forced into a union with Boston it may be unwise to burden ourselves now with debt payments, and after the union be burdened with the debt of Boston.

A Journal article says: "An effort will be made next year, in the Legislature, to remove the $9 tax limit from the borrowing power of the city. The keenest financiers in City Hall admit that, under existing conditions, such a step is absolutely necessary, and some of them declare that it has been too long delayed.

"The city today has a net debt relatively larger than that of New York city, and it is steadily increasing. The gross debt, including the loans authorized but not issued, is already in the vicinity of $90,000,000. Every year the city is compelled to borrow money for current expenses, and even an ingenious system of loans and transfers which is now so popular does not suffice to conceal the fact that the municipality is steadily running behindhand in its efforts to keep within the limit.

"The annual Loan bill contains an appropriation of over $600,000 for street work in the various wards. Nearly all of this work should be charged to current expenses, but it is impossible to do so, and the Loan bill has to bear the burden. If the limit is increased to $10 it would give, it is estimated, $900,000 additional, and this would allow all of the ward improvement items to come out of the tax levy.

"It will not be a popular measure, but the work this year by the Assessors has shown that there is no hope of relief in obtaining all of the taxable personal property. The money needed for paying the current expenses of the city is increasing steadily and out of all proportion to the taxable property.

"There seems to be only one way out of the difficulty, for there is no indication that economy will be practised, or even attempted."

Where the duties of the assessors are construed as they are in Boston it is not surprising that the rate is low, but it is made up in the way of valuations. The Boston Advertiser says: "The efforts of the Boston assessors to find $38,875,000 increased valuation to meet the $500,000 extra tax levy on the city of Boston is keeping them particularly busy this year. It must be remembered that for every additional $100,000 which the city is called to pay, the assessors are compelled to find $7,750,000 worth of taxable property. So with the call for $500,000, it can be seen how far the assessors have to go."

The per capita debt of Quincy (water, sewers, parks, etc., included) was less than $52 on Jan. 1, 1897, while by the figures of the Journal the per capita debt of Boston, on a population of 500,000 is $180. After a few years of a higher tax limit in Boston, it will be necessary to raise it still higher, and it is not pleasant to think of the day of reckoning.

—The Ohio legislature finds no problem too intricate for it to attempt solving. Having ordered small hats at theatres it now tries to regulate the amount of foam to be served with each glass of beer. By and by it will endeavor to discover why the mouse fell in love with the cat.

CAPTAIN KINCAIDE.

Quincy Man to be Commander of Company K.

Election of Capt. Morrison as Major Leaves a Vacancy.

J. H. Whitney the New Colonel of the Fifth Regiment.

The expected happened at the election of a new colonel and lieutenant-colonel of the Fifth Regiment to which Company K is attached yesterday. J. H. Whitney was elected colonel and Major William H. Oakes of Charlestown, lieutenant-colonel.

This left vacancies and Capt. Walter E. Morrison of Company K of Braintree and Capt. Harry P. Ballard of Company L of Malden were elected majors.

There were no contests for any of the positions and the elections were unanimous.

The meeting was attended by thirty-five officers and Gen. Bancroft presided. A dinner to the general at the Copley Square hotel followed the election, and a pleasing incident was the presentation of a loving cup.

Brief speeches followed from Lieut. Col. Oakes, Maj. Mossman, Maj. Morrison, Maj. Ballard, Capt. W. W. Stover, Lieut. W. S. Tolman, both of Company A; Acting Adjutant F. F. Cutting, appointed yesterday to succeed Adjt. Ballard; Capt. Cutler, Capt. Clare, Capt. Locke, Paymaster Warren, Lieut. McDonald and Lieut. Kincaide.

Mr. Morrison was born in Braintree in 1864. He attended the public schools of the town, and was for four years a pupil at the Chauncey Hall School in Boston, where he received military instruction. He was Captain in one of the battalions there and after leaving school he organized the Braintree Militia Company, which flourished for four or five years.

In 1887, when the State increased the two eight company regiments to twelve company regiments Capt. Morrison and Lieut's Morrison and Kincaide worked to to have the company attached to the State militia and as a result it became a part of the Fifth regiment, and is known as Co. K.

Captain Morrison has always been commander of the company, this being the first vacancy in the line of captain. Major Morrison is in the wool manufacturing business.

The election of Capt. Morrison as major leaves a vacancy in commander of Co. K, and there is no doubt but Lieut. Henry L. Kincaide of Quincy, who for years has been a faithful supporter of Capt. Morrison, and in every way a model officer, will be unanimously elected to the important position.

Other advancements in order will be the promotion of 2d Lieut. Whitney of Quincy to 1st Lieutenant, and of Sergt. Spear of Braintree to 2d Lieutenant, as it is understood that 1st Sergt. Colbert prefers to remain where he is.

The other officers will be advanced and the only new officer to be elected will be a corporal.

Stairs Make Him Tired.

Editors of the Quincy Ledger:

With your kind permission I should like to suggest a possible solution of the "fence question" at Wollaston. The present fence is undoubtedly a source of great loss to our local storekeepers and great inconvenience to passengers. It seems an unjust burden on dwellers on the Plains, all of them tired with a day's toil, and many old, feeble, or in poor health, to compel them to climb a long flight of steps and then retrace their steps down the hill.

Now, at slight expense to the road, a small subway could be built underneath the tracks from the depot to a point opposite, leaving the present fence as a means of compelling people to use the tunnel

I have seen them abroad about ten feet wide by eight high with a transparent top of thick glass.

I am as tired of climbing "The Golden (?) stairs" as anyone, and hope for a change. Yours truly,

"The Ghost of Mrs. Anne Hutchinson."

Won Prizes Abroad.

In the games at the first annual picnic of the American Line Athletic Association, held at Lockerley, (England) an environ of Southampton, on the 26th of July, Joseph W. McGrath of this city, a cadet on the St. Louis, won the 100-yard dash and the sack race, being scratch man in both events. The games were attended by a goodly number of the resident Americans of London and Southampton. This athletic association is recruited from the ranks of the officers and men in the employ of the International Navigation Company.

He Made Good Ice Cream.

Boston papers report Marcena R. Sparrow of Quincy, business unstated to have filed a petition in insolvency in the Norfolk registry at Dedham Friday. His liabilities amount to $1799.72 and his assets consist of a house and 11,250 square feet of land on Prospect avenue, Wollaston, on which F. P. Waterhouse has a first mortgage for $1400; George Smith, a second mortgage for $600, and Edward N. Capen, a third mortgage for $250.

BRAINTREE.

The lawn party of the Y. P. S. C. E. on Wednesday night suffered the fate of lawn parties in general. After the young people had spent the entire afternoon hanging lanterns, arranging tables and making ice-cream, a thunder cloud appeared in the sky and torrents of rain descended. Fortunately the chapel was near and a pleasant evening was passed within doors.

There will be no preaching service in the South Church tomorrow. The evening service will take place at the usual time.

Division No. 12, A. O. H., held a grand smoke talk in their hall in Odd Fellows' building Thursday evening. There was a large number present to enjoy the occasion, delegation were present from Randolph, Weymouth and Quincy and Boston. A light collation was served during the evening.

Mrs. George Whitman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill T. Call, died at her home in Concord, N. H., Thursday of last week, after a lingering illness.

The Weymouth band, Arthur Raymond director, gave a very delightful concert in South Braintree Square, Thursday evening. There was a large crowd present to enjoy the music. The band played some catchy music which caught the crowd. The descriptive overture, "The Hunting Scene," was finely rendered; also the piccolo solo; both of which received loud applause. The concert was given by the Quincy & Boston Street railway.

W. W. Wade of Braintree is to move to Rockland, where he will reside on Church street.

C. R. Bestick, Arza H. Keith and Louis Chandler will start Monday for Portland, by boat.

The Sloyd room in the Jonas Perkins school has been completed and ready for the fall term.

The Baptist Sunday school will hold its annual picnic next Wednesday at Mears', Houghs Neck.

About thirty attended the Mission Sewing Circle outing at Nantasket on Wednesday. They had a fish dinner and returned before dark.

The Braintree band is preparing for a field day to take place August 21. All the organizations of the town have been asked to take part in the parade. Company K has accepted the invitation.

Have you noticed how nice the box cars of the Braintree street railway are looking? They shine so when the sun comes out that a person almost needs smoked glasses. And the new cushions? Oh my!

The Veteran Fire Association has been invited to attend the test of the Union engine, tonight, at 5 o'clock at Fore River Engine Works. Refreshments afterwards at the engine house. The boys are getting ready for muster and have great faith in the engine as arranged at present.

Mr. Dow returned Saturday from a very successful week at the dentists' convention held at Twin Mountain House, White Mountain, N. H. The week before he was in Bangor, Gardiner and Portland with his cataphoresis, which is becoming very popular.

Stephen White of Eliot street attempted suicide yesterday by cutting the arteries of his arm with a razor. Docter Tinkham was called and the young man sent to the Massachusetts General Hospital. At time of writing it is said his recovery is doubtful.

The Selectmen have decided not to tax bicycles this year.

Mr. John Kelley of Crescent avenue and a friend caught 177 fish from Little pond one day this week.

Arthur Metcalf of Wollaston has been visiting in South Braintree the past week.

Chief Engineer Oliver B. Battles is wearing a large smile these days. It's a boy; born Tuesday. Mr. Battles has him all ready for the Butcher Boy Mascot.

Capt. Cain, in the employ of Captain A. H. Chesterton of the Winthrop Yacht club, started Friday for Winthrop with his sloop yacht Hattie. Today he will start for the coast of Maine. He expects to be gone two weeks.

The members of M. A. Perkins Hose Company, No. 2, held a special meeting in their hall Monday evening. They voted to hold a practice meeting on Wednesday evening next, and voted to invite the members of Hook and Ladder Co., No. 2, to join with them.

Onset Bay.

William G. Prescott and Henry Chubbuck have been spending a week at the Onset Bay camp meeting. Visitors are there from all parts of the country. Jenney Hogan Jackson of Michigan will be the speaker tomorrow. Tests by J. Homer Attemus of Washington, D. C. The Middleboro band will give three concerts.

The excursion steamer will go to Cottage City on Monday; round trip from Onset, fifty cents. Quincy to Onset Grove, round trip, two dollars.

IS PICKING UP.

Tour of the Granite Yards Shows Improvement.

Many of the Firms Have Numerous Orders!.

No Great Boom However Expected Until Fall or Spring.

There is a general feeling of rejoicing in Quincy among the granite manufacturers over the increased tariff on granite, which they think will result in improving the granite business in this section wonderfully, although it is not thought that the effects of it will be manifested much before fall, and that it will be next spring before the real boom takes place. There is, however, considerable work in the city just at present.

Joss Bros. have recently secured the contract for an $8000 mausoleum job to be cut of dark Quincy granite. It is 17 by 14 feet and will contain ten catacombs.

John Thompson & Sons have several good sized jobs on hand. Mr. Thompson feels considerably encouraged at the business outlook and thinks that the depression in the granite business has passed.

Fred Barnicoat has booked orders for several statue jobs within a month. Among his new orders are figures of "Hope" and "Grief," and a group figure of "Faith and Hope."

Alexander Marnock has recently secured orders for some good sized monuments and believes that business has taken a turn for the better.

Fuller, Foley & Co. report that business is good with them and that they have a lot of work on hand. Much of their work is of the medium size, although they have several good sized jobs, among which are four sarcophagus monuments with rustic bases.

The Merrymount Granite Company is quite busy just at present, especially at their quarry where they are more than rushed for orders. Besides their own work they are having quite a demand from other firms for their stock.

McIntosh & Sons have a large amount of finished work on hand ready for shipment, among which are several all polished Quincy granite sarcophagi.

Birnie & Dick report having a large number of orders, mostly for medium sized work.

The New England Monumental Design Company is making designs for four $5,000 tomb jobs.

Joseph Walker of the Aberdeen Granite Works is cutting two all polished sarcophagus monuments and a good-sized spire job. All are of Quincy granite.

Swingle & Falconer are now employing some 70 men and business has so increased with them that they have found it necessary to have more men and have leased a part of the W. C. Townsend plant.

McDonnell & Sons have considerable work on hand just at present, the most of which is above the ordinary size.

T. F. Mannex finds business a little better and has put on a few more men.

One of the largest and best equipped plants in the city is that of George H. Hitchcock & Co. They have recently built a new granite engine house, a new polishing mill with six of the latest machines, and erected some 200 feet of shed room. To run this plant, including their quarry, requires a force of 70 men. They have a large amount of work on hand some of which is quite large, and to sum the matter up, they are busy; in fact rushed.

Milne & Chalmers have a large force of men at work at their plant and have a goodly number of orders upon their books.

Thomas & Miller one of the largest retail firms in the city continue to have about all the work they can do and are employing quite a force of men.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Handicap Knockabouts—Mayona, Ruth, Dorothy, Water Lily, Comet, Maia, Verma.

Daring Exhibition.

One of the chief attractions at Nantasket Beach Sunday will be at the chutes. A Quincy man will turn a back somersault into the water from one of the chute boats as it dashes down the incline, which is 90 feet high with a drop of 8 inches to the foot. The speed of the boat is 60 miles an hour and the depth of the water is 3½ feet, making it one of the most daring as well as the most difficult feat ever attempted from one of these boats. This event is scheduled for 3 P. M.

The office of the Tax Collector was kept open last Saturday for the convenience of those who desired to pay their poll tax but only eight called to pay. There were sixteen who called however to pay their water bills and now it has been suggested that the City Treasurer keep his office open to receive water bills.

It is pleasing to note that people at Quincy Centre know a good thing when they see it, but it will be unfortunate for all concerned that there will be two Music halls in Quincy, and confusion is sure to result. Could not the Quincy Real Estate Trust think of any other appropriate name for the large new hall? Why not call it Presidents' hall, Adams hall, or Granite hall? Atlantic has the first claim on Music hall, and the owners cannot well abandon it.—Atlantic correspondent of PATRIOT.

—The office furniture of Lawyer Davis of Hyde Park, who recently shot himself, was sold at mortgagee's sale on Thursday.

—The new hall of the grange at Foxboro will be dedicated by the State Master August 17.

—Grace Drinkwater of Oak place, Hyde Park, while building a fire with kerosene on Thursday, was set on fire, but escaped with slight burns.

—Samuel Rafter, recently of Hyde Park, died in Galveston, Texas, last week.

—The tax rate of Brookline is $12 20. It would be more if the corporation tax was properly distributed by the State, or if the mill tax for schools had passed.

A GREAT SURPRISE IS IN STORE

for those who will go today and get a package of GRAIN-O. It takes the place of coffee at about ¼ the cost. It is a food drink, full of health, and can be given to the children as well as the adult with a great benefit. It is made of pure grains and looks and tastes like the finest grades of Mocha or Java coffee. It satisfies everyone. A cup of Grain-O is better for the system than a tonic, because its benefit is permanent. What coffee breaks down Grain-O builds up. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 15c. and 25c.

Newspaper Women.

Newspaper writers are now appraised according to their merits, and the measure is taken very swiftly whether the individual be man or woman. Women are succeeding and have succeeded in every branch of journalism from the mere setting of the type to the absolute control of a great publication. Men as a class are apt to employ slang, colloquialisms, technical phrases and business language. Women, on the other hand, seldom fall into these errors, but sin on the side of florid rhetoric and so called "fine writing." They have a natural inclination toward qualifying things that they like with pet words. A girl is always "pretty" or "charming," a gown "elegant" or "lovely," a book "delightful" or "splendid." As between the two faults the woman's is less objectionable.

Few newspaper women care to report fights, accidents or other facts involving shame, suffering or disgrace. Men, on the other hand, have a natural aversion to spending much time upon details. They are much quicker, however, to perceive news and to secure it. The practice known as "faking" or getting up tricky or worthless schemes is not uncommon with newspaper men, but is very rare with newspaper women. The feeling between the two sexes is usually friendly, each recognizing where the other can do better work. The great increase of newspaper women is due not to any competition between men and women, but to the fact that the development of the modern newspaper necessitates the gathering of news where women are more qualified to act than men.—Self Culture.

Washable Waists and Dresses.

When a cotton waist is to be frequently washed and if not lined with a piece of the same goods or with white lawn it should have a yoke, inside or out, of the same fabric, and facing around and under the arm sizes, this being where most of the wear comes. Round waists worn beneath the skirt should extend three inches below. The waist and sleeves should have the French or bag seams, which have the raw edges put together on the right side and a narrow seam taken. Then they are turned to the wrong side and a tiny seam taken, thus hiding all raw edges. If cotton plaids are made upon the bias, they are apt to pull askew in the ironing. In buying embroidery to trim such gowns remember that patterns having small holes wear the best. Such dresses should be washed out quickly and dried in the shade. Do not use strong soap on them. Pique, linen, crash, etc., should be well shrunk before they are made up into waists or dresses. Allowance should be made, for they are apt to shrink.

Always turn down 1½ inches at the top of wash skirts, which can be let down when necessary. Use two threads half an inch apart in gathering the backs of skirts. Run a worsted braid along the underside of wash dresses, letting the edge barely show, and shrink the braid in boiling water before using it. In sewing on braid or velveteen hold it, not the skirt, next to you.—Emma M. Hooper in Ladies' Home Journal.

May Make the Men Hustle.

John I. Platt, editor of the Poughkeepsie Eagle, tells this incident of the recent meeting of the State Press association at the Thousand islands: "One family group that we got acquainted with consisted of two very bright girls. When we asked them whom they were with, one of them replied promptly: 'We are here by ourselves. I represent the paper, and this is my sister.' We asked what she did on the paper, and she answered: 'Everything that is to be done in a newspaper office. You see, ours is a small office, and I have to set type, run the press, pick up ads., attend the office, report or anything else required — except,' she added after a pause, 'except write editorials. My father and I don't agree in politics, so he won't let me write editorials.'

"There was no doubt whatever, either, of her right or her ability to 'represent the paper,' and she wasn't the only lady member of the association either. The fact is, we editors of the sterner sex have got to bestir ourselves or these independent women who don't always agree with their fathers in politics, will be crowding us out of our vocation."

For the Slender Girl.

If the too stout woman endures torture, the too slender one suffers no less. Visions of the bean pole and horrid descriptions of the attenuated maiden flit through her mind as her glass tells her how poorly she carries off the full skirts of the summer.

But there is a skirt designed specially for her which makes her a better figure than she could ever hope to have. It is godet in the back, rather tight fitting on the hips, but furnished with an immense box plait in the front. It is laid flat at the belt and is allowed to flare only around the foot. The box plait may be lined with black taffeta, which shows, as the folds shake out in walking, like a fan.

The waist worn with this must be a blouse, finished with a ruffle to give fullness at the hips.

The crinkled goods of the summer make a very nice box plaited skirt, and there is nothing as nice for trimming them as the small needlework yoke and ruffles that come for the purpose.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Woman's Gift.

Treasurer Howard N. Wakeman of the Pequot Library association of Southport, Conn., has received notice that Mrs. Virginia M. Monroe has placed on interest the sum of $30,000 to be credited to the interest of the Library association. The Pequot Library building is the gift of the late Albert B. Monroe, husband of the donor of the last named sum. Mrs. Monroe is the daughter of the late Frederick Marquand, who became well known by his gift of the chapel to Yale college. He lived for years in a homestead where now stands the Pequot Library building.

COLLAPSE IS AT HAND.

Fate of Massachusetts Benefit Life Practically Sealed.

Directors Will Probably Ask For Receiver.

Meeting to Be Held Next Tuesday--Light Response to Assessments.

Boston, Aug. 7.—The Herald says today: The fate of the Massachusetts Benefit Life association is practically sealed. Its collapse has, in the minds of many impartial observers, seemed certain for several weeks, and during this time one untoward event after another has occurred, adding to the burdens already accumulated, and thwarting every effort of the managers to avoid the impending wreck.

The next meeting of the directors, on Tuesday next, will probably result in a request for a receivership, and it is not worth while to longer delay the announcement that there is no further hope. While the managers of the association have, properly enough, kept up a confident front, it has been apparent that their courage and hope have steadily waned, and they can no longer avoid admissions which practically close the case.

The financial situation is about as follows: The association owes nearly $1,000,000 in death losses up to date. If its triple assessment of $325,000 should all come in, it would remove only one-third of the liabilities, and a second and third assessment can easily be foreseen. The members are hesitating and delaying over the question of payment, and many have already refused. So general has been the feeling of hesitation that last week President Rolker sent out notices to all members that, in view of the doubt of the outcome of the assessment, members might send in their assessments to a trustee, with a pledge that they would be returned to the sender if 70 per cent of the total assessment failed to be realized. No one conversant with the situation will say more than that he "hopes" this result may be reached.

Although President Rolker and the trustees are indisposed to give out information as to the exact amount received up to yesterday morning, it is a safe inference that the receipts are not largely in excess of $100,000, and far below what was considered essential to continued existence.

If 70 per cent of the $325,000 could come in, it would be only $215,000. This would leave the debt at something over $700,000. A second triple assessment, with 70 per cent results, supposing no one falls out of the association, would reduce it to $487,000. A third, under similar favorable conditions, would bring it down to $271,000, so that a fourth triple assessment would not cover the demand. And all this time—eight months, the assessment being bimonthly—the mortality in the association will go on, piling up new claims. It is preposterous to expect that the members will respond to such demands.

BURGLARS RUN DOWN.

One Thief and an Officer Shot In a Battle at Johnson, R. I.

Providence, Aug. 7.—Detectives Parker, Merrill and Nickerson of this and Chief of Police Holbrook and Officers Leonard and Moan of Johnson captured the three men at the old Fenner stand, a roadhouse in Johnson, yesterday evening, who on last Tuesday night attempted to rob the Falmouth (Mass.) bank. The detectives are of opinion that they are the burglars and highway robbers who have been operating in the smaller New England towns and cities since April last, when the Whitinsville bank was looted of $10,000.

The house was surrounded and Detectives Parker and Merrill found "Jack" Farrell, supposed to be the leader of the gang, confined in a bed with a 38 caliber bullet in his right ankle. He received this wound from a policeman's revolver while his companions were trying to crack the Falmouth bank safe Tuesday night. The other two members of the gang, John F. Carter and Charles Monahan, with drawn revolvers, attempted to escape by a back door and met the officers. Officer Moan received a bullet in the thigh and Carter was brought down with a bullet in the shoulder from Detective Nickerson's revolver. Monahan escaped in a fusillade of bullets, some of which, it is thought, hit him. Forty shots were fired. Neither Moan nor Carter were seriously wounded.

The men were located early in the week at their headquarters in the roadhouse. A full kit of burglars tools, dynamite cartridges and masks were found in the house.

Unlicensed Guide Case.

Farmington, Me., Aug. 7.—James Mathieson, the unlicensed Rangeley, guide, who was arrested, charged with pursuing his vocation in violation of the new registration law, was given a hearing in the local court yesterday afternoon. After he had been discharged by the court on a technicality in the first warrant, he was rearrested on a second one. The presecution was conducted by Hon. L. T. Carlton, the fish and game commissioner. Mathieson pleaded not guilty. The defense claimed that he did not do any guiding whatever, and was simply acting as a cook in some of the Kennebago lake camps. The government introduced in all seven witnesses, consisting of Rangeley guides and the board of commissioners, also a written statement made by Mathieson. Mathieson did not take the stand, and nothing whatever was said about making this a test case. His counsel maintained that the state had utterly failed to establish its case, and left it with the court without introducing any evidence. The court found probable cause and held Mathieson to await the action of the grand jury of the September term. Bonds were fixed at $100 and were promptly furnished. At this point Chairman Carleton announced that if Mathieson would stand up like a man in the court room and promise to faithfully comply with the law he would recommend the prompt granting of a license to him. Mr. Mathieson thereupon took the obligation.

Crank Collier's Letters.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 7.—Young Collier, the divinity student now in close confinement in Kingston jail on a charge of assault, and who is said to have planned to kill Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, will be tried in the district court at Wakefield Monday. In the meantime it is likely that he will be examined by local physicians with reference to his sanity. Among his letters to Dr. Hale is the following: "I have written you this day through another; leave all and follow me. I would speak glorious truths through you; come not until you shall believe or you shall die by my hand." Another reads: "Come not doubting or you die." "I am your master, not your slave." Collier also wrote threatening letters to Miss Hale, which caused her no little uneasiness. His supposed connection with the Dunn robbery is discounted at the Pier.

Monument to General Stark.

Peru, Vt., Aug. 7.—Agitation among the leading citizens of southern Vermont favoring the erection of a memorial in honor of General Stark's victory in the battle of Bennington was crystalized into an organized movement at a celebration held here last night. This was the 120th anniversary of the day upon which General Stark reached this place on his way to Bennington and camped here for the night. With this fact in mind last night's program had been arranged for the purpose of augmenting funds raised for the erection of a monument to mark the site of the encampment. The meeting was a success, and enough money was pledged, together with sums previously secured, to assure the erection of a suitable monument.

Maine Encampment Begins.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 7.—Everything promises well for the annual encampment of the National Guard of the state of Maine, which commences today with regimental and team matches. This afternoon the men will come in by train and march to Camp Powers, which is in excellent condition. The regular camp routine will take place Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Thursday will be governor's day. Lieutenants Morton and Royden of the United States army have arrived and most of the staff and field officers of the two regiments. It is evpected that about 1500 men will be on the field.

Ex-Queen's Champion.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 7.—At the August meeting of the W. C. T. U. held here yesterday Dr. Mary Walker caused a mild sensation by addressing a protest against the proposed annexation of Hawaii on the ground of its moral wrong to ex-Queen Liliuokalani. Dr. Walker drew a flattering word picture of the ex-queen and urged all women's societies to join in a protest against annexation. The union took no action.

BRITISH MOVE CAUTIOUSLY.

Decision on International Bimetallic Conference Delayed Until October.

London, Aug. 7.—The British government has informed the American bimetallic commission that it will probably reply to the proposals of the commissioners on behalf of the United States in October.

Yesterday Senator Wolcott received a reply from Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, chancellor of the exchequer, in the course of which he expressed a fear that the British government was not yet in a position to reply to the proposals of the envoys of the United States and the French ambassador on the question of an international agreement.

While this postponement of England's decision delays the work, the American envoys do not consider it discouraging. On the contrary, they think Great Britain's interest in the question justifies them in expecting that the Indian mints will be opened. They believe that The Times, in opposing the reopening of the Indian mints, does not represent the government, but rather the city financial circles, which are opposed to any change. The report made to the government from the mint is understood to be favorable to silver.

Patchen Beats Pointer.

Columbus, O., Aug. 7.—Yesterday was replete with surprises at the Columbus Driving park, there being a reversal of the order of the previous day, when favorites won in a majority of events. The greatest surprise was the free-for-all race. There were four starters, Joe Patchen, Star Pointer, Lottie Lorrain and Badge, and Thursday night Star Pointer sold in the pools at $100 to $20 against the field. In the first heat the four horses were started without a skip, Joe Patchen having the pole and Pointer being on the outside. McClary did not push Pointer in the first half, but moved up in the third quarter and came down the stretch with Patchen. It was a driving finish, but Patchen came under the wire a neck ahead, the time being 2:04. In the second heat the four horses were started abreast, but Patchen and Pointer went ahead and moved all the way around the track like a team. Patchen and Pointer came down the stretch neck and neck, and as Patchen poked his nose under the wire a few inches ahead of Pointer a great shout went up from the 10,000 people that filled the grandstand. The time by quarters was: 30¼; 1:00½; 1:31; 2:01½. Pointer broke badly at the start in the third heat and trailed far behind, while Patchen and Lorraine went all the way around with the latter hanging on to Patchen's sulky. Pointer made a great rally and paced the last half-mile in one minute flat. The time for the heat was 2:08.

Bullion Value of Silver Dollar.

Washington, Aug. 7.—"The bullion value of the American silver dollar, according to Thursday's market price of silver, is just 43.6 cents," said Mr. Preston, the director of the mint, yesterday. "This makes the commercial ratio between silver and gold 36.6 to 1 instead of 16 to 1," continued Mr. Preston. "In order to make our silver dollar equal to a gold dollar at this rate it would have to contain 850 fine grains of silver. If the alloy were added the total would be 953 grains. I see no future for silver whatever. It is my honest opinion that within six months silver will fall to 40 cents an ounce. There is no demand for it anywhere. The output of gold is steadily increasing. I think that the world's product for this year will be about $240,000,000. The United States will contribute about $60,000,000 to the supply.

BROWN CONTROVERSY.

Congressman Walker Replies to the Faculty's Open Letter.

He Says Andrews Is Seeking Martyr's Crown.

President's Silver Theories Are More Dangerous Than State Rights.

Boston, Aug. 7.—The famous letter of the faculty of Brown university defending President Andrews has called forth a carefully written reply from Congressman Joseph Walker of Worcester. Mr. Walker is a member of the corporation of the university, and his letter is taken as an expression of the feelings of that whole body. The communication is as follows:

The corporation deeply regrets that any member of the faculty should have felt it their duty to complicate a very delicate situation, growing out of the wide divergence of views between it and the public teachings of its president, as to what is truth and as to their respective duties and responsibilities involving the attitude of the university on questions viewed by the corporation as at the very foundation of morality.

True to its founders, the cry of a noble soul. "Give me the liberty to think and to utter freely, above all liberties," finds now, as ever before, an echo in the soul of every member of the corporation of Brown university. If what was designed to be its governing body has uttered any word or done any deed to abridge any reasonable action or expression of opinion by the president of Brown university, or by any member of its faculty, consistent with their first obligation to the university, they are not aware of it.

The determination of the corporation to refrain from making this divergence of opinion public, and its efforts to avoid any formal, official or public criticism of President Andrews, and his insistence on its giving him a written communication, which could cover but a small part of the case, against the best judgment and purpose of the corporation, his rushing into print, before the corporation could take any action as a body, upon the result and again through some members of the faculty, exhibits, in a minor degree, the wide divergence in opinion of the proprieties in their respective positions and shows how eagerly Mr. Andrews is seeking the crown of martyrdom in the cause of the immediate and unlimited coinage of silver. It may be said in passing that the remarkable satements made in the communication signed "Henry B. Gardner," show how little the faculty know of the kind and amount of work President Andrews has been doing in the cause of the immediate and unlimited coinage of silver at 16 to 1 by this country along and regardless of consequences.

Corporation Is Judge.

Whether that is truth or not, is known or not, civilized society cannot exist unless some things are assumed to have been proven "the truth." Those responsible for institutions organized and maintained to teach the things assumed to be "the truth," necessarily require that the teachings of the president and professors of each institution for itself adhere in the main to the teaching for truth those things the institution was founded to teach, the corporation being judge. The corporation of Brown university, as in the past, so now, administer its affairs in the broad spirit of liberality in which it was founded as to both the beliefs and teachings of its president and professors, but it cannot tolerate the alienation of the great trust committed to its hands in support of those who would subvert doctrines and beliefs of its founders, the present corporation and all right-thinking men in the community as well, hold to be "truth."

Controversy is easy concerning the existence of things the most obvious. There is nothing so clearly discernible that all men see it alike.

When in institutions founded to teach the Roman Catholic faith a professor accepts the faith of Calvin and teaches his doctrine and in all kindness he is asked to give way to one who believes and teaches what he was originally hired to teach, he invariably raises a cry of persecution.

One of the leading educational institutions in New England has an agnostic at its head. No one takes any cognizance of his beliefs or words. But let his activities in disseminating his belief in controverting the inspiration of the Bible be those of an Ingersoll and it would be a base alienation of a trust for the Christians responsible for the young men in that institution and responsible for its influences in the community to allow the influence of that institution, inseparably connected with its president, to be so used in the person of its president. Institutions of learning are incarnated in their representative head.

A Baptist college may have an influential member of the Universalist denomination, one of the noblest men in its neighborhood, as chairman of its board of trustees, and to its very great advantage. He could not with any show of decency assume the work of converting all other denominationss to his faith by entering upon an active campaign as an evangelist of Universalism, without resigning his office. During the war a small number of good and able men in the north believed each state had a right to secede from the Union, and that the coercion of a state violated the rights of every person in the seceded states. No educational institution could consistently retain as its president or as a professor a person active in disseminating such belief in such a crisis.

The views of President Andrews, promulgated from Rhode Island and Pennsylvania to Colorado and California, are believed by the corporation to portend, if they take possession of the popular mind, more disastrous consequences to this continent than did the doctrine of the right of a state to secede from the Union. The corporation simply appointed a committee to confer with President Andrews, not E. Benjamin Andrews. All subsequent action, and all publicity subsequent to that, has been an assault upon the corporation by the friends of President Andrews.

Eliot, Walker and Andrews.

Whether the influences for good of President Eliot in his chosen life work has been augmented, either over the students at Harvard, or in the community at large, by his partisan political activity, is very doubtful. The same may be said of the late President Francis A. Walker, but to assume that the activities of President Andrews on politicau and economic questions are within the same reasonable bounds as those of the officers named, or that his position is that of President Walker, or that the action of our corporation in this case can with any justice be contrasted with the action of the corporation of Harvard or of the Institute of Technology, to our detriment, we cannot admit.

The opinion of our corporation was not unknown to President Andrews. To say that our action in the least degree infringes upon the "sacred clause of the freedom of speech," or "upon the independence of thought, and expression on the part of the president and professors," is to confuse the personal rights of an individual with the duties assumed and proprieties incumbent upon every man who accepts any representative position. Certainly the arraignment of the corporation of the corporation as culpable for seeking an interview with its president on a matter believed by every member of the corporation present at its meting to be of vital importance to the best interests of the institution seems to trench somewhat upon the liberty of its action. To rush into print and to try us by newspaper goes still further. Either the corporation has or it has not the some degree of responsibility for its representatives in its president and professors in the institution.

That it is in no wise responsible for their sayings and doings will not be asserted, and if it has any responsibility whatever the question arises, could its action have been any more conservative? Certainly E. Benjamin Andrews has an undoubted right to speak his mind without offence to or criticism by our corporation, but this right, inalienable in Mr. Andrews, does not dissolve the oath taken by the fellows and trustees, nor justify nor excuse the corporation from taking cognizance of what the mind and speech of the president of Brown university is, as to its effect upon the university, its friends or the public. The exercise of the rights and obligations of every man in civil society must have reasonable limitations dependent upon his position in society, in association with other men.

It is certainly "the decree of God that truth and error shall be loose in the field to grapple and to conquor," but it is also the decree of God that those set in defence of truth as they see it, as is this corporation, shall not install or keep error at the altar of truth.

Corporation's Duties.

The suggestion in the open letter of certain members of the faculty, that the corporation, as such, may enter the political arena in contest with its president to absolve itself from being used in support of political and moral error, indicates that the signers were not blind to the necessity of some action by the corporation in defence of what they hold to be "truth." The further statement that "political compliance is demanded of Mr. Andrews by the corporation" has no justification in the action of the corporation or in any word spoken by any member of it. Such intemperate assertions show that the writer of the open letter did not approach his subject in a judicial spirit and that the signers carefully weigh its words. The corporation feel that the consequences involved in the question at issue between President Andrews and the corporation far transcends in importance any question upon which the great historical political parties in the country grew up. There was no purpose or desire on the part of the corporation "that its president should be officially restrained." It assumed that he would be disposed to think the whole body of his most intimate and devoted official friends might possibly be right and that he would be advised by them in a manner with which they were officially charged.

Certainly the corporation would be humiliated to find that any professor much more its president, did not feel he had "perfect liberty to utterance upon all public questions," but this liberty of its president and of every person officially connected with it, as of every officer of every organized body, does not absolve the corporation from being humiliated by or proud of, as the case may be, and being very largely responsible for the general trend of the public and college teaching of its representatives.

The experience of the centuries has proved that, like churches and their ministers who represent them, institutions of learning and the presidents and professors have the positions of most commanding influence for good or ill of any in the world, and that they invariably mar that work when they turn aside to meddle in current politics, whether right or wrong, and that they do incalculable damage when wrong.

The only safe source of income to a university is mainly from its invested funds. Brown cannot long prosper or even exist as President Andrews has carried it, himself being judge.

Fearing the most disastrous consequences from this misunderstanding of the action of the corporation and possible defeat of its most conservative purpose, by President Andrews and the members of the faculty, the members of the corporation can only most sincerely pray for the continued and enlarged work of th university which has the most sincere love of every one of its members.

Tennyson Memorial Beacon.

London, Aug. 7.—Rev. George Granville Bradley, dean of Westminster, unveiled yesterday on Freshwater downs, Isle of Wight, the Tennyson memorial beacon. The beacon, which will take the place of one that has long stood there, is in the form of an Ionic cross, and is visible for miles. Its site is in the immediate vicinity of the poet's favorite walk. Many Americans contributed to erect the cross. A special interest attached to the ceremony because yesterday was the anniversary of the poet's birth.

The Tiger.

Tiger, tiger, burning bright
In the forest of the night,
What immortal hand or eye
Could frame thy fearful symmetry?

In what distant deeps or skies
Burned the ardor of thine eyes?
On what wings dare he aspire?
What the hand dare seize the fire?

And what shoulder and what art
Could twist the sinews of thy heart?
And when thy heart began to beat
What dread hand forged thy dread feet?

What the hammer? What the chain?
In what furnace was thy brain?
What the anvil? What dread grasp
Dare its deadly terrors clasp?

When the stars threw down their spears
And watered heaven with their tears,
Did he smile his work to see?
Did he who made the lamb make thee?

Tiger, tiger, burning bright
In the forest of the night,
What immortal hand or eye
Dare frame thy fearful symmetry?

—William Blake.

The Song of the Rich.

I sing the song of the fettered rich possessed of superfluous brains.
Hedged in by edicts of social laws, their bright talent buried remains.

If some Flora McFlimsey were poor, all fetters of family pride
Would be cast to the winds, and perchance a new star into fame would glide.

If a genius be born in a hut, some patron will surely be found
To pay for required fledging of wings which will make the genius renowned.

But woe is the genius in purple born with a spirit yearning to soar.
Mrs. Grundy sits grim and shrieks, "Beware!"
before each unconventional door.

She may sing in an amateur way, he may be dilettante in art,
But woe to the one who bursts the bonds! Mrs.
Grundy will make them smart

With her time honored lashing of tongue, while around them will be a clatter,
Like the buzzing of hosts of angry bees, while the horrified gossips chatter.

A Flora McFlimsey Jenny Lind would be genius thrown away.
Not beyond the sacred Four Hundred's walls could her glorious talent have sway.

And then if she dared to lift her voice in aught but conventional way
Her wings would be clipped to social form by critical lectures each day.

Her grandfather's Puritan notions, her grandmother's decorum so prim,
Must bind her poor soul, spite of personal pain,
in the same narrow paths and whim

Till she envies the unfettered poor who may dare to defy the rich
And their petty pride and pedigrees and the dreaded Grundy switch.

Let the rich remain mediocre. 'Tis well nature has seldom tried
To hold fettered by golden shackles the spirit of genius, star eyed.

—Lydia Hoyt Farmer in Boston Ideas.

Byron's Apostrophe to Greece.

Fair Greece, sad relic of departed worth—
Immortal, though no more; though fallen, great—
Who now shall lead thy shatter'd children forth
And long accustom'd bondage uncreate?
Not such thy sons who whilom did await
The hopeless warriors of a willing doom
In black Thermopylæ's sepulchral strait.
Oh, who that gallant spirit shall resume
Leap from Eurota's banks and call thee from the tomb.

In all save form alone how chang'd! And who
That marks the fire still sparkling in each eye,
Who would but deem their bosom burn'd anew
With thy unquenched beam, lost liberty!
And many dream withal the hour is nigh
That gives them back their fathers' heritage.
For foreign arms and aid they fondly sigh
Nor solely dare encounter hostile rage
Or tear their name defil'd from slavery's mournful page.

Hereditary bondsmen, know ye not
Who would be free themselves must strike the blow?
By their right arms the conquest must be wrought.
Will Gaul or Muscovite redress ye? No!
True, they may lay your proud despoilers low,
But not for you will freedom's altars flame.
Shades of the Helots, triumph o'er your foe!
Greece, change thy lords! Thy state is still the same!
Thy glorious day is o'er, but not thy years of shame.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

GOOD LUCK AND PEACE.

How a Rabbit Stopped a Baseball Rebellion.

LYNCH RETIRES ON HIS LAURELS.

For Years He Has Been Recognized as the Premier of Umpires—Never Swayed by Abuse or Threats — Searching Minor Leagues For Talent.

Louisville seems to be the storm center of trouble on the ball field. It was on those grounds last year that Captain Tebeau and some of his men were arrested for alleged disorderly conduct, taken before a magistrate and fined. This year the New York team had its troubles at the same place, with fist fights galore, the arrest of one player, the removal of three or four from the game and the final capture of the field by an army of belligerent rooters. Some one has suggested that such scenes upon the diamond are calculated to kill public interest in the game. I am inclined on general principles to agree with that theory, but in a local sense the effect was shown to be exactly the opposite. On the next day the crowd in attendance was extremely large, and it was evident that many hundreds had come out hoping to see the battle continued, for, next to good whisky and gallantry for women, your Kentuckian loves a rattling fight. But the expected seldom happens. There were early signs of a renewal of hostilities when a very unusual, unexpected and amusing incident occurred to allay the rising storm. The factor was a rabbit which a dog chased into the inclosure. It came running across the field, and in ten seconds the game temporarily broke up while members of both teams joined in the merry chase. A New York player finally captured poor bunny and gave him to a Louisville player, who carried him to the clubhouse. Afterward peace and good fellowship reigned during the game, and the crowd became less boisterous. That little rabbit had accomplished what 20 policemen would have failed to do.

Why should there be more trouble on the Louisville ground than on any other? It is a question which has no easy answer. The suggestion that a huge distillery across the street to windward by its fumes incites the players pugilistically is unfounded, of course. It is surely not the great expectations of the Louisville team which make its friends and its players so extra jealous of its claimed right. Neither this year nor last have there been bright prospects in store for the Colonels, but their friends in the stands root for them with a greater intensity than can be matched on the field of the Boston leaders. There seems to be a natural and general predisposition among Kentucky rooters for the life of the umpire, not any particular umpire, but any old umpire who comes along. This desire is not held in abeyance till he gives some small excuse for dire punishment, but is frequently and loudly proclaimed as soon as the official comes upon the field.

Speaking of umpires is a reminder that the National league loses its premier, its king of the craft, by the resignation of Thomas Lynch, who retires on account of ill health. For ten years he has been President Young's stand by. Every club wanted Lynch for games on the road, but was not calling for his services on the home ground. The reason for this general agreement of clubs was the man's utter impartiality. He always gave decisions as he saw them. To him there was no home club, no visiting club. One got no advantage over the other in his decisions, whereas half the other members of the staff are in the habit of giving the benefit of a doubt to the home club, and this doubt often amounts to a bias. That is why Lynch was in demand on the road, but not among home clubs.

Mr. Lynch has never been swayed by the abuse, threats or antagonism of spectators. Their howling and railing fell from his shoulders like rain from a duck's back. He was insensible to fear and as a consequence was, I believe, never in his career attacked upon the ballfield. His treatment of players was always strictly official. He held aloof from them all and had no friends or associates in the profession, his theory being that so soon as he associated with a few they would try to take advantage of him on the field. Nobody ever saw Tom Lynch lounging around a hotel with the ball players in the evening after or the morning before a game, not that he considered himself above associating with them, but because it was part of his profession to be a stranger to every man with whom he had to deal as an umpire during a game, and it is safe to say he was held in higher respect by the National league players than was any other member of the staff.

The unexpected happened again in that eventful visit of the New York team to Louisville. At the time Manager Joyce and his men struck Kentucky's metropolis the Colonels were and had been for some time in a crippled condition. It looked to Joyce like just reaching out and pulling game after game from the stem. The first game justified this opinion. Then shrewd Joyce insisted on doubling up two postponed games for the next two days. To his surprise the Kentuckians agreed rather handily. Next day the substitutes were all on the bench and the four or five supposed cripples showed up in their regular positions. The result was that, like the hunter who caught the bear, Mr. Joyce would have been willing for some one to come along and help him let go. Instead of a quadruple cinch, it was a triple plated blow on the solar plexus for New York.

This is the season of the year when clubs begin to explore the minor leagues in search of promising talent and to make a few trades among themselves. Especially is this done by those clubs which find themselves out of the race, and there are seven of them in the National at this time. The cause for the raid on minor camps is the waning of the season among the latter organizations. Every minor league club has one or more "crackajacks" just developed. They know that if they keep these men till the end of the season they will get the drafting price, $500, whereas by selling their releases now they will profit by cash contributions from $1,000 to $2,500. Philadelphia, Louisville, Boston, Brooklyn and Pittsburg clubs are especially on the lookout for the new stars of 1897.

The present St. Louis team is a specimen of what a club can do by trading and picking up new players. When the season opened, the general opinion was that Von der Ahe would wreck even the weak team he had, but the result is that today St. Louis has the best team to represent it in three or four years.

Anson has been loyal in his faith in his Colts, and they are rewarding his loyalty by coming up the ladder fast. Early in June, when he seemed hopelessly anchored in eleventh place, he said to me, "One of those clubs in the first division must make room for me, for I'm going to be there sure." Looks as if he made no false claim.

Will Delehanty's batting record of last year of four home runs in one game be equaled this season? McCreary recently made three in a game, and Joyce has a record of four three baggers. This is about the time in the season to expect the best efforts of the big batsmen.

A CHANCE FOR SULLIVAN.

Professor Austin Suggests a Fistic Contest Between Back Numbers.

Professor Alf Austin is 52 years old, but he does not consider his age any good reason why he should not meet John L

ALF AUSTIN.

Sullivan in the ring. Austin now teaches boxing in New York, but he formerly welcomed all comers in cast London. He is 5 feet 10 inches high and weighs 152 pounds. Austin explains his position as follows:

"If Sullivan is, as he appears to be, really anxious to fight, I, who am much more of a 'back number' than himself, will gladly meet him in a fight to a finish or for a limited number of rounds at any time or place that may be mutually satisfactory and for the best purse that may be offered for the contest. In urging my claim for recognition by the former champion of the world I beg to state that from the year 1872 to 1879 I played a prominent part in pugilistic affairs and met and defeated many men who were quite as good as those defeated by Sullivan and who made the former champion's reputation. My forte has been and is skill, quickness and good form. When Sullivan was in his prime, I did not flatter myself that any advantages I had in these respects would be sufficient to enable me to cope successfully with his preponderence of physical power. I think his strength and speed have waned far enough to give me at present an equal chance with him."

Why Cornell Men Are Strong.

Dr. C. K. Adams, president of the University of Wisconsin, who was formerly at Cornell, believes that the strength of Cornell men is due in a great measure to the fact that the students had to climb such steep hills in going and coming from the town to the college and from the lake to the college. His theory, he said, was borne out by the fact that nowhere in any college in the country was there shown such a rapid development of the muscles of the legs and back as was shown by the Cornell students. These are the muscles principally used in rowing. In addition to this, the development in lung power was equal to the development of the other parts of the body. Dr. Adams said this was undoubtedly due to the fact that the college was situated so high above the town, where most of the students lived, and therefore they had to climb hills several times each day. The grade in one street, he said, was the greatest of any road in the country, being 17 per cent. This was the street leading up from the lake. The consequence of this hill climbing was that students developed rapidly. This, in turn, gave them a good foundation for boating and enabled Courtney to turn out such wonderful crews.

English Oarsmen Welcome.

American college men would like to see the rowing stroke question settled by means of such a test as could be made only by the visit of a crack English crew to this country. There appears to be one difficulty about the visit—that of suitable time. The Oxford and Cambridge crews break training immediately after the great tarsity boat race, which is always rowed near Easter Monday. If this obstacle can be surmounted, it is thought there will be no difficulty in a successful consummation of the scheme. There has been considerable discussion as to the advantage of the English stroke over the American, and the Henley regatta is not thought to be a fair opportunity to judge the merits of the two styles.

Croquet Again Popular.

Croquet is again in fashion. One reason is that it is not so expensive as tennis or golf. The ordinary dress for croquet is that which every one wears. Neither knickerbockers nor short skirts are necessary. One does not have to wear a cap; neither is he obliged to provide himself with sticks or other equipment. The host or hostess is bound to provide the balls and mallets for the guests, and this relieves them of an infinite lot of bother. It is not the rule in croquet, as in other games, that one has a favorite mallet or a favorite ball. One may prefer a certain weight mallet, but that can be selected just as a man who goes into a billiard ball to play a game of billiards selects his cue of a certain weight.

HENRIETTA CROSMAN.

A Handsome Actress Who Has Made a Reputation In Many Lines of Work.

The rumor that Henrietta Crosman had retired from the stage "for good and all" gained very general currency some time ago, but the announcement is now made that she will return to the glitter and glory of the footlights early next season. This will be welcome news to patrons of the theater, for Miss Crosman has few equals and no superiors in the lines of work to which she has devoted herself for the last few years.

Miss Crosman was born in Wheeling less than 30 years ago. Her father was an officer in the regular army, and her early youth was spent on the plains, where perhaps she acquired that charming breeziness and freedom from conventionality of manner which have added so greatly to the attractiveness of her stage work. It is said that before she was 10 years of age she was able to converse in four of the Indian dialects.

Her stage debut was made in Bartley Campbell's "The White Slave" when she was 16 and before it was suspected that she was possessed of histrionic ability of more than ordinary quality. She adopted the stage because financial reverses had made it necessary for her to be one of the breadwinners of the family, and she could think of nothing else at which it was probable that she would succeed. It was a fortunate if rather a haphazard selection, for she was shortly afterward engaged by Daniel Frohman for the part of Gladys Wyncot in "The Rajah." Then she began to rise rapidly in her chosen profession, her next engagement being for the title role of "Young Mrs. Winthrop," in which she made the hit of the piece. She then became the leading woman for Edmund Collier, and afterward held similar positions with Robert Downing and Frederick Warde. With all of these the work which she did was, of course, of a serious order, and managers began to marvel at her versatility. Chief among these was Augustin Daly, who at once secured her to play "seconds" to Ada Rehan in his home stock company.

Here, again, she was so successful that Daniel Frohman, regretting that he had not retained her when he had previously had her under his management, made her a handsome offer to become a member of his company at the Lyceum theater, New York, which she accepted. Later he loaned her to his brother Charles for the principal role in "Mr. Wilkinson's Widows," for which he was unable to find a suitable actress. Then occurred the real triumph of Miss Crosman's career. After that piece came "The Junior Partner" and a number of other farcical plays presented by Charles Frohman's comedians, among them being "Gloriana," in which she scored as marked a success as in "Mr. Wilkinson's Widows." For a time she was off the stage, but soon returned to stock work, playing the leads with some of the best companies in the country. Her versatility is so great that it is a common saying in the profession that "Henrietta Crosman can play anything she can look," and inasmuch as she can look almost anything in the way of a heroine there are very few lines of work on the stage from which she is debarred.

Harriet Vernon and Barnato.

The statuesque English beauty, Miss Harriet Vernon, who is now playing at the Oxford Music hall in London, and who is to appear in this country next season, has just returned from Cape Town. She was a fellow passenger on the steamer returning to London with the late Barney Barnato. While the vessel was en route the following incident occurred, which shows the kind heartedness of the diamond king.

Shortly after leaving the Cape a baby was born to one of the steerage passengers. The infant's tenure of life was short, for it lived but two days, owing to the great heat. After the child's body was consigned to the deep Miss Vernon started a subscription, with a liberal gift, for the benefit of the mother. In all nearly $500 was collected, and this was about to be handed over to the beneficiary when Barney Barnato, who had been confined to his cabin through indisposition, heard of the proceedings. Immediately he sent for Miss Vernon and asked how much she had collected. On being told the amount, he produced from his wallet a roll of bank notes and handed the lady a £100 note, with the remark:

"I know what trouble is, and if this will help the baby's mother any God knows she is welcome to it."

Shortly after, when Barney Barnato followed to the deep the body of the child, he left no more sincere mourner aboard the ship than the bereaved mother, the recipient of his generous gift.

Mart Hanley's Story on Himself.

Mart Hanley tells a story on himself which his friends like to repeat. Twenty-seven years ago he played in Salt Lake City in a company made up almost entirely of Brigham Young's followers. He knew the prophet and met most of his wives. Not a day passed without receiving numerous invitations to become a Mormon himself, and comments were to the effect that he would make a fine one.

Mr. Hanley had an interest in the show, but when the first night's receipts were counted there was little or no money visible. There was a pile of paper, however, big enough to fill a wastebasket. They looked like free passes.

Mart didn't say a word, but bided his time, as it turned out. He did get what was coming to him, too, in good gold and silver.

The bits of paper all piled up were a species of promissory notes which were regarded as good as gold, so close and confidential were the relations of the Mormons to each other in those days. They had a habit of going to the theater often and settling by the week or month or whenever it suited their convenience.

The woman who kills her babe by neglect of the health and vigor of her own womanly organism during the period preceding motherhood, is innocently and without realizing it, as much responsible for her child's death, as the mad woman who slays her babe after its birth. Thousands of babes are still-born every year because women innocently and ignorantly neglect, during the expectant period, to take proper care of the delicate and important organs that bear the burdens of maternity.

There is just one known medicine that prepares a woman for capable motherhood. It is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly and only on the organs concerned in motherhood making them strong and healthy. It imparts to them vigor and elasticity. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and gives rest to the tortured nerves. It does away with the discomforts of the expectant period, and makes the coming of baby easy and almost painless. It insures the health of baby. Over 90,000 have testified to its virtues. All good druggists sell it.

"In the fall of 1893," writes Mrs. N. A. Thomas, of 400 Pulaski St., Little Rock, Ark., "while on a visit to Texarkana, Ark., I was taken with a severe pain in my head and was hardly able to get home. I was prostrated for four weeks, not being able to sit up. During that time the doctors failed to give me any relief whatever. At length I was induced to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. One bottle cured me entirely. I felt relieved after the first three doses, and have never felt the pain since. I send this testimonial that others may be benefited by it. Yours with a thousands thanks."

It is as much a woman's duty to look after the health of the family as to care for the cleanliness of the home. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser enables her to do this. It contains 1,008 pages and 300 illustrations, and is written in language that any one may understand. Over a million women own copies. A new edition is just out and for a limited time copies will be given FREE to those who write for them. If you want a paper-covered copy, send twenty-one one-cent stamps, to cover the cost of mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y. Or for cloth binding, send ten cents extra, 31 cents in all.

Keith's Theatre.

There is no disguising the fact that the enlarged number of Symphony Orchestra has been an immense improvement and added immensely to the value of that high class feature of the Keith summer show. It is good news to learn that the management has decided to keep Director Zach and his admirable instrumentalists throughout the present month at least, a new programme of popular music being rendered each week. Mme. Ida Klein, the talented soprano soloist, will sing with the Symphony for another week, and will be heard in new selections. She is a wonderful vocalist. Laura Biggar and Burt Haverly will supply the dramatic feature, presenting a sketch called, "She would be an Actress," which is a reminiscence of "A Trip to Chinatown," in which those two well known players have starred for several seasons. The usual number of changes will be made in the programme of the biograph, which continues one of the most popular features of each week's show. The local Boston pictures are among the best that have been yet exhibited, and are attracting more attention in other cities than they are here.

SPAIN'S PREMIER SHOT TO DEATH.

Senor Canovas the Victim of an Anarchist's Deadly Aim.

GREAT CRISIS FOR GOVERNMENT.

Speculation as to Probable Effect Upon Cuba.

OPINIONS BY SHERMAN AND MORGAN

Canovas Died In His Wife's Presence Hour After the Fatal Bullet Was Fired—He Did Not Recover Consciousness — Murderer Is an Italian — The Cortes Is Summoned.

Madrid, Aug. 9.—Senor Canovas Del Castillo, the prime minister of Spain, was assassinated yesterday at Santa Agueda by an anarchist. The murderer fired three shots, two of which struck the premier in the head and the other in the chest. The wounded man lingered unconscious for two hours and died. His wife was but a short distance away when he fell.

The queen regent, on hearing the sad news, dispatched her own physician, Dr. Bustos, by a special train from San Sebastian. Later, on learning that Canovas was dead, she wired her condolences to the widow.

The health of Senor Canovas had improved greatly of late. He had been leading a very quiet life, although he attended to the business of state.

At the moment of the assassination he was waiting in the gallery of the bathing establishment for his wife, who was to join him for lunch. Suddenly the assassin, who had the appearance of an ordinary visitor, approached and fired at him point blank, one bullet passing through the body and coming out behind under the left shoulder, and the other two lodging in the head. He fell instantly and never recovered consciousness.

Several medical men and his wife were unremitting in their attentions to the sufferer, but his wounds, unhappily, were mortal, and he died in two hours. Extreme unction was administered amid a scene of mingled sorrow and indignation. The assassin narrowly escaped lynching at the hands of the waiters and attendants, who rushed forward. Detectives and civil guards immediately secured him. He was very pale, trembled violently, and evidently feared that he would be killed on the spot.

SENOR CANOVAS.

He will be first arraigned before the local magistrates at Vergara.

The queen regent and all the members of the cabinet returned here today. Her majesty has entrusted the presidency of the council to General Azcarraga, the minister of war, and the cortes will be summoned to reassemble tomorrow.

The greatest excitement and indignation prevails among all classes. All the members of the diplomatic corps have expressed their sympathy with the government. Many senators, deputies and generals, while expressing their grief and indignation, have offered to render the government all the assistance in their power.

It was at first rumored that the assassin was one of the pardoned Barcelona anarchists, but this is not confirmed.

The murderer declares that he killed Senor Canovas "in accomplishment of a just vengeance," and that the deed is the outcome of a vast anarchist conspiracy.

He is believed to have arrived at Santa Agueda the same day as the premier, and he was frequently seen lurking in the passages of the bathing establishment in a suspicious manner.

"I have heard with deep pain of the crime that has thrown us all into mourning, and I place myself at the orders of the government and of the queen."

The remains of Senor Canovas will be brought here today. Marshal Martinez Campos has gone to San Sebastian to attend the queen regent. Senor Sagasta, the Liberal leader, has sent the following telegram to the government:

Most of the Liberal leaders have sent similar messages, placing themselves at the disposal of the government.

Senor Antonio Canovas del Castillo, according to the Dictionnaire Universel des Contemporains, was born at Malaga, Feb. 8, 1828. He took the course in philosophy and law in the University of Madrid, and began his career as a journalist. In 1851 he made his debut, under the patronage of Senors Rios, The Patria, in which he defended conservative ideas. About this time he published a volume of lyric poems and a series of historical papers. He was in doubt whether to follow a literary or political career, but soon found himself turned to politics by the course of events. In 1852 he was named deputy for Malaga, and from that time to his death had never ceased to occupy a seat in the cortes. In 1856 he was charge d'affairs at Rome, and prepared the historical memorandum on the relations of Spain with the holy see, which served as a basis for the concordat.

After serving the crown as governor of Cadiz in 1855, director general of the administration from 1858 to 1861, and lastly, in that same year, as under secretary of state for the interior, the queen called him to the ministry as a member of the Mon cabinet. In 1865 he held the portfolios of finance and the colonies in the O'Donnell cabinet, and it devolved upon him to draw up the law for the abolition of the slave trade. Shortly before the revolution of 1868 he became especially conspicuous as one of the last to defend with energy in the cortes the principle of blending liberal with conciliatory ideas with the constitutional monarchy when all the parties that had supported this political doctrine had deserted the parliament. He was banished a short time before the revolution occurred and took no part in it.

Triumphant Return From Exile.

In the face of the triumphant revolution, after his return from exile, and in the full constituent assembly of 1863, supported by Senors Elduayom, Bugallal and two others, he hoisted the standard of legitimate and consittutional monarchy. This is his greatest title to fame. His fidelity and ability finally secured for him the supreme direction of the Alfonsist party, and on the proclamation of Alfonso XII as king, Dec. 31, 1874, Senor Canovas del Castillo became president of the council and chief of the new cabinet, called the cabinet of conciliation. He retired in September, 1875, because of the demands of the extreme conservative party, but he was called back to the presidency of the council on Dec. 2 of the same year, and charged particularly with the direction of the first legislative election of the new regime. He was himself elected to the cortes from the city of Madrid in January, 1876. It devolved upon him then to repress the second attempt of the Carlists to bring on a civil war and to deal with the first insurection in Cuba.

SENOR SAGASTA.

With the exception of an interval of a few months, he continued to hold the premiership down to 1879, when, on the return of Marshal Martinez Campos from Cuba, he retired from the premiership and was succeeded by Campos, who accepted as his colleagues the principal associates of Senor Canovas. The opposition raised to the policy of Campos soon forced him to retire. Senor Canovas skillfully resisted, delayed and finally defeated the free trade and emancipation projects of Campos. On the reassembling of the cortes in December, 1879, Campos gave up the attempt to conduct the government, and Senor Canovas formed a new cabinet on Dec. 10 with a second Cuban insurrection to be dealt with. He charged General Blanco with this task, but the reactionary tendency of his home policy became more and more marked until the financial projects, in which he wished to embark drew upon him the bitter attacks not only of Casteler and the Rebuplicans but also those of Campos and Sagasta and he was compelled to resign. In 1881 he again returned to power, but his conservative cabinet was speedily overthrown and a coalition government with Sagasta and Campos at its head took the reins of affairs.

His Policy Sustained.

At the general election of the same year, he was returned to the cortes from Madrid and became the chief spokesman of the intermediate party, known as the party of conservative liberals. On Jan 18, 1884, he was called upon to form a conservative ministry. In order to secure a majority, devoted, like himself

Vigilant Won the Morgan Cup In Fair Wind and Fine Weather.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 9.—The double century yacht race of the New York Yacht club from Vineyard Haven to Mount Desert for $5000 worth of cups offered by Commodore Morgan was finished yesterday afternoon off Baker's island light under the towering mountains of the famous Maine resort, with the sloop Vigilant leading the fleet of 20 sail by many miles, after a run marked throughout by smooth seas and following winds.

The Vigilant won the cup in the sloop class, leading Navahoe at the finish 50 minutes. The race in the schooner class was much closer, and Colonia, although finishing 10 minutes ahead of Emerald, won the $2000 cup by only 21 seconds.

The race was a tremendous success, and was not only extremely gratifying to its energetic originator, J. Pierpont Morgan, but will go down in history as one of the greatest of the long distance races of American yachting. From the time the calm spot was left two hours after the start there was not a semblance of anything disagreeable in the entire run. The east wind came in just in time to blow the fleet clear of the treacherous Nantucket shoals before darkness settled down and then shifting to southward and west, not only held true and steady throughout the beautiful night, but kept up all day Sunday and never wavered until the last boat had crossed the finish line. The great yachts of America's oldest club accomplished what has heretofore never been attempted, of sailing all night without taking in a single stitch of canvas or shortening a spar. It must be said that such a feat was due in a great measure to the surpassing weather, and probably could never be repeated. The entire 178 miles from Pollock Rip lightship was sailed without a sheet or halyard being pulled.

From the start it looked like a fine race between Vigilant and Navahoe, Colonia and Emerald, and Wasp and Queen Mab. As it turned out Vigilant had a walkover, but the race between the other two pairs was close and exciting throughout. After establishing a lead of over a mile before getting over Nantucket shoals, Emerald gradually dropped back to her rival, until shortly before midnight the two schooners were even. From that time until within 40 miles of the finish it was most exciting until 11 o'clock when Colonia pulled out and led to the finish.

The next boats to finish were Amorita and Wasp, and each took $1000 cups in their respective classes, the former in the second class schooners and the latter in the second class sloops.

From the start the old timers had no show with the modern cracks and fell astern rapidly, and with the little sloops made up what was called the second division of the race.

The consecration of Mgr. Paul Bruchesi as archbishop of Montreal took place yesterday.

Allen S. Weeks, a widely known Boston business man, died yesterday at Fairhaven, Mass.

John White, aged 20, was drowned yesterday at Costigan, Me., by the overturning of a canoe.

Ben Oak, aged 22, committed suicide by jumping off the railroad bridge into the Kennebec river at Skowhegan, Me. He had been insane for some time.

William B. Felts did not take his aeroplane jump from Pikes Peak, Colo., yesterday. With the conditions of cloud and fog it would have been a blindfolded leap to certain destruction.

Henry Gallagher, an officer in the house of reformation for juvenile offenders at Long Island, was found dead in a room on Hanover street, Boston, yesterday, with the gas turned on.

The body of Henry Powers, a surfman at Wood End (Mass.) lifesaving station, was found by his comrades yesterday three miles west of Weed End. Powers started on the watch at midnight in a small canoe, and in some way unexplainable the canoe capsized.

A horse and carriage belonging to Sanford C. Smith of Bangor, Me., were stolen from his barn Saturday night. The animal is a gray mare, 8 years old, and weighs 1050 pounds. The carriage is a Bangor covered buggy, Thom's make, nearly new. The harness is new, with light colored reins. The carriage had a plaid lap robe.

Clambake Party.

It was a jolly party that gathered at Pawsey's at Rock Island Saturday afternoon. It included many well known citizens and was for two purposes, viz: to celebrate the birthday anniversary of one of the party, Mr. Charles H. Winslow, and to enjoy one of Pawsey's genuine Rhode Island clambakes. The clambake was all that could be desired, and was pronounced "out of sight," and the party did its best to put it out of sight, succeeding admirably.

During the afternoon Mr. Winslow was presented with a roll-top desk, the presentation speech being delivered by Deputy Sheriff George H. Field, to which Mr. Winslow responded.

A Lost Boy.

Officer O'Brien, while doing duty at Quincy Point on Sunday, found a five year old boy wandering about who was lost. He sent the little fellow to the police station where attempts were made to obtain from the little fellow his name and where his home was, but all they could find out was that his name was Smith. About 7 o'clock William Smith of South Walnut street came to the police station to report the loss of his boy and was rejoiced to find him safe and sound.

Nearly a Blaze.

Shortly after 11 o'clock Sunday night Officer Barry discovered that the oil lamp left burning in the Boston Branch grocery had taken fire. He aroused Mr. James Merrill and the store was entered and the flames smothered. The fire had melted part of the lamp and had it not been discovered it would not have been many minutes before the oil in the pipes would have run over onto the floor and the fire department would have been necessary.

All Aboard for Squantum.

The new street railway extension from Atlantic is fast nearing completion. The court refused to grant the injunction prayed for by Ella Carver and Harry W. Read, and now nothing stands in the way of completing and operating the line. But little more remains to be done and the new line will probably be opened Saturday afternoon. Plans for the celebration are not complete as yet, but the affair will include a band concert and clambake at Squantum.

Dismissed Under Charges.

George S. Keyes of this city was discharged on Saturday from the naval office at the custom house, where he has been a clerk for a number of years. Charges were preferred against him last month. The order for dismissal was received on Saturday and took affect forthwith.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

GREAT SCRUB RACE.

Cruisers of Quincy Yacht Club Show Their Mettle.

The Vexer Made the Best Actual Time over Course.

Little Supero Well Handled and Won on Corrected Time.

The jolliest, hottest and all round liveliest race which has ever been sailed under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club was the scrub race for cruising yachts, which was sailed off the club house at Houghs Neck on Saturday afternoon.

The air was not all that could be wished for by the cruising skippers; a double-reef breeze would have been more to their liking. What little there was came from the eastward. At the time Mr. Whiting, the judge, fired the preparatory gun it was nearly a flat calm. That did not deter the boys from peeling off their jackets and starting out for blood.

At 3.30 the starting gun was fired. The boats had a leeway of ten minutes in which to cross the line, the time being reckoned from the time each one crossed and not on the gun fire. This gave some of the wise ones a chance to loaf around for a breeze before having their time taken by the judge. Capt. Will Shaw held his boat back until 20 seconds after the time limit was up, but by doing so he tumbled into a good breeze and made the best actual time over the course.

The Supero, the little cat, only 14 ft. 6 in. on the water line, was one of the best handled boats among the thirteen yachts which crossed the line. She won the first prize. She got a good start and held her own with the larger boats throughout the race.

The summary:

Name and owner.	Act. time. h. m. s.	Allowance.	Cor. time. h. m. s.
Supero, Charles Alden	1 37 05	20	1 17 05
Dorothy, F. F. Crane	1 40 01	20	1 20 01
Tantrum, Whittemore & Johnson	1 38 35	15	1 23 35
Stella Manning, Glover Bros.	1 30 06	5	1 25 06
Vexer, W. H. Shaw	1 25 20	0	1 25 20
Don, C. E. Pierce	1 34 25	9	1 25 25
Thisbe, H. W. Robbin	1 31 13	5	1 26 13
Kitty, J. H. Evans	1 48 19	20	1 28 19
Elsie, G. Keating	1 45 14	10	1 35 14
Viento, A. A. Myers	1 50 16	20	1 30 16

The handicaps will probably be revised before next Saturday's race.

GRANITE MEN SWINDLED

A Collector Takes the Concord Manufacturers Into Camp.

Quincy granite manufacturers may be put upon their guard, if they are not in the same boat, by developments at Concord, N. H. A dispatch from that city to the Herald says:

The 14th of last May a man calling himself O. F. Bateman and claiming to represent Sprague's collecting agency of Chicago came to this city and solicited from granite manufacturers claims for collection against parties residing in the West. Hard times had made it difficult to collect debts for granite sold in that section of the country, and Bateman's proposition to collect bills to an amount of $500 for a commission of $100 was favorably received, and 11 prominent manufacturers placed claims aggregating about $5066 in his hands upon the terms stated.

These parties have received no money upon their claims from Bateman or the collecting agency, but have been called upon by local banks to pay notes signed by them for $100 each.

They say that just before Bateman left the city he brought to each manufacturer a document which he said was a retainer blank, or guarantee that they had given him claims to collect, and which he asked them to sign.

After this was done he said that he was to keep the retainer in his possession, but that he should send a copy to the agency. The manufacturers allege that he asked for and obtained their signatures, also, to the duplicate, but when they appended their names the original covered the copy so they could not see what they signed.

Some time afterward the manufacturers received communications from a Chicago broker to the effect that he had bought their notes and would sell them to them for a 5 per cent. discount. Their reply was that they had given no notes, and if any were out they were fraudulent, but each was notified, late last week, by banks here, to pay the notes which had been sent to them for collection. The manufacturers insist that they are victims of a swindle and will decline to meet the demands.

Trees Slashed.

The residents of Brook street, one of Wollaston most beautiful thoroughfares, are again up in arms against the Electric Light Co. for trimming the shade trees which border the northerly side of that street. The residents of that street would much prefer, it is understood, to have that thoroughfore lighted by gas than to have their trees ruined by the electric light employes. One beautiful maple tree on the estate of Samuel F. Howard was badly cut up. In some cases the electric light employes were peremptorily ordered to cease trimming or legal action would be taken The feeling against the company is very bitter.

Q. Y. C. OPEN RACES.

A Series of Three to be Sailed Next Week.

An event of the year in yachting circles is the "Quincy week" when three open races are given or successive days by the Quincy yacht club off the clubhouse at Houghs Neck. They are sailed under the rules of the Yacht Racing Association of Massachusetts, and are open to all yachts of the regular classes entered in the Association. Yachts not previously entered may enter at any time previous to the race with A. T. Bliss, Secretary, Y. R. A. of M., No. 111 Milk street, Boston.

There will be six classes and the prizes will be $10 and $5, except in the knockabout class, where there will be but one prize of $10.

The course for the first and two second classes will be: Across the line between Judges' stand and flag-float, leaving flag-float on the port and Q. Y. C. Barrel buoy off Raccoon Island on the starboard, to Channel Rock buoy, leaving it on the port; thence leaving barrel off Sheep Island on the starboard to Black Can buoy No. 1, leaving it on the starboard; thence to Red Brush buoy No. 2 in Hingham Channel, leaving it on the port; thence to Red Dolphin on Seal Rocks, leaving it on the port; thence leaving Sheep Island on the port to Channel Rock buoy, leaving it on the starboard; then leaving barrel buoy off Raccoon Island on the port to and across starting line, leaving the flag-boat on the starboard. Distance, ten miles.

The other classes will sail either course 2 or 3, one being the reverse of the other. Course No. 2 is: Across line between Judges' stand and flag boat, leaving flag-boat on starboard, to Spar buoy between Sheep and Grape Islands, leaving it on the starboard; thence to the buoy on Jack-knife ledge leaving it on starboard; thence leaving barrel buoy, off Raccoon Island on the port; thence to flag-boat near Judges' float, leaving it on the starboard; thence to Spar buoy between Sheep and Grape Islands leaving it on the starboard; thence to buoy on Jack-knife Ledge, leaving it on the starboard; thence leaving barrel buoy, off Raccoon Island on the port, to the Judges' stand, passing between it and a flag-float. Distance, seven miles.

The start for all classes will be flying; time taken from starting signal. Course numbers will be hoisted on the judges' stand to indicate the courses to be sailed by the different classes. If in any case there should be a failure to fire the gun, the lowering of the blue peter will be the signal to start. If the first signal is delayed the same intervals will be observed between the other signals. At 2.30 P M, the first or preparatory gun will be fired and the blue peter hoisted on the judges' stand on the club float At 2 35 P. M, the second gun and lowering of blue peter will be signal for First Class to start and the others will follow at five-minute intervals.

Corinthian Open Race.

Four straight victories in open races was the record of H. M. Faxon's Cleopatra at Marblehead last week. In Saturday's race of the Corinthian club the Omeme beat her boat for boat but fell behind on time allowance. The Privateer also won in her class on time allowance. The order in each class was:

First class,—Ida J., Asahi, Elfreda, Little Peter, Emma C., Beatrice, Clara, Wanaissa.

Second-class,—Hoodlum, Romance.

Second-cabin,—Privateer, Nettie, Susie.

Third-class,—Vamoose, Snipe II, Perhaps, Wrinkle, Sphinx, Arab III, Yahoo, Watoye.

Cats, Class A,—Cleopatra, Omeme, Koorali.

Fourth-class,—Fantasy, Alpine, Vitesse.

Knockabouts,—Gosling, Cockatoo, Mongoose, Fly, Hazard, Sally III, Jacobin.

Handicap Knockabouts,—Dorothy, Water Lily, Mayona, Comet, Mara, Ruth.

Off on a Cruise.

Commodore Frank Burgess of the Wollaston Yacht club with Mr. Charles H. Burgess, Mr. Charles H. MacQuarrie and Mr. James Farquhar as guests on his yacht Burgess, and Rear Commodore E. Hardy of the same club, with Mr. Nate Hardy, Mr. E. A. Merrill and Clair L. Baker of Wollaston, on his yacht Magnolia, started at 9 A M today for a cruise along the north shore. They intend to visit Marblehead, Gloucester, Annisquam, Rockport and other places around Cape Ann. They will be away a week or ten days.

Hay Rack Party.

Miss Alice Hultman entertained a party of young people on Saturday evening with a hay-rack ride. At 6 o'clock Penniman & Son's hay-rack, drawn by a pair of horses drew up in front of Miss Hultman's home. The bottom of the rack was covered thick with straw and the sides with boughs. The party were soon aboard, including the chaperon, and away they went with a shout. The ride included the several villages of Weymouth, the return being at 10 o'clock, when Councilman and Mrs. Hultman served a lunch.

W. Y. C. LADIES' DAY.

The First of the New Club a Social Success.

A Wholesail Breeze Made the Sail Very Enjoyable.

A List of the Yachts and Guests to Participate.

The first annual Ladies' Day given by the Wollaston Yacht club was on Saturday afternoon and was participated in by over a hundred and ten ladies and gentlemen, who will not soon forget the pleasant time they had during the afternoon and evening.

A sail about the bay from 3 30 to 6 P. M. and the promenade concert in the evening by Robinson's orchestra from 8 to 11 were fully enjoyed.

Lemonade, ice cream and cake were served during the afternoon and evening. Everybody appeared to be happy, and manifested their pleasure of frequent expressions of delight at the manner in which they were entertained; not forgetting the perfect weather they were blessed with.

The sail which at first threatened to be a dismal failure from the fact that just after the boats passed in review of the Commodore the light east wind completely died out and left the whole fleet in a dead calm, was almost immediately dispelled by a good wholesail breeze coming up from the southwest, which not only filled the sails of the handsome yachts, but also filled the hearts of those on board with joy.

The names of the yachts with their owners and guests follow:

Yacht BURGESS,—Commodore Frank Burgess and wife, Miss Caroline Lord, Miss Grace Lord, Mr. W. I. Thing, Mr. E. F. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Page and Mr. and Mrs. Alva W. Polk.

Yacht ESTHER,—Capt. H. A. Newman and wife, Mr. H. Newman, Master A. W. Newman, Mrs. T. Lewis, Mrs. Geo. H. Garvin.

Yacht THELMA,—Capt. E. A. Merrill, Mrs. Eliza Knowlton, Mrs. Frank Knowlton, Miss Emily Bjorkman, Mr. Geo. C. Ela.

Yacht SEA GULL.—Capt. H. A. Rideout and wife, Mr. A. E. Brownville, Master Worth Brownville, Mr. I. Fay Davidson, Mr. Percy Davidson.

Yacht GYPSY,—Capt. John Stuart and wife, Master James L. Stuart, Miss Mary A. Redican.

The committee in charge, to whom the success of the day is due, was: T. C. Gram, chairman; Charles W. Page, A. L Baker, J. S. Baker, George W. Davis and William G. Wallace.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

Science In Cooking.

There is always one standard of excellence in every article, reached alone by perseverance and untiring efforts to serve the best. The line of distinction is more marked in Ranges than in anything else we know of,—some good, some bad, some indifferent, all claiming to be the best.

Glenwood Ranges alone stand like a shining star among the ranges of today. Their excellence in every detail marks a new era in range construction, sought for nearly a hundred years in the past, by first one maker and then another. If you need a new range, why not have the best, they cost no more than the other kinds, if you buy them here,—$18.00 to $33.00, and you're sure to get the genuine article at this store alone. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded, a reasonable allowance for your old range, and a range on trial if you wish.

COUNTY AND VICINITY

—The shoe factory of T. J. Evans & Co. at East Weymouth was practically destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon. A general alarm was sounded about noon and the department prevented the fire spreading, but it was the hardest fire in the town for some time. Loss on building, $3,000; insured for $1,500. Loss on stock, $15,000; insured for $11,000.

—The Butcher Boy and Union of Braintree, Chauncey of Hyde Park, Hancock of Brockton, and 17 other hand engines are entered for the muster at Crescent Park, R. I., next Thursday.

—Mrs. H. A. J. Shaw and Miss Annie N. Shaw of Braintree are at the Rangeley lakes.

—The tax rate of Avon is $19 60. The valuation of the whole town is but $812,010, and $15,410 was the total town tax. The town has 484 polls.

—Rev. James J. Keegan of Randolph said good bye to his people on Sunday, having been transferred to Woburn. During his nine years' ministry St. Mary's church has been enlarged and beautified.

—E. Waters Burr of Hingham died Sunday. He was a promint citizen and a member of South Shore commandery. Funeral Tuesday.

TODAY'S COURT.

Samuel H. Cushing was fined $7 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

George S. Magoon was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

John Gillmore was arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth. Case continued three months.

Herman Martin was fined $5 for drunkeness at Quincy.

The continued cases of Joseph Whiting for illegal sale, and William S. Clark for keeping with intent to sell at Braintree, were called, and again continued until Aug. 30.

Charles Shea, who was arrested Saturday night and bailed out, did not answer to his name when it was called this morning and he was defaulted.

New Phase of Thorn-Nack Case.

Norfolk, Aug. 9.—A Mr. Rich, a publisher of Petersburg, has arrived in Norfolk in quest of evidence to support his assertion that the mutilated body supposed to be that of William Guldensuppe is really that of Young Edwards of Petersburg, a photographer, who went to New York in search of work, and who disappeared mysteriously about the same time Guldensuppe is supposed to have been murdered. Rich says that he has an unbroken chain of evidence which establishes the identity of the mutilated body as that of Edwards.

Suspected to Be a Filibuster.

Messrs. John J. Keenan and M. J. O'Hara spent Sunday in Portland.

Mr. Chas. F. Merrick and family have gone to North Brookfield for two weeks.

Mrs. Charles H. Winslow and Master Winslow are visiting friends at Rockland.

Mr. and Mrs. James Titer of Cambridge were the guests of Mr. P. Barry on Sunday.

The Rev. Rufus B. Tobey of Wollaston will pass a part of the summer in Europe.

The Rev. Frederick Alvord preached at the Wollaston Congregational church on Sunday.

Miss Sarah Garrity of Summer street has gone to Bangor, Me., for two weeks' vacation.

Mr. A. B. Fitts took a prize at a progressive euchre party at Bethlehem, N H., last week.

Over 500 bicycles per hour passed over Hancock street, between Adams street and the fountain on Sunday.

Miss Vining will give a whist party at Hull on Thursday for the benefit of Adams chapter, D. A. R.

Mrs. Chas. Hyde and two children of Malden are the guests of Mrs. James Curtin of Atlantic street.

Mr. Charles R Maybury and family have returned home, spending last week with his parents at the Point.

Mrs. Beatrice Porterfield of Granite street is visiting friends at Stonington, Conn., for the month of August.

Mr. Arthur T. Reed and party of the Quincy Yacht club left on the yacht Trump for a cruise to the eastward on Saturday.

W. S. Weaver, ticket agent at Atlantic station, has gone to New Bedford on a short visit, and Mr. McCoy of Boston is taking his place.

The police were summoned to Squantum on Sunday and a squad of eight went down. But the fellows saw them coming and put off in a boat and escaped.

It is almost unnecessary to say that there was a large attendance at the band concert in City square on Saturday evening, and that it was as enjoyable as usual.

Miss Jessie MacMillan, a graduate of St. Luke's Hospital, San Francisco, Cal., has returned from that city and is staying with her sister, Mrs. A. Clark of Payne street.

"The Rhine to Vesuvius" will be the subject of Rev. A. A. Brown's lecture on Thursday evening. He has just returned from a European tour.

According to percentages kept by the Massachusetts Yacht Racing Association the leading yachts of their classes are the Little Peter, Hoodlum, Muriel, Rooster, Vitesse and Cock Robin.

Fifteen cars were on the move at one time on Sunday between Quincy and Neponset. Cars in opposite directions often met between turnouts, and the need of double tracks was apparent.

Dr. H. A. Jones, Mr. Charles H. Hayward and Mr. Walter D. Harding, all members of the Quincy Yacht club, returned from a cruise to the eastward on the yacht Evelyn. They went as far east as Portland.

Quincy was represented Sunday at the meeting in Boston college hall to make arrangements for the entertainment of the delegates to the Young Men's Catholic National Union in Boston Aug. 31 and Sept. 1.

Capt. H. Waite of the Winthrop Yacht club, and wife, Miss Grace Waite, Miss Bertha Griffin of Winthrop, Mr. Fred Moore and Mr. Clarence Moore of Malden, on board the yacht "Scat," visited the Wollaston Yacht club on Saturday afternoon and were entertained by Commodore Burgess.

The Volunteers of America are being highly appreciated by the Quincy and neighboring public. Rev. Da Barrett assisted by Capt. Shaw and H. Brown have held meetings in several churches here and have seen success. Capt. Albert Shaw and H. Brown will remain here one week.

Mrs. Harriet M. Stone, formerly of Quincy, died in Vassalboro, Maine, Saturday, aged seventy-three years. Mrs. Stone was a sister of the late John T. Veazie and formerly resided in Quincy, but of late years she has lived in Boston. The body was brought to Quincy this morning and funeral services will be held Wednesday.

Mr. Eugene O'Connor is enjoying a brief vacation from his laborious duties at the Boston custom house.

Mrs. Edwin W. Newcomb, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Walker, Miss Carlena Walker, and Master Brewster Walker are registered at the Mascot house, Orrs Island, Me,

Rev. Mr. Benedict, a cousin of Rev. George Benedict, a former pastor of the Washington Street Congregational church, occupied the pulpit Sunday morning and preached a very interesting sermon. No service was held in the evening, other than the Y. P. S. C. E. society, and there will not be any through the month of August.

HOUGHS NECK.

Sunday was a splendid day at the Neck and storekeepers had nothing to complain of. Bicycles arrived in squads. The Dorchester wheelmen arrived with thirty-seven of their members, and all wheelmen made good use of the free checking system. Bay completely white with sails and they had an elegant wind.

Residents swarmed like bees from their houses to hear the airs of Brown's Brigade band which plays so well on Sundays and week days. The band will not play hereafter at Houghs Neck on Tuesday and Saturday evening, but will play in Quincy square.

The Buckeye club of Boston are making quite a stop at Ferris hotel. There are thirty of them in all.

Master Joseph and William Dolan of Roxbury are spending their vacations with their parents in the Bijou cottage.

Mrs. Duffee of Cambridge, Miss K. Sullivan, Miss G. Goodman, Miss M. Carey, Miss Craven, Miss Jennie Somerville of Cape Cod, Mr. M. Pigott of Boston were the guests of the Loretto hotel Sunday. More expected today.

The cadets of the Loretto will take a trip to Bass Point, Nahant, next Wednesday headed by Old Hoss Clark.

Mr. J F. Johnson and family, from New York will be the guests of Mr. G. F. Nolen at his cottage on Bay View avenue, for a week or two.

Mr. Edward Wilkinson and Mr. B. W. Squires of Dorchester were the guests of Mrs. Eastman on Sunday at the Dot Cottage.

Miss May Walsh and Miss May Dunn were the guests of Miss Winnie Garbarino at the Cosey Cottage on Sunday.

Mr. Richard Powers of Roxbury was the guest of Mr. Albert Blieller on Sunday at the Heath Cottage, on Manet avenue.

Peddlers at the Neck are as thick as flies.

Mr. L. A. Hoey spent Sunday with his folks at the Delmonte Cottage.

Mr. Herman Mittel, Miss Emma Mittel of Jamaica Plain were the guests of Mr. Henry Hoey at the Loretto house on Sunday.

Miss Lizzie Keogh of Crosby street has been quite sick.

A small bicycle party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Everett E. Ryder of Norfolk Downs, Mr. P. A. Valencia and Mr. Stedman of Cambridge, were entertained as guests of Mrs. J. W. Maynard at the Eight Bells cottage.

A very exciting game of ball was played Saturday morning and afternoon in Littlefield's field between the Pioneers of Houghs Neck and the Quincy Reds of Quincy. The Quincy Reds of Quincy being the victors in the morning by a score of 27 to 18, and in the afternoon the Pioneers had it all their own way being the victors by a score of 18 to 4.

The time of the tides for a week in advance is now a daily feature of the Houghs Neck column:

Easy for Wollaston.

The Wollastons played the Fort Points of Weymouth on Saturday. J. Orcutt made a pretty home run out in right field. Hayden made a three-base hit and brought in three runs in the third innings. A. Burckstead made three good catches out in centrefield.

There was sport when McLoud of the Fort Points, while standing within two feet of first, was caught napping. It was one of Catcher Mannings famous plays. The Fort Point pitcher got nervous in the eighth and ninth innings and let the Wollastons roll up eight runs. By innings the score was:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Wollastons	1	0	6	0	1	0	0	4	4	—16
Fort Points	0	0	1	3	0	0	1	1	0	— 6

—The Suburban Press Association has lately been utilizing the monthly meetings by visiting the several large and notable printing establishments in and around Boston. The Association has already inspected the Riverside Press and the Youth's Companion, and will next month pay a visit to Ginn & Co.'s plant at Cambridge. We would suggest that after the two binderies here are in full operation the Association be invited to visit the Norwood Press and the Plimpton press and bindery. —Norwood Advertiser.

AND STILL THEY GO.

Eight Hundred Prospective Millionaires Start For Klondyke.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 9.—The steamer Williamette, which was scheduled to clear from this port Friday, but which was delayed in San Francisco, sailed yesterday with 800 passengers and a heavy general cargo for Dyea. If she had the capacity she could have had five times as many passengers. The gold seekers will not be satisfied until they are off for the Klondyke, although they know that their chance of getting through this season is very slim.

Because of this it is now estimated that 10,000 men will leave this port for Dyea, Juneau and St. Michael before Sept. 1.

The schooner Bryan, formerly a sealer, is now in dock here, being made ready to be changed about within a week. Between the work of changing these vessels about and loading others, the waterfront fairly hums with activity.

Furthermore, there is every indication that the activity will not cease for months to come, the North American Transportation company, the pioneer in the Alaskan trade, which has been and is today looked upon as a most conservative enterprise, having contracted with local shipbuilders for three steamboats, one steam barge and a tug for use on the Yukon river, these to be added to its present fleet of four boats now in trade there. They also announce that they have contracted with the Cramps for two steel passenger steamers of 2000 tons burden, to be completed by spring, for trade between Seattle and St. Michael.

This company has been regarded as inclined to be on the safe side and move in its extensive enterprises slowly but surely. The rapid strides it is now making are impressing the belief upon the people that Alaska and the Yukon have greater surprises than have yet been revealed.

New York to Klondyke Direct.

New York, Aug. 9.—The first ship sailing from New York direct to the Klondyke gold fields is advertised to leave this city about Aug. 21. The company has not yet selected its vessel, but it promises to dispatch a steamship capable of carrying safely 200 passengers and 1500 tons of freight. It says the ship will make the voyage from New York around Cape Horn to Juneau in 50 or 60 days. More than 50 names have been listed for the voyage, according to John R. Weeks, the secretary and treasurer. Not more than 200 passengers will be allowed to embark. The cost per passenger, including brth, meals and transportation of 500 pounds of baggage direct to Juneau, is to be $175.

Despondent Klondykers.

McArthur, O., Aug. 9.—Clark Davis left last Thursday to go hunting with a double-barrelled shotgun, and failed to return. A searching party yesterday found him dead. His head was partly blown off. His gun lay across his breast, the muzzle applied to his mouth. Deceased was 24 years of age. He set out with a number of young men a week ago with $75 to go to the Alaskan gold fields. Despondency over his failure is supposed to have led him to self-destruction.

Still Fighting In India.

London, Aug. 9.—A dispatch to The Times from Simla says that another outbreak is officially reported on the Afghan frontier. The mullah, who preached against England during the Chitral campaign, has again stirred up strife in the Mohmand country by representing that the success of the Turks in Europe provides a favorable opportunity for defying English rule. He has gathered some thousands of followers. As it was too late for him to assist in the attack on Camp Malakand he attacked Fort Shabkadr, 18 miles from Peshawar. The attack was made Saturday. The police and garrison beat off the natives, who then burned a Hindoo village and killed some of the inhabitants. A strong force of cavalry, infantry and artillery has been sent from Peshawar to punish the rebels, and it is reported that they have fled and recrossed the frontier.

Seal Question to Be Opened.

New York, Aug. 9.—John W. Foster, ex-secretary of state, having reported to Secretary Sherman in Washington on Saturday the result of his work across the Atlantic on the seal question, has returned to this city on his way to Lake Champlain to see President McKinley. A reporter found Mr. Foster in the Fifth Avenue hotel, but he was scarcely more communicative than he was upon his return from Europe. However, he confirmed the report that the whole question would be reopened at the conference to be held in Washington in October.

Double Century Record Lowered.

Norwood, Mass., Aug. 9.—Warren S. Taylor, president of the Norwood Cycle club, yesterday rode 200 miles on a bicycle in 15 hours 4 minutes, and his actual riding time 12 hours 36 minutes.

A STRANGE BIRD.

The Bustard Is a Stately Creature and Is Gradually Becoming Extinct.

The bustard has become extinct in Great Britain and cannot be found in America. It is true there is a so called bustard in British America, but it is really the Canadian goose. Spain and Africa are the chief strongholds of the family, many well marked species being found in these countries. India, too, has at least three distinct species. Australia possesses at least one large species.

It was thought at one time that the bustard was nearly allied to the ostrich, but that is a mistaken view. He would seem to be more nearly related to the cranes in one direction and the plovers in another.

A male bustard measures from the tip of its bill to the end of its tail 4 feet or thereabout, and its wings have an expanse of 8 feet or more—double its length. If put on the scales, it would weigh from 22 to 32 pounds, according to age. The female bird is smaller. There is nothing ridiculous about the appearance of the bustard, although when compared with other birds frequenting open places its legs are very short. Indeed, it is quite a stately creature, and when on the wing almost as majestic as the eagle.

The bustard's bill appears longer than it really is on account of the flatness of the head. The neck of the male is thick, particularly at certain seasons, and at such times he carries his tail in an upright position, turning it frequently forward, twisting his head and neck along his back in a most curious manner. It is then, too, he droops his wings and erects their shorter feathers. The appearance is most strange—for tail, head and neck are almost buried amid the up standing feathers, and the breast is protruded oddly.

The bustard is of a pale gray on the neck and white beneath, but the back is beautifully barred with russet and black, and a band of deep tawny brown or claret color descends from either shoulder over the breast. Notice the tuft of long, white, bristly plumes springing up upon each side of the head. These are only seen in the male bird. The bustard loves the open country and feeds on almost any plant growing naturally in the country. In winter, when natural or wild plants are scarce, he readily feeds on those which are grown by man. He is by no means a strict vegetarian, but adds to his vegetable diet a fat worm or a lively mouse, or anything that lives and moves and is small enough.

At Home.

He who is not happy at home will not be happy anywhere. The object of all ambition should be happiness of the home circle, and this can be acquired only by the cultivation of charity, forbearance and courtesy to every one with whom we come in contact. A careful watch over ourselves will soon enable us to check the sharp word that flies to our lips at some provocation. One angry expression excites another, and from a small matter a great fire is speedily kindled. Nothing will so humiliate a person as a quiet, kind answer to an angry accusation.

"Jim, that was you who knocked off my hat."

"I didn't do any such thing, and you know it."

"Well, I suspected you because you are mean enough to do it."

And so the quarrel is at its height in an instant, whereas a gentle denial on the part of Jim would have extinguished the blaze of anger which was fanned to life in each heart.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

SPAIN'S PREMIER SHOT.

to ideas of order and liberty, in harmony with the monarchical principle, he dissolved the cortes, and the new election resulted favorably, but on Nov. 26, 1885 on the question of the occupancy of the Caroline islands by Germany, he was again compelled to resign, being succeeded by Senor Sagasta. The same day he was elected president of the chamber by 222 votes, against 112 cast for Senor Romero Robledo, and he signalized his entrance upon his new function by a funeral eulogy of King Alfonso XII, who had died the previous day.

In 1890 another reversal brought him back into power, and on July 5 he took the presidency of a conservative cabinet replacing the liberal ministry of Sagasta. Two years later, the pendulum swung to the opposite extreme and the liberals under Sagasta, won the general election and retained power until 1895, when disagreement in the Sagasta cabinet led the queen regent to summon Canovas again to the premiership.

Canovas came last into power on Feb 7, 1895. A number of officers had broken into and pillaged the offices of various newspapers which had made insinuations against the conduct of officers engaged in suppressing the Cuban revolt. The war minister seemed to support the officers, who, as the premier Senor Sagasta, ordered the journalists to be protected. This led to the retirement of the ministry. Marshal Campos was temporarily made captain general of Madrid, and the greatest excitement prevailed. Finally Senor Canovas formed a ministry, although he lacked the support of a section of the conservative party.

The government was defeated on a vote of censure on June 3, 1895, but did not resign. The general election of April, 1896, returned an overwhelming majority to the cortes in favor of the policy of the Canovas cabinet, though the opposition charged that the ministeralists carried many of the election districts by gross fraud. On June 2 last, Senor Canovas tendered the resignation of the cabinet, owing to the difficulty the ministers experienced in carrying on the government in view of the parliamentary situation, caused by the refusal of the Liberals to take part in the deliberations of the cortes. This attitude of the Liberals was due to a personal encounter between the Duke of Tetuan, minister of foreign affairs and Professor Comas, a distinguish Liberal senator, on May 21, when the duke slapped the face of the professor, after a heated debate on the Morgan belligeneney resolution, adopted by the United States senate. After four days of conference with the leaders of the different political parties, the queen regent requested him to withdraw the resignation of the cabinet and he did so, being confirmed by the crowning his ministerial powers with the personel and policy of the cabinet unchanged.

Senor Camovas was the author of numerous books in moral and political science, and of a "History of the House of Austria," which is in high repute, and a "History of the Decline of Spain From the Succession of King Philip III to the Death of Charles II," which ranks favorably among works of its class from Spanish writers. Under the title of "El Solitario," he published a monograph dedicated to one of his uncles, Estobanes Calderon. Of his literary studies the one of most general interest is a volume on the contemporary Spanish theatre, which appeared in 1886.

In 1875 he received the insigna of the odred of the Red Eagle from the Emperor of Germany, the grand cross of the order of the Tower and Sword from the King of Portugal, and the Golden Fleece from the King of Spain.

NEWS AT WASHINGTON.

Secretary Sherman and Senator Morgan See a Crisis Ahead For Spain.

Washington, Aug. 9.—This government has already received the formal notification of Premier Canovas' assassination. Immediately the state department, according to usual custom, will announce the event to the president, and the latter will, in some way, make formal and public expression regarding the government's deep regret.

Secretary of State Sherman received the first news of the affair through the press bulletins. He expressed deep interest in the details. He said:

"This deplorable event will have some effect, of course, one the political affairs of Spain, but to what extent I cannot say. The death of one man is not necessarily going to change the sentiment of the whole country. Spain is a very tenacious country. Her money is gone. Her resources have been exhausted. But she means, evidently, to hold on to Cuba. Just how she can do it, under the circumstances, I cannot see. Yet she is opposed to yielding a point. Premier Canovas was a strong partisan. He was the chief exponent of the element which was determined to keep the island at all hazards. Seemingly, Spain is almost a unit on this. Canovas was a strong factor in the government of Spain, but it is not impossible that another will be found to replace him in that important office, having similar views and the same pronounced ideas. How it may be in this case I am not able to say, but the effects, politically, of such an event, are not essentially farreaching and have not always produced radical developments. As to the consequence on the conflict in Cuba I do not care to talk. I must refrain from venturing guesses as to what it may effect n the future."

Asked as to how long he now thought the Cuban insurrection might last he replied that that was problematical and he did not care to discuss it. He added that he had heard various names of prominent leaders in Spain mentioned, but he was not well informed as to them and there was nothing on which he could base a prediction as to Canovas' probable successor.

Senator Morgan of Alabama, a member of the foreign affairs committee of the senate, and the champion of Cuba in that body, predicts that the assassination might be the forerunner of a complete change of government, a republic replacing the monarchy. This, he thought, was the present tendency, and yesterday's event he regarded as an evidence of the disintegration of the Spanish government. He added:

"This affair is going to create a complete revulsion throughout the whole of Spain. That country is now in a very shaky condition. It is doubtless true that the assassin was an anarchist, but the act is representative of a feeling that exists all over the country. A Republican party has already attained great strength, though, of course, operations have to be largely concealed. Then the universal testimony is that the bulk of the Spanish army in Cuba is made up of young men. This has broken up families all over the land, and their dispatch to the island to be led by Weyler has developed a powerful sentiment in Spain. Why are the veterans kept at home? Look at this powerful Republican element that has grown up, the effect of denuding the country of its young men, and the personal antagonism thus engendered, the proximity of Spain to the broad, liberal influences of the French republic, where there are ties of mutual affection and the government exerts itself to help its citizens. The last does not mean a personal prejudice against Canovas, but against his political stand and views and the extreme element he represents.

"It was the well developed symptom of the most deep seated antagonism to the creed of the Canovas party. The Barcelona incident gave evidence of the tremendous anti-administration operations and the stricken premier's endorsement of Weyler, putting him in command of Barcelona after that affair, greatly added to Canovas' unpopularity. The indications point to the assassin as a victim of that Barcelonia incident.

"It is not improbable, and it is quite likely, that Senor Praxedes Mateo Sagasta, the distinguished Liberal statesman, may succeed Canovas as premier. Sagasta is 70 years old, was minister of the interior under the provisional government of 1868, president of the cortes in 1871, and has occupied the post of premier of the Spanish government a number of times.

"I believe that the Cuban conflict will be ended at the close of the present rainy season. This I have frequently contended, and now I am confident of it. The termination of the affair would thus be brought about in October."

President McKinley Horrified.

Hotel Champlain, Bluff Point, Aug. 9.—When informed of the assassination of the prime minister of Spain, the president was horried, but refused to make any comments.

PREACHER AT THIRTEEN.

John De Merritt, the Youngest Ordained Minister In the Country.

One of the most remarkable instances of precocity on record is exhibited by the boy preacher John E. De Merritt of Newport, Neb. He is but 13 years old, and yet he is a licensed minister of the gospel and apparently a wonderfully successful one as well.

Rev. John E. De Merritt is undoubtedly the youngest ordained minister in the world. He lives with his parents, who are very poor people, but full of appreciation of their son's wonderful gift of eloquence and deeply anxious to have him educated so that he may develop his talents.

Though a perfect child in manner and speech, the youthful preacher is said to be a power in the pulpit. When it is given out that he is to conduct the services at any of the large summer meetings now being held throughout the country, there is a grand outpouring of people, who come many miles to hang on his earnest words and wonder at the power that he exerts over his auditors.

In private he is unassuming and modest, although, like other boys of his age, he is fond of play and ready to chatter of simple things in thorough child fashion. He is more studious, however, than the average youth and spends a great deal of his time in reading. He has read the Bible through a number of times and is able to quote nearly all the important passages.

REV. JOHN EDWARD DE MERRITT.

While addressing an audience he talks extemporaneously and with peculiar readiness. He is quick to find material for illustrating his ideas concerning Scriptural utterances and is full of original and strong interpretations of the sacred word. He was ordained and accorded full power to preach by the Baptist church of Fort Scott, Kan. He is saving every cent he can make so that he can take a complete course in a theological seminary.

Funds For Missions.

MURDERERS ESCAPED.

Police Unable to Solve the North Adams Mystery.

House and Papers Searched Thoroughly.

Looking For Motive Which Led to Killing of the Reeds.

North Adams, Mass., Aug. 9.—Thus far there has been no motive discovered for the atrocious murder of Henry F. Reed, the pawnbroker, and his sister, Miss Blanche Reed. Three officers of the state police, three sheriffs and the local police force have worked zealously and continuously in the hope of finding some evidence which would eventually lead to the apprehension of the murderer or murderers.

After a thorough search of the house occupied by the murdered man and his sister, followed by a careful examination of the legal papers and chattel mortgages found therein, there is nothing which throws any light upon the crime.

The papers were taken to the police station for examination, and while the above general statement is given out the exact nature and contents of the papers are kept a secret by the officials.

Some of the officers have run down minor clews, of which there have been a large number, but none of them have proved to be of great importance. They have also called on many business men and questioned them as to Mr. Reed's business relations and methods, but their testimony thus far has thrown no light upon the murder, and the officers seem to be at their wit's ends so far as the solution of the crime is concerned.

The medical examiner, who held an autopsy on the bodies of Mr. Reed and his sister, declines to make an official statement as to his findings, but it is understood that the autopsy showed beyond question that the man was beaten to death, his skull being terribly fractured. The woman's body showed that she had been shot four times, two of the bullets inflicting mortal wounds. One ball entered her throat, and another her right temple, either being sufficient to cause death, while a third lodged in her shoulder. The fourth bullet passed through the lobe of the right ear, and struck the wall of the room, falling to the floor.

The bodies still remain at the undertaker's rooms where they are strictly guarded by the police, and no one is allowed to see them. Arrengements are being made for an inquest, which will be held as son as possible, but not before tomorrow.

The scene of the murder has been visited by a very large crowd of people, inspired by morbid curiosity, but the house is in charge of the police, who have prevented everyone, except the officials, from entering the premises.

Arrested For Speaking In Public Park.

Boston, Aug. 9.—Mrs. Martha Moore Avery, a leader of the Socialist Labor party, was arrested yesterday for attempting to address a mass meeting in the public square near the corner of Washington and Ashland streets. The meeting had been freely advertised, and the police authorities had previously announced that an attempt to hold the meeting in violation of the law prohibiting such gatherings on the public streets would be prevented. In consequence a large crowd assembled, and Sergeant McCausland, with a detail of police, was on hand to uphold the law. When Mrs. Avery stepped upon the temporary platform that had been erected and started to address the crowd the Sergeant politely informed her that she could not hold a meeting there, and that he should arrest her if she persisted in speaking. "I will give you five minutes to move on," said he, "and if you do not I shall be obliged to place you under arrest." "I will take those five minutes to speak to these ladies and gentlemen," she replied coolly. I have the right of free speech and am keeping within the law." She thereupon began her address and was at once placed under arrest by the sergeant. As she smilingly left the platform she was greeted by loud cheers from the large crowd, who made no interference with the officers. Mrs. Avery was bailed in the sum of $50 for her appearance in the Roxbury police court.

Peach Crop Very Short.

Chambersburg, Pa., Aug. 9.—The Blue Mountain peach belt of southern Pennsylvania and western Maryland is the only part of the country that will have more than 20 or 25 percent of a crop this year. According to the view of Colonel James R. Gilmore, of Chambersburg, who will have 10,000 bushel from his orchard at Cherry Run, Md., and who has just returned from a tour of the peach states, the shortage is especially great in Wisconsin, Ohio, Delaware and the eastern shore of Maryland. All through this section the trees are breaking down with fruit. Shipments in refrigerator cars to the city have begun, and speculators are here from Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York arranging to buy up whole orchards.

Wales' Yacht For Sale.

New York, Aug. 9.—A great deal of comment was excited among yachtsmen in this city yesterday by the appearance in one of the morning papers of an advertisement offering for sale the Prince of Wales' famous yacht Britannia. It has been known for a long time that the heir apparent to the British crown desired to dispose of his last cutter. Several unsuccessful attempts have been made to sell her on the other side, but without success. The possibility of her sale here is out of the question, as the recent legislation makes it virtually impossible to buy her, a bill passed by congress, and which became a law last February, providing against the purchase of foreign built vessels by Americans.

Customs Official Dead.

Malden, Mass., Aug. 9.—Leonard M. Barker, for 30 years employed in the custom house, and for the past five an auditor, died yesterday at his home here. His occupation naturally brought him into contact with a majority of Boston's merchants, and among them he was held in high esteem.

There is always one standard of excellence in every article, reached alone by perseverance and untiring efforts to serve the best. The line of distinction is more marked in Ranges than in anything else we know of,—some good, some bad, some indifferent, all claiming to be the best.

Glenwood Ranges alone stand like a shining star among the ranges of today. Their excellence in every detail marks a new era in range construction, sought for nearly a hundred years in the past, by first one maker and then another. If you need a new range, why not have the best, they cost no more than the other kinds, if you buy them here,—$18.00 to $33.00, and you're sure to get the genuine article at this store alone. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded, a reasonable allowance for your old range, and a range on trial if you wish.

Policy Holders Urged to Stand by the Massachusetts Benefit.

Board of Directors Will Hold Meeting Today.

Not Anticipated That Receiver Will Be Asked For Until the 20th.

Boston, Aug. 10.—Several well-known men of this city who are policy holders in the Massachusetts Benefit Life association have issued a statement to their fellow members auging them to stand by the association and save it from wreck. The statement contains the following:

"Any one who has studied the statistics of the association is familiar with the fact that over $15,000,000 has been paid by this association to beneficiaries and at an expense to certificate holders of less than 50 per cent of the regular rates of life insurance companies. We have confidence in the present management of the company. They are men of high standing and honorable instincts. We deem it to be their duty to exert themselves to the utmost to preserve it. We deny their right to take any action whatsoever which shall look towards the stopping of this business.

In October next, under the law, every certificate holder will have an opportunity to express his views relative to the management and the conduct of the affairs of the company. Having invited this co-operation on the part of the certificate holders it is the duty of the management to preserve it in all its integrity until the voice of the people can be expressed, and we, the certificate holders, should on our part do our full duty, pay every obligation, and meet all financial requirements of the association. With loyalty on the part of the members, with prompt meeting of the payments as called for, there is no occasion for doubt as to the continuance of the company and the carrying on to an indefinite future of its good work."

Notwithstanding this a special meeting of the directors has been called for today to consider the advisability of asking for the appointment of a receiver. It is anticipated and even stated as a fact that no action will be taken as the directors desire to wait until the time for paying the extra assessment has expired, which will be about Aug. 20.

Can't Do Business In New Hampshire.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 10.—In reply to queries as to the status of the Massachusetts Benefit Life association in New Hampshire, Insurance Commissioner John C. Linehan states that since April 1, 1896, it has been allowed to do business here only on condition that it should enter into no new contracts. The association had in force in this state on Dec. 31, 1896, 607 policies, amounting to $1,455,850. There were written in this state during last year but eight policies, amounting to only $1600, and all were written before April 1 of that year. The losses and claims unpaid during that year are shown to number five, amounting to $17,114. During the year seven policies were terminated by death, five by disability and 151 by lapse. The claims paid in New Hampshire amounted to $60,000. The company received during that time from its New Hampshire business only $45,920.09, so that without counting taxes and fees which it paid, it expended more money in this state than it received.

North Carolina School Election.

Wilmington, N. C., Aug. 10.—An election is being held throughout North Carolina on the question of additional taxes for support of the public schools. Each township votes separately and the state is to give a sum equal to that each township may vote to impose on itself as additional taxation. The amount given by the state, however, is in no case to exceed $500 to any township. But little interest has been manifested, and there is no doubt that the movement for the additional tax will be overwhelmingly defeated. Its most ardent advocates claim only 50 to 75 townships out of nearly 1300 in the state.

Free Entry Courtesies.

Washington, Aug. 10.—In a circular letter customs officers are instructed that the privilege of free entry with the waiver of examination of baggage can only be extended to certain high officials under special instructions from the department. When receiving from the department letters requesting that "courtesies" shall be extended to any arriving passenger it is simply to be understood that the boarding officer shall see that the passenger is informed as to the necessary customs procedure, and that the examination and delivery of his effects shall be facilitated in a proper way.

Armenians Invade Turkey.

Constantinople, Aug. 10.—An official dispatch received here says that on Friday last several thousand Armenian agitators from Persia invaded Turkey. They killed 200 of the Migriki tribe, including women and children. The wife of the chief was put to death with the most cruel tortures, and several other victims had their noses and ears cut off. The authorities have taken measures to capture the marauders and to provide for eventualities in the vilayet of Van.

Dominion to Establish Territorial Officers. Mining Regulations Changed.

Toronto, Aug. 10.—A special from Ottawa says that the Dominion government has reached several important decisions in regard to the Yukon country and the working of the gold fields there.

It has been decided to appoint an administrator for the district who will have entire charge of all the Canadian officials there, and be the chief executive officer of the government. Major Walsh, a former commander of the Northwest mounted police, is to be apointed to the position.

The party of mounted police to leave Manitoba next week for the gold country has been increased from 20 to 35. They will take with them two Maxim guns.

The mining regulations have been amended in an important particular. At present a miner is at liberty to stake out a claim of 500 feet running along with the stream and back to the bank This has been reduced to 100 feet, and the new regulation will go into force immediately.

A court for the administration of the civil and criminal justice for the gold district has also been decided upon. Justice McGuire of Prince Albert is to preside over the court.

The Dominion government has made application to the United States government to be permitted to build a telegraph line from a navigable point in the Lynn canal to Tagish, across the summit, a distance of nearly 100 miles, so that communication may be had with the interior of the Yukon all the year around. This would place the Klondyk within a couple of weeks travel of communication with the outside world So far no deply has been received from Washington.

CLASH IN KANSAS.

State Administration Openly Defy Orders o Federal Court.

Topeka, Aug. 10.—The long threatened clash between the United States courts and the authorities of the state of Kansas came yesterday, when Attorney General Boyle, acted upon the advice and with the concurrence of the state administration, took action in the state courts in open defiance of the federal authorities.

This action is the outcome of injunction issued on July 29 last by United States District Judge John A. Williams of Arkansas at Colorado Springs, Col., by which he positively enjoined State Insurance Commissioner McNeal and Attorney General Boyle of Kansas from bringing any proceedings whatever under the state laws to prevent the Mutual Life Insurance company from doing business in Kansas.

Attorney General Doyle yesterday went before the state supreme court bringing proceedings against the Mutual Life Insurance company to compel that corporation to appear before the state supreme court and show by what authority it is transacting business in the state of Kansas.

Attorney General Boyle having done precisely what the injunction of Judge Williams forbade him doing, the presumption is that the federal judge will cause his arrest and imprisonment for contempt. In this event application for a writ of habeas corpus will be made at once to the United States supreme court, and in such a proceeding the attorney general would have the support of the entire state administration.

Governor Leedy has declared that the issue has been made, and that the matter must be fought to a termination.

Foster Sees the President.

Plattsburgh, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Hon. J. W. Foster, ex-secretary of state and special seal commissioner, who recently returned from London and St. Petersburg, arrived at Hotel Chamblain yesterday from Washington, where he had been in conference with Secretary Sherman on the seal question. He went to President McKinley's apartments. Secretary Alger was called in, and for nearly two hours the three were in close conference, at the close of which Mr. Foster refused to be interviewed, saying he had nothing to give out or publication. He has returned to Washington.

Noted Sportsman Dead.

New York, Aug. 10.—Peter Jay Munro Van Courtlandt, a sportsman of note, died on Saturday at Spokane, Wash., of exhaustion, after an attack of gout. Mr. Van Courtlandt was born in August, 1828, in Yonkers. His mother was Harriet Munro, and his grandmother was the daughter of Chief Justice Jay, and sister of ex-Governor Jay of New York.

Woman Burned to Death.

Foxcroft, Me., Aug. 10.—Mrs. Irene Douglass was burned to death Sunday while trying to save stock from the burning barn of her son, Frank, at Norton Hill. She was overcome by smoke, and her body was consumed before the eyes of her neighbors. There was no insurance on buildings or contents.

GOLLI'S CONFESSION.

Premier Canovas Was the Victim of Anarchist Vengeance.

Conservatives Will Probably Remain In Power.

Death of Premier Is Generally Regarded as Favorable to Cuba.

Madrid, Aug. 10.—The assassin of Premier Canovas has confessed that his motive was to avenge the Barcelona anarchists and Don Rizal, the insurgent leader of the Philippine islands. Golli, the assassin, is not seemingly perturbed by the fact that he will be executed for his cowardly crime. He talks freely if given an opportunity and poses as a benefactor of mankind.

In Golli's room the police found a large double barreled pistol. It appears that when he left the house he carried a parcel, which is believed to have contained a bomb. The theory is that he hid this somewhere in the fields.

A dispatch from Barcelona says that Golli arrived there in December of 1895, coming from Marseilles. He was employed in the printing office of the review Ciencia Social, managed by the anarchist engineer Tarrida Marmel, formerly imprisoned in Montjuich fortress at Barcelona.

Golli was implicated in the terrible crime of the celebration of Corpus Christie, although he left Barcelona a few days before it occurred.

He was denounced to the police for complicity, but he had already disappeared.

In the course of an interview Senor Sagasta, the Liberal leader, says:

The country's politics must not depend upon an assassin. The Conservatives ought to remain in power under the guidance of men like Marshal Campos, Senor Pidal and Senor Elduayen. Nevertheless if the queen regent appeals to the Liberals they are ready to respond.

The funeral of Senor Canovas will take place probably on Thursday. Meanwhile the remains will lie here in state.

The Spanish newspapers, without regard to differences of political opinion, express their horror and indignation at the crime and their satisfaction that the assassin is not a Spaniard. It is probable that the law for the repression of anarchism, which has hitherto been enforced only in Barcelona and Madrid, will be extended to the whole country.

There is a great deal of speculation as to the effect of the loss of Canovas upon the Conservative party. General Azcarraga has acquired great popularity and prestige through his skill in organizing the country's resources for the Cuban and Philippine campaigns, and he may be able to keep the party together. But many good judges take a gloomy view of the situation and lament the absence of civil statesmen of the caliber of Canovas.

A dispatch from Rome says that Golli's name is not known to the Italian police. No conviction is recorded at Naples or Lucera against a person of that name.

Other dispatches from Rome, corroborated by a dispatch from Paris, say that the real name of Golli is Guiseppe Santo. If this is so, it is a remarkable coincidence, for the name of the assassin of President Carnot was Cesario Santo.

A special dispatch from San Sebastian says that Golli saluted Senor Canovas each morning with great politeness. His effusiveness aroused the suspicions of the premier, who mentioned the matter to the proprietor of the baths, only to be reassured by him.

Golli confesses that he followed Senor Canovas to church and to other places, waiting for an opportunity when he could surely accomplish his purpose. He says he regrets that he has been unable to kill General Polavieja, who was governor general of the Philippines when Dr. Rizal was executed last December. He regards him as the murderer of Rizal.

News Received In Havana.

Havana, Aug. 10.—The news of the assassination of Senor Canovas caused great consternation here. On its receipt, about 6 o'clock Sunday evening, the authorities and many prominent local politicians went to the palace of the captain general. The tidings soon spread, and there was wild excitement on the stock exchange and throughout the city. Stocks and shares fell considerably.

Consul General Fitzhugh Lee was among the first to express regret and sympathy. Captain General Weyler still remains in the field. At first there was acute anxiety with reference to the political effect on the death of Canovas, but when it became known that General Azcarraga had assumed office confidence was restored and the effect of it was soon manifested on the exchange.

Canovas' Death Is Cuba's Gain.

New York, Aug. 10.—A Washington dispatch to The World says:

Canovas' death means a distinct gain to the Cubans.

General Blanco probably will succeed Weyler before the season for active fighting begins in November. Blanco is described as a humane man, whose appointment is likely to make easier the acceptance of autonomy by the Cubans.

Canovas' death removes the greatest obstacle to the granting of concessions to Cubans. They have hitherto been denied these except on the impossible terms that the insurgents first lay down their arms.

It is no secret that Minister De Lome has had no communication with Weyler for two months at a time, and does not conceal his disgust with the latter.

The minister privately admits the hopelessness of Spain's contest.

Canovas was the chief power which sustained Weyler and postponed the necessary reforms in Cuba.

Band Concerts.

The band concerts held Saturday evenings in Quincy Square are very attractive and large crowds gather to hear the fine music rendered by Brown's Brigade Band.

We are sorry, however, to learn that the crowds that gather on the steps and about the grounds make these concerts a nuisance to the society; who will probably be obliged to take steps to abate the annoyance given. The chains about the enclosure are broken, the steps in front are covered with peanut shells and tobacco juice, and the grounds are strewn with paper.

On Saturdays, the sexton spends nearly all day in sweeping and cleaning the church and grounds for Sunday services, and it is outrageous the next morning when he goes to open the house for worship to find things in such a nasty condition. It makes one sick and disheartened.

Mr. John N. Fox, who has the care of the church is a gentleman, and wants all to enjoy themselves and have a good time; but no one can expect him to spend several hours to repair the damages done at these concerts.

If the street railway company reap a handsome income from patrons of their roads, they should be willing to employ some one early Sunday morning to put the grounds and steps in order before services.

If the company felt that one dollar was too much for them to stand under, then a collection might be taken easily at each concert to pay the expense.

Something should be done at once, either by Mr. Brown, the conductor of the band, or the railroad company, to make it right with the society or have the nuisance removed.

Many will feel sorry to have the concerts stopped, or removed to Merry Mount Park, or some other suitable place, but it is not right nor just to impose on the goodness of the sexton. May the affair be amicably settled and the concerts continue until the first of October.

Stores in Demand.

Mr. A. F. Bussell has commenced work on the foundation for two stores on Hancock street, between Faxon block and the building recently occupied by Dr. Gilbert. The building will be one story high and each store will have a frontage of sixteen feet and a depth of 57 feet. One of the stores has already been let and the other is practically let.

THE LOWELL tax rate also took a jump this year. It is $17.40, against $15 last year. The increase in valuation was but $500,000.

THE CITY of Marlboro has 5,149 taxpayers and a tax rate of $18.10. The total valuation is but $8,972,385, an increase over 1896 of $106,630.

THE CITY of Boston is within $213,081.14 of its debt limit. A narrow margin for a big city. The little city of Quincy had a margin of $131,997.71 on Jan. 1, 1897.

WANT TO bet anything that Josiah Quincy don't turn up a fully fledged silverite one of these fine mornings?—Milford Journal.

No, we don't.

IT IS important that the Quincy and Boston street railway or some other road should get a location through Milton that Quincy may be connected with the street railway system that is rapidly uniting all the towns west of Boston. The travel from these towns to our beaches would be large if convenient transportation was offered.

A GREAT SURPRISE IS IN STORE
for those who will go today and get a package of GRAIN-O. It takes the place of coffee at about ¼ the cost. It is a food drink, full of health, and can be given to the children as well as the adult with a great benefit. It is made of pure grains and looks and tastes like the finest grades of Mocha or Java coffee. It satisfies everyone. A cup of Grain-O is better for the system than a tonic, because its benefit is permanent. What coffee breaks down Grain-O builds up. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 15c. and 25c.

SEWER LABORERS.

More Quincy Men Employed Than Out-of-Town Help.

And They Average Better Wages—$1.85 Per Day.

An Average of 284 Men Now Employed on Works.

When the City Council was first asked to make appropriations for the sewerage system, there was more or less talk as to how much benefit citizens of Quincy were to derive from it in the way of labor, and resolutions to the effect that Quincy citizens be employed upon the work were introduced in the City Council.

While the City Council can not bind the Sewer Commissioners to employ none but citizens of Quincy upon the work, it has been the aim of the Commissioners from the start to have citizens of Quincy employed as far as possible, and today, although certain parts are being done by contract, much of the labor is by citizens of Quincy. And they are also getting the cream of the work, although it may not be apparent. It is doubtful if there are any who have a correct idea of the number of men employed, what portion of them are citizens of Quincy, and how the pay of the Quincy and out-of-town men compare.

At present the sewer work is being carried on as follows: Laying the force main at Squantum; pumping station foundation at Merry Mount park; brick sewer from the pumping station to Coddington street, and upon Copeland street.

In order that it may be known how much benefit Quincy labor is receiving from this work the LEDGER has made a canvass, with the assistance of Engineer Branch, of the places where work is in progress, and some very interesting figures have been obtained.

The contractors readily produced their time books and pay roll for the desired information. It is impossible to give the exact number of men employed for the number varies from day to day.

The average number of men employed in the several sections, including engineers, inspectors, foremen teamsters, and laborers was found to be 284.

The lowest wages paid was to the water boys, who receive $1.25 per day, and the highest salary to the bricklayers who receive from $5 to $6 per day.

The total amount of the daily pay roll of these 284 men was $512.16, or an average of over $1.80 per man.

Of the total number employed 165 were found to be citizens of Quincy and 119 non-residents. The daily pay roll of the Quincy men amounts to $305.96 or an average of $1.85 per man, while the daily pay roll of non residents is $206.20, or an average of $1.73 per man.

The question now might be: what proportion of the total number of men employed come under the head of laborers? Omitting the engineers, inspectors, foremen and brick layers, who may be called artisans, it was found that the number of Quincy citizens employed, who come under the head of laborers, was 153, with a daily pay roll of $269.71 or an average of $1.76 per man. The number of out-of town laborers was 106 with a daily pay roll of $157.20 or an average of $1.48 per man.

These figures show that thus far Quincy citizens have been favored, and in fact about all the men that can be used are at work.

The largest number of out-of-town men are employed by Messrs. Craib, who are building the brick sewer and it is worthy of note that practically no Quincy men have applied to them for work for there are few citizens who care to get into the deep trenches and dig in the mud.

It would seem, therefore, that there is but little foundation for some of the statements made at the last meeting of the City Council and that they were made principally for political purposes.

MOONLIGHT SAIL.

The Weather Was Too Threatening for the Sail Boats.

The moonlight sail, scheduled for Monday evening in the events of the Wollaston Yacht club, did not take place on account of the threatening weather. It was a disappointment to many. The first moonlight sail given by the W. Y. C., on July 12th, was marred by an accident to one of the boats which visited the Quincy Yacht Club that night, and with that unfortunate event fresh in their minds, coupled with the fact that the weather in some degree threatened to be duplicated, undoubtedly kept a large number at home.

However, Capt. A. C. Gardner took the following party out for an hour in his steam yacht Winona: Vice Commodore A. T. Barstow, Mr. and Mrs. Berry, Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. W. Page, Mrs. Geo. H. Gravin, Miss Nellie Dickey, Miss Eva Hunter, Miss Jessie Copp the artist, Mr. G. A. Dickey, Mr. H. E. Nelson, Mr. E. L. Temple, Mr. Arthur Marr, Mr. Robert Scheneken, Mr. Frank Giffin and Master Frank Dickey.

Vice Commodore Barstow announced that the moonlight sail would be postponed to Wednesday evening, Aug. 11.

"There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

☞ Screen Doors 90 cents Adjustable Windows Screens 25 and 30 cents. The price doesn't pay for the labor that's in them. H. L Kincaide & Co.

BISHOP M'FAUL TO DECIDE.

Factions in A. O. H. Submit Their Differences to Arbitrator.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 10.—The conference between the representatives of the two factions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, with Bishop McFaul as arbitrator, for the purpose of agreeing on a plan of consolidation, began yesterday behind closed doors at the bishop's residence.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians were represented by the national president, vice president and others, and the Board of Erin branch by the national officers.

The conference began at 4 o'clock and lasted until 7, when a recess for an hour was taken and the visitors were entertained at lunch by the bishop. After lunch the conference was resumed. The matters which will come before the bishop embrace the whole plan of consolidation. Maurice F. Wilhere, speaking for the American branch, and Edward R. Hayes, for the Board of Erin, both stated before the conference that the entire plan of consolidation would depend upon the bishop's decision. Two of the principal matters to be decided will be as to the officering of the consolidated organization, and the matter of eligibility to membership. In the American branch those who are of Irish descent from either parent may become members, while in the board of Erin only when both parents are Irish.

The conference ended at 10 o'clock. Time for the submission of papers will be allowed before a decision is given. None of the party would say aught but that the meeting was entirely harmonious.

ON THE DIAMOND.

National League.

At Boston—New York won yesterday because Boston could not hit Meekin, while Van Haltren, Davis and Gleason batted Nichols freely. New York is the first club to get a score of double figures off Nichols this year, and only for Nichols' home run in the fourth inning the Boston score would have been much smaller. Wilson made some brilliant running catches of fouls.

American Canoe Association.

Clayton, N. Y., Aug. 10.—The annual meeting of the American Canoe association is in full swing here. It had been feared that Paul Butler, the Massachusetts canoeist, would not come this year, but word was received that he will be here. C. E. Archibald, the Montreal crack, will also be on hand. The success of the sailing races is now assured. The paddling races will also be of unusual interest. It is probable that the races will begin by tomorrow. The number in camp is nearly 150.

Canada's Tax on Tourists' Wheels.

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—The customs regulations in regard to tourists' bicycles entering Canada have been changed so that a duty of 30 per cent will be collected. If the wheels are not exported within 15 days the amount will be paid over to the crown. Where the bicycle is returned across the border the money will be refunded.

The Refractometer

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent occulists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.
I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.
F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.
I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.
JACOB GOLDBERG, M. D.

This is a very expensive instrument, but we consider nothing too good for our patrons, and have placed one in our optical room.

Washing is Like Play

If you call to your aid a well-made Soap. In these days there is so great competition among leading soap manufacturers that the quality of the leading soaps is very high indeed. People wish to have nothing but the best if they know it. It has been found necessary to relegate antiquated and slipshod methods to the background, and to substitute in their place a careful and scientific compounding of pure, sweet materials—such as will not only soften and refresh the skin of the user, but render the clothes beautifully white and clean. The best grades of soap are put up in full-weight bars, contain no rosin, and are not filled with chemicals which rot clothes. Whether for laundry, bath or toilet, the soaps which we sell are the best to be had anywhere.

The cake or bar of soap which you use seems a small thing doesn't it? Yet our sales of soap alone are very large, over 1,000 pounds a month,—12,000 pounds a year. You would not buy it if we didn't give you good value for your money. We do not own a soap factory, but we do have a pure soap made and packed for us which we can recommend at a very low price, and we know the quality is A1.

Price 5 cents a cake, 7 for 25 cents, $3 25 a box.

☞ Buy a box and dry it out as it will last twice as long.

Worked Quincy Too.

The publication of the swindle of the granite manufacturers of Concord by O. F. Bateman of the Chicago agency, brings to light the fact that the Quincy manufacturers were previously duped by the same fraud, and perhaps for a larger amount. It was worked in the same way, the duplicate of the guarantee being in reality an order for money, but it was carefully hidden beneath the other, all except the place for the signature, and the manufacturers were caught. Beware what you sign.

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 10.—Major Charles J. Senter of the N. H. N. G. is believed to be in Cuba, if letters to friends in this city can be relied upon. These communications state that he has been placed in command of a skirmish party numbering 150, and that already they have lost a number of men in lively brushes. Senter sailed for Cuba about three weeks ago and allied himself with the insurgents, being given the rank of major. Senter has a number of thousand of dollars in his own right, and has allied himself with Cuba's cause in sympathy for the patriots.

Races Stopped by Rain.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 10.—Rain stopped the racing at Capital Driving park yesterday afternoon, after the horses had gone two heats. The card will be pushed along one day and an attempt will b made to fill the reopened classes for next week so as to have two weeks of continuous racing here. Paddy R, Architect and Allertine were all well backed in the 2:40 trotting stake. After scoring very badly, Paddy won the only heat trotted, with great ease. Bovor, the favorite in the 2:23 trot, won the first heat as he pleased.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

A KITE PARACHUTE.

With a Bent Pin, an Extra String and Other Simple Things You Can Have Lots of Fun.

The boys of Washington Heights have invented a new and fascinating kite game. Not long ago they saw a balloon ascension which was followed by a daring drop with a parachute. This put an idea into their heads. Why not make a parachute and have it drop from one of their kites?

The very next day the experiment was tried. A large vacant lot where there were no entangling wires or tall buildings was selected, and a large kite was let up with about a quarter of a mile of heavy cord. Near the middle of the kite string was attached a second string falling to the ground, by means of which the kite string might be lowered at pleasure. Near the boy who operated this second string the parachute boy was stationed. A piece of light cloth had been cut in the form and size of a lady's umbrella cover, having strings attached to the angles and meeting below at the center, where they were attached to a small weight, usually a washer or a nut weighing about half a pound. At the top of the parachute there was a bent pin which was hooked to the kite string when it was drawn down, and the parachute was then easily carried aloft upon the release of the string. As soon as the kite string attained its ordinary slant it was jerked sufficiently to release the pin. The falling parachute opened beautifully and sailed downward amid the cheering of an appreciative audience.

Parachutes have been dropped from kites before now, but the advantage of the Washington Heights invention is that any number of descents can be made in a single afternoon without withdrawing the kite.

A great number of exceedingly interesting and striking experiments may be tried with kite parachutes. A small dummy boy or a doll can be attached to the parachute, and the descent will so nearly resemble that of a real aeronaut that it will be most startling. In the evening a small lantern may be used, this furnishing a counterpart of a falling star. Even better than this is the use of a coal oil ball. For this purpose a small wad of cotton batting may be tightly bound about the weight at the bottom of the parachute and then soaked in kerosene. Just before the parachute is sent up the ball may be lighted. When the parachute drops, the display, especially at night, is really striking. The hot air rising from the burning oil and filling the cloth dome will also tend to prolong the descent. In case a coal oil ball is used the parachute will have to be held together with very fine wire ribs instead of strings, or else the burning ball will have to be hung well below the meeting place of the strings by means of a wire. If this is not done, the parachute is likely to furnish fuel for the flames below.—Chicago Record.

A Harnessed Whale.

One of the greatest features in the way of show business was managed by Professor Butler of Boston, 30 years ago. He captured a white whale 12 feet long, tamed him, made a harness for him and hitched him to a fairy boat, shaped like a clam shell, in which a little girl rode. Barnum saw the "whale act" and wanted to introduce it at his museum, at Broadway and Ann street. After everything was ready the museum burned, including the performing whale.—New York World.

Grampa's Farm.

Oh, you don't know the fun on grampa's farm!
For grampa says: "Let 'em. It ain't no harm."
An cousin Bob starts us an cries, "Here goes!"
An mamma, she only just says, "Such clothes!"

We've a Crusoe's island an robbers' cave
An Tower of London, an, don't you know,
When one of us wants to let on he's brave
He crawls under the sawmill, scared an slow.

Oh, you don't know half the fun out there,
For grampa he never tells us, "Take care."
An cousin Bob laughs and says to "carouse,"
An mamma, you see, is off in the house.

We fish in the brooks an play in the sands
An try to catch tadpoles out of the springs.
We hide in the bushes like Ingun bands
An fight with the hornets an get their stings.

Oh, there's no end of fun on grampa's place,
For grampa he says, "Now scoot on a race."
An cousin Bob grins an says, "There she blows,"
An mamma, she only just says, "Such clothes!"

Ingenious Tommy.

"When you stepped on that gentleman's foot, Tommie, I hope you apologized?"

"Oh, yes, indeed, I did," said Tommie, "and he gave me 10 cents for being such a good boy."

"Did he? And what did you do then?"

"Stepped on the other and apologized again, but it didn't work."—Harper's Round Table.

FAMILIES HUNGRY.

Miners' Strike Unchanged---Provisions Are Short and Distress Is Liable to Be Great.

Pittsburg, Aug. 10.—Appeals for food and provisions are numerous at the headquarters of the miners'-officials in this city. It appears as if there is a wail from every section of the district, and miners in person were present to ask that suffering ones be looked after. Secretary Warner was kept busy answering the appeals. He said that he had sent more than $1000 worth of groceries and provisions into various parts of the district. The appeals are now coming in from the families, the heads of which are at the various mining camps using their influence to keep other men from working.

A series of meetings is to be held over the district. It is expected to keep up the interest in every section and to strengthen every point where there is the least indication of weakness. The watch on the mines of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company is to be kept up, and made more rigorous from day to day.

At the instigation of Thomas E, Sutton of Willocks, Henry Ulrich, Emil Nagel, Henry Huser and Gustav Rings, miners, were committed to jail for a hearing before Alderman J. B. McMasters on various charges. Ulrich is charged with aggravated assault and battery, Nagel with an assault and battery and Huser and Rings with unlawful assemblage. The arrests are the result of an altercation at Willocks July 26, on account of the strike. Warrants are out for a number of others.

Strike Settled by Hoke Smith.

Atlanta, Aug. 10.—The settlement of the big strike at the Fulton Bag and Cotton mills here was the work of former Secretary of the Interior Hoke Smith. The strike was the most serious labor difficulty that has developed in Atlanta in recent years and as it involved the troubles of the negro question an adjustment was difficult. Disinterested parties induced the strikers' committee and President Elsas of the company to meet in Mr. Smith's office, however, and, with the former secretary acting as arbiter, an agreement was reached on terms suggested by him. The settlement is regarded here as a victory for the principle of arbitration in labor disputes.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

WEEKLY CROP REPORT

The Weather Has at Last Changed For the Better.

Many Crops Probably too Late to Mature.

Northern New England Prospects Better Than Southern.

Boston, Aug. 10.—There has been a decided change for the better in the weather of the past week and the opportunity to conduct farming operations was eagerly seized. The general backwardness of the season is, however, greatly in evidence, and some crops, corn in particular, will have hard work to mature. In western New England much lowland hay will be left as not worth harvesting. It seems strange that haying should be nearly done in the more northern sections and not so in the southwest, but such is the fact. The rainfall for the week consisted of scattered thunder storms in the south on the 4th and general rains on the 5th.

Maine.

Haying is reported as more than three-fourths completed in the eastern part of the state, but in the central and western counties much grass is yet to be cut. Potato rust has appeared in a few places, but not excessively. Some pieces of grain are ripening. The small fruit crop is light. Corn has grown fast, although it is feared that a large amount will not mature.

New Hampshire.

Haying has been energetically conducted the past week and on uplands is nearing completion. Meadow lands are still very wet; mowing is being done slowly, and some grass will not be cut this season. Oats are being cut as fast as possible, mostly for fodder in numerous localities. Corn is advancing rapidly, but many fields can scarcely ripen, and silos will be in demand. Potato prospects are not encouraging as a rule. A scarcity of apples is reported, except possibly of the early varieties. Berries are, in general, plentiful. Vegetation looks as fresh as in spring, and pasturage continues excellent.

Vermont.

A favorable week for farm work has been well improved. Haying is practically completed, from two weeks to a month later than usual. Notwithstanding the set-backs the crop is spoken of in the extreme north as better than the average. In the major portion of the state, however, it is of poor quality and badly over-ripe. Corn is now progressing well, but is late. Oats are rusted, yet will yield well, although not heavy in weight. Barley well filled and ripening fast. Potato indications vary from fair to good. Fruit scarce.

Massachusetts.

Haying is practically completed in the southeastern counties; in interior and western sections some meadows are yet to be cut. Corn is very uneven, looking well in some fields and backward in others. The same is true of potatoes, except in Bristol county, where no signs of rot are visible. Elsewhere many fields are either past recovery or yielding small. Tomatoes are ripening; also early peaches. Plums continue to rot on the trees. Turnips coming up in good shape. Cranberries are not up to the promise of 10 days ago; many bogs are being destroyed by fire worms.

Rhode Island.

Favorable weather for maturing crops. The yield of potatoes is apparently good. Early sweet corn is in the market. Haying is finished. Pastures looking finely.

Connecticut.

The corn crop seems likely to be rather light, unless favored with an unusual amount of sunshine. Crops are still showing the effects of last month's great rains; low ground is soaked and is slow drying. Potatoes are destined to be a failure in great measure. General complaint of early peaches rotting badly. A heavy crop of rowen is promised. Haying goes on slowly—far behind the northern states in time owing to the condition of the ground. Tobacco is turning yellow in most fields. It grows slowly and its general condition is regarded as not of the best.

Section Director.

REED MURDER.

Authorities at North Adams Hard at Work, but Still In the Dark.

North Adams, Mass., Aug. 10.—Despite the efforts of the police yesterday very little evidence that directly and positively connects any particular person or persons with the Reed murders has been secured. A mass of evidence has been collected by the police, but they have been unable to deduce anything from it which is positively incriminating.

The work of the officers has been in the nature of a shifting process. An inquest was held in the courtroom, before Associate Justice William H. Woodhead. Several witnesses appeared and told their stories. Some of the evidence which was epected to throw some light on the mystery turned out to be of little or no value.

Horace Lanfair was a witness at the inquest. He told what he knew of the affair, and was allowed to depart for his home, although he is followed wherever he goes by James Maloney, son of Sheriff John E. Maloney.

The police absolutely refuse to deny or affirm that Lanfair is under suspicion, and constantly being watched, but it is an indisputable fact.

Lanfair was the first man who was closely questioned last Saturday at the police station, but the evidence against him was not sufficient to warrant the officers in holding him. Apparently, he is now at liberty, but the eye of the law is upon him.

Bad Storm at Farmington.

Farmington, N. H., Aug. 10.—The worst electric storm that ever visited this section passed over this town yesterday. The lightning was terrific, and the deep darkness caused general consternation. A bolt struck the house and stable of John S. Roberts, 2½ miles from the village, and in an instant the buildings were in flames, being entirely destroyed. The loss includes 50 tons of hay, a valuable trotting horse, other live stock and nearly all the furniture. The house was a fine old structure and a popular resort for summer guests. Louis Keith of Lynn, who arrived on the noon train, lost nearly all his clothing and personal effects, including valuable jewelry. Barges loaded with the new hand fire engine from Farmington made a quick trip through the storm to the fire, but the firemen could render little service. The loss is $10,000; partially insured.

New Bedford's Gala Week.

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 10.—The committee on the semi-centennial celebration, from Oct. 10 to 14, has practically decided on the program. Sunday will be devoted to exercises in the churches, Monday, brigade day; Tuesday, military day; Wednesday, merchants' day; Thursday, out-door carnival or sports. During the entire week an industrial exhibition will be given. On Monday the celebration will be formally opened by literary exercises in a huge tent, which will be erected in a central place, when George Fox Tucker will be the orator of the day, and other speakers of note will be present. On Tuesday, when Governor Wolcott will be present, the First regiment, M. V. M., will be invited. Special efforts will be made for the bicycle day. One of the features of the last day will be a whaleboat race between crews from New Bedford, Cape Cod, Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket.

Magnificent Ball at Newport.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 10.—Only once before in the history of the Newport Casino has there been such a magnificent ball as that of last night given in honor of Rear Admiral Montgomery Sicard, U. S. N., the commander of the North Atlantic squadron, and officers on board the flagship New York and the battleships Iowa, Maine, Brooklyn and Massachusetts and the monitor Puritan. The ball was one of magnificence and only to be compared with the Casino ball given some years ago in honor of the late President Arthur. The affair was the outcome of spontaneous liberality on the part of the summer cottagers. The grounds about the Casino were transformed into a veritable fairy scene, and three bands of music were provided for dancing and promenading. To name the guests would be to publish a list of the summer colony.

Porgie Fishers Held In $500 Bail.

Ellsworth, Me., Aug. 10.—Captains Daniel Mason of steamer Joseph Church, and R. E. Mason of steamer George Curtis, were tried yesterday afternoon on the charge of seining porgies illegally in Blue Hill bay a few weeks ago. Judge Peters found probable cause for holding them for the October term of the supreme court, and bail in $500 each was furnished. Judge E. C. Chase of Blue Hill was the complainant and prosecuting attorney. These are companion cases to that of Captain P. H. Gray of Seaconnet. On the day in question Captain Mason is said to have caught about 90 barrels of porgies, but he claimed that none had been taken in unlawful territory. William H. Tilton of Damariscotta conducted the defense.

Old Orchard Race Meeting.

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 10.—The midsummer race meeting at the kite track began yesterday afternoon with three fast classes, two of which were finished and the third carried over. The 2:10 pace, with six starters, was won in straight heats by Refina, best time 2:08½, breaking the New England pacing mare record. The 2:18 trot was won by Bismarck, after Lady Aley had taken one heat, in 2:13¼, the fastest heat in the race. A dead heat between Dr. Wood and Monopole and a collision on the track, which resulted in the throwing of Driver James Galvin, were sensational features of the 2:12 pace. The judges held George G responsible for the collision and distanced him, after he had won a heat.

Collier Declared Insane.

Providence, Aug. 0.—William A. Collier, the divinity student, who threatened to kill Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, has been examined by physicians, and pronounced insane and sent to the state asylum for the insane.

Call For Prohibition Convention.

Boston, Aug. 10.—The convention for the Prohibitionists for the purpose of nominating a state ticket is called for Sept. 8 at 10:30 a. m., in Y. M. C. A. hall, Berkeley street, this city.

The man who awakens from a deep sleep, just in time to ward off the blow of an assassin, who, knife in hand, is preparing to drive it into his heart, has had a narrow escape. There are thousands of grateful men who have aroused themselves from the lethargy of recklessness and neglect, just in time to ward off the deadly assault of that dread enemy of mankind consumption.

The weapon with which these men have successfully combated this grim destroyer has been Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the only known medicine that will prevent and cure consumption. Taken in time, it will always ward off this deadly disease, and even after the devastating germs have attacked the lungs, it will cure 98 per cent. of all cases. It acts directly on the lungs, building up new, healthy tissues and driving out all disease-germs. It corrects all stomach and digestive troubles, invigorates the liver and makes the appetite keen and hearty. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and nerve tonic. There is nothing else "just as good" and the druggist who says so is untrustworthy.

"I was a sufferer for five or six years from indigestion, sore stomach, and constant headaches," writes B. F. Holmes, of Gaffney, Spartanburg Co., S. C. "I tried several of our best physicians and found no permanent relief. By the persuasion of Mr. J. R. Tolleson, a friend of mine, I commenced on the 28th September, 1895, to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pellets'—which gave me relief in a few days. Since then I have used five bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and five vials of Pellets.' When I commenced using the medicines I could not sleep, had a restless uneasy feeling all the time, and my skin was yellow and dry. I weighed only 148 pounds. I now weigh 170 pounds, have a good color, and rest well at night. I have a good appetite, can eat anything I wish. For two years, while under treatment by a physician, I ate nothing but Graham bread."

In reference to the above letter, J. R. Tolleson, P. O. Box 173, Gaffney, Spartanburg Co., S. C., writes: "The above Mr. B. F. Holmes, is a good christian gentleman, and one whose word will go a long way with those who know him. I use and sell Dr. Pierce's medicines, and I recommended them to Mr. Holmes."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure that disease-producing disorder, constipation. They never fail. They never gripe. Druggists sell them.

A PATRON OF MUSIC.

An Illinois Woman Who Does a Great Deal For Amateur Musical Clubs.

It was due to Mrs. Chandler Starr of Rockford, Ills., that the amateur musical clubs of Illinois received so much recognition during the musical convention recently held in New York. Mrs. Starr was the organizer of the well known Mendelssohn club of Rockford and was a delegate from this state, where she has been a leader in musical circles. The Federation of Women's Musical Clubs, which is entirely independent of the Music Teachers' National association, was suggested by Mrs. Starr and thoroughly approved of by all the eastern clubs. These organizations, although fairly well supplied with funds, find it a difficult matter individually to obtain the highest priced artists for their concerts throughout the year. With a federation of clubs and the tender of perhaps 20 engagements in various cities an artist could easily afford to greatly reduce his or her price. Mrs. Starr obtained her plans from the great congress of music held here during the World's fair, and it is the most feasible scheme yet presented to musical club life. Her paper upon the subject was a bright, thoroughly comprehensive article, which was received with a great deal of pleasure and interest by some 300 or 400 women. Mrs. Russell Dorr, president of the Schubert club of St. Paul, was her aid in this plan. The first temporary president of the organization is Mrs. Sutro of New York, with Miss Marion Rolston of St. Louis as secretary. These names may possibly be changed when the time comes for permanent officers.

MRS. CHANDLER STARR.

There were so many members present at this last musical congress, representing clubs from all over the country, that it was an excellent opportunity to make the first advances toward a federation of the organizations. Mrs. Starr seemed very well pleased with the musical representation in the woman's department of the Music Teachers' National association, especially in the line of compositions. The manuscripts sent by Jessie L. Gaynor, Lydia Avery Coonley Ward, Mrs. Crosby Adams and Mme. Muzzacutao Young received considerable attention, as well as two or three clever little compositions by Nellie Bangs Skelton. There were 16 clubs in all from Illinois, and after a careful investigation one obtains some idea of how much work is really done in the west, notwithstanding all the fuss made in the east.

Mrs. Starr says that one of the greatest drawbacks to their musical club life has been the few artists of fame obtainable in a season, and hundreds of letters have been exchanged among the clubs during the past season as to what should be done, and Mrs. Starr deserves special credit for thinking out the above feasible plans, which will make these important musical clubs still further successful.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Chicago Teachers Aroused.

The women teachers of grade schools in Chicago have formed a public school teachers' federation, with Miss Elizabeth K. Burdick of the Prescott school as president. The organization is something like a trades union, and the openly expressed intention of the teachers is to force an increased scale of salaries.

It seems that the women do the actual work of teaching at far smaller salaries than men receive, while the superintendent of the schools gets $7,000 a year, his assistants $4,000, the supervisors from $1,500 to $3,000, the special teachers from $1,200 to $1,600 and grammar school principals from $2,500 to $3,000. These men pay formal visits to the schools once each month, which is about the extent of their work, so far as teaching is concerned, say the regular teachers. The women are standing shoulder to shoulder in their fight for better salaries, and the outcome of their demands will be watched with interest by schoolteachers throughout the country.—Chicago Letter.

A Corset For Swimmers.

The woman inclined to embonpoint is certainly an ungraceful sight in a bathing suit without stays of some kind, and as it is impossible to swim with any enjoyment when wearing the regular stiff corset she will welcome the French flannel bathing corset, which is a recent importation. This garment is made of a yard and a half of the best shrunk flannel and is stiffened with double sets of whalebones. There is no steel in front, and the corset is fastened in the back with straps sewed on each side and slipped through a slit on the opposite edge. The straps, after being passed through the slits, are brought down and fastened with buttons and buttonholes in front. Make grooves for the whalebones in the same place as in other corsets, omitting the steel in front, sewing in gussets to support the bust. To be comfortable and to admit the easy play of the muscles, these stays should be made at least two sizes larger than the ordinary corset.—Exchange.

The Refractometer

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent occulists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.

I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.

F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.

I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.

JACOB GOLDBERG, M. D.

This is a very expensive instrument, but we consider nothing too good for our patrons, and have placed one in our optical room.

FIERCE FIGHT IN PRISON

Murderer Willis, Assisted by Brother, Tries to Shoot Way to Freedom.

They Fought Like Fiends Until Shot Down.

One Guard Seriously Wounded---Twenty-Five Bullets Were Fired.

Boston, Aug. 11.—Herbert A. Willis, the young "bicycle" desperado of Taunton, who was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Fred Strange, made a boldly-planned and desperate attempt at escape from the state prison at Charlestown yesterday. He was aided by his brother, Everett, who, while visiting the convict, managed to smuggle a revolver in the prison.

The two men opened fire on Turnkey Elijah S. Darling, the only man who stood between the prisoner and liberty. There were sudden shouts, a rush of feet, and a fusillade of pistol shots in the rotunda. Guard Witham rushed to the defense of Darling and returned the fire with deadly effect. Guards Abbott and Benjamin closed in also.

In a few minutes all was over. The Willis brothers lay on the floor of the rotunda. Herbert was mortally wounded. The brave turnkey suffered from a painful wound, but will probably recover from his hurts.

The affair was all over inside of three minutes, but in that time the rotunda of the prison, in which Willis and his brother were conversing, and from which the bold attempt to escape was made, was filled with smoke from the blazing weapons, and when it was over the three men lay weltering in their own blood on the floor. At the sound of the first shot the other prison officials rushed to the aid of their comrades, and those arriving first took part in the affray, one of them firing the fatal shot at Herbert Willis while grappling with him.

The prison hospital report says that Convict Willis cannot live; the Massachusetts general hospital says that Everett Willis may live, and Officer Darling will live, although increasing inflammation may result in the loss of one eye. The affair caused a tremendous sensation in this city.

When Everett B. Willis called at the prison on his regular monthly visit to his brother he was granted a pass, and he went directly to the meeting place in the rotunda.

His brother, Herbert, the murderer, was summoned from the workshop, and in a few minutes the two were in an earnest conversation, each being seated in chairs in the rotunda directly in front of the west wing and in full view of the officers. Officer Witham sat down at the table in the center of the room, where he could keep a sharp watch of the pair, and as another precaution, Officer J. S. Abbott took a position in a chair nearer the entrance to the rotunda.

Officer Darling stepped up to the men and told them that their time was up, and as soon as he turned his back on them and started toward the center of the rotunda he was directly in the line of the other officers, and that was undoubtedly the time when the revolver was passed. In an instant the two brothers, crouching near by, began their fusillade of bullets. The convict fired three shots at Officer Witham, but his aim was so poor that all went wide. When the first bullet whistled by his head, Witham stooped behind the little table at which he had been sitting, and, while in that position, drew his revolver and returned the fire. Officers Abbott and Darling also opened fire, and in a short space of time Officers Benjamin and Townsend rushed to the assistance of the other officers. Nearly 25 shots were exchanged between the convict, his brother and the officers.

Officer Townsend was at his desk outside of the rotunda when the shooting began, and instantly drawing his revolver he sprang to the door, opened it, threw away his door key, went through and slammed the door after him. He threw the key away so that if overpowered the men could not get out. As he stepped into the rotunda Herbert Willis, the prisoner, broke from the officers and rushed across the rotunda towards the door, while his brother continued to struggle with the officers.

The Two Desperadoes Shot Down.

As the prisoner sprang forward Townsfired, and Willis threw up his arms, and, spinning round, staggered toward the east side of the rotunda and fell to the floor. The next instant his brother, who had now broken from the officers, came rushing toward Townsend, and before the latter could again raise his revolver to fire was upon him, and the two men grappled in a fierce struggle. Willis had fired his last shot, but he freed his right arm and struck Townsend with his empty revolver, inflicting some painful bruises. Townsend did not try to hit back, but forcing his revolver against Willis' chest fired, the ball passing into Willis' lungs. Almost at the same moment Deputy F. P. Benjamin, who had been outside in the prison and heard the firing, rushed in, and springing toward the struggling pair discharged his revolver close to Willis' head, the ball passing into the neck behind the ear. This ended the struggle. Townsend had a bad black eye and a lump as large as a hen's egg on the side of his head where Willis' revolver had landed, but is otherwise uninjured.

When the firing had ceased and the officers had recovered somewhat the prostrate forms of the two brothers were found lying on the floor of the rotunda, that of the convict being near the door which leads out into the prison yard and that of his brother near the door leading out into the office. Both men appeared to be dying. The convict was taken into the prison hospital and his brother to the Massachusetts general, while the wounded officers were taken to rooms near by and a doctor was summoned to attend them.

The revolvers used by the brothers were 38 caliber. In the pocket of Everett Willis the officers found a dozen loose cartridges, and it is stated that when he received the shot that practically stopped further trouble on his part he was crouching in one corner, trying to reload his pistol.

At the time of the shooting there were present in the rotunda another prisoner and a visitor and several convicts who work about the prison, but all quickly got out of the way and did not assist the men in their attempt to escape.

Both Were Athletes.

Taunton, Mass., Aug. 11.—The daring attempt on the part of Herbert Willis with the assistance of his brother Everett, to break out of the Charlestown prison by trying to kill the guards, is considered to be in keeping with at least the career of Herbert if not of his brother Ever since his brother's conviction Everett has been sullen and morose, and many of those who acted as informers at the time of Herbert's arrest, have feared that he would, upon learning of their identity, seek revenge upon them. Everett, as well as his brother, is a fine athlete and craved excitement, and it is thought here that the plan originated with him. It is known that last week Everett sold all the goods and fixtures of his father's fishmarket, and that he used part of the proceeds to purchase the two revolvers and to pay his fare to Boston.

RECEIVER NOT ASKED FOR.

Massachusetts Benefit Directors Discuss Affairs and Postpone Action.

Boston, Aug. 11.—The directors of the Massachusetts Benefit Life association were in session yesterday at the company's offices, 60 State street. They were called together to attend a special meeting, to consider the advisability of asking for a receiver for the association, and plans for taking care of the present membership.

A proposition was presented by President Rolker, from the New York Life Insurance company, to take over so much of the entire membership as could pass a medical examination.

The policy to be offered to the members is said to be one at about the same rate as they are now paying, and which takes in all the advantages usually offered by the big old-line companies.

The deal does not include finding positions for any of the present officers, and under the arrangement the renewal premiums would be in whole the property of the reinsuring company, and no present Massachusetts Benefit agent would have any interest in these renewals. This is a hard thing for the agent, but the low rate of insurance is said to explain this.

As to the proposition receiving the approval of two-thirds of the members, which many seem to think necessary, it may be stated that this is not necessary under the Massachusetts law when an assessment company reinsures in an old-line company. The law says that when an assessment company reinsures in an organization of a similar kind, then two-thirds of the members shall approve the deal. The law says nothing of what an old-line company may or may not do.

The question of placing the company in the hands of a receiver was also one of the important objects of the meeting.

After a somewhat spirited debate, it was voted that no decisive action could be taken until Aug. 31, which date marks the limit of the extra call.

President Rolker was the only one in favor of the appointment of a receiver, as being the opinion of a majority of the certificate holders.

The offer of the New York company was rejected for the reason, President Rolker said, "simply because we thought that any action taken in the matter at this time would have been premature. The board will do all in its power to save the business of the association, and we think its fate will be ultimately decided at the next meeting on Aug. 31. This is all I can say for the present, excepting that the other directors have sustained me in the past and I am determined to support them now."

National Hay Association.

Pittsburg, Aug. 11.—Four hundred delegates and visitors attended the opening session of the fourth national convention of the National Hay association here yesterday. The report of the committee on state of trade showed that the present prospect is for the largest hay crop ever grown in this country. The legislative committee expressed themselves as satisfied with tariff rate of $4 per ton.

Secretary Bliss Issues Warning to Prospective Klondyke Miners.

Privation and Suffering Ahead For Those Who Go.

Relief Expedition Could Not Reach Those Detained In Mountains In Winter.

Washington, Aug. 11.—Secretary of Agriculture Bliss sends out the following warning to persons who contemplate going to the Yukon gold fields:

To Whom it May Concern:

In view of the information received at this department that 3000 persons, with 2000 tons of baggage and freight are now waiting at the entrance to White Pass, in Alaska, for an opportunity to cross the mountains to the Yukon river, and that many more are preparing to join them, I deem it proper to call the attention of all who are contemplating making the trip to the exposure, privation, suffering and danger incident thereto at this advanced period of the season, even if they should succeed in crossing the mountains. To reach Dawson City over the pass, 700 miles of difficult navigation on the Yukon river, without adequate means of transportation, will still be before them, and it is doubtful if the journey can be completed before the river it closed by ice.

I am moved to draw public notice to these conditions by the gravity of the possible consequences to people detained in the mountainous wilderness during five or six months of an Arctic winter, where no relief can reach them, however great the need. C. N. Bliss.

Secretary of the Interior.

The state department has not yet received the application from the British government for permission to run a telegraph line through United States territory connecting the gold fields of the Klondyke with the outer world. It is said that the application will raise a new question only comparable to that which was involved in the establishment of the mixed mail route in Alaska, which gave rise to so much talk.

WEALTH UNDERESTIMATED.

A Californian Tells of Klondyke Mines and Cost of Living.

New York, Aug. 11.—One of the first men to visit the Klondyke region for the purpose of making a scientific examination of its possibilities was Dr. G. G. Lyman of California, who is now in this city at the Waldorf. He has been interested in gold mining for several years, and a year ago, when the first rumors of the wealth of the region began to float down the Pacific coast, he was sent to the Klondyke to investigate. As a result of his visit the Yukon Trading, Mining and Exploration company was organized.

Dr. Lyman says that the wealth of the region has been underestimated rather than exaggerated. "Nowhere in the world," he said, "is gold found in such large quantities as in Alaska. For 1000 miles along the Aleutian islands a man can start at any point and wash out $10 to $12 worth of gold to the pan, but the cost of living is so high and transportation facilities so poor that it never paid, while in California $2.50 a pan is profitable. There is an enormous quantity of gold bearing quartz in Alaska, too, as well as the placers, but it is hard to locate. I believe that any man who goes up there with good health and a proper outfit can do well, but no one can get there now. It would be madness to start before next spring.

"No one should go there without $1000 at least. The cost of living is enormous. In a letter which I received from a clerk in the assay office at Dawson the other day, he said that the cash sales in the store for the day on which he wrote were $4500. Shovels which sell here for 75 cents were selling there for $12 each. Bacon was $1.50 per pound, eggs $1.50 per dozen, flour $1 per pound and butter $3 per pound." Dr. Lymann declared that the gold field extended across the Bering strait. He says that when he was in St. Petersburg last July parties were being made up to go to the Siberian gold fields.

Alaskan Steamer Sunk.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 11.—The steamer Topeka, which arrived here last evening, reports that the steamer Mexico, on Aug. 5, while going into Dixon entrance from Sitka, during a heavy fog, at full speed, struck West Devil's rock. After two hours the steamer sank in 500 feet of water, stern first. The captain exhibited great coolness, and with the officers did everything that was possible. The passengers and crew were saved with their baggage in small boats. After rowing till midnight they arrived at Metlakahtla. The ship is a total loss. The passengers and crew are on the Topeka.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

THE BAND CONCERTS.

Kick of the Sexton Liable to Rob People of Pleasure.

There was no band concert in City Square Tuesday evening, and the prospects are that there will be no more in the vicinity of the First church, for which the music loving public may thank the sexton who has wet the steps and made considerable complaint because he had to sweep up more or less peanut shells after the concert.

These concerts were furnished by the Street Railway company, and has been greatly enjoyed by all citizens, as is evident by the large crowds of people who gather in the square upon the nights the concerts are advertised to be given. Although the crowd often numbers among the thousands they have thus far been very orderly and have given the police no trouble. But a small portion of these people come on the electric cars and the railway claim that instead of making money, it costs them more than they get out of it.

Unfortunately no seats of any kind are provided by the city in any section of the city, and the only available seats in City Square are the steps of the First church. It is a noticeable fact that a very large proportion of the people who use the steps for seats are women and children, and nothing is more natural than for them to eat peanuts. At best it would be but a matter of a few minutes to sweep them up. As far as the use of tobacco by the men is concerned that might easily be remedied by reserving the steps for the exclusive use of women and children.

The concerts might be given at Merry Mount park but that is not so central, and so many would not enjoy them.

Can You Guess.

One morning recently a noted Quincy gentleman entered one of the restaurants in City Square for breakfast. He said he was not very hungry and that his appetite was not as good as usual, but this is what he ate:

Beefsteak and potatoes, two boiled eggs, two gems with butter, four slices of bread, two large cups of coffee, one cucumber, two fish balls and one slice of apple pie.

After putting this out of sight he helped himself to a toothpick and handing the proprietor twenty cents, walked out.

The proprietor says that he is not busted as yet but soon would be if he had many single meal customers like the above for constant patrons.

The Volunteers of America.

Capt. Albert Shaw of The Volunteers of America will conduct the service at the East Milton Congregational church next Sunday morning, and will be assisted by Mr. Brown, missionary from India, also Mr. J. King, an evangelist, late of South America.

Capt. Shaw will also speak at the First Presbyterian church, Quincy, on Thursday evening of this week on "The Volunteers and how they did the churches." Mr. Brown will also be present.

Metropolitan Water.

The Selectmen of Milton have received word that the Metropolitan Water Board will commence this fall to lay a twenty four inch water main through its streets to Third hill, Quincy. The route by which the main will come is Adams street over Milton hill.

DEMAND A HEARING.

Wollaston People Mean Business About that Fence.

Ask the Railroad Commissioners to Examine Premises.

What Will be the Solution, a Difficult Question.

The Board of Railroad Commissioners do not wish it to be understood that they are the parties who are responsible for the now famous Wollaston fence, as is evinced by the following communication to a resident of that place:

"Referring to your letter of July 23, in relation to fence at the Wollaston station of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. I have to say that this board has never ordered a fence at the point referred to. The officials of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., desired to erect a fence and provide another access to the station, as an experiment, and the Board acceded to that request, as an experiment, and if it would not secure the safety desired some further action would be taken.

Yours truly,
WM. A. CRAFTS, clerk.

As the New Haven officials seem disinclined to take any further action in the matter all of the store keepers and the Postmaster have taken advantage of Chap. 112, Section 16 and 17 of the Public Statutes, which allows any twenty legal voters of a place to request the Board of Railroad Commissioners through the Mayor and City Council to examine the premises and to give the petitioners and others interested a hearing. As the request is a mandatory one upon the Board it will of course be granted.

The question to be solved is not easy of solution. All agree that Wollaston has been seriously damaged by the manner in which the New Haven officials have attempted to solve the problem. It has seriously affected the sales of Wollaston realty. One or two large sales—to the writer's knowledge—have been declared off, because the station has been so completely isolated from the village. The stores also seriously feel the effects of the change.

It would seem from a superficial view that a tunnel running from the depot beneath the tracks, and having a street entrance about opposite Boynton & Russell's store, would be the most feasible manner to solve the question. Nearly everybody agrees that a fence, not that particular fence which is now up, and which is a hideous looking affair, should be there to keep people from making a grade crossing of that place. The extension of Brook street beneath the tracks will not shorten the distance from the stores and post office to the station.

Lost His Team.

Word was received by the police from Hingham Tuesday night to look out for a team taken from that place during the afternoon by a man named George W. Smith. It seems that Smith hired the team, but as he did not return the parties became alarmed.

This morning Chief Hayden found a man on Washington street looking for a team he had lost. This man proved to be Smith who said he was driving along and when it began to rain he got out and left the team. It was later learned that the team was picked up in Boston last night by officers of Station 4, and it is supposed that Smith, who is demented, must have walked back to Quincy.

His relatives in Cambridge were notified and came out this noon and took him home.

Lawn Party at Atlantic.

In spite of the thunder showers of yesterday, which dampened the grass and made things disagreeable, the Christian Endeavorers, who were to hold a lawn party in aid of the Memorial church last night, were not entirely disappointed, as they removed all their things to the church late in the afternoon and the lawn party was held at that place. On the grounds outside supper was served at 6 o'clock, and ice cream, etc., through the evening. A large hurdy gurdy furnished music throughout the evening. The affair was well attended and a great success.

Manufacturers' Outing.

The Quincy Granite Manufacturers held a meeting Tuesday evening at which it was voted to hold its annual outing next Saturday at Nantasket beach. The trip will be made by street cars and will leave Quincy about 9 o'clock. Dinner will be served at the Hotel Nantasket.

GRACE STEVENSON CASE.

Supposed Clew to Missing Brookline Girl Comes to Surface.

Salem, Mass., Aug. 11.—Still another supposed clew to the disappearance of Grace Stevenson of Boston has turned up at Salem Willows in the person of a young woman who calls herself Tina McGuire, who was brought to the house of C. H. Beach almost nine weeks ago, and who, after remaining about seven weeks, suddenly disappeared the day after Mr. Beach had accused her of being the missing Boston girl.

Mr. Beach, who keeps a lodging house at Juniper Point, near the Willows, said that about June 1 a woman brought a young lady to his house and asked for board for her. The young woman was accomodated, and the older lady left almost immediately.

The boarder seemed always to have plenty of money, and the lodgings were paid for regularly.

Some time after the story regarding Miss Stevenson came out, it suddenly occurred to Mr. Beach that his lodger might be the missing girl, and from the descriptions in the daily papers he became almost convinced of the fact.

A day or two later he obtained a picture of the missing girl, and now declares that he readily identified the McGuire girl as Miss Stevenson.

The next day he accused her of it, and the girl burst into tears, but said nothing and a few hours afterward she was nowhere to be found. Mr. Beach is unable to give many facts about the girl, and up to the present time all traces of her are lost.

ON THE DIAMOND.

National League.

At Boston—

The work of Klobedanz in the box yesterday was easily the finest done by any Boston pitcher this season, and the New Yorks were defeated, 1 to 0. But two men hit him safely, he gave but one base on balls and received perfect support. Only one New Yorker got as far a second base. The only run scored was made by Bergen in the fifth. Seymour's Boston debut was a flattering one, and he held the Bostons down to one run and six hits. Both sides fielded brilliantly, and the gentlemanly deportment of the visitors, even when close decisions were rendered, was in marked contrast with that of some other clubs that have been here this season.

Manchester's Successful Carnival.

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 11.—The grand illumination which has been in anticipation here for a long time took place last night, and was carried out with a success that its promoters say was beyond their expectations, especially in view of the fact that there were several showers during the afternoon. Thousands of people assembled to view the spectacle, and the place was in gay attire from one end to the other. Promptly at 8 o'clock the line of decorated boats moved down the river, the cottages on either shore being illuminated with countless Chinese and Japanese lanterns, out past the pavillion on the town pier, where the Salem Cadet band was discoursing sweet music, and the Manchester Yacht club house gay with its beautiful illuminated features and throng of sightseers, and on down the harbor to the turning point, near Chubb's island. Then the parade moved back to the starting point, the way being illuminated by numerous bonfires burning on rafts anchored in the river, and hundreds of lanterns suspended from poles set in the mud at frequent intervals, and by the burning of red fire on shore. The carnival was pronounced the best of any ever held here.

Sulloway on the Future.

Exeter, N. H., Aug. 11.—The Rockingham County Republican club had a ladies' day at Hampton Beach yesterday, and over 200 were present. After dinner at the Sea View House, Congressman Sulloway, who was a guest of the club, gave a short address. He spoke of the tariff and its manifest advantage to the agricultural community, and cited an instance the tariff of $4 now on a ton of hay over $2 formerly, by which we should make $150,000,000. He said we should see dollar wheat and dollar barley before snow flies. We have a foundation now and confidence is restored. He said he believed the civil service nuisance to be the greatest under the sun today; that civil service examinations are nothing but put up jobs. He expressed sympathy with the Cubans, and said this government, if it did its duty, would rid Cuba of Spanish rule within 30 days.

New Hampshire Grange Meetings.

Greenfield, N. H., Aug. 11.—The first of the Pomona Grange field meetings of this summer's series was held at Zephyr lake, Hillsborough county, yesterday, Pomona Grange having charge. State Master Batchelder and other state officers were present, as well as Hon. Edward Wiggin of Maine, master of the state grange of the Pine Tree state. Cheshire county, Pomona, meets at Spofford lake, Chesterfield, Wednesday, Sullivan county at Lempster, Thursday; Suncook Valley at Epsom, Friday, and Merrimac county at Contoocook River park, Saturday, this city.

Seventy Thousand Voters Favor Low.

New York, Aug. 11.—The executive committee of the Citizens' union met yesterday. Secretary Clarke reported that up to the present time over 70,000 voters had signed ballots favoring Seth Low for mayor of greater New York. He also said that the enrollment of new members of the union was between 2000 and 3000 per day.

THE USES OF GRANITE.

Figures Given by Quarrymen—Should Not be Confused With Manufacturers.

The LEDGER gave recently the value of the granite output for 1896 by states, which showed Massachusetts to have a big lead. The nearest rivals last year were in the order given: Maine, Vermont, Connecticut, Rhode Island, and New Hampshire, all New England States.

The figures of these States are compared with Massachusetts in the following summary of seven years. In 1892 Maine led Massachusetts, but this was the only year that Massachusetts yielded supremacy. The best year in this state was 1891; in Maine, 1892; in Vermont, 1895; in Connecticut, 1891; in Rhode Island, 1894; in New Hampshire, 1891. The summary:

Year.	Mass.	Maine.	Vt.	Conn.	R. I.	N. H
1890,	$2,503,563	$2,225,839	$581,870	$1,061,202	$931,216	$727,531
1891,	2,600,000	2,220,000	700,000	1,167,000	750,000	750,000
1892,	2,200,000	2,300,000	675,000	700,000	600,000	725,000
1893,	1,631,204	1,274,954	778,459	652,459	509,799	442,424
1894,	1,994,830	1,551,036	893,956	504,390	1,211,439	724,702
1895,	1,918,894	1,400,000	1,007,718	779,361	968,473	480,000
1896,	1,656,973	1,195,491	895,516	794,325	746,277	497,966

The table following shows the purposes for which the granite was sold by the quarrymen. The column headed "Sold in rough state" shows how much stone was sold in rough condition without any special squaring up or dressing. The purposes which such stone ultimately served is a matter of question, as it was disposed of by the quarrymen to builders, monument and tombstone cutters, and to others for uses which could not be ascertained from the quarrymen. In spite of the difficulty thus indicated, however, the table will probably be found of interest in showing, for example, just how far the quarrymen go in preparing their product for immediate consumption without the intervention of others.

	Mass.	Maine.	Vt.	Conn.	R. I.	N. H.
Sold in rough state,	$538,907	$187,855	$431,928	$512,352	$90,219	$151,975
Building purposes,	569,829	470,838	28,200	120,080	199,487	194,926
Monumental and cemetery,	185,987	80,564	404,398	91,121	366,840	119,460
Paving blocks,	324,784	344,101	30,990	32,592	50,851	26,355
Macadamizing,	———	7,300	———	35,570	30,000	———
Other purposes,	d 37,466	b 104,838	———	2,600	a 8,880	e 5,250
Total,	$1,656,973	$1,195,491	$895,516	$794,325	$746,277	$497,966

a. All curbing.
b. $70,433 for curbing and $34,400 for bridge work.
d. $23,745 for curbing and $9,000 for building.
e. $4,700 for curbing.

The total of Massachusetts for monumental and cemetery purposes is somewhat misleading, unless one remembers that the figures are those of quarrymen. Massachusetts leads in rough stock sold and much of it certainly is manufactured into monuments by granite men of Quincy and other places. More of the quarry owners of Vermont and Rhode Island are probably manufacturers than is the case in Massachusetts.

A WANDERER.

Man With $470 Who Cannot Give an Account of Himself.

Officer Wigley of Milton found a man wandering about Milton hill in a dazed condition at midnight last night, and as he could not tell how he came there or give much of an account of himself he was locked up. At the police station he gave his name as Thomas W. T. Callahan, and home as Boston, although it afterwards turned out that he was on the road as a drummer. His face was quite badly cut and he had several bruises on the back of his head. Upon being searched it was found that he had $470 in money upon his person besides a gold watch and other valuables.

He was brought into court this morning upon the charge of drunkenness, but as he was in no condition to take care of himself the case was continued until Thursday morning, and he was given in charge of a local member of the Elks, as it was learned that Callahan was also a member of the order.

New Publications.

Solon Doggett of this city is in the field with another novel entitled "Victims of Mammon," which is somewhat of an improvement on "Jumping Judas." The scene of the story is "a beautiful city that sits by the shores of Massachusetts bay," said by some to be Quincy, and the "Tilly Club house" which figures prominently is thought to be the old Hancock House. As yet the true characters have not been identified, if the author had any in mind. The preface of the editor says "the novel shows how a good man can be wrung and ruined by friends, and in these headlong times it is a warning to the wealthy." It is published by B. B. Russell, at 75 Cornhill, Boston.

Leading features of Little Men and Women for August are "My Little Great-Uncle's First Trousers," by Ethelred B. Barry, "How I Used to go to School," by Mary B. Claflin. "What the Mary-Emma-and-Lizzie Did," and serial stories.

Babyland for August has pretty little stories in large type, with cute illustrations, notably "Bobby's Birthday Present." Both the above magazines are now published by Vechten Waring, at 150 Nassau street, New York.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

When your stomach begins to trouble you, it needs help. The help it needs is to digest your food, and, until it gets it, you won't have any peace. Stomach trouble is very distressing, very obstinate, very dangerous. Many of the most dangerous diseases begin with simple indigestion. The reason is that indigestion (not digestion, not-nourishment) weakens the system and allows disease germs to attack it. The antidote is Shaker Digestive Cordial, strengthening, nourishing curative. It cures indigestion and renews strength and health. It does this by strengthening the stomach, by helping it to digest your food. It nourishes you, Shaker Digestive Cordial is made of pure herbs, plants and wine, is perfectly harmless and will certainly cure all genuine stomach trouble. Sold by druggists, price 10 cents to $1.00 per bottle.

PARK AT SQUANTUM.

Metropolitan Park Commission to Make a Taking.

It is more than probable that the Metropolitan Park Commissioners will establish a public park at Squantum. The land to be taken is what is known as the old Squantum house property and is in itself a natural park, and an old time picnic resort.

The land in question is now owned by the City of Boston who are willing to sell to the Park Commission.

Arrangements for the transfer of the property have been underway for several days and it is possible that the whole matter will be definitely settled today.

If the public park should be established the residents of Squantum will have a double celebration Saturday.

The property is on the line of the proposed boulevard and will become a part of the park and boulevard system of greater Boston.

Women as Veterinarians.

This year a young woman will be graduated from the Veterinary school in Alfort, France. Germany and Russia boast of women veterinarians, but in the United States there is not one who is entitled to write herself D. V. S. Women have applied to the various veterinary schools in the United States, most of them saying that they wished to make a special study of the diseases of cats and dogs. Some have taken preparatory courses at the school connected with Cornell university, but none has matriculated anywhere with the intention of entering the profession except Miss Jenne Revert, who attended the New York Veterinary college during two sessions.

Miss Revert is the owner of Robindale farm, Glen Head, N. Y., where she raises blooded horses and fine bulldogs. She hopes to finish her course and take her degree. She speaks appreciatively of the kindness, consideration and good fellowship which she has met with from professors and students. Miss Revert treats the horses and dogs on her own farm, and the horses are always shod under her own personal supervision.

Some of the wives of prominent veterinarians, who are not college graduates, have a wide practical experience and are well read on the subject of veterinary medicine, among them Mrs. Gill, the wife of the dean of the New York Veterinary college.

There are even now any number of women who can pick up a pony's foot and take a stone out of it—Miss Kitty Wilkins of Bruneau Valley, Ida., who raises horses; Mrs. Samuel Caton, who managed her husband's stock farm while he was in Europe, and Mrs. Power O'Donoghue, the famous Irish horsewoman, who broke her own colts and trained them and managed her own stud. There must be others who are able to enter the veterinary profession, a field of work for women as yet unexplored.—Woman's Journal.

Passing of the Sailor.

What is to be the future of the feminine sailor hat? asks a writer in the New York Press. Fashion tolerates sameness in dress among women of all conditions only a brief time. I do not suppose that there is a woman under 100 years of age in the city of New York who is without a sailor hat. Some women have several. Mondaines pay $5 each for theirs, while less extravagant persons are content with a sailor bought with a quarter. Two dollars is an average price, but I saw this sign in a wholesale milliner's window last week, "These sailor hats 76 cents a dozen." They were common things, of course, and not accurate in shape, but they were sailors. And I predict that such a condition portends a great change in headgear. Not before next summer probably, but by that time. Dame Fashion has too much individuality to bear a blow like this, "Seventy-six cents a dozen." True, a $5 sailor is superior to one at 6 1-3 cents, but a mondaine must not dress so that her costume, even in name, can be imitated by the masses. What are the fashionables to wear in the summer of 1898?

The candidate before the next general assembly of Kentucky for the place of state librarian will be Miss Nance Lee Neal of Lawrenceburg, Ky. Miss Neal is the 26-year-old daughter of the Hon. William Neal. She was educated at Hamilton college, Lexington, and at Belmont, Nashville.

Mrs. Oliphant was buried in Eton cemetery almost under the shadow of Windsor castle. Queen Victoria sent a wreath of flowers with the inscription, "A mark of admiration and respect from Victoria, R. I." The queen is a great admirer of Mrs. Oliphant's writings.

Here are some of the wealthiest women in the world: Senora Isidora Cousino, $200,000,000; Hetty Green, $50,000,000; Baroness Burdett-Coutts, $20,000,000; Mme. Barrios, $10,000,000; Miss Mary Garrett, $10,000,000; Mrs. Woleska, $10,000,000.

Instead of using the exhortation of the apostle, "Help those women," it should be, with their knack nowadays of making everything go, "Get those women to help you."—Boston Transcript.

To Sleep.

To sleep! To sleep! The long, bright day is done,
And darkness rises from the fallen sun.
To sleep! To sleep!
Whate'er thy joys, they vanish with the day.
Whate'er thy griefs, in sleep they fade away.
To sleep! To sleep!

Sleep, mournful heart, and let the past be past!
Sleep, happy soul! All life will sleep at last.
To sleep! To sleep!
—Tennyson.

Where?

I saw a cloudlet gather in the sky,
And, moving swiftly, grow to wondrous size,
And, watching it with ever curious eyes,
I wondered where its final rest might lie.

I saw a river onward take its course
And ever toward the mighty ocean trend,
And nothing told me what would be the end,
Nor where was pent the strong, resistless force.

I marked a spider stand to spin its thread,
And saw expand the gauzy web so fine,
And marveled at the patience, half divine,
And pondered where the lesson might be read.

I watched a life unfold itself and grow
And pass from noble unto base pursuit
And grieved to see so much of Dead sea fruit.
Yet who can tell where that wrecked life will go?
—Olive Beatrice Muir.

Shattered Ideals.

I never could see the sense in
A man forming strict ideals
Of the woman he will marry,
The way she must cook his meals,

For with very few exceptions
He enters married life
And eats entirely different meals
With a very different wife.
—Philadelphia American.

Yours for Good Health

COTTOLENE

The danger to digestion and health that menaces those who eat lard-shortened or lard-fried food is happily not found in Cottolene. Made of the best beef suet and the highest grade cotton-seed oil. Cottolene is a pure, clean and healthful vegetable food product, containing neither the greasiness or odor of lard nor its indigestible qualities, and is strongly endorsed by cooking experts and physicians.

The genuine is sold everywhere in one to ten pound tins, with our trade-marks—"Cottolene" and steer's head in cotton-plant wreath—on every tin. Not guaranteed if sold in any other way. Made only by Science In Cooking.

There is always one standard of excellence in every article, reached alone by perseverance and untiring efforts to serve the best. The line of distinction is more marked in Ranges than in anything else we know of,—some good, some bad, some indifferent, all claiming to be the best.

Glenwood Ranges alone stand like a shining star among the ranges of today. Their excellence in every detail marks a new era in range construction, sought for nearly a hundred years in the past, by first one maker and then another. If you need a new range, why not have the best, they cost no more than the other kinds, if you buy them here,—$18.00 to $33.00, and you're sure to get the genuine article at this store alone. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded, a reasonable allowance for your old range, and a range on trial if you wish.

SPAIN'S DEEP SORROW

Whole Nation Mourns With Widow of Premier Canovas.

Officials Redouble Watchfulness of Anarchists.

The Assassin Has Been Identified as a Disobedient Italian Soldier.

Madrid, Aug. 11.—All Spain is in mourning for the late Premier Canovas By order of the queen regent the dead statesman will be given a military funeral on Thursday. A dispatch from Santa Agueda says the funeral cortege accompanying the remains of Senor Canovas left the bathing establishment yesterday, headed by the Duke of Sotomayor, major domo to the royal household, representing the queen regent, and by Senor Castellano, minister for the colonies, and Senor Elduayen The coffin, covered with wreaths, among them one from the queen regent, was borne on a car drawn by four horses. A detachment of Chasseurs rendered military honors and acted as an escort.

The special funeral train awaited the arrival of the cortege at Zumerraga.

Almost at the very moment of the transfer of the coffin from the funeral car to the train a foreigner was arrested at the telegraph office. He is supposed to be an accomplice of the assassin.

Senora Canovas watched by the body of her husband for two nights, one night with Senor Castellar and the other with Senor Castellano. She absolutely refused to take either food or rest, but discussed all the details of the funeral, and only broke down on the road to Zumarraga, when a severe nervous fit was relieved by a flood of tears.

Marquis Del Buston, the court's physician embalmed the body. The post mortem examination showed that the deceased was in an extremely healthy state and that the brain was unusually large. It also showed that either of the three wounds would have proved fatal.

At the special request of Senora Canovas, the remains will lie in state at the private instead of the official residence of the deceased. The government plan was for a lying in state at the official residence.

Next week, General Azcarraga, the new president of the council, will go to San Sebastian to consult with the queen regent.

President McKinley has cabled to the Spanish government the condolences of the United States government and the American people.

It is understood that General Martinez Campos is willing to go to Cuba should the cabinet decide to recall Captain General Weyler. There are also rumors that General Polavieja, former governor of the Philippines, will be invited to succeed Weyler. But these are mere rumors, and thus far there is no indication of abrupt changes either in the administration of Cuba or in the constitution of the cabinet. Senor Sagasta, Senor Moret Y. Prendergast and Marshal Campos, with other statesmen and generals, favor the retention of the present cabinet long enough to reorgainze and to conciliate the conservativative groups.

The government has decided to try the assassin by court martial. He still defiantly declares that other startling crimes will follow. The police and detectives are acting with redoubled vigilance, and the government is in communication with foreign capitals on the question of the surveillance of anarchists.

A dispatch from Lucera, Italy, says that the Italian police have identified Golli, the assassin of Senor Canovas, as Michael Angiolino. He is 33 years of age, and was born at Foggia, capital of the province of that name, in the Apulian Plain. His military record was very bad. He proved an indifferent and disobedient soldier, and was sent for three years' service in the disciplinary battalion. Subsequently he became a compositor.

In April, 1896, he was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment for disseminating anarchist propaganda, but after serving a part of the term he escaped to Spain. He comes of an honest family. His father, who is a tailor, is grief-stricken by the crime of the son. The provincial and communal councils of Foggia have sent telegrams of condolence to the Spanish government, denouncing the assassin.

Strike Crisis Approaching.

Pttsburg, Aug. 11.—A crisis is fast approaching in the miners' movement against the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company. The next few days should determine whether or not the strikers object will be realized. Yesterday's work is not viewed in a disappointing light by the campers at Turtle Creek, Sandy Creek and Plum Creek, yet the happenings were not the most encouraging. A summary of the day's developments finds the conditions much the same as they were Monday, save that the company claims to have made a further break in the strikers' ranks at Turtle Creek and Sandy Creek.

Saw Andree's Balloon.

London, Aug. 11.—According to a dispatch to The Daily Mail from Copenhagen, Captain Mortensen of the bark Anegar, bound from Dublin to Onega, at the mouth of the Onega river, on the White sea, reports that on July 13, when about two days' sail east of North Cape, the northernmost point of Europe, then being in Arctic waters, he saw a collapsed balloon, which he believed to be Herr Andree's.

Rogers Will Row Wray.

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 11.—An agreement was made last evening between Phil Irwin, backer of "Ras" Rogers, and Mike Ahern of Boston, backer of James Wray, the Australian oarsman, for a match at Lake Quinsigamond, Sept. 15. The final arrangements will be made after the national regatta.

Baron Fava Arrives In Rome.

Rome, Aug. 11.—Baron Fava, the Italian ambassador to the United States, arrived here yesterday and went immediately to the foreign office, where he had an interview with the Marquis Visconti Venosta, minister of foreign affairs.

JAPANESE ADVICES.

Gold Currency to Be Adopted---Arbitratio With Hawaii Approved.

San Francisco, Aug. 11.—The steamer Peru arrived yesterday from Yokohama via Hong Kong with the following Japanese advices:

There is no doubt whatever that from Oct. 1 next Japan will have a gold currency. A circular issued by the specie bank announces that from that date it will pay gold for Bank of Japan notes.

The Japanese papers are unanimous in approving the principle of a supposed submission of the Hawaiian difficulty to arbitration.

The Mainichi, commenting upon the annexation question, says:

The reason why Japan made a protest as soon as the signing of the annexation treaty became known is that she has done so simply out of friendship so as to make known her views in the matter before diplomatic negotiations are opened. From the reply of the United States secretary of state to Japan's first protest it appears that the determination of America on the subject is very firm. The Japanese government, however, has not relied on the attitude of other countries from the outset, and this policy will be adhered to the last.

The Japanese Gazette says that there is a feeling akin to panic at Kobe, which, if not soon checked, will lead to serious results. Foreigners are becoming alarmed for their safety, encounters with coolies are rife and the spectacle of foreign blue jackets being pursued by a mob of roughs is not reassuring.

Bar Harbor In Gala Attire.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 11.—Bar Harbor was in gala attire. The largest fleet of yachts that ever gathered in this port is at anchor off the wharf, and as there have been numerous additions to the fleet both the upper and lower harbor are filled with over 100 of the finest pleasure craft afloat. The greatest illumination and pyrotechnic display ever seen in this part o the country took place last night. The weather was overcast and high above the fleet the fog lay in a bank, so that many of the finest balloons and rockets ascended only to be lost to view. But below all was gorgeously brilliant, and the illuminations of the fleet was exceedingly beautiful. The Kebo Valley club's domino ball was attended by many of the prominent yachtsmen, and the elite of Bar Harbor's summer oleony.

Still In the Dark.

North Adams, Mass., Aug. 11.—The inquest into the Reed murder was continued yesterday, Special Justice Woodhead presiding and City Solicitor Thayer conducting the examination on the part of the district attorney. Every possible effort has been made to keep the evidence from the public. State Detectives Pease, Hammond and Whitney, Deputy Sheriff Frink and Chief Kendall and Captain Dineen of the local police force have been busily engaged on the case, scouring the surrounding country in the hope of discovering some new facts bearing upon the tragedy, but at the consultation held by them at the conclusion of their day's labors they state that they are still as much in the dark concerning the murderer and his motive as they were the day after the murder.

Spanish Routed In Battle.

Havana, Aug. 11.—Official information has reached Havana of a decisive battle between the royal troops and insurgent forces in Matanzas. According to this information the Spanish troops were routed after a hard battle, with very heavy losses. The news caused a veritable sensation in Havana, as it is generally known that Captain General Weyler is now in Matanzas, and there is a belief that the Spanish troops directly under him were those who suffered defeat at the hands of the rebels. However, if this is true, the Spanish officials here are taking great pains to suppress the fact.

Wool Sales Falling Off.

Boston, Aug. 11.—The wool market here shows some falling off in the sales, but the market holds a strong position, and there is no difficulty in making sales provided prices are not held too high. Fleece wools are quoted firmer all along the line and but few sales are recorded. Territory wools are selling at 40 cents for fine medium and fine. Scoured Australian wools hold firm and prices are gradually being worked higher.

Union Pacific Rumor.

New York, Aug. 11.—It is rumored that at the coming foreclosure sale in October next the Vanderbilts will be found to be in control of the Union Pacific railroad, and that in the near future steps will be taken to consolidate it with the Oregon Short line, which formerly was one of the Western outlets of the big transcontinental system.

Tewfik Causes More Delay.

Constantinople, Aug. 11.—The peace conference met yesterday, and Tewfik Pasha, the Turkish minister for foreign affairs, submitted fresh proposals regarding the evacuation of Thessaly, the indemnity and other issues involved. This is likely to cause a tedious delay.

Holman's Successor.

Columbus, Ind., Aug. 11.—The special congressional election yesterday to elect a successor to Judge Holman in the Fourth district was quiet. The indications are that Griffith is elected over Lee, Republican, by 1500 majority. Holman's majority was 800.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

The Refractometer

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent occulists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.

I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.

F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.

I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.

JACOB GOLDBERG, M. D.

This is a very expensive instrument, but we consider nothing too good for our patrons, and have placed one in our optical room.

ALICE BARRETT'S WILL

Suicide's Will Filed In Middlesex Probate Court.

Her Mother Appraises Value at $1375.

Members of Her Family Get It All---Girl Friends Remembered.

Boston, Aug. 12.—The last will and testament of Alice M. Barrett, the Kilby street suicide, was filed yesterday afternoon in the Middlesex probate court at East Cambridge by a young man whom the clerks at the office did not know. Mrs. Barrett, the mother of Alice, paid a visit to the office later on.

The will is dated July 21. Miss Barrett shot herself July 24.

The papers issued are made returnable Sept. 7. Mrs. Barrett, who is named as executrix, without sureties, filed an inventory of the estate to the effect that there was no real estate, and that the personal amounts to $1375. Walter R Taylor of Waltham is suggested as appraiser of the property.

The will was typewritten on three sheets of stout paper of regulation typewriter size, with a cover of heavier paper, the whole being securely fastened together at the top.

The will is couched in legal phraseology throughout, and was carefully prepared and written. It begins: "In the name of God, amen," and asserts the sanity of the testator and the uncertainty of life. The payment of just debts and funeral charges is required, and then the following paragraphs of bequests.

All the household furniture, jewelry and clothing, with all money in the savings bank are given to her mother, Mrs. Ella Maria Barrett. To her older brother, Edwin Warren Barrett, is given a mortgage on property in Waltham and a half interest in a mortgage deed of certain real estate in Littleton, N. H. To her younger brother, Charlie Howard Barrett, is given $ 0 and the other half interest of the mortgage deed, then follows the disposal of individual gifts to intimate girl friends, and these gifts include bric-a-brac, rings, books, china and a gold thimble, the value of all being apparently considerable, and in conclusion her mother is named as executrix. The will is witnessed and attested to in due form.

The papers issued are made returnable on Sept. 7, next. Mrs. Barrett filed an inventory of the estate to the effect that there is no real estate, and that the personal estate amounts to $1375. The will was witnessed on June 21, and three day later Miss Barrett was found dead in the office where she worked.

NO MORE POLICIES.

Massachusetts Benefit Life Will Take No New Business.

Boston, Aug. 12.—No more policies will be written by the Massachusetts Benefit Life association for the present. This action was decided on at the meeting of the directors on Tuesday, and was given out by President Rolker in an authorized interview last night.

He gives as the reason for the action that it was thought improper, and even possibly dishonest to continue to receive premiums under the present conditions, when it was not settled what would become of the company.

This policy will continue until further action is taken, depending on the manner in which the payment of the assessment is made. Over a dozen of the employes of the general office were discharged yesterday, including Dr. Williams, the medical examiner.

Mr. Rolker said last night that no action would be taken until the directors' meeting, Aug. 30, unless from the meagre payment of assessments he should see fit to call a meeting within a week to tell the directors of the situation and ask that the affairs of the company be wound up.

Reed's Affianced Overcome.

Oakland, Me., Aug. 12.—Even while the funeral knell is sounding over the remains of Henry Reed and his sister, Blanche Reed, of the North Adams (Mass.) tragedy, Miss Jennie Ray, the affianced wife of Reed, is overcome with a sickness which the attending physician has grave fears will terminate in lung fever. Miss Ray's constitution has not been a strong one for a long time, and the great shock, this horrible double murder, has completely prostrated her.

Miss Ray is at the home of her sister at Oakland, three miles west of the village, her mother and father being in attendance. In an interview Miss Ray referred to the existing mystery, expressing hope of the detection of the culprit. She is a firm believer that theft was the object which actuated the deed. In speaking of Henry Reed she said that probably the last communication ever addressed by him was in her possession. Extracts from the letter mention the fact that a mortgage which was made out in her name and due the last of July had not been paid, and the delinquency of the party would no longer be countenanced, foreclosure being Mr. Reed's intent at once. He also wrote of a certain party who had been to him to borrow a certain sum of money, and that the request was refused. The question was asked if Miss Ray had the least idea that either of these parties would have had enough offense to have perpetrated the double murder, and to it she replied that, "I cannot tell their feelings, but do not think any one would have been enough enraged for this."

Two Councilmen Arrested.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 12.—The city government met especially to act upon two communications from Mayor William S. Greene last night. These documents set forth that The Herald having called upon him editorially to investigate certain acts of the committee on public instruction, also suggesting that he would not investigate by reason of his own connection with the committee, he desired that a committee be chosen from two branches of the government for the purpose of making an investigation. Three aldermen and five councilmen were chosen. At the conclusion of the meeting, as Councilman Frank W. Hoag and William Shay, both members of the committee, were leaving city hall, they were arrested on the charge of being accessories to a felony. One count against Hoag charges him with aiding and abetting Shay in erying to get a sum of money from Architect Charles H. Farnham, on which charge Shay is now awaiting trial. Another count is against both councilmen jointly, and charges conspiracy to take a bribe. Both were bailed in the sum of $1000 in each count.

Curtis Will Contest.

Portland, Me., Aug. 12.—An appeal has been taken by Roscoe W. Curtis, son of the late John B. Curtis, from the probate of the will of Mr. Curtis. The papers were filed in the case yesterday afternoon by ex-Governor Cleaves and Hon. Seth L. Larrabee, and the proceedings will now be transferred to the supreme judicial court. The reasons of appeal are that the late Mr. Curtis was laboring under a delusion when he made his will, which influenced him to disinherit his son.

Son Recovered Father's Body.

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 12.—Frank Irwin, a widower, aged 35, and residing with his parents at Kenwood, was accidently drowned while out rowing in the Merrimack river at about 6:30 o'clock last night. He leaves one daughter and three sons. The youngest son saw the empty boat floating down with the current and notified the oldest son, who swam out and recovered the boat, and in a few minutes located the body on the bottom and recovered it with a boat hook.

North Adams Mystery.

North Adams, Mass., Aug. 12.—Three of the state police, two deputy sheriffs, the local officers and a score of newspaper reporters have been trying to fathom the Reed double murder mystery four days. Several promising clues have been taken up and run to the ground, but last night, after all this investigation and careful inquiry, there is not one single bit of evidence that is of value at the present time.

Nothing but Rain.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 12.—No sham battle, no drill work worth mentioning, no dress parade, no crowds of visitors, nothing to speak of at Camp Powers yesterday except the constant drizzling rain. It upset all plans, and kept men and officers close in their quarters. During the afternoon Governor Powers, the members of his council, and numerous other state officers visited the camp for a short time.

Yachtsmen Doing Nothing.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 12.—The weather throughout yesterday was very stormy, and but little was done by the yachtsmen. The boat and launch races were declared off. It was the intention to disband at 10 o'clock today, but on account of the boat races, the New York fleet will not disband until tonight.

Cowboy Beats Bicyclist.

Boston, Aug. 12.—At the Charles River park last night, Eddie McDuffie and Harry Jersey, the Wild West rough rider, had their second five-mile contest, McDuffie on a bicycle and Jersey on horseback, with the privilege of taking a fresh mount every lap. Jersey won in 11:34, McDuffie's time being 11:43.

Dupont's Speed Average.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 12.—The official uncorrected speed average of the Dupont has been figured at 28.5 by the board of inspection and survey. The actual time is yet to be computed and will be governed by tidal corrections.

Storms Follow Baptists.

Cottage City, Mass., Aug. 12.—The Baptists had their traditional cloudburst yesterday. In only one year of the past 23 have they failed to bring a terrific rainstorm.

Carlists Ready to Rise.

Paris, Aug. 12.—The Matin publishes a statement which purports to come from a Carlist source to the effect that 60,000 volunteers have been organized and are being rapidly armed in various provinces in Spain, ready to rise at the signal of Don Carlos. The pretender, however, according to this story, "is restrained by patriots and will await the issue of the Cuban difficulty before making a bid for the throne."

WILLIS MAY RECOVER.

The Wounded Charlestown Convict Regains Consciousness.

Everett Is Now Thought to Be Out of Danger.

Governor Wolcott Compliments Prison Officials---Everett Watched.

Boston, Aug. 12.—Convict Herbert A. Willis may possibly survive wounds which he received in the shooting affair at the state prison last Tuesday morning when he, aided by his brother, attempted to gain his liberty by shooting down the guards in the rotunda.

Yesterday afternoon, a few hours after Governor Wolcott had paid him a visit and had departed, the convict regained complete consciousness.

The doctors gave him a pint of milk, which the convict drank slowly but with an evident relish.

A short time after he had taken this nourishment the prisoner appeared to have gained strength to a considerable degree. He looked about him at the various parts of the room and then wearily closed his eyes and suffered his head to droop to one side.

Last night Officer Hyde said that another officer was on guard at the hospital in the west wing, and that he was keeping a close watch upon the convict in order to note any change. The appearances last night indicated that Willis would possibly pull through.

Officer Darling was reported as being in a comfortable condition by the nurse at his home last night. All signs point to slow but comparatively sure recovery.

Everett P. Willis was resting very comfortably at the Massachusetts general hospital last night and seemed to be gaining matefially in strength.

He passed a very fair day, and in the afternoon the surgeons attending him removed the bullet from the flesh wound in his chest.

No attempt was made, nor will one be made at present, to remove the one in his head.

Everett Willis, the desperate young man confined in the Massachusetts hospital, is watched every minute of the day and night by an armed officer from station 15, Charlestown, and the officials have not in the least abated their vigilance by his supposed weak condition. In the opinion of those who have had anything to do with the youth since he was first placed in the ambulance, he is not so badly off as he would have his attendants believe. They think that he is playing a deep game, and if given the slightest opportunity will exhibit surprising activity for a man badly injured.

Willis, as he lies on his cot in a room on the first floor of the hospital, is an interested observer of all that goes on within the room, and has betrayed himself in several instances when off his guard. He frequently talks to his guards, and the manner in which the questions are put shows the direction of the young man's thought.

It is admitted by the persons who have seen him at the hospital that, on the slightest opportunity, Everett Willis will make at attempt to get his liberty that will be parallel with the desperate endeavor he made within the Charlestown prison to release his brother. That he is on the watch for just such a chance was shown by an incident yesterday.

An officer had just relieved his comrade at the bedside and sat down in the chair with his eyes on the prisoner. Willis appeared to be asleep, but the close watch of the officer showed that he knew what was going on in the room. The officer kept his eyes fixed on him, and then made a test which showed startling results. The officer leaned back in his chair, and, with his face toward the bed, closed his eyes until he could just see the prisoner under slightly opened lids. Everett was on the watch. By degrees his eyes opened until he could see the officer apparently dozing in his chair. He waited a few moments, and them the desperate character of the man showed plainly in the act that followed.

Slowly and quietly the prisoner raised himself in the bed until he sat upright with one foot resting over the side of th bed. His quick eye took in a survey of the whole room, resting particularly on the window, which, by the way, is on the first floor, and contains no bars or grating. The officer allowed the man to take a quick survey of the room, and then he slightly stirred. Quick as a flash the young man dropped back in bed in the same condition as before.

The state prison officers who made such a heroic fight Tuesday to prevent the escape of young Willis, the murderer, who is serving a life sentence in that institution, were severally complimented by his excellency Governor Wolcott yesterday for the courage they displayed and the judgment they exercised.

The governor visited the institution in the forenoon, accompanied by Secretary Bailey of the board of prison commissioners. He was received by Warden Bridges, and spent about an hour inquiring into the shooting.

Martial Law at Oporto.

London, Aug. 12.—The Daily Mail publishes a dispatch from Oporto, Portugal, which says that the town is in a state of open rebellion, and that the authorities have only maintained the upper hand by proclaiming martial law and arresting 18 army officers who were ringleaders in the revolt. Considerable anxiety is felt at the British residence, where there is a strong desire for an ironclad to insure safety.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy always affords prompt relief. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

Some Had a Pull.

President Rolker of the Massachusetts Benefit Life Association, in an interview with the Journal, has this to say about the help, some of whom are well known at Wollaston:

"This story about asking for the resignation of some of the office help, who have been given various titles that I never heard of, is laughable in a way. I discharged about a dozen of the office help yesterday, including eight girls employed as clerks, a stenographer, two men and an office boy. The reason for this is that they would be useless lumber about the office since we have shut off writing policies. If we resume business two or three good clerks will do all the work done by the help I have discharged. This talk about the expense fund being down very low is interesting. We will pay all our expenses all right. I am sorry for those who have lost their positions, but I have got to run this thing on a business basis. When I went there the clerks did as they pleased and worked as they pleased. Some got big salaries because they were brothers-in-law or sisters-in-law to somebody. One boy got $30 for $12 worth of work because he was 'related.' There was lots of deadwood, and I have simply cut it off.

"Dr. Williams, one of the medical examiners, has finished, but Dr. Dutton is still with us, because he has a six-years' contract, which has several years to run."

Those Dropped.

The Globe says, the cessation of the Massachusetts Benefit Life Association from writting new business is clearly shown by the dismissal of chief clerk Howard Battison of the policy department and his entire corps of girl clerks. Miss Marie D. Clements, the chief stenographer of the company for many years, and attached to the claims department, has also "resigned," and "resignations" have come in from J. R. Corthell, Silas Gates and others.

Outing to Nantasket.

Rev. Fr. Johnson arranged on Wednesday for an excursion to Nantasket for all those who took part in the concert in Music hall in aid of the Sacred Heart Sunday school, and all the teachers and members of the choir of that church. A special car left the church at 9 o'clock and conveyed them to and from the beach. The party, about fifty in number, dined at the Ocean View house and then dispersed along the beach and a general good time was enjoyed by all.

Granite Business Improving.

James Gourlay, superintendent of the New England Granite Works at Westerly, reports that the granite business is improving, but that prices are still low. The Westerly works has just received a contract that will keep a large force of men busy for a month. The stone work on the new Washington Life Insurance building in New York city has been nearly completed. Many estimates are being requested.—Herald.

Former Resident Dead.

Word has been received of the death at Worcester of Howard W. Hosie, formerly of Quincy. Mr. Hosie was about fifty years of age and up to twelve years ago resided on Gay street. He carried on the express business in Quincy for a number of years under the name of Hosie's Quincy and Boston express. His body was brought to Quincy this afternoon and buried at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Quarryman Drops Dead After a Blast at Merry Mount Quarry.

Mr. Andrew Larson, a well known Swedish resident, died suddenly on Wednesday. Mr. Larson has always enjoyed good health and has had but little or no sickness during his life. He was employed at the quarry of the Merrymount Granite Co. and was at work Wednesday and apparently in his usual health. During the morning a blast was exploded and as the report died away he was seen to totter and fall. A physician was summoned but Mr. Larson lived but a short time. The physician gave cause of his death as heart disease.

Mr. Larson has resided in Quincy for several years and was at one time sexton of the Swedish Lutheran church. He resided on Carlson street and leaves a widow and two children.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday from the Swedish Lutheran church, at 3 o'clock.

SQUANTUM OPENING.

Cars to Run Half Hourly on and After Saturday.

The new extension of the Quincy & Boston street railway from Atlantic to Squantum is now completed and will be opened to the public Saturday afternoon, although the formal opening will not be held until next week. Then the City Officials will be invited to be present and will be taken to a most beautiful country, one that it is doubtful if many of the City Council or citizens have visited, at least in recent years.

The first car will leave City Square about 1.30 and run direct to Squantum. After that cars will be run until further notice from Hancock street near the Atlantic depot every half hour making close connection with cars for Quincy, Nantasket, Hingham, Weymouth, Braintree and Milton, as well as connecting with trains to and from Boston.

The land at Squantum which is owned now by the City of Boston, and from which the public has heretofore been excluded will be opened to the public, and Saturday evening there will be concerts by two bands and a display of fireworks.

Boston Connections.

A correspondent of The Herall continues the argument for better connection at suburban junction points of the various electric car systems in the following convincing manner:

The proper way to remedy the difficulty is for the different companies to run their cars over the lines of one another, and then the botheration and delay entailed by the changing of cars at the junction points would be obviated. Three or four years ago the Massachusetts Legislature passed a law empowering street railway companies having connecting lines to run their cars over the tracks of one another, but the public has as yet received very little benefit from this law.

The Lynn & Boston Street Railroad Company uses the tracks of the West End Street Railway Company between Vine street, Charlestown, and Scollay square, Boston proper, and a person can thus ride on these two roads, without the inconvenience and delay of changing cars, from Scollay square to Swampscott. There is no reason why there should not be similar arrangements between the West End road and all other connecting suburban street railway companies, and a passenger thus be enabled to ride, for example, from Boston to Dedham, from Boston to Quincy, from Boston to Reading, from Boston to Stoneham, etc., without a change of cars, as one can now ride from Boston to Swampscott without change. Such arrangements would not only tend greatly to the convenience of the public but would immensely increase the business of the street railway companies.

Reunion.

The Fourth Regiment, the minute men of sixty-one, will hold their reunion at Ocean View House, Nantasket, on Monday, Aug. 16.

Since their last annual reunion three belonging to the Quincy Company have died: First Lieutenant Edward A. Spear, and privates James H. Cunningham and George L. Hayden.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of Charles F. Carter, for the larceny of a bicycle from Charles H. Clark at Randolph, was called and he was fined $15.

Edward Maguire was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Michael Grady was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

The continued case of Thomas W. T. Callahan, for drunkenness at Milton, was called and he was fined $5.

Warren Bearse and Everett W. Litchfield were arraigned for being present where gaming implements were found at Weymouth, and were fined $5 each.

DIED.

LARSON—In Quincy, Aug. 11, Mr. Andrew Larson, aged 42 years and 10 months.

MURD ROUS THIEVES.

Family at Rodman, N. Y., Victims of a Most Fiendish Assault.

Watertown, N. Y., Aug. 12.—A special to The Standard from Rodman, a country village seven miles from here, says:

One of the most fiendish plots ever conceived was started on its execution at Tremand's Corner, a hamlet a few miles from here, yesterday. In this place resides the family of George Piddock, a farmer. The family consists of himself, wife and two little children, a boy and girl. About 2 a. m. Mrs. Piddock was aroused by a noise in the house. She got up to investigate, and as she proceeded to investigate she was dealt a terrific blow on the head by a heavy club in the hands of some unknown person. Mr. Piddock then got up and he was similarly dealt with. The young boy appeared on the scene and was laid insensible. The little girl got out of the house and notified the neighbors.

The assailants had previously set fire to the barn, and that was destroyed. The floor of the house was saturated with kerosene and matches were strewn everywhere. The motive for the assault was robbery, for the marauders secured a tin box containing a sum of money, which was on a shelf.

ON THE DIAMOND.

National League.

At Boston—

New York batted Lewis freely for three innings yesterday, scoring four runs in that time. Then Lewis steadied down and did fine execution. In the last half of the eighth, lucky hits by Hamilton and Bergen and by errors by Clark, and bases on balls, Boston rolled up five runs and won out. Long and Tenney played great ball, the latter having all three put-outs in the eighth inning. Two passed balls by Wilson were very costly.

Sultan Stirring Up Strife.

London, Aug. 12.—A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Calcutta says one of the native newspapers announces that the Sultan of Turkey is sending a special envoy, with a firman, inviting the faithful in India to render financial and physical assistance and co-operation for the glory of the Prophet. The Calcutta Englishman interprets this as a mission to stir up disaffection and suggests that the Indian government should ship the envoy back to Turkey.

Philippine War.

San Francisco, Aug. 12.—The aspect of the war in the Philippines has changed according to a correspondent of the Japan Advocate. In a letter from Balkakan, dated July 3, he reports that the revolutionists are following the Cuban's tactics, surprising convoys and detachments of Spanish troops and up to date have been generally successful, acquiring a large number of Remington and Mauser rifles and ammunition at a trifling loss of lives.

Science In Cooking.

There is always one standard of excellence in every article, reached alone by perseverance and untiring efforts to serve the best. The line of distinction is more marked in Ranges than in anything else we know of,—some good, some bad, some indifferent, all claiming to be the best.

Glenwood Ranges alone stand like a shining star among the ranges of today. Their excellence in every detail marks a new era in range construction, sought for nearly a hundred years in the past, by first one maker and then another. If you need a new range, why not have the best, they cost no more than the other kinds, if you buy them here,—$18.00 to $33.00, and you're sure to get the genuine article at this store alone. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded, a reasonable allowance for your old range, and a range on trial if you wish.

Of course the best of all ways to keep in touch with us is to allow us to send one of our order wagons to your house every day.

For quick work there's the telephone or the special messenger, but comparatively few people have a telephone, and there are a good many housekeepers who are "just out" of messengers at the critical moment.

And then what a bother to "dress up" and take precious time for doing an errand, and how annoying to have to rely upon some of the neighbors' children!

Some of our customers use the mails to good advantage.

A postal card with your order written thereon dropped into any Quincy mail box in the evening will reach us in the morning, in ample season for mid-forenoon delivering; and if you will study into the mail service a little you'll find other advantageous ways of using Uncle Sam—and US.

We will furnish free addressed postals to any housekeeper who will use them to send us orders. No matter how small the order it will get the same attention as the largest, as our wagons cover the city and it is no trouble to send anywhere. We have some special goods which we think will interest every housewife. Try us.

Wollaston Yachtsmen on a Moonlight Sail.

The Moon Played Hide and Seek With the Girls.

And a Smart Shower Surprised the Party.

The moonlight sail of the Wollaston Yacht Club, postponed from Monday night on account of the weather, took place on Wednesday evening. As early as seven o'clock members and their guests began to arrive at the club house, and by eight o'clock nearly a hundred happy, expectant people had gathered upon the run and float, awaiting the word to step aboard.

They had not long to wait and shortly the whole party were gliding across the bay in the direction of old Squantum, and as the boats passed and repassed each other, happy voices were heard in sweet accord singing songs both old and new.

The moon shone brightly, and the wind, which was just to the limit of a "lady's breeze," made everyone feel satisfied with themselves and the world at large. But alas, their joy was soon turned to sorrow for the moon began to play hide and seek behind the rapidly rising clouds and soon the rain came down in torrents.

Those in cabin boats were not "in it" but those who were unfortunate enough to be in open boats, which happily there were only a small number, simply got a good wetting, and many were the "Oh dear me's" and "Oh isn't this awful," but it would be a difficult task to find one of the whole party today who wouldn't say, "I just had a lovely time."

The yachts and guests were :

Another Expressman Arrested.

The out of town expressmen who pass through Quincy must learn that they cannot transport liquor through this city illegally, as Inspector McKay is on the lookout for them. It is but a few days since he overhauled a Weymouth express team and seized a quantity of liquor that was being illegally transported. Wednesday afternoon he made another seizure. This time from McKee's Hingham express, which he boarded in City Square about four o'clock, when he took two cases of beer and one gallon of alcohol. The packages were marked with the owner's name, but there was no street or number on the packages or anything to tell what the packages contained, and the driver had no order book for the goods.

COUNTY AND VICINITY

—These wills have been recently filed at Dedham for probate:—Joseph Baxter of Quincy, Caroline H. Jones of Braintree, Patia A. Spilsted of Weymouth, Francis C. Cross of New York, Felix Johnson, and Margaret Johnson of Brookline, Lucretia P. Townsend of Wrentham.

—A new stock company will take the Edmund White shoe plant at Holbrook, and expects to manufacture fifty cases of shoes per day.

—N. F. Badger of Hyde Park was instantly killed in Boston on Wednesday, by the collapse of the staging at one of his houses at No. 81 Wareham street. Two other men were seriously hurt. Mr. Badger was 64 years of age and a prominent citizen of Hyde Park.

—A road race for bicycles at North Abington on Saturday.

—The Dorchester Yacht club will have its ladies' day Saturday, Sept. 11. A steamer will probably be chartered for a sail to Marblehead.

—Mr. Charles Holbrook Lealand who died at his home in Dedham Tuesday afternoon, was a son of Charles and Caroline C. Lealand. He was born in Dedham Feb. 6, 1842, was a graduate of the Dedham High school and a member of the Masonic fraternity.

—Ladies' night was observed by the Savin Hill yacht club Wednesday evening. Dancing was the main feature, but several enjoyed a sail.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

MEMORIAL FOR FRANCE FROM AMERICAN WOMEN.

An end of the century movement which is now centering the attention of the patriotic women of this country is that set on foot by the Daughters of the American Revolution, New York city chapter, to present a memorial to France at the exposition of 1900. This memorial is intended as an appreciative recognition of the help given by the soldiers of our sister republic during the Revolution.

As Washington is called the Father of His Country, so Lafayette is justly regarded as the godfather of the great American republic, and associated with him in his noble efforts were those other brave Frenchmen, D'Estaing, Rochambeau and De Grasse. The work that they accomplished, displaying at all times the gallantry that marks their race and on one occasion virtually deciding the fate of the war, has as yet received no national recognition from this country, but that it has been through no lack of warm feeling on the part of our citizens is evidenced by the response that the plan of a memorial to France has met with.

The originator of the scheme was Mrs. Donald McLean, regent of the New York city chapter, D. A. R. Mrs. McLean proposed her plan at a dinner of the chapter, and it met with warm approval. Indeed, so great was the interest aroused that several members ar devoting the summer to spreading tl plan through the country among the various chapters in order that when the continental congress of the national society, of which Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, wife of the ex-vice president of the United States, is the head, meets in February at Washington, where Mrs. McLean will formally present her scheme, steps may at once be taken to put it in execution. Every week information is coming in to headquarters from western and southern state chapters, showing the deep interest taken by them.

MRS DONALD M'LEAN.

Mrs. McLean, when questioned about the matter, gave the following information of her plans and methods:

"In the first place, it seemed eminently fitting that our society, formed as it is of the descendants of the men who so benefited by France's assistance, should offer at the end of the century in which we were organized a permanent memorial to France as an evidence of the feeling of gratitude we owe her. It also seems that the time of the Paris exposition will be particularly suitable for the presentation of this memorial to the president of the French republic, to be received by him as the representative of the state and preserved as the property of the nation.

"There is another movement now on foot which, I wish it distinctly understood, is quite separate from this. Its aim is to present a statue of Washington to France, as France gave the statue of Lafayette to us. This, however, is to be from the nation at large, any one contributing who wishes, while our memorial is to be from the Daughters of the American Revolution alone.

"For raising the necessary funds I have a very simple and, it seems to me, feasible plan, which I intend to lay before our continental congress in February, with my formal motion to present the memorial. The National society has a large yearly income, principally arising from the dues of the members. You know the society's roll now shows upward of 20,000 names, and the annual fees are sufficiently large. Of course part of this income is taken up by various expenses, and a certain amount is also devoted to the sum we are gradually amassing for the erection of a national Daughters of American Revolution building at Washington, but the remainder is quite sufficient to warrant our asking the society to appropriate a certain sum each year, from 1898 to 1900 inclusive, to procure a permanent and fitting memorial. I cannot help thinking that this method must appeal to the society, for in this way the money can be raised without a cent's extra taxation, and every member will be represented. If it is done in any other way, it seems unavoidable that some women—and it may be that among them will be many of those most deeply patriotic and desirous of helping—will be unable to give."—Baltimore Herald.

Opinion on Tariff.

Washington, Aug. 12.—The attorney general in an opinion to the secretary of the treasury, rendered yesterday, decides that goods the product of a foreign country, not contiguous to the United States, which are regularly imported into Canada and afterwards exported to the United States, and subject to the discriminating duty of 10 per cent, provided for in section 22 of the new tariff act, and also that the method of conveyance, whether by water, rail or otherwise, is not material. The question whether goods transported through Canada under consular seal are subject to the duty has not yet been determined. The case in point was that of $90,000 worth of diamonds, which were detained at one of the frontier custom houses until this question was decided.

Waterways Board Meets.

Philadelphia, Aug. 12.—The deep waterways board, appointed in accordance with the sundry civil act of June 1, to make surveys, examinations and estimates of deep waterways and routes between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic tidewater, held its first meeting here yesterday. The board consists of Major C. W. Raymond, United States engineer in charge of the improvement of the Delaware river; Alfred Noble of Chicago and George Y. Wisner of Detroit. The sessions of the board are executive. Immediately after organization a number of maps and other improvement data, the greater portion of which had been forwarded from Washington, was placed at the disposal of the board.

A GREAT SURPRISE IS IN STORE

for those who will go today and get a package of GRAIN-O. It takes the place of coffee at about ¼ the cost. It is a food drink, full of health, and can be given to the children as well as the adult with a great benefit. It is made of pure grains and looks and tastes like the finest grades of Mocha or Java coffee. It satisfies everyone. A cup of Grain-O is better for the system than a tonic, because its benefit is permanent. What coffee breaks down Grain-O builds up. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 15c. and 25c.

Exploring Historic Fortress.

Halifax, Aug. 12.—A dispatch from Louisburg, C. B., says: A valuable find in the historic fortress of Louisburg was made yesterday. A party digging for money and relics dug through a large tunnel, and upon exploration found a depth of 60 feet and traveled about 75 feet, coming to an obstruction in a wall blown up, probably by powder. Exploring further they found an entrance at the southern parade of the old fort and traced it about a quarter of a mile to the other outlet at the south gate. The tunnel is arched and built magnificently of masonry. At the entrance was found a skeleton of a man. The present holders of the property will remove the obstruction in the tunnel. It is thought they are old underground passages.

Racing at Fort Wayne.

Fort Wayne, The third day's harness racing at the track of the Fort Wayne Driving club was attended by a large crowd. A strong wind was blowing up the back stretch and no extraordinary time was made. The only sensational event was the winning of the 2::17 trot, unfinished from the day before, by Cresceus. The Monk was the favorite and sold in the books last night at $50, and the field at $30. Clus Forrester and Newtown W were the favorites in the 2::15 pace, but Palmyra Boy, who sold at $10, won the race in straight heats. Elloree was the favorite in the 2:12 trot and won the raec in straight heats. St. Andre, the favorite, won the 2:23 trot in straight heats, and Pilot Boy, who sold with the field, beat Senator A, the favorite, in the 2:10 trot.

Enjoined from Supplying Strikers.

Pittsburg, Aug. 12.—A wider sweep was given to the power of the injunction yesterday by the action of a judge at Bunola. The striking miners there at Camp Injunction are badly in need of food, and there have been various attempts on the part of their opponents to prevent them from securing an adequate supply. Not until yesterday, however, was the policy of starving the strikers out openly adopted. The managers of the mines went before a judge yesterday afternoon and secured an injunction to restrain George Wies, a Bunola butcher, from furnishing meat to the strikers.

Heart of Kosciusko.

Lagos, West Coast of Africa, Aug. 12.—Drunami, King of Benin, who has been wandering in the brush since the destruction of Benin city by the British Punitive expedition last February, has surrendered to the British authorities.

Europe Needs Wheat.

London, Aug. 12.—The Times, in its financial article, says: It is estimated by persons in a position to form an opinion that at least 12 per cent more wheat than is usually needed by Europe will be wanted this year. Owing to the short Russian, French and Austro-Hungarian crops, the United States will be the only country able to meet this extra demand.

Faufe's Turn Next.

Paris, Aug. 12.—A dispatch to The Figaro from San Sebastian says that "Golli," in the course of a police examination yesterday, declared that it would be President Faure's turn next.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

ALASKAN BLOCKADE.

High Piles of Klondyke Supplies at Every Steamer Port.

Tenderfeet Are Beginning to Learn Something.

Experienced Miners Decide Not to Attempt to Reach Gold Fields.

Juneau, Alaska, Aug. 6, by steamship City of Topeka to Victoria—A wild excited mob rushed from the steamer George W. Elder from Portland, when she landed here last night. Not a head in the crowd was cool. With inflamed imaginations, many had hastened to buy grain sacks to bring the Klondyke gold back in.

"Bit" Willoughby, the discoverer of the noted silent city mirage, said:

"Them fellers is crazy!" Thew do act like it. All comers are throwing themselves into the barren, snowy interior, seemingly without thought of the hardships before them. Juneau is a last-chance town on the way to the diggins.

The blockade at Dyea and Skagua is daily growing worse. At the two points there are now not less than 1000 men unable to get over the summit. The crowd is estimated as high as 1500 by conservative business men of Juneau, who went there for the sole purpose of making an inspection of the situation.

It is certain that hundreds will never see the Yukon side of the mountains this year, and many others will winter on the route to Dawson City. Scores are discouraged at not being able to get their supplies packed across, and, being unable to do the heavy work themselves, are starting in "light" with insufficient outfits.

This means a great risk of life, and at best privation of the severest kind.

There have been a number of fights over the question of precedence in employing packers. That there has been no more serious disturbance is considered remarkable, taking into account the anxious crowds and the general scramble to get beyond the divide and start floating down the Yukon between its hills of gold. More people have arrived than are able to get away.

Miners who were on the ground 10 days ago are still there. A days work by pack trains makes no perceptible difference in the size of the piles of merchandise. Experienced prospectors, who have been nito the Yukon before, are returning to their homes and will wait until next spring.

Confusion at Dyea.

Dyea, Alaska, Aug. 5, by steamship City of Topeka to Victoria—If the scenery hereabouts were not already mountainous, the baggage heaped on the beach would obscure the landscape.

Every steamer from Juneau piles it higher. A day's work by packers and pack trains does not seem to reduce it perceptibly.

The confusion increases every moment, and many Klondykers have lost their entire outfits.

One hundred more Indians have arrived and 50 more horses, but from the way the rush keeps up it will be Christmas before all the supplies can be moved if the open season of the Yukon continues long enough. Influenced by stories as to the Skagua and Dyea trails, the crowd flocks back and forth from one to the other at great expense and no little hardship.

The smallest canoe, or any old tub that will float, is worth from $25 to $40 per day to its navigator. Fishermen are deserting the salmon canneries and swarming here with their boats to make money.

Twenty-one cents is now offered by the excited, scrambling whites to the silent red man for packing. It is accepted if 22 is not offered. No end to the increasing blockade is in sight.

Secretary Bliss Thanked.

Washington, Aug. 12.—Secretary of the Interior Bliss has received from the president of the North American Transportation and Trading company at Seattle, Wash., the following telegram:

I congratulate you and thank you for the official warning to people rushing to Yukon-Klondyke mining country at this season of the year.

Acting Secretary Ryan, commenting upon the above dispatch, says that it indicates that there must be a very congested state of affairs at Seattle and points of departure for the Klondyke gold fields.

Surveyor General Diston, recently appointed for Alaska, qualified yesterday, and was at the interior department consulting with the officials. He will go at once to Alaska, but will remain at Sitka, awaiting further instructions from the department. While it is probable that the surveyor general will be ordered to the Yukon country next year, there is no expectation of sending him there this season.

American Tin Plate Wanted.

Elwood, Ind., Aug. 12.—The first tin plate manufactured in America to be sent to Europe is, according to the local manufacturers, that started yesterday by the American Tin Plate company of Elwood on its way to Italy. It was a carload, consisting of 500 boxes of the most expensive tin plate made here, and it is said that this will be followed by other shipments, because of a growing demand abroad for American tin plate. The company will make a similar shipment to England.

Ohio Populists Nominate Coxey.

Columbus, O., Aug. 12.—The Populist state convention yesterday, by an overwhelming majority, severed the alliance made a year ago with the Democracy on the free silver issue and nominated a full state ticket, headed by Jacob Coxey of "Commonweal" fame, as the nominee for governor. Turbulent scenes marked the session.

Bitten by His Own Dog.

New York, Aug. 12.—W. T. Boyden, a clerk in an insurance office at Worcester, Mass., became a patent at the Pasteur Institute here yesterday. On Sunday last he was bitten on the right thumb by his pet dog. As the animal afterwards exhibited symptoms of rabies it was shot, and Boyden, fearing hydrophobia, came here for treatment.

H. M. S. RENOWN.

Massive Warship Is to Make Speed Test From England to Halifax.

Halifax, Aug. 12.—The reported intention of the British admiralty to give the battleship Renown a speed test from England to Halifax will be one of the great commercial and naval features of the year if carried into effect. Such a test by the naval authorities would demonstrate the character of Halifax as the terminal point of a fast Atlantic service. The Renown is a massive ship and is speedy, and her safe arrival here in perhaps five days would be a tangible advertisement of the port.

The speed of the Renown is 18.34 knots. The Renown's venture on fast running at sea will also demonstrate the seaworthiness of the vessel, and her coal-carrying capacity. The Renown is a heavier vessel than the Indiana by 3000 tons, but does not carry half the guns that the Indiana does. The Renown has barbettes in place of revolving turrets, and has several heavy guns below the main deck. What the Renown lacks in weight and size of guns she gains in speed, seaworthiness and ammunition and bunker space. She could remain longer in action than the Indiana, maneuvre more rapidly and stand heavy weather better. Admiral Fisher's flagship will come across fully armed and equipped. Her great speed run will be watched with profound interest.

It is reported that H. M. S. Minerva, cruiser, will shortly leave England to replace the Buzzard on this station. It is expected that the Minerva will convey the two torpedo boat destroyers that have been commissioned for this station.

Ten Eyck Not In Condition.

Philadelphia, Aug. 12.—Unless there is a marked improvement in Ten Eyck's condition his father will not permit him to start in the regatta. Ten Eyck says the four days of seasickness on the trip from England and the many receptions and other social functions here have put the young champion a little out of form. He is now a trifle lighter than when he rowed at Henley last month. His hands are also somewhat sore. Ten Eyck recognizes the fact that Whitehead, Juvenal, Thompson, Maguire and Alward are hard nuts to crack, and says it would be cruel for an 18-year-old boy to go against these fast men when he is not in proper shape. The Henley champion has had very little practice since his arrival from England, but is now working hard to get into form. His father, who is training him, hopes to have him in shape in time, but thinks it is doubtful. It will be a great disappointment to aquatic sport lovers if Ten Eyck is unable to start. Several of the crack scullers are confident that they can defeat him and are hoping that he will come round all right.

William Roberts Dead.

New York, Aug. 12.—The announcement was made yesterday of the death in Bellevue hospital of William Randall Roberts, a former merchant prince of New York, who was also a politician of international repute. His end came while he was a charity patient. Mr. Roberts was United States minister to Chili in Cleveland's first administration. On May 18, 1888, he was stricken with paralysis in Santiago, and in the following year he was brought back to New York. On the 2nd of this month he was sent to Bellevue. Mr. Roberts was born in county Cork, Ire., in 1830. He received an academic education and came to the United States in 1849. He secured employment with A. T. Stewart, and eventually started in the dry goods business for himself. Mr. Roberts was formerly one of the leaders of Tammany hall. Mr. Roberts was president of the Fenian Brotherhood at the time of the raid into Canada by General O'Neil in 1866. For the part he took in that episode he was arrested.

Woman may crown herself with good health if she will. By so doing she will insure her own attractiveness, make her husband and her home happy, and protect the health of her babies. Health is the most glorious crown that a woman may wear. To wear it she must take proper care of herself, and see to it that the delicate organs that are distinctly feminine are always healthy and strong. Thousands of women fall short of good health in this one respect, and as a result soon become but wrecks of their former selves. A woman cannot long retain her general health who is suffering from weakness and disease of the organs that make wifehood and motherhood possible.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription acts directly on these organs. It makes them well and strong. It prepares a woman to be a wife and mother. It does away with the discomforts of the expectant period and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. All good druggists sell it.

"I am glad," writes Mrs. Louisa Arthurs, of Ostwalt, Iredell Co., N. C., "to express my gratitude to you for the benefits I have received from your medicines. After the birth of my second child I was stricken with derangement of the stomach and liver and a full line of female weaknesses. For seven years I suffered untold misery. Then my husband, J. S. Arthurs, sent for a copy of your 'Common Sense Medical Adviser.' The book described my sufferings so plainly that I purchased bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and a vial of 'Pleasant Pellets.' Our doctor pronounced my case hopeless, and laid aside your medicines, calling them nostrums, and for six months I lay under his disgusting treatment. At the end of this time I commenced taking your medicine and improved very fast. I was soon able to do my housework. My baby thrived fast, and is to-day the healthiest child I have. Your medicine saved my life. My recovery was astonishing. I recommend your medicines constantly."

Women Wage Earners In Hungary.

I cannot agree with my Hungarian friend that there are no thin and pale countenances to be seen among these women. I must in all sincerity draw another picture. I caught its outlines, not in one of the crowded cafes or along the boulevard or down by the side of the blue Danube, but up a back street in one of the new quarters of the rapidly growing city. I had seen the same sight in Bucharest the day before and knew what it meant. Brick and mortar and the many ways of lifting them up and down have always interested me. I know the slow, measured tread of big, red shirted Pat, as he clumsily climbs the vertical ladder, the hod on his back, and can still hear from the bricklayers above the cry of "Mort!" sifting down between the unfloored beams of the several stories. I know, too, the more modern hoist, where a turn of the lever sends both brick and mortar flying skyward to the scaffolding overhead. But a girl of 16 and a gray haired woman of 60 were new types of brick and mortar carriers to me, and not in one place alone, but wherever a building is in course of construction.

Narrow platforms instead of ladders are made for them, running zigzag up the outside scaffolding. The mortar (? mixed by women) is dumped into a tub, a pole is thrust through the handles, swung over the shoulders of two women, and the weary climbing to the top begins. I saw one dark eyed, bare footed girl—she was pale and thin enough—clothed only in a skirt and chemise, rest the tub for a moment at the first landing and press her hand to her side as if in great pain, the older one waiting for her patiently.

With all its beauty, dash and enthusiasm it must be a curious civilization which tolerates and makes possible a sight like this. It made my blood run cold and hot. It was as if one had plowed with a fawn.

But this custom, hideous as it is, cannot, I think, be counted for many more years against these people. The progress in social order is too marked, let us hope, to permit of a long continuance of this degradation.—F. Hopkinson Smith in Harper's Magazine.

Lace Trimmings.

Just now it is the minor accessories of dress that render the simple lawn and muslin gowns so attractive. Lace trimmings, with all their dainty and fascinating subtleties, are again triumphant. There are wonderful possibilities in these soft, beautiful decorations. This year there have been brought out some new and beautiful designs in fancy laces, and these have found countless admirers and purchasers, but great favor has also been shown to the long popular valenciennes patterns in edgings, insertions, flounces and all over designs. It is one of the few laces that are worn as appropriately by the mother as her little child or that can be used to frill the cap of an infant or of its grandmother.

Very charming dresses have this season been made of white organdie or swiss muslin without lining, but worn over a silk slip, either high or low in the neck. Thus made they have a more airy and diaphanous effect than muslins seamed in with the linings. The transparent dresses are trimmed with frills of the dress goods, edged with valenciennes lace, with narrow insertions to match set in above the hem of the ruffle. The top part of the waist is trimmed with tucks and lace insertions, alternating with wide flounces forming bretellelike trimmings on each shoulder, and a number now worn at a noted summer resort are fastened at the back, the skirts decorated with lace ruffles from belt to skirt hem.—New York Post.

Thin Gowns.

In pale yellow dotted muslin a charming gown was made with ruffles, each edged with narrow valenciennes lace and put on to overlap one another from the waist to the hem. The waist was made tight fitting in the back, but in the front was loose and like a blouse and trimmed with narrow ruffles edged with lace. At the top of the sleeve was a puff, but the lower part was shirred in clusters of infinitesimal tucks and bands of valenciennes insertion. A broad pink moire sash and a collar of pink moire covered with yellow lace gave a note of color that was exceedingly good against the yellow. The linings were of pink silk.

It is a well recognized fact that all the wash materials now, as well as the heavier fabrics, look best when the skirt is separate from the lining and just a little wider. Muslins and gauzes so soon lose their stiffness and freshness that it is best to slip a piece of feather bone through the hem or binding, as the skirt will then have all the flare that can be desired, and yet will not be disfigured by being too stiff and cumbersome.

A pale pink silk mull with an embroidered dot has been made over silk. The skirt has five flounces edged with narrow valenciennes lace. The waist has strips of the lace sewed horizontally, and over the top of the sleeves are four or five ruffles edged with narrow lace. A black moire collar and sash with a big full ruche of pink at the back of the neck relieve the plain color.

Black lace on light muslin gowns is a particularly effective trimming. A mauve muslin made up over yellow has ruffles on the skirt, each edged with black lace. The waist is almost covered with bands of black lace, while belt and collar are of yellow mirror velvet. Mauve and yellow are always a good combination, and the black lace seems to heighten the effect most artistically. —Harper's Bazar.

NORTH ADAMS EXCITED

Sheriffs Are Hot on the Trail of Two Suspicious Strangers.

They Are Wanted For the Nichols Murder.

Barely Possible That They Also Killed the Reeds.

North Adams, Aug. 13.—Charles Bolnay and David Weeks, charged with the murder of George N. Nichols at Daniel's farm, near Bridgeport, Conn., and an assault on his sister, have undobutedly been in the country about this city for fully a week.

Eight persons who have seen these men and talked with them have identified their portraits.

At midnight Deputy Sheriff Emmet F. Haskins of Charlemont and A. A. Shiffey of Rowe had traced the men to a point within 10 miles of this city. These two officers have been tracking the two men for two days and the trail has been most positive.

The news that these men have been located so near North Adams has created the impression that they may have been in the city last week and that they are the murderers of Henry F. Reed and his sister Blanche. In that case robbery must be accepted as the motive for the murder.

It is a coincidence that both Nichols and Reed were bachelors and lived with sisters.

For the Nichols murder a revolver was used. The men went to the farmhause on the night of July 21 with the intent to rob. They succeeded in getting away with between $200 and $300.

Bolinay knows Berkshire county thoroughly, as he lived for some time in Great Barrington, and the curly-haired man described by a number of persons who saw the two within a few days, admitted a knowledge of the country about here. Weeks comes from the vicinity of Bridgeuort.

The Inquest.

North Adams, Mass., Aug. 13.—The inquest into the Reed tragedy was suspended yesterday afternoon until today, when it is hoped that additional testimony will be forthcoming as the result of the offering of a reward by the city authorities. About 150 witnesses in all have been examined and the only really important facts revealed thus far are those which establish the ownership of the mallet with which Mr. Reed was battered to death, and the exact time that the murders were committed. Aside from these two points, the officers seem to be no nearer a solution of the mystery surrounding the affair than they were the day after it occurred.

David, Fairfield, who had previously been examined, was recalled yesterday. He was one of the men who first found the bodies, and he positively identified the mallet as one that Reed kept in his barn.

The evidence brought out shows most conclusively that the murder was committed at 1:05 a. m., as two men testified to having heard four shots at that time.

Miss Ray Claims Reed Estate.

Oakland, Me., Aug. 13.—If the heirs of the murdered Henry and Blanche Reed of North Adams, Mass., have, as per published reports, secured the services of lawyers to look to their interests, it may be of interest to these people and the public to know that Miss Jennie Ray, who has been reported as quite ill at her sisters of this place, has or claims to have in her possession certain papers which will lay claim to more or less of the property of the deceased. The Rays are very careful not to give out the nature of these papers or the amount involved, but judging from their statements about Reed's affairs the inference is drawn that their papers are in the form of notes and mortgages.

Miss Ray has stated that, while she had quite a correspondence with Mr. Reed just before her visit to this state, she took her own letters written to Reed and also those of his to her and burned them, so that she had but the last. She further stated that when writing to Reed she had to be very careful and send notes and letters by special carrier for if they were delivered at the house Blanche Reed always opened them and read their contents. This is the way she always treated her brother's mail, whether it was of a private nature or not.

Miss Ray has also intimated that Hiram Tinny ought to be able to throw some light upon Reed's latest transactions. She likewise reaffirms that Reed and his sister together could not have had over $10,000, all told.

Mrs. William Ray, her mother, expresses constant fear that some detective will visit them, and says that if her daughter can be removed she will go to some place where no one can find them until all this examination is over. While Miss Ray is unquestionably ill, it is possible that the family exaggerates the case to keep her from North Adams, which seems to be their desire.

Switzerland is the only country in the world which grants no patents for inventions.

SENATOR HOAR SPEAKS.

McKinley's Appointment of Sherman Defended. President Andrews' Case.

Providence, Aug. 13.—A range of subjects from President Andrews' resignation as the head of Brown university to the appointment of Mr. Sherman as secretary of state was discussed at a dinner of the members of the Massachusetts club at Pomham yesterday afternoon.

Senator Hoar was the chief speaker. Speaking of President Andrews, he said: "I have a tender regard for President Andrews. I have known him personally a little as a correspondent, as a scholar and a gentleman by reputation a great deal. I wish to put on record my emphatic opinion for whatever it may be worth that a college president of professor has as much right to express his opinion on a question affecting the community as any man in the country. Not only has he the privilege but the community has the right to know what he thinks. The public should know what the scholars think of what is going on. The republic cannot be run if this is not so. Yet I can't see what the trustees of Brown have done that there should be all this pow-wow. The trustees haven't closed President Andrews up. I can't see that they have asked him to resign. They have simply asked him to consult with them whether the field he occupies is consistent with the interests of the college. If we can approach a man who is stating his honest opinion on a question which seems to be a matter of public policy, who is doing what he can to put up a dollar worth 42 cents, I don't see why we can't indulge the trustees in the discussion of the policy to be pursued by the college."

Senator Hoar vigorously defended the appointment of Mr. Sherman as secretary of state.

"President McKinley's appointments," he said, "have received general commendation. Yet some papers have made exception to the chorus of approbation by denouncing the appointment of the secretary of state, a gentleman who is the most illustrious in the Republican party—one without a rival or competitor—a gentleman who never lost his courage during the war; one to whom has been due since the war, and under great temptations, the faith that the people have pursued the path of good faith, especially in the payment of public debts.

"Mr. Sherman in the last campaign made the speech which gave the keynote to the campaign—a speech which no other man on either continent was competent to make. Is it surprising that President McKinley gave him the primacy in the cabinet—that he called the foremost intellect in the party to be secretary of state? He did what Washington did when he called Jefferson; he did what all the presidents have done down to Cleveland's appointment of Bayard. These men who are seeking low motives in Mr. Sherman's appointment should heed what is the truth and let alone what is not such."

SHORT OF COAL.

Buffalo Fire Department Is Advised to Make Seizures.

Buffalo, Aug. 13.—Alarmed by the shortage in the coal reserve of the fire department, consequent to the miners' strike, and the inability of the city to replenish by purchase, Senior Fire Commissioner Davis called upon the law department for advice as to his rights to confiscate coal in the event of a fire.

"You cannot stand by and see the city burn if there is any coal in sight," said City Attorney Quackenbush.

"I advise you to seize all the coal that can be secured and never mind the consequences. Those can be dealt with afterwards.

"If you find it necessary to seize coal under such circumstances do not hesitate. The city will back you up."

Hanna Party All Right.

Jack Fish, Ont., Aug. 13.—Senator M. A. Hanna and the party of pleasure seekers accompanying him on a cruise of the Great Lakes had a thrilling experience yesterday on the wild northern coast of Lake Superior. Their yacht, the Comanche, a staunch steel vessel, went aground in Nipigon straits, and for 16 hours stuck fast in the rocks that abound in that region. The accident occurred at midnight, when the senator and his guests were comfortably stowed away in their berths. There was considerable confusion for a time, but the captain soon found that the yacht was not in a serious position, and all settled down to await the arrival of tugs, which were ordered from Nipigon, 10 miles distant. The Comanche was hauled into deep water at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and resumed her journey with all on board well. Beyond a slight leak the yacht was not harmed. The mishap was caused by the pilot getting the yacht out of the channel.

STRIKERS ENJOINED.

Sweeping Injunctions Are Issued to Prevent Assemblages.

Men Will Defy Courts and Continue Marching.

Jails Are Likely to Be Filled If Nothing Worse Happens.

Pittsburg, Aug. 13.—Sweeping injunctions were issued yesterday against the striking coal miners and a crisis is sure to be reached if they are enforced. The men are enjoined from congregating, marching or in any way interfering with the men at work in the De Armitt mines.

No disturbances of any kind have occurred, the officials of the district contriving through the whole time to keep their men peaceful. The preliminary injunctions issued yesterday by Judges Collier and Stowe now brings the matter to the county courts for settlement. The case will be heard on Monday morning, and the decision is looked forward to with much interest.

If the strikers continue their marches, as they say they will, in defiance of the injunctions, capiases will be issued for the offenders on the charge of contempt of court. Should the injunctions be enforced, the strikers' camps around the DeArmitt mines will soon be extinct. The strikers, though excited over the turn of events, are in no wise disheartened.

Developments at Cannonsburg are being watched closely. The avowed intention of the strikers to march today, despite Judge McIlvaines injunction, is expected to result in bloodshed or the filling of the county prisons with the arrested miners.

The injunction secured by the New York and Cleveland Coal Gas company was read to President Dolan by a deputy yesterday afternoon at the miners' headquarters. Mr. Dolan scarcely stopped his writing for more than a second, and when the reading was finished, acknowledged it by merely saying, "Thank you."

He says the nijunction will not change the miners' campaign in the least. Ex-President Cameron Miller came into the headquarters shortly after this incident. He said the miners will continue, as heretofore, using all lawful means possible to keep miners from working during the struggle for better wages.

The court officials intend to try to forestall the customary march this morning, by going to the camps and reading the injunctions to the campers.

The strikers appear determined to test their right to carry out their usual program. It is stated that when the deputies do start to enforce the injunctions they will be compelled to arrest every man for contempt, and that as fast as the men are placed in jail, others will be brought into camp to take their places, and thus the deputies will be kept busy making arrests until the jails are overcrowded.

The strikers claim that this movement of the company is only another plan for getting the militia on the ground. When they find the miners will not obey the injunctions and the jails are full, it is expected that the sheriff will adjudge that his deputies are not sufficient to cope with the situation, and he will be constrained to call out the militia. This is the view of the situation taken by the leaders of the strikers now in the camp.

The strikers at Plum Creek held a meeting and voted unanimously to hold the fort, but not to resist arrest. The resolutions say that if one man is arrested they will have to arrest all.

There was a break-up at the camp of striking miners, near the mines of the Westmoreland and Pennsylvania Gas Coal company, which was established Wednesday. All but 10 or 12 of the men have gone back to their homes. The cause of the disbanding of the little army is attributed to the fact that the people of the neighborhood would not contribute provisions and money for its maintenance. The committee in charge of the camp stated today, however, that it would return soon with ample provisions for a long stay.

Grand Circuit Races.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Aug. 13.—The biggest crowd that ever graced the tracks of the Fort Wayne Driving club was in attendance at the races yesterday afternoon. The drawing card was the 2:08 pace, in which Bumps, Frank Gogash, Directly, Heir-at-Law, Badge and Joe He started. Bumps was the favorite in the pools Wednesday night, and at the track yesterday, and he won the race in straight heats, but was pushed in the last by Heir-at-Law. In the third heat he lowered the record of the track, making the mile in 2:04¾, and lowered his own record of 2:05¾. The talent carried away the money, as every favorite won.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

The Volunteers.

Thursday night at the First Presbyterian church, Capt. Albert Shaw gave an address on the Volunteers of America and how they aid churches. Capt. Shaw explained the operating of the several branches of their work, and very clearly pointed out that the Volunteers were not endeavoring to build up a denomination, but act as a bridge between the unchurched and the church. He also gave some very interesting statistics of conversions, a large number having connected themselves with churches of their individual taste.

The latest achievement the Volunteers of America is a young peoples society which works in harmony with and for the interests not only of the young people who do not attend church services but for the bettering of the Y. P. S. C. E. people. Capt. Shaw is himself a member of the Y. P. S. C. E. and wears the badge of the society.

Mr. Bowman, deacon of the church, at the close of Mr. Shaw's address spoke in highly appreciative terms of the Volunteers of America, and no doubt these workers have been and will continue to aid the churches in their efforts to reach the unchurched masses and unconverted.

Teamsters Fined.

Special Agent Thomas Langville of the M. S. P. C. A. had James Forrest, the owner of a Quincy granite team, and Frank Kelly, driver of the same, in the Dorchester court on Thursday on a charge of cruelty to animals. The case was one of gross neglect on the part of the defendants, they having worked a horse which was totally unfit for heavy labor, on account of a bad sore on his neck. Monday last the attention of Capt. Hunt of division 11 was called to the horse, which was one of a team of four, hauling stone between Quincy and Dorchester. Both men were fined $25.—Herald.

More Granite Wanted.

In a short time the work on the first section of the sea wall along Fort Point channel for the new South Terminal in Boston will be completed. The second section of wall to be let will be about two hundred feet in length, and extend from Mt. Washington avenue up to the old Federal street bridge. The terminal engineers are anxious to have the wall completed as soon as possible, believing it will materially assist them in building the station walls on that side.

This is one of the very few recorded instances of lightning striking fresh water.

HAS A LOCATION.

Work Begun on Street Railway Through Wollaston.

Some Surprised That the Company Had Rights.

A Good Route However Which Will be a Convenience.

The Quincy & Boston street railway has commenced work building a loop line through Wollaston. The loop is as follows: Commencing at the junction of Squantum and Hancock streets, thence through Squantum street to Farrington street, thence through Farrington street to Beale street, thence through Beale street to Newport avenue, thence through Newport avenue to Adams street, thence through Adams street to Hancock street, joining the main line near the Adams academy. It is expected the line will be completed in three weeks.

Wollaston hardly expected to get a street railway so quick, believing that hearings before the City Council would be necessary, but the company says the line is being built on a location granted by the Selectmen Feb. 7, 1888, and is a part of the original location.

The new route will be convenient for Wollaston people, and it is possible that a local loop will be operated through Wollaston and Atlantic to Squantum, returning via Norfolk Downs.

SET BY CHILDREN.

Firemen Called to Stable of Ex-Councilmen Barker.

The alarm from Box 61 at 9.19 this morning was for a lively blaze in the upper part of the stable of ex-Councilman Herbert S. Barker on Hancock street.

The fire was caused by Mr. Barker's 5-year old son who set fire to the hay in the loft and then went into the house and informed his mother what he had done.

At that time there was a horse and several carriages in the stable which were hastily got out and an alarm from Box 61 sent in.

Chief Williams happened to be at work on Squantum street at the time, and was soon upon the scene, as were also the apparatus from Atlantic, Wollaston and Quincy.

By the time the apparatus arrived the fire was burning briskly and there was a dense smoke. Two streams were quickly thrown into the building and it was not many minutes before the fire was drowned out, although not before the roof timbers had been badly charred.

Mrs. Barker, who went into the stable to locate the sill cock, had a very narrow escape from suffocation. The door closed upon her, and but for the presence of a tub of water she might not have escaped with her life.

The loss to the building including the contents will not be much over $175.

Granite Feast Day.

While the granite manufacturers of Quincy are enjoying a shore dinner at Nantasket tomorrow, they should send congratulations to the country men of Vermont, for the Barre Times says:

"The R. C. Bowers Granite Company will give a genuine Rhode Island clam bake at Caladonia Park, between Montpelier and Barre, Saturday afternoon, to the granite bosses and polishers of Montpelier and Barre. Joseph Wilson of Providence, R. I., an experienced caterer, has been engaged to take charge of the affair. Previous banquets given by this company to the granite men of the twin cities give reason to expect that those to whom invitations are issued are fortunate."

They are not very respectful to manufacturers up that way, are they, to call them in print "boses."

Quite a large party of women and children from Atlantic, went blue berrying Thursday. They left early in the morning, there being three barges full. They drove down as far as Egypt, near Scituate. Each returned in the evening with their pails full, fully satisfied with their day's outing.

A surprise party was tendered Miss Carrie Packard of Beale street Tuesday evening by many friends from Wollaston, Quincy, Atlantic and Neponset. She was presented with a handsome ring. Dancing, games, ices, etc., were indulged in throughout the evening, and a royal good time was enjoyed by all.

After the Boston subway is opened on Wednesday Sept. 1, cars of the Fields Corner, Milton and Cross town lines will go through, so that the benefit of the subway will be extended to Mt. Pleasant and Fields Corner, and by transfer to Milton, Neponset and Quincy. About 90 cars per hour will be run through at the start.

About fifty members of the Epworth League assembled at the residence of George A. Brown, Clark street, Atlantic, Wednesday evening and spent a real pleasant evening. Miss Mabel Burr read an account of her visit to Toronto, where she attended the Epworth League convention which was real interesting. During the evening ice cream and cake were served.

The Adams Chapter commenced this week to improve and repair the birthplace of President John Adams. An old fashioned rail fence has been placed around the property, the posts coming from the John Quincy Adams farm and the rails from Mrs. N. V. Titus' farm at Squantum. The large old fashioned chimneys are to be repaired and the fireplaces opened and other restorations made.

MANY HARDSHIPS.

A Klondyker Writes His Experiences In Getting to Gold Fields.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 13.—The hardships and disappointments that await the hundreds of persons pushing on to the gold fields of Alaska are told plainly by T. B. Corey, formerly superintendent of the Oregon Improvement company's coal mines, in this state.

He headed a party that got away almost immediately after the treasure ship Portland reached Seattle, and by the expenditure of a large amount of money made a successful run over the pass, and is now due at Dawson.

His letter, in part, is as follows:

It is dated at Lake Bennett, July 31.

"Here I am at Lake Bennett. We landed at Dyea Sunday evening about 6 o'clock on a scow, and worked until 11 a. m. Monday getting our things off the scow and putting them on the bank above the high water mark.

"I rolled in a blanket, was too tired to sleep, got up at 5 o'clock and got our things a mile more and rearranged them.

"Thursday morning we hired 30 Indians to pack our stuff over the mountains to Lake Linderman. We had to pay them 17 cents per pound, and then packed our our packs and started over the trail. We went as far as Sheep camp, nine miles, and arrived at 3 p. m., wet to the skin. It rained all day.

"Sheep camp is at the foot of the mountain. We soon dried before a camp fire and at once went to bed. We were on the trail at 5 the next morning, and began our ascent at once.

"A harder, rougher and more difficult climb I never saw. It was raining hard and the trail was very slippery, and the wind blowing a hurricane. It was a holy terror, but we got to Lake Linderman at 7 that night, a tired, sore lot.

"I can tell you right here I would not pack my stuff over that trail myself for all the gold on the Yukon. I just could not do it. I see lots of men laid up with sore feet and lame backs, who will be of no account when they get in.

"Some of the young boys will see a little of life on this trip. I have not changed my clothes since I left Seattle. Everything goes in your food, dirt and all. Things that would turn my stomach at home go with a relish. I have a splendid appetite.

"There is bound to be hard times on the Yukon this winter. Lots of them will be stuck at Lake inderman."

Hearing on Tariff Question.

Washington, Aug. 13.—The attorney general, in view of the importance of the question raised as to the effect of the 10 per cent discriminating duty of the Dingley tariff act on transportation through Canada in bond, will give hearings to the representatives of the American interests in conflict over it. The New England railroad men who are opposed to the imposition of the discriminating duty on this traffic will have a hearing before him Saturday. It is expected that an opinion covering the subject will be sent to Secretary Gage early in the coming week. The main question at issue is whether teas and other goods shipped from China and Japan by vessel to Vancouver, B. C., and thence by rail in bond to the United States, are subject to the 10 per cent discriminating duty imposed by section 22. It is stated at the treasury department that a very large proportion of the teas and other products of China and Japan are so shipped to the New England and other eastern cities at a less rate than is charged by way of American lines of railway from San Francisco. Eastern exporters of these commodities, therefore, are said to be opposed to any construction of the act which would impose the additional 10 per cent duty.

Card to Public.

Hartford, Aug. 13.—In view of various rumors and statements the past few months concerning their private affairs, the daughters of Harriet Beecher Stowe in this city publish in today's Hartford Courant the following card: "While we fully appreciate the kindly feeling that has prompted all the talk and suggestions in the matter of our temporal affairs, still we wish to say that an error seems to be prevalent regarding them, we are happy to be able to state to those kindly interested that we are and we hope we always shall be far from needing assistance, either public or private. Gratefully and respectfully, Miss H. B. Stowe, Miss E. T. Stowe."

President of Northern Pacific.

New York, Aug. 13.—C. S. Mellon was yesterday elected president of the Northern Pacific Railroad company. Daniel Lamont was elected director and vice president. Mr. Mellon is the second vice president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, and was formerly general manager of the Union Pacific railroad. The office of president was rendered vacant by the resignation of Mr. Winter. Hitherto there had been no vice president. Mr. Lamont, it has long been rumored, was to fill some office in the company.

Science In Cooking.

There is always one standard of excellence in every article, reached alone by perseverance and untiring efforts to serve the best. The line of distinction is more marked in Ranges than in anything else we know of,—some good, some bad, some indifferent, all claiming to be the best.

Glenwood Ranges alone stand like a shining star among the ranges of today. Their excellence in every detail marks a new era in range construction, sought for nearly a hundred years in the past, by first one maker and then another. If you need a new range, why not have the best, they cost no more than the other kinds, if you buy them here,—$18.00 to $33.00, and you're sure to get the genuine article at this store alone. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded, a reasonable allowance for your old range, and a range on trial if you wish.

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

TO WILLIAM H. TALBOT of Quincy in said County, now supposed to be in Nashville in the State of Tennessee, and all persons interested.

Whereas Lena M. Talbot, wife of said William H. Talbot has presented to said Court, her petition praying that William W. Jenness of said Quincy, or some other suitable person, may be appointed a Receiver for all the property of said William H. Talbot under the Acts of 1894, Chapter 203, to apply said property in the support of the petitioner and a minor child of respondent.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Dedham, in said County of Norfolk, on the first day of September A. D., 1897, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to said William H. Talbot by letter, postage prepaid, and duly registered, seven days at least before said Court; and by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the QUINCY DAILY LEDGER, a newspaper published in said Quincy, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court.

Witness, George White, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twelfth day of August, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven.

JOHN D. COBB,

COUNTY AND VICINITY

—The Randolph and Holbrook ball nines will play on Saturday at Randolph.

—The City of Lynn hand engine won first prize of $150 at the Crescent Park muster on Thursday. Other prizes went to Providence, Pawtucket and Fall River tubs.

—Stoneham, which has been supplied by water from Wakefield, voted Thursday to go into the Metropolitan system.

—Cambridge is proud of its ten no-license years and has a jubilee number in preparation.

—The grand circuit meeting of the New England Horse Breeders' Association opens at Readville Aug. 23.

New England Fair.

Several trotters from this vicinity are entered for the great races at the New England fair which will be held next week at Rigby Park, Portland, and Quincy will be well represented. It will be a gala week at Portland and the Boston & Maine Railroad offers inducements to attend, by selling tickets at reduced rates from Boston and other points.

The department devoted to racing has offered $18,000.00 in purse money, and includes events for pacing and trotting in every class. Cycle racing, of course, has its usual prominent place among the list of sports, and several hundred dollars will be expended in prizes.

The firemen will gather in muster at the park during the fair, and the premiums are of sufficient value to bring out all of the crack companies.

The floral, dairy and agricultural exhibits will far surpass any previous attempts, while the cattle show and the usual requisites pertaining to the agricultural shows will be retained.

There will be parades, concerts, balloon ascensions, parachute jumping, and a thousand and one ways for enjoying one's self.

The whole exhibition is the grandest event in the fair season of the Eastern States, and it is safe to say that a hundred thousand persons will visit the fair during the week.

SQUANTUM HAPPY.

An Important Part of Quincy One Hundred Years Ago.

Its History Dates Back to Settlement at Plymouth.

The New Street Railway Will Open Up a Pretty Spot.

An historical spot.

Squantum, whose history dates back to the settlement of this country, and which at the incorporation of the town of Quincy was regarded as an important part of the territory, feels today that it is once more in the world, having been joined to Quincy by an electric railway.

Over 250 years ago Indians frequented the territory, and a legend concerning the name will be of interest.

"It is a conjecture of long standing, that, that well known point in Dorchester (called Squantum,) received its name from Squanto, an Indian Chief. The rustic legend, that it was so named because an Indian Squaw threw herself from the rocks there, in 'early times,' is not deemed worthy consideration.— For the want of a better derivation, probably, some one converted 'Squaw Tumble' into Squantum. If named for the Indian before mentioned, the time when, and the circumstances which occasioned it, are alike unknown. It is very possible that the name Squantum, however, had nothing to do with this Indian at all."—Drake's Antiq. of Boston, p. 43

According to Pattee's History of Quincy, it was at Wessaguscus, the promontory at Squantum, where Morton who reveled at Merry Mount, was found by accident and captured by Capt. Myles Standish in 1628, and sent back to England. For the expense of the capture of Morton an assessment of twelve pounds and seven shillings was assessed, and was paid by people of Plymouth, Squantum, Salem, Portsmouth, Dover, Isles of Shoals, and Shawmut.

Thus Squantum people became accustomed to assessments, and this year her people, particularly Mr. and Mrs. Nelson V. Titus, have responded generously for a street railway.

In 1634, says Pattee's History, Mount Wollaston comprised fifty square miles, and included a much larger territory than all of Quincy, and it was ordered that Boston have enlargement at Mount Wollaston, and land grants were made. It was in 1640 that Braintree (including Quincy) was incorporated. At the time the Mount was annexed to Boston, the question arose where the northern boundary line should be located. Boston claimed it was the Neponset river; Dorchester dissented, because some of her inhabitants claimed lands or farms on the south side of the river. A committee of the General Court favored the claimants, and the Squantum lands went to Dorchester.

In 1634 Deputy Governor Roger Ludlow, had by the above decision confirmed to him 100 acres of land lying between "Musquatum Chapell" and the mouth of the Neponset river. It is the "the Chapel" at the northeast extremity of Squantum, that it is now proposed to call

"Squanto Park."

"Here for many years," says Whitney's History of Quincy, "was celebrated 'Pilgrims Feast,' to which people from all parts of the State resorted, and spent the day in social glee, in memory of the Pilgrim Fathers, and their landing at Plymouth. It has been discontinued many years."

A part of the Squantum farm was known for many years as "Ludlow's Point." Other large farms near by were those of Edward Rosseter, Mr. Newbury and Parson Wilson, the neighborhood being known for years as "The Farms."

As early as 1728 an effort was made to incorporate the North Precinct of Braintree (now Quincy) into a separate town, but not until the movement in 1791, when the interest and accommodation of Squantum people were considered, was it successful. That Squantum was then an important part of Quincy is shown by the petition to the General Court, a paragraph of which reads:

"The inhabitants of the North Precinct of Braintree occupy that part of the present town which was antiently known by the name of Mount Wollaston, and was afterwards incorporated by the name of Braintree. The situation of this Precinct, together with the detached parts of Dorchester, separated from the rest of that town by the Neponset River, but joining on said North Precinct, is chiefly on the sea shore, containing several Peninsulars and Necks of land, which, from the winding of the shores and road, make the common intercourse between the several parts long and tedious, and the great distance that must be travelled to many of your petitioners for the purpose of transacting business in the several towns to which they now belong is burthensome, and in some seasons of the year exceedingly difficult; and those of your petitioners in particular who inhabit the Farms, (so called,) and the long Peninsular known by their record it appears, that when their ancestors first settled on those detached lands on the south side of the river, there was then in that place a public road and ferry, established by authority of the government, which was the only communication between the young sister Colonies of Massachusetts and Plymouth. By means of the ferry on Neponset River at the Farms, they had such free intercourse with their brethren on the north side of the river, as probably first encouraged their settling down there, and afterwards gave them an easy participation of all the civil and religious priviledges of the town of Dorchester, to which they belong. But your petitioners, the inhabitants of that part of Dorchester, born long since that road and ferry have been disused, are now in a great measure deprived of their priviledges, more especially of the happiness of worshiping with their friends and bretheren, in the house where only they had a right to worship and meet together. The river, being impassable for horses, is a constant bar to their meeting there, and they, with their children, are obliged to meet on Courtesy with their neighbors and joint petitioners, in the meeting-house in the North Precinct in Braintree. For these reasons, the inhabitants of the Farms, and Squantum in particular, would humbly urge their wishes to the Honorable Court, that they may be set off from Dorchester, together with their bretheren and priviledges, and joined to the said North Precinct of Braintree, and that such an incorporation might be granted as they on their part might enjoy the common priviledges of citizens and Christians, of which, by their local circumstances, they have been, for a long time, in a great measure deprived.

The forecast of our ancestors made 106 years ago, as to our occupation of today, was wide of the mark, as the other paragraph of the petition sets forth. It makes very interesting reading:

"You petitioners, being impressed with the common sentiment of their country, have a warm desire of seeing their children educated in such a manner as is best adapted to render them the most useful members of Society, and as they inhabit a long extent of sea coast, their character and habits of life will naturally take a maritime cast, and an education adapted to fit them for trade, navigation, fishery, and the attendant arts and manufactories, would be very desirable, and, as your petitioners humbly conceive, would be greatly advanced under such an incorporation, when those that advance the money for schools might apply it to the best advantage, and our youth be thereby rendered more extensively useful to their families, and benefactors to the public. For these reasons, your petitioners humbly pray that they, with their lands, may be incorporated into a distinct town, by the name ———, agreeable to plans annexed, or within such other limitations as to your great wisdom may seem meet. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

A continuation of these reminiscenses will tell of the streets a century ago, the opening of the Neponset turnpike and bridge, opening of the Old Colony railroad, the old Horse railroad, and the street railway system of today, and of Squantum of today.

MILTON.

Mr. F. J. Kemp is enjoying a brief vacation.

There is some talk of a special town meeting in September to take action on a street railway petition for a location.

There have been but few fire alarms in Milton thus far this year.

The school vacation is rapidly drawing to a close and people with children of school age who have been away will soon be returning home.

ON THE DIAMOND.

National League.

At New York—

The leaders came down from Boston and won two games from the Giants The first game was characterized by good playing and the game was in doubt until the last New Yorker had gone to the bat in the 12th inning. Sullivan's easy looking outshoots gave the Giants a great deal of trouble, and Meekin was nearly as effective as the Boston man.

Miss Miller Drowned.

New York, Aug. 13.—The 16-year-old daughter of a man named Miller, a wealthy resident of Springfield, Mass., who is spending the summer in the Shinnecock hills region, was drowned yesterday afternoon in Shinnecock bay. Miss Miller and her twin sister were out in a rowboat. Both girls were in their bathing suits. Both are said to have been strong and excellent swimmers. When a couple of hundred feet from the shore one challenged the other to a race to the beach, and both plunged into the water for a race. One of the girls reached the shore in safety. Her sister did not rise after diving. The body of the young woman has not been recovered.

Will They Fight?

Paris, Aug. 13.—It is understood that the "very high Italian personage," who claims the honor of encountering Prince Henry of Orleans, is the Count of Turin, Prince Victor Emmanuel of the house of Savoy-Aosta. Prince Victor Emmanuel's intervention would bring about a somewhat anomalous situation, for the count, being the brother of the present Duke of Aosta, is the brother-in-law of Prince Henry's cousin, Princess Helene, whom the Duke of Aosta married in 1895

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

PORTSMOUTH CELEBRATING.

Festivities In Honor of Visit of North Atlantic Squadron.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 13.—The magnificent ships of the North Atlantic squadron, Admiral Sicard commanding, are swinging at anchor in this historic old harbor, while on shore everything has taken on a holiday aspect. The celebration in honor of the fleet's visit, for which lavish preparations have been made, is now well under way. Visitors have flocked here by thousands until hotels are crowded. On the streets there is bunting galore, and after sunset the brilliancy is continued by electric light and other illuminating methods, so that the festivities continues uninterrupted.

The interest naturally centers on the warships in the harbor. Picturesque as the scene is from shore as the great white craft swing on the tide the scene is none the less so from the decks of the vessels. The harbor is dotted with small craft, including cruising yachts of generous size down to the mosquito fleet of people who live along shore in the harbor. Everything that could carry a flag or a piece of bunting had it lashed aloft, and when darkness came the colors gave way to lights.

The vessels of the fleet made their appearance off the Isle of Shoals, headed by the magnificent cruiser New York, the flagship of the fleet, followed by the battleships Maine and Massachusetts. They presented a grand spectacle as they steamed past the islands with their monster hulls of steel rising bright above the sea. The ships kept a good distance apart and passed from White island light over near Hampton and Rye beaches, passing in full view of the summer cottages on the shore and the thousands of people on the beaches.

Admiral Sicard's orders were to proceed slowly, so that the fleet was long in view, while in the city the people had a chance to go to the water front to watch the ships come in and drop anchor.

As soon as the fleet was anchored under the direction of Pilot Amazeen the flagship New York fired a commodore's salute of 11 guns, and was followed by a salute from the other ships in rapid succession in honor of Commandant Remey of the Portsmouth navy yard. The salute was answered by the navy yard battery with an admiral's salute of 17 guns in honor of Admiral Sicard.

Willis' Condition Dangerous.

Boston, Aug. 13.—The surgeons decided not to operate on Herbert Willis at the prison yesterday. His pulse was up to 108, and the doctors were fearful that he would not be able to live through the process of probing. They will let him rest, and, then, if he is strong enough, will endeavor to extract the bullets today. He was struck by six shots. Two of them have been extracted, and there are four more of them in his body. One of them is in his back, another in his neck, and the third is located somewhere in the back part of his mouth. This last shot did not injure the exterior of his mouth. His mouth was probably open when the shot was fired. It broke some of his teeth, however, and cut off part of his tongue. His chances for recovery are said to be decidedly poor. Everett is gaining rapidly and will probably pull through all right.

Old Orchard Meeting.

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 13.—The race meet was concluded yesterday afternoon with two straight heat events, a 2:25 pace and a 2:14 trot. The pace was won by India Silk, a 6-year-old mare, owned in Delaware, whose mark of 2:15¾, made at Dover last week, was reduced to 2:12½. Louis Victor, a gelding with a record of 2:13¼, made at the Dover meeting, was the winner of the pace, best time 2:12½.

"There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

TEN EYCK NOT TO ROW

Henley Champion Not In Condition For National Regatta.

His Hands Badly Blistered In Practice.

Enthusiasts Disappointed---Many Good Events on Program.

Philadelphia, Aug. 13.—The decision arrived at yesterday by the elder Ten Eyck not to allow his son Edward to start in the senior singles in today's race of the N. A. A. O. was a bitter disappointment to the sport-loving quakers, to say nothing of the sporting "push" that wanted to turn a dollar on the result.

All day long a crowd congregated around Ten Eyck's rowing quarters, and although it had been rumored that the Henley champion was liable to withdraw, the interest was intensified, owing to the fact that the champion, accompanied by his father and Charles Lewis of the Wachusetts Boat club, launched their shells and covered the course during the afternoon.

It was patent to all who had seen and admired the easy yet powerful swing of Ten Eyck that he was not showing in his old-time form, and his face bore a sort of a distressed look after rapping away at a racing clip for about a furlong.

He exhibited a pair of hands to the writer which were covered with blisters, quite recently broken, and the skin was pulled back, showing portions of his hands to be raw.

Crack scullers and crews of the United States and Canada are here, including men from Toronto, Worcester, Springfield, Boston and Providence, Newark, New York, Baltimore, Washington, Chicago and Detroit.

The greatest interest of the regatta is centered in the senior single shell event, in which such cracks as Whitehead, Juvenal, Maguire, Van Damme, Alward and "Bush" Thompson are entered.

Next to this event the senior eight-oared shell is claiming the most attention. The University of Pennsylvania 'varsity crew is entered in this race, as is also the Weld crew of Cambridge, composed of Harvard undergraduates.

All the races, with the exception of the international four-oared shell event and the eight-oared shell races, will be one and a half miles with a turn, while the others will be one and a half miles straightaway.

Canovas' Funeral Today.

Madrid, Aug. 13.—A decree was gazetted yesterday postponing the obsequies of Premier Canovas until today. Senora Canovas del Castillo, widow of the assassinated prime minister, had objected to his remains lying in state and the admission of the public to the mortuary chamber at the family's residence has been stopped. It is the intention of the government to confer upon the widow the title of duchess, with the dignity of a grandee of the first class, and a pension of 30,000 pesetas. The late premier, by the terms of his will, bequeathed to the national library 30,000 volumes, many of which are very rare. Golli, otherwise Michele Angiolillo, the murderer of the premier, will be tried by court-martial at Versara today.

Hostile Afghans.

London, Aug. 13.—According to a dispatch to The Times from Simla the force which attacked Fort Shabkadr, near Peshawur, last Saturday, was made up principally of Afghans from the Jalalabad district, together with a contingent of Mohmandi of Lalpura, all owing allegiance to the ameer of Afghanistan. The gatherings occurred on Afghan territory, proving that the tribal subjects of the ameer themselves committed acts of hostility. The Afghan officials do nothing to restrain them. On the contrary, the Afghan general, Gholam Haidar, commanding at Asmar, was in constant communication with the mullah who led the attack. As a result of this intelligence more troops are being sent to Peshawur.

Indiana In Dry Dock.

Halifax, Aug. 13.—The big United States battleship Indiana, in dry dock, is an interesting spectacle to thousands of visitors. The docking of the vessel was successful in every detail. The ship is resting easily. The dock is a solid structure. The ship's bottom is moderately foul, sufficient to decrease the speed. The examination of the bottom is practically complete. The pipes, etc., are all right. There was not a bare patch of iron discovered. The Indiana will be out of dock in two or three days. Mr. Bowles, superintendent of the Brooklyn navy yard, was present at the docking.

Claim X Rays Caused Death.

Elmira, N. Y., Aug. 13.—The X rays may result in a legal tangle in this city. James Punzo died yesterday after surviving five weeks with a bullet in his brain. The X rays were used to locate the bullet. George Orme is charged with the crime. The defendant's attorney alleges that the electrical experiment caused death, and will make a strong point of this at the trial. Nine doctors assisted in the autopsy.

Spanish Spy Hanged.

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 13.—A special to The Citizen from Key West, with late Havana advices, states that a Spanish spy, Miguel Besta, was hanged without trial by Baldomero Acosta, a prominent Cuban leader. Besta had been employed by Weyler to visit Acosta's camp and assassinate him. Reaching the camp his execution was ordered, his mission having been made known before his arrival.

Minister to Russia.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Ethan Allen Hitchcock of St. Louis will succeed Clifton R. Breckinridge of Arkansas as minister to Russia. The appointment of Mr. Hitchcock was decided upon by the president some weeks ago. He is a long-time, personal friend of the president, and was in no sense a candidate for any appointment.

THE LOGS.

In thronged procession gliding slow
The great logs sullenly seaward go.

A blind and blundering multitude
They jostle on the swollen flood

Nor guess the inevitable fate
To meet them at the river gate

When noiseless hours have lured them down
To the wide booms, the busy town,

The mills, the chains, the screaming jaws
Of the eviscerating saws.

Here in the murmur of the stream,
Slow journeying, perchance they dream

And hear once more their branches sigh
Far up the solitary sky.

Once more the rain winds softly moan
Where sways the high green top alone.

Once more the inland eagles call
From the white crag that broods o'er all.

But if beside some meadowy brink
Where flowering willows lean to drink,

Some open beach at the river bend
Where shallows in the sun extend,

They for a little would delay
The huge tide hurries them away.

ROLAND'S WIFE.

It was scorchingly hot in Carminster one July afternoon. The streets were empty. Even the cathedral rooks were dozing, and the only signs of life seemed to be the chatter dimly heard through the door of the quaint old inn.

In the great cathedral it was less sunny, but almost equally close and oppressive.

Roland de le Fanu felt as if the heat and dust of centuries were somehow shut into that vast nave and as if historical associations weighed on his tired brain.

He was one of a party being "shown round" the building. Here was the inevitable would be archæologist, now positive, anon doubtful of his dates, two or three clergymen, a schoolmaster and his class and a few young girls.

In the crypt it was cooler, but damp and musty smelling. Through the heavy oak door passed the weary, but garrulous verger, his chattering flock at his heels. Then began more tiresome discussions anent slypes and squints.

"This 'ere," said the verger, raising his not too musical voice to drown the talking of the others—"this 'ere was once the private chapel of the De le Fanus. That stone marks where the altar stood. Over here is where Sir Gilbert Archesmont defied the abbot in the year thirteen 'undred and fifty. Notice this 'ere dog tooth molding—most perfect example of its kind in England."

"There is finer at Canterbury," growled some one.

"Pardon me, you must mean Lincoln—or is it York that I am thinking of?" said the archæologist.

The descendant of the De le Fanus turned aside to his sister. She smiled and put her arm through his.

"I am so tired'" she whispered.

"Never mind, dear. We've nearly done, and we could not have left without seeing our old family tombs, so'"—

"The Le Fanu tombs," broke in the panting verger. "They date back to 1310. This is the oldest of them all. Notice the rich work round the sides, and, as you see, the figure is missing from the top. It is the wife of old Sir Roland de le Fanu, who died in the 'Oly Land. His wife died of grief three days after the sad news reached her. The effigy is said to have been stolen, though some there are who say that life was given to it and it walked. I don't 'old with that myself. On this side are the tombs of Reginald and Sir Bevis de le Fanu."

Roland spoke to the girl next him.

"The effigy," said he, "that is missing from that tomb is the one of all others that I should most have liked to see. She was our great, great—I really cannot say how great—grandmother, and, oh, I beg your pardon. I thought you were my sister."

It was a tall, slight girl, wrapped in a light grayish dust cloak, to whom he had spoken, and who now responded gracefully and with a shade of amusement in her manner.

The sudden transition from the dark crypt to the brilliant sunshine was bewildering. Roland and his sister stumbled along to the monastery ruins, and then, seated on a heap of fallen stonework, they rested. He was disappointed on looking round for his cloaked divinity to find that she had not followed them.

* * * * * * *

In Carminster a quiet night succeeds the peaceful day. Roland, sitting by his window, watched the round moon rising behind the fretted spire of the cathedral and was filled with a sudden longing.

His stay in the place had been brief and would end early on the morrow. The sketches he had made were few, and his visits to the cathedral had always been paid in company with others, in the "improving" society of the dean or in that of the unsympathetic verger. What if he were to steal out now, when the garish day was done and the moon high in the clear sky?

Yes, he would, he must go. The temptation was not to be resisted. He would study tracery and carving under the magic light which made their beauties seem as something unearthly. He rose and left the room, treading softly so as not to disturb the other inmates of the house. Quietly as he went the dean, sitting at work in the study, heard him and opened his door.

"Anything amiss, Roland?" he asked cheerfully.

Roland, half ashamed, confessed his romantic ideas to his host, who surprised him by sympathizing with them.

"By all means. Our lovely cathedral never looks more exquisite than by moonlight."

"I should like," said Roland, taking courage, "to have one more look at the tombs and chapel of my ancestors before I leave."

"Certainly, certainly. You are a direct descendant of Joan de la Fanu, are you not?"

"Yes. And I don't thank the vandals who stole her effigy. I should have preferred that they had taken any of the others."

"Have you copied her epitaph yet, or sketched the tomb?"

"No, I have had no good opportunity, but I should uncommonly like to do so before I go, and I shall not have time tomorrow."

He spoke wistfully, and the dean laughed.

"Here, then," said he. "I see what you are fishing for. Take the keys. This large one opens the little northwest door, whence a staircase leads straight down to the back of the chapel. You can't make a mistake, only do not fall down the broken stairs, do not lose the keys, do not forget to lock up after you and, above all, don't set the place alight, or I'll never forgive you."

Roland promised everything required of him and went off.

Roland sought and soon found the little door to which he had been directed and from which the steps led straight down into the crypt of the cathedral. The key made but little noise, even in the great stillness, and Roland, groping his way down, soon found himself at the back of the little chapel and in great darkness. Closing his eyes for awhile to accustom them to the change, he could soon distinguish the outlines of the arches and moved forward quite confidently.

Some might have thought the hour and place eerie, but Roland was neither nervous nor superstitious and boldly advanced to where the moonlight, finding oblique entrance through the grating in the roof and near one of the great windows of the cathedral above him, shone clearly and brightly over the tombs.

It has been said that he was neither nervous nor superstitious, but suddenly he stopped short, and the throbbing of his own heart seemed for the moment to startle him, for here, just before him, within touch of his hand, was the great table tomb and extended upon it, apparently, a recumbent female figure.

Whoever, whether mortal or superhuman workman, had made such an effigy was possessed of no ordinary skill. The exquisite suggestion of repose conveyed by the graceful posture, the arrangement of the sculptured folds of raiment, the beautifully chiseled features, all were alike lovely, and Roland gazed at them long, as if he were literally entranced and not under the influence of some delusion of the senses, some trick of overexcited nerves, which must soon fade away. He fell on his knees on the stepped base of the monument and gently laid his lips on the little white fingers which were so temptingly near him. As he did so a thrill seemed to pass through him and through the figure on the tomb. The delicate eyelids quivered, the shadowy lips parted in a faint sigh, and the next instant his statue was indeed imbued with life and spoke:

"Where am I? Oh, where am I?"

Roland repressed the suggestion that she was reclining on her own tomb and spoke gently and as if her present position were a matter of course:

"You are in the crypt of Carminster cathedral."

The effigy sat up, pressing her cold hands to her now burning temples. Then she raised her great dark eyes to Roland's face.

"I got shut in," she said simply. "I lingered a moment to look at this tomb, because—well, because you were so much interested in it, and the verger never missed me—the pillars hid me. I heard the key grate in the lock and ran and called and banged, but no one came, and, oh, I was so frightened!" She was quivering with cold and shock, and Roland supported and comforted her. "But for you I might have staid here in this awful place all night," she murmured. "It's simply horrible!" she went on. "You wouldn't believe what noises there are when it's empty and no one here. What made you come back? Was it to look for me?" she asked naively.

He told her then how and why he had come back, giving her time to wipe away a few stray tears, which she hoped he did not see and to pull off the necktie from about her head. Then he found her hat for her in a shadowy nook and prepared to take her home.

She was glad of the support of his arm, and the clinging touch of her fingers sent a thrill through him which he seemed to feel long after they had parted.

"I recognized you again at once," she said to him as they ascended the rickety staircase together.

"I, too, remember you quite well. We were fellow tourists or sightseers this morning, and I have thought of you many times since and always as the lady in the gray cloak."

She smiled very humanly.

"My real name," she said simply, "is Joan."

Roland started slightly, and as he pressed her hand at parting murmured beneath his breath:

"By the Wille of God, Joan, the beloved wife of Roland de le Fanu, Knight and Gentilman."—Princess.

The Refractometer

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent occulists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.
I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.
F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.
I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.
JACOB GOLDBERG, M. D.

This is a very expensive instrument, but we consider nothing too good for our patrons, and have placed one in our optical room.

CONTRACT VIOLATED.

Sewerage Commissioners Take Work from Messrs. Brine.

The Contractors for the Copeland Street Sewer.

Contractors were Not Disposed to Heed the Order.

The trouble that has been brewing between the Sewer Commissioners and Messrs. Brine, the contractors of the Copeland street section of the sewer, came to a head yesterday afternoon when the contract was cancelled for violation of the contract.

The alleged violation is that the contractors were not employing citizens of Quincy upon the work. That out of the sixty or seventy men at work, but very few were citizens of Quincy.

When notified Messrs. Brine refused to comply with the order.

Commissioner Knowlton was then notified by the Sewer Commissioners that they would not be responsible for any more work done upon Copeland street.

The next move was made this morning, when Commissioner Knowlton served a notice upon Messrs. Brine not to open any more streets at their peril.

The work on Copeland street is now about half completed, and the street has been opened for a considerable distance, so that it is in bad shape, especially between Miller street and the junction of Copeland and Crescent streets.

The notice of Commissioner Knowlton to Messrs. Brine set forth that they were digging up the streets in violation of the city ordinance. This notice was given to Chief of Police Hayden, who visited the works at ten o'clock this morning and read the notice to Mr. Brine, who replied "all right," and immediately ordered all men to quit work.

HOUGHS NECK.

The third annual ball of Hose Five Company last evening was a grand success, being attended by nearly one hundred couple. It was held in the Casino, and inspiring music was furnished by Gardner's orchestra of Brockton. The grand march was led by Capt. W. H. Taylor and wife, Mr. Taylor being the floor director.

It was the intention of the LEDGER to have published the names of those present, but the news package was delayed in transit. The people of Houghs Neck generally encouraged the company, and the sale of the tickets was in excess of the attendance.

Miss Pauline Berthold of Needham is the guest of Miss Zelma Moller on Winthrop street.

A very large number are at the beach today.

Last night about 7 o'clock a very pleasant sight was seen from the Bayside and Hill. It was a large bonfire on Hangman's Island.

Miss Eliza E. Poole of Onset is a guest at the Outlook cottage.

A. R. Sampson and family of Hyde Park are spending their vacation here.

The postponed outing of the Hyde Park Dog Fish club will probably be held here on next Wednesday.

Jessie Bourne of Mansfield is taking an outing at the shore.

Mr. Costello will soon have an orchestra for his dances at the Casino.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Laird of Brockton are spending the season at the beach.

What proved to be a pleasing feature of the band concert yesterday afternoon was the manner in which it played the Electric March by A. C. Gardner of Brockton. All who heard the piece want it repeated. It is a favorite with every one who hears it and by request the band will play it Sunday afternoon and evening.

C. A. Goodnow's family of Natick are enjoying the sea breezes.

J. E. Sweetland and Leslie Sweetland of Natick were here over Sunday.

Eugene Sweetland of Natick is at the beach for a few days.

H. R. Fitz returned to Natick on Thursday.

Mrs. A. J. Sayce and family of Jamaica Plain are stopping at the beach for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Wales Baker and family of Randolph are at Mears' beach for a few weeks.

Mr. James W. Richards of Dorchester is spending his vacation at our beautiful resort.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Moody of Norfolk street, Dorchester, has rented the Hillstrum. Mrs. W. D. Moody of Manchester, N. H., is their guest and enjoys the fine water view.

The time of the tides for a week in advance is now a daily feature of the Houghs Neck column:

HERBERT WILLIS DEAD.

Fatal Termination of His Attempt to Break From Prison.

End Was Peaceful, Despite a Terrible Fever.

Prison Commissioners Recommend Additional Safeguards at Charlestown.

Boston, Aug. 14.—Herbert A. Willis died in the state prison yesterday afternoon at 4:50 o'clock.

The desperate young convict passed away quietly and apparently without pain, being conscious when the end came. Only the prison officials were present when he breathed his last.

The condition of the young convict during the day showed clearly to the doctor that his end was near. He was in a semi-conscious state, eyes half-closed, and did not notice what was going on about him. What little nourishment he had previously taken had served to retain the strong vitality of the prisoner, but he grew worse during the night, and was unable to take any food yesterday, and with eyes closed and jaws firmly set, with that determination which has so strongly marked his short career, he died without having spoken a word or uttered a single complaint, despite the intense agony he must have been undergoing.

Whether the bullet in his mouth prevented him talking is not known, but he died without making any statement, or expressing an opinion about the shooting affray in which he was a factor.

The body of young Willis was taken to the morgue in the prison, where it will remain until today. The mdical examiner will view the remains, after which it will be turned over to Mrs. Willis.

The mother of Willis was immediately notified of the death of her son, but up to a late hour last night she had not been to the prison, nor had any of Willis' relatives.

The bullets which caused his death were located as follows: One in the fore part of the left arm; one in the throat, which penetrated his tongue; one in the skull, near the brain, and a bullet in his back. The doctors were surprised at his wonderful vitality, and only wonder that he lived so long.

The nurse who was at the bedside said that the last hours of the patient were quiet. In spite of the terrible fever his brain was apparently clear. His eyes followed movements about the bed with intelligence. He had nothing to say. The end was peaceful, the patient being utterly exhausted during the last half hour.

The deceased prisoner was, without doubt, one of the most dsperate criminals that the police of this state have ever had to deal with. But 19 years of age, of strong, athletic build, and not knowing what the word fear meant, Herbert Willis was a hard man to handle. He died as he lived—nervy and apparently without fear.

Everett Willis, the brother of Convict Willis, is rapidly improving, and he will undoubtedly be able to get out today. He has gained considerably in strength.

Willis will probably be taken to the Charlestown court today to answer the charges preferred against him.

The session of the prison commission at the state prison was strictly private. They heard the statements of the warden and his officers concerning the Willis affair, and will recommend to the governor that a double door be provided, forming a vestibule leading from the octagon to the outter door where Officer Townsend was sitting, and that a second officer shall stand continually in or at the vestibule ready to fire upon convicts who may move in that direction.

PORTSMOUTH'S VISITORS.

Thousands View the Assembled Warships. Officers Entertained Ashore.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 14.—Fully 25,000 people came into the city during yesterday afternoon to get a glimpse of Uncle Sam's warships and to witness the various attractions. Governor George A. Ramsdell, accompanied by Commodore George C. Remey, Mayor John W. Emery, Senator W. E. Chandler, Congressmen F. G. Clarke, Cyrus A. Sulloway, Hon. John H. Walker, ex-Governors Cheney, Tuttle, Sawyer, members of the city council, and other prominent citizens, paid an official visit to Admiral Sicard on board the New York at 3:30 o'clock. An hour was passed inspecting the mammoth ships, and when the governor left a salute of 17 guns was fired.

Last night 1000 of the most prominent citizens of the city tendered the officers of the squadron a public reception and ball at Philorick's hall. The place was beautifully decorated, and 50 officers of the fleet and navy yard were present. The illumination of the fleet was a magnificent spectacle.

Today the coaching and industrial parade and regatta on the river occupy the attention of the visitors.

The 10-mile road race, which was one of the most talked-of features of the carnival, was successfully run off yesterday afternoon, fully 8000 people lining the course near the finish line. Charles E. Woods of this city, from the 2:30 mark, rode a terrific race and crossed the tape first. P. E. Connor of Portsmouth, one of the limit men, followed Woods and took second prize. The third prize was won by Willie Mitchell, also of Portsmouth. Forty-three men started, and the first man's time was 27 min. 7 secs. There were 22 prizes awarded.

HAS THREE WIVES.

William A. Whiting, Messenger of Massachusetts Senate, an Alleged Bigamist.

Boston, Aug. 14.—The Herald today publishes a story that William H. Whiting, for the past 11 years messenger of the Massachusetts senate, is a bigamist, and that he has been leading a double, or rather a triple life for years. Whiting's legal wife, whom he married many years ago, resides at Pittsfield. The messenger also maintained a woman at Somerville as his wife. A third woman, who also passed as his wife, resides at North Combridge. Whiting disappeared last Wednesday with the Somerville woman and left no trace as to his destination. His departure was hastened by the discovery that certain officials had learned of his crimes and were investigating. Whiting's "second" and "third" wives are from Coldrock, N. S., and their names are Nellie Porter and Mollie Douglass. Both are young women. Whiting is 55 years old. He is the father of three separate families.

Reed Mystery.

North Adams, Mass., Aug. 11.—State Detective Whitney returned to North Adams late last night after a two days' absence, during which time he has visited Miss Jennie Ray, Reed's affianced, who is now sick at her home in Oakland, Me. He obtained considerable information from her regarding Reed's business affairs, but states that nothing was learned that throws any light upon the murder. He and the other officers engaged on the case held a long conference after his return, but what was said or done is kept secret. It will be remembered that Watchman A. J. Deming, who is employed at a factory near the Reed house, stated that on the night before the murder a stranger asked permission to cross the factory grounds and get over the fence in order that he might not be obliged to go a long distance round to reach his destination. This man has revealed his identity to the police and satisfactorily accounted for himself, showing that he had nothing whatever to do with the murder. The two strangers who were traced over the mountain from Charlemont and eluded their pursuers at Five Points were arrested yesterday at Lenoxville, in the town of Lee. They gave their names as W. H. Pugh of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Elmer Hodhes of Melrose. They are not the men wanted for the Nichols murder in Trumbull, Conn.

Swede Took Possession.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 14.—The Whale Rock light, one of the many guides to mariners, at the entrance of Newport harbor, and only a short distance off shore from the pier, was last night in possession of a man apparently insane. Captain J. S. Allen, the lighthouse keeper, was driven off the light by the assistant keeper, a Swede, who appeared to be intoxicated. The assistant was armed with a gun, and not only drove Captain Allen off when he tried to land, but followed him to the pier in a small boat, threatening to shoot if he got within range. A message was sent to the revenue cutter and the assistant was taken off this morning.

Races at Concord.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 14.—One cheap race and one good one made up the card at the Capitol Driving park yesterday afternoon. In the 2:50 trotting stake, Marie B could not go very fast and Curlew would not, so Jake Stone won his first race of the season with Tyron Melson, the hot favorite in the 2:19 pacing stake, won after dropping the first heat to Colbath. If Lester Dore had got a good send off in the last heat he might have won, as Elton went a long mile and finished a close second. There will be racing here on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

Delegates to Farmers' Congress.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 14.—The following have been appointed by Governor Powers as delegates to the Farmers' National congress, to be held in St. Paul, Aug. 31 to Sept. 6: J. W. Dudley of Castle Hill, B. F. Briggs of Auburn, W. G. Hunton of Readfield, W. H. Moody of Liberty, J. M. Winslow of Noblebro, J. F. Talbot of Andover, Charles W. French of South Levant, Lambert Sands of Sebec, George W. Flint of North Anson, John M. Deering of Saco, S. L. Holbrook of Brunswick and F. S. Adams of Bowdoin.

Eminent New Hampshire Lawyer.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 14.—A message received here announces the death of Judge William L. Foster of Concord, at his summer home there. The judge had been in feeble health for several months. Judge Foster was considered one of the ablest jurists of the state. He was graduated from Harvard in 1844 and went to Concord, where he married. His term on the supreme bench was 13 years, when he retired to reenter practice. He leaves a widow and four children, all of whom reside at Concord.

Street Row at Rochester.

Rochester, N. H., Aug. 14.—A street row between Henry McCabe and Freeman Perrault on Main street yesterday afternoon wound up with the arrest of the former at the point of a revolver. He is charged with brutally assaulting Perrault, who is in a critical state at the hospital. McCabe gave the police and a crowd of citizens a lively chase through the outskirts of the town, and before being cornered stabbed one of his pursuers in the hand.

Paralyzed by Dive.

New Haven, Aug. 14.—Frank F. Dibble, a merchant of Northampton, Mass., received probable fatal injuries yesterday afternoon by diving off a railing of a bath house pier at Savin Rock. The water was low and Mr. Dibble struck the sand on his head, concussion of the brain resulted and his body is almost completely paralized.

Lobstermen Fined.

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 14.—The vigilance of the district police who are watching the lobstermen along shore was shown yesterday when six local fishermen were fined by Trial Justice Fabens an aggregate of $730 for having short lobsters in their possession.

More Arrests to Come.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 14.—No more arrests are expected immediately in connection with the alleged corruption cases at city hall, but it is probable that other arrests will be made before the criminal sitting of the grand jury.

Bicyclist Instantly Killed.

Boston, Aug. 14.—While Charles Wallace, 19, was riding his bicycle on Blue Hill avenue last night he collided with a horse and buggy, the shaft penetrating his lung, killing him instantly.

Duel to Be Fought Today.

Paris, Aug. 14.—It is said that the duel between Prince Henri of Orleans and the Count of Turin will take place today in the vicinity of Paris, probably at Chantilly or Fontainbleau. The conditions are severe. The Count of Turin, it appears, left Italy without the authority of his superiors or the permission of the minister of war.

NATIONAL REGATTA.

Whitehead and Maguire Get Places In Finals at Philadelphia.

Worcester High School Won Eight-Oar Heat.

Perfect Rowing Conditions on the Schuylkill River Course.

Philadelphia, Aug. 14.—The first day's races in the silver jubilee regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen were rowed yesterday over the national course on the Schuylkill river in Fairmount park. The events consisted of trials in intermediate singles, senior four shells, intermediate singles, senior singles, international four shell and the final and only heat in the intermediate eights. Of these the feature events were the two senior four heats and the final intermediate eight.

The Ariel club of Baltimore won the first of the former by a half length and the Institute club of Newark the second senior four heat in a magnificent dash. In the eights the Worcester High School Athletic association took the lead at the crack of the pistol, maintaining it throughout with the Montrose and Fairmount clubs, both of Philadelphia, following closely in the order named.

In the remaining events the Wachusett club and the Columbia Rowing association, both of Massachusetts, won the first two heats in the intermediate singles and the Narragansett club of Providence the third heat. The Pennsylvania Barge club, West End Boat club of Boston and the Bradford club of Cambridge, Mass., won, respectively, the three heats in the senior singles, while in the international four the Institute club of Newark and the Argonaut of Toronto each won a heat.

All the events with the exception of the international fours and the intermediate eight were three-quarters of a mile and return. The exceptions were one and a half miles straightaway.

The day was perfect for sculling, and the course, skirted on either side by the picturesque river drives of Fairmount park, was almost without a ripple on its surface. There was a light breeze. Every precaution was taken to police the course and keep it clear of river craft, and in only one instance was there any interference with the racing. This was during the intermediate eight. The New York Athletic club had the outside water and had passed the three-quarter flag in a close race for third place, when a yawl boat shot across its bow and struck it hard, slightly bruising Bogart's arm. The crew stopped rowing and claimed the action was deliberate on the part of the man in the yawl. The police immediately placed him under arrest. The judges did not call the other crews back, and New York was unable to finish.

Much comment was indulged in over Ten Eyck's decision not to compete in the senior singles. The first race, the intermediate singles, was called for 2:30 o'clock. By that time the river was crowded on both sides. Wilson of New York was first away at the start, but Lewis of the Wachusett club soon caught him, and pulling about a 30 stroke, made the turn at the three-quarter flag first, and kept the lead to the finish, crossing five lengths ahead.

Greer of the Columbia Rowing association won the second heat intermediate singles hands down. Charles Harris, Detroit Boat club, did not start. Ed Schulze of Providence won the third heat by an eighth of a mile.

The greatest interest was centered in the three heats of the senior singles. Juvenal, who won the first, pulled a 22 stroke throughout and finished an easy winner.

Whitehead was a winner from start to finish in the second heat, and Maguire, rowing strong, took the third heat by several lengths.

AMATEUR ATHLETIC ALLIANCE.

A. A. U. and L. A. W. Sign Compact Which Takes Effect at Once.

Philadelphia, Aug. 14.—A new alliance between the Amateur Athletic union and the League of American Wheelmen has been signed and will go into effect at once.

The alliance was prepared by and is the result of conferences between Howard E. Raymond, ex-chairman of the L. A. W. racing board, representing President Potter of the L. A. W., and John W. Kelly, Jr., representing President McMillan of the A. A. U.

The signing of this alliance silences the reports of ill-feeling and probable war between these two powerful athletic bodies. It is much stronger than the old one, and many points that caused trouble in the old alliance are now clearly set forth. The new alliance strengthens both organizations.

Among the provisions of the alliance are the following::

All cycling events in championship or other open meets of the A. A. U. or of its associations or clubs, shall be given under the rules of the L. A. W., and all athletic events in any meeting given under the sanction of the L. A. W. shall be held under the rules of the A. A. U.

Charges against any cyclist or athlete shall be tried by the party to the alliance having jurisdiction.

No athletic meetings, games, benefits or entertainments which include or are held in connection with a cycling event shall be sanctioned or recognized by the A. A. U. in any case where a sanction shall have been withheld or refused by the L. A. W. No cycling event which is included in or run in connection with any program of athletic games, meetings, benefits or entertainments shall be sanctioned or recognized by the L. A. W. in any case where sanction or recongition of such games shall be withheld or refused by the A. A. U..

Cowboy Defeats Two Bicyclists.

Boston, Aug. 14.—Harry Jersey, the cowboy, won a six-mile race at Charles River park last night from Frank Walker and Eddie McDuffee, the two latter on bicycles, and won in a walk. Waller rode 2½ miles and McDuffee the remaining 3½ miles. Jersey's time was 13:38 2-5, and the cyclists' time 14:25 3-5.

CANOVAS' FUNERAL.

Touching and Impressive Ceremony at Burial of Spanish Premier.

Madrid, Aug. 14.—The funeral of Senor Canovas del Castillo yesterday was a most touching and solemn ceremony. All the troops of the garrison lined the route along which the cortege moved; the flags were lowered and the public buildings, embassies, consulates and clubs were heavily draped with crape.

More than 1000 wreaths were deposited in the death chamber. A salvo of artillery announced the starting of the funeral procession, which moved slowly through an enormous crowd, in which all heads were bare and many eyes were weeping.

A peculiarly poignant scene ensued as the Duke of Sotomayor, Marshal Martinez Campos, Marquis Pazo de la Merzed and the other pall-bearers lifted the coffin. Senora Canovas, in a clear, firm tone, said:

"I desire that all should know I forgive the assassin. It is the greatest sacrifice I can make, but I make it for the sake of what I know of my husband's great heart."

Throughout the entire distance between the death chamber and the church the roadway was strewn with flowers and laurels.

Senor Sagasta headed the cortege, which was formed of militia, deputies, senators, generals, admirals and delegations representing all the principal public bodies. The wreath of the queen regent rested upon the coffin and other floral tributes were carried in special carriages.

All the shops in the city were closed, and a very large proportion of the populace that thronged the streets appeared in mourning garb. The entire garrison marched past the coffin, and the service lasted from 4 until 7:30 p. m.

The remains of Senor Canovas were interred in the family vault in the St. Isidor cemetery, amid salvos of artillery and the tolling of all the bells of the city.

At New York—

The Giants won the game from Boston in the third and fifth innings yesterday, but scored some more runs in the sixth so as to have a good margin over the Beaneaters. Klobedanz was easy, and two-base hits were numerous. Long at short was way off in his play, four bad errors being charged to him. McCreery, the ex-Louisville player, played in right field, and by his splendid game won the hearts of the rooters. Bill Clark also played a fine game, his jumping catch of Tenney's hot liner and the stopping of Hamilton's swift grass cutter being among the features.

Larned Defeated.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—Larned experienced the pangs of defeat for the first time this season in the Wyandotte invitation tourney yesterday. Champion R. D. Wrenn turned the trick in a three-set match, which was hard fought at all stages. The "Wrenn nerve," which is becoming proverbial, enabled the champion to win in the final brush of what was considered the decisive match of the tournament. Only Nisbet now stands between Wrenn and the silver tankard. Once before Larned and Wrenn have met this year, and the laurels went to Larned.

Presidential Plans.

Troy, N. Y., Aug. 14.—A change has been made in the original arrangements whereby President McKinley, Vice President Hobart, Secretary of War Alger and others composing the presidential party will leave Bluff Point Thursday morning and arrive in Troy Thursday afternoon. They will remain until Friday evening, then the president will go to Saratoga to spend Sunday. From there he will go to the national encampment at Buffalo.

The Refractometer

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent occulists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.

I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.

F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.

I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.

GEMS IN VERSE.

Ripe For a Miracle.

Why are the churches empty?
Why do the people pass?
Ministers offer them musty hay,
And people yearn for grass.

Yon ragged wretch that famished slinks
Sullenly down the street
Can never be reached by canting prayers.
The thing he needs is meat.

Christ raised the weak, but Christ is gone.
Shall we who praise his deeds
Do as he did or waste our days
Battling for wornout creeds?

The times are ripe for a miracle
As surely as you are you.
Jesus gave to the hungry bread.
That should his churches do.

—Frank Putnam.

The Ever Present Crisis.

Backward look across the ages and the beacon moments see,
That, like peaks of some sunk continent, jut through oblivion's sea,
Not an ear in court or market for the low, foreboding cry
Of those crises, God's stern winnowers, from whose feet earth's chaff must fly.
Never shows the choice momentous till the judgment hath passed by.

Careless seems the great Avenger. History's pages but record
One death grapple in the darkness 'twixt old systems and the word.
Truth forever on the scaffold, wrong forever on the throne,
Yet that scaffold sways the future, and behind the dim unknown
Standeth God within the shadow, keeping watch above his own.

We see dimly in the present what is small and what is great,
Slow of faith, how weak an arm may turn the iron helm of fate.
But the soul is still oracular amid the market's din.
List the ominous, stern whisper from the Delphic cave within,
"They enslave their children's children who make compromise with sin."

Then to side with truth is noble when we share her wretched crust,
Ere her cause bring fame and profit and 'tis prosperous to be just.
Then it is the brave man chooses while the coward stands aside,
Doubting in his abject spirit till his Lord is crucified
And the multitude make virtue of the faith they had denied.

Count me o'er earth's chosen heroes. They were souls that stood alone
While the men they agonized for hurled the contumelious stone,
Stood serene and down the future saw the golden beam incline
To the side of perfect justice, mastered by their faith divine,
By one man's plain truth to manhood and to God's supreme design.

By the light of burning heretics Christ's bleeding feet I track,
Toiling up new Calvaries ever with the cross that turns not back,
And these mounts of anguish number how each generation learned
One new word of that grand credo which in prophet hearts hath burned
Since the first man stood God conquered with his face to heaven upturned.

For humanity sweeps onward. Where today the martyr stands
On the morrow crouches Judas with the silver in his hands.
Far in front the cross stands ready, and the crackling fagots burn,
While the hooting mob of yesterday in silent awe return
To glean up the scattered ashes into history's golden urn.

'Tis as easy to be heroes as to sit the idle slaves
Of a legendary virtue carved upon our father's graves.
Worshipers of light ancestral make the present light a crime.
Was the Mayflower launched by cowards, steered by men behind their time?
Turn those tracks toward past or future that make Plymouth Rock sublime?

New occasions teach new duties. Time makes ancient good uncouth.
They must upward still and onward who would keep abreast of truth.
Lo, before us gleam her campfires! We ourselves must pilgrims be,
Launch our Mayflower and steer boldly through the desperate winter sea,
Nor attempt the future's portal with the past's blood rusted key.

—Lowell.

Self Control.

I saw an angel with majestic mien
And radiant brow and smile divinely sweet.
Strong human passions writhed beneath his feet.
There, too, expired those coward faults which screen
Themselves behind inheritance and lean
On dead men for their strength and think it meet.
All, all, lay prostrate, owning their defeat.
Then to the spirit with the eyes serene
I cried aloud in wonder and in awe:
"O mighty one, who art thou, that thy glance
Can circumvent heredity, cheat chance
And conquer nature? What thine occult law?
Art thou incarnate force, the oversoul?"
The angel answered, "I am self control."

THE GREATEST OF ELKS

Antlers With Beam Length of Sixty-seven Inches.

PRESENT FOR EMPEROR WILLIAM.

How the Big Animal Was Captured by a Colorado Hunter After a Chase of Seven Years—Horns Indicate the Extreme Age of Thirty Years.

Emperor William of Germany now has among his curiosities the largest pair of elk horns in the world. They have a beam length of 67 and 67½ inches respectively, and the longest prongs are from 22 to 23½ inches in length. There are 12 of these prongs in all, and including the beams they have a total length of nearly 30 feet. The capture of the animal that bore these giant horns was the work of nearly seven years. When the word first came from Washington that the World's fair would be held in Chicago, Professor Stainsky, who was then a resident of that city, immediately set about to procure a collection of rare specimens for an exhibit in the anthropological building. He began a correspondence with many old hunters and trappers of the mountain regions and offered large sums of money for animals of extraordinary size or beauty. His efforts were rewarded, and in less than three years he brought together a collection which gained him a medal from the department of taxidermy.

During the fall of 1890 Professor Stainsky received a letter from an old French hunter named Monjeau, who lived in the White river country in western Colorado, describing an elk with horns "covering the whole side of the mountain." Stimulated by the promise of a substantial reward, the old hunter made renewed efforts to capture the phenomenon. After two weeks of discouragement he at last came upon a lonely pass high up in the mountains, and there, a mile or more away from him, he saw a herd of elk, and among them the one with the giant horns. Here at last seemed a consummation of his hopes, and the old hunter withdrew from the possible sight of the elk and stationed himself near the point where the pass led down into the plains. Three days he waited, but the elk did not appear. On the night of the third day there was a heavy fall of snow.

MAMMOTH ANTLERS.

This was the beginning of the end, for on the fourth day the elk came within range of Monjeau's winchester, and the old hunter's aim was true. At the crack of the rifle the animal sprang into the air and fell heavily to the ground. Then the hounds broke loose upon it, but they were too soon, for the elk was not dead. He arose to his feet with a bound, and as the dogs sprang upon him he met them bravely, and with his mighty antlers he tore the entrails from two of them before the hunter could again fire. Monjeau dressed the animal for shipment, and within three weeks from the time of its capture it was in the hands of Professor Stainsky, who had removed to Colorado Springs.

Consul Leiden, who was in America at the time collecting specimens for the zoological garden of Cologne, and who was in communication with Professor Stainsky, was informed of the great find. The consul went to Colorado Springs and purchased the antlers as a present to the emperor. The head of the animal is of rare beauty, and its horns are of an even growth and handsome form. It is supposed, from their size and formation, that the elk had reached the extreme age of 30 years, although the allotted life of an elk is thought to be scarcely more than 15 years.

A Human Derrick.

The favorite feat of Richard Kniep of St. Louis is to lift some large man with his right arm. He has raised persons weighing as much as 210 pounds. Sandow claims to have bettered this record by ten pounds. Kniep's arms are marvels of muscular development. Particularly is this true of the forearm, where muscles stand out in ridges that in the average man are but masses of flabby fibers. He is now 23 years old, and ever since his boyhood days he has been in active training. In his dumbbell practice he has put up the 125 pound bell 15 times without suffering inconvenience. Kniep weighs at present 215 pounds and stands just 6 feet tall in his stocking feet. He is in active training all the time, but can reduce his weight to 185 pounds if necessary. His greatest feat was the lifting of a horse weighing 1,600 pounds, which he did about a year ago. The lift was made with his body, the supporting strap being fastened around his broad shoulders.

Sullivan's Future.

Manager Frank Dunn, who has in charge the interests of John L. Sullivan, announces that between now and the opening of the regular theatrical season in the fall Sullivan will head an athletic combination, which is to appear at summer parks and agricultural fairs, in exhibition bouts with a sparring partner. Mr. Dunn states that after his recent experience in New York, in spite of reports to the contrary, he will have no further relations with Mr. Fitzsimmons or Mr. Julian, unless it be on the ground of a battle for the pugilistic championship of the world. Mr. Dunn states that he is ready at any moment to post any part of $5,000 to bind a match between Sullivan and Fitzsimmons.

Football at Columbia.

Columbia university has decided to enter the football field in earnest. She does not expect to develop a very strong team the first year, and will therefore only play the second elevens of the big universities and the first elevens of the smaller colleges. It is now a certainty that some sort of an athletic field will be laid out on the college grounds at Morningdale Heights, making it possible for a larger number of undergraduates to spare the time from their studies for practice.

BILLIARD LEAGUE.

Scheme to Establish a Circuit of Cities and Monopolize Players.

Chicago again numbers among her residents Thomas Foley, the old time billiard promoter. Previous to the great fire Foley engineered exciting matches among "Dump" Rhines, Honohan, Parker, Vermeulen, Snyder, Coon, Frawley, Foley, Carme, Garnier, Rudolph, McDevitt, the two Dions, Melvin Foster and Goldthwaite. In 1873 Foley organized a great three ball tournament at Kingsbury hall. In this tournament the cash prizes footed up $3,000, and the great French player Ubassy, who chanced then to be visiting relatives in New Orleans, was brought to Chicago by Foley for the purpose of adding zest and interest by competing for the principal prize. His antagonists were Cyrille and Joseph Dion, Maurice Daly, George F. Slosson and Albert Garnier. Foley is now one of the promoters of a plan to form a national billiard league and establish a circuit of cities represented in the league almost identical with the system in vogue in baseball. It is believed that such a national billiard league, with cities like Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Boston and New York represented, would create a national interest in billiards which the game has not had for years.

THOMAS FOLEY.

PACERS TO THE FRONT.

Side Wheel Racers Now Most Popular With the General Public.

The great pacers have been accorded an unusual amount of public attention this season and the recent performances at Chicago and in the east have demonstrated unexpected possibilities on the part of side wheelers. Horsemen are on the lookout for new pacers, and among the promising candidates may be mentioned the midget Daisy Wilson. The Year Book gives her pedigree as untraced, but it is said that she is by Baron Posey, 2:21½, by Baron Wilkes, dam a mare of Lambert blood.

She is owned by A. J. Hawes of Johnstown, Pa., and is unquestionably the smallest pacer that has ever been campaigned. Daisy is only 55¼ inches in height and weighs 726 pounds. For her dimensions she is a solid little miss and beautifully proportioned. She is now 7 years old and has a record of 2:12¼, made at Louisville Oct. 2, 1896, defeating a field of 13 pacers. The time of her three winning heats was 2:12¼, 2:12¼ and 2:12½. She was bred by E. June of Wanamaker, Ind., and passed to J. H. Dawson, who campaigned her last year, until she was sold to Mr. Hawes. C. E. Petty and John Dickerson drove her in her races last season, and in August Mr. Petty won four races with her in ten days. She is a very handsome mare and the object of much attention from visitors. She has a sweet disposition, allowing ladies and children to pet her as they please.

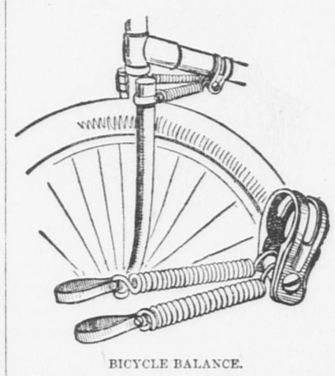
SEVERE CHAIN TESTS.

What Cornell Is Doing For Bicycle Science.

PROF. CARPENTER'S EXPERIMENTS

A New Spring Balance For the Benefit of Beginners—The Invisible Brake Will Be One of the Features of Next Year's Wheels.

Professor R. C. Carpenter of the department of experimental engineering at Cornell university, in speaking of recent tests of bicycle chains, says that the friction with the best chain varied from one-half to three-quarters of 1 per cent. This result was not only obtained with a new chain, but was also obtained with a chain which had been in use on a wheel that had been ridden more than 2,000 miles by a rider weighing nearly 200 pounds. This serves to show that high grade chains can be and are made which do not change their form by wear an amount sufficient to affect the friction. This particular chain referred to as the best chain is made with knife edge bearings and with hardened steel links and is not affected by dust to any great extent. Tests were made on a large number of other chains, and the friction was found to vary from 2 to 5 per cent, depending upon the condition of the chain, its method of construction and details of design. The highest friction found, even in the case of an old chain which did not fit the sprocket properly, did not exceed 10 per cent, although Professor Carpenter is willing to concede that a considerably higher friction might in some instances be found



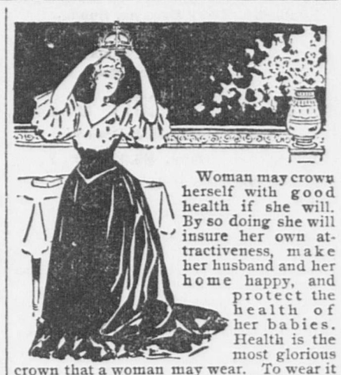
BICYCLE BALANCE.

Regarding the use of gears, extensive investigations have been made at Cornell from time to time which show the amount of power lost in friction. The very best recorded results with spur gearing are very nearly equal to those obtained with the ordinary chain when the gearing is in the best condition and working accurately in line and position. The best kind of bevel or spiral gears, a form which must be used in bicycle work, shows about double the friction of the spur gears, and, since two pairs must be used on each bicycle, about four times as much friction as the ordinary chain will result, and six to eight times the friction of the very best chains. There is another serious objection to the use of gears, arising from the fact that the least change in position of the point of contact of the gear from its normal will cause a great increase in friction and in loss of power over that stated in the preceding discussion. This indicates that the gearing is essentially unfitted for a frame which must from the very nature of its use possess great elasticity and flexibility. In the investigations conducted by Professor Carpenter the friction of several bicycles running at various rates of speed and operated under ordinary conditions was measured. This for the very best wheels under heaviest working conditions was found to be from 5 to 8 per cent, while with some of the poorer wheels the friction, under the same conditions, was 20 to 40 per cent. One of the noted manufacturers of high grade wheels kindly permitted an opportunity of comparing a chainless wheel, which was constructed in the most approved manner and with the friction reduced to the smallest possible amount, with the same kind of wheel equipped with the best chain. The results were uniformly from 5 to 8 per cent in favor of the wheel with the chain, or just about the amount that could have been predicted from previous tests of gearing. The chainless wheel also developed one extremely bad feature, and as this is inherent in all methods of gearing it may perhaps be worth mentioning. With all the chain wheels the percentage of friction or loss of power remained essentially constant at all speeds, but with a geared or chainless wheel the percentage of friction increased as the speed diminished. This would make the chainless wheel very objectionable for climbing hills, since at that time the speed must be slow, and all the power of the rider is needed to propel the wheel forward.

The tests at Cornell indicate to Professor Carpenter that any attempt to replace the chain by gearing will result in failure in the future just as it already has done in the past. They also serve to show the great difference which exists between a poor and a high grade machine, and finally the wonderful efficiency of the bicycle as a whole, which enables a man to propel himself under favorable conditions with from 5 to 10 per cent of the effort required in walking.

A new bicycle balance is designed to keep the front wheel going straight ahead. The device consists of two coiled wire springs, which are attached by rings to the frame and each front fork so that without positive effort the direction in which the wheel is going is not changed. This gives confidence to the new rider and greatly increases the pleasure of riding, especially on rough roads. It gives a steadiness to the wheel which makes turning safe and firm. The necessity for holding the handle bar every minute or of being in danger of striking some obstruction which may land the rider on the ground is overcome when the balance is used.

The invisible brake, it is claimed, is to be introduced by the leading manufacturers when they place the 1898 model on the market. The old brake was abandoned by the majority of riders a long time ago because it was clumsy. Since then, however, wheelmen who have made extended runs into the country have found the need of a brake while going down hills. They either had to dismount or else run the danger of having their wheels run away with them. The invisible brake, it is claimed, will meet all the requirements of the most exacting rider. In the city on the level streets there is little need of it, because the majority of riders are sufficiently expert to back pedal.



Woman may crown herself with good health if she will. By so doing she will insure her own attractiveness, make her husband and her home happy, and protect the health of her babies. Health is the most glorious crown that a woman may wear. To wear it she must take proper care of herself, and see to it that the delicate organs that are distinctly feminine are always healthy and strong. Thousands of women fall short of good health in this one respect, and as a result soon become but wrecks of their former selves. A woman cannot long retain her general health who is suffering from weakness and disease of the organs that make wifehood and motherhood possible.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription acts directly on these organs. It makes them well and strong. It prepares a woman to be a wife and mother. It does away with the discomforts of the expectant period and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. All good druggists sell it.

"I am glad," writes Mrs. Louisa Arthurs, of Ostwalt, Iredell Co., N. C., "to express my gratitude to you for the benefits I have received from your medicines. After the birth of my second child I was stricken with derangement of the stomach and liver and a full line of female weaknesses. For seven years I suffered untold misery. Then my husband, J. S. Arthurs, sent for a copy of your 'Common Sense Medical Adviser.' The book described my sufferings so plainly that I purchased bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and a vial of 'Pleasant Pellets.' Our doctor pronounced my case hopeless, and laid aside your medicines, calling them nostrums, and for six months I lay under his disgusting treatment. At the end of this time I commenced taking your medicine and improved very fast. I was soon able to do my housework. My baby thrived fast, and is to-day the healthiest child I have. Your medicine saved my life. My recovery was astonishing. I recommend your medicines constantly."

Too Much of a Good Thing.

While the majority of Wollaston people are pleased with the prospect of an electric road through the village, there are some that are not, It is said an order will be introduced into the City Council revoking all street railway locations not yet built upon. As Wollaston people, however, are in favor of the route now being built the chances are that this particular location will not be included.

Granite Men's Outing.

The Quincy Granite Manufacturer's Association is holding its annual outing today at Nantasket beach and a better day it would be hard to find. The party, some fifty in number made the trip in a special car which left City Square at 9.20. Others who could not get away to start with this party, went down later. Dinner will be served at the Standish house and a good time is assured.

With the Yachtsmen.

The Privateer was an easy winner of first prize in the second class at Gloucester yesterday, although she had eight rivals. The Ida J., Arab, Gosling and Fantasy were first in the other classes, while second prizes went to the Asahi, Nettie, Teuton, Cockatoo and Circe.

Today there is an open race at Squam.

Next Tuesday will see the last of the championship races of the Yacht Racing Association of Massachusetts along the North Shore. After the open regatta of the American Yacht Club at Newburyport the crack racing yachts of the Massachusetts clubs will be seen in the open races at Quincy on August 19, 20 and 21. Club races are held today by the Wollaston, Savin Hill, Winthrop and Beverly clubs.

SQUANTUM'S DAY.

The Street Railway Extension to that Point Opened This Afternoon.

A special car containing the railroad officials and newspaper men was run over the new line to Squantum Friday night. The car which left City Square shortly after 8 o'clock was in charge of Dan McLane, who enjoys the destinction of being the first man to run an electric car in Quincy as well as to run the first car over all new tracks that have been built since the company started.

When the car arrived at Atlantic it was greeted with shouts from half a hundred boys who had gathered at the corner.

Mr. N. V. Titus and a number of Atlantic citizens were also in waiting to take the first ride over the line.

The trip down was an uneventful one being made in twenty minutes. After arriving at Squantum a few minutes were spent in viewing the scenery, which by moonlight was beautiful, especially from the top of the hill.

The return trip was made in about fifteen minutes from Squantum to the Atlantic depot.

The Opening.

The first car for Squantum today left City Square at 2 o'clock having on board

SUPT. WEEKS.

President Graham, the officers of the road and invited guests. Following that was a car containing the band and cars for the general public.

This afternoon Brown's brigade band will give the following programme at Squantum grove:

March "Washington Post"	Sousa

Concert Waltz "Auf Wieder Selin"
Schottische "Pretty little dark eyed Clare"
Cornet solo by F Bryant	Selected
College Potpourri "Bingo"	Beebe
March "Adj. Clayton"	Missud

This evening the park will be illuminated by electric lights and there will be concerts by Brown's Brigade and the Weymouth bands. There will also be a display of fireworks.

The programme of the Weymouth band for this evening is an excellent one as will be seen by the following:

March, On the Move,	Bailey
Medley overture, Coon Town Capers,	Chattaway
Clarinet solo, selected,	G. Lester Hollis
Waltz, Symposia,	Bendix
Overture, Poet and Peasant,	Suppe

Congo dance 'Cocoanuts"	Currier
Trombone solo by D. Dupree	Selected
"A Pleasant Evening"	Beyer
Finale "Up the Street"

Squantum's Beauty.

There is today no more attractive spot in Quincy, or one that has more natural beauties than Squantum and now that it has been placed in touch with the world by the completion of a street railway line, it will not be long before it will become the Mecca of many pleasure seekers.

Up to today the only method of reaching this spot, which is situated in the extreme northern part of Quincy, has been by a long tramp across the causeway, or an expensive ride in a public carriage, therefore it has been visited by comparatively few of Quincy's present population.

One of the largest estates is the summer home of Mrs. George F. Burkhardt, a large square house upon the hill top in one of the most sightly spots. It is the one that is prominently seen from Atlantic.

A little to the north on the side hill is the fine old residence of Mr. Nelson V. Titus to whose enterprising spirit Squantum owes much of it success today. The residence is near the water's edge and is an ideal summer home.

But a short distance away is the Myles Standish cairn, which was erected chiefly through the instrumentality of Mrs. Titus. It is an object of interest.

The northerly promontory of Squantum is owned by the city of Boston, and as it is dotted with trees it is a most beautiful natural park. Ever since this has been owned by the city of Boston it has been closed to the general public, but hereafter will be opened to the public, and in the near future this park will doubtless pass into the control of the Metropolitan Park Commissioners.

At the right of this park is a long and beautiful driveway, or it might be called a boulevard, which terminates at the gate-house of the Metropolitan sewer and although thousands of gallons of sewage are emptied into the ocean daily at this point it is in no way perceptible, as it is carried out to sea.

Years ago, the old Squantum Hotel, which is now on the city of Boston's property, was quite famous as a picnic resort and the Sunday Schools of Quincy and adjoining towns held their annual outings there. Shore dinners and clam-bakes were features of the place, while boatmen reaped quite a harvest taking sailing parties on the Neponset river.

It is said that history repeats itself, and it looks now as though many of the scenes and incidents of years ago were to be again enacted.

If Squantum is called a beautiful spot in day-time, it is much more so in the evening, especially upon a moonlight night such as we are having now, and the view of old ocean by moonlight from near the Myles Standish cairn is beyond description.

Way over to the right the number flashed at half-minute intervals by grim old Minot's is plainly seen, while as the eye makes a circuit of the horizon, the lights along Nantasket's shores come into view, and as we follow on Hull, Deer Island and Boston lights appear.

Over toward South Boston the long row of bright lights on Marine Park appears, and in the distance are like one continuous row of light. But all these must be seen to be fully appreciated.

It is but a short time ago that there was considerable talk of annexing Squantum to Boston and one of the plans brought forward at that time was the building of a bridge across the river to Neponset but now that a street railway line has been constructed it is doubtful if anything more is heard of the annexation question or the bridge across the river.

Travelling 100 Years Ago.

The opening of the extension of the street railway from Atlantic to Squantum today recalls a part of Pattee's history of Quincy, published at the LEDGER office, which reads:

"The means of travel and transportation of merchandise to and from Boston and other places at the time of incorporation of Quincy in 1792 were very limited. Those living on the sea-coast usually went by water; others, living more inland, slung their panniers across their backs and accomplished their journey on foot; while the more wealthy, or those able to own horses, either travelled on horseback or in their carriages. There were in the town about a dozen one-horse chaises, cumbrous and antiquated in their construction and mechanical execution. We have heard elderly people relate how they used to sling their panniers across their horse's back or their own shoulders, and fill them with boots, shoes, or other merchandise, and travel off to Boston, and there exchange their goods for groceries or housekeeping materials, and return home the same day. Some quarter of a century after this, stage-coaches and omnibusses were established."

The roads 105 years ago were few and poorly constructed, or not constructed at all. Franklin, School, Hancock and Adams streets comprised what was then the Plymouth turnpike, passing over Milton hill, and was the only thoroughfare to Boston at that time.

There was a zig-zag sort of a way to Squantum, known as the Farms road, which was discontinued when the Neponset turnpike was opened. The road commenced at the present site of Presidents' bridge, Adams street, and ran in an easterly direction; then turned at a right angle, crossed the brook' and went up the hill on the ridge the easterly side of the turnpike, where the remains of said road may still be seen; then crossed to the westerly side, passing over the land on which the house of John Chamberlin on Hancock street, now stands; then turned a right angle near where the Horse Railroad stables formerly stood; thence passing in a straight course towards the Bay until it came to Mr. Quincy's land; then turning a right angle again, passing by Mr. Quincy's gate, and crossing the turnpike, passed the northeast end of the swamp, crossing Stand Brook and passing the house of Dr. Wilson, which has been taken down, but was locatedne arly opposite the house of Thomas F. Fenno, near the swamp, and also the house of the late John Glover; then came into the road leading from Squantum to Milton.

In 1792, says Pattee's history, scarcely 1500 people travelled to and from Boston in a year. Now our street railway carries more than that number every day.

An interesting chapter might be written on early ferries across the Neponset river, but that will be reserved for another time.

The Neponset Bridge corporation was incorporated in 1802, and in 1803 a new charter was obtained. The Neponset turnpike and bridge were built in 1803 at a cost of $34,000, and netted $145,272 up to 1842. In 1845 the Old Colony railroad was opened and seriously interferred with the profits of the Turnpike corporation. In 1857 the turnpike became a free street.

The history of street railways in Quincy dates from 1861, when the Quincy Horse Railroad was incorporated, and a line was constructed from the foot of Penn's hill to Field's Corner, connecting there with the Metropolitan railroad of Boston. This was considered a cheap and pleasant method of conveyance, and a great convenience in getting to various parts of the town on the line of the road. The road was a success financially until it purchased two steam or dummy engines at great expense. These proved successful as far as locomotion was concerned, but the expense of operating was so much greater that they were abandoned. The company became embarassed and the road was discontinued; the stable opposite Merry Mount park was burned later.

For the next twenty odd years street railway history in Quincy was a blank, but in 1888 the Quincy street railway was incorporated. It was soon absorbed by the Quincy & Boston street railway established soon after, which is now a big system operating lines in Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree, Holbrook, Randolph and Milton.

—Nearly everybody has heard of the gracious sweetness of "Dolly" Madison, once the "first lady in the land." It is said that an awkward country youth, whose mother she had once known, attended one of her receptions. Seeing him standing aloof she approached, making some pleasant remark. The young man was so startled at being addressed by the wife of the president, that he put the cup and saucer, which he held in his hand in his pocket. Without seeming to notice his embarrassment, Mrs. Madison said: "You have spilled your coffee. Let me get you another cup." This she did with her own hands, thus giving the young man a chance to extricate the cup and recover his composure. When she returned, she began talking with him, in a perfectly natural way, about his mother, and he was soon chatting with her like an old acquaintance.

—Governor Atkinson of Georgia and Governor Bradley of Kentucky have both given expression recently to vigorous utterances in regard to lynching and mob violence in their respective state. The former has offered a reward for the convictions of persons engaged in a recent lynching in that state. Slowly the best element in those sections where these outrages have been too common are coming to realize that the methods of Judge Lynch are not calculated to advance the best interests of any community, although it is usually quicker and cheaper than trial by jury.

—Now that the tariff bill has been passed look out for prosperity. Boom all local industries, give them your influence, your good words and if necessary, your financial support. Don't invest money again in western farm mortgages and wild cat schemes. The home industry helps everybody, and the investor the most.

—Rich as well as poor dislike to pay taxes. Mr. William Rockefeller has had a quarrel in Tarrytown, N. Y., over his tax bill, and he had similar trouble, says the Boston Journal, when he lived in Greenwich, Conn. He threatens to move again if he has to pay a tax of $125 on his estate of 600 acres. The local Assessors are firm, and the dispute adds one more to the countless number between wealthy men and suburban Assessors.

—A party of hunters in Boardman, Mich., patiently waited all night under a tree in which they had treed a coon for a shot at the animal. At the first streak of dawn one of the nimrods drew a bead on the doomed animal dimly visible among the topmost branches, and brought it down, but when it came down it wasn't a coon at all, but a black cat.

Science In Cooking.

There is always one standard of excellence in every article, reached alone by perseverance and untiring efforts to serve the best. The line of distinction is more marked in Ranges than in anything else we know of,—some good, some bad, some indifferent, all claiming to be the best.

Glenwood Ranges alone stand like a shining star among the ranges of today. Their excellence in every detail marks a new era in range construction, sought for nearly a hundred years in the past, by first one maker and then another. If you need a new range, why not have the best, they cost no more than the other kinds, if you buy them here,---$18.00 to $33.00, and you're sure to get the genuine article at this store alone. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded, a reasonable allowance for your old range, and a range on trial if you wish.

This is not the first time that we have had "children" for our topic.

Well, we are particularly fond of the young folks and like to see them hearty and happy.

It is highly necessary to keep a careful watch over their diet, and we feel like emphasizing this point very strongly.

Parents have a grave duty along this line, for if the coming generation is to be all that it ought to be, the fathers and mothers of today must see carefully to the daily food of their growing boys and girls.

Groceries of the BOSTON BRANCH sort, properly cooked, are wholesome, digestible and nourishing to a high degree.

Gala Day at Braintree.

Next Saturday afternoon promises to be a gala day in the history of Braintree amusements. The first muster under the auspices of the Braintree band will take place.

There will be a grand parade which will start at two o'clock, composed of the various trades, organizations and bicycle clubs, escorted by Company K. After marching through some of the principle streets they will disband at French's Common where a grand "play out" will take place.

All the hand engines in the neighboring towns are expected to take part, and lots of sport is expected. The Union engine will be there with the East Braintree boys, backed by the Quincy "fellers."

The Randolph association has three tubs to select from, and will be there backed by the Brockton Veterans; and the Rockland machine, King Phillip, backed by the Whitman boys is also expected to be on hand.

On the street they are saying, "anything to down the Butcher Boy," and there will doubtless be a lively contest.

The Union has just made a grand showing and her friends say she is a winner.

The Butcher Boy is in fine trim and if the men turn out for practice they will doubtless hold up the reputation of this faithful old tub.

The prize offered is twenty five dollars in gold.

The programme closes with a band concert in South Braintree square in the evening.

Bicyclists are requested to appear in costume and compete for five prizes.

At 2 o'clock the procession will form on Washington street in front of the Pond schoolhouse, the second and third divisions resting on Tremont and Franklin streets. Headed by the band under the escort of Co. K, the procession will march over the following route: Through Washington street to school, to Railroad, through River to Washington, to the Town House, where it will be reviewed by the judges and dismissed. Entrance fee for hand engines, $1; bicyclists in costume free.

A GREAT SURPRISE IS IN STORE

for those who will go today and get a package of GRAIN-O. It takes the place of coffee at about ¼ the cost. It is a food drink, full of health, and can be given to the children as well as the adult with a great benefit. It is made of pure grains and looks and tastes like the finest grades of Mocha or Java coffee. It satisfies everyone. A cup of Grain-O is better for the system than a tonic, because its benefit is permanent. What coffee breaks down Grain-O builds up. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 15c. and 25c.

Stone Cutter Dropped Dead.

The death of a stone cutter at Fitchburg yesterday was very similar to that of Andrew Larson at Quincy this week. A few minutes after the men resumed work in the afternoon at the Rollstone hill, Louis N. Laventure dropped without warning, and his fellow workmen carried him to the office, where he died a few minutes later. Heart failure was probably the cause of death.

—Julian Hawthorne asserts from personal experience in India that although 8,000,000 natives have died during the recent famine and under English rule, yet the English are in no way to blame. In fact, he thinks that without the relief works, poor-houses and hospitals maintained by the English, the death role might easily be 100,000,000 instead of 8,000,000. He also says that the English are greatly hampered in giving out relief by the dishonesty of native assistants who will, unless carefully watched, rob their starving countrymen and women without scruple.

THIRD RAIL IN ENGLAND.

Americans Will Build and Equip London's New Underground Railway.

The latest addition to the system of underground railways in London will probably rank as the most important of all these lines before it has been very long in operation. It will run a distance of 6½ miles through the busiest part of London. The road will be about 65 feet below street level and will be carried in two separate and parallel tunnels. Each station will be served by two elevators and two stairways.

The new undertaking will have especial interest for this country from the fact that the electrical equipment of the road itself and of the extensive system of elevators by which it will be served will be furnished by American firms.

The third rail equipment will be put in by the representatives in England of the General Electric company—the British Thomson-Houston company. The conductor will consist of an insulated third rail, placed on the ties between the main rails. The service will differ from that on the New Haven line in that the trains will be hauled by separate electric locomotives, whose general appearance will conform to the well known heavy locomotives which are being used in the belt line tunnel at Baltimore.

Equally interesting will be the extensive elevator equipment. There will be 49 in all, and they will be of the well known double drum Sprague type. Their capacity will be 100 passengers per trip, or a load of about 15,000 pounds.

It is very gratifying to note that the whole of the electrical equipment of such an important work in the capital city of the world has been secured by two American firms, and the fact is a direct tribute to the high character of electrical work in this country.—Scientific American.

Speeds Per Second.

Some enterprising contemporary has assembled the following gamut of speeds per second; we have interpolated one or two: The snail, one-half inch; a man walking, 4 feet; a fast runner, 23 feet; a fly, 24 feet; fast skater, 38 feet; ocean waves, 70 feet; a carrier pigeon, 87 feet; locomotive, 60 miles an hour, 88 feet; swallows, 220 feet; the worst cyclone known, 380 feet; the Krakatoa wave (at the volcanic catastrophe of Aug. 27, 1893, in the Sunda islands), 940 feet; sound in the air, 1,095 feet; the surface of the globe at sea level, on the equator, 1,500 feet; the moon, 3,250 feet; the sun, 5½ miles; the earth, 18 miles; Hollem's comet in the perihelion, 235 miles; electric current on telegraph wires, 7,000 miles; induction current, 11,040 miles; electric current in copper wire armatures, 21,000 miles; light, 180,000 miles; discharge of a Leyden bottle through copper wire of one-sixteenth inch in diameter, 277,100 miles. This last is the greatest rapidity so far measured.—American Machinist.

Is Consumption Decreasing?

Dr. Arthur Ransome, speaking of observations made in England, thinks that "if phthisis were to continue to diminish in prevalence at the same increasing rate of decline for another 30 years it would then have entirely disappeared. The first great drop in its rate took place in the decade of 1840 to 1850, about the time that serious attention began to be given to sanitary reform, and especially to land drainage. It then remained scarcely reduced for about 17 years, but from 1867 to 1894 it has been steadily on the decline. It is in this period that most of the great sanitary work has been carried out in this country." This indicates the direction in which an effort should be made toward stamping out a disease which is said to carry off one-seventh of the human race.—Popular Science News.

The Next Solar Eclipse.

British astronomers are taking a lively interest in the next eclipse of the sun, to take place on Jan. 22, 1898, and the Royal and Royal Astronomical societies are arranging to send out three parties of observers. The central line crosses western India, the duration of totality at the most favorable stations being about two minutes. The prospects of fair weather are considered exceptionally good, as the January skies of India south of Bombay are remarkable for their freedom from cloud, and the probability that any given January day will be rainy is less than 1 in 150 in the Konkan.

Burning Furnace Gases.

A western inventor has developed an arrangement whereby the act of opening the furnace door to fire puts into operation an arrangement for injecting heated air into the furnace, and this injection continues for a predetermined time, being shut off automatically by the attached mechanism at the end of a period, the length of which is determined by experiment, which will allow of the combustion of the volatile constituents of the fuel.

The Pond streets defeated a team captained by Louis Howland on the Pond street grounds yesterday, by the score of 6 to 5. It is rather laughable to see the efforts made by the two street railway companies, on Sundays, to induce people to go via their lines to Nantasket. It was a large gathering. The receipts from the ice cream go to the Y. P. C. U. treasury.

THE LOST KISS.

I put by the half written poem,
While the pen, idly trailed in my hand,
Writes on, "Had I words to complete it,
Who'd read it, or who'd understand?"

But the little bare feet on the stairway
And the faint, smothered laugh in the hall
And the eerie low lisp in the silence
Cry up to me over it all.

So I gathered it up, where was broken
The tear faded thread of my theme,
Telling how as one night I sat writing
A fairy broke in on my dream—

A little inquisitive fairy,
My own little girl, with the gold
Of the sun in her hair and the dewy
Blue eyes of the fairies of old.

'Twas the dear little girl that I scolded,
"For was it a moment like this,"
I said, "when she knew I was busy,
To come romping in for a kiss—

Come rowdying up from her mother
And clamoring there on my knee
For 'one 'ittle kiss for my dolly
And one 'ittle uzzer for me!'"

God pity the heart that repelled her
And the cold hand that turned her away
And take from the lips that denied her
This answerless prayer of today!

Take, Lord, from my mem'ry forever
That pitiful sob of despair
And the patter and trip of the little bare feet
And the one piercing cry on the stair!

I put by the half written poem,
While the pen, idly trailed in my hand,
Writes on, "Had I words to complete it,
Who'd read it, or who'd understand?"

But the little bare feet on the stairway
And the faint, smothered laugh in the hall
And the eerie low lisp in the silence
Cry up to me over it all.

THE UNKNOWN.

The cemeteries of cities are like great hotels, where the close proximity of people in different classes of life is not always happy. The walls of partition seem to leak a secret horror of unrest; there is something of constraint, of promiscuosity, of cold dignity in the obligatory relations of body to body. Here the dead are not at home.

In the graveyards of the country, among the thick flowering underbrush and the quiet of the wide fields, is a better repose for us after our stormy struggles. A cemetery thus situated, the center of farreaching horizons, inspires one with a desire to die. To lie down here and sleep seems good. But most peaceful of all are the realms of the dead in marine villages, at the edge of the sea, within sound of the lulling of the running waves which sing an eternal song on the eternal sleep, amid the wail of the wind over the ancient tombs.

One day about 15 years ago I entered one of these places of supreme rest beside the waves on the Breton coast, with its crosses pointing toward heaven in a way which makes one think of eternity. Beside a little old church, beneath the shadow of a stone bell turret, slept the forefathers who, whether they had died in youth or in age, were all made an equal age by accomplished time. And there was no sadness in this evidence of a fatal destiny, but rather a happy relief in the thought that the burden of suffering will not always weigh down our poor shoulders and that sorrow has its prescribed limit. And pleasant, too, was the slow spelling out of the inscriptions on the tombs in the warmth of the sunlight which the fluttering, intoxicated birds greeted with a sweet delirium of song. Three centuries of time separated the old stones from the new, and a peace was made over all feuds here under the high crosses with outstretched arms, clear cut against the green sea, standing in their eternal attitude of forgiveness.

One tomb in the form of a chalice arrested my attention, and I read this singular epitaph: "Here lies an unknown. Dec. 6, 1871. Tacita transit" (she has passed silently).

I wished to learn all that was known of her, and in the evening I inquired in the village, and this is what I learned:

In November of the year 1860, on a night of lowering sky and raging sea, as the inhabitants slept in their huts, which were shaken up by the squall, the dull boom of a cannon announced the distress of a ship out on the waters across the promontory At this time the little port did not possess a single lifeboat, and to attempt to depart in such a gale in the barks of the fishermen would be simply folly. Each one who heard the sound could only pray, "God help them!" But doubtless the noises of the angry sea drowned out the human voices, and God heard nothing, for next morning the sea stretched wide under the blue sky, swept clear—not a speck on the horizon, nothing but the ripples of foam on the waves. So it had disappeared, foundered, the boat that had cried for help with a call of iron during that night of terror. The sadness of the disaster caused a silence among the fishermen, when suddenly down on the strand a cry arose. At this moment the Marquis de Pontus, master of the chateau, came up to the group of people to learn the end of the night's drama.

The cry had come from a peasant who had discovered the body of a woman clothed in a long white robe, thrown between two enormous rocks. She was apparently dead and must have rolled from her bed on the ship into the sea.

"Her heart still beats!" cried the peasant. The marquis commanded, "Carry her to my house quickly and wrap this cloak around her."

He was obeyed. In fact, the woman still lived and after hours of ingenious labor opened her eyes.

"Ask her nothing," said Pontus. "She is still too weak and must sleep."

In the meanwhile the searchers continued from strand to strand, but nothing more was found. It was impossible to tell what this vessel was which had gone down in the near waters. French? English? All a mystery! It had carried its flag to the depths of the sea.

"The woman will tell us," said Pontus. And the next day he went to her bedside. She looked at him with eyes large, beautiful and clear, but empty of comprehension. She was young and very pretty, with hands delicately and finely shaped. He asked her where she came from, where she was going, who she was, in phrases gentle and courteous, for he was already moved by her tragic beauty. She listened without making a sign and did not answer. He repeated his question, saying he troubled her only for her own good. She remained silent, and it was evident his words conveyed nothing to her.

"Perhaps she doesn't understand French," said a friend.

"She understands nothing at all," said Pontus sadly. "I fear she has lost her mind in the horror of the catastrophe. But it does not matter. She has fallen from heaven, and she is at home here, mad or sane. God sent her to me, and I will guard her." And he kept his word.

Days, months, years, passed. The unknown lived silently, without words and apparently without thoughts. She loved to be out of doors and mixed with other people, seeming by all exterior appearances to be like them. At the table of the marquis, in the family of a refined ancient race, she carried herself with the grace and dignity of one accustomed to a similar world, and Pontus often said, "This child is a great lady."

In spite of the most thorough investigations not a ray of light, even the faintest, pierced the mystery. It could not even be conjectured what the boat lost at the coast had been or who this woman was who accepted placidly the care of strangers, showed neither sadness nor joy, had no desires and lived unconsciously the life of a beautiful white bird in a cage of gold. Little by little the marquis grew attached to her. His house was large, and he refused to have her confined in a hospital, repeating that she was his charge and sacred to him above everything. And sometimes when he watched her walking in the park of the chateau Pontus would grow very sad and murmur, "If this beautiful girl had a soul, how I would love her!" And Pontus, who was then in his thirty-sixth year, refused obstinately to marry—on account of the unknown.

And so he grew older, and with the years came a deeper melancholy. However, in his voluntary seclusion there was some sweetness. The woman seemed to like to be near him, though her manner was like that of a petted animal. She ran to him when she saw him and looked at him with her clear eyes, in which shone a fugitive light of recognition and devotion, but the next moment she would run away again, often into the woods, where she wandered about all day, returning always at dusk, for she had a great dread of the darkness.

One stormy night in November she shuddered at the sound of the wind from the sea and groaned softly, with her hands clasped to her breast in an attitude of deep sadness. A little later she uttered a hoarse cry and fell to the floor unconscious. It was just 12 years since she had come to life in the chateau. Pontus, very much alarmed, hurried to the village for help. A doctor was summoned and returned with him in great haste. The patient was examined and the case diagnosed as quick consumption. She had carried the germs of the fatal disease in her system for some time. Pontus was in despair.

One morning in the winter the unknown passed quietly away in the arms of the marquis. At the supreme moment the mysterious sick woman seemed to regain her reason suddenly. She looked about with eyes frightened but comprehensive, which seemed to say: "Where am I? Who are these men?" She opened her lips to speak at last in her native language, but death, jealous of the mystery, sealed her tongue with his icy touch.

The marquis, inconsolable, had engraved on her tombstone the epitaph, "Tacita transit."—Translated For Cincinnati Tribune.

A Famous Blunderer.

M. Calino, the popular French simpleton who performs in the humorous literature of France much the same function that the traditional Paddy does in English literature, has been made the subject of a grave study, in which his innocent stupidities are carefully analyzed. He is nothing more or less than a convenient personification of a type of the harmless blunderer and complacent lack wit found in all ages and countries. In France his sayings reflect, however, something of the picturesqueness which is characteristic of the nation.

Calino's blunderings, it seems, began at an early age. He had not craft enough to tell a lie that would hold water for a moment. One day at school he got into a fight with a companion and came home with a gash on his forehead.

"How did you get that cut?" asked his father.

"What cut, papa?"

"Why, that great gash on your forehead."

"I bit myself there, papa."

"Bit yourself! Why, you couldn't bite yourself on your forehead."

"I got up on a chair to do it, papa."

Later in life Calino delivered himself of the following bit of wisdom:

"As for me, I don't care so much for the sun as I do for the moon. You see, the sun only comes after it gets daylight, when we could see just as well without it, but the moon's some use—it shines at night."

Early one morning, when Calino was out with his gun, he saw a robin in the garden of his friend Camille. He aimed at it, but it dropped below the top of the wall. Then Calino went into the house, crept up stairs softly, stole into Camille's bedroom without waking Camille, who was in bed, pointed his gun out of the window at the robin and fired—bang!

Camille leaped out of bed in wild confusion and alarm.

"W—w—why—w—w—what's the matter?"

"Oh, did I wake you up?" said Calino. "I pulled the trigger just as softly as I could."—Youth's Companion.

FIRST GOLD IN ALASKA.

Natives Used It to Ransom Captive Friends.

Captain Harry Meiggs, U. S. A. (retired), who is said to be a relative of the man who built Meiggs wharf, San Francisco, away back in the fifties, tells a wonderful tale of the discovery of gold in Alaska in the latter part of the sixties. He was on duty in that country at that time at a point near Juneau, and says that even in those early days great lumps of gold were exhibited by the natives.

"Often natives from the interior would come down wearing necklaces made of nuggets picked up from the creeks in the interior," he said the other day. "At one time there was a tribe which had been conquered by another and a penalty was exacted. Some of the conquered tribe came over the Chilkat pass with a certain amount of gold, which on being weighed was found to be short of the price demanded by the conquerors. Several chiefs were held as hostages while the remainder of the tribe was directed to cross the mountains and procure a sum sufficient to liberate the others. They were gone several months, and when they came back an amount more than needed to pay the ransom was brought in. No one could ascertain whence the money came, but from the direction in which they went and the length of time occupied in making the trip it was believed that they went many miles inland.

"I believe that these men went into the passes of the Klondike country and picked up by the crude means at their command enough gold to secure the amount needed to complete the ransom. It was a topic of discussion among those who were detailed on duty at that time, and many plans were laid to secure information relating to the location of the claims, but these Indians kept the matter secret and would never disclose where they derived their treasure. I believe that even so far back as 30 years ago they went into the country which is now exciting the attention of the whole world and obtained the money necessary to release their relatives."—San Francisco Chronicle.

DIED AT HIS POST.

A Dead Engineer's Hand on the Throttle.

With his hand on the throttle of his engine and flying over the road at the rate of between 40 and 50 miles an hour, Charles Torrey, an engineer on the Kansas City, St. Joseph & Council Bluffs railroad, was stricken with paralysis the other day and died without speaking a word. Even after he died the body of the engineer still remained in his seat at the side of the cab.

James McDonald, the fireman, sat on the other side of the engine, looking down the glistening lines of rail and for a time did not know that there was anything wrong with the engineer.

He glanced in that direction, but only saw the body of the engineer still in the seat and did not think of him being dead.

The train was increasing in speed, when McDonald noticed that Torrey did not whistle for the crossing. He rang the bell vigorously, and just then the train thundered by a station at which it should have stopped.

Then McDonald crossed over to the engineer's side of the cab and saw that Torrey's head had fallen on his breast.

The rocking motion of the engine caused it to roll from side to side. The fireman thought him asleep, called to him, then pulled him by the arm, and Torrey fell to the floor of the cab a corpse.

The fireman stopped the train and told the other trainmen what had happened.

When Torrey died, he was leaning back in his seat in the cab, looking ahead at the track. His eyes did not close when death struck him, but were wide open and staring when the fireman discovered that he was dead.

Engineer Torrey had been in the employ of the road 13 years.—New York Journal.

Captured a Fish Snake.

A queer looking reptile was captured near Windsor, N. Y., a few days ago. It is about three feet long, of a yellow striped color, but has scales all over the body like a fish. Its eyes are exceedingly small, and an investigation of its mouth showed an entire absence of fangs, but instead small, fishlike teeth. When placed on land, it squirmed and twisted about, but could not crawl like a snake. The conclusion of all who have seen it is that it is a hybrid of half snake and half fish. Nothing like it has ever been seen before in this section.

A Protest.

"Klondike! Klondike!" Fortunes everywhere!
That Roarer Bory Alice has bewitched us, I declare,
And they're leavin farm and fam'ly fer to try their luck afar,
But, I tell you, they won't ketch me underneath no polar star,
For what's the good of metal where the prices is so high
That you have to pay a fortune fer a piece of apple pie?
You'll dream about the generous boughs, with fruit a-bendin low,
And find only disappointment in its yellow, mocking glow.
You may fondle it and pet it,
Yet with teardrops you may wet it,
Fer it's no good till you get it
Where the corn and melons grow.

"Klondike! Klondike!" Is the treasure there
Brighter than the western tints that make the twilight fair?
Ef you had all the dollars that kin grow 'twixt earth and sky,
You couldn't do no more than laugh and weep and hope and die.
You resk your health and conscience in a way that's sad to see,
Jes' fer pointin somethin out and sayin, "That belongs to me."
You can't enjoy but jes' so much, as through the world you go,
And the honest, willin worker never finds his spirits low.
Gold—such doubts and fears beset it
That yer likely to regret it,
Fer it's no good till you get it
Where the corn and melons grow.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 15. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Stumbling blocks.—Math. xviii, 1-14. (A temperance topic.)

The words of Christ in this passage in reference to stumbling blocks were called forth by the question of the disciples, "Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?" To teach them humility He points out the fact that the humblest shall be the greatest. Exaltation is to be won by humiliation.

This leads Him to speak of what should be the attitude of men toward the little ones, those who were least in the kingdom of heaven. If pride and not humility possessed the heart of the strong minded disciple, the probability would be that he would despise the weakly disciple, perhaps ridicule his defects, make light of his infirmities, and at least would not suffer his infirmities to influence his action so as to encourage and assist the weaker one. By such a course the strong would become a stumbling block in the way of the weak. He would discourage him, lead him into errors, perhaps cause him to give up in despair and to leave off following Christ altogether. What a sin in the sight of heaven!

The enormity of leading others astray by word or example, of causing the weak to stumble, is not realized. Who could realize the enormity of the sin of leading to destruction a soul for which Christ died? But the Scripture leaves us without excuse in that it forbids our being the occasion of stumbling to others, and Christ Himself emphasizes the true character of such a course by describing in awful language the penalty for this sin. "Woe to that man," He says, "through whom the occasion [of stumbling] cometh. Whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in Me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea." Capital punishment by drowning with a heavy weight about the neck was common among the Greeks and Romans, but very rare among the Jews. This fact intensifies the illustration used by Christ. Again Christ says, "If there is that in us which is a cause of offense or of stumbling, we are to part with it, though it be as dear to us as hand, foot or eye."

The weak may not be able to punish those who mislead them, but they are the special object of God's protecting care, and He will avenge them. "In heaven their angels do always behold the face of My Father which is in heaven."

No man liveth to himself. We influence all about us for better or for worse. Let us see to it that by precept and example we make our lives felt in the world for good for the uplifting and elevation of our fellow men rather than the opposite. Bible Readings: Lev. xix, 14; Deut. xxvii, 18; Isa. viii. 13-17; Prov. xxiii, 29-31; Mal. ii, 8, 9; Math. xxv, 31-46; Mark ix, 36-50; Luke xvii, 1, 2; I Cor. i, 23, 24; viii, 1-13; ix, 20-27; Rom. viii, 32; xiv, 1-15; xv, 1-4; I Pet. ii, 6-8.

Be Not Afraid.

Let us not be afraid to assert our rights as men and Americans whenever they shall be jeopardized. Not offensively, if it can be avoided, but, at any rate, without hesitation and undue trepidation. We have no interests that clash with those of our beloved country. What we do we do for her sake, for the sake of all as well as for ourselves. This consciousness of right, of truth and of duty ought to give us the courage of our convictions, the resolution to do and dare for the cause we have at heart.

The dangers are not all passed. There will yet be opportunities to gain glory in the advocacy of the full acknowledgment of religious liberty and of the equal rights of all, and to these and to all similar noble causes, both as Americans and Jews, our best efforts should be given.—Jewish Exponent.

Imagination In Religion.

Whatever religion would have power in it must cultivate the imagination. Without it the world becomes bare and lifeless, and without it religion sinks into a mere form of words or a repetition of unmeaning ideas. Wherever there is strong faith, loving service, consecrated will, there is to be found the imagination at work to give them life and power.—Christian Register.

In Small Quantities.

Many people take their religion as they do their ice cream—in small quantities and only when the flavor is agreeable and there happens to be a little loose change in the pocket. Religion as a necessity is spirit and life. Religion as a luxury is the highest essence of worldliness.—Lutheran.

Far Better.

It is better to admit we do not know enough to comprehend the works of God than to think the works of God small enough for our comprehension.—Christian Leader.

The Lord Will Look.

Look well to your integrity, and the Lord will look to your prosperity.—Spurgeon.

A Present Help.

We may not climb the heavenly steeps
To bring the Saviour down.
In vain we search the lowest deeps.
For Him no depth can drown.

But warm, sweet, tender, even yet
A present help is He.
And faith has yet its Olivet,
And love its Galilee.

The healing of His seamless dress
Is by our beds of pain.
We touch Him in life's throng and press,
And we are whole again.

Through Him the first fond prayers are said
Our lips of childhood frame.
The last low whispers of our dead
Are burdened with His name.

O Lord and Master of us all!
Whate'er our name or sign,
We own Thy sway, we hear Thy call,
We test our lives by Thine.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

WIDESPREAD REVIVAL.

Buoyancy of Feeling Appears Among Buyers and Sellers.

More Business Activity Than For Many Years.

All Lines Feel the Upward Impetus and Merchants Are Encouraged.

New York, Aug. 14.—Bradstreet's says: Evidences of widespread revival in demand for merchandise and other products have become so numerous as to compel general recognition. The press has, therefore, ceased discussing whether trade has really improved or not, and have begun measuring the volume of business compared with preceding periods.

A buoyancy of feeling has appeared among buyers and sellers at New York Baltimore, Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City, where interior merchants have thronged this week, the like of which has not been seen for several years. Interior merchants are buying dry goods, clothing, shoes, groceries and fancy articles far more freely than at any time since 1892. Crop conditions have improved in the South and Southwest, and merchants there are greatly encouraged. Southern lumber mills are not able to keep up with their orders, and innumerable small consumers of iron and steel throughout the Central and Western states are buying raw material as they have not for many years.

A nominal advance of 75 cents a ton on steel billets is more than a feature, as it means a confidence of makers in an early revival of the demand for iron and steel which has been so long delayed.

Wheat scores an advance of 7 cents on continued heavy exports and a tendency to decrease estimates of the size of the domestic crop. Wool is higher on speculative holding, and cotton yarns have advanced again. Hides and Southern lumber are up, as are wheat and flour, Indian corn and oats, and last, but not least, print cloths, the market for which has been so long depressed. Prices for sugar, lard, coffee and petroleum remain unchanged, while pork is almost the only important product quoted lower than last week.

Total bank crearings throughout the United States continue to register a steadily increasing volume of trade. They amount to $1,153,000,000 this week, an increase of about 9 per cent over last, 35 per cent over the second week in August, 1896, 29 per cent more than the like week of 1895, when there was a moderate expansion of business; 46 per cent more than the corresponding week of 1894, when the total volume of business was of small proportions, and 44 per cent more than in 1893. The week's increase compared with the total in the second week in August, 1892, the year before the panic, is about 15 per cent.

Gross railway earnings for July prove that the corner has been turned in the transportation business, and that a prosperous year for the railways of the country has begun. The one unfavorable feature, the soft coal strike, has not exerted its anticipated unfavorable influence, but its settlement would remove a serious check to business in the Central West.

There are 214 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, compared with 214 last week, 258 in the second week of August, 1896; 195 in the like period in 1895, 234 in 1894, and 209 in the like week of 1893.

Exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States and from Montreal this week aggregate 4,460,519 bushels, an increase over last week of more than 1,100,000 bushels, and compared with the shipments in the week a year ago of 2,635,000 bushels, 1,824,000 bushels in 1895, of 2,979,00 bushels in 1894, and of 6,129,000 bushels in 1893. The world wide character of the demand for our wheat and flour is illustrated by the export from both coasts of this country to such far off and infrequent customers as Rio de Janeiro in Brazil, Callao in Peru, and Surabaya in the island of Java, not to mention heavily increased shipments to Europe, China and the east. Total exports of Indian corn this week aggregate 3,275,652 bushels, against 3,223,000 bushels last week, 2,367,000 bushels in the week a year ago, 944,000 bushels in 1895, 166,000 in 1894, and 1,734,000 bushels in 1893.

Married Without Parents' Consent.

Indianapoli, Aug. 14.—Great surprise followed the announcement here tha Miss Adelaide Fairbanks, only daughter of United States Senator Fairbanks, had been quietly married to Dr. Horace E. Allen, Jr., proprietor of the National Surgical institute. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Ballard, pastor of the Memorial Presbyterian church, and the only witnesses were two elderly couples, long time friends of the Fairbanks family. The senator and Mrs. Fairbanks are out of the city, and, it is said, did not sanction the union. Dr. Allen is a graduate of Yale.

Voyage Down Grand River.

Glenwood Springs, Colo., Aug. 14.—Drs. Miller and Babcock started yesterday in a rowboat on a voyage down the Grand river to the Grand canon of the Colorado in Utah. The doctors are expert oarsmen and are confident of success in their undertaking in spite of the failure of many similar attempts, some of which resulted in the death of the boatmen.

Bloody Fight May Ensue.

Middlesboro, Ky., Aug. 14.—William Miller, the only eye witness to the shooting by Dugan, now on trial for the murder of Colson, was killed in a fight with the people of Clark's show. The latter have fled to the mountains and Miller's friends are in pursuit. A bloody time may ensue if they meet.

Outbreak In Spanish Prison.

Madrid, Aug. 14.—According to an official dispatch from Manilla, Philippine islands, a serious revolt and outbreak have taken place at the military prison at Papamga. In the efforts to restore order two Spanish soldiers were killed and 73 insurgents. Many were wounded on both sides.

CANNOT BE EXCLUDED.

Exiled Spanish Anarchist Leaders Are Coming to This Country.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Commissioner Powderly of the immigration bureau has sent the following letter of instructions to immigration officials at New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Quebec, relative to the anticipated arrival in this country of Spanish anarchists:

Information has reached this office that one Planas, a leader of the Spanish anarchists, has been expelled from France, being conducted to Harve, from which place it is expected he will sail to the United States. I am also advised that Tarrida Marmol, another Spanish anarchist, is believed to have gone to England and probably is en route to this country. 'A careful inspection should be made of arriving passengers in order that should any of this class be detected a careful examination can be had as to their right of admission into the United States under existing laws.

It is stated at the bureau of immigration that there is no law under which persons can be excluded on the ground that they are anarchists, nor is anarchy anywhere declared to be a crime, so that if Planas and Marmol are refused admission to this country, the refusal must be based solely upon the fact that they come within the general immigration law as to paupers, contract laborers, criminals, etc. This law expressly provides, however, that "nothing in this act shall be construed to apply to or exclude persons convicted of a political offense, notwithstanding said political offense may be designated as a felony, crime, infamous crime or misdemeanor, involving moral turpitude, by the law of the land whence he came."

Physicians Puzzled.

New York, Aug. 14.—The physicians at Bellevue hospital are perplexed over the death of Mrs. Mathilda Barten or Burke, the wife of a traveling man, at the institution last night. They have been unable to determine whether the woman, who wa squite handsome, was suffering from poison or hysteria. Mrs. Barten or Burke, with a Miss Noble, accompanied by "a wealthy and prominent club man," whose name is not known to the police, went to the Colonial cafe for lunch. While dining the conversation turned to the subject of death, and then Mrs. Barten is said to have remarked: "I'd just as soon die as live." At the same time she pulled out of her pocket a package of sulphate of zinc, saying it is "a good thing to have." Soon after the woman became unconscious and later on quite hysterical. She was then sent to Bellevue hospital for treatment, dying later in the night. The coroner will attempt to determine the cause of the woman's death by making an autopsy. The woman was about 23 years of age.

General Weyler Resigns.

New York, Aug. 14.—A dispatch to The Herald says: Havana, via Key West.—I have learned on what seems to be the best authority that Captain General Weyler has sent his resignation to Madrid. This report is generally believed to be true. There is no doubt that the resignation of General Weyler is due to the assassination of Senor Canovas del Castillo, the premier of Spain, through whose personal wishes Captain General Weyler was retained in Cuba. The report of General Weyler's resignation is a cause for satisfaction among Cuban sympathizers and reconcentrados, who in the event of another chief of the loyal Spanish troops in Cuba see only relief from the policy of concentration, which has resulted in such suffering to the pacificos in Cuba.

Chinese Smuggled In.

Buffalo, Aug. 14.—Emory P. Close, United States district attorney, has discovered a wholesale Chinese evasion conspiracy and startling developments are about to be made. Mr. Close recently visited Watertown, Malone and Plattsburg, and claims that Chinamen for the United States at those points are at once arrested by a friendly lawyer. Agents in New York are notified and witnesses are sent from New York to swear that the arrested Mongolians were born in San Francisco, and they are released. Mr. Close states that since January last about 90 Chinamen have crossed the upper border of New York in that way, and that he is informed that almost 500 have come into this country through Vermont in the last year or two.

Trolley Car Jumped Track.

Middletown, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Twenty-one people had a miraculous escape yesterday afternoon. A trolley car jumped the track and plunged into a ditch filled with water. Those most seriously injured were: Mrs. Tmohas Colontin of Goshen and Mrs. George Sinsabaugh of this city. The accident happened at a point where the cars run swiftly. The passengers were all thrown violently into the water or against the bank. Motorman Mold was thrown over the controller into a barb wire fence. Conductor Benton was pitched from the rear platform through a window into the car. Nine women and two children on the car were more or less bruised.

Miss Payne's Body Recoverer.

New York, Aug. 14.—The body of Miss Grace Payne, who was drowned off Stone's Point in Shinnecock bay Thursday afternoon while she was bathing with her twin sister, was recovered yesterday. The body was found a considerable distance from where the girl sank when she started to swim a race with her sister from the boat which they obtained on the shore. Their parents, who were wealthy residents of Springfield, Mass., are dead.

The Grand Circuit.

Fort Wayne, Aug. 14.—The seventh annual meeting of the Fort Wayne Driving club ended yesterday with an exceptionally large attendance. The meeting has been successful in every way. Lanark won the 2:30 race and Pat Watson the 2:20 in three straight heats.

Old America at Bar Harbor.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 14.—The famous original cup defender, "America," arrived here yesterday, with Oakes Ames and Butler Ames, the grandsons of the original owner, General Butler, on board. The party will remain here about 10 days.

A BURGLAR STORY.

BY E. L. WEDERKIND.

It was evening in a quiet village not a hundred miles from Boston. Six frolicsome children, aged from three to thirteen years, might be seen clustering around a pleasant looking young man whom we should imagine had seen about twenty-two summers.

Cousin Harry was a general favorite with the children. His home being so far away that he could not make it convenient to leave the city for a long time, he could whenever he had a short vacation like the present manage to spend it at the pleasant home of his aunt, where he was always warmly greeted, particularly by the young folks.

"Pleathe tell uth a thstory," lisped little Elsie, a flaxen curled, bright eyed fairy, the youngest of the group.

"Did I ever tell you of my adventure with burglars?"

"Your adventure with burglars! Why, no, indeed, Cousin Harry! Did you ever have an adventure with burglars?"

"You shall hear and then judge for yourselves if I didn't have a narrow escape though."

"I hope they didn't try to kill you, Cousin Harry. Wouldn't it have been dreadful?"

"Hattie, you and Willie can remember the village of Lebanon, where my home is. You were there with your father about three years ago, just before I went to the city to live. There was a large brown store on the corner where the three roads met"—

"Where you stopped and bought the raisins and crackers the day we went up the mountain, do you mean?"

"Yes, and it was there, while serving my apprenticeship as a clerk, that the adventure occurred of which I am going to tell you.

"It was a pleasant evening the latter part of summer. I had been sitting for some time in a comfortable position on the 'stoop,' or portico, in front of the store, in an armchair, with my feet on a dry goods box, watching the farmers' teams which drove lazily past, or perhaps an occasional carriage, containing some wealthy and gayly attired ladies and gentlemen, rolling by on its way back to The Springs, whither the fashionable nabobs were returning after their afternoon ride.

"When it grew dark, I lighted the large kerosene lamps, and again sat

"WHO'S THERE, I SAY? SPEAK, OR I'LL FIRE!"

down. Finally Mr. G., one of the gentlemen who owned the store, suggested that it be closed for the evening at an earlier hour than usual, as business was so very dull.

"So I closed and barred the solid wooden blinds which secured the windows and put up the heavy shutters that barricaded the door, and when the two or three stragglers had taken the hint and gone home I locked myself in, as I had my hammock in the store, and usually slept there to guard it.

"It was not long before I was sound asleep. How long I had slept I did not know, but I was awakened by a noise which sounded like a man boring with a large auger in the heavy shutters in front of the door. I listened—bore, bore, bore, with an occasional heavy thump, was all I could hear, except the quickened throbbing of my heart as I thought of my perilous position. Making as little noise as possible, I hastily drew on a part of my clothing, and then sat down a moment for consideration. Bore, bore, thump; bore, bore, thump—still it kept going. 'It cannot take them long to bore out the lock,' I thought, 'and then they will be upon me.'

"The recollections of a robbery which had recently been committed in the neighborhood flashed vividly through my mind. An old miser by the name of Adams, who lived with his wife in an old house in a lonely situation, had recently been attacked in the dead of night (just my situation, I thought,) by robbers, who entered stealthily by the kitchen windows and bursting suddenly into his bedroom seized and bound himself and his wife before he could get hold of a loaded revolver which he kept under his pillow to defend himself. The house was then ransacked, and the robbers carried off about six hundred dollars in money, besides other valuables. Of course the remembrance of this did not serve at all to alleviate my own fears in my situation, but I knew it to be my duty to defend the store, and I resolved to do my best. So, seizing an old saber, the only weapon that I could command, I marched boldly toward the door, and in a voice gruff and hoarse with excitement I demanded, 'Who's there?' It was silent for a moment and then bore, bore, thump, bore, bore, went on again, louder than ever. I cautiously stepped to one side, lest an unwished for pistol ball might come through the door in uncomfortable proximity to me, and again I demanded, still louder and hoarser: 'Who's there, I say? Speak, or I'll fire!' I hadn't anything to fire but the old saber, but the boring and thumping continued, when suddenly a ray of light flashed into my mind, and, seizing the key, I quickly unlocked the door, and then, hastily unbolting the ponderous shutters, I slammed them down upon the 'stoop' with a crash that echoed far among the hills in the dead silence of the early morning, and in the slight dawn—for it was yet quite dark—I could distinguish the hastily retreating forms of three—cows, who proved to have been my disturbers. Seizing a cudgel which happened to lay close by, I immediately gave chase, resolving to repay the unconscious intruders for thus unceremoniously disturbing my repose and causing me so much unnecessary fear."

"Oh, I'm so glad, Cousin Harry, that there were no robbers after all! But how could the cows bore into the shutters or make the noise you describe?"

"I will tell you. Just outside of the door stood two or three old barrels which had contained salt mackerel, and in the bottom of them was a little salt, which the cows were trying to get, and the noise which they made by licking the rough insides of the barrels sounded exactly like boring, and moving the barrels about and thumping them against the side of the store caused the pounding noise which I imagined the robbers were making. So now, children, you must profit by my experience and never be frightened unless you are sure there is some cause of danger."

A Hint For Campers.

One season when I was camping on Lake Winnepesaukee, New Hampshire, night found us in a wild cove, surrounded by dank swamps and morasses and consequently infested with mosquitoes. We disliked the place, but the night was dark, we were on a strange shore, and reluctantly we pitched our tent. It proved just as we expected. The little pests swarmed upon us in clouds. Sleep was impossible, and we devoted the first hours of the evening to fighting our small enemies. We smoked cigars and pipes until we could scarcely breathe in the stifling air. This they seemed to like and buzzed all the more merrily for it. We scented ourselves and the bedding with essence of peppermint, with spearmint and carbolic acid, which pleased them so well that the myriads inside the tent called upon other myriads outside to come in and enjoy it. The situation was getting desperate, but at last I thought of one more expedient, which had been recommended, but which I had forgotten. I searched through my stores and brought out a piece of gum camphor. Taking a piece about the size of a walnut I placed it on a tin plate and set fire to it. It burned as readily as pitch, with a bright, clear flame and apparently no smoke, and it acted like a charm. In two minutes the noisy hum of the mosquitoes had ceased; in five minutes not one of our winged persecutors remained within the walls of our tent. Then, making everything comfortable and carefully covering our one window with mosquito netting, we went to sleep and slept the sleep of the just, with never a bite or a hum from our odious foes for the rest of the night.

A Little Girl's Victory.

A coal cart was delivering an order in Clinton place the other day, and the horse made two or three great efforts to back the heavily loaded cart to the spot desired, and then became obstinate. The driver began to beat the animal, and this quickly collected a crowd. He was a big fellow, with a fierce look in his eye, and the onlookers were chary about interfering, knowing what would follow. "I pity the horse, but I don't want to get into a row," remarked one.

"I am satisfied that I could do him up with the gloves on, but he wouldn't fight that way," added a second.

"I'm not in the least afraid to tackle him," put in a young man with a long neck, "but about the time I got him down along would come a policeman and arrest us both."

The driver was beating the horse, and nothing was being done about it when a little girl about 8 years old approached and said:

"Please, mister."

"Well, what yer want?"

"If you'll only stop, I'll get all the children around here, and we'll carry every bit of the coal to the manhole and let you rest while we're doing it."

The man stood up and looked around in a defiant way, but, meeting with only pleasant looks, he began to give in, and after a moment he smiled and said:

"Mebbe he didn't deserve it, but I'm out of sorts today. There goes the whip, and perhaps a lift on the wheels will help him."

The crowd swarmed around the cart, a hundred hands helped to push, and the old horse had the cart to the spot with one effort.

The Tragedy of the Horse.

In every highway and by-way of the civilized world, standing at every corner, tramping with weary feet on every road, sweating with heavy loads on every hill, shivering in every blizzard, broiling under every sun, continually stands, and walks, and runs, the one object better fitted than any other to illustrate the perfection of injustice and the depravity of Man.

In order to calculate the value of the Horse, it is necessary only to imagine that animal removed forever from Man's service; in order to estimate the reward received for this service, one needs but to observe the treatment it habitually endures.

Note the constitution and general make-up of this creature, which fills such an important place in the affairs of Man: a fine and delicately organized nervous system; a temperament naturally spirited and sportive, till crushed by a cruel slavery into stolidity; a sensitive ear, an intelligent and speaking eye; and, above all, a great capacity for fidelity and affection, backed by a patience and endurance well-nigh incredible. Such is the animal formed by Nature to enjoy, like Man, this world, but which Man has transformed into a personification of slavery.

Our friend Billy came into the world on a Massachusetts farm, owned by a well-to-do Yankee, naturally humane and careful of the welfare of his dependants. Billy was brought up, so to speak, in clover, petted and loved by the girls, never abused by the boys. His life was a happy one. He knew all his friends as well as they knew each other, and was looked upon as a member of the family.

Time passed, and our friend Brown, Billy's owner, moved into a distant State. It was not convenient to take Billy with them, so he was sold; and his old master was made to understand that Billy's future lot would be a comfortable one. The girls cried as they patted good-bye the faithful animal which for seven years had been their willing servant and pet, and the voice of Brown, himself, trembled as he stroked for the last time Billy's honest nose, and wished him good luck in his future. At all of this, Billy's new owner, standing by, smiled; but his smile was in the nature of a grin.

There was a great change now in Billy's life. His food was of a poorer quality, and there was not so much of it, although he was not starved; and, although he was not beaten much, yet his present owner and the help on the place, with voices like the buzz of a saw-mill, yelled at him and yanked him about, to his, at first, great astonishment and fear. He often went thirsty, and his coat was allowed to get so dirty and grimed that you would not have known him. He often thought of the old, happy days, and bitterly realized the difference, although he could not express it in our language.

Two or three years passed, and Billy, through over-work and lack of care, acquired a disease of the chest, which largely diminished his usefulness; so he was sold again,—this time to a dealer, who sold him to a Boston herdic driver. From this time, Billy went down hill rapidly. You might have seen him, at times, plodding along as fast as his old legs could carry him, late at night or into the early morning, with the lash of the driver playing about his sides; or on some bitterly cold night you could have seen him standing on Washington street near the theatres, a little, narrow, threadbare blanket on his back, with the same patient old face, but with a look of the eye in which there was no hope. Billy, even then, had memories of the halcyon days, but now his old friends would not have known him.

Becoming finally so decrepid that even the herdic driver had no further use for him, Billy fell into the hands of a Hungarian fruit peddler, who drove and beat him about the streets of the North End. There was a blanket on him all the time now, but it was to hide the terrible condition of his frame from the Humane Society.

At last, one day, as he was struggling along with his accustomed load, and his owner was wondering whether he would be able to get another week's work out of him, a stranger stepped up and inquired of the peddler whether he wished to sell the animal. A bargain was soon struck, and a dollar and a half was the price agreed upon. It seems that, at a certain veterinary school, a class of future surgeons were to be enlightened regarding various operations on the living animal, and some beast of no especial value, otherwise, was wanted as a subject of experiment. This was Billy's end.

We have described his past experiences to some extent,—but we will not describe this. We know, however, that our old friend was rewarded for his years of slavery and abuse with a slow death of hours of agony. Suffice it to say that, in comparison with the sufferings inflicted upon this old servant of man at the cunning hands of modern "Science," all which he had endured in the past, seemed as nothing.

And so the patient life went out, as multitudes of others have gone, and are still going out, in these "Scientific" Inquisitions of the civilized world. And so deeds like this are committed, daily and hourly, in the centres of "Civilization,"—committed, permitted and sanctioned, by those calling themselves "Children of God!"

INDIVIDUAL WEALTH.

Massachusetts Leads With Bank Holdings.

James H. Eckels, comptroller of the currency, has prepared a valuable table of information relating to the national banking system of the United States from 1864 to 1897. One of the important features of the report is a statement of the average per capita holdings of bank funds in 1896 in all the states and territories of the Union. This statement shows that Massachusetts leads all the states, with an average of $120.50 for every person within its borders, while Rhode Island is next, with $117.21. The average for New York is $86.18. The average for the United States is $73.14.

Here are the averages by states: Maine, $45.88; New Hampshire, $41.85; Vermont, $53.34; Massachusetts, $120.50; Rhode Island, $117.21; New York, $86.18; New Jersey, $43.12; Pennsylvania, $60.61; Delaware, $42.68; Maryland, $53.56; District of Columbia, $65.49; Virginia, $12.37; West Virginia, $13.70; North Carolina, $4.92; South Carolina, $5.35; Georgia, $6.12; Florida, $12.73; Alabama, $6.25; Mississippi, $2.56; Louisiana, $18.24; Texas, $22.15; Arkansas, $2.72; Kentucky, $16.54; Tennessee, $13.56; Ohio, $40; Indiana, $22.26; Illinois, $39.50; Michigan, $22.56; Wisconsin, $25.37; Iowa, $20.48; Minnesota, $29.88; Missouri, $19.37; Kansas, $20.12; Nebraska, $20.20; North Dakota, $20.44; South Dakota, $11.31; Washington, $22.92; Oregon, $33.16; California, $19.17; Montana, $86.79; Idaho, $21.33; Wyoming, $30.41; Nevada, $5.40; Utah, $20.08; Colorado, $56.30; Arizona, $19.27; New Mexico, $15.61; Oklahoma, $5.24; Indian Territory, $5.95; Connecticut, $80.31.

The deposits fluctuated, as did loans and discounts, the maximum being reached in 1892, when they amounted to $1,779,300,000. In the following year deposits declined to $1,465,400,000 and reacted the following year to $1,742,100,000. The circulation outstanding in 1866 reached $290,000,000, and the highest point was reached in 1873, the amount being $341,000,000. The minimum amount outstanding is shown to have been $122,900,000 in 1890. At the close of 1896 the amount had risen to $209,900,000.—New York Herald.

Number of Newspapers Published.

A recent statistical estimate places the number of newspapers which are annually printed at the enormous figure of 12,000,000,000. A mathematician, apparently with considerable time at his disposal, in order to give a more comprehensive idea of this number, has calculated that a surface of 30,000 square kilometers could be covered with these papers. The paper alone weighs 781,240 tons. In case one machine was forced to print these millions at the rate of one a second 333 years would be necessary. Placed one upon another the papers would reach to the height of 80,000 meters. Assuming that a person devotes five minues a day to reading his paper, the time used by the entire population of the world in reading newspapers each year amounts to 100,000 years.—New York Tribune.

The Country's Population, 77,000,068.

The latest official estimate of the population of the United States is 77,000,068.

This was made recently by the actuary of the treasury, an officer whose duty it is, at fixed intervals, to report on the per capita circulation of money in the United States. He estimates that the present holdings of money are $22.53 for every man, woman and child in the United States.

His estimate of the population is made by the use of the census reports for the preceding decade. Certain fixed rules of increase by birth and immigration and provision for deaths and other losses are made, and the resulting estimate is accepted as official.

Proof Against Snake Poison.

Recent experiments have proved that animals may be rendered artificially immune from snake poison. Large animals destined to produce antivenomous serum are injected from the outset with gradually increasing quantities of the venom of the cobra mixed with diminishing quantities of 1 to 60 solution of hypochlorite of lime. When an animal has acquired a sufficient immunity, the venoms from a large number of different species of snakes are injected. The treatment must last at least 15 months before the serum is sufficiently active to be used for the purpose of treatment. A large number of animals have been vaccinated by this method at the Pasteur institute at Lille during the past three years.

Castle Square Theatre.

The selection made by Director Tony Cummings as the attraction for the coming week is the military comedy drama in four acts "A Fair Rebel" which has already been seen in this city and has proved a popular dramatic success. The story of the play is founded upon an incident in the war of the rebellion; the escape of Col. Rose of the Union Army and over one hundred other Union officers from Libby parison. The first and last acts are located at Monteith mannor-house in southwestern Virginia in '64 and '65 and the other two in and about Libby prison, Richmond. The following parts are taken by all the company favorites: Col. Ezra Mason, 1st U. S. army; Major James Stillman, surgeon U. S. army; Capt. le Vicomte Savarie de Perrin of the French army; Major Watkins, U. S. Military Telegraph Corps; Captain Harding, Union officer in Libby prison; Will Bronson, confederate trooper; Nelse, an old house servant; 1st Bummer, U. S. A.; 2d Bummer, U. S. A.; Trooper, U. S. A.; Sentry, C. S. A.; Clairette Monteith, a fair rebel; Joan Fitzhugh, Capt. Johnnie; Miss Maragaret Wyeth, Aunt Margie. Following "A Fair Rebel" there will be made a revival of Hamilton Aide's comedy "Doctor Bill" on Monday, August 23d.

—There were 1492 buildings of a valuation of $14,500,000 erected in Philadelphia during the first six months of the present year. And yet there are those who like to speak of Philadelphia as a "slow" town.

—The Boston Pneumatic Transit Company will begin about Sept. 1, the construction of the pneumatic tube system whereby the United States mail in Boston will be transmitted underground from one part of the city to the other, and merchandise dispatched in large bundles at rail road speed. It is expected that the system will be put in operation between the Post Office and the Northern Union Station before the end of this year.

MORE THAN SKIN DEEP

Scratches Did Not Satisfy Honor of Orleans and Turin.

Frenchman Quite Seriously Wounded In Abdomen.

Italian Noble Upheld His Country's Reputation With Trusty Sword.

Paris, Aug. 16.—Prince Henri of Orleans met Victor Emanuel, the Count of Turin, yesterday morning, in the Bois de Marechaux, at Vancressan, and victory lay with the Italian.

It was the most notable duel that has occurred in this half of the century, involving two notable personages of royal blood, and to the credit of both be it said the fight was hotly and fairly contested.

There were five assaults, and in the first the Italian scored, striking his opponent on the right breast, but the skin was hardly broken and all were eager to continue. In the third assault the prince made things even by reaching the count's right hand, inflicting another wound that was deemed trifling, but in the fifth and last assault the duel came to an end, gloriously in the opinion of clubmen, by the Count of Turin wounding the prince on the right side of the lower region of the abdomen.

Both men, after shaking hands, walked off the field, neither appearing to suffer from the wounds inflicted.

DUKE OF ORLEANS.

The condition of Prince Henri is as satisfactory as could be expected. The doctors, after consultation, express the opinion that no important organ was touched, but absolute rest is necessary for recovery.

The official account furnished by the seconds recites fully the circumstances leading up to the encounter.

The Count of Turin, considering the letters of Prince Henri of Orleans to The Figaro offensive to the Italian army, wrote him on July 6 demanding a retraction. This letter could not be answered until Aug. 11, the day of the arrival of Prince Henri in France. The prince replied to the count's demand by telegram, maintaining the right of a traveler to record his experiences.

The official account then describes the arrangements for the duel, gives the names of the respective seconds and says: At their first interview they agreed that the encounter was inevitable. By common accord the conditions were settled as follows:

The weapon to be the duelling sword; each combatant to use that of his own country, but the blades to be of equal length; either combatant being at liberty to maintain the ground he gains and each to be allowed the space of 15 meters within which to advance or retire; each assault to continue four minutes; the combat to be resumed in the positions occupied and only to be terminate on the decision of the four seconds or the advice of the doctor, when one of the adversaries is manifestly in a state of inferiority; the conduct of the meeting to be entrusted alternately to the two parties, lots being drawn at commencement.

This latter feature of the arrangement was due to the formal objection of the seconds of Prince Henri of Orleans to the direction of the encounter by a fifth party. At a later meeting the seconds decided upon the rendezvous.

The proces-verbal then proceeds to describe the encounter. It says that in the first assault Prince Henri was hit in the right breast, though the weapon did not penetrate beyond the subcutaneous cellular tissue. On the strength of the report of the doctors the seconds decided that the combat must go on.

The second assault was stopped, because the combatants came into close quarters.

In the third assault the Count of Turin was hit in the back of the right hand, but the weapon did not penetrate beyond the subcutaneous cellular tissue.

In the fourth assault the umpire, Major Leontieff, declared that the sword of Prince Henri was bent and stopped the engagement long enough to furnish his royal highness with a new weapon. In the fifth assault the combatants again got into close quarters and were immediately stopped, Prince Henri, in a counter blow, being hit in the right lower region of the abdomen. The doctors on both sides examined the wound and declared that Prince Henri was rendered by it clearly inferior to his antagonist. Major Leontieff and M. Mourichon proposed that the combat be stopped, and this was done by common accord. While his wound was being dressed, Prince Henri, raising himself upon the ground, extended his hand to the Count of Turin, saying, "Allow me, monseigneur, to shake hands with you." The count extended his hand.

The physicians present were Drs. Toupet and Hartmann on behalf of Prince Henri and Dr. Carle on behalf of the Count of Turin. This account of the fighting was signed by the seconds.

The details of the duel show that the encounter was very sharp and determined. Immediately on the crossing of swords Prince Henri vigorously pressed his adversary. The Count of Turin retreated to the limit of the ground, and then resuming the offensive touched his opponent. The third and fourth assaults ended in long engagements within guard. The Temps says that the wound in the abdomen of Prince Henri is serious, but not alarming. Had the Count of Turin's steel gone half a centimetre deeper the intestines would have been perforated.

The Count of Turin, accompanied by his seconds, left Paris for Italy yesterday afternoon. He was not experiencing any special distress from his wound.

The seconds of Prince Henri of Orleans were M. De Leontieff, governor general of the equatorial provinces of Abyssinia, and M. Raoul Mourichon. The Count of Turin's were General Count Avagadro Di Quinto and the Marquis Carlo Di Ginori.

Italians Exult.

Rome, Aug. 16.—The news of the result of the duel was received here with the greatest enthusiasm. Crowds filled the streets, cheering for the Count of Turin and the army and calling upon the bands in the public squares to play the royal hymn.

Many of the houses are decorated with flags in honor of the result, and all the newspapers issued special editions giving details of the encounter.

Extra guards have been mounted at the French embassy and consulate.

Congratulatory telegrams are showered upo nthe members of the royal family from all parts of Italy, and many have been received from abroad.

The general belief is that King Humbert must have acquiesced in the count's action. It is unlikely that any diplomatic complications will ensue.

Emperor William has telegraphed the count his warmest congratulations. At the principal cafes, champaign flows freely in toasts to the Count of Turin, whose popularity is boundless.

PRESIDENT WILL ATTEND.

More Than Usual Interest In Annual Reunion of Army of Potomac.

Troy, N. Y., Aug. 16.—The 28th annual meeting of the Army of the Potomac which will be held in this city Friday and Saturday is to be an event of more than usual importance, because of the presence of President McKinley, Vice President Hobart, Governor Frank S. Black and Lieutenant Governor Timothy L. Woodruff. The parade will be a grand demonstration. The list of organizations which will participate is remarkably large, and the showing of the troops will be excellent. It is probable that there will be more than 3000 men in line.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the decoration of the city, and the streets will present a brilliant appearance. The military division of the parade will be composed of 1800 national guardsmen.

The president's party will arrive in Troy from Bluff Point Friday morning, and the program arranged is as follows:

Friday morning meetings of the various army corps. At 3 p. m. the parade, and at 5 p. m. a business meeting will be held in the city hall. Public exercises will be held at Music hall in the evening, at which addresses of welcome will be delivered by Governor Black and Mayor Molloy and the president of the society will respond. An oration will be delivered by Major C. A. Woodruff, U. S. A., and a poem by Captain Rossiter W. Raymond, U. S. V., will be given. President McKinley will also be one of the speakers.

Died of Her Burns.

New York, Aug. 16.—Mrs. Elizabeth Callinor, otherwise known as Bessie Jackson, the soubrette, who was mysteriously burned on Saturday morning in a West Thirty-third street boarding house, died yesterday from her injuries at a hospital. Mrs. Mary Ann Patterson, the boarding house mistress, who was said to have thrown a lighted lamp at the young woman, was held for further examination by the magistrate at the Jefferson market police court. In her dying statement to Coroner Hoeber, Mrs. Callinor denied that Mrs. Patterson had caused her injuries, and intimated that she was accidentally set on fire by a cigaret. Mrs. Callinor came to this city from Boston four months ago.

AGAINST BACHELORS.

Scathing Letter on Unmarried Men by Charlotte Smith.

They Are Moral Weaklings and Unfit For Office.

Women Urged to Organize and Prevent Their Election In Future.

Boston, Aug. 16.—Mrs. Charlotte Smith, who has taken an active part in Women's Rescue league work in this and other cities, and in other works of social reform, and whose recent agitation against women riding bicycles has attracted widespread attention, has announced her opposition to bachelor politicians. She explains that her protest against bachelors running for public office has been taken so seriously and been so well endorsed that she will continue her work in that direction as a means of continuing her crusade against the social evil. Her first step in her new work in this city is in the form of letters as appended:

Boston, Aug. 16.

To the Chairmen of the Republican and Democratic City Committee:

Gentlemen—The Women's Rescue league wishes earnestly to protest to you and to the voters of this city against the renomination of Edwin U. Curtis and Josiah Quincy for mayor of Boston. There are many reasons why they should not be selected as the standard-bearers of your parties in the fall contest, which is to be entered upon in a very short time. Both Mr. Curtis and Mr. Quincy are bachelors, and the Women's Rescue league holds that no man can be a good, honorable and upright citizen and hold a position of public trust, conferred upon him by the honest citizens of Boston, who has not entered into the holy bonds of wedlock.

Bachelors have always been failures as chief magistrates and legislators in this and every other country for the reason that the morals of a city or country cannot be upheld except by one who is himself a benedict and fears all that is morally wrong.

Both your candidates are bachelors and bachelor politicians are narrow-minded, selfish, egotistical and cowardly.

David B. Hill of New York, who posed as the bachelor presidential candidate is a typical illustration of this class of men. He is morally selfish.

Therefore it is about time to organize anti-bachelor clubs in this state. It should be the purpose of every young woman to look up the record of every man who is looking for votes, and, should his moral character be such that would unfit him for office, then his shortcomings should be the point of attack by the anti-bachelor women of Massachusetts. There are 47,000 girls between the ages of 20 and 29 years in this state who cannot find husbands as there is that number less men.

As to the bachelor politicians, they do not dare discuss the social evil question. We have too many temporarily married politicians on the market.

In conclusion we hope that these two aspirants shall not be given the nominations through your efforts, but you should relegate them once more to private life where they belong, there to lose the name they glory in.

Respectfully,
Charlotte Smith.
President Women's Rescue League.

Small Cyclone at Athol.

Athol, Mass., Aug. 16.—A severe thunder storm, accompanied by heavy wind, struck Athol about 5 p. m. yesterday, damaging property and obstructing travel. The duration of the storm was very brief, but the wind was cyclonic in force. The outbuildings of D. F. Proctor, on the Orange road, were demolished, and a grove of large pines near his house levelled to the ground. The road leading to South Athol and Orange was rendered impassable by falling trees. In town several accidents resulted from horses being scared by falling branches. Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Derby, with a friend and little son, were driving through Main street when a limb, broken from a pine tree, struck their horse, rendering him unmanageable. The ladies jumped from the carriage, which was upset by the wind and the horse's actions. Mrs. Derby was rendered unconscious through fright, but none of the party sustained serious injuries.

Asleep In Burning Cottage.

Newburyport, Mass., Aug. 16.—The cottage owned by Eugene Brown and temporarily occupied by Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor of Groveland was burned last night and the occupants seriously injured. How the fire caught is not known, but it is presumed a lamp left burning exploded. Mrs. Taylor was rescued from the burning house by James Connelly and Robert McKay, who live across the street. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were asleep at the time the fire was seen by the neighbors. Mr. Taylor is burned around the face and neck and his hair singed off. Otherwise his burns are not extensive. Mrs. Taylor is hardly likely to live, as two-thirds of her body is burned over and she inhaled flames. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor came down yesterday morning to spend a short vacation

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

BEAUTIFUL CARPETINGS.

It's not within the power of mortals to command success, but the new '97 Fall Carpets will deserve it. The carpet man has fairly outdone himself,—the new effects are simply rich and beautiful. You never dreamed of having such a carpet store as ours in your midst, and it's only our equitable ideas of small margin profits for the most serviceable goods, that has brought it all about. "The best goods on earth at rock bottom prices;" so say the "Powers-that-be," in this store of the people. An inspection of new stock will convince you that we have the right sort of goods.

The Refractometer

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent oculists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.

I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.

F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.

I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.

JACOB GOLDBERG, M. D.

This is a very expensive instrument, but we consider nothing too good for our patrons, and have placed one in our optical room.

A Lively Week in Sports.

THE SCRUB RACE.

Twenty Yachts Start and Much Interest Shown.

The Quincy Yacht Club's second scrub race was sailed off the club house on Saturday afternoon. Eighteen yachts crossed the line when the starting gun was fired at 3.05 o'clock. There was a light wind from the south blowing at the time, (which finally fagged out to a calm,) which sent the boats bowling off at a good gait. On rounding Sheep Island bouy the fleet had to stem a strong ebb tide, and this in conjunction with a light head wind made slow work for the racing skippers.

The fight soon narrowed down to a contest between the Arbutus, Vexer and Princeps for first position. The Arbutus forged ahead and kept it to the finish. She won the first prize and the Vexer the second.

The first prize consisted of a solid silver olive bottle extractor and the second a briar wood pipe, silver mounted. Both were presented by Commodore Sanborn. Mr. Whiting acted as judge.

The next scrub race will be held on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 21, at 3.05 o'clock. All yachts in the scrub race are requested to give away or to keep out of the way of all yachts engaged in sailing the Association race.

Bicycle Accidents.

There were two quite serious bicycle accidents on Sunday. The first was about 8 o'clock in the morning on Washington street near the residence of the late Edward A. Spear. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Perkins and their two-year-old child were riding on a tandem on their way to Scituate. At this point the street was somewhat wet and they attempted to turn onto the railroad track. In doing so they struck the track sideways and in an instant there was a smash. All three were thrown violently to the ground and Mrs. Perkins and the child were quite badly used up. The wheel was also smashed. They were carried into the residence of Mrs. Spear and later to their home.

The second accident took place Sunday noon on Hancock street opposite the residence of Mr. Walter R. Fegan. A young man, whose name could not be learned, was riding along at a rapid rate, when the head of his machine broke and he was thrown violently to the ground. He received a bad cut on the chin and his face and body were otherwise bruised. Restoratives were applied and a little later he started toward Boston on the electrics.

Annual Lawn Party.

The second annual lawn party of St John's church will be held on the church grounds on Tuesday afternoon and evening. Sports will be held in the afternoon under the direction of Mr. George A Cahill. The prime attraction will be the ball game between the Tubular Rivet company nine and the East Weymouths. These teams will undoubtedly put up a good game, as the rivalry existing is quite keen. Mr. Williams, the jeweler, has presented a magnificent silver cup to be competed for in the 100-yard dash. In the evening the Hingham band will give a concert.

RACING FOR CUPS.

Another Yacht Has a Leg for Burgess Trophy—Baker Cup Won.

The third race for the Commodore F. Burgess prize cups was sailed Saturday afternoon off the Wollaston Yacht club house, foot of Beach street, Wollaston Park, over the seven mile course, in a light W. S. W. wind.

The starting gun was given at 2.30 P. M. The Clara Lou crossed the line at 2 30.16, followed by the Premier 10 seconds later. The Clara Lou won handily by 3 minutes 28 seconds. The Burgess and Magnolia two strong rivals of the Clara Lou and Premier were away on a cruise which robbed the race of its wonted interest.

The Burgess won the first race and the Clara Lou the second previous to this one, so the result Saturday gives the latter boat one leg for the first prize, two legs having to be won by a single boat to declare a winner.

In the fourth class for the other prize the gun was given at 2.35 the West Wind and the Dictator were the only boats to start, the latter getting across the line 24 seconds after the gun, the West Wind being but two seconds behind. They made a pretty race for the first four miles, when the West Wind began to leave her rival and won by 4 minutes and 56 seconds. This gives the West Wind one leg for the prize in this class, the same conditions governing this prize as in the other class.

In the race for the A. L. Baker silver cup prize for boats 13 feet and under, there was a sail-off between the Splash and Gypsy for second prize, each having won a leg previously. They started at 2 40, only three seconds apart. The Splash finished first by 2 minutes and 15 seconds, but the Gypsy was given the race because the Splash fouled the judges' boat at the start. This settled the A. L. Baker series, Mr. F. W. Green having won the first prize with his smart little yacht Marion.

Following is the summary:

Name and owner.	Length. ft. in.	Actual time. h.m.s.	Corr'ted time h.m.s
THIRD CLASS
Clara Lou, W. J. Coombs,	20 3	1 38 32	1 11 54
Premier, E. A. Hayden,	23 06	1 39 03	1 15 24
FOURTH CLASS.
West Wind, F. B. Robinson,	16 00	1 54 21	1 22 40
Dictator, A. L. Baker,	17 00	1 57 51	1 27 36
SPECIAL CLASS.
Splash, F. Waterhouse,		39 28
Gypsy, John Stuart,		41 43

The judges were: C. W. Page, Geo. W. Davis and T. C. Gram.

Democratic Delegates.

The basis of representation to the Democratic conventions this fall, has been fixed at one delegate-at-large for each city and town and each ward of a city, and one additional delegate for each 100 votes or majority fractional part thereof cast in the year 1896 for the electors for the Democratic candidate for President. The basis of representation will be the same for delegates to the councillor, county, senatorial and representative conventions.

Based on the votes for Messrs. Marshall and Kenny, the regular Democratic candidates for electors at large last year the number of Quincy delegates will be fourteen as follows:

	Voters.	Delegates.
At large,	682	1
Ward One,	72	2
Ward Two,	113	2
Ward Three,	151	3
Ward Four,	246	3
Ward Five,	39	1
Ward Six,	63	2

It is a singular fact that Wards Three and Four will have the same number of delegates, although the West Quincy ward cast nearly twice as many votes, but the fraction in Ward Three is just over a majority, and in Ward Four just under a majority. The vote of the Wollaston ward does not entitle her to any delegate, but each ward is given one; so Ward Five with 39 votes will have one delegate, while Ward Six with 63 votes, Ward One with 72 and Ward Two with 113 will have two each.

The democratic caucuses will be held in Quincy either Sept. 15 or 16, except for the choice of Representative delegates which will be on Oct. 5 or 6.

THE FIRST DEFEAT.

T. R. & S. Nine Excel at Bat and in Field but Lost on Muffs.

The Tubular Rivet base ball club was defeated on Saturday for the first time this season, although it made fewer errors and more base hits. Perhaps it was because they took a lead at the start instead of pulling out at the close. However, Cunniff was the cause of four runs for Winchester, dropping two easy flies. This is unusual for him, as he is a fine fielder. The features were the fielding of Dunn and Klase, and the catching of Murphy.

IT IS "QUINCY WEEK"

Al-Anka, Thordis, Nancy Hanks and Fanny D. Expected.

The success of the events of the Quincy Yacht club ensures the entry of a very large fleet of yachts in the open regatta off the club house on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. It is expected that the crack yacht Al-Anka will be back from New York and that she will make it hot for the Rooster, Omeme and Cleopatra.

Next week the fleet will go to Plymouth for the annual series of three races at Duxbury, Plymouth and Kingston.

A. E Schaaf's Privateer was in another open race on Saturday at Squam. In the other classes there were no Quincy yachts. The winners were, the Gossip, Vamoose, Circe, Tabasco, and Little Comrade.

The yachts with the best percentage in their classes in the Y. R. A. M. are: the Little Peter in the first with a dangerous rival in the Ida J. The Hoodlum in the second open; and the Privateer in the second cabin. The Rooster in the third, Vitesse in fourth and Cock Robin in knockabout.

The races for the Davenport cups under the auspices of the Duxbury club will be sailed Sept. 2, 3 and 4.

Hanley, the best known builder on Cape Cod, has decided to start a shop in Quincy, says the Herald. He has secured quarters at Quincy Point, formerly Maloney's yard, and will do a general boat business there. He will still continue the present shop at Buzzard's bay, and will probably do most of his building at that place. Since the work on the Strandway began there has been quite an exodus to Quincy Point, and it is probable that a large number of boats will be hauled out there at the various yards that have usually spent the winter at City Point.

Auctioneer Crane sold the Yacht Vision on Saturday afternoon to John H. Dinegan for $100.

Word has been received that Hanley will be around from Buzzard's Bay with one of his new creations the Thordis, for the Quincy races. She is a flyer. The Nancy Hanks is coming up from Kingston, and it is also expected that Melbourne McDowell will be here with the Fanny D.

The prizes for the winners of the Quincy Yacht Club's scrub will be presented to the lucky skippers by Commodore Sanborn at the club house on Friday evening.

Other Sports.

At the trap shooting match of the Dedham Sportsman's club on Saturday, Mr. Leverett made three clean scores.

The Winthrop yacht club will give a vaudeville performance on Aug. 27 and 28, which will take the place of the annual minstrel show.

The first prize in the road race at North Abington on Saturday was awarded to George A. Reed, and the second to J. V. Sawin, The first time prize was won by I. W. Lake and the second by George E. Rounds.

Council Business To ight.

There is apparently but little business to come before the meeting of the City Council tonight. The Committee on Streets will report on the petition of the Quincy & Boston street railway for a location on Quincy avenue, and the Committee on Licenses will report on a number of petitions for licenses. The Committee on Finance may report on the acceptance of Faxon road. A communication will be read from the School Committee on repairs of the High school. It is also probable that some order in relation to the street railway locations not already built upon will be offered. There may be a report on the Brook street extension, but the Council should carefully consider this order before making such a large expenditure.

Lawn Party.

The grounds surrounding the residence of Mr. Charles Coe of Atlantic, presented a very attractive appearance on Saturday evening. Miss Coe entertained her young friends in a happy manner by a "Cob-web party" on the lawn and all had a most jolly time. Japanese lanterns were hung from the trees and piazza and with the white dresses of the ladies made a brilliant picture. Refreshments were served, and after selections by the Alsulean quartette the party went to their homes in a very pleasant frame of mind.

Another Chance.

Work has not been resumed on the Copeland street section of the sewer as yet. It is understood that the Sewer Commissioners will give the contractors another opportunity to go on and complete the work according to the contract and if they do not do so the work will be completed under the direction of the Sewer Commissioners.

ANNUAL DINNER.

Granite Manufacturers of Quincy and Guests.

On Saturday at Hotel Standish at Nantasket Beach.

A Large and Happy Party Gather to Enjoy the Occasion.

Saturday was a lovely day and one of the largest and pleasantest gatherings that the Granite Manufacturers' Association has ever enjoyed assembled at the Standish House, Nantasket, to indulge in the nineteenth annual dinner.

Many of the members left this city at 9.30 on the street cars and had a most delightful ride. There was an excellent breeze and no dust, and the scenery along the route was very attractive. The numerous rains made the trees, the lawns, and the flowers so beautiful, that it was not only a pleasure, but a life-giving excursion.

Others came down later on the steam or electric cars, and some by steamboat from Boston.

When the hour came for the feast to be enjoyed, in the large, spacious dining hall at the Standish House, there were between 130 and 140 present; representing the solid business of Quincy, city officials, and other guests.

About one hour was spent in keeping the waiters busy in bringing forward the many excellent dishes served at this excellent hotel. Then came the speeches.

President James Thompson presided. He alluded to the depression that had borne heavily on the granite business for the past three years, but was confident that the members were soon to see better times. Business in many branches had already started; but the monumental granite business was one of the last to receive the revival that has commenced. A fine granite monument was a kind of luxury that many indulged in only when the times were good and money plenty. But the indications of prosperity are on every hand, and many are beginning to reap the fruits of their labor. The increase in duty on manufactured granite of about twenty-five per cent., provided in the Dingley bill, will be of great benefit to the granite business in New England; and we, members of this Association are deeply indebted to our townsman, Hon. John Shaw, for his ability and untiring zeal in securing this increase in the tariff. It gives me, in behalf of its members, great pleasure today to present to our distinguished guest these resolutions adopted by the Association.

At this point Mr. T. F. Burke, one of the tariff committee, removed a veil that covered the handsomely framed resolutions that hung on the wall back of the speaker's chair. They were most artistically engraved with a pen of a Boston artist, who spent many days on the work; and now for the first time presented to view. The work was most elegantly done and was a great surprise to Mr. Shaw and the members generally.

The distinguished guest most feelingly responded. The gift was a surprise to him, but it would be carefully cherished, and he heartily thanked the members of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers' Association for it. His labors had not been particularly for the granite industry alone, but for the good of the country generally. He believed and hoped all citizens would be benefited by the Dingley tariff; that was what he had labored for.

The resolutions have already been published in this paper.

At the close of Mr. Shaw's address President Thompson called on Mr. James F. Burke, Alexander Marnock, John W. McAnarney, Esq., Capt. T. H. Newcomb, Amos Churchill, C. L. Badger, Peter C. Fallon and others for short speeches, and an hour was most pleasantly spent.

Then the members left the tables for other enjoyments at this attractive sea-side resort, and it was dark before many returned to their homes, much pleased with the day's outing.

Keith's Theatre.

Asked for a candid opinion as to what was the most valuable act of its kind in the vaudeville today, nine managers out of ten would likely tell you that of the Sidmans in "A Bit of Real Life." Asked the reason why, it would be explained that it is absolutely without a rival, the cleanest and sweetest little comedy sketch that is presented on the stage. He is an ideal old countryman, is Arthur C. Sidman with his "make-up" on, perfect in attire, in actions and speech. Those of you who have not yet seen him should visit Keith's next week and see if it is no so. Mrs. Sidman is a pretty little housemaid, but the character is one that does not call for much ability. This will be the last opportunity of witnessing Mr. Sidman in the vaudeville, as he has engaged to go out with a company in September. Jessie Couthoui, the famous recitationist, is another star feature of the Keith programme, and also Gilbert and Goldie, conversational comedians, and Robetta and Dorretto, who do a "trick house" act that is absolutely the best ever shown on the stage.

THE OPENING.

Demonstrations All Along the Line to Squantum on Saturday.

The opening of the new street railway extension Saturday from Atlantic to Squantum marked the completion of another link in the street railway history of Quincy. One that in the near future is destined to become an important factor in the upbuilding of our city.

It was a few minutes past 2 o'clock when one of the fifteen-seat open cars left City Square for Squantum leading the procession of three cars.

In this car was Brown's Brigade band, the officers of the Street Railway Company, Councilman Packard, Chief of Police Hayden, a representative of the LEDGER and two policemen, Officers George A. McKay and George Cameron. There were also one or two gentlemen from out of town.

Arriving at the Atlantic depot Mr. N. V. Titus and others boarded the first car while the second was soon filled with youngsters. The third car was a special car and had been chartered by a party of fifty or more Atlantic ladies.

Ex-Councilman Harry W. Reed arrived on a train just as the start was about to be made from Atlantic, but although invited and urged to ride absolutely refused. Mrs. Carver however was noticed among the party of Atlantic ladies.

The band kept up an almost constant round of music during the trip. As the car reached Gurney's corner the bell on the Memorial church rang out its joyous greeting, and as the car entered Billings street a small cannon at the residence of ex-Councilman Roger H. Wilde boomed forth. There were also some decorations along the line and cheer after cheer was given during the trip.

Arriving at Squantum the band gave a concert during the afternoon and as regular trips between Atlantic were then established, crowds enjoyed the trolley ride during the afternoon and evening.

In the evening Brown's Brigade band was located on Squaw Rock, and the Weymouth band near the Myles Standish cairn, and some excellent music was given. The park was illuminated by numerous electric lights supplied by a current from the trolley wire, and there were fireworks, bonfires, etc., during the evening.

Most perfect order was kept throughout afternoon and evening and the police had but little to do other than to enjoy the fun with the others.

Everybody was more than pleased with Squantum and it was very evident that this spot will soon regain its former popularity.

On Sunday it was a popular trip for many and many who have heard much of Squantum, but have never been able to get there, will go through the week.

Asphyxiated.

The morning papers report that Harry D. Jones, aged 28, of South street, Quincy Point, was found dead Sunday in the bath room of his sister's house at 2902 Washington street, Roxbury, from asphyxiation.

Jones was a son of Reuben Jones, of 29 South street, and was a paving boss. He was but little in Quincy, traveling much about the country following his business.

He had been at work for some time in Keene, N. H., but came to Quincy on Saturday to visit his parents. That evening he went to see his sister in Roxbury and remained there over night.

He retired in the best of spirits about 10 o'clock and nothing was heard from him until the next morning when his dead body was found by his sister. The gas jet was turned on and the physician who called said he had been dead some hours.

His relatives think his death must have been accidental.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Miss Lillian Waterhouse of Atlantic is visiting friends in Saco, Maine.

Miss Louise Williams of Atlantic leaves on Tuesday for a visit at Princeton.

Miss Agnes McCormack of West Quincy is visiting her aunt at Milford, N. H.

Mr. G. O. Mezard has moved his family from Prospect street to Botolph street.

Mrs. Emma Follansbee Goodwin of Lexington is visiting here for a few weeks.

Miss Mary A. McDonough of Milford is visiting Mrs. Daniel Shea of Copeland street.

Miss Mamie Foley of Roxbury was the guest of Mrs. C. Callahan of Squantum, Sunday.

Miss Helen Saville of Brockton is the guest of her cousin Mrs. G. A. Cameron of Centre street.

Miss Laura Hall and Miss Corinna Wilde have returned from their visit to Marshfield.

A large moonlight party came to New Downer Landing Saturday evening and from rumor it was rather a tough crowd.

The Boston Transcript says the new street railway loop at Wollaston will not be a street railway ring. It probably knows.

The 18th Mass. Volunteer Association of which Col. W. B. White, formerly of this city is president, will hold its annual reunion Aug. 26th at Taunton.

It was amusing Sunday to see the number who did no heed the sign on Coddington street "Street closed, dangerous," but all driving had to retrace their steps.

Mr. H. A. Green and sister, Miss Helena A. Green, have returned from a two weeks' visit to Cape Cod and are spending a week with Mr. Green's sister, Mrs. George H. Garvin, at her cottage on the beach at Wollaston Park.

A party of several young ladies and gentlemen from Atlantic, spent Sunday at Squantum Head. They took lunches and had quite a spread under the old elm trees of historic Squantum. They returned home on the last car in the evening, fully satisfied with their day's outing at the beach.

The first holy communion was received by a large number of boys and girls in all the churches of the Quincy parish on Sunday. The candidates were present at the early mass, and the sacrament was administered by the curators of the different Sunday Schools: Rev. F. A. Cunningham at St. John's church, Rev. John P. Cuffe at St. Mary's, Rev. Julian E. Johnstone at the Sacred Heart, Atlantic, and St. Francis', South Braintree.

"THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD" OR OUR SAVIOUR IN ART"

Cost over $100,000 to publish. Contains nearly 200 full-page engravings of our Saviour, by the great masters. Every picture is reproduced from some famous painting. Agents are taking from three to twenty orders per day. The book is so beautiful that when people see it they want it. "FIRST GLANCE AT THE PICTURES BROUGHT TEARS TO MY EYES," says one. "Cleared $150 first week's work with the book," says another. "Some high grade man or woman of good church standing should secure the agency here at once," says every editor, "as $500 can soon be made taking orders for it." Also a man or woman of good social position can secure position of Manager of this territory, to devote all their time to employing and drilling agents and corresponding with them. NO MARCHING.

Striking Miners Are Awaiting Result of Injunction Hearing Today.

Pittsburg, Aug. 16.—A leadened sky and fitful showers contributed to the feeling of depression which existed at the miners' camps and Turtle and Plum Creeks yesterday. The men huddled together under the commissary tents and, having nothing else to do, put in the time smoking and discussing the strike in all its phases. The spirit of aggressiveness, however, has largely died out. The same grim determination to stick it out until starvation brings defeat or victory is apparent, but there are no propositions to attain their end by force or to go contrary to the sheriff's orders.

There was no marching yesterday. This has been the usual custom at all the camps of Sundays, but even if it had been otherwise the strict orders of the strike leaders would have prevented them. Sunday has usually been used by the men to do missionary work among the working miners. None of them attempted to see any of them, however, and kept severely away from the company houses.

The march into Westmoreland county will begin as soon as the injunction is settled in court. Much anxiety is expressed as to the outcome. The men stake everything on their ability to show the right to assemble and march on the public roads.

There was a large mass meeting at Plum Creek. About 1000 strikers and 20 miners from the Plum Creek mine were present. Speeches were made by President Ratchford, Samuel Gompers, James R. Sovereign and the local leaders. The meeting was orderly and there was no interference from the deputies.

Evictions from the company houses have begun. One family has already been evicted and their household goods are on the roadside near Centre. It is probable that more evictions will take place today.

SUNDAY WITH PRESIDENT.

Church In the Morning and Thunder Storm In the Afternoon.

Bluff Point, N. Y., Aug. 16.—President McKinley, Vice President and Mrs. Hobart, Mrs. Alger and Master Hobart comprised the presidential party which attended service at the Trinity Episcopal church yesterday.

After the service was over the president held back, evidently wishing to mingle with the congregation in going out of the church, but the people also remained standing in their pews, seemingly unwilling to precede the presidential party in going out of the church.

The president remained indoors after his return to the hotel. He was an interested observer of the great electrical storm which visited the Champlain valley in the afternoon.

The president and party will witness a dress parade of the Twenty-first infantry at the garrison today, when regimental colors, the gift of Vice President Hobart, will be presented by Garret A. Hobart, Jr.

On Wednesday evening a military ball in the president's honor will be given at Hotel Champlain.

Big Cotton Crop Assured.

New Orleans, Aug. 16.—H. M. McNeil, the well known cotton statistican, has issued a circular on the growing crop. After referring to the correctness of his estimates made in July, 1894, of the crop of the season, Mr. McNeil says: "At this moment for this year, the promise is equal to any previous year in every state but Texas, and on the present acreage, even allowing that Texas should fall short of her maximum production per acre by 1,000,000 bales the, cotton outlook is for a crop of at least 9,750,000, with 500,000 to 1,000,000 within the range of possibilities. This figure of 9,750,000 is really very conservative, for a product per acre outside of Texas equal to 1894-95 would give 7,350,000 bales, and a maximum for Texas would be 3,950,000 bales, from which, allowing 1,000,000 off, you would have a crop of 10,000,000 bales. The crop is now so far advanced from recent rains and heat that it will reach maturity and be independent of frost at an unusually early date, and should be soon have good rains in Texas, her crop also would be near perfection, and the possibilities for the total crop would then be something enormous."

Drowned at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, Aug. 16.—Two venturesome bathers were drowned in the surf here yesterday. They were Thomas C. Laswell, aged 21 years, of Princeton, Ind., and an unknown man supposed to be an excursionist from Philadelphia. Young Laswell came here yesterday on his first visit to the seashore. Laswell seemed to be unaware of the dangerous undertow and got beyond his depth. The life guards made a brave effort to save the drowning man, but the surf was so heavy that they were unable to reach him. Laswell struggled in the water for about 15 minutes in full view of about 10,000 people. The body afterwards came ashore. The second drowning occurred at about 3 o'clock, and the body had not come ashore up to a late hour last night. The surf was the heaviest of the season, owing to a gale which prevailed, and between 25 and 30 persons were rescued.

Mississippi Senator Dead.

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 16.—The remains of the late Senator James Z. George, who died at Mississippi City Saturday, reached this city yesterday and were met at the railroad station by an immense crowd. A line of march was formed and the remains conveyed to the rotunda of the capitol, where they lie in state under military guard. Immediately after the remains were placed on the flowery bier in the capitol the lid of the coffin was removed and a continuous throng of people passed in line to view for the last time the face of the dead senator. Today the remains of the late senator will be taken to Carrolton, Miss., for burial by the side of his wife, who died only a few weeks ago.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

HEAVY TAX ON MINERS

Dominion Cabinet Demands a Per Cent of Gold Dug In Klondyke.

Two Steamers Start With One Thousand Men

Canadian Mounted Police Will Make Forced March to the Yukon.

Ottawa, Aug. 16.—The Official Gazette, just issued, publishes new regulations for the Klondyke region, which have been formulated by the Dominion cabinet. They are in substance as follows:

"That upon all gold mined on the claims referred to in the regulation for the government of placer mining along the Yukon river and its tributaries a royalty of 10 per cent shall be levied and collected by officers to be appointed for the purpose, provided that the amount mined and taken from a single claim does not exceed $500 per week, and in case the amount mined and taken from any single claim exceeds $500 per week there shall be levied and collected a royalty of 10 per cent upon the amount so taken out, up to $500, and upon the excess or amount taken from any single claim over $500 per week there shall be levied and collected a royalty of 20 per cent, such royalty to form part of the consolidated revenue and to be accounted for by the officers who collect the same in due course.

"That the times and manner in which such royalty shall be collected and the persons who shall collect the same shall be provided for by regulations to be made by the gold commissioner, and that the gold commissioner be and is hereby given authority to make such regulations and rules accordingly.

"That default in payment of such royalty, if continued for 10 days after notice has been posted upon the claim in respect of which it is demanded, or in the vicinity of such claim, by the gold commissioner or his agent, shall be followed by the cancellation of the claim.

"That any attempt to defraud the crown by withholding any part of the revenue thus provided for by making false statements of the amount taken out may be punished by cancellation of the claim, in respect of which fraud or false statements have been committed or made; and that in respect of facts as to such fraud or false statement or non-payment of royalty, the decision of the gold commissioner shall be final."

The regulations governing the disposal of placer mining claims along the Yukon river and its tributaries are amended so that entry can only be granted for alternate claims, known as Creek claims, bench claims, bar diggings and dry diggings, and that the other alternate claims be reserved for the crown to be disposed of by public auction or in such manner as may be decided by the minister of the interior.

The penalty for trespassing upon a claim reserved for the crown is the immediate cancellation by the gold commissioner of any entry or entries which the person trespassing may have obtained, whether by original entry or purchase for a mining claim, and the refusal by the gold commissioner of the acceptance of any application which the person trespassing may at any time make for claims, and that in addition to such penalty the mounted police, upon a requisition from the gold commissioner to that effect, may take the necessary steps to eject the trespasser.

The clause in the former regulations providing that the discoverer of a new mine is entitled to claim and shall be granted a claim for "bar diggings," 750 feet in length, has been amended so that the grant may apply to creek and river claims, instead of to "bar diggings."

TWO STEAMERS START.

Another Thousand Prospectors En Route to Arctic Gold Fields.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 16.—No steamer ever carried from a Pacific coast a larger or more strangely assorted freight of men and their belongings than did the big 3000 ton collier Bristol, when she sailed, bound for Skaguay.

To say that every foot of accommodation was occupied is both hackneyed and inadequate. She was full up from the bottom of her lowest freight deck to the promenade deck. Men and horses and outfits were piled six tiers high, and hundreds of tons of cargo had been sifted in where space was found available. There were upwards of 500 men aboard with their horses and outfits to last for one or two years.

The Islander has just as big a crowd, but much of the space on her is taken up by a contingent of mounted police, their horses, dogs and outfits. They realize that they have a winter's trip before them before they reach Dawson City, and are taking dogs and sleighs.

The horses will be taken as far as possible, and, when they are of no more use, will be killed and used as food for the dogs. A few of the men are going up with the idea of purchasing cheap outfits from men who have become discouraged and are turning back, but most of them are well provided and all are taking pack animals, they having in this respect taken the advice of men who went before and have written of the great difficulty in securing animals or Indians to pack their supplies across the pass.

W. W. E. Canovan of Ottawa, who was a member of the Canadian boundary survey, in which capacity he learned much about Alaska, left on the Islander. Mr. Canovan is going to look over the ground for the Klondyke Placer, Mining and Prospecting company of Bradford, Paris and Ontario. This company will send out a large party in the spring to prospect and work claims in the Canadian Yukon.

Twelve-Pound Hammer Record Broken.

New York, Aug. 16.—Thomas Flannagan, a brother of James Flannagan, the champion hammer thrower, threw the 12-pound hammer 163 feet 4 inches at the Catholic club games at Baldwin park, Jersey City Heights, yesterday. The largest authentic throw of this missile previously made was 149 feet, at the class games of the University of Pennsylvania last spring.

Free Immigration Favored.

Boston, Aug. 16.—By a vote of 50 to 19, after a debate of more than two hours, the Central Labor union yesterday adopted a motion declaring "That the trade union movement of Boston is opposed to the further restriction of immigration." The Sosialist Labor party, through its delegater from the Cigarmakers' union, unsuccessfully attempted to induce the Central Labor union to endorse and support financially the political program of the socialists. Their resolutions were laid over until the next meeting.

Report of Maine Agricultural Board.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 16.—The 39th annual report of the secretary of the Maine board of agriculture, Hon. B. W. McKeen, is ready to send out. It contains 21 fine cuts of scenery, showing model farm surroundings, etc. Cuts are also given showing farm implements of most approved paterns. The report contains 600 pages. Practical road improvement is a feature, and the secretary has given much attention to the chemistry of meats and their cooking. The work of the Maine agriculture experiment station is embraced in 180 pages of interesting and instructive matter. The volume concludes with the detailed report of the work of the State Pomological society for the year ended. The report is one of the most comprehensive and instructive gotten out by the board.

Fair Week at Portland.

Portland, Me., Aug. 16.—The coming week promises to be one of the most memorable in the history of the city. The New England fair management and the citizens' committee have arranged a program which will make a gala occasion of each of the six days, beginning today. The indications are that there will be more strangers in the city than ever before in the same length of time. There is a notable list of entries for the horse races, while some of the best known cracks will compete in the bicycle contests. By no means the least attractive feature will be the North Atlantic squadron, which is to be in the harbor the entire week. Troop F of the United States cavalry will also claim much attention.

Girl Found Dead In Pasture.

Rutland, Vt., Aug. 16.—Dora K. Cushman, 15 years old, daughter of Dr. A. J. Cushman of Lincoln, a mountain town in Addison county, was found dead in a pasture near her father's house yesterday morning, and it is believed she was murdered. She left home ostensibly to pick blarkberries Saturday afternoon. Alarm was given at night, owing to the fact that she did not return. Parties searched for her all night, and her body was found by her brother yesterday morning. The body had no marks to indicate foul play, but there was blood on the leaves, and circumstances direct suspicion to Smith Davis, a young man who had paid her attentions. Davis has fled.

Graves' Record Gone.

Boston, Aug. 16.—After having stood the onslaught of record riders for over three years, the Boston-Springfield and return record, established in October, 1893, by Fred C. Graves, was forced to succumb to the inevitable yesterday. The record for the round trip was 17 hours 30 minutes 7 seconds, and the new mark established yesterday is 16 hours 59 minutes 9 seconds. Oris W. Smith, the crack road rider of the Chelsea Cycle club, was the man who accomplished this feat, although heavilly handicapped by the breaking down of all his tandem pacers, and being forced to travel a good portion of the distance unpaced.

Reed Mystery.

North Adams, Mass., Aug. 16.—There have been no new developments in the Reed murder case, and the conclusion that the officers are nonplussed is borne out by the fact that State Detectives Whitney and Hammond, who have been engaged upon the case for several weeks past, have left the city and will not return unless new evidence demands their presence. A bloody undershirt, carefully done up, was found in the woods about two miles from this city, near the Clarksburg road. The police do not believe that it has any bearing on the Reed mystery.

Sudden Death of Mrs. Tompkins.

Rockland, Me., Aug. 16.—Mrs. Gertrude Tompkins, wife of Eugene Tompkins of Boston, died very suddenly on heart failure yesterday aboard the steam yacht Illawarra, which arrived at this port Saturday night. Mrs. Tompkins had been in apparently good health until within a few days, but nothing serious was expected. She arose as usual and went to the cabin and laid down, and a few minutes later was found by her husband laying on the floor dead. The remains were taken to Boston last night by suecial train.

Killed by Train.

Norwich, Conn., Aug. 16.—Daniel J. Fox, aged 76, of this city, was struck and instantly killed by a train on the Central Vermont railroad about a mile south of here Saturday evening. It is supposed that he was walking on the track. He was thrown several feet, breaking his neck, his left shoulder, collar bone, right wrist and several ribs. He had been somewhat demented of late and wandered away from home frequently. He leaves a son and two daughters.

Nearly a Cyclone.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 16.—Two terrific thunder showers met here at noon yesterday, and the result was nearly a cyclone and a cloudburst. Two yachts at anchor in the harbor were swept from their anchorage out into the bay, and Captain Allen, in a small catboat, was blown ashore. It was quit a phenomenon, the wind blowing from the east and west at the same time.

Late Korean Minister Cremated.

Washington, Aug. 16.—The body of Pom Kwang Soh, the former Korean minister to this country, whose death occurred here last Friday, was yesterday cremated according to the expressed wish of the deceased, and his ashes placed in the keeping of the present minister, Chin Pom Ye. Later they may be returned to Korea. Yesterday afternoon the body was taken from the Fourteenth street residence, where it had lain in state, and conveyed to Lee's crematory on Pennsylvania avenue, followed by a long line of carriages containing personal friends and prominent members of the Blavatsky branch of the Theosophical society, of which Mr. Soh was a member. The brief and simple funeral services were conducted by George M. Coffin, president of the society.

A HANDLESS EDITOR.

Artificial Hands Serve Him as Well as Real Ones.

Alabama can boast of an editor of a daily newspaper who is minus both hands, yet writes practically all the copy that is printed in his paper.

The march of science and invention and the energy of William J. Blan, editor of the Troy (Ala.) Daily Messenger, have combined to produce this apparent phenomenon.

Mr. Blan served in the Confederate army and came through without a wound. But 12 years ago a Confederate veteran's reunion was held at Troy, and among other things the old ex-soldiers indulged in a sham battle. Mr. Blan was detailed to load and fire one of the cannons. During the mock battle the cannon exploded prematurely, and the heavy charge of powder and wadding blew both of his hands off—the left just above the wrist, the other several inches farther up the arm.

At this time Mr. Blan was owner of The Weekly Messenger, which he had bought in 1878 and had succeeded in putting on its feet by hard work. He had a large family of young children, and, like all other newspaper people in this part of the land, he had lived pretty well up to his income. He knew no line of business excepting newspaper work, and a man without either hand is ordinarily not very available about a newspaper office. He determined not to allow his usefulness to depart with the loss of his hands, however, and as soon as he had recovered sufficiently from his injuries to give the matter his attention he had made an artificial right hand and a half forearm.

It is a simple but ingenious contrivance. The artificial part of the arm is arranged so as to be securely fastened to the stump of the right arm left by the explosion. The hand, which is covered by a glove, appears perfectly natural in shape and holds a pen or pencil as gracefully as any editor's natural hand. A stranger seeing Mr. Blan at work at his desk would never imagine that the hand was not a real one, with blood circulating through it, so thoroughly has the editor got its operations under his control.

By means of a cord, which passes from his artificial arm up his right coat sleeve, then across his back, then down his left coat sleeve to the end of the remainder of his left arm, Mr. Blan is enabled to close the fingers of his artificial hand and grasp his pen. By keeping his left elbow bent the tension on the string is continued and the artificial fingers hold the pen tightly, while the editor controls its course over the white paper by a movement of the upper arm and shoulder. By this means Mr. Blan has learned to write with the greatest ease, and more rapidly and legibly than the average man of his age who has two good hands. For ten years he has written with this mechanical hand practically all of the editorials and a very large amount of the local and advertising matter that has gone into his paper. About six years ago Mr. Blan developed his weekly into a daily and has been successful beyond his expectations. The daily entailed more work, but the editor and the articial hand proved equal to the emergency.—Chicago Times-Herald.

None but Union Shoes May Tramp.

The Chicago Federation of Labor has just granted a somewhat remarkable request of the boot and shoe workers. The delegates from that union asked the adoption of a resolution precluding all but wearers of union label shoes from participation in the coming Labor day parade. When the entire seriousness of the request was realized, it was granted, and all wearers of nonunion shoes will be required by an appointed committee to fall out of line next Labor day. The affair has given rise to some talk as to the union label. The Eight Hour Herald (Labor), Chicago, says: "We hasten to congratulate the shoe workers on their newborn zeal in support of the union label. As we have remarked in these columns on numberless occasions, the union label is worthy of all the attention that workingmen can give it. It is a weapon which if properly used will work tremendous benefits to the cause of organized labor. It is more effective than the strike or the boycot. The shoe workers should see to it that the public is made familiar with the list of firms handling union made shoes, or at least that the list should be made accessible to all interested in the matter."—Public Opinion.

Where Women Are Supreme.

Miss Taylor, a young English woman who recently returned from Tibet and is now gathering missionary recruits for that mysterious country, says that men and women who understand medicine will be most successful in that field. The knowledge of drugs, she adds, among the natives is almost equal to that of the English themselves. The position of women, according to Miss Taylor, is higher in Tibet than in any other country of the orient, save perhaps Mongolia. In place of polygamy, so common among the Mohammedans, polyandry rules in Tibet, a woman being married as a rule to all the brothers of a family. In consequence of the nomadic character of the people, usually only one husband is at home at a time, the others being absent in more or less distant parts selling the products of their lands. Women in Tibet, Miss Taylor asserts, are never punished—a fact to which she attributes the saving of her life on several occasions.—New York Tribune.

An Even Thing.

My winter girl is far away
At Stonehurst-by-the-Sea.
In lace and gauze and ribbons gay
She thinks no more of me.
My winter girl, I'm much afraid,
Is some one else's summer maid.

And here upon the mountain side
I spend my summer days
And walk and flirt and chat and ride
Through wooded mountain ways,
For some one's winter girl, you see,
Is playing summer girl for me.

IT WAS AN EXCITING DAY.

A Victory for Strikers In Coal Region Yesterday—A Deputy Shot.

(Special to the Daily Ledger.)

Pittsburg, Aug. 17.—Many exciting incidents marked affairs in connection with the coal miners' strike yesterday. Two deputies quarreled at the De Armitt mine and one was fatally shot; a mutiny broke out in one of the strikers camps, and the hearing in the injunction cases was attended by a large and interested crowd.

The hearing in the injunction case before Judges Stowe and Collier was perhaps one of the most important and interesting ever held in a Pennsylvania court. It was a hearing in which both capital and the rights of labor were interested, and the decision is expected to have a telling effect on the conduct of the great coal miners' strike, which has been on since July 5.

From the testimony adduced and from the expressions of the court it can be safely be said that there will be some surprises. That the injunction will be materially modified there is believed to be no doubt, which on its face would indicate a victory for the strikers. The preliminary decree has been continued pending a consultation of the judges, and an opinion will probably be handed down today.

Judge Collier said in court that the strike would go down in history as one of the wonders of the century and remarkable for the utter lack of disorder, for which the strikers are commended and have the sympathy of the court. Said he: "There can be no question as to what our duty is under all the testimony, but I am somewhat in doubt as to whether or not the order should be modified. We cannot determine this without a consultation."

Judge Stowe said: "This injunction will not justify the issuing of an attachment against any marchers who are not found in company with the men named in the injunction."

He let it be understood that the injunction was not as sweeping as has been thought, that only the five men named in the writ—Patrick Dolan, William Warner, Cameron Miller, Uriah Bellingham and Edward McKay—are restrained from marching or tresspassing on the company's property. The others mentioned can be only those found in company with the five named in the injunction.

As near as can be learned the strikers, under the injunction, can march, but not at stated times, as long as they are not in company with any of these defendants.

In addition to the civil suits entered against President W. P. De Armitt by his former employes for wages, three criminal suits have been brought against Samuel De Armitt, a brother of the president.

Mrs. Anna Crotol, who was evicted on Saturday by Samuel De Armitt, has grought a criminal suit charging assault and battery. She says in her charge that her husband was not at home and that De Armitt took her by the shoulders and threw her out of the house. She says he held a hatchet above her head and threatened to kill her. Her two children (one a sick boy) were also thrown from the house.

John Crotol, her husband, also sues De Armitt for larceny. He claims that after evicting his wife and children and throwing his household goods into the road, De Armitt took away with him a gallon keg of wine and a $16 revolver, and has since refused to return them. Writs and warrants were served on De Armitt this morning. The conference of labor leaders announced for last night was postponed until tonight.

Two deputies, Robert Kerr and Frank Anderson, employed at the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company, fought yesterday, and as a result Kerr cannot live.

Anderson is the proprietor of a dive in this city and is known as a bad man. He was in charge of the deputies at Sandy Creek. Kerr, who lives at McKee's Rock, is a river pilot. It is not known what the men fought about, but they met on a bridge crossing Plum creek, and after a few words, Anderson was seen to hit Kerr, who retaliated, and a rough and tumble fight followed. Anderson drew his revolver and, placing it close to Kerr's abdomen, fired, the ball tearing through the victim's intestines and lodging in his back.

A constable tried to arrest Anderson, but was prevented by deputies, who said they would hold him until the arrival of the sheriff.

A letter from ex-Mayor Charles H. Porter to Councilman Anderson against the Adams street location, was also read.

These were referred to the Committee on Streets.

Several petitions for minor licenses were received and referred.

Wollaston's Trouble.

A petition was received from citizens of Wollaston that the Mayor be requested under chapter 112 to make formal complaint to the Railroad Commissioners in relation to the fence at the Wollaston station of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., and ask a hearing.

This was laid on the table until later in the evening when Councilman Pinkham offered an order that the Mayor be requested to apply to the Railroad Commissioners to have them make an examination of the Wollaston station and to give the citizens a public hearing at as early a date as possible in the Council chamber. Adopted.

PORTLAND FAIR OPENS.

Promise of One of the Best Exhibitions In New England Society's History.

Portland, Me., Aug. 17.—The New England fair opened in all departments yesterday, and the visitors at Rigby park, as well as at the halls in the city, found the promise of one of the biggest exhibitions in the society's history fulfilled beyond question. There was a good attendance.

The track was made better by showers in the morning, as shown by the time of 2:13½ made by Town Lady in the three-minute class. The victory of Town Lady, a comparatively unknown horse, was the feature of the afternoon's races. A thrilling incident happened in the second heat of this race. When the horses were coming down the stretch Morale swerved inward and stepped on Georgianna's wheels, pulling off a shoe. It caused Morale to trip and turn a somersault, throwing Golden headlong. Golden was unhurt. His horse was soon on her feet and turned across the track towards the outside. Kurburn clashed into Morale, and both went down in a heap. The three horses got out of the tangle, and strange to say neither drivers or horses were injured. The sulkies were nearly demolished.

In the bicycle races the one mile handicap was won by James Ingraham of Peabody, Mass., (20 yards); second, Brad Heernean of Arlington, Mass. (20 yards); third, Ernest J. Rogers of Melrose, Mass. (50 yards). Time, 2:12½.

E. A. Ricker of Sanford finished first in the one mile open in 2:27½. Fred H. Mospan of South Portland came in second and C. B. Pike of Norway third.

Hot on Boinai's Trail.

Pittsfield, Mass., Aug. 17.—The police who are searching this vicinity for Charles Boinai and David Weeks, who are wanted in connection with the Nichols murder at Bridgeport last month, have received the encouraging news that both men were seen on Saturday afternoon at Richmond, eight miles from here. Boinai, who formerly lived at Richmond, was recognized by people who knew him intimately. When last seen the men were on the road to West Stockbridge, but they retraced their steps toward Lenox, when they discovered that they were attracting attention. They were followed in this direction, seeing which they took to the swamp. The officers are now searching the vicinity.

Bicyclists Suspended.

Boston, Aug. 17.—Several surprises came to some bicyclists in New England yesterday when the suspension list was made public by Member Dorntee of the L. A. W. C. E. Lawrence of Exeter, N. H., was suspended for wrongfully entering a novice race, and T. Burdick was suspended for two months for disrespectful language to a race meet official. For entering a class race at Ware, Mass., to which they were not eligible, W. J. Knowlton of Palmer, E. C. Ferre of Springfield and C. W. Scnalon of Westfield were laid off for two months. James J. Casey of Worcester and J. W. Newn of Brookline are transferred to the professional class at their own request. C. M. Donohue of Lynn is made a professional.

Professor Chase Dead.

Bucksport, Me., Aug. 17.—A telegram was received here yesterday announcing the death of Professor Allen Chase at Nashville of malarial fever Saturday. The deceased was the eldest son of President A. F. Chase of the Maine Wesleyan seminary at Kent's Hill. He graduated from Wesleyan university, Middletown, Conn., recently, and was elected professor of mathematics at Kent's Hill, and resigned the position held for three years as burser of Central college, Tennessee, at Nashville, to accept the same. He was 28 years old, and leaves a widow and one child.

WAS MURDERED BY SMITH DAVIS.

He Confessed All to His Uncle—Saw Dora Cushman Die.

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 17.—Never before in the history of the village of Lincoln has anything occurred that has caused so much excitement as the mysterious death of Dora E. Cushman, the 15-year-old daughter of Dr. A. J. Cushman. Hundreds of people have visited the spot where the body was found. Within a quarter of a mile of her home, in a clump of trees on the bank of a trout brook, the girl met death. A chain of evidence is being linked together by the actions of the girl's lover, Smith Davis.

Dr. J. H. Lindsley of Burlington held an autopsy yesterday morning, Selectmen George Hanner and Irving G. Colby being present. After the autopsy Dr. Lindsley said: "This is another Carlisle Harris case."

Enough was learned at the autopsy to show that a criminal operation had been attempted.

The first arrest in the case was made when Davis' chum, William Brittel, was taken into custody. His actions aroused suspicion that led the searching party to believe that he knew something of the girl and of Davis.

Saturday morning Davis told Brittel that Miss Cushman was in a delicate condition and that he was going to see a man and help her out of it. In speaking of the affair, Davis also said: "I have something in my pocket that will do the job."

Davis is about 26 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighs 168 pounds, and has dark hair and blue eyes. He wore light-colored trousers, dark coat and vest and straw hat. At times he wears gold-bowed spectacles. He has a prominent chin, with a dimple in the center. He was born in Enosburg Falls, Vt. He has lived in Richford and Montgomery, and for the past two ears in Lincoln, working as a butter tub maker. He is a hard drinker.

It was learned further that Brittel probably acted as messenger between Davis and the girl, telling the latter that Davis had the medicine, and that he would meet her in the woods and give it to her.

It is thought the girl went to the appointed place and took the dose, whatever it was, and then either walked along with Davis to the place where she fell in the pasture, or, after taking it, died in his presence and was dragged to the secluded spot where her body was found. Many think the latter theory more likely in view of Davis' sudden departure.

The authorities have traced the fugitive as far as Rutland, where he changed his hat for a cap and had his moustache shaved off. It is not known just how he reached Rutland, but he bought a ticket from there to Manchester, N. H. Officials all along the road between Rutland and the New Hampshire city have been notified to watch for Davis.

Davis has an uncle named George Butterfield, who lives in Bedford, N. H., and it is supposed that he was going there to raise money enough to enable him to get out of the country, as he had about $25 when he left here.

Brittel has told the authorities that Davis asked him to tell the girl to go into the lot, as Davis had something to tell her. Brittel says he did as requested. Brittel boarded with the Cushmans.

The various portions of the girl's body were taken to Hanover, N. H., where they will be analyzed by Professor Bartlett of Dartmouth college. Sheriff Stearns of Rutland, with E. P. Brown of Bristol, are in New Hampshire following up the fugitive.

The funeral of the murdered girl will be held this afternoon. State Attorney Fish has been busy examining all parties who know anything about the case. It is known that he obtained damaging letters among the girl's effects from Davis.

Davis' Confession.

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 17.—Smith Davis, the Lincoln (Vt.) farmer, who is wanted by the Vermont officers, charged with complicity in the death of Cora Cushman of Bristol, arrived in this city and stopped over Sunday at his uncle's, George W. Butterfield, on the Mast road. Davis told his uncle how the girl had died in a berry pasture after attempting to secure an abortion, and how he had become frightened, shaved off his moustache and fled to this city. Mr. Butterfield advised his nephew to return to his (Davis') father's home in Montgomery, Vt., and Davis left Manchester yesterday morning to go to Montgomery via Nashua and Fitchburg.

Davis confessed that he had been intimate with the girl, and that one day recently he learned that she was likely to become a mother. He told his uncle that he thought considerable of Dora, and that he was willing to make her his wife. When she told him of her condition he says he expressed his desire to marry her. Davis says that the girl refused, saying that she did not wish to marry.

He claimed that she told him he was worrying too much about what was a very simple thing, and she talked in a brutal way about the affair. She told him to procure a certain surgical instrument for her, promising that this would be the last that would be the last he would ever hear from the matter. He said he finally agreed and secured the instrument she called for.

The next the young farmer heard of Dora was on the day of her death. On Saturday he received a note from Miss Cushman at the hotel stating that she had the instrument with her, and that she was going to a certain berry pasture. She expressed a desire for his company, and the two set off together.

When they arrived at their destination Davis left the girl and walked about 20 feet away. She made an attempt to procure the abortion and she immediately fell back dead. Davis told his uncle that she made no groan, no sound. She died at once.

Davis said that he was stunned by the turn affairs had taken, and that his first thought was of flight. He did not touch the body, but at once set about arranging a hasty departure from Lincoln. He shaved off his mustache and immediately left for this city.

H. A. WILLIS, the State prison convict who gave up his life, will not rest in Massachusetts. He was buried in Rhode Island. It is well.

MESSENGER WHITING says he is not a villian, and appears to be very independent relative to his double life. Others may not accept his conclusions.

THERE IS objection to calling the new park at Squantum, "Squanto Park," and it is likely to continue as Squantum Head, which is more appropriate by far.

WELL OUR tax rate is not as high as Fitchburg, and never reached such figures. And what is more, it is the same in Fitchburg this year as last year, $19.20.

PERHAPS you hardly recognize the DAILY LEDGER today. A little shake up once in a while is a good thing, and while the make up is not as precise as usual, it will please the advertisers better and that is always the aim of the LEDGER. It is more metropolitan too, you know.

TWENTY YACHTS is a pretty large number for a club to start off in one class on a scrub race. That was the number started by the Quincy Yacht club on Saturday afternoon and included two racers that went over the course just for the fun of the thing. It was a pretty sight, one that was enjoyed by hundreds of people from the shore. This scrub racing of the Quincy Yacht club seems to be the thing at present. The open races are not in it with these scrub races for genuine unalloyed fun. The best part of them is their unconscious informality. When the spirit moves the boys have a race. No definite time is set for starting them. When they seem to be ready the solitary judge goes down on the end of the wharf and fires the cannon as a preparation gun. In five minutes he pulls the lanyard again, "Boom!" and they are off.

They go over the regular course twice. When the first boat begins to near the flag float on the second lap the judge again saunters down on the wharf with a camp chair, takes out his watch, a bit of paper and pencil and as the club janitor, his right hand man, calls "Time!" as the yachts pass the float, jots it down on the paper, folds up his camp chair and hies himself away. Pretty soon Commodore Sanborn comes along and says: "Boys, I guess I'll give you a few trophies to race for."

It seems a little odd that this style of racing should have suddenly taken such a strong hold on the boys. It has, and strange to say, is all the rage among the yachtsmen.

It is undoubtedly the inevitable reaction against the red-tape style of modern yacht racing. It is the entire absence of red-tape which makes scrub racing so popular.

More Sewer Basins.

The Herald says, it is expected that work will be started on the new sewer storage basins at Moon island early in September. There will be four, covering about five acres, and having a capacity of 25,000,000 gallons, and will be a duplicate of the present reservoir, of four basins, which, when constructed in 1884, was so arranged that this contemplated extension could be readily made on the south side. The retaining walls are 17½ feet high, and nearly eight feet thick at the base. The floor consists of a bed of concrete nine inches thick.

All the borings, some 25, have been made. The top course shows a little mud and coarse gravel; at eight feet, three inches of yellow sand, with a little gravel; 11½ feet, fine yellow sand; 14 feet, yellow clay, with a little sand; 17 feet, clay, gravel and sand; 24 feet, sand and a little gravel. Rock bottom was struck at a depth of about 35 feet. The top of the hill is 37 feet above the floor of the new basin.

The eight basins will take care of 100,000,000 gallons of sewage each 24 hours, as they will be emptied twice daily.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

order granting Christopher Cheever $4 per month. Adopted.

The Committee on Licenses reported favorable on a number of petitions for licenses which were granted.

Brook Street Extension.

The Finance Committee reported ought not to pass in its present form, on the order extending Brook street under the railroad tracks and the widening of Beale street.

Councilman Pinkham said that this was because the order involved a liability without appropriating money to meet it.

Report laid on the table.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass, with slight amendments as to notes, an order appropriating $1000 laying out Faxon road.

Councilman Poland asked if $1000 was sufficient.

Councilman Nickerson said it was.

Councilman Poland said the street runs through the centre of a valuable lot and takes about 4000 feet of the 5000 feet in the lot and he did not think the amount sufficient.

Councilman Nickerson's explanation that the lot to be purchased was not on Billings road was satisfactory and order was passed.

Quincy Avenue Location.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting the street railway location on Quincy avenue from the junction of Hancock and Elm streets to the Braintree line.

The order provided that a girder rail shall be used between Hancock street and New road and a T rail beyond that point; that the tracks shall be in the centre of the street to that point, and on the west side for the balance of the distance. Ordered to second reading.

Old Locations.

Councilman Anderson offered an order for a public hearing Wednesday, Sept. 1, on the question of altering the following locations granted the street railway by the Selectmen of Quincy, Feb. 7, 1888:

On Adams street from Robertson street to Beale street, along the southerly side; Beale street from Adams street to Farrington street, along the northerly side; Farrington street from Beale street to Squantum street, along the easterly side; Squantum street from Farrington street to Hancock street, along the southerly side. Also, the location beginning at the intersection of Beale street with Farrington street and running along the northerly side of Beale street to Newport avenue thence along the easterly side of Newport avenue to Adams street, thence along the easterly side of Adams street to the point of connection on Hancock street.

The order was adopted.

Councilman Anderson moved that when the Council adjourn it be until Wednesday, Sept. 1. Voted.

Councilman Sidelinger offered an order transferring the victualler's license of M. R. Sparrow from Beach street to the corner of Beale street and Old Colony avenue. Adopted.

Adjourned at 8.08.

TO CELEBRATE.

Druggist Hearn to Give Band Concert on His Anniversary.

Four years ago tomorrow Mr. C. C. Hearn, the City Square druggist, opened his store in Faxon block. Previous to that time he was located on Copeland street, West Quincy, but this section proved too small a territory for his enterprising spirit and as a result he came to City Square.

During the four years in his new location he has proved himself in many ways to be an enterprising business man and has succeeded not only in winning the confidence of our citizens, but has retained that confidence and has built up a lucrative business.

Mr. Hearn feels grateful for the many favors that he has received at the hands of our citizens, and as a mark of appreciation, and to celebrate his four years of business in Faxon block, he has engaged Brown's Brigade band to give a concert in City Square on Wednesday evening.

The programme arranged is one that cannot fail to please and is as follows:

March, "King Cotton," Sousa
Medley Overture, "Around the Metropolis" Beyer
Schottische "Dark Town Girl" Lee Johnson
Medley Overture, "A pleasant evening" Beyer
Miserere from "Il Trovatore" Verdi
Selections from De Koven's Comic Opera Robin Hood Wiegaud
Vocal Solo, Selected, J. Schultz
March, "Jack," from Opera Jack and the Beanstalk, Sloane
Piccolo Solo, Selected, D. Nash
American Fantasie, tone, "Pictures of the North and South" Bendix
Overture, "Jolly Night" Beyer
Finale, America, audience kindly requested to join in chorus.

Atlantic Won.

The Junior Boys of the Sacred Heart Sunday School, of Atlantic, defeated the the South Braintree boys in a ball game at that place Monday afternoon, by a score of 18 to 13. It was a real exciting game by the little fellows who deserve great praise for their skilfull playing for each one played well. After the game, a collation was served them, and then all enjoyed a row on the Braintree pond. They will play another game today with the same boys, and one which promises to be even more exciting than the one of yesterday.

CITY OF QUINCY.

IN COUNCIL, Aug. 16, 1897.

ORDERED: That a public hearing be given by the City Council on WEDNESDAY evening, September 1, 1897, at 8 o'clock, in the Council chamber, City Hall, on the question of altering the location granted the Quincy & Boston Street Railway Company by the Selectmen of Quincy on February 7, 1888, as follows: On Adams street from Robertson street to Beale street, along the southerly side; Beale street from Adams street to Farrington street, along the northerly side; Farrington street from Beale street to Squantum street, along the easterly side; Squantum street from Farrington street to Hancock street, along the southerly side.

Also, the location beginning at the intersection of Beale street with Farrington street, and running along the northerly side of Beale street to Newport avenue, thence along the easterly side of Newport avenue to Adams street, thence along the easterly side of Adams street to the point of connection, on Hancock street.

And that public notice of said hearing be given by publishing a copy of this order in the QUINCY DAILY LEDGER and Quincy Advertiser at least fourteen days before the time of said hearing.

Adopted Aug. 16, 1897.

HOUGHS NECK.

The people of the Neck were somewhat surprised as well as dissappointed over the non-appearance of the band on Sunday.

Master Charles and Loring Bates of the Murray House arrived home Sunday from their trip to Rockland.

Mr. L. T. Day of Rochester is a guest at the Algonquin cottage.

This will be quite an exciting week at the Neck; there will be open races on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club.

Mr. J. N. Clarke, Miss Beardsly of Roxbury and Mr. N. B. Burnham are guests at Pierce's hotel.

Mr. N. P. Packard was a guest at Mears' hotel on Sunday.

Miss Gertrude Tileston and Miss Ethel Bates will visit Cohasset on Friday.

Miss Mary McKay of East Milton is spending this week with friends at the Delmonte, Houghs Neck.

Mrs. J. B. Lyons and family, Mr. G. L. Coax of Lynn and Miss Mary Hook of Medford, have arrived at the Loretto, as guests for a couple of weeks.

Mr. A. Rockwood of Jamaica Plain has leased a cottage on Bell street for the remainder of the season.

Green apples are getting the best of the youngsters here. The doctors are kept busy.

The Houghs Neck juniors beat the Pioneers on Saturday by a score of 9 to 3.

The people of Bay Side are planning to give a clambake sometime this week.

The time of the tides for a week in advance is now a daily feature of the Houghs Neck column:

TODAY'S COURT.

Alonzo Jones was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Officer Ferguson who arrested Jones said that he was running around with a hatchet chasing people, and when they disappeared he attempted to cut a barn down. Jones was fined $15.

Patrick Casey was fined $5 for drunkenness at Cohasset.

Thomas Grady was arraigned for being a tramp at Braintree. He was sent to the State farm at Bridgewater for one year.

Jeremiah Harty was fined $5 for drunkenness at Holbrook.

Timothy Murphy was arraigned for the illegal sale of liquor at Quincy. Case continued until Thursday.

The Sewer Work.

The condition of the Copeland street section of the sewer remains unchanged today. Some definite action however will probably be arrived at tonight when the Sewer Commissioners hold a special meeting. At this meeting it will probably be decided whether Messrs. Brine will go on with the work or whether this section will be completed under the direction of the Sewer Commissioners.

HOPE FOR QUINCY.

Boston's Mayor Cannot Long Escape Matrimony—A Vision

The Journal treats lightly the letter of Mrs. Smith against bachelors published in Monday's LEDGER. It says: Charlotte Smith's campaign against the unmarried candidates for Mayor has struck terror into the hearts of the wifeless aspirants for great civic honors. It may create a stampede that nothing can prevent; it may be one of the machines that Jesse Gove has set in motion.

That both of the leading candidates should be unmarried is a remarkable coincidence. Whether one or both of them can be induced to wed and escape the opposition of Mrs. Smith remains to be seen.

She means business.

Hon. Josiah Quincy is out of town. What his views are nobody knows. There is hope for him. He rides a bicycle and wears golf stockings. No man who does that will long escape matrimony. Mayor Quincy approaches the subject without prejudice. He has done much that is strange, within the past eighteen months, in order to obtain votes. Would it not be a master stroke for him to wed ere the municipal election takes place?

A wedding in the Aldermanic Chamber! A chant by the Merchants' Municipal Committee, led by John C. Cobb! The ushering done by members of the Common Council! Electric effects by the Electrical Construction Division! Wedding stationery from the Municipal Junk Shop! It is a vision to conjecture by.

Mayor Quincy is passing much time at the seashore this summer. The August moon sees and knows a great deal that it may not tell.

Let Charlotte Smith restrain herself. While there is life there is hope.

River Improvement.

The dredger employed in excavating the channel of Town river is now located off Johnson's wharf. The channel will be about 60 feet wide at the completion of the work, and there will be about four feet of water at low tide. The intention is now to continue the work as far as Brackett's wharf, and at that point the work must cease, as the appropriation voted by Congress is not sufficient to complete the work according to the original plans.

Mr. Johnson intends to extend his wharf about ten feet into the river, that he may take advantage of the increased depth of water, and thus be able to receive vessels of greater draught and tonage. It is hoped by those most interested that Congress may yet vote an additional sum that the work now begun may be completed as the original survey and recommendation intended. Mr. Frank S. Patch, the well-known coal man, has purchased considerable marsh land near Brackett's wharf and it is stated that he will build wharves on the property.

The Refractometer

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent occulists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.

I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.

F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.

I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.

Active Children.

This is not the first time that we have had "children" for our topic.

Well, we are particularly fond of the young folks and like to see them hearty and happy.

It is highly necessary to keep a careful watch over their diet, and we feel like emphasizing this point very strongly.

Parents have a grave duty along this line, for if the coming generation is to be all that it ought to be, the fathers and mothers of today must see carefully to the daily food of their growing boys and girls.

Groceries of the BOSTON BRANCH sort, properly cooked, are wholesome, digestible and nourishing to a high degree.

We have all the best brands of CONDENSED MILK. Condensed milk is purer than fresh milk, as the greatest care is exercised to keep out dirt or contaminations of any kind.

Sexton Justified.

Editors of the Quincy Ledger:

To my mind the position taken by the custodian of the Stone Temple is perfectly justifiable. To my personal knowledge the steps of the church are outrageously defiled by tobacco juice and other refuse during the concerts. But this fact, lamentable as it is, need not, it seems to me, bring the enjoyable concerts to an end.

Why cannot the band stand be erected hereafter at some location remote enough from the church to make seats there undesirable,—say at the junction of Chestnut and Hancock streets or directly in front of the fountain. I have often thought that the First Parish would be amply justified in excluding the public from the steps and approaches of the church by enclosing them within an iron fence thus effectually putting an end to such filthy practices, and such a flagrant abuse of a privilege.

It is not to be expected that the custodian of the church will meekly remove the unnecessary filth of these vandals without remonstrance. Common manhood would not permit this. I hope the public may still enjoy the concerts in City Square and the local store-keepers receive the benefit of the trade their presence brings; but I hope some scheme will be devised to stop the disgusting defilement of the steps, which is utterly bad, lamentable, inexcusable and unnecessary.

Respectfully yours,

MUSICIAN.

WAS HIS DAY OFF.

And he Shuffled Off this World in a Hurry.

William Quinn, a teamster employed by W. F. Lord at West Quincy, died at the Massachusetts General Hospital Monday afternoon from injuries received by being run over by a sugar caravan.

Quinn formerly lived with his mother at West Quincy, but she moved a short time ago to Barre, Vt., since which time he has boarded with Mr. Loud. He had a day off Monday and went to Boston. It is supposed that he was stealing a ride on the dray when he fell off and the wheels passed over his body. When taken to the hospital it was found that he had sustained fractures of the right leg and shoulder and that the chest and several ribs were badly crushed.

The accident happened on Charles street at 2 40 and Quinn died three hours later.

All for Fifty Cents.

There is a vacant tenement at 9 Wilson street where parties are said to be held almost nightly. It is alleged that these parties are run by one Timothy Murphy who brings out beer from Boston to the house and then gives a party, charging the participants 50 cents admission, which includes liquid refreshments. Inspector McKay has had his eye on the place for some time and this morning he placed Murphy under arrest for the illegal sale to some party unknown.

Held Up at Wollaston.

Miss Elizabeth Johnson of Beale street was held up by two young men near the Milton line at 10 o'clock Saturday night. The young men came upon her unawares and demanded her money. She called loudly for help which was heard by a man coming from Milton who ran to her assistance, at which the two fellows ran toward Squantum street. The two men are described as being about 19 or 20 years of age with smooth faces. One wore a light suit and the other a dark suit.

The Objection.

There is some objection on the part of the people residing upon the westerly side of Farrington street, Wollaston, to the laying of the T rails close to the curb on that side of the street. The objectors wish to have the rails placed in the centre of the street and properly paved.

COUNTY AND VICINITY

—The lawyers of Norfolk County should appreciate the new endeavors of Louis A. Cook, the clerk of courts. He has sent blank forms to the lawyers practicing in the county, with a request that they be filled out with the office and home address of the recipients in order that he can communicate with them promptly if he thinks their interests are imperilled by any unanticipated emergency, such as the "breaking" of the trial list. This is no part of the duty of the clerk, and is assumed by Mr. Cook merely as an act of accomodation and courtesy.

—The Dedham Emergency Nursing Association, which has been in existence for the past seven or eight years, is out in an appeal to the public for funds to carry on its good and charitable work.

—The sewer commissioners of Hyde Park have notified residents of the central part of the town that application for connections with the sewer will now be received.

—Readville is experiencing a genuine building boom.

For the grand circuit races at Readville for the first five days next week $23,000 in stakes are offered. Every class has twelve or more entries.

—Norwood will have big bicycle races on Labor day at Indian Rock park. For a ten-mile road race, the prizes will aggregate $366. The track races will include: One-half mile, first prize, gold watch; one mile, first prize, silver tea set; two mile, first prize, diamond, $35.

A hearing by the City Council on the revocation of old grants to the Quincy & Boston street railway is advertised today. It came before the City Council last evening.

—The aged mother of Mr. Alonzo E. Withington of Canton, Mrs. Martha Withington, died Saturday evening, aged 87 years.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

George E. Deering, aged 65, an essence peddler, hanged himself at Saco, Me.

Richard C. Paddock, 17 years old, was drowned while bathing at Boston yesterday.

Andrew G. Butler, aged 76, of West Gardner, Me., is dead from swallowing aconite, which he drank by mistake.

Albert Lambert, aged 27, of Worcester, Mass., committed suicide in a Boston police station last night. He had been arrested for attempting to pass a raised bill.

Marcell Deschamps of Auburn, Me., left his home last Friday and has not been seen since. He was despondent, and is thought to have committed suicide. His wife and family are destitute.

The 24th session of the Winnepesaukee camp meeting at The Weirs, N. H., began yesterday afternoon, the services being in charge of Rev. O. S. Baketel of Manchester, presiding elder of the second district of Methodist churches.

The Merrimac Humane society has presented John W. Butler and James C. Delano, conductor and motorman of the Newburyport and Amesbury (Mass.) street railway, and Michael Larner, medals fo the rescue of seven persons from drowning at Plum Bush creek, Aug. 1.

The Lonsdale company's cotton mills at Providence started up yesterday morning after a week's shut down, giving employment to about 5000 operatives. It is stated here that the demand for woolen and cotton goods is on the increase. The S. H. Greene & Sons print works at Clyde are running full time.

The 31st annual reunion of the Thirty-third Massachusetts regiment was held in Waltham yesterday. There were 64 members present. The reports of the officers showed that only 308 members of the old regiment are living out of an enrollment of 1440 when it started for the front. Ten have died during the past year.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

CRAZY GOLD SEEKERS.

Crowds Flocking to Klondyke Are Lamentably Ignorant.

Only Two Routes and Both Are Blocked.

People Throwing Away Provisions and Rushing Headlong to Mines.

San Francisco, Aug. 17.—Thomas Magee, well known as a conservative business man and a careful observer, who accompanied his son to Dyea, writes from that point to the effect that the ignorance displayed by the crowds who are flocking to the Klondyke fields is lamentable. Of the 400 passengers who sailed with him on the steamer George Elder, half of whom were from San Francisco, not one in 20 had any definite information as to how to reach his destination. While the routes were well known, the details and conditions to be met with are not considered, most of the searchers for wealth hoping to settle all doubts and uncertainties when they should reach Juneau.

Instead, however, further confusion was created by the appalling statements that there were only two routes, each of which necessitated the encounter of almost insurmountable difficulties. There were plenty of advocates for both routes at Juneau, but most of them were found to be interested parties. The two starting points, Dyea and Skaguay, are separated by four miles of salt water.

The Dyea trail goes over the Chilcoot pass and involves a climb of 3500 feet, while the other, which is not yet completed, has a 2350 foot climb over the White pass, and besides being six miles longer is boggy in places.

The Indians, who are the sole packers, all pack over the Chilcoot pass from Dyea. Nearly 500 pack animals are now en route and on arrival will be pressed into regular pack trains which will remove the chief obstacle for the transportation of supplies over the 35 miles of land, which is much more formidable than that over the 560 miles of water on the other side of the pass.

Aug. 7 a miner was drowned about a mile and a half from Skaguay. A teamster charged $10 for bringing the corpse into town, and this so enraged the people that he was ordered to leave town at once. He was offered $2000 for his wagon and team before he left Juneau.

BOTH TRAILS BLOCKED.

Eighteen Hundred Persons Now at Dyea—Many Deaths Expected.

Washington, Aug. 17.—William J. Jones, United States commissioner to Alaska, assigned to St. Michaels, has sent to the interior department the following report on the gold rush in a letter dated Dyea, Alaska, Aug. 4:

There are nearly 1800 people in Dyea and Skagway routes and both trails are blocked. People are throwing away their packs and provisions and rushing headlong to the mines. Great distress, hardship and suffering and possible death from hunger and exposure is sure to follow next winter, an opinion that is entertained by all old Alaskan prospectors who have visited that part of the world in late years and know the situation."

Second Assistant Postmaster General Shallenberger has been notified by telegraph that arrangements were made for forwarding mails for the Alaskan gold fields by the steamer Humboldt, which sailed last evening from Seattle. The Humboldt goes direct to St. Michaels, and the mails will be forwarded immediately to Circle City and the Klondyke field. About 300 pounds of mail matter is thus being shipped, together with numerous money remittances.

Bankers Convention.

Detroit, Aug. 17.—The 23rd annual meeting of the American Bankers' association, which opened in this city today, promises to be the largest attended of any in the history of that body. More than 100 delegates of that body have arrived, and Secretary Branch estimates that 1000 or more will be present. The association now has a membership of 2182, it having increased nearly 100 per cent in the last year. At 10 o'clock the bankers assembled at the Detroit Opera house. Governor Pingree welcomed them on behalf of the state. Mayor Maybury added the welcome of the city and George H. Russel presented the welcome of the clearing house committee of Detroit. President Lowry responded to these welcomes collectively. Then followed the reports of the officers of the association.

Cyclone In New York.

Gloversville, N. Y., Aug. 17.—A cyclone passed over the eastern end of Fulton county yesterday, three farm houses and many barns and outbuildings being demolished. Many people sought refuge in cellars. Mrs. Robinson and son, who live near Broad Albin, ran from their house when they saw the storm approaching and threw themselves on the ground behind the barn. The structure was blown down and both were seriously injured. The barn buildings of Thomas Steele, among the finest in the county, were demolished. All the buildings on Hartwick farm, including the residence, were destroyed. The escape of the family is regarded as miraculous. Two horses were killed.

Prosperity Returns.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 17.—The cotton mills which have been stopped temporarily started up on full time again yesterday. The improved condition of the cloth market and the reported advancement of the cotton crop served to restore a measure of confidence among manufacturers. The curtailment has amounted to about 250,000 pieces.

Theosophist Dead.

San Francisco, Aug. 17.—Edward B. Rambo, Pacific coast manager for the Winchester Arms company, died suddenly in his office here yesterday, aged 55, the specific cause being valvular disease of the heart. He was one of the foremost advocates of theosophy in the United States.

"GOOSE FOOD."

Whitelaw Reid Talks of Stories About Sherman and Himself.

New York, Aug. 17.—A World reporter interviewed Whitelaw Reid just as the latter was starting for the Adirondacks. Mr. Reid declined to talk about any public business that had been entrusted to him.

"Well," asked the reporter, "what about all these stories about yourself; about your taking Sherman's place; about your disagreeable interview with him; your 40 trunks of English goods, admitted free of duty on your return; General Sherman's order during the war to shoot you, etc.?"

"I don't think the public takes any interest in any such trash," was Mr. Reid's reply, "nor can I think any intelligent newspaper believes it. I don't know that anybody is going to take Mr. Sherman's place, nor that he has any notion of retiring. I had no disagreeable interview with him. I never even saw the absurd story till he himself sent it to me in a letter, denouncing it as false, mean and malicious. He has honored me with his friendship since boyhood, but in the whole 35 or 40 years of our acquaintance I never had a more pleasant interview.

"The trunk story is more goosefood. I did not have 40 trunks or anything like it. I returned from London, after six-weeks' housekeeping there, with exactly two small trunks more than I took over from New York, and the duties on their contents would not probably have amounted to $10., which I was perfectly willing to pay had anybody asked it. The custom house authorities simply extended to me without solicitation the courtesy extended to the service of the country abroad, from the foundation of our government, the same courtesy which is likewise extended by every other civilized government."

"About General Sherman's order to shoot you?"

"Oh, that is more goosefood. The youth who prepared it merely confused me with good old Colonel Tom Knox, now dead and gone. But what's the use of wasting your time or that of your readers with drivel like that? Good-bye I'm off for the mountains."

ON THE DIAMOND.

National League.

At Boston—

The Bostons won the first game of the series with Washington yesterday in wet and threatening weather. It was a pitchers' battle throughout and both sides had excellent support. Nichols' speed was terrific and he struck out eight men. Up to the last inning but two men got as far as third base. McJames was at his best and his command was superb. Tommy Tucker, for the first time since 1889, appeared in a uniform not that of the Boston club and played first base for the visitors in his usual good style. There were many individual plays of exceptional character.

Ferdinand's Choice.

Vienna, Aug. 17.—A Hungarian newspaper publishes an interview with M. Stoiloff, the Bulgarian premier, which represents him as saying: "Bulgaria first set her hopes in Russia and then in Austria, but she soon found it useless to expect help from Europe. Prince Ferdinand, therefore, turned to Turkey, who in the event of war will support Bulgaria with 100,000 soldiers. Prince Ferdinand would rather kiss the hand of the sultan than abase himself before Europe."

Peace Negotiations at Standstill.

Constantinople, Aug. 17.—The peace negotiations between the ambassadors of the powers and Tewfik Pasha, the Turkish foreign minister, are at a complete standstill. This is due to the refusal of Lord Salsbury to allow a Turkish occupation of Thessaly pending a partial payment of the indemnity agreed upon. Lord Salisbury's objection is based upon a fear that an occupation thus begun might become permanent.

United States Senator Weds.

New York, Aug. 17.—Henry C. Hansbrough, United States senator from North Dakota, was married in this city yesterday afternoon to Miss Mary Berri Chapman, whose home is in Washington.

Message From Andree.

Berlin, Aug. 17.—The Ossische Zeitung publishes a dispatch from Hammerfest, Norway, which says that one of the searchers for Herr Andree in a fast steamer met the sealing vessel Alken about July 22 and learned from her captain that one of the crew had shot a pigeon between North Cape and Seven islands, on the north coast of Lapland, bearing a message addressed to The Aftonbladet, Stockholm. The message ran as follows: "Eighty-two degrees passed. Good journey northwards. Andree." The date of the message cannot be ascertained.

Order For Armor.

Pittsburg, Aug. 17.—The Carnegie Steel company has received an order from Cramps, the Philadelphia shipbuilders, for 30 tons of diagonal armor to be used in the construction of the battleship Alabama. The price is not made public, but it is probable the builders will pay the Carnegies more for the armor than they will get for it from the government.

Russian Town Burned.

Brlin, Aug. 17.—A dispatch from Warsaw says that the town of Ostrow, in the province of Seldlce, Russia, has been destroyed by fire. Four hundred houses have been burned down and 4000 people are homeless. Four people have been killed and many children are missing. The conflagration began simultaneously in four different parts of the town.

No Reduced Rates This Year.

Boston, Aug. 17.—The executive committee of the Boston Trade and Transportation association yesterday considered a letter from the New England Passenger association on the concessions in passenger rates for Boston for the fall buying season. As an outcome the committee decided not to take any action this year. The positive refusal of the New York, New Haven and Hartford road to participate in the concessions was the reason for the plan not maturing.

No Fitchburg Shortage.

Boston, Aug. 17.—The Journal this morning quotes Joseph S. Stearns of Waltham, brother of the late ex-president of the road, on Fitchburg road matters. In it he says that the experts who have been at work on the accounts of the late auditor to ascertain the extent of the shortage supposed to exist will report that everything is correct in the freight department. The directors' meeting to choose a president to succeed the late President Marcy will be held today.

Born Under Lucky Star.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 17.—A horse owned by Harry Stickney of this city was killed in a strange manner Sunday while on the road. A flash of lightning appeared and the animal fell dead, but no wounds were found on the carcass. Mr. and Mrs. Stickney, who were in the wagon, felt no shock. Monday morning, when the couple started for home with another horse, the wagon was broken, the horse ran away, throwing out both occupants, but neither was injured.

Teachers' Examinations.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 17.—The examinations for teachers' certificates in the special grade recently provided by the state educational department will be held Friday, Aug. 27, in one or more towns in each county. Full particulars are being furnished candidates by the state superintendent of schools.

Going to Encampment.

Waterville, Me., Aug. 17.—One hundred and fifty Grand Army men of Maine will leave Waterville, Aug. 21, for the national encampment at Buffalo. This party will be in charge of Major Merrick, and the route taken will be via the White Mountains to Montreal and Niagara Falls.

A man may say or think what he pleases but just the same, personal appearance cuts a big figure in success. A well-dressed, neat, cleanly looking man, with the fresh countenance of health will, other things being equal, outstrip the man who isn't wholesome-looking. Many men imagine that hard work—"hustling" they call it—counts for everything. In the long run the easy-going man who takes time to think of his health and his personal appearance outstrips the reckless, neglectful "hustler." Many men are held back in the struggle of life by their personal appearance. Through neglect of the digestion their blood gets full of impurities and humors which show themselves on the face and body in the shape of skin affections, blotches, eruptions, eczema and scrofula.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery drives all impurities from the blood and cures all forms of skin affections. It is the great blood purifier, liver invigorator and flesh builder. It corrects all disorders of the digestion. Thousands have testified to its merits. Druggists sell it.

Wm. Smothers, Esq., of Millston, Jackson, Co., Wis., writes: "I wish to say that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best medicine for the grip that I have ever tried."

"Health is the best endowment" and a health-preserver the best investment. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser teaches women how to take care of the health of every member of the family. It saves doctor's bills. It contains 1008 pages, over 300 illustrations. Several chapters are devoted to the reproductive physiology of women and diseases that unfit young women for wifehood and young wives for motherhood. For paper-covered copy, send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover the cost of mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. For fine cloth binding, send 10 cents extra, 31 cents in all.

A GREAT SURPRISE IS IN STORE

for those who will go today and get a package of GRAIN-O. It takes the place of coffee at about ¼ the cost. It is a food drink, full of health, and can be given to the children as well as the adult with a great benefit. It is made of pure grains and looks and tastes like the finest grades of Mocha or Java coffee. It satisfies everyone. A cup of Grain-O is better for the system than a tonic, because its benefit is permanent. What coffee breaks down Grain-O builds up. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 15c and 25c.

AMERICAN BANKERS' CONVENTION.

Comptroller of the Currency Eckels Delivers An Able Address.

Detroit, Aug. 18.—The banking interests of the country are well represented at the convention of the American Banking association assembled here.

The welcoming speech of Governor Pingree, while considered somewhat radical by some of the members, was, on the whole, well received, and he was given a generous amount of applause at its conclusion. The feature of today's proceedings was an address by Comptroller of the Currency Eckel, who said, in part:

"The country is rid, for some years at least, of tariff agitation, and irrespective of the merits or demerits of the new act, every business man knows, in so far as it is concerned, upon what basis to engage in manufacturing, trade and commerce. The evidence accumulates with each day's advices that the long continued depression in financial circles has passed, and, thanks to five years of forced economy and cessation speculation, coupled with today's abundant harvests at remunerative prices to the agriculturist, a new prosperity is coming to the people. This prosperity, if it is to be of real worth, ought to be permanent in character and reach to all classes and interests."

Mr. Eckels then said most of our financial disasters are due to overspeculation and a desire by banks to declare dividends. He cautioned bankers to be prudent and conservative at all times.

"The currency problem is, taking it by and large, the most momentous with which the American statesman has to do. It is one neither of politics nor political preferment. It is, as bankers more than all others ought to realize, one of business self preservation and as such should command at the hands of those who are sworn to guard and preserve the people's rights a statesmanship and patriotism commensurate with the magnitude of the interests involved. It ought, as well, to enlist a public sentiment that would bring a swift punishment upon those who attempt to make it the plaything of party desires and the subject of mere political oratory. There is no political legerdemain by which political prestidigitators can deceive the public and substitute without the act being inquired into, other issues, for that of sound currency. Neither one nor all of them is of such vital importance as this, which reaches to the nation's and the individual's credit. At the bottom of the currency question in its last analysis lies that of credit and the esteem in which the nation's is held both at home and abroad. History, it is said, bears evidence that the power of credit will henceforth decide annually the great contests of the world. Under such a truth it is a blunder worse than a crime in those clothed with the power of action to defer, whether from motives of political strategy, indifference or timidity, taking such steps as will give to the country monetary laws that will strengthen and not weaken its financial standing and comport with its true power and dignity.

Inadequate Financial System.

"That which we term our currency system is one in name only. It lacks every element of what rightfully can be called a system. It violates in every essential feature what in all other departments of governmental affairs we dominate a system. It is not an orderly combination of parts into a whole, according to some rational principle or organic idea. Everywhere there is want of unity, and instead of presenting to the world financial completeness it exhibits itself as a work of 'shreds and patches.'

"We have had currency legislation, some of it bearing promise of working out the country's financial salvation, but in many such instances it has been changed and amended into that which has made it an engine for harm.

"Nowhere in any nation of equal importance is there to be found a currency and financial system so inadequate for the purposes to be accomplished as here. It presents in its circulation feature the singular spectacle of nine different kinds of currency, all except two of which are directly or indirectly dependent upon the credit of the United States. The treasury department established by it is the greatest banking institution in the land, clothed with the least powers for self preservation and beneficial action. One statute requires the secretary of the treasury to redeem the legal tender notes in coin on presentation, and another compels him to pay them out that they may return again and again for redemption. Upon every hand, the laws of the land make it an embarrassment to the profitable conduct of the business affairs of the country. It adds to the embarrassment by the forced inflation of the volume of the circulating medium at one time and the forced contraction through the operation of the sub-treasury system at another. Its only source of strength lies in the believed forebearance of attack upon its solvency by those who hold its obligations. Designing to have banks, created under it and subject to governmental supervision, supply the currency needs of the country, it still insists on competing with them in their note issuing function and prevents through tax and other barriers which the law erect, accomplishing the very purpose for which they were brought into being.

"We search in vain to find some solid foundation upon which all this structure rests, but the statute books reveal nothing, save that there is drawn about it what is deemed 'the sacred circle' of governmental protection, in the declaration ostentatiously made, that it is 'the established policy of the United States to maintain the two metals at a parity and each other upon the present legal ratio or such ratio as may be provided by law.' The declaration is made and then to proclaim the sham and pretense of it the secretary of the treasury is denied the full and adequate powers necessary to enable him under any and all circumstances to enforce that policy to the credit of the nation and with the least expense to the citizen.

"In the contemplation of a series of contradictions and inconsistencies so incongruous the business men of the nation may well decry currency laws so irrational and demand a speedy remedying of them at the hands of the enacting power.

"I, myself, have never in the past wavered in the belief, nor do I now, that in the end we will be possessed of a banking and currency system so strong as to make impregnable the country's credit. Its coming may be long delayed and only be attained after a tremendous loss to capital and injury to labor. It was the misery and distress entailed by the assignats and mandates of the French Revolution that placed France upon the solid rock of sound finance. It took the threatened starvation of the peasantry of a great nation to wipe out the corn laws of England, but the victory when obtained was complete. And thus, in conformity with the course of history, it is possible that before the nation's financial structure rests upon a foundation 'firm as the eternal hills' the American people will be called upon to pass through the awful experience and loss which would follow in the wake of unchecked paper and silver flatism. But at last, no matter how prolonged the struggle or great the suffering, with the acquiesence of all, the monetary principles which accord with the world's business experience, all financial research, and every dictate of common honesty, will here prevail in complete and enduring triumph."

On "What Legislation is Needed in Respect to the Currency," John P. Branch said. Our currency should be the best. Nothing short of the best will serve the higher and larger interests of our country.

Its value should be fixed and stable.

It should be adequate to the needs of the country.

It should expand and contract automatically.

It should be simple and uniform.

It should be so distributed throughout our territory that every man entitled to credit should be able to obtain its use at a fair rate.

NEW ENGLAND FAIR.

Large Crowd Entertained by United States Cavalry and Races---Today's Events.

Portland, Me., Aug. 18.—The crowds began to flock to Rigby park yesterday, and when the afternoon sports opened there was an attendance commensurate to the fair representative of all New England. The weather conditions were well nigh perfect, and the famous mile track was in fine condition. On the whole excellent time was made in each event, and several of the heats had very exciting finishes. Baron Rogers took the 2:10 pace in straight heats, reducing his record from 2:10¼ to 2:09¾. India Silk, another favorite, captured the 2:34 pace after split heats. In the 2:15 class Louis Victor and Tom Britton were about equal favorites before the start, but with the race once on Britton did not cut much of a figure. It was 6:30 when the final heat of the day was finished.

In the bicycle races the mile open was won by John R. Johnson of Portland in 2:40. H. B. Hills of Providence finished second and J. F. Ingraham of Lynn, Mass., third.

The quarter-mile open was won by John S. Johnson of Worcester, Mass., in 33 seconds, with J. F. Ingraham second and Ernest J. Rodgers of Melrose, Mass., third.

The most interesting feature of the many attractions proved to be the manœuvers of the company of United States cavalry, which was done to music, and set the big crowd wild with enthusiasm. This will be a daily event for the rest of the week.

Today is one of the most important days of the fair. This morning the crews of the Atlantic squadron paraded through the principal streets of the city. A reception to the officers of the fleet followed in the city council chambers. At the park this afternoon there was extra attractions. The horse race card includes a 2:29 trot and a 2:20 pace, each for a $1000 purse, and a long string of fast ones entered. There were also two bicycle races. This evening the warships in the harbor will be illuminated.

Maine Day at Fryeburg.

Fryeburg, Me., Aug. 18.—This was state of Maine day at the Chatauquan assembly. Governor Powers, Attorney General Haines, General Choate, Colonel F. C. Farrington and P. W. McKeen, secretary of the state board of agriculture, with their ladies, were driven to Jockey Cap, over the village and through the farming portions of the town. Dr. S. L. Gordon presided at the meeting yesterday afternoon and introduced the speakers. Governor Powers paid an earnest tribute to Fryeburg, commenting upon her fine natural beauties, her distinguished citizens and the famous men of Oxford county. He then spoke of the state of Maine, her history, her illustrious men and vast resources. The governor was followed by Attorney General William E. Haines, who spoke very ably upon the judiciary and the administration of the law. In the evening Governor Powers made another address upon the executive department of the state, its functions and duties. General Choate of Augusta followed, speaking for the military department of the state. A display of fireworks was then witnessed at River Bank.

Suicide and Grief.

Danville, Ills., Aug. 18.—Suicide and grief caused the death of husband and wife in this city Monday night. Henry Hammett, an aged and respected citizen, died from the effects of an opiate, and his wife, prostrated with woe, expired three hours later. Ill health was the cause assigned for the suicide. Hammett was 62 and his wife 63.

At Boston—

Boston lost yesterday's game in the most loosely played game seen at the home grounds this season. The work of both sides was wretched, one side seemed to be trying to outdo the other in poor playing. The Bostons seemed to be sure winners until the ninth inning, and, after two men were out, the Washingtons made four runs. In the last half of the ninth, after two men were out, Boston got two men on bases and Tenney was at the bat. It was only a wonderful stop by O'Brien that prevented Boston from scoring, giving the game to Washington. The batting and base-running of Hamilton were the features.

Selectman's Property Attached.

Athol, Mass., Aug. 18.—A special town meeting will undoubtedly be called soon to act on the delay in paying $1,641.45 land damages awarded to Mrs. A. O. Newton, part of whose property was taken some time ago in widening a local street. The attachment of the private property of W. H. Mellen, chairman of the board of selectmen, and C. F. Richards, the clerk of the board, has created a big stir, and many are clamoring for the town to settle the case at once. The town has delayed payment owing to lack of funds, due to an insufficient appropriation.

Linehan For Commander-In-Chief.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 18.—The departure of the special train carrying representatives of the department of New Hampshire to the G. A. R. national encampment has been changed. As now arranged it will leave this city at 9 p. m. Saturday. The delegation will be unusually large, and the candidacy of Colonel John C. Linehan for national commander-in-chief will be earnestly boomed.

RECEIVER FOR MASS. BENEFIT.

Association Owes $1,000,000 In Death Claims.--Directors' Statement.

Boston, Aug. 18.—The Massachusetts Benefit Life association of this city, an insurance organization operating since 1878 under the assessment plan and with 38,000 members insured for $65,000,000, has closed its doors. It owes a little more than $1,000,000 for death claims.

The company's president has been notified by the insurance departmene to stop business immediately and to turn over all moneys to a bank or trust company, and the attorney general has been asked to immediately apply to the court for a receiver to close up the company's affairs.

Thus is briefly told the story of the fall of the greatest assessment insurance association of Massachusett, which marks a turning point in the insurance history of the state.

The directors have prepared a general letter of explanation to policy holders on the condition of affairs. In it they say: "It was decided to suspend the business of the association and to ask the proper authorities to take charge of its affairs. The directors were forced to take this step in view of the very limited response of the assessment members to the regular and extra calls levied under the date of July 1, in conformity with the statutes of this commonwealth." With the letter is a copy of the report and recommendation of the committee on reinsurance, appointed by the directors, Aug. 10, 1897, and says: "The directors very much regret that notwithstanding their utmost efforts to save the association to its members, the existing situation, as they found it, when taking office and the unwillingness of the members to support the association by paying assessments which were absolutely necessary, have rendered those efforts ineffectual."

The report's recommendation is in favor of a New York life insurance company, the best obtainable, taking into consideration the condition of the policy and the standing of the company. It was found impossible to induce any reliable company to assume the whole membership without medical examination. The rates of premium quoted in the report will apply to the members at their present age.

General Olmstead to Become a Priest.

Laporte, Ind., Aug. 18.—General W. A. Olmstead of Manchester, N. H., who won distinction in the late war and became a convert to the Roman Catholic faith, is preparing himself for ordination to the priesthood. General Olmstead has been in retreat at Notre Dame university, where he has given himself up to study in pursuance of a vow made soon after his conversion that he would devote the declining years of his life to the work of the Roman Catholic priesthood. General Olmstead is 60 years of age.

Silver Mine Shut Down.

Idaho Springs, Colo., Aug. 18.—As a result of the decline in silver, La Martine mine has discharged its force of men working on silver lodes. La Martine has been one of the heaviest producers in the state. The company will now work the gold lodes in the mine. The owners of the silver mines in the upper end of Clear Creek county will also discontinue the working of silver properties and in the future give attention exclusively to the gold bearing veins.

Golli's Fate Sealed.

Madrid, Aug. 18.—The supreme council of war has confirmed the sentence of death passed by court-martial at Vergara on Michael Angiolillo, alias "Golli," the assassin of Premier Canovas del Castillo. The murderer will be executed on Thursday or Friday.

A Soldier's Suicide.

Boston, Aug. 18.—James H. Williams, a private in the United States Marine corps at the Charlestown navy yard, committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself to a rafter in the storeroom of the yard. The deed was caused by despondency. Williams was 50 years of age and belonged in Brooklyn. Williams was Major Meade's clerk, and had been in the service for 33 years.

War Against Rum.

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 18.—At the instance of ex-Governor David H. Goodell of the State Law and Order league, Sheriff Doane yesterday served nuisance act papers on the owners of every piece of real estate used for saloon purposes in this city, about 45 in number.

To Cut Aldermen's Pay.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 18.—On the face of an order introduced by Alderman Porter last night, an effort will be made to cut down the salary of $300 paid to aldermen to $200 or less. The order went to the committee on finance despite the aldermen's protest.

NOW THAT the Council has authorized the Mayor to request the Railroad Commissioners to designate the time when it will be convenient for them to give a hearing on the celebrated Wollaston fence case at City Hall, it behooves the citizens of that place to unite on some feasible plan and not to appear before the Commissioners with as many ideas for the elimination of the trouble as there are speakers on the question at issue.

It is possible that the counsel for the New Haven will claim at the hearing that fence is only a temporary structure; that as soon as the corporation extends its two additional tracks there will be no further trouble, etc. That would be perfectly agreeable to the petitioners provided the tracks were going to be put through this fall. It is more than probable that they will not be.

The petitioners desire to have something done before cold weather sets in and ice and snow collect on the long flight of steps. One of the cheapest and most feasible plans which has come to our attention is the one suggested by President Bryant of the Council. It is that a gate be set in the fence about opposite Boynton & Russell's store. Have this gate locked except at say five or ten minutes before train time when an attendant can unlock it and allow passengers to pass through to the depot or trains. This would eliminate the grade crossing at the place, which was one of the chief reasons why the road wanted a fence put up and allow passengers access to the station without climbing the hill.

There is reason to believe that amicable arrangement will soon be arrived at which will be satisfactory to all parties concerned.

Were the Board of Selectmen Who Granted Original Location to Quincy & Boston.

The public have not yet recovered from their surprise over the fact that a street railway location has been granted through Wollaston and over a portion of Adams street, but the company having built part of the grant by the selectmen of 1888 the whole probably holds, and the company has locations in other streets that have not been built upon as will be seen by a transcript of the records of the Selectmen of 1888, Messrs. William A. Hodges, William N. Eaton and Walter H. Ripley, viz:

At a meeting of the board of Selectmen held Feb. 7, 1888, all members being present, the following vote was passed:

Voted,—To grant a permit to the petitioners of the Quincy & Boston street railway company, John Q. Adams and others, a location of tracks as follows:

Beginning on the Neponset bridge (so called) at the line between the Town of Quincy and the City of Boston, thence running along the easterly side of Hancock street to Squantum street, thence running along the westerly side of Hancock street to Saville street, thence along the center of Hancock street to Granite street, thence along the northerly or westerly side of Granite street to Copeland street, thence along the northerly side of Copeland street to Centre street, thence along the easterly or southerly side of Copeland street to Cemetery (now Crescent,) thence along the northerly side of Cemetery street, to Willard street, thence along the westerly side of Willard street to Robertson street, thence on the northerly or westerly side of Robertson street to Adams street, thence along the southerly side of Adams street to Beale street, thence along the northerly side of Beale street to Farrington street, thence along the easterly side of Farrington street to Squantum street, thence along the southerly side of Squantum street to Hancock street, to point of connection on Hancock street.

Also beginning at the intersection of said Beale street with Farrington street, and running along the northerly side of Beale street, to Newport avenue, thence along the easterly side of Newport avenue to Adams street, thence along the easterly side of Adams street to the point of connection on Hancock street.

Permission is also granted for such sidings, turnouts, spur tracks and turntables necessary to enable the corporation to operate said road.

Also permission was granted to use such motive power on its tracks as is authorized by the general laws of the Commonwealth.

The portion of the location beginning at the intersection of Granite and Copeland street thence running through Copeland street to Cemetery street is hereby granted as petitioned for with the following restrictions: That said Quincy & Boston street railway shall not enter upon said portion of the location for the purpose of laying tracks before the first day of June, 1888.

Said restriction only applies to the portion of the location lying between the intersection of Granite and Copeland streets and the intersection of Cemetery and Copeland streets, and to no other portion of the location granted to said street railway company.

The Quincy & Boston street railway company shall leave the streets in a satisfactory condition to the Selectmen and Road Commissioners.

Attest: W. H. RIPLEY, Secretary.

SQUANTUM HISTORY.

"Squantum Head" is the Old Name and Suits Generally.

Some of the residents of Squantum look with disfavor upon any other name than Squantum Head for the promontory at Squantum, but would have no serious objection to Squantum Park for the public ground.

The history of Squantum is very interesting. Upon the level fields of the Titus farm on the East shore it is said the Apostle Eliot preached to the Indians, who came from miles around to listen to him. On the small knoll covered with pines and cedars on the right of the road halfway to Squantum, is the spot upon which Chickatawbut, the Sachem of the Massachusetts Indians is said to have had his wigwam. This knoll called Moswetusket is in the shape of an Indian arrow head, and if viewed from a distance makes with the headland of Squantum a perfect Indian arrow.

Any one interested in the history of Squantum is urged to read Hon. Charles F. Adams' "Three Episodes of Massachusetts History" Vol. I, pages 1 to 45, in which a full account of this interesting history is given.

Mr. Adams says, after Myles Standish and his men, guided by the Indian Squanto, landed at Squantum Head on Sept. 30, 1621. "The peninsula has always retained its original name perpetuating the memory of the Indian interpreter who guided the first party of Europeans who set foot upon it. The name by some is said to be good, although the word itself would seem to imply a god of wrath. But it is certain that Squantum has been known by that name ever since the first European lived near it and that it practically does perpetuate the memory of the Indian guide and not that of an Indian deity."

His Young Friends.

Master Charles K. Hogan entertained a number of his young friends on Tuesday from 3.30 to 8 o'clock at his home on Cottage avenue in honor of his ninth birthday anniversary.

The afternoon was passed in a pleasant manner by the young people with games; after which sandwiches, ice cream and cake was served.

As the guests left for home Mrs. Hogan presented each with a bag of candy and a boquet.

Surprise Party.

Mr. and Mrs. William Coppin of Penn's Hill were agreeably surprised last evening by a number of their friends who came to bid them farewell as they are to move to Gilbertville, Mass., this week. During the evening there were solos and duets and a jolly good time. Refreshments were served and Mr. Robert Van Buskirk of Allston in a few well chosen words presented Mr. Coppin and wife with a handsome parlor lamp.

North Shore.

Some thirty or more citizens of Quincy and vicinity enjoyed a fine sail yesterday along the North Shore, on the large steamer Lewiston. She makes daily trips when the weather is favorable; two days to the Isles of Shoales, and the balance of the week along the North Shore; leaving Boston about 10 A. M. and returning about 6 o'clock. It gives one a chance to enjoy a long and pleasant sail at a small expense.

St. John's Lawn Party.

The lawn party held in aid of St. John's church Tuesday afternoon and evening was successful beyond the most sanguine expectation. The day and evening were all that could be desired, and with the many attractions a means of enjoyment was provided for all. The principal event of the afternoon was the ball game between the Tubular Rivet nine and the East Weymouths, which was won by the former after a hard contest. The 100 yard dash was won by Joseph Ryan. The prize for the event was a magnificent silver cup offered by Mr. T. L. Williams. During the afternoon the Hingham band gave an enjoyable concert.

The festivities of the evening brought out the largest number, and between the hours of eight and ten it was with difficulty that one could make his way about the grounds. The grounds were brilliantly lighted by numerous Chinese lanterns. A large dance board had been placed on the grounds, and for those who wished to dance Richardson's orchestra furnished music. This feature of the entertainment was under the direction of Mr. Thomas F. Shea. Behind the numerous tables some laden with useful and fancy articles and some groaning under the weight of delicious edibles the young ladies of the Sunday school held forth.

The success of the festival is due to the efforts of Miss Eliza C. Sheahan and her efficient aids.

It was decided to hold the lawn party again this evening, and no doubt another large number will attend.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

CITY —OF— QUINCY.

SEALED proposals for paving and curbing Copeland street in accordance with form of specifications to be furnished by the Commissioner of Public Works of the City of Quincy, will be received at the office of said Commissioner, City Hall, until 2 o'clock P. M., of the First day of September 1897, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read. Each proposal must be indorsed "Proposal for paving and curbing Copeland street," and be accompanied by a properly certified check for the sum of Five Hundred Dollars ($500,) payable to City of Quincy, which will be returned to the bidder unless forfeited as hereinafter provided.

A bond will be required for the faithful performance of the contract in such sum as the Commissioner of Public Works shall determine; such sum to be not more than one-third the amount of the contract; the sureties to be residents of Massachusetts and satisfactory to the Commissioner.

The contract must be signed and bond furnished within six days after the notification of acceptance of the proposal and in case of the failure of the bidder to sign contract and furnish bond within said time, the contract and the certified check accompanying the proposal shall be forfeited to the City of Quincy.

The proposa's will be compared on the basis of the following quantities:

Furnishing and laying 7,200 square yards paving.
Furnishing and laying 110 linear feet crossing stones.
Furnishing and setting 3,600 linear feet straight edgestones.
Furnishing and setting 68 linear feet curved edgestones.
Furnishing and setting 7 driveway corners.
Resetting 1,170 linear feet straight edgestones.
Resetting 9 driveway corners.

These quantities are to be considered approximate only and the Commissioner of Public Works expressly reserves the right of increasing or diminishing the same, as he may deem necessary.

The right is reserved to reject any or all proposals or to accept the proposal deemed best for the city.

Sewer on Copeland Street.

The Copeland street section of the sewer, which was commenced some weeks ago by Messrs. Brine of Hyde Park, will be completed under the direction of the Sewer Commissioners. The contract with Messrs. Brine provided that they should employ none but citizens of Quincy.

The Commissioners had difficulty in making the contractors live up to their part of the contract, although some few days ago Mr. Brine showed a representative of the LEDGER his time book from which he stated he had employed 56 Quincy citizens and 16 non-residents. These statements were found to be somewhat exaggerated and last week the Sewer Commissioners refused to give the contractors any more grades and ordered them to stop work. They did not stop however, and Saturday a notice was served upon them through Police of Chief Hayden and work was immediately stopped.

The contractors were given an opportunity to go on and complete the work, according to contract, but they have not done so.

The Sewer Commissioners held a special meeting Tuesday evening at which it was decided to terminate the contract. A notice therefore will be served upon Messrs. Brine stating that as they have abandoned the contract, it has been terminated and that the city will be obliged to finish it.

Up to the present time a little more than half of the section has been completed. It is probable that work will be resumed Thursday morning under the direction of the Sewer Commissioners.

TALK OF THE CITY.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Mrs. E. Frank Mitchell and children are visiting at Augusta, Maine.

Miss Bertha Miles of Squantum street, Atlantic is visiting her aunt in Newburyport.

Miss Mattie Holton of Hancock street is visiting Mrs. Frank Hobart of Mill street.

Miss Edith B. Libbey of Boston is the guest of Miss Nellie Mitchell of Billings street.

Mr. E. J. Murphy, the West Quincy druggist, has returned from a vacation trip to Cottage City.

Mr. George A. Brown and family and Rev. Ira Price and family had an outing at Nantasket yesterday.

The Quincy & Boston St. R. R. base ball club will play Division 5, of South Boston, tomorrow afternoon at 3 30.

Miss Carrie Jennings of Wollaston Park, and the Misses Brown of Atlantic are visiting friends in Plymouth for a week.

Mrs. T. B. Lewis and Master Harry Lewis of Beach street, Wollaston Park, are spending two weeks in Westford, Mass.

The LEDGER will commence Thursday to publish a list of Quincy's heavy taxpayers; giving the names of all who pay a tax of over $50.

City Editor F. F. Prescott of the LEDGER and wife left today for the New England fair and will visit a few days at Portland, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester G. Jones and Miss Hazel Jones of Norfolk Downs start today for Lewiston, Me., where they will remain for two weeks.

Arthur T. Palmer of Wollaston is enjoying a month's fishing and shooting at Phillips, Maine. Wait until you hear the stories when he gets back.

Com. F. Burgess and W. J. Coombs of the Wollaston Yacht club have entered their boats in the Quincy open races to be held on the 19, 20 and 21 instants.

Carlton McNeil of Wharf street celebrated his seventh birthday last Saturday by entertaining a number of his young friends. Games and refreshments made the hours pass pleasantly.

Mrs. Malcolm McKenzie and Miss Jessie Stewart will represent the Daughters of John Adams Ladies' Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 11, of Quincy, at the Supreme Grand Lodge, which will be held in Boston on Wednesday, September 8th.

The Juniors of Atlantic were defeated yesterday in their second ball game by the South Braintree boys by a score of 3 to 2. The little fellows played an exciting game which was witnessed by many grown people. But the Juniors were less fortunate yesterday than the day before when they beat the South Braintree boys by a score of 18 to 13.

Dr. F. C. Merrill of Wollaston, a prominent member of the Wollaston Yacht club returned from a nine days' trip on his yacht Belle along the North shore. The doctor had for guests Mr. A. LeBleu and Mr. E. F. Brown of Wollaston and Mr. Edwin Peppin of Fitchburg. The doctor is very enthusiastic over his cruise and well he might be, for he had delightful weather and witnessed the races at Gloucester, Marblehead and Annisquam during his absence. All hands looked cheerful when they picked up their moorings at 12 o'clock yesterday off the club house.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

—The municipality of Geneva now claim that they have the largest fountain in the world. This fountain has been erected at the ports entrance of that city. It is no less than 300 feet in hight, and may be seen from a great distance, detaching itself like a great white sail flapping through the effect of the wind.

CURED

For a number of years I have been affected with kidney troubles I would be often awakened at night with pains across the small of my back. At times the pain would be so intense that I would have to get out of bed and sit up. My urine was high colored and acid. I was frequently affected with a severe headache upon arising in the morning. I tried a number of kidney cures but derived no benefit, until I heard of Dr. Hobbs Sparagus Kidney Pills. The first box gave me great relief. I am now using the pills and never felt so well in a good many years.

Master William Jacobs of Roxbury, is spending his vacation with his family at Perkins' cottage on Manet avenue.

The Houghs Neck Intermediates would like a game with some sixteen year old team of Quincy. Address, L. F. H, Box 16, Houghs Neck.

Master Harry Moriarty of the Stanley cottage has gone to spend a few weeks with his parents in Cambridge.

Grand concert in aid of the Union chapel Thursday evening.

The people of the Delmonte cottage posed for a picture yesterday.

Pioneers will challenge any ten year old team in Quincy. G. W. Alexandria, captain, Brockton cafe, Houghs Neck.

Mr. Charles J. Kent of Ayer, Mass., is spending his vacation with his folks on Manet beach.

Tomorrow the first open yacht race will take place here, and several yachts are expected tonight.

The concert for the benefit of the chapel on Thursday evening promises to be a treat.

Master Roscoe Ricker entertained several of his young friends on Tuesday at the Tupper cottage on Shelton road where Mr. H. E. Ricker and family of Quincy, are spending the month of August. In the party were:—Fred and Will Howe, Marion Howe, Harold Curtis, Ethel Randall, Reginald Randall, Carl, Albert and Henry Prescott. The little people sailed boats, took a bath, enjoyed one of Mrs. Ricker's fine chowders, and had a jolly good time generally.

FORMAL OPENING.

Of New Line to Squantum to be Held Thursday.

The formal opening of the new street railway line from Atlantic to Squantum will be held Thursday, and will take the form of a trip over the line from Quincy to Squantum and a genuine Rhode Island clambake upon the arrival of the party at Squantum.

A special car containing the invited guests will leave Quincy at 3 o'clock and as the street railway never does anything by halves, those that have received invitations are fortunate.

The list of invited guests includes Mayor Adams of Quincy, Mayor Quincy of Boston, members of the Quincy City Government, the Board of Aldermen of Boston, Superintendent of Streets Wells of Boston, the Metropolitan Park Commissioner and the officers of the street railway.

The Shakers of Mount Lebanon, a community of simple, honest, God-fearing men and women, have prepared the Shaker Digestive Cordial for many years, and it is always the same, simple, honest, curative medicine that has helped to make the Shakers the healthy, long lived people that they are. The Shakers never have indigestion. This is partly owing to their simple mode of life, partly to the wonderful properties of Shaker Digestive Cordial. Indigestion is caused by the stomach glands not supplying enough digestive juice. Shaker Digestive Cordial supplies what's wanting. Shaker Digestive Cordial invigorates the stomach and all its glands so that after awhile they don't need help. As evidence of the honesty of Shaker Digestive Cordial, the formula is printed on every bottle. Sold by druggists, price 10 cents to $1.00 per bottle.

POETICAL COUNCILMAN.

Sunrise at Cape Ann as Told by Hiram W. Phillips.

Councilman Phillips does not allow the City Council to have all his best productions first hand. By chance the LEDGER discovered the following gem by him in a recent issue of the Gloucester Times :

When morning twilight's brightening ray
Night's shadows bid no longer stay,
When pales the beacon's warning fire,
To ethereal realms the stars retire,
When crimson shafts the heavens span,
Then, thou art at thy best, Cape Ann.

In smiling picturesqueness lay
Thy rugged hills of granite gray,
Kissed fondly by the dawn's first beams,
Each crag with rose-like freshness teems.
No other spot on all our coast
Of charms transcending thine can boast.

'Twere vain, though fain would-tongue express
Thy grandeur, rich in loveliness!
When from out the mystic sea
Resplendent with all majesty
Above the gleaming horizon
Up-lifts the glowing glorious sun.

Across old ocean's silvery sheet,
To where thy slopes the waters meet,
With all its beautious wealth untold
Is thrown a path of shimmering gold.
The fisher's sails which fleck the sheen
A vivid grace lend to the scene.

Along the sinuous shores' expanse
All merrily the breakers prance,
O'er sea-moss crowned bowlders dash,
With laughter in the sunlight flash,
Like school boys from restraint set free,
They toss their caps exultingly.

The singing breeze, the tuneful sea,
The concert join the melody.
All that appeals to eye or ear
But gives the heart more gladsome cheer,
More love to God; none less to man,
Dear old, rock-bound, wave-washed Cape Ann.

Quincy, Mass., August, 1897.

TODAY'S COURT.

Alonzo Jones was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Jones was arraigned Tuesday for the same offence and was fined $15, which he paid. He then started immediately for Boston and arrived home on the 10 50 train. As this was the third offence within a year he was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction.

The continued case of Alphonse Grand for keeping and exposing liquor for sale at Weymouth was called. Case continued until Sept. 1.

Eliza Bouvie was arraigned for the larceny of a gold police badge valued at $25 from Edward H. Richardson at Quincy. During the early part of July the girl was stopping at Richardson's house at Norfolk Downs, and when she left the badge also disappeared. The badge in question is one of the famous gold badges presented to the Quincy police a few years ago by Henry H. Faxon.

The girl admitted taking the badge and said she sold it in a jewelry store in Boston. Efforts were made to get it back but it had been melted. The girl, however, promised to make the amount good. She was sentenced to one year at Sherborn.

BATTLE OF CHICKAMAUGA.

The Farmer and His Wife Remembered All Its Important Details.

I stopped at the farmhouse on the battlefield of Chickamauga and asked the old farmer sitting on the doorstep if he lived there when the battle was fought and could give me any particulars about it.

"Yes, sah—lived right yere," he replied as he stood up, "and I shall never forgit that fout. When I got up in the mawnin and went out to milk, I seen about a million Yankee soldiers around."

"Thar was fo' million of 'em, Samuel," corrected his wife as she came around the corner of the house.

"Yes, fo' million, sah, and they had guns and swords and was powerful mad about somethin. I was lookin around fur the cow when a monstrously powerful gineral rode up to me and axed if they might hev a fout on my land. I told him I'd see the ole woman and let him know."

"And I said I reckon they mought if they'd be keerful of the garden sass and not let the pigs out," added the woman.

"Yes, that's what you said," continued the husband, "and when I went out to feed the hawgs I told the gineral so. He seemed powerfully pleased about it and said he wouldn't forgit my kindness. I was feedin the calf when another monstrously powerful gineral rode up and wanted to know if he could git some breakfast. I told him I'd see the old woman and let him know."

"And I said he could if he paid fur it," put in the wife.

"Yes, that's exactly what you said, Hanner, and I went out and told him so. He smiled and bowed and made his hoss prance around, and bimeby he cum in. He ate six 'taters, three slices of fried pork and a monstrous sight of bread and butter. I axed him if he was mad at the Confeds, and he said he was. I axed him why, and he said he'd dun forgot, but was mad all over jest the same and was bound to give 'em down the kentry. I told him it was agin the Bible to fight."

"So did I," added the wife.

"Yes, I remember you told him so, and he didn't deny it. He was jest goin to pay fur his breakfast when another monstrously powerful gineral rode up and axes fur me and wants to know if he kin hev a fout on my land. He was a Confed, and he was bu'stin mad. I told him I'd see the ole woman about it and let him know."

"And I says he kin fout if he didn't tip over the rain bar'l or break down the plum trees."

"That's what you said, Hanner, and I'll swear to it, and the Yankee was so upset that he went away and didn't pay fur his breakfast. Then the Confed said he was hungry, and he ate five taters, fo' slices of fried pork and heaps and heaps of bread and butter. I axed him what he was mad at, and he said them dratted Yanks had stole his feather bed. I told him it was ag'in the Bible to fout, but he didn't keer shucks. He was eatin away when a man steps in and says the fout was ready to be fitten, and the monstrously powerful gineral hurries out and don't pay fur his breakfast."

"But I told yo' to go arter him," said the wife.

"Yes, Hanner, you did, and I went along, but jest then the fout begun. Sakes alive, but I never want to see another sich time!"

"What did you see?" I asked.

"Why, the awfullest, powerfullest sights in the world, sah. They tore down the hogpen, upsot the hen roost, wrecked the mewl shed and tramped all my garden sass into the airth, and if I hadn't stood right thar with a club they'd hev stole all our soft soap and hard cider."

"And is that all?"

"Is that all? Why, what ar' yo' lookin fur, stranger? Mebbe yo'd druther sumbody else would tell yo' about this fout—sumbody who wasn't yere."

"Yes, mebbe he'd druther," added the wife as I started for the gate.

A Courageous Woman.

Mrs. Alfred C. Thatcher of Meeting House hill, Dorchester, has proven herself to be a woman of more than ordinary courage and determination. Yesterday morning about 2 o'clock she was awakened by a buzzing sound down stairs. Being alone in a dwelling on Percival street, she arose and went to the head of the stairs; on listening she found the burglars were discussing the merits of some silver plate. In a loud voice she cried:

"I say, wake up quick; there are burglars down stairs. Get your revolver and go down."

This conversation was supposed to be to her husband, but no man was in the house.

"Come, hurry, or they will have all the silver," continued Mrs. Thatcher.

The next instant there was a rush of feet, and two dark forms disappeared through the rear window.

Privateer Wins at Newburyport.

A splendid two-reefed northwest breeze greeted the yachts at the open race at Newburyport Tuesday. But two Quincy boats participated, the Privateer and Little Peter.

The former was an easy winner in the second class.

Little Peter was leading her class a pretty race until she smashed her tiller.

The winners in the several classes were: Reynard, Privateer, Arab III, Fantasy and Crack-a-Jack.

Fire Chiefs' Convention.

New Haven, Aug. 18.—Including the ladies there were over 1000 persons in the procession of the fire chiefs yesterday. After President Devine had called the convention to order Mayor Farnsworth welcomed the delegates to New Haven. Ex-Mayor Hendrick, upon the part of the fire department, welcomed the chiefs to New Haven. Other speakers were Chief Cannen of England, Chiefs Kennedy of New Haven, Watt Taylor of Richmond, Humphries of Pittsburg, Hale of Kansas City and Fire Commissioner Stevenson of Montreal and Congressman Sperry. After the speeches President Devine announced the following committees: Credentials—Chiefs Hosmer of Lowell, Mass.; Harris of Tampa, Fla.; Muller, Peoria, Ills.; Elmer, Jackson, Mich., and Jones, Westport. Exhibitions—Roulett, Augusta, Ga.; Hopkins, Somerville, Mass.; Kellogg, Sioux City, Ia.; Kirsted, Newark, N. J., and Kohn, Allentown, Pa. The convention then took a recess.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

GENERAL SWAIM DEAD

Hero of Many Battles Succumbs to Bright's Disease.

Ex-Judge Advocate of United States Army.

Lifelong Friend of James A. Garfield---His One Mistake.

Washington, Aug. 18.—General David G. Swaim, retired, ex-advocate general of the United States army, died here yesterday of bright's disease.

General Swaim was born in Salem, O., Dec. 22, 1834. He came of a family represented in all of the early wars of the United States, conspicuously in the war of 1812. His father was the friend of Joshua R. Giddings, Salmon P. Chase and other advanced political thinkers of the day, and was one of the few men who organized the Free Soil party in Ohio.

General Swaim received an academic education, studied law and began practice at Salem. On the outbreak of the war he entered the volunteer service as a lieutenant, rising rapidly to the rank of major and brevet colonel when mustered out in 1866. He served throughout the war, participating in many memorable engagements, and being for a time on the staff of General Thomas. After the war he was attached to the regular army as major and judge advocate. In the latter capacity he distinguished himself in cases involving the constitutionality of the reconstruction acts of congress, tried before the United States courts of Mississippi.

On Feb. 18, 1878, President Hayes appointed him judge advocate general of the army with the rank of brigadier general. He was the trusted friend of and companion of President Garfield, and attended him through the long hours that preceded his untimely death. In 1884 he was accused of giving evasive answers to the secretary of war regarding a private transaction, tried by court-martial and acquitted of fraudulent practices, but convicted of conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline. The sentence imposed by the military court was disapproved. The court then sentenced General Swaim to suspension from rank and duty on half pay for 12 years. This brought the expiration of his sentence and the date of his retirement the same year (1896). General Swaim sued in the court of claims to recover his full pay, the court deciding that the evidence showed no offense, but that the court of claims had no jurisdiction to review court-martial proceedings. The case went to the supreme court on appeal and was decided adversely.

Dec. 3, 1894, Secretary Lamont, by direction of the president, remitted the unexpired portion of his sentence and restored him to all the rights and privileges of his office. He preferred not to take up his official duties on account of ill health and remained on the active list waiting his retirement, which took place Dec. 22, 1896.

Since his retirement he resided in Washington. He leaves a widow and one child, the wife of L. L. Thompson of this city.

Coal Operators Are Angry.

Cleveland, Aug. 18.—The operators of the Pennsylvania coal mines held a conference in this city yesterday. It was determined that mines in the Pittsburg district should be worked and operated without further delay on the grounds that the miners have taken a high handed position; that nothing but an unreasonable price for mining will satisfy their demand and that they have been unwilling to treat the operators on fair grounds, also that there is no course left open to the operators at this time. It was determined that all coal sold at the 54 cent basis of mining this year must be mined at that price. No change in the price of mining will be considered until the contracts made at the 54 cent basis of mining are filled and the uniformity agreement is complete. At least three-fourths of the tonnage of the Pittsburg district was represented at the conference, and all were unanimous and agreed, if necessary, to forcibly resume operations, with the exception of M. A. Hanna & Co.

Old Counterfeits.

Washington, Aug. 18.—There were presented to the treasury department yesterday for redemption two $1000 7-30 notes of the issue of June 15, 1865. The persons making the presentation were a business firm of Louisville. Upon examination the notes were found to be counterfeits, being a part of a very large issue of counterfeit notes which appeared in the principal bond markets about 1865 and 1867. The imitation of the genuine is so complete that many of the principal dealers in United States securities purchased them freely and only discovered that they had been victimized when the notes were thrown out by the authorities at Washington. The loss to bankers and dealers through this counterfeit amounted probably to several hundred thousand dollars.

Choked His Father to Death.

Binghampton, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Frank Dickinson, aged about 60 years, was merdered by his son at Cortland last night. Mr. Dickinson and his son, Leroy, quarreled. Finally the younger Dickinson caught his father by the throat and choked him to death. The young man claims that he did not intend to kill his father. He claims his father threatened to do him violence and he grappled with him. He succeeded in catching the old man by the throat and held him more firmly than he intended. The son was arrested and is now in custody.

Canadian Boat Again Victorious.

Montreal, Aug. 18.—In a wind that blew fully 20 miles an hour and in a heavy sea, Glencairn II yesterday won her second race over the Momo. One more win—and with the stiff breeze likely to prevail today there would seem but little doubt of this outcome—and the Seawanhaka-Corinthian challenge cup will remain in Canada for still another year. Glencairn again emphatically demonstrated her superiority over the American boat in a stiff blow.

The Refractometer

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent occulists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.

I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.

F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.

I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.

DUKE AND DUCHESS OF YORK.

Tories Trying to Make Political Capital of Their Visit to Ireland.

Dublin, Aug. 18.—The Duke and Duchess of York arrived here today to pay their long expected visit to Ireland. They are the guests of Earl Cadogan, lord lieutenant of Ireland, and Countess Cadogan, and will be entertained at the vice regal lodge. The city is lavishly decorated in honor of the royal visitors.

The visit is in a sense official, as representing the queen's concession to oft repeated Irish grumbling at "royal slight to the Emerald Isle." The Tories are endeavoring to attach as much political importance to it as possible. Everything is to be done that could give it exceptional social brilliancy. Nowhere in the United Kingdom does a "show" call forth more enthusiasm than in Ireland, and in the presence of royalty even the bitterness of party politics seems to vanish. Recollections of the visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales in 1885 are still fresh, and no one has forgotten the universal and fervent expressions of loyalty which it called forth in spite of Mr. Parnell's repeated demands that his followers should not recognize the visit, and despite the injunctions of the archbishop of Cashel to preserve a "dignified reserve."

Klondyke Steamer Delayed.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 18.—The steamer Humboldt, which was to have sailed for St. Michaels, Alaska, with 350 passengers and 400 tons of freight, destined for Dawson City, is in the hands of United States deputy marshals. When the boat was about to sail yesterday the passengers discovered that a large amount of their freight was to be left on the dock. They were very angry and held a mass meeting. Mayor Wood of Seattle, who is manager of the boat, was called upon to explain and promised that those who left provisions would be properly cared for, and that the goods would be shipped on the next boat. This did not suit the crowd, which demanded a guarantee. Arthur Seymour of Haverhill, Mass., made a speech demanding that the rights of those who had paid for tickets and freight be conserved. Incidentally he said that he supposed there were those in the crowd who would like to hang the mayor. His words had an explosive effect, but he managed to restore order, and a committee was appointed to adjust matters. At this point it was announced that John Galivan of Spokane had libelled the steamer. Matters bid fair to be settled so that the steamer will get away today.

Canada Lenient to Miners.

Washington, Aug. 18.—It is not believed by officials of the government that any serious hardships will be imposed by Canada upon American miners in the Klondyke gold regions. It is pointed out that it would be difficult to enforce any serious impositions upon the miners. Such a course might result in retaliation enforced by the United States so as to make it almost impossible for the Canadians to go or to return from the Klondyke country. If this country should prevent Canadian officials from entering the Klondyke country through American territory, they would be obliged to reach the country over thousands of miles of unexplored country. While it is said that there has been no correspondence bearing directly on the point of impositions upon American miners, there is an intimation that Canada desires to be very friendly as to the Northwestern conditions, and that there is a disposition to co-operate, so as to further the interests of all concerned. It is said that in imposing the 10 per cent royalty on the gold output equally on Canadians and Americans, the United States can have no cause for complaint.

Advice to Canadian Press.

Ottawa, Aug. 18.—The minister of railways, Hon. A. G. Blair, was asked yesterday as to what he thought of the alleged attempt to construe section 22 of the Dingley bill so as to make it operate severely against Canadian railways. In reply the minister said that he did not think it was the intention of the congress to enlarge the scope of the section from what it appeared in the Wilson act. The language used in the amendment undoubtedly made it a little broader, but he did not think it was intended to apply to railways, although perhaps it was capable of that interpretation. He advised the Canadian press to keep cool about the matter, because he added, it would be time enough for Canadians to adopt a line of action when the authorities at Washington interpreted the clause as some interested parties were anxious to have it interpreted.

Scarcity of Seals Reported.

Washington, Aug. 18.—Captain Shoemaker, the chief of the revenue cutter service, has received a report from Captain Hooper, commanding the Bering sea patrol fleet, in which he says that on July 6 the Grant landed Professor Stejeneger, the American seal commissioner, on Commander islands, where the British ship Linet was found with Commissioner Barret-Hamilton on board. The British ship Rainbow, with Commissioner d'Arcy Thompson, was expected in a few days. A scarcity of seals is reported on the Commander islands, and very few have been seen in the sea going or coming. The report also states that owing to the scarcity of seals the low prices offered by dealers and the high price demanded by the Indian hunters the majority of the British Columbia sealing fleet will not fit out this season.

Iowa Republicans Meet.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Aug. 18.—The Republican state convention met here today. There appears to be a combination of the field against Parrot, with the labor and railroad organizations opposing him on account of his position on the Temple amendment. Other positions on the ticket are not mentioned, with the exception of the supreme judgeship. It is conceded that if Parrot is not nominated Leggett Fairfield will not be in the race. Senators Gear, Allison and members of the congressional delegations are already in attendance among the workers.

CROP REPORT.

Weather the Past Week Was Only Fairly Good. Too Much Rain.

Boston, Aug. 17.—The week just closed gave frequent showers over the larger portion of New England, with a general rain on the 11th. In western Massachusetts rain fell on every day but two. There were heavy local storms, with hail, in western New Hampshire and parts of Vermont on the 9th, also in Worcester county, Massachusetts, where the storm near Royalston and Winchendon was almost a cloudburst. Several days of the week, however, were fine, and crops not past improvement show better conditions. The temperature was as a rule favorable, although falling rather low at night.

Maine.

A heavy downpour of rain Wednesday night, 11th, laid stout grain flat, and rust is doing some damage also. Potatoes are doing fairly well. This crop is not entirely free from blight, although the loss thus far is not great. The prospect for corn is doubtful, but more promising at this time. A few fields of grain are ripening. Pastures excellent. A large crop of blackberries is on the way. Apples scarce.

New Hampshire.

The past week was generally good for haying, which is completed on uplands, but meadow lands are a failure. The second growth of grass is in the main light. Potatoes are a very deficient yield and small. Corn is not earing well on moist lands; in fact a large proportion of the crop will be fit only for silo. Rowen is a heavy crop; oats mostly harvested for fodder. Blackberries, early apples and peaches are plentiful. Pastures continue in the best of condition.

Vermont.

Haying is generally finished. The crop is spoken of as above the average in quantity, but of a poor quality. Corn, in order to mature well, will need the most favorable weather from now on. Reports on potatoes are becoming less favorable. The excessive rains are beginning to tell on this crop, especially on low lands. "Small and few in a hill" is the complaint.

Massachusetts.

In the eastern counties all crops have made good growth the past week; in the central and western sections frequent showers have retarded harvesting. Late potatoes are showing blight, and in the western part of the state are almost a total loss. Corn grows fast. Rowen will be heavy on well fertilized lands. Tomatoes ripen slowly and continue to blast. Millet and late barley looking well. Peaches are rotting on the trees in the east, ripening well in the west. Grapes show little rot. Cranberry prospects not of the best, much damage by worms. Farmers are still making hay west of the Connecticut. Tobacco poor.

Rhode Island.

Little change has occurred in the general situation during the past week. Early crops are about all harvested and late crops are ripening. The potato rot has appeared to some extent, causing smaller shipments to market. Corn on low lands will largely be a failure, but on dry lands the outlook for the crop is good. The ground is in fine shape for fall seeding. A remarkable freedom from injury by insects has characterized the season.

Connecticut.

A slight change for the better is noted, but all crops now require maturing weather, of which there is not enough. Potatoes are uncertain; the blight is spreading, and if not checked will destroy the late planted crop. Corn will hardly fully recover except on favorable lands; its present progress is very slow. Haying is finished in most localities, while in others it is still dragging. White onions are about all pulled; light yield. Peaches ripening prematurely; small and flavorless and rotting badly. Condition of tobacco poor. Oats practically harvested in fair to good order. The average for all crops will be low.

Section Director.

Music at Newport, N. H.

Newport, N. H., Aug. 18.—Yesterday's exercises at the 21st annual music festival of Sullivan county in the Opera house were principally practice work by the chorus of 125 voices, under the direction of Carl Zerrahm and Martha Dana Shepard, pianist. Choruses from "The Redemption," "The Dream," and the "Evening Hymn" were sung. There will be three matinees on Wednsday, Thursday and Friday afternoons, and two grand concerts on Thursday and Friday evenings. The solists will be Miss Gertrude Dymond, soprano; Miss Jennie Mae Spencer, contralto; Thomas Johnson, tenor; J. C. Bartlett, tenor; George H. Remelee, baritone; Dr. George R. Clark, basso. The German orchestra and the Albion quartette of Boston will also participate. The festival bids fair to be the best ever held in this section of the state.

Was Prominent In Central Maine.

Clinton, Me., Aug. 18.—John Patterson Billings, the largest manufacturer of "hand-made" ax handles in New England, dropped dead at the Maine Central railroad station yesterday morning from heart trouble. Mr. Billings was a prominent man of central Maine, had been twice elected selectman of Clinton and town auditor for years. He had been twice married, by his first wife one son survives him, George, a partner in business. By his second wife there were two children, Grace F. and David S., both living. The deceased was a leading member of the Free Baptist church, past master of Sebasticook lodge, F. and A. M., and belonged to Clinton grange.

Don't Care If It Does Rain.

Newport, Me., Aug. 18.—The gathering at Camp Benson increases, notwithstanding the weather has thus far proved such that in the four days past the programs laid out have had to be given up. It was expected Department Commander Carleton and staff would be present yesterday, but continued ill health prevented his appearance. Burlesque sports have been in order, while large parties have devoted their time to fishing in the lake, which is well stocked. No one speaks of breaking camp and utter indifference is shown that plans laid out prove failures.

A codfish recently caught off Flamboro Head had inside of it 59 fish hooks.

Governor Powers at Camp Benson.

Newport, Me., Aug. 19.—The unexpected occurred at Camp Benson yesterday in the arrival of Governor Powers with a part of his staff. That it excited a ripple of excitement and much pleasure was plainly shown by the old veterans present, who are happy as boys. The governor delivered a rousing speech, in which the G. A. R. was greatly lauded. Brief remarks were also made by Hon. Isiah Stetson of Bangor. A review of the veterans was held from headquarters.

Race Stopped by Rain.

Boston, Aug. 19.—Rain necessitated the stopping of the six-day bicycle race at Charles River park at 9 o'clock last night instead of 10 o'clock, the usual time, and an extra hour will be put in by the riders today, starting an hour earlier. Waller and Barnaby, the two leaders, still keep neck and neck, and are tied with a grand total of 472 miles, each having put 146 miles 1 lap to his credit yesterday, a remarkably fine showing.

Young Man Disappears.

Lexington, Mass., Aug. 19.—Charles Walcott, aged 26 years, and a son of Willard Walcott of this town, has disappeared in a very mysterious manner. A week ago he attended a ball game in Boston. He was seen there, but not afterwards. He was well dressed and had $25 and a gold watch with him. Being of good habits his family fear that something serious has befallen him.

Found Dead In Barn.

Ellsworth, Me., Aug. 19.—John G. Remick, aged 62, a well-known resident of this place, died suddenly of heart disease yesterday afternoon. He went to the stable to water his horses and was found dead on the floor. He was born in Otis, owned a mill there and was in the lumbering business for many years. He came to Ellsworth 10 years ago. He leaves a widow, daughter and two sons.

Smith G. Davis Arrested at Father's Home In Montgomery.

Deputy Sheriff Went to House After Midnight

Warrants Issued For Others Implicated In Dora Cushman's Death.

Vergennes, Vt., Aug. 19.—A sunken-eyed young man, whose name has been on the tongues of people all over New England for the past few days, is locked up in jail here. He is Smith Davis, and from the time of the discovery of Dora Cushman's body on the bank of a brook near Lincoln, to midnight Tuesday he succeeded in evading the clutches of the officers, who were hot on his trail.

Davis looks haggard and worn. He is sanguine as to the outcome, however, and believes that public sentiment is with him.

Davis was arrested at his father's home at Montgomery by Deputy Sheriff Martin of that place after midnight of Tuesday.

Davis claimed that he was not evading the officers, but on the contrary was on his way to Lincoln to give himself up. He was brought to Vergennes by Deputy Sheriff Martin, accompanied by State Attorney Fish, where they arrived about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Davis says that when he went away from Lincoln, he left the train some 25 miles from Montgomery and walked to his father's house, where he expected he could obtain a supply of money, and then cross into Canada and work his way to California. This theory is borne out by the fact that he had written his father that he intended going there soon. Davis was taken to the jail at Middlebury, and the hearing in his case has been postponed until Friday, or Tuesday of next week, this action being taken in order to give the state time to work up some points which they need in the case. Davis' father is at Lincoln looking the ground over in the interest of his son.

It is stated that warrants will be issued today for William Brittell, who has been held as a witness since Sunday, charging him with being an accessory to the crime, and that he will be removed to the county jail. Extra deputy sheriffs are in town, and it is understood that other arrests will be made in connection with the case, but it is impossible to learn the names of the implicated parties.

A RECORD BREAKER.

Between 30,000 and 40,000 People at New England Fair Yesterday.

Portland, Me., Aug. 19.—Yesterday was a big day for the New England fair. The crowd at Rigby park was estimated all the way from 30,000 to 40,000 people. It was the largest attendance in the history of the park, if not the greatest ever known on a Maine fair ground. The streets were lined with spectators in the morning during the parade of the crews of the White Squadron and the company of United States cavalry. The procession was reviewed in front of city hall by Governor Powers and staff, Admiral Sicard and staff, Adjutant General Richards and officers of the First regiment, Maine National Guards, members of the city government and others. A reception followed in Mayor Randall's office, and at noon a lunch was served in the common council room. In the evening the war vessels in the harbor were illuminated, and the grand spectacle was a delight to all.

Owing to the many attractions between the heats, but one of the horse races at Rigby was finished. It was an ideal day for racing, and the track was in perfect shape. Two events were on the card—the 2:29 trot and the 2:20 pace. Both events were well split up, and at 7 p. m. it was found impossible to finish the pacing race, which will be concluded today. Gordon won the 2:29 event.

John S. Johnson of Worcester, Mass., won both the bicycle races, his time being 12 min. 2 3-5 secs. in the five mile open and 1:09½ in the half mile open. Brad Himeon of Arlington, Mass., finished second in the five-mile race, with H. P. Hills of Providence third. In the two mile E. J. Rogers of Melrose, Mass., came in second, and H. P. Hills third

Today is governor's day, and a reception will be tendered Governor Powers and staff.

DENOUNCED BY POST 13.

An Anonymous Circular Brings Up "House of Lords" Controversy Again.

Brockton, Mass., Aug. 19.—The controversy between the so-called "House of Lords" in the state encampment and Fletcher Webster post 13, G. A. R., of this city, is once more brought to public attention, this time through a peculiar incident found in the distribution of what is claimed to be an anonymous circular. The document was signed "U. S. Dudley Secretary Massachusetts G. A. R. Reform association." Neither the association nor the secretary are known to the local post, or can they find any trace of either. The circular is in resolution form, and commences by saying that "Whereas it is impossible to reform the unwarranted abuse of power now existing within the Grand Army of the Republic, as now conducted, etc.," and saying the house of lords have arrogated to themselves self constituted power, and increasing in number year by year they dominate both state and national encampments with utter disregard of the foundation of fundamental principals upon which the order was founded.

It further denounces the high handed course of the present commander against the post in Brockton, and thanks those that have stood by them and asks others to come out and do the same. It finally asks that they indorse a convention to be called Sept. 15 in Boston at such place as may be designated by said committee of reforms of the Massachusetts G. A. R., and that upon indorsing the above by vote return to post 13, Brockton Mass., as soon as possible.

Post 13 met last night, and after receiving as a souvenir an autograph letter of Fletcher Webster, after whom the post is named, adopted resolutions denouncing the circular and denying all knowledge of its origin.

Andrews May Be Retained.

Cottage City, Mass., Aug. 19.—Rev. Nelson B. Jones of Boston, who is the leader of the Baptist meetings here and Brown alumnus, was seen relative to the report that Rev. B. L. Whitman, D. D., president of Columbian university, Washington, would succeed to the presidency of Brown. Mr. Jones said that President Andrews will undoubtedly be retained against any man who is not a Brown graduate; also that he believes that a man should be upheld against even a Massachusetts congressman in his personal expressions of opinion. As far as Mr. Jones has heard any expressions among the Baptists here anent the Andrews matter the opinion is that all differences will be healed and that President Andrews will be indorsed in so far as his continuance in Brown university is concerned. Rev. O. P. Gifford, D. D., of Buffalo, formerly pastor of Warren Avenue Baptist church, Boston, said that President Andrews' resignation has not yet been acted upon. His action may be indorsed. "I should judge it probable that he will not be censured, and that he will continue at Brown if he cares to do so. I hope he will."

Massachusetts Benefit Receivers.

Boston, Aug. 19.—Temporary receivers have been appointed for the Massachusetts Benefit Life association, and the corporation has been restrained from doing any further business. This action was taken yesterday when Attorney General Knowlton, Assistant Attorney General Hammond and B. N. Johnson, counsel for the association, appeared before Judge Lathrop of the supreme judicial court and laid before him the circumstances of the case. Attorney General Knowlton suggested the names of Alfred S. Woodworth of Boston, president of the Eagle National bank, and Arthur Lord of Plymouth, a lawyer having an office in Boston, as receivers, and Judge Lathrop appointed them. Bonds of the temporary receivers were fixed at $25,000 each, and an injunction was issued restraining the corporation from doing any further business. An order of notice was also issued, returnable Sept. 3, for the officers of the association and others to appear and show reason why permanent receivers should not be appointed.

Aquatic Sports at New Bedford.

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 19.—The semi-centennial sub-committee on aquatic sports have decided to have a whaleboat race with prizes of $75, $40, $25 and $10 off Clark's point on Oct. 14, the last day of the celebration. On the same day there will be a cutter race between crews of the Newport naval reserves and a picked crew from G company, naval brigade, M. V. M. Both races will be over a three-mile course. A committee will visit Worcester to extend a special invitation to Ten Eyck to be present on the day of the aquatic sports.

Protest by Board of Trade.

Portland, Me., Aug. 19.—At a special meeting of the board of trade yesterday resolutions were adopted unanimously that the Portland board of trade earnestly protest against any construction of section 22 of the tariff act approved July 24, 1897, which shall make the discriminating duty of 10 per cent provided therein applicable to merchandise, when imported from or through a country contiguous to the United States by railroads or conveyance other than vessels. The resolutions were at once forwarded by the secretary to the attorney general to be used in the pending investigation.

Tennis Championship.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19.—The annual lawn tennis championship of the National association began yesterday with a grand contest for the championship in doubles, in which the British pair, Mahony and Nisbet, were defeated by the combined forces of Harvard and Yale in Leo Ware and George P. Sheldon, Jr., after nearly three hours of continuous play, and in a match which took two hotly contested sets to decide. Nearly all of the 30 matches in the preliminary rounds in the championship tournament for singles were cleared up.

Commander Carleton Improving.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 19.—Hon. L. T. Carleton, the department commander of Maine G. A. R., yesterday announced that he would undoubtedly be able by Saturday to leave Portland with the party from Maine to attend the national encampment at Buffalo. He has been very sick the past week, suffering from overwork. Assistant Adjutant General L. B. Hill of this city saw him yesterday at Winthrop, where Mr. Carleton is recuperating at his home, and found him very much stronger than he has been.

DOUBLE MURDER ABOARD SHIP.

Captain and Mate Murdered by Mutineers—Vessel Then Set on Fire.

(Special to the Daily Ledger.)

Boston, Aug. 19.—A Buenos Ayres cablegram received in this city yesterday announced the death of Captain Whitman and Mate William Saunders, and the burning at sea of the schooner Olive Pecker, of this port, and the landing of the crew at Bahai.

The information conveyed was meagre and all day the owners of the vessel waited anxiously for more definite news.

That the tragedy is one that will equal that of the barkentine Herbert Fuller butchery there can be little doubt, but the lack of facts make it a case of supposition mainly. It is presumed from the fact of the murder that the crew mutinied, and, after killing Captain Whitman and the first officer, set fire to the vessel and escaped to the shore.

The similarity of the murder with that of the Fuller grows more apparent when it is known that the two vessels belonged to the same company here in Boston, that they were engaged in the same line of trade, and that Captain Nash and Captain Whitman were particular friends for years.

The supposition is that the men are under arrest, as the United States consul at Bahia would assume charge of them upon their arrival there.

The Pecker must have been very near her destination when the tragedy occurred. For this reason it is thought the crew landed at Bahia Blanca, which is about 70 miles from Buenos Ayres, instead of at Bahia, as the brief telegram stated.

When the intelligence reached here it spread rapidly throughout the shipping community, and caused intense excitement among the ship brokers and ship masters now in port. The similarity between this affair and the terrible murder on the Herbert Fuller caused much comment. The Fuller was on a passage identical to that of the Pecker when the captain, his wife and the second mate were murdered, only a few days out from this port in June, 1896.

The crew of the Olive Pecker consisted of Captain J. W. Whitman, aged 44, who resided at Rockland, Me., where he leaves a widow and little girl about 12 years of age. The mate, William Harsburgh, was 22 years old, and belongs in Maine. Little is known of him, as he was shipped the day before the vessel left Mystic wharf, having been engaged to fill the place of the old first mate, who was discharged by Captain Whitman for inattention to duty. The second mate's name is William Mitchell, 39 years old, a native of France; Steward Peter Thompson, a Dane, 43, and Seamen Andrew March, a native of England, 36; Manuel Barlat, a Spaniard, 33; John Lind, a native of Sweden, 27, and William Saunders of Nova Scotia, 46.

Captain Whitman, on his voyage to South America last fall, had a crew of negroes, and the officers of the vessel had considerable difficulty with them.

When the vessel left Portland some members of the crew assaulted the first mate with a knife, cutting a terrible gash in his face and making it necessary to anchor the vessel while the mate was sent back to Portland for treatment.

No further trouble was experienced after the vessel sailed for her destination and later a new crew was shipped.

The murdered captain was a good-sized man, and was perfectly able to take care of himself in a hand-to-hand fight, and for that reason it is believed that the murders were committed while the captain was below in his cabin, with First Mate Saunders on watch.

Harsburg, who is suspected of complicity in the crime, is a native of Scotland, but lived somewhere in Maine, it is said.

Whitman Was Well Liked.

Rockland, Me., Aug. 19.—The news of the murder of Captain J. W. Whitman was received with profound sorrow in this city, where he has for many years made his home, and where his widow and daughter reside. Mrs. Whitman, who is of very delicate health, was terribly overcome. She hopes that it is all a terrible mistake. She regrets that she did not take the trip with her husband, and seems to think that if she had the tragedy would not have occurred.

Captain Whitman was 42 years old. He was a native of Guisboro, N. S., and began to follow the sea when very young. For several years he sailed from Gloucester, Mass., as captain of a fishing schooner. After he moved to this city he went as captain of the fishing schooner Grace Young, and for two years he sailed this vessel in a most able way. He then went in the schooner Addie Snow and then in the Eugene Borda and later in the three-masted schooner Hattie Marsh.

After making several trips in this vessel he bought a share in the schooner Olive Pecker, and up to the time of this frightful murder he has been one of the most successful captains of this vicinity. He was a man of good character and much beloved by all. A captain who was always on the go and his vessel was never lying idle if anything possible could be obtained for business. He was a daring and capable captain, and had gained for himself a wide reputation as being one of the most competent masters that sailed from these parts.

Parker—Merrill.

Mr. Walter E. Merrill of Everett and Miss H. Grace Parker of Boston were married, Aug. 17th at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Walter O. Parker, corner Winthrop and Lincoln avenues, Wollaston, the marriage ceremony being conducted by the Rev. James E. Bagley pastor of the Unitarian church, Wollaston.

The bride was given away by her brother; the niece of the bride, little Gladys May Parker, was flower girl. The house was prettily decorated with palms, evergreens, goldenrod, etc.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrill will spend their honeymoon traveling through the state of Maine, visiting the watering places, as well as some of the country summer resorts; after which they will return to Wollaston, where they will commence housekeeping on Winthrop avenue.

Their many friends wish them a happy and prosperous married life.

Readville Park.

Horsemen, together with all other admirers of the fast trotter and pacer, are awaiting with fond expectations the grand circuit trotting meeting which opens at Readville Park next Monday, and continues for five days.

The casual visitor to the race track will naturally inquire which day will be the best. When the pudding is full of choice plums it is a difficult matter to select one that is in any respect superior to the others. If the fleet pacers are your favorite, and you wish to see the fastest group of famous side-wheelers that ever met to struggle for supremacy on any track of the world, then you should be present Monday when the pacers of 2.08 class go.

Possibly you had rather see the trotters in the 2.11 class, on Tuesday. There is a mighty field of them, including Grace Hastings, who has to her credit the fastest mile of the year, 2:08 1-2.

Wednesday the Massachusetts $5000 stake will be trotted. A dozen or more of the stoutest-hearted race horses living eligible to the 2.15 class last May will start.

Two great pacing and one trotting race will be on the card for Thursday, and probably Joe Patchen will go a mile to wipe out the 2.00 1-2 of Gentry and endeavor to give to the world the two-minute record.

Eighty-Second Year.

Mr. George H. Locke, one of Quincy's well known citizens, and who for many years held public office under the town form of government, passed his eighty-second milestone Wednesday, and many of his friends who were aware of the fact took occasion to call upon him during the day, at his home on Washington street, to extend congratulations. Many of his callers did not go empty handed and he received a number of remembrances.

TROUBLE SETTLED.

Messrs. Brine to Complete Their Contract on Copeland Street.

The LEDGER announced Wednesday that the Sewer Commissioners had terminated their contract with Messrs Brine, the contractors on the Copeland street sewer, which was true, but since that time there has been another change and instead of the work being completed under the direction of the Commissioners it will be completed by Messrs. Brine who will resume work today or tomorrow.

This turn of affairs was brought about Wednesday at a conference between City Solicitor Blackmur, Mr. Brine, and his counsel.

At the conclusion of the conference it was settled that Messrs. Brine should go on and complete his contract according to the terms of the contract, which is that he shall employ citizens of Quincy upon the work. He is however permitted to employ a certain number of skilled men who shall not necessarily be citizens of Quincy.

The whole trouble in this matter seems to be the question of what constitutes a citizen; or the interpretation of the word citizen, coupled with the interference of certain people evidently for political purposes.

The opinion of business men in general is that the method of building the sewer as employed on Copeland street is a failure. They however agree, and believe that as far as possible preference should be given to citizens of Quincy, but to let a contract and bind the contractor to employ none but citizens of Quincy places the contractor in an uncertain position.

MILTON.

A petition is being circulated at East Milton in favor of the appointment of James Lord as janitor of the East school. The present janitor is John Graham, who has filled the position ever since the school was built. He has, we learn, given perfect satisfaction not only to the school board but to the citizens as well, as is evident from the fact that he has been reappointed this year, notwithstanding the petition for Mr. Lord.

Mr. J. E. Quimby is visiting his father, Rev. I. P. Quimby, at Hampton beach.

Eugene Gallagher, clerk at John Curtis' store, is having a week's vacation.

Miss Eleanor Graham is visiting at Hampton beach.

The East Milton foot ball team has begun to train for the autumn games.

A band concert is to be given at East Milton at an early date.

Adjoining the East Milton park is an unused school building and the citizens think that it should be turned over to the Park Commissioners to be used as a gymnasium in connection with the park. The town has already expended something like $20,000 on land and improvements on the park.

Rev. A. S. Gilbert, pastor of the Congregational church, is enjoying his vacation at fishing; and it is said that eels and flounders are becoming scarce in some quarters.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhœa. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

CITY —OF— QUINCY.

SEALED proposals for paving and curbing Copeland street in accordance with form of specifications to be furnished by the Commissioner of Public Works of the City of Quincy, will be received at the office of said Commissioner, City Hall, until 2 o'clock P. M., of the First day of September 1897, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read. Each proposal must be indorsed "Proposal for paving and curbing Copeland street," and be accompanied by a properly certified check for the sum of Five Hundred Dollars ($500,) payable to City of Quincy, which will be returned to the Lidder unless forfeited as hereinafter provided.

A bond will be required for the faithful performance of the contract in such sum as the Commissioner of Public Works shall determine; such sum to be not more than one-third the amount of the contract; the sureties to be residents of Massachusetts and satisfactory to the Commissioner.

The contract must be signed and bond furnished within six days after the notification of acceptance of the proposal and in case of the failure of the bidder to sign contract and furnish bond within said time, the contract and the certified check accompanying the proposal shall be forfeited to the City of Quincy.

The proposals will be compared on the basis of the following quantities:

Furnishing and laying 7,200 square yards paving.
Furnishing and laying 110 linear feet crossing stones.
Furnishing and setting 3,600 linear feet straight edgestones.
Furnishing and setting 68 linear feet curved edgestones.
Furnishing and setting 7 driveway corners.
Resetting 1,170 linear feet straight edgestones.
Resetting 9 driveway corners.

These quantities are to be considered approximate only and the Commissioner of Public Works expressly reserves the right of increasing or diminishing the same, as he may deem necessary.

The right is reserved to reject any or all proposals or to accept the proposal deemed best for the city.

CHARLES F. KNOWLTON,
Commissioner of Public Works.

AN INVENTOR'S ILLS.

OBTAINING A PATENT NOT THE LEAST OF THEM.

No Necessity For Hasty Action—Deliberation May Save Trouble and Money—Difference Between a Good Patent and a Poor One.

Regarding the oft repeated statement that delays are dangerous there is probably no field of work in which delays are less dangerous than in taking out patents. Few things justify being patented before they are tried. The United States patent laws are the most liberal and favorable to the inventor of any in the world, and by them he is allowed two years of public use of his invention prior to the date of his application without in any way prejudicing his right. In an ordinary case the inventor should show a drawing or a photograph of his invention or the machine itself to a few of his personal friends. The drawing should be signed and dated by these friends or a signed and dated statement that the machine was seen by them should be made. In case of any question of priority (interference) between him and another inventor, this drawing or statement will serve as proof to the patent examiner of the date to which he is entitled. The immediate filing of an application can do no more than this, as any patent is liable to be thrown into interference during the first two years of its life. The only reason for haste that can possibly be urged is the avoidance of interference, and this is accomplished just as well by the method described as by filing an application. Meanwhile the inventor's ardor will have a chance to cool down, with the probability in most cases that the expense of an application will be saved.

In general the obtaining of a patent is only a very small beginning toward getting money out of an invention. Only those who have tried it know the difficulty of enlisting the interest of manufacturers in putting these things upon the market. In general inventors without means and without opportunities for enlisting the interest of others should be very slow indeed about spending money on patents for inventions, no matter how promising they may be.

These statements only outline the beginning of an inventor's troubles. The allowance of a patent by the patent office is not law, and questions of infringement are always likely to arise if the invention is really valuable—questions which can only be settled by expensive litigation. It has been said that a patent is only "a license for a lawsuit," and when an inventor like Mr. Edison says, as he did not long since, that patents are a delusion, the average inventor may well think twice before spending his hard earned dollars in that way.

The cheap patent solicitor flourishes largely because the inexperienced do not understand the difference between a good patent and a poor one and imagine that because an invention is patented it is thereby protected—an impression which is erroneous. The solicitor who prepared the claims for Elias Howe's sewing machine saw that the essence of the invention lay in the "fluted reciprocating eye pointed needle" and worded his claim accordingly. Had he not been a superior man he would have made his claim to cover the various links in the chain of mechanism by which the stitch was formed, and the first inventor who succeeded in making a stitch by a different chain would have evaded the patent. This example illustrates in a few words the difference between a good claim and a poor one. There is no field in which one man seeks the expert advice and assistance of another—excepting that of medicine—in which it is more important to employ good talent than in the preparation of patents.—American Machinist.

Many Living Picture Devices.

There appears to be no end to the varieties of projecting apparatus that are being placed on the market. Here is a list of a few which are already being exhibited at the various music halls and places of public entertainment: The motorgraph, the animatoscope, the theatrograph, the kinematograph, the projectoscope, the cinemetoscope, the vitascope, the cinematograph, the veriscope, the animatograph, the viveoscope, the eidoloscope, the cinagraphoscope, the biograph, the rayoscope, the magniscope.—Photographic Times.

Expensive Underground Wires.

Paris and Marseilles are now connected by telegraph lines entirely under ground. They are placed in iron pipes and buried four feet beneath the surface, with manholes 3,000 feet apart. It cost $7,000,000 to bury the wires.—Electrical Review.

Radiography.

The best phosphorescent screen is made of paper saturated with pentadecylparatatolylketone.—American X Ray Journal.

The X rays have shown that the tibia and femur in Justice Stephen J. Field's knee have almost grown together, and that the hinge has partially solidified.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

It is probably true that the life of President Garfield would have been saved if the Roentgen rays had been known in 1881. No difficulty now is found in locating a bullet distinctly in the deepest recesses of the body.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

In a hospital at Florence a patient was submitted to the X rays, when, to the astonishment of the operators, it was discovered that his heart was on the right side instead of the left. This did not appear to trouble the patient in any way. It may be remembered that Picchianti, the noted scientist, also had his heart on the right side, and that he died at 64 years of age without ever having been seriously ill.—American X Ray Journal.

The Refractometer

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent occulists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.

I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.

F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.

I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.

MAKING OZONE.

It Is Greatly Simplified by a New Invention—Uses of Ozone.

Ozone is one of the most interesting and remarkable of electrical products. Although it enters more largely into many industrial processes than is generally known, its usefulness has been greatly restricted on account of its comparatively high cost of production. This obstacle now appears to have been removed by an invention of E. Andreoli. The most formidable difficulty to be surmounted in producing large quantities of ozone has been the heat of the discharges which generated it. As the temperature rose the glass which separated the metallic electrodes lost its dielectric or nonconductive properties and gradually became a conductor. After awhile the current would begin to pass through the glass, which would crack, and the apparatus would cease to work. In Mr. Andreoli's invention the electrodes are simply boxes through which cold air or a cooling liquid may circulate. As they are long and narrow their "point bearing" surface is very large and active, and a large quantity of ozone is given off.

How farreaching the utility of this invention must be is seen in a list of some of the applications which have been made of ozone, even under the hampering influence of its high cost of manufacture. It is extensively prescribed, both here and in Europe, in the treatment of ulcerous wounds and in the cure of consumption and other diseases. It is employed in the manufacture of aerated waters, in the purification of beer casks and in the destruction of the ferments which cause diseases of beer, in the manufacture of "degras" for the leather industries, in the preparation of wood for making musical instruments, cabinet and carriage work, in the bleaching of linen cloths and yarns, in the bleaching of starch, in the vinegar industry, in the decoloration of molasses, sirups and moist sugar, in the preparation of drying oils and the manufacture of linoleum, in the preparation of a disinfectant by ozonizing turpentine, in the sterilization of water, in the operations of bleaching in conjunction with other agents and in the maturing of spirits and wines.

How the Japs Are Changing.

Some astonishing changes in the physical type of races as a result of intercourse with foreigners have been pointed out by M. Albert Gauttard to the French Ethnographic society. The Japanese who, since the revolution of 1868, have been rapidly adopting European modes of life are losing the eccentricity of their eyes and the prominence of their cheek bones, while recently born children have less flattened noses than their ancestors, with a skin not so yellow. Europeans settling in Japan, on the other hand, gradually lose the rosy color of their skin and tend to acquire an eccentricity in the eye. Another instance is reported by Adhemar Leclere, who has observed in Cambodia a striking change in his countrymen, the French residents soon beginning to acquire the type and the gait of the natives.

Metric System.

Like many other good things, the metric system has a hard time in arriving, but is sure sooner or later to get here. It would mix the present generation up terribly, but think of the long procession of generations yet unborn that would rise and call us blessed if we should only allow ourselves to be more or less confused for a time, that the future inhabitants of our country might measure and weigh their numerous articles of commerce by a system that could be understood without months and even years of study. The adoption of the metric system is a gift we owe to posterity. For nearly everything we have and are we are indebted to the past. Are we not willing on our part to make so small a sacrifice for the good of the future?—Spatula.

A Miniature Railroad.

John W. Shriver, a young man, partially crippled and now living in Denver, has built a diminutive practical locomotive, or, in fact, we might say a complete railroad. It is now running and carrying children every day. The engine weighs 450 pounds. Its length, with tender, is 6 feet 7½ inches. The cylinders are 1¼ inches diameter by 2½ inches stroke, and the driving wheels 8 inches diameter. The entire train, consisting of engine, tender, four observation cars, box car and caboose, is 29 feet long. The tender carries 6 gallons of water, and with 5 gallons in the boiler the engine can run two hours without replenishing. Coal is burned as in the standard locomotives.

Stomach Bucket.

The ingenious device used by Dr. Max Einhorn for obtaining samples of the stomach contents is of the size of a small peanut, with an open incurved rim. The patient swallows it readily, and after five minutes it is withdrawn by the silk thread to which it is attached and the contents submitted to examination. Patients do not complain of it as most do of the stomach tube.—Popular Science News.

Appendicitis Is Contagious.

The observations of Professor Goluboff of Moscow have convinced him that appendicitis is not only a contagious disease, but that it sometimes occurs in epidemics. It was unusually prevalent in Moscow last year. To illustrate, Professor Goluboff mentions that in a small boarding school where in several years there had not been a single case of appendicitis he treated seven cases within two months.

League of American Penwomen.

A new press club has been formed in Washington. It was the outgrowth of a coterie of journalists who met informally from time to time during the last season in the Wimodaughsis parlors. Believing that mutual benefit might come from union, a body of active press women and authors became incorporated under the name of the League of American Penwomen. Seventeen charter members, two new members and eight honorary members make up the list. The last mentioned are Mrs. Jane Cunningham Croly, Mrs. Phœbe Hearst, Miss Ellen T. Longfellow, Mrs. May Dudley Vought, Mrs. Dora Harvey Munyon, Mrs. Emily Edson Briggs (Olivia), Mrs. Marion A. McBride and Mrs. Caroline F. Frye.

Only such persons as are actively engaged in journalism or press work or who are authors are eligible to membership in the league. Honorary members must have rendered aid or encouragement to the cause of penwomen. The league design is a tiny owl in gold in a triangle formed of pen, pencil and brush, with the initials "L. A. P. W." The colors are the loyal red, white and blue. The charter members of the League of American Penwomen are Margaret Sullivan Burke, Anna Sanborn Hamilton, Marion Longfellow O'Donoghue, Mary Temple Bayard, Mary A. Denison, Tillie Orr Hays, Ada Tower Cable, Bell Vane Sherwood, Margaret Wade, Abbie G. Baker, Nannie M. Lancaster, Alice R. Morgan, Mattie Hamilton Flick, Virginia King Frye, E. Emma V. Triepell, Jennie S. Campbell and Anna B. Patten. The officers are: President, Mrs. Burke; vice president, Mrs. O'Donoghue; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Denison; recording secretary, Miss Sherwood; treasurer, Mrs. Frye; auditor, Mrs. Hamilton; librarian, Mrs. Campbell. Mrs. Abbie Baker will act as delegate at large in the middle west, Miss Wade will represent the league on the Pacific coast and Mrs. Bayard will be the delegate for the east. The headquarters of the league are at the Wimodaughsis, where visiting members of the fraternity will find a welcome.—Washington Correspondence.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

CLEANED UP $130,000.

Klondyke Miner Got Out a Fortune In Eight Weeks.

Wealth of Yukon Region Not Exaggerated.

But the Hardships to Be Undergone Are Indescribable.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 19.—The steamer Alki arrived yesterday from Dyea, Alaska. Yesterday afternoon Willis Thorp was handed a letter by a man who came down on the Alki from Dyea. It was written by Edward Thorp and came overland, saying that he had cleaned up $130,000 in the Klondyke in eight weeks, and was coming home on the steamer Portland, which is due in Seattle on Aug. 26. Thorp left Seattle one year ago, having gone north with a drove of cattle.

Not Half Told.

New York, Aug. 19.—E. G. H. Bowker of Dawson City, Alaska, who arrived here Monday from the Klondyke region, is interested in 11 claims, and brought with him $90,000 in gold nuggets and dust, the result of a year's work. He has been in the Yukon river country since 1887, having gone there with Lieutenant Frederick A. Schwatka, the Arctic explorer.

Mr. Bowker said that the richness of the Klondyke gold fields has not been exaggerated in the least, and, in fact, not one-half has been told of the mineral wealth there, but, on the other hand, only the faintest idea had been conveyed through the newspapers and by the letters of the frightful hardships which those persons who go to the Yukon river district must endure.

"No adequate idea can be formed of the privations and sufferings which those must endure who go to that part of the world," he said. "The bleakness and inhospitatility can hardly be imagined. Just think of being obliged to sleep on six inches of soggy moss, which rests on two feet of ice, the ice melting by the heat of your body," he said. "That is one of the things that one may have to put up with. It may not seem to be such a severe ordeal to those her at home in the states, who have the ordinary comforts of civilization, for they don't realize what it means, but when they find themselves actually undergoing the experience, with no possible escape, the enthusiasm will undergo a decided cooling process in more than one way.

"There are scores of creeks along the Yukon that have never been prospected, and which, no doubt, will be found quite as rich as those already discovered, but before the gold can be got out experiences must be gone through with and hardships and sufferings endured that but few men, especially if they happen to be "tenderfeet," have any conception of."

New Map of Klondyke.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Superintendent Duffield of the coast survey yesterday received the proof of the new government map of the Klondyke region. It is on an enlarged scale, with the gold region as the main objective point, and this entire locality is given without reference to the remoter parts of Alaska and the Arctic region. The map is 16x42 inches. It is called a route map, as it shows the route of travel from Sitka northward to the Klondyke country. Copies of the map will be ready for distribution in about 10 days or two weeks.

Shaw For Governor of Iowa.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Aug. 19.—The nomination yesterday afternoon of Hon. L. M. Shaw of Crawford county as the standard bearer of the Hawkeye Republicans in the coming campaign ended one of the most protracted and interesting contests in the history of Iowa politics. Almost a dozen active candidates for the gubernatorial nomination were in the field, most of them dropped out one by one, Shaw gaining on each withdrawal, until four ballots had been taken, when the nomination was made unanimous. There were spirited but short lived contests over the other offices, and after the adoption, without a dissenting vote, of the report of the committee on resolutions, the convention adjourned sine die.

Wheat Takes Another Jump.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—September wheat closed at 88 1-2 cents yesterday, the highest point it has reached since 1891, and an advance of fully 4 3-4 cents since Tuesday. The closing was a scene long to be remembered, the pit in the last few minutes of reading becoming a struggling, shouting mass of excited speculators trying frantically to buy. There was literally no wheat for sale, and the efforts of the shorts fairly took the market off its feet, September jumping nearly 1 cent in the last minute. December showed a still more radical advance, and for a time sold on even terms with the nearer future. At the close 88 3-8 cents was bid, or 5 3-4 cents above the closing figures of Tuesday.

Fred N. Cheney Found Dead.

Boston, Aug. 19.—Fred N. Cheney, formerly treasurer of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, was found dead in his room at Hotel Rexford about 10 o'clock last night, death being due to heart trouble. Mr. Cheney resided in Roxbury, but for the past four months, during the absence of his wife and children in Germany, he has made his home at the Rexford. A gentleman called to see him, and not getting any response to his knock a bellboy opened the door and found Mr. Cheney dead in his chair, having evidently been dead several hours. He had been under treatment for pleurisy for some time, and the medical examiner pronounced heart trouble the cause of death.

Would Apply Reforms In Cuba.

Madrid, Aug. 19.—Senor Sagasta, the Liberal leader, in an interview, is quoted as saying: "Even during Canovas' time dissention existed in the cabinet, and if they are continued, General Azcarraga will be obliged to decline to hold office. In any case his cabinet is certain to be only a temporary one. I am ready to accept office, and should I do so I would apply reforms to Cuba in the widest sense."

OPERATORS' DAY.

Injunction Against Strikers Made Permanent. Mines to Be Started.

Pittsburg, Aug. 19.—Yesterday was operators' day, and from present appearances they have made a most effective move and have nearly, if not quite, checkmated their opponents, the striking coal miners.

The court's decree yesterday in making permanent the preliminary injunction restraining the strikers from camping, marching or in any manner interfering with the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company's miners, has had the effect of almost depleting the camps about those mines and apparently causing a general demoralization among the campers.

In order to follow up their advantage the operators held a largely attended meeting last night at the Monongahela House and arranged for the starting of their mines with or without force. If force seems to be unavoidable it is the intention to start a few mines at once under the protection of deputies and whatever expense may result will be shared pro rata by the mine owners. This scheme to start the mines was successfully adopted to break the national strike in 1894.

President Dolan of the miners' organization does not believe the movement will be a success this time, as the strikers are more in earnest than in any former struggle.

Camp Determination at Turtle Creek was reduced in numbers yesterday from 200 to 50. The men who were told to go home gathered in an angry crowd and denounced the officials bitterly. Secretary William Warner came in for a large share of vituperation from the crowd. They demanded of him work or assistance. He replied rather curtly that he would get them jobs in the work house. After Warner left a number of the men threatened to return to their respective homes and go to work in their mines. They said the strike was a fizzle. Some of the men left for Irwin and McKeesburg districts, where they will look for work.

ON THE DIAMOND

National League.

At Boston—

For four innings the Boston-Washington game was an interesting contest, both pitchers being effective. In the fifth the Bostons had a batting streak, and after that the result was never in doubt. Lewis completely outpitched his rival, and the visitors made but three hits off him. Collins made some pretty foul catches, and Duffy's playing was superb. In the fifth Long was hit on the arm by a pitched ball and Allen took his place, making a most favorable showing. For the visitors Selbach did about all the hitting. O'Brien and Wrigley made some good plays and Tom Brown fielded in his usual fine fashion.

World's Three-Year-Old Record.

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Another record was smashed yesterday at the central New York circuit meet at Kirk park, when Cresceus won the third heat of the 2:22 class trot in 2:17¼, breaking the world's record for 3-year-olds on half mile tracks. The previous record was 2:19¼. The weather was fair and track fast.

PANIC AT CONSTANTINOPLE.

Bomb Explosions at Three Different Points Attributed to Armenians.

Constantinople, Aug. 19.—The city is almost in a panic over the news of bomb explosions, attempted or accomplished yesterday afternoon at three different points. The explosions are attributed to the Armenians. A bomb was thrown just outside the police headquarters in the Pera district. It failed to explode.

Almost at the same moment an Armenian, whose name it is believed is Garabet, was arrested at the Imperial Ottoman bank in the Galata district. He was carrying a package of explosives, which he was trying to ignite.

A second bomb was exploded in a private road between the Vizierate (offices of the grand vizier) and the state council house. One man was killed and several others were severely wounded. The explosion shattered windows in the vicinity and did other slight damage.

The police have made a number of arrests. Reports of the outrages spread quickly through the city and caused the greatest excitement. The police and the guards at the sultan's palace are taking extraordinary precaution, which have given color to a rumor that the bomb throwing is part of a widespread plot.

The most abject terror prevails in the precincts of the palace. In many parts of the city, particularly in the vicinity of the police headquarters and of the state council house, all the shops were closed, and it was necessary to call out the entire police force and the military before anything like calm was restored.

The Armenian who was arrested at the Imperial Ottoman bank was trying, it is reported, to place the bundle of explosives near one of the main entrances. The crowd who saw him delivered by the bank officials to the police would have made short work of him if they had not been prevented.

The police are very reticent as to the reason for summoning the palace guard and closing all the doors and gateways, but it is rumored that a similar outrage was attempted within the palace limits, and that the approaches were barred to prevent the exit of the would-be perpetrator.

A Tariff Hearing.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Ex-Secretary Carlisle yesterday submitted to Attorney General McKenna a brief containing his views on section 22 of the new tariff act relating to the imposition of the 10 per cent discriminating duty of goods imported from foreign countries through contiguous territory. Mr. Carlisle, who represents the Boston and Maine railroad, appeared with former Assistant Secretary Hamlin, representing the associated board of trade and the Merchants' association of Boston, before Mr. McKenna last Saturday and submitted oral arguments on the question. Mr. Carlisle contends that there are only three possible constructions of the law. According to the first of these constructions, it was designed to encourage American shipping interests by discriminating against goods produced in noncontiguous countries, and brought into a contiguous country by vessels not of the United States, and thence imported into the United States.

Weyler Still In Cuba.

Havana, Aug. 19.—Captain General Weyler denies that he has resigned or that he has any present intention of resigning. La Lucha demands the dismissal of the bishop of Havana as a rebuke for his failure to respond in a patriotic manner to the request of the queen regent for appropriate funeral ceremonies in memory of Premier Canovas. The bishop absent himself from the pulpit and neglected to designate a worthy preacher for the occasion. At the last moment Captain General Weyler designated an army chaplin to preach the funeral discourse. The bishop's refusal is attributed in some quarters to his desire to protest against a recent measure for cutting down the salaries of ecclesiastics of Episcopal rank.

Want Island For Deer Park.

Machias, Me., Aug. 19.—Lloyd Phoenix, with a crowd of moneyed men from New York, is here on the steam yacht Intrepid, and it is understood that he is negociating for the purchase of Cross island for a deer park, and on which a clubhouse will be built. The island at present is owned by Misses Allen and Crandon of Columbia Falls, and is stocked with 500 deer.

Grand Circuit Races.

Glens Falls, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The winners yesterday were: In the 2:17 class, Ambulator; in the 2:50 class, Jane T; in the 2:19 class, Emily; in the 2:08 (pacing) class, Heir-at-Law; in the 2:40 class, 3-year-olds, Fanny Foley.

Manager Marston of the Fall River (Mass.) team, and Manager Finn of the Newports, have agreed upon a series of games for a purse of $1000 between the two clubs, to follow the regular season. The details have not yet been arranged, but there will probably be seven games.

A sickly, fretful baby is a distressful burden to both of the parents. After passing worried and sleepless nights the father is unfitted for business and the mother for her household duties. If a woman will take proper care of herself during the period preceding motherhood, and see to it that the organs that bear the burdens of maternity are kept strong and healthy, her children will be robust and good-natured. The best medicine for keeping these delicate and important organs in a healthy condition is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Thousands of women have testified to the marvelous action of this remedy. More of it is sold than of all other medicines for the same purpose combined. It acts directly upon the organs involved. It restores their health and vigor. It prepares a woman for the duties of motherhood. It insures the health of baby. It makes its advent easy and almost free from pain. Women who use it do not experience the usual discomforts of the period of gestation. It is the most marvelous medicine ever known for wives and mothers. It is the preparation of an eminent and skillful specialist, Dr. R. V. Pierce, who has been for thirty years chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. Women who wish to know more about it should write him.

"About six years ago my wife became afflicted with female weakness," writes the Rev. I. J. Coppedge, of Elmo, Kaufman County, Texas. "She could not stand on her feet or get in any position in which she did not suffer great pain. She was naturally a strong woman. I had several physicians to treat her without any permanent relief. She despaired of ever again being well. She saw an advertisement of your 'Favorite Prescription' and spoke to me about it. I got her a bottle of the medicine which she soon found was helping her. She kept on until she had taken six bottles. Since taking the last she has not suffered a moment with the old trouble. She has been well nearly twelve months. The 'Favorite Prescription' was all the medicine she took. She is in good health and we are happy."

VOL. 9. NO. 194. QUINCY, MASS., FRIDAY, AUGUST 20, 1897. PRICE 2 CENTS.

THE OLIVE PECKER TRAGEDY.

But Two are Implicated in the Crime.—They Have Confessed.

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 20.—Only meagre details of the murders at sea on board the three-masted schooner Olive Pecker have as yet been received here. The crew of six men are at Bahia, over 1000 miles distant, and will be sent to the United States for trial at the earliest possible moment. They are:

William Horsburg, engineer, who acted as second mate at sea.

J. Anderson, cook.

Seamen Andrew F. March, Manuel Barrait, John Lend and M. Barstad.

A dispatch from Bahia says that Johan and Lend are held as principals in the tragedy. This is unquestionably a mistake, as there is no "Johan" in the crew, but that is Lend's first name. Therefore the murders must have been Lend and another; which one is not yet known in this city.

The men arrived in Bahia bay Monday night in the schooner's boats, and landed immediately. Lend and his companion were denounced by the other four, and were at once arrested, after a report of the affair had been made to the United States consul.

The tragedy occurred about 125 miles off the South American coast, probably on Friday night. Lend had been the grumbler of the crew during the entire voyage, and had succeeded in causing some complaint among some of the other men, although none but his companion in crime were ready for mutiny.

The complaints made by the men were on account of hard work and insufficent food, and word had gone to the captain that dissatisfaction existed. No one, however anticipated trouble, as the boat was within a few days of port, the captain expecting to arrive at Buenos Ayres early this week.

Horsburgh, who had some trouble with Captain Whitman before the vessel left Boston harbor, is not at present suspected of having had any part in the tragedy, although it occurred at night, during his watch.

Lend and his companion, according to the telegrams received here from Bahia, crept to the cabin while Captain Whitman and First Mate Saunders were asleep and killed them in their bunks. They then kindled a fire in the after hold.

It was only when the schooner was in flames that the remainder of the crew knew anything of the tragedy, and when the alarm was given there was barely time to take to the boats, the captain and first mate being missed only as the party left the burning vessel.

During the long ride over the tropical seas, seeking a port, the four faithful members of the crew forced a confession from Lend and his companion. The four were satisfied from the manner of the blaze, and the fact that there was nothing combustible kept where the fire started, that some one of the crew had set it, and Lend was openly taxed with the commission of the crime. Finally he and his companion admitted their guilt, and made a full confession.

They found no sympathy among the other men, and without a moment's delay the crime was reported to the Bahia authorities and Consul Shute immediately on reaching shore.

It is stated here that the murderers had no idea of killing Horsburgh, because he was a ready sympathizer with them during the voyage, but there is, nevertheless, nothing whatever to connect him with the tragedy itself, notwithstanding the trouble he had with Captain Whitman before sailing from Boston. He may be called to explain why the men could have secured an opportunity to steal into the cabin while he was in charge of the watch.

In Bahia the four members of the crew told their story to the authorities and Consul Shute, and Lend and his pal also repeated their confessions.

All six were ordered under arrest by Consul Shute, and they will be kept in confinement together until they can be shipped to the United States. At present Consul Shute intends to send them direct to Boston.

Mrs. Whitman In a Stupor.

Portland, Me., Aug. 20.—The chief topic of conversation in the city is the Olive Pecker tragedy. The mariners who were well acquainted with Captain Whitman are unanimous in the opinion that he must have been taken by surprise, as he could not have been overcome, as he was a remarkably powerful man and full of courage. Mrs. Whitman is thoroughly overcome. She lies in a stupor, says nothing and seems to understand but little that is said to her. She has eaten practically nothing since first hearing of the fatality, and her friends are becoming alarmed at her condition

NEW ENGLAND FAIR.

Governor Powers Greeted by 20,000 People. Successful Day and Evening.

Portland, Me., Aug. 20.—The success of the New England fair of '97 is now no longer a debatable question, as it was assured by another big attendance at Rigby park yesterday afternoon. It was governor's day, and Governor Powers and his staff were given a hearty reception when the party entered the president's box. The number of people on the grounds is placed at fully 20,000. As usual the exhibition by troop F was a sensational feature, the skillful riders appearing on their well-trained animals without saddles. The thrilling performance of rough riding kept the spectators in a continuous uproar. During the drill Private Delano fell from his horse, sustaining a dislocated shoulder.

The horse races were well contested. In the 2:19 trot the Maine bred horse Bismarck had a walk-over. Demarest bought Bismarck from Mr. Doughty of Cumberland Center about two months ago for $1000, and horsemen say it was the bargain of the year, the horse proving the find of the season. Jessie McEwan won the 2:20 pacing race.

John S. Johnson of Worcester won the mile bicycle race and Fred H. Mospan of South Portland won the mile handicap.

The reception and banquet last evening tendered officers of the fleet and the governor and staff was a very successful affair. It was a large and distinguished party that assembled in the city government rooms. A felicitous spirit prevailed throughout the evening, and many bright things were said in the after dinner speeches. Among those who spoke were Admiral Sicard and Speaker Thomas B. Reed.

The Six-Day Riders.

Boston, Aug. 20.—The field of riders in the six days' bicycle race at Charles River park made remarkable progress yesterday, and only one man has left the ranks. The managers ruled that no one who made less than 100 miles yesterday should be qualified to race today. Alberts, who fractured his collar bone a few weeks ago, has been suffering considerable pain during the race, and after he had made 46 miles yesterday he was compelled to withdraw, with 309 miles 2 laps to his record. Waller and Barnaby kept together all day, and at the finish were each credited with 667 miles, while young Elkes was only eight miles behind. Barnaby is looked upon as the final winner, owing to his superior sprinting power. During the first two hours of the race several of the leaders reeled off 50 miles, and several of the miles later in the afternoon were ridden at a 2:30 clip, which is remarkably fast time, considering the number of hours the men have been awheel this week.

Suicide's Identity.

Woburn, Mass., Aug. 20.—The man who committed suicide in the Falmouth house, Boston, yesterday, by taking paris green was not M. J. Cadigan of Woburn, as was supposed, but Michael J. McGonalogue, a stock worker, employed by the Russell Counter company here. He lived with his father, Bernard McGonalogue, on North Warren street, this city. McGonalogue was 31 years of age and unmarried. For the last two or three years he has been drinking considerably, but his dissipation has not led him into trouble until last Monday night, when he was locked up in the police station for drunkenness. This arrest is believed to have prayed upon his mind, as he was naturally of a gloomy disposition, and it is thought that the suicide was due to this fact. He was a young man of good general character, and was well liked by his associates.

Clear Sky For Women's Relief Corps.

Newport, Me., Ang. 20.—The sixth day at Camp Benson found not a cloud to mar the Woman Relief corps' gathering, there being delegates from all over the state present, with corps from Corinna and Dexter. In the morning there was a mock trial, dress parade and band concert. In the afternoon the program at Association hall included music, recitations, speeches and an address of welcome from Department President Mrs. Crosby of Rumford Falls to the Women's Relief corps. Remarks were also made by Mrs. Howes of Lewiston, and there was a stirring speech by C. E. Smith of Hermon. In the evening a camp fire, with three-minute speeches and a ball, were the features.

New Hampshire Fire Losses.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 20.—Insurance Commissioner Linehan summarized the fire losses in New Hampshire for the six months ending July 1, 1897, as follows: Number of fires, 183; value of property destroyed, $222,771; amount of insurance thereon, $393,146; amount of insurance paid, $87,662; amount of insurance unpaid, $54,650; number of towns having fires, 75; number of towns having no fires, 157; towns not reporting, 3. This is a decrease over a corresponding period in 1896 of 92 in the number of fires and of $290,883 in the value of property destroyed.

Two Doctors Arrested.

Vergennes, Vt., Aug. 20.—Two more men have been arrested, charged with aiding in the criminal operation which endd the life of 15-year-old Dora Cushman. Young Davis implicated Dr. H. S. Jocelyn and Norman Henry of Lincoln. Dr. Joselyn is a dentist and Henry is known as "Dr. Smith." Henry hails from Rutland and goes from town to town selling catarrh medecine. He has been in Lincoln for several weeks. The officers have suspected the itinerant doctor and have closely watched his movements.

Appeal to Pope and Queen.

New York, Aug. 20.—The awful story of the condemnation of Evangelina Cisneros by the Spanish government and her impending banishment to the penal settlement at Ceuta, on the Morocco coats, Africa, has aroused all the tenderness of two American women—Mrs. Jefferson Davis and Mrs. Julia Ward Howe—and they have written to the queen regent and Pope Leo XIII, respectively. The only crime charged against the unfortunate Cuban girl, Senorita Cisneros, is that she is related to one of the conspicuous leaders in the effort of Cuba for freedom from the cruel Spanish yolk.

De Armitt Arrested.

Pittsburg, Aug. 20.—Samuel De Armitt, brother of William P. De Armitt, who has been very active in the interests of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company during the strike, was arrested yesterday afternoon on the charges of assault, larceny and disorderly conduct. The suits are brought by former employes of the company and their wives. Mr. De Armitt gave bail in $1000.

Indicted For Running Sunday Trains.

Atlanta, Aug. 20.—W. S. Brand, superintendent of the Georgia railway, has been indicted by the grand jury of Dekalb county for violation of the state law in the running of freight trains on Sunday.

Klondyke In Wheat.

St. Louis, Aug. 20.—St. Louis speculators in wheat are estimated to have cleared upward of $2,000,000 of September options during the recent bulge. Ex-Secretary of the Interior D. R. Francis, it is said, netted $300,000.

Five Hundred Klondykers Building Boats at Lake Linderman.

Canada and Uncle Sam Agree on Mail Plans.

Pouches Will Be Carried on Sleds Drawn by Dogs, Driven by Indians.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 20.—The following letter has just been received from a Klondyke correspondent:

Lake Linderman, N. W. T., Aug. 7.—On lakes Linderman and Bennett there are nearly 500 people actively making preparations and building boats for the decent to the Klondyke. The Skaguay trail is open and the first contingent reached Tagish lake on Thursday last, numbering 200 people. The trail is nearly 50 miles long, and horses are able to pack 250 pounds from salt water to Tagish. Nearly 1000 people are in camp at Skaguay, and it is expected that they will reach the lakes in 10 days. That route will take nearly all the travel from the Dyea route, except during the winter and spring months.

The opening of the Skaguay road is sure to cause travel to continue as late as Sept. 15. At present the Dyea trail is blocked with freight and passengers, and to complicate matters the Chilcoot Indians have struck for 20 cents a pound, which makes the cost of flour laid down at this place $11 per sack.

Mail Route to Be Established.

Washington, Aug. 20.—The Canadian government and the United States have practically decided upon co-operation in augmenting the postal facilities for the Klondyke region, and the result will shortly be evidenced in a substantial doubling of the mail service from the coast into that district. The reply of Canada to Acting Postmaster General Shallenberger's proposition to establish an exchange of mails at Circle City and Dawson City, reached here yesterday. It is a counter proposition made by Canada, the latter agreeing to perform the service from Dawson City down to Dyea by means of a contract of her own, with reimbursement to be made by this government for its share of the service. This differs from this country's proposition in that under the latter the United States was to let the contract and look to Canada for reimbursement for the latter's share.

Canada's proposition for carrying the mails one round trip a month between Dawson City and Dyea was formally accepted by Acting Postmaster General Shallenberger, and the Canadian government notified of the action. In this communication this government is stated to be in readiness to assume its share of the responsibility, and Canada is urged to put the service into operation at the earliest possible moment. Dyea, which is 100 miles above Juneau, on the Lynn canal, and Dawson City will be declared international postal exchange offices. The British mails will be carried by the United States from Victoria, B. C., to Dyea. The service will bring about the creation of a postoffice at Dawson City, at Fort Cuddy and probably at other points. The service will be under the immediate supervision of the Canadian mounted police. The carriers will be equipped with dogs and sledges, and have Indian drivers. The first contract will be for one year.

Good Shooting at Waterville.

Waterville, Me., Aug. 20.—The second day of the annual tournament of the Maine Gun club was fine. In the first event, 10 targets regular, Harrington, Prescott, Leroy, Doten, Preble and Neal tied. Coombs, Ray, Lord, C. Getchell, Libbey, Arthur, Merriam, Darton, Bates, Corson, Morrow and Hunnewell tied on nine targets. In the second event, 15 targets regular, Hunnewell and Darton tied, as did also Green and Leroy. In each event there were 10 squads. An individual championship for the state first half on 25 targets, Dr. C. R. Rowe of Richmond led on 25 straight, with Wyman, Reed, Preble, Green, Hunnewell tied on 24 targets.

Detweiler's Deputies.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 20.—Grand Exaulted Ruler Detweiler of the Elks has appointed deputies of the order in the United States, including the following: Connecticut—F. J. Brouthers, New Haven; Maine—Edward Parsons, Portland; Massachusetts—J. H. Sheldon, Haverhill; New Hampshire—Herbert R. Dow, Portsmouth; Rhode Island—Hugh V. O'Donnell, Providence; Vermont—P. M. Meldon, Rutland.

Call to Woman Pastor.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 20.—Washington Street Advent Christian church has called to its pastorate Mrs. Mary L. Page, widow of the late Elder D. D. Page, and she will assume pastoral duties Sept. 1. She was licensed to preach by the New Hampshire conference last October, and is the second woman to be licensed in this state.

TALK OF THE CITY.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Master Carl Sherburne is at home from his vacation trip to Maine.

Miss Sadie Sumner of Boston is visiting Miss Lucy Crane of Atlantic.

Mr. Stephen E. Bennett of Newbury avenue is home on his vacation.

Harold Walsh is on a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Thayer of Randolph.

Miss Annie Woods of Brookline is the guest of Miss Fannie Allen, Botolph street.

Miss Dorothea Thompson of Quincy was the guest of Miss Laura Hall on Thursday.

Mrs. Eben Hardy of Wollaston Park has returned from a short visit to Gloucester and Annasquam.

Misses Eva, Florence and Master Harry Maxim have been visiting friends in Brockton the past two weeks.

Miss Alma Nulsen of Cincinnati, Ohio, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Mayer of Beach street, Wollaston park.

Mrs. L. A. Bassett and sister, Mrs. G. B. Warner of Pittsfield, Me., are visiting their mother in Claremont, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Hill of Atlantic returned Wednesday after a brief visit to Portland and Peaks Island, Maine.

Miss E. M. Freeman and Mrs. R. H. Newcomb enjoyed a trip Wednesday on the day boat to Portland. They return today.

The members of Company K are expected to report at the armory tomorrow afternoon at 1.30 o'clock. Lieut. Whitney will have charge of the command.

George F. Elcock of West Quincy caught on Aug. 19, the largest black bass ever taken on Ponkapoag Pond, Canton, weighing five pounds and one ounce.

Mr. G. A. Mayer, vice president of the Cincinnati Milling Machine Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Mayer, of Beach street, Wollaston Park.

President Bryant of Wollaston has extended an invitation to the sportmen's club of Wollaston to visit his shooting box on Whitman's pond, Weymouth, on Saturday Aug. 28.

Commodore F. Burgess and Rear Commodore E. Hardy of the Wollaston Yacht club have returned from a ten days' cruise along the North shore. They report a very enjoyable time.

Rev. W. R. Breed has been in town for a few days. He will officiate at the chapel at Nahant Sunday morning. Rev. A. L. Bumpus of Natick will officiate at Christ's church during August.

The postponed complimentary band concert Thursday evening given by Mr. C. C. Hearn, the druggist, drew a large crowd. Thousands being present to enjoy the music which was excellent.

Many people of Atlantic were a trifle disappointed last night. They went to Squantum with the intention of hearing a band concert, as it was reported there would be one, but there was not any.

Chief of Police Hayden starts Saturday on a two weeks' vacation to St. John's and Halifax. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Hayden and Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Hayden. Officer Hanson has been appointed chief during his absence.

After several days absence Dr. H.C. Hallowell has returned to the care of his many patrons. He has had a little rest at Moosehead Lake and other parts of Maine, much to his enjoyment. We are always pleased to greet his pleasant countenance.

Teamsters who have occasion to use Howard street and the lower end of South street, are beginning to complain loudly at the way the city has obstructed the said streets by dumping such quantities of stones on them. Some of the stones are equal to cobbler stones. The streets would have been in better condition if the stones had been picked up from them instead of dumping more on.

SQUANTUM HEAD.

The New Road Formally Opened Thursday.

A Clambake and Speeches Features of the Event.

Congratulations to the Citizens and Railroad. Those Present.

The formal opening of the new extension of the Quincy & Boston street railway between Atlantic and Squantum was held Thursday, and if it needed the formal opening to make the new line a success, it certainly will be, for the gathering of Thursday was one of the most successful of many that the road has held.

For the opening Thursday, invitations had been sent to the city governments of Quincy and Boston, railroad officials and others; and of the one hundred invitations issued, the larger part responded.

A special car left Quincy centre at 2 30 with some of the party on board, while others came out from Boston on the train and took the car at Atlantic.

Upon the arrival at Squantum, a half hour was passed in viewing the scenery and in hearing the history of Squantum repeated by those who were familiar with it, and they were thus occupied when the call came that the clambake was ready.

The bake was a dream, words being inadequate to describe it. Mr. George Pawsey prepared it and it was served on the promontory near the Myles Standish cairn.

The menu of the bake consisted of chowder, clams, lobster, chicken, corn, sweet potatoes, frankforts, onions and tripe, and these were served steaming hot to the party who were seated at tables beneath a tent, the personnel of the party being as follows:

President, John R. Graham.
Treasurer, Fred H. Smith.
Superintendent, B. J. Weeks.
Hon. John F. Merrill.

After all had had their fill of the things for the inner man, came the feast of wit.

President Graham called the party to order and after a few words of welcome introduced Mr. Herbert M. Federhen as toast master, and everyone who knows Mr. Federhen knows that he is an ideal toastmaster.

The first gentleman called upon was Hon. William B. Rice.

Mr. Rice spoke of the Metropolitan park system and of the enterprise of the railroad in building the line which he prophesied would be a profitable one. The people demand street railways and they must become more numerous.

The Quincy & Boston should have and were entitled to fair consideration by the city government, who should consider what it is to be twenty years hence. Hancock street should be widened and the street railway placed in the centre and the street made a boulevard between City Hall and Neponset.

President Bryant, of the City Council, said it would not surprise him if in a few years Quincy had a population of 50,000. The city and street railway should co-operate in the location of tracks. The street to Squantum would soon have to be widened and it would be a good move resulting in an increased value of the property.

Hon. William S. McNary said the street railway, sewer, water and parks will lead to the growth of Quincy. These things should be in our own control and take pattern after London. Much of Quincy's growth was due to the street railway and he looked to see the Quincy & Boston become the link by which people may reach the resorts along the south shore; and Quincy ought to have a growth in the next ten years which would parallel that of Dorchester. The relations between Boston and Quincy should be made closer.

Representative James Thompson said the citizens and property owners were to be congratulated upon the opening of this road as a means of access. They can congratulate themselves upon having such a public spirited board of railroad directors.

The boulevard along the south shore was sure to come. He also spoke of the appropriation of $100,000 and he understood that the Park commission was now getting a release of the property from Squantum to the Blue Hill reservation.

W. G. A. Pattee, Esq., made quite an interesting speech; giving a brief outline of the history of Squantum from the time Myles Standish came up from Plymouth. He looked forward to a nice progressive and prosperous section with the advent of the street railway.

Senator James H. Flint spoke in his usual happy manner. His experience with street railways had given him an idea of the power and good they could do, and the men behind them. He believed that in the near future all means of conveyance by cars would be by electricity. The development of Squantum was sure to follow this road.

Edwin W. Marsh the last speaker said that for sixty years previous to Quincy's becoming a city he always attended the town meetings and he remembered that Squantum was ever before them for an appropriation for the causeway. He could congratulate President Graham on having completed one more branch of his road. He had always heard how much the town had done for the street railway but he never admitted it. The town had given them nothing. It was simply a matter of contract. For the time the road had been in operation it was wonderful how transportation had increased and he had but little fault to find. But little change has been made in Squantum for sixty years but now he looked for a change. He looked to see this knoll covered with houses and one church, one was enough. The trouble with villages was that they had too many churches when one was all they could support.

During the dinner Brown's orchestra rendered several selections.

The Farm School.

As we were about to leave Old Squantum for home yesterday, we received from Mr. Charles M. Bryant an invitation to visit the Farm School on Thompson's Island; just across the gut from Squantum. He said Mr. Charles H. Bradley, Superintendent of the Home, was there and would be pleased to show the visitors the excellent school for boys, which had been located on this island since 1832.

The editor of the PATRIOT and about a dozen more were pleased to accept the kind invitation, and in a few moments were gliding across the beautiful sheet of water in the Superintendent's steam yacht, to the place where thousands of poor boys have found a pleasant and attractive home.

We were soon landed at the wharf, and shown through the large barn, where are kept twenty-five cows, oxen, horses, etc. It was full of hay; one hundred tons had been cut on the island this season. All the milk from the 25 cows, except a little made into butter is given to the boys. They have it at their meals in the morning and evening. All the nice vegetables that they can eat is raised on the farm; also choice fruit—apples, pears, strawberries, etc. Over 200 barrels of apples were raised last year,—sixty barrels of sweets.

The Farm School has accommodations for 100 boys, and is full all the time; many applicants cannot be taken. It receives orphans or half orphans between the ages of seven and twelve who are of good moral character, in fair physical condition, and who have not been before the courts. A relinquishment signed by the parent or guardian gives the school control of the boy until he is twenty-one years of age. As a rule he remains in the school until he is fifteen or sixteen and his time here is divided between study, work and recreation in such a manner as best to develop natural aptitude and latent ability, strength and character that he may go forth equipped for the practical duties of life.

The course of study completes the grammar school grade. The manual training course includes mechanical drawing, carpentry, wood turning and wood carving; and all in turn are employed upon the farm and perform some part in the household duties, including cooking, baking, making and mending of clothing, washing, etc.

Boys are selected according to their capacity to receive instruction in blacksmithing, cobbling, painting, printing and typewriting and to assist in the care and management of boats and in all the general repairs.

The boys have an excellent brass band, which was organized before the war. A teacher from Boston visits the island every week to instruct them. Before we left on this occasion they performed a few selections in a highly creditable manner, much to the delight of their visitors.

The boys have a Farm School Bank, and Cottage Row with its government, societies, etc., which furnish practical business lessons.

They have flower patches, and raise beautiful flowers; and a prize is given the boy who has the handsomest garden.

The school has an endowment fund of $100,000. The income of which, together with contributions from kind-hearted individuals, who appreciate the noble work being done on Thompson I land for orphan boys, support the home. If any of our readers ever wish to do a good deed of charity, here is a favorable opportunity, as the money is judiciously spent. The officers of the school are:

President,—Alexander S. Wheeler.
Vice President,—Arthur Dexter.
Treasurer,—Alfred Bowditch, 28 State street.
Secretary,—Tucker Daland, 19 Exchange place.
Managers,—Eben Bacon, I. Tucker Burr, Jr., Caleb A. Curtis, William P. Fowler, J. D. Williams French, Henry S. Grew, John Homans, 2d, M. D, Walter Hunnewell, Richard M. Saltonstall, Francis Shaw, Thomas F. Temple, John E. Thayer.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

CITY —OF— QUINCY.

SEALED propcsals for paving and curbing Copeland street in accordance with form of specifications to be furnished by the Commissioner of Public Works of the City of Quincy, will be received at the office of said Commissioner, City Hall, until 2 o'clock P. M., of the First day of September 1897, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read. Each proposal must be indorsed "Proposal for paving and curbing Copeland street," and be accompanied by a properly certified check for the sum of Five Hundred Dollars ($500,) payable to City of Quincy, which will be returned to the bidder unless forfeited as hereinafter provided.

A bond will be required for the faithful performance of the contract in such sum as the Commissioner of Public Works shall determine; such sum to be not more than one-third the amount of the contract; the sureties to be residents of Massachusetts and satisfactory to the Commissioner.

The contract must be signed and bond furnished within six days after the notification of acceptance of the proposal and in case of the failure of the bidder to sign contract and furnish bond within said time, the contract and the certified check accompanying the proposal shall be forfeited to the City of Quincy.

The proposals will be compared on the basis of the following quantities:

Furnishing and laying 7,200 square yards paving.
Furnishing and laying 110 linear feet crossing stones.
Furnishing and setting 3,600 linear feet straight edgestones.
Furnishing and setting 68 linear feet curved edgestones.
Furnishing and setting 7 driveway corners.
Resetting 1,170 linear feet straight edgestones.
Resetting 9 driveway corners.

These quantities are to be considered approximate only and the Commissioner of Public Works expressly reserves the right of increasing or diminishing the same, as he may deem necessary.

The right is reserved to reject any or all proposals or to accept the proposal deemed best for the city.

HOODLUMS AND LOAFERS.

Freedom Allowed Rising Generation Is Absurd, Says Professor Norton.

Ashfield, Mass., Aug. 20.—The 19th annual dinner in aid of Sanderson academy was held here yesterday. Professor Charles Eliot Norton of Harvard presided, and the other speakers were: Franklin MacVaigh, Chicago; President Mendenhall of the Worcester Polytechnic Institute; Rev. John W. Chadwick of Chesterfield and Brooklyn, Rev. Dr. Rondtaler of Chicago, Professor Thomas of the Lake Forest university and Rev. Mr. Pease of West Troy, N. Y.

Professor Norton's topic was the suppression of the village hoodlum and loafer and the need of more backbone on the part of the authorities, and he proposed the formation of organizations in every community that should crystalize the best moral sentiment of the town and bring it to the active support of the enforcers of the law. Although a vigorous Unitarian, Professor Norton holds that we need a revival of puritanism with the theological sermon left out. The murder of Mrs. Hattie E. McCloud of Shelburne Falls last January was shown to be the legitimate fruit of a weak spinal column in repressing roudyism and worse.

Professor Norton said in part:

"From all sides we hear complaint of the spirit of lawlessness in the rising generation. And there can be no doubt that the greater independence now allowed to the youth of both sexes than was the case in the past is often abused, and tends in many cases to degenerate into willful self-assertion, indifference to the rights and interests of others and resistance to authority of whatever nature. The spirit of lawlessness develops rapidly into the spirit of crime. The idle loafer becomes the rough, the rough the villain, the villain the ruffian. The recent horrible crime and appalling tragedy of Shelburne Falls is an object lesson to this community, which surely should not fail to arouse us to the discharge of neglected duty. It is a calamity for which the community is responsible. O'Neil is not the only criminal; the church-going and well-to-do citizens of Shelburne Falls are partakers in the guilt of his crime."

In closing he said: "It is manifest that it is the duty of all country villages and towns to take more effective measures for the restraint and correction of the reckless and vicious members of the community, and any means which promises this end may be worth trying."

PENSION CLERKS KEPT BUSY.

There Are Over 40,000 Applications Now on File at Bureau.

Washington, Aug. 20.—Commissioner of Pensions Evans has had a statement prepared on the number of applications for pensions filed since July, 1896. The comparison shows that in July, 1896, applications or pensions aggregated 1898, while in June, 1897, there were 40,169, largely for increases and for widows and minor children. The table shows the number of applications under the general law and under the act of June 27, 1890, respectively, as follows:

Commissioner Evans attributed this large increase of claims to two reasons. He said that the hard times had made many men apply for pensions who had not previously needed them, and the other reason he said, is the existency of a general feeling throughout the country that the claims of pensioners would be given more consideration by the present administration than by the last.

"Many soldiers," he said, "felt that the Democratic administration would not allow their pensions however just they might be, and in this way thousands of applications were held back until now. We are simply getting the accumulation of a long period, and the work of receiving these applications and filing them away keeps many clerks busy. I believe the high water mark of pensions has been reached, and that now the number of applications will begin to decrease."

One month's more work of three veterinaries will complete the testing in Orleans county.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Mr. Daniel Flowers Found Dead at his Home on Newcomb Place.

Mr. Daniel Flowers of Newcomb place was found dead in bed this morning by his son, at his home. Mrs. Flowers is in Prince Edwards Island on a visit and the only person in the house was his sixteen-year old son. It was the father's custom to call his son about 6 o'clock, and this morning not being called the son got up and went up stairs and saw his father apparently asleep. He tried to arouse him but being unable to do so he became alarmed and aroused the neighbors. Dr. Garey was called and upon his arrival pronounced him dead, although the body was warm and he had probably been dead but a short time.

Mr. Flower's son said his father complained of his heart Thursday night and he went to City Square and purchased some medicine. This bottle was found on the mantle in the room and from its appearance it had been opened and some of it taken.

Medical Examiner Gilbert who was called pronounced the cause to be heart trouble.

Mr. Flowers was a quiet, unassuming man and one who worked early and late. He was a stone cutter by trade and had been employed for many years by McKenzie & Paterson. After completing his day's work it was his custom to work about his home until late at night, especially so during the summer months.

Some few weeks ago Mrs. Flowers with her three children went to Prince Edward Island to visit her home and Mr. Flowers has kept house with his son.

He was a kind and indulgent father and a good neighbor.

He was about 42 years of age and leaves a widow, three daughters and two sons.

The only fraternal order he was known to be affiliated with was Merrymount lodge, A. O. U. W.

QUINCY'S SOLID MEN

And Some Women Too Who Pay a Big Tax This Year.

Quincy has many solid men and women and business firms as will be seen by a list of all who are this year called upon to pay into the city treasury $50 and upwards. The tax rate is $18 80 so that a tax of $50 represents a valuation of over $2500, and a tax of $100 a valuation of over $5000. The instalment today include those names having property in Ward One:

TODAY'S COURT.

Benjamin Banner was arraigned for drunkenness at Braintree. Case continued until Aug. 27.

James H. O'Brine was arraigned for drunkenness at Randolph. Case continued until Saturday.

Owing to the death of a son of Judge Humphrey some difficulty was had in obtaining a justice at the district court this morning. Judge Cook is away and Judge Pratt was also out of town. Word was sent to Boston and after some delay Judge Pratt came to Quincy; arriving on the 10.30 train.

The continued case of Carmine P. Gardner for assault on John J. Clark at Quincy was called. He was fined $10 Appealed.

Thomas Forsaith was fined $5 for drunkenness at Milton.

Death of Prof. Humphrey.

Word has been received of the death at Port Antonio in the West Indies, on Tuesday, of Prof. James Ellis Humphrey, a son of Hon. James Humphrey of Weymouth. He was a professor at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md., and was a native of Weymouth Heights, Mass., and about thirty years of age. He received the degree of Bachelor of Science at Harvard University in 1886 and Doctor of Science in 1892. He entered Johns Hopkins University last year and became a fellow by courtesy, lecturing on botany. Last June he was regularly elected a member of the faculty, being made instructor of botany, and immediately started with a party made up of about twenty Hopkins men for Port Antonio on an exploring expedition. He was accompanied by his wife.

Q. Y. CLUB OPEN RACE.

But Little Wind—Four Classes Fail to Finish.

From a racing skippers point of view the Quincy Yacht club's first of its series of open races was not a success as it lacked that most essential element,—wind. At half past two o'clock when the fleet began to gather around the starting line after the preparatory gun had been fired what little air there was came listlessly from the eastward, beyond the Weymouth shore it was southwest. With two such contrary winds rubbing against each other for supremacy the inevitable happened,—a calm.

Yachts for this series of races came from all along the coast,—from Falmouth, Plymouth, Kingston and Brewster. There was the Nancy Hanks from Kingston with "Johnny" Watson at the stick, the crack Cape cat Addie of Brewster with the redoubtable "Bennie" Nickerson of South Harwich to show our boys around the course, and the Ashumet with Howard Stickney for skipper.

The first, second and second open classes were sent off on the regular course, across the line between Judges' stand and flag-float, leaving flag-float on the port and Q. Y. C. barrel buoy off Raccoon Island on the starboard, to Channel Rock buoy, leaving it on the port; thence to Black Can buoy No. 1, leaving it on the starboard; thence to Red Brush buoy No. 2 in Hingham Channel, leaving it on the port; thence to Red Dolphin on Seal Rocks, leaving it on the port; thence leaving Sheep Island on port to the Channel Rock buoy, leaving it on the starboard; thence leaving barrel buoy off Raccoon Island on the port to and across starting line, leaving the flag-float on the starboard. Distance, ten miles.

The third, fourth and knockabout classes were put over the regular seven mile triangular course, which lies nearly opposite the club house.

The air was so light when the various classes got away that it was impossible for many of them to get good starts. The race soon narrowed down to a drifting match. Out of the 28 yachts which crossed the line only six of third class and one in the fourth finished.

In the third class the Cleopatra under Henry Faxon's skilful handling easily walked away from all of her competitors and beat them hands down from five to thirteen minutes.

In the fourth class the Fantasy was the only one that finished.

All of the boats in the first, second, second open and knockabout classes withdrew. They will race on Saturday morning of this week at ten o'clock off Spear's Stand Ledge.

The judges for this series of races are Commodore Sanborn, chairman; Mr. James S. Whiting, secretary; Vice Commodore Davis, Ex-Commodore Pettengill, Fleet Captain Saville, Mr. Herbert W. Robbins, Ex-Commodore Keith, Dr. Fred E. Jones, and Mr. Eben W. Sheppard.

The result:

Q. & B. 14; West End 3.

The Quincy & Boston ball team visited South Boston, Thursday, and defeated Div. 5, of the West End for the second time. The features of the game were the battery work of Duffy and Hayes and the batting of Dunn, Murphy, Hayes and Faircloth.

The score by innings:

Innings,	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Q. & B. St Ry.	2	0	1	3	2	3	0	0	3	—14
Div. 5, W. E.,	0	0	2	1	0	0	0	0	0	— 3

Earned runs—Quincy & Boston, 5; Division 5, 1. Two-base hits—J. Faircloth, 2; H. Faircloth, Conroy. Three-base hits—D. Murphy. Double plays—Sutter and Brown. Passed balls—Brown, 1; Hayes, 1. Wild pitches—Murry, 1. Hit by pitched ball—H. Faircloth, Bearce, Conley. Time—2 hours and 15 minutes. Umpires—McCluskey and Colton. Struck out—by Duffy, 11; by Murry, 5.

TALK OF THE CITY.

Miss Carrie Poland of Norfolk Downs is spending a few weeks at Bristol, Me.

The resolutions presented to the Hon. John Shaw by the Quincy granite manufacturers are on exhibition in the window at Durgin's drug store.

A good piece of work has been done on Independence avenue. Plenty of gravel well rolled has made the road hard and smooth and more passable than it has been for a year.

The residents of Spear street are having a pleasant surprise. Work on cleaning up and regraveling the street was begun on Thursday. The street is a short, but pretty one and with a little attention now and then can be kept in good order.

The next road to receive the attention of Commissioner Knowlton should be Washington street from Elm to South street. The gravel has all worn off and the sharp stones are pricking through making driving and bicycling very unpleasant.

HOUGHS NECK.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn Carpenter and daughter, Miss Anne Carpenter, Miss Bertha Guild, Miss Edith Guild of Mansfield, Miss Jennie B. Chamberlain of Jersey City, Mrs. George T. Randall and daughter, Mrs. E. Barry and daughter of Brockton, Miss Ella M. Hollis of Groveland and Mrs. M. E Coron of Roslindale have been spending the week here.

Miss Delia Vining has returned to her home in Campello after several weeks' sojourn.

Miss Tena Willard has returned to her home at Centreville.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

SESSION ADJOURNS.

Legion of Honor Changed Bylaws and Elected Officers---Receivership Application.

Buffalo, Aug. 20.—The Legion of Honor adjourned yesterday after electing officers for the ensuing year. The business transacted consisted of amendments to the by-laws fixing a rate of assessment for all members and abolishing classes, restricting the assessments to one in any one month and providing that if this is not sufficient claims to be paid at the end of the year shall be paid from the reserve fund. The following officers were elected:

Commander, F. O. Downes of Boston; vice commander, P. F. McGowan of New York; orator, G. W. Carson of St. Louis; secretary, Adam Warner of New York; treasurer, George W. Kendrick, Jr., of Philadelphia.

Commander-elect Downes said he had received a copy of the bill filed by Mr. McNamara of Boston in the United States court at Jersey City recently. The action, he said, was brought to test the legality of by-laws of the association which have been in operation for a year. The bill did not ask for a receiver because the association was insolvent, but that a receiver be appointed to take charge of and hold the emergency fund pending action by the court. The bill also asked that the association be adjourned from separating its members into classes. The bill is returnable in the United States court at Boston, Sept. 7.

ON THE DIAMOND.

National League.

At Boston—

The Bostons maintained their playing ratio of 16 to 1 in the game with Pittsburg yesterday, and those figures just bout represent the actual merits of the two teams. Nichols was almost invincible and his backing was perfect. Hawley was hit from the start, and his support was poor. Tannehill, who was put in the box in the sixth, did well for one inning, after which he was an easy mark. Collins' third base work was brilliant, and Hamilton was kept busy in the outfield. Rothfuss and Davis played the strongest game for the visitors.

"Golli's" Last Day.

Madrid, Aug. 20.—Michel Angiolillo, alias Golli, the assassin of Premier Canovas del Castillo, has been notified that the supreme council of war has confirmed the sentence of death passed upon him by a court-martial at Vergara. The assassin has been removed from his cell to the prison chapel, where he is receiving religious ministrations preparatory to his execution, which will take place today.

Coudert's Illness Not Serious.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 20.—Frederick R. Coudert of New York, known as an authority on international law, is not seriously sick. He has been indisposed, but has so far recovered that his physician has not been called for three days. The attending physician says that Mr. Coudert will fully recover his health, and that his condition has not been such as to cause the least alarm.

Stevenson Says He Is Solvent.

Boston, Aug. 20.—There was a lively time in the insolvency court yesterday before Judge Forbes when James Stevenson, father of Miss Grace Stevenson, the Brookline young lady who mysteriously disappeared some weeks ago, through his legal advisers, was given a hearing upon his petition for a stay of proceedings in insolvency until the return of the insolvency warrant on Sept. 3. Stevenson testified that he was solvent, could pay all his bills and was worth $500,000 above all indebtedness. Outside of certain judgments and executions against him he did not know that writs of attachment on his real estate for about $75,000 had been issued since the insolvency proceedings began. He acknowledged that he had not filed a schedule of his property or turned his property over by order of the court, because no demand had been made upon him. At the conclusion of the evidence given and the arguments Judge Forbes granted the stay asked for and added an order to prevent Stevenson from giving away, disposing of or otherwise parting with his property until after the return of the insolvency warrant.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all sufferirg veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

ANSWER IS FRIENDLY.

Secretary of State Sherman Replies to Japan's Last Note.

Right to Annex Hawaii Again Maintained.

Satisfaction Expressed at Proposition to Arbitrate Immigration Question.

Washington, Aug. 20.—Secretary of State Sherman has replied to Japan's last note anent the annexation of the Hawaiia islands by the United States. The answer was sent to Mr. Hoshi, the Japanese minister at Washington.

Mr. Sherman's answer was marked by its friendly expressions toward Japan, which gives especial satisfaction in view of the somewhat strained relations resulting from the previous correspondence. Two features are brought out by the answer: It reiterates the position heretofore taken by the secretary of state as to the right and propriety of annexing Hawaii to the United States. With this, however, is coupled an assurance that the interests of Japan in Hawaii will be fully safeguarded. It also expresses satisfaction at the plan of arbitration between Japan and Hawaii, on the question of Japanese immigration to Hawaii. The answer is largely an elaboratign of Mr. Sherman's former letter, and the policies expressed in no way differ from those previously laid down by him.

Minister Hoshi has cabled the substance of the answer to the Tokio government, and the full text of the answer has been forwarded. It will not reach Japan until Sept. 7, and no action may be taken until the text is before the Japanese foreign office. The Japanese legation is reticent over the dispatch, although there is no effort to conceal the satisfaction felt over the friendly spirit displayed throughout Mr. Sherman's answer. The attention of the Tokio government has been particularly directed toward these expressions of good will.

Grand Circuit Races.

Glens Falls, N. Y., Aug. 20.—The third day of the grand circuit meeting here was a disappointment to lovers of well-contested events. In the 2:14 trot, Margaret won three straight heats and went under the wire each time on a jog. In the free for all pace, Lottie Loraine won easily in three straight heats, and jogged home each time. Before the first heat of the last event, the 2:20 class pacing, was finished, rain had begun falling, and the hardest rain of the season poured down in torrents for upwards of an hour. The track became a canal and racing ended for the day. The talent suffered yesterday, as Valence was played favorite in the 2:14 trotting class, and Bright Regent in the free for all classes. W. N. G. is favorite in the unfinished race, and shows too much speed for her companions.

Judgment For Widow.

New York, Aug. 20.—By the report of Referee Nelson, filed yesterday, Mrs. Caecilia I. Yale is declared entitled to a judgment as administratrix of her husband, Samuel R. W. Yale, directing the Broadway and Seventh Avenue Railroad company, to give her a new certificate of stock in the company valued at $4200. The Meriden Savings bank of Meriden, Conn., of which Yale was secretary, was robbed on May 14, 1887, of $800 in cash and a number of securities, among which were Yale's private securities, including the railroad stock. The railroad company refused to issue new certificates lest some one might claim them. Yale died in 1890, and his widow brought suit to compel the company to issue new certificates.

Prosecuting Bogus Butter Dealers.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Prosecutions on a wholesale scale will, it is said, soon be instituted against violators of the new butterine law, which prohibits the coloring of imitation butter. It is claimed that dealers in all parts of the city are selling butterine and other preparations in open defiance of the law and with the mutual understanding that the matter is to be brought to the supreme court to have the law passed upon. In this it is said they will be accommodated with a vengeance. Three prominent firms have already been indicted for violating the law, and evidence is being collected in other cases. The National Dairy union is said to be behind the prosecution.

The Veterans Union.

Springfield, O., Aug. 20.—Considerable of the time of the national encampment of the Union Veterans' union yesterday was taken up by a bitter fight over the admission of delegates. Special orders of Commander-in-Chief Wood appointed Colonel Frank E. Farnaham of Massachusetts as judge advocate general, vice General J. H. Roberts, resigned. At the session of the National W. V. R. C. the reports showed that the order has a membership of about 2000. The corps elected as president, Mrs. Hortense White of Ohio, and Mrs. George B. Goddard of Brockton, Mass., conductress.

Gambler Killed Himself.

New York, Aug. 20.—The corpse of the man who on Tuesday night last fired a bullet through his head while in a lonely part of Central park, this city, has been identified as that of George Weyman, known throughout the United States as "California George." He was a notorious character, being twice tried for murder. During the Rebellion he fired the Confederate ram Louisiana to prevent her being captured by Admiral Farragut. He was a professional gambler, and was never known to play a straight game. He helped dupe "Coal Oil Johnny" and others out of millions.

World's Medical Congress.

Moscow, Aug. 20.—The international congress of medicine was opened here yesterday by the Grand Duke Sergius, representing the czar. There are altogether 7300 delegates, of whom half come from abroad. Among the honorary presidents Dr. Taylor and Dr. Billings were elected for the United States. Count Delianoff, minister of public instruction, delivered the address of welcome, which was spoken in Latin.

The Refractometer

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent occulists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.

I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.

F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.

I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.

JACOB GOLDBERG, M. D.

This is a very expensive instrument, but we consider nothing too good for our patrons, and have placed one in our optical room.

GOLD OF THE WORLD.

WHAT THE DIRECTOR OF THE MINT AT WASHINGTON SAYS ABOUT IT.

The Estimated Product of the Metal For 1897—The Influence of the Addition Will Be to Still Further Depreciate the Value of Silver.

That gold exists in large quantities in the newly discovered Klondike district is sufficiently proved by the large amount recently brought out by the steamship companies and miners returning to the states who went into the district within the last eighteen months. So far $1,500,000 in gold from the Klondike district has been deposited at the mints and assay offices of the United States, and from information now at hand there are substantial reasons for believing that from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 additional will be brought out by the steamers and returning miners sailing from St. Michael's the last of September or early October next. One of the steamship companies states that it expects to bring out about $2,000,000 on its steamer sailing from St. Michael's Sept. 30 and has asked the government to have a revenue cutter act as a convoy through the Bering sea. In view of the facts above stated I am justified in estimating that the Klondike district will augment the world's gold supply in 1897 nearly $6,000,000.

The gold product of the Dominion of Canada for 1896, as estimated by Dr. G. M. Dawson, director of the geological survey of that country, was $2,810,000. Of this sum the Yukon placers, within British territory, were credited with a production of $355,000. The total product of that country for 1897 has, therefore, been estimated at $10,000,000, an increase over 1896 of $7,200,000. From this the richness of the newly discovered goldfields of the Klondike is evident.

In this connection it is important to know what will be the probable increase in the several countries of the world, and for the purpose of comparison, based upon information received, the following table of the gold product of the United States, Australia, Africa, Mexico, the Dominion of Canada, Russia and British India for 1896 and the estimated product of these countries for 1897 is here given:

	1896.	1897.	Increase.
United States.	$53,000,000	$60,000,000	$7,000,000
Australia.....	46,250,000	52,000,000	5,750,000
Africa.....	44,000,000	56,000,000	12,000,000
Mexico.....	7,000,000	9,000,000	2,000,000
Canada.....	2,810,000	10,000,000	7,200,000
Russia.....	22,000,000	25,000,000	3,000,000
British India..	5,825,000	7,000,000	1,175,000
Totals.....	$180,885,000	$219,000,000	$38,125,000

The world's gold product for 1896 is estimated to have been $205,000,000. In justification of the above estimate of the increase in the countries mentioned I may remark that of the United States is based upon the deposits at the mints and assay offices for the first six months of the year, which clearly indicate a largely increased production, and that the increase for the year will aggregate $7,000,000. The gold product of Africa for 1896 is estimated to have been $44,000,000. For the first six months of 1897 the output of the Witwatersrandt mines, as shown by official returns, was 1,338,431 ounces, an increase of 333,928 ounces, as compared with the first six months of 1896. There is no doubt that the rate of production in the Witwatersrandt mines will be maintained for the remainder of the year, and their output of gold for 1897 will be fully $12,000,000 greater than that of 1896.

The deposits of gold at the Australian mints for the first five months of the year clearly indicate a substantial gain in 1897 over 1896. Upon the basis of the deposits for the first five months at the mints the Australian Insurance and Banking Record for the month of June estimates that the gold product for 1897 of the several colonies will aggregate 2,700,000 ounces, of the value of $52,550,000. This would be an increase of $5,750,000 over the product of 1896.

The gold product of Mexico for 1896 is estimated to have been $7,000,000. The information received indicates that the product for 1897 will approximate $9,000,000, an increase of $2,000,000.

The Russian product for 1896 was $22,000,000; for 1897 it is estimated at $25,000,000, an increase of $3,000,000.

The gold product of British India for 1896, from official information received, is estimated at $5,825,000. The returns of the mines for the first six months of 1897 indicate an increased production over 1896 of $1,200,000.

From the data above given it is safe to estimate that the seven countries above named will show an increase in their gold output for 1897 over 1896 of $38,700,000, and that the world's product for 1897 can therefore be estimated at not less than $240,000,000. There is no doubt that the world's product of gold will continue to increase for a number of years to come, as new mines will be opened up in all parts of the world, and, with improved appliances for mining and methods of extracting the gold contained in the ores, I believe that by the close of the present century the world's gold product will closely approximate if not exceed $300,000,000.

Now as to the influence of such addition to the world's gold. The influence it will exert depends mainly on how many years the Klondike district shall continue a producer and how large its annual increment to the world's existing stock of gold shall be. There is every reason to believe that Alaska and the adjacent British territory are possibly as rich in gold as was California or Australia when first discovered. I have estimated that the Klondike district will in 1897 produce $6,000,000 worth of gold. It will add to this product from year to year, probably, for a minimum of one or two decades. And whether the gold comes from American or British territory is a matter of indifference, except to the owners and to some exent to the countries producing it. The effect of the increase on the economic condition of mankind, on the rate of discount, the rate of interest, the rate of wages, on prices and on monetary policies, of a newly discovered goldfield of wonderful richness is the same, whether the field be located in American, British or Chinese territory.

Now, the first influence that the new addition to the world's existing stock of gold will have will be felt by silver. In fact, it has already been felt by it. Gold is the natural competitor—we might almost say antagonist—of silver as a monetary medium, and every ounce of gold newly placed on the market deprives from 17½ to 35 ounces of silver of a possible employment as money that it might have.

The new additions to the world's stock of gold, whether they come from the Klondike, Cripple Creek or the Transvaal, from India, Australia or Russia, will render bimetallism by the United States alone more difficult and more improbable than ever and will even seriously imperil the slender chances that international bimetallism now has.

There is, in fact, at the present time, no limit to the demand for gold. The tendency of nations is toward the single gold standard. Apart from the United States, there is not, I believe, a country on the face of the earth that would not adopt gold monometallism if it had the ability to do so, with silver as a subsidiary or token coinage. There is not a country in Europe with any full legal tender silver coins but would replace them by gold coins if it could do so without too great a sacrifice. Germany would gladly put $100,000,000 in circulation instead of its silver thalers. France and all the countries of the Latin union would replace their full legal tender 5 franc pieces by gold could they easily get it. Russia's demand for gold is unbounded. Austria-Hungary cannot get enough, and so of every other country in Europe. Japan wants gold now that it has adopted the gold standard. Even China shows an inclination to follow the example of its conqueror, but that, of course, is out of the question. All South America is crying for gold. Chile wants it, Colombia wants it, Peru wants it. Venezuela has some, but wants more. Central America wants it. Even Mexico, the last stronghold of silver, is feeling the burdensomeness of its present system in the height of its rate of exchange.—R. E. Preston in New York Herald.

WATER POWER PLANT.

Utilizing the St. Lawrence River Current.

The greatest water power plant in the world is to be in operation within a few months, if the plans of the corporation controlling it meet with no obstruction. It is intended to take power from the St. Lawrence river and by means of turbines of 5,000 horsepower each operate an electric plant of almost incalculable strength. John Bogart, the engineer, of New York city has prepared the plans, and the contracts are ready to be let. The financial part of the business, which means the forming of a company with a capital of millions of dollars, is in the hands of Stewart & Co., investment brokers. Mr. Stewart has everything in proper shape now and the work is already going on.

The plant is to be in an immense building near Massena, N. Y., on the United States side of the St. Lawrence. There are 15 turbines, which, with 5,000 horsepower each, aggregate 75,000 horsepower.

The St. Lawrence in the neighborhood of Massena has a fall of 56 feet in a distance of about seven miles, and the Grass river at Massena is 50 feet lower than the St. Lawrence. Engineers have examined every foot of the territory for many miles above Massena, and after weighing every consideration and taking advantage of every natural advantage, have come to the conclusion that Massena is the ideal spot.

A canal connects the St. Lawrence with Grass river at a point which makes available much greater power than could be obtained in any other way. The proposal is to cut this canal 3½ miles long, 220 feet broad and 26 feet deep. Then, with a working head of 40 feet, it will be able to send enough water into the Grass river to develop 15,000 horsepower.

As showing the general confidence in the enterprise, $3,000,000 worth of bonds have been underwritten by an English company to build the plant.

Manufacturing of all kinds is to be established at Massena as soon as the electric power is in operation, because there will be actually all the power that can be required for the ponderous machinery.—Kansas City Times.

Co-operative Societies' Congress.

The co-operative societies in Great Britain and Ireland recently held their twenty-ninth annual co-operative congress in Perth, Scotland. The reports showed a distinct gain for the cause of co-operation. The Earl of Winchelsea, in the course of his address, stated that the number of co-operative societies in Great Britain has increased in 30 years from 850 to 1,750, and the membership from 150,000 to 1,000,000. The societies hold shares to the value of $85,000,000 and carry on a business represented by sales of approximately $300,000,000 a year, upon which profits were made and divided of about $31,000,000, while commodities were sold to the consumer at reduced prices.—Public Opinion.

Largest Floating Dock In the World.

There is now in process of construction in England, at the order of the Spanish government, for the port of Olougapo, in the Philippine islands, the largest floating dock of its kind in the world. It is over 450 feet long, 117 feet wide and 38½ feet deep. This dock, the sides of which are of steel, will rest on six iron pontoons, each 14 feet deep. Powerful pumping engines will lift a vessel weighing 12,000 tons in two hours. The dock will accommodate a vessel 500 feet long.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 5c.

VISIT TO THE SEWER.

Work Progressing Favorably on Brick Sewer.

There is Danger of Drying Up Butler's Pond.

Contractor Having Difficult Job at the Pumping Station.

One of the most difficult jobs on the sewer is that taken by John Cashman which is building the foundation for the pumping station located in the marsh land, near Merry Mount park. The work is made extremely difficult on account of the water he has to contend with; for not only does the salt water make in there but the fresh water as well, and it has been necessary to keep pumps moving night and day.

While it was difficult to get the foundation walls into position, that was easy compared with the building of the well into which the main sewer empties. This well was sunk 23 feet and quick sand and water were enough to make most any contractor wish to throw up his job.

Mr. Cashman, however, is a persistant man and he therefore succeeds where others would fail.

The bottom of this well is of concrete cement and about ten feet deep, and it was a problem to get this in.

Three inch hard pine matched planks were brought into use and these were driven deep into the earth, or rather mud and beach sand; for far below the level of the marsh were found evidence that some time in the past this was a beach and was covered with water.

Even after these planks were driven it was a difficult job to lay the bottom of the well, and although the pumps were kept in constant motion the water would burst up through the bottom in a six-inch stream.

The bottom of the well was put into position Thursday and it is said that it was a case of hustle for a while.

The walls of this well are composed of concrete and granite and are about six feet thick. Inside of this is an inner wall of cement and brick. The sewage flows into this well by gravitation and is pumped into the force main.

At another section of the brick sewer the work is progressing although all along the line the contractor is having considerable difficulty in taking care of the water, and it is necessary to keep the pumps constantly in motion.

The result of this is, that while one would not suppose it to be so, all of the wells in vicinity of the sewer have dried up and but for the presence of the city water service, there would be a water famine. And in fact, there is almost a water famine in the vicinity of Field and Brackett streets. The city water pipes are not laid in this section and many of the wells are dry and the residents are experiencing considerable difficulty in getting water.

Another interesting point of the sewer is at Greenleaf street. Here a shaft has been sunk in the centre of the street, to the depth of about thirty-five feet. From the bottom of this shaft a tunnel is being dug both ways, viz. toward Butler's pond and toward Coddington street. The work in this tunnel is being done by negroes and they earn good pay, but none too much for the work they do.

As has been stated previously in the LEDGER, a six-inch drain pipe is being laid beneath the sewer proper to take care of the surface water, or rather to take the water to the wells where the steam pumps are at work.

These pipes when once in are not removed and in this connection a serious question has come to the minds of many, and that is, what will become of Butler's pond?

The brick sewer is laid at an angle so that the sewerage flows by gravitation to the pumping station, and it is a question whether or not these drain pipes beneath the sewer will not ultimately result in draining the pond so that instead of a beautiful sheet of water as now, it will become a mud hole.

Taken as a whole, the construction of the brick sewer is quite an undertaking and of more magnitude than many supposed. It is, however, an interesting work and one worthy of inspection.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of J. H. O'Brine for drunkenness at Randolph was called and he was fined $5.

James M. Briggs was sent to the House of Correction for six months for being a vagrant at Braintree.

Patrick Sylvator was fined $5 for assault on Fannie Sylvator at Weymouth.

Civil Trial List.

The following cases are marked for trial at the civil session of the District court next Tuesday:

1—Alberti vs. Colcord, et als.
162—Healy vs. Stoughton.
165—Delny vs. Quincy and Boston Street Railway.
167—Phillips vs. Hall.
170—Mayo vs. Nimerkern.

A PSALM OF LOVE.

Dreadful and lovely, very stern and kind,
Came a vast angel, winnowing down the wind.
A raiment as of lightnings veiled his form,
And when he spoke his whisper drowned the storm.

I cried and fell before him on the ground,
"Love, love the long desired, at last is found!"
Then swiftly sped to clasp his awful feet,
Knowing that love, though linked with death, were sweet.

But he laughed loud across the breathless air:
"Fool, draw not near me! Knowest thou not despair?"
Yet, unappalled to find my fate, I came
And would have come unshodden over flame.

Wherefore he, smiling, murmured in mine ear,
"Learn, thou whose love of love has cast out fear,
Love is despair, since love began to be,
But love's new name awaits eternity."

Since then we twain across the lands have trod,
As o'er the Syrian fields men walked with God.
O love eternal, sacred still despair,
Awful and gracious, most austerely fair!
—G. A. D. in Bookman.

SHE PAID THE BET.

She left the city on Feb. 22. Her friends all wondered at this sudden move and into the country at this ungodly season. No one knew why, but all had their theories.

She gave a luncheon the day before and received a telegram at the table, so the girls said, and as she opened it a very peculiar, half mirthful, half sad expression came into her face.

"Well, girls, I am going away tonight for three or four weeks."

"Why, for goodness' sake, you're to lead the german tonight at King's."

"No. Tonight I'll be away from here. I don't quite know where, but I'm going anyhow. Won't you have some more of this ice, Lucille?"

This was the source whence originated their numerous and varied conclusions. That night at the german it was the theme of conversation. The pretty girls were glad because young Mrs. Page was popular; the stupid ones were glad because it actually gave them something to talk about, and before the festivities were over the ears of the poor departed must have burned like fire. In the meantime she telephoned down to Jack's office: "Hello! Is that you, Jack?"

"Yes, dear."

"Well, you'll be surprised, but I'm going away."

"Going? Where?"

"Down the river somewhere, I guess. I'll take Marie. Why? Oh, it's just a whim, Jack, but I know you'll let me go."

"I don't suppose it would make much difference what I wanted."

"Now, Jack—well, the train leaves at 5:04. You needn't come up here. Be down at the depot and have some money for me. Goodby. See you later. Got to get my things ready."

She didn't go to get her things ready, but she told Marie to. She sat down in a big chair and thought it all over.

"I suppose they'll all think I'm crazy, and what on earth shall I tell Jack? Oh, I'll get to the station late; then there won't be time to say anything. Great heavens, only a year ago and how different things were! That whole day comes back to me now like a dream, and I'd actually almost forgot about it. But somehow when I made that bet I felt as though I would lose it. I'm married; so I've lost. Cut my eyebrow off and send him the picture! How silly! But I'm game. I'll do it. Oh, dear, won't I be ugly without an eyebrow? I wonder where he is now. Poor boy! He really did love me and I"—

* * * * * * *

"Madame had better be dressing. The trunk is packed, and it is half past 4."

"Have you ordered the carriage?"

"It's ready, madame."

* * * * * * *

"Hello, Jack! Nearly missed it, didn't I?"

"For heaven's sake, Edith, where are you going?"

"Oh, my, there goes the whistle! I'll write you all about it, Jack. Goodby. Be good." And the astonished Jack stood just where Edith left him till the train was out of sight.

* * * * * * *

"Marie, look in my coat pocket and get me that telegram. Thanks. Let's see. Why, he isn't in California at all! Chicago! What on earth is he doing there do you suppose?"

"Did madame speak?"

"No. Go and read."

"After all, this is very foolish, but it's sort of fun to be foolish, anyhow. Poor Jack! I really ought to love him more; he is so good to me. Oh, pshaw! Why can't people have money and brains and all things that I like combined? Now, Beardsley would have been so nice if he hadn't been poor. I nearly thought he was nice, anyhow. Who's whistling that tune? I haven't heard it for—dear me, I'm getting sentimental! But here we are!

"I want a hotel out of town where I can be very quiet."

"Chateau Rouge, ma'am, jist the place. Only one man in the whole hotel, an he don't bother no one. He goes moonin round all day. We're 'arf afraid he's a-goin ter do suthin desperit. He"—

"Well, never mind. Get my bags. I'm anxious to see the place."

"Is this it? Oh, Marie, isn't it lovely? We can be so nice and quiet here! No, I won't come down to dinner. You needn't either, Marie. Both meals sent up, please. Yes."

That night, after long and loving looks at that fatal eyebrow, she seized Jack's razor, which she had deliberately brought with her for the purpose, and, with a gasp of resolution, it was off.

"Oh, you beauty, you fool! Suppose it doesn't grow again. Suppose it grows white. But what's the good of caring? I'm going to bed. I'm dead. Then I can wake up in the morning and worry all over again."

She woke up, though, before the morning—just in the middle of the quiet night.

"What's that? Who on earth can be playing the banjo at this unearthly hour? It must be the jilted man, and he's playing 'Answer.' He must be right near here. Oh, heavens, I can't stand that song! I've heard it too many times when I haven't been alone, and minus an eyebrow besides. Playing the banjo too. Isn't it strange? I wonder who he is? Marie, Marie, please go knock at that man's door and ask if he would mind not playing any more this evening. I'm very tired and can't sleep. What did he say?"

"He just spoke through the door like."

"Thank you, Marie. Go to bed now."

Edith didn't wake up till very late in the day, but when she did it was with that peculiar consciousness of another person in the room, and there was—but only Marie. She stood and stared and gaped at Edith, a half idiotic, half frightened smile on her wondering countenance.

"What are you staring at, you imbecile! Go down stairs. I'll dress myself."

For nearly a week Edith staid in her room, being particularly occupied picking something off the floor or dozing with the newspaper over her face when the servants came in. She didn't hear the banjo any more and completely forgot the little incident. Her restless spirit revolted, however, at the solitary confinement and she resolved to break it.

"Who cares for a lovesick man who probably wouldn't notice whether I had any eyes at all or not? I'm going out. Marie, my hat and veil."

She started off, and before long had gone farther than she imagined. She sat down for rest and meditation. These, however, were soon disturbed by a cracking twig and a footstep very close. Of course she turned round, but was hardly prepared for the eyes that returned her astonished gaze.

"Where did you come from?" was the simultaneous exclamation.

"Beardsley!"

"Edith."

"Yes, Edith."

"Edith, what are you doing in this out of the way place? I thought you were in New York."

"After your telegram? Look."

"And you did this?"

"Looks like it, doesn't it? That's what I'm doing here—waiting for it to grow. Well, if I never believed in fatalism before I do now. Isn't it the funniest thing you ever heard of? What are you doing here yourself?"

"Just thinking of a year ago. Do you know, Edith, it's just a year ago today since you went away? There's another coincidence. But I must not stay here. I regret seeing you more than I can tell—yes, regret it. Don't look at me that way. I mean it, every word of it. For a year now my life has been—well, a blank, my work poor, my ambition gone. And for what? Because the woman I loved to the limit of myself, and who professed to love me six months after we had been parted, was married to another. That's why I regret. Do you understand? Tell me, Edith, did you ever really imagine you loved me, or were you just killing time while you were waiting to go away?"

"Beardsley, how can you? I married, yes. And no man could love me more or be kinder to me than Jack. I feel wicked and guilty sometimes that I do not love him more, but he knows it, and"—

"So you married without loving him? Edith, this is worse than I thought. I—but I must leave here tonight. I forgive you, yes—and God bless you, little woman. I hope you will be happy. Goodby." And before Edith could speak she was alone.

"He didn't give me a chance to say a word," she said to herself.

She walked back to the hotel feeling quite light and queer in the head. She went up stairs and slept. She woke up a few hours later in a high fever. She grew delirious. Jack was sent for. He was a little puzzled at some of Edith's ravings and her smooth shaven brow, to which she alluded constantly, but by the time she was well enough to talk the eyebrow had nearly grown. Jack spoke of it once.

"Just to watch it grow. I used to do it all the time." About her sudden departure: "Just a whim, Jack. I"—Then she had an awful pain in her head and had to lie down.

She came back to New York again and was just as popular as ever, only her friends imagined she had grown older and more dignified. "So married," one girl said.—New York Sun.

The Dog and the Bicycle.

The bicycle has come to stay, and we have nothing to say against it, but we sometimes observe a piece of thoughtlessness on the part of cyclers the cruelty of which ought not to mar an innocent and healthful exercise. The cycler can run farther and faster than any horse that was ever foaled, but he sometimes forgets that what is easy for himself and impossible for the horse may be almost deadly to the dog. Cyclers should leave their dogs at home. The ordinary rate at which they move with perfect ease, say eight or ten miles an hour, and which they keep up easily for hours together, is beyond a dog's powers, and even when they go more slowly the occasional spurt which they are sure to make taxes the dog to its uttermost.

We have been grieved to see not a few poor dogs painfully following their masters, or, more commonly, their mistresses, with signs of manifest distress, and this, we are sure, with no purpose of cruelty on the owner's part, but through sober thoughtlessness. May we not, then, ask cyclers to remember that the dog is not a fit companion on a wheel ride?—Our Animal Friends.

Told the Truth.

"See here. That horse you sold me runs away, kicks, bites, strikes and tries to tear down the stable at night. You told me that if I got him once I would not part with him for $1,000."

AN UNFAIR TEST.

The Hypnotist Seemed a Wonder Until the Crowd Caught On.

Gathered about a mound of earth at the head of which stood a mysterious dark bearded man were thousands of wondering people. Two weeks before a dark whiskered man, who was no other than Professor Ezengallhe, the great hypnotist, had hypnotized a man and buried him six feet underground.

The day and hour had come for the subject to be released from the damp dungeon.

Would he be found dead or alive?

There were those who said a corpse would be found in the coffin. But the master only smiled.

Willing hands plied spade and pick, and soon the box was lifted out of the grave and the subject exposed. The professor waved his long hands over the face. With a weary yawn the man sat up and looked about him. A great cry of wonder went up from the crowd.

Suddenly a man sprang to the coffin side and shook his fist in the face of the subject.

"Fraud, fraud!" he cried.

The subject paled.

"It is nothing to you to be buried alive"—

He was wild with excitement.

"You lived six years in Philadelphia."

There was a second's silence, then the angry mob seized the deceiver and hurled him back in the grave. But as they threw the dirt upon him they heard him singing:

"Be it ever so humble"—

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 22. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Have we the spirit of Christ?—Rom. viii, 1-18.

The "Spirit of Christ" in this passage of Scripture does not mean the mind or disposition of Christ. The expression clearly means the actual indwelling of Christ in the heart of the believer in the person of the Holy Ghost. We have also used here the expression the "Spirit of God." This is identical with the "Spirit of Christ." Both expressions are identical, and both designate the Holy Ghost, the adorable third person of the Trinity. There is no impropriety in interchanging these expressions. They are the three persons of the same Godhead, and where the Father is there the Son is, and where the Son is there the Holy Ghost is.

The Spirit of God is everywhere, yet He is said to dwell wherever He specially manifests Himself. He dwells in heaven. He used to dwell in the temple. He now dwells in the church and in each individual believer whose body is a temple of the Holy Ghost.

Whether the Spirit of Christ dwells in us or not is a very important question. Upon the answer to this question depends the validity of our claim to Christianity. It is the supreme test of true and genuine discipleship. "If any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of His." How may we know whether we have the Spirit of Christ? The first test is the character of life that is in us. If Christ be in us, we are spiritually minded and our lives are characterized by deep spirituality. If Christ be not in us, we love and worship the world and the things of the world. "If Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin, but the Spirit is life because of righteousness." Our inward and outward lives will tell us very readily whether or not Christ dwells in us. A second test of the indwelling of Christ is fruitbearing. If Christ is in us, we will bring forth fruit to the honor and glory of God. "He that abideth in Me," says Christ, "and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit." And again, "Herein is my Father glorified that He bear much fruit. So shall ye be My disciples." And again, "By their fruits shall ye know them." By our lives and by our fruit we cannot but tell if Christ dwell in us. If not both by faith and prayer, we should seek for the outpouring of the Spirit upon us. We should cleanse ourselves from all sin, empty the heart and life of self and the world, so that Christ can come in and dwell with us, and if He dwell with us here, we shall dwell with Him hereafter. "Behold I stand at the door and knock, and if any man will hear My voice and open unto Me I will come in and sup with him and he with Me."

What a Christian Is.

To be Christian means to possess and to be possessed by the spirit of Jesus, and there are many who have this spirit who never make any conventional profession of it, but who by the Christ-likeness of their lives indicate its presence and its power. They may be profoundly ignorant of the complexities of theology, may even deny the details of many of the doctrines of the church and modestly hesitate to define the nature of God and Christ, yet by the honesty, sweetness, gentleness, purity and trustfulness of their lives reveal the gracious power that animates them. Such are Christians and should be welcomed in the church.—Christian Leader.

Praise the Church.

We may always safely praise the church, though we may not always praise the people that are in it. It was established by our Lord and is His great hospital for the cure of souls. They who find fault with the church because it does not cure all whom it has under treatment might as well find fault with the hospitals throughout the world because so many of their patients die under treatment.—Lutheran.

In the Heart.

A song in the heart is better than a grand piano in a gilded parlor. Real riches cannot be counted out in coin; we are rich in what we are. People are troubled because they live in back streets, but the alley is as near heaven as the avenue.—Dean Hodges.

Exact Justice.

Exact justice is commonly more merciful in the long run than pity, for it tends to foster in men those stronger qualities which make them good citizens.—Sabbath Reading.

Endeavor Rays.

Far more glorious are the deeds of the modern army of children in our Christian Endeavor societies than any that marked the period of the children's crusades.

The Congregational church at Santa Cruz, Cal., has four societies in connection with its Christian Endeavor society—a Senior, an Intermediate, a Chinese and a Japanese society.

"The hearth fire of Christian life, from which are scattered glowing coals of practical Christianity"—this characterization of the Christian Endeavor society comes from a pastor in Russia.

A second society has been organized in the state prison at Huntsville, Tex. It is composed entirely of Mexicans, except the president, who is a young lady teaching the Mexican Sunday school class.

The secretary of the South African Christian Endeavor union, of which Rev. Andrew Murray is president, is Miss Lucilla Sprigg, a daughter of Sir Gordon Sprigg, the premier of Cape Colony.

A Lobster Story.

At the most extensive aquarium in England, the Brighton zoo, the female lobster recently cast her shell. She screwed herself up together on the toes and tail and suddenly bent her body. Snap went the shell in its center, and the case of the back came away in one piece. The claws were her next care, and she worked away at them for a long time.

It was a proceeding of extreme delicacy, considering that all the flesh of the great claw had to be passed through the small base. During the operation one claw came off altogether, and this must have seemed to the lobster lady a serious misfortune, as it will not grow to its full size again until the second year. The tail and legs gave very little trouble, and the body when thus undressed proved to be of a pale blue.

The shell casting over, the lobster sank on the sand, and this action seemed a signal for the attack of every creature in the tank.

The defenseless victim bade fair to succumb to the fury of her enemies, when the male lobster suddenly came to the rescue. Standing over his shell-less better half, he fought her assailants relentlessly. Day and night did he watch over her until her shell was sufficiently hardened to protect her in fighting her own battles.

When this happy moment arrived, he deliberately picked up the old claw, broke it in his nippers and ate the meat. He then dug a hole in the sand, placed in it the broken bits of shell, buried them and piled a number of small stones above the grave.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 21.—The following open letter has been addressed by Alfred G. Langley of this city, a member of the class of 1876, Brown university, to the corporation of that institution:

To the Corporation of Brown University:

Dr. Andrews was the choice of the alumni of Brown for president when Dr. Robinson resigned the presidency in 1889. It is perhaps not generally known that Dr. Andrews was also Dr. Robinson's choice as his successor. On the day in the spring of 1888 (April 21, I think it was), on which Dr. Andrews, then professor of history and political economy in Brown university, sent in his resignation of that chair, having accepted the professorship of economics and finance at Cornell, the writer had a long conversation with Dr. Robinson regarding the university and its interests.

In the course of this conversation Dr. Robinson said that he brought Dr. Andrews to Brown with the expressed purpose of having him put into the presidency as soon as he had been there long enough to have become thoroughly acquainted with the university; that he was the only man among the Baptists known to him at all fitted for the position; that he had been and was his right hand man and firm support in all his own plans for the development and advancement of the university, and the most progressive and energetic of the entire faculty.

Could Dr. Andrews have been elected at that time, Dr. Robinson said he would resign at once, as he had long wished to do. It is the writer's firm belief, in view of all that Dr. Robinson said at that time, and in the light of the event of the year following, that Dr. Robinson, though he felt his loss keenly, let Dr. Andrews go to Cornell without any effort to retain him at Brown, because he knew that to be the surest way to make Brown realize her loss and call him back at the first opportunity.

Dr. Andrews has surpassed any possible expectations that Dr. Robinson or any others could have had of him at that time. His work has fully justified Dr. Robinson's estimate and choice. What the university is today is due to these two presidents more than to any others, and Dr. Robinson, with his fearless independence of thought and speech, however he might disagree with and criticized some of the views of his successor, would never for one moment approve the course which the university is now apparently pursuing. Dr. Robinson believed in absolute freedom of investigation and teaching, and in meeting error, real or supposed, with weapons of reason and argument only, never were those of force in any form.

Dr. Andrews was elected president of Brown in 1889, as the writer was then told on good authority, because the corporation really did not dare to elect anyone else in the face of the demonstration in his favor by the alumni assembled at the commencement dinner on the day before the meeting of the corporation at which the election took place. Dr. Andrews is still in a very exceptional and emphatic sense the alumni's president, the choice of the great body at least of the alumni, of all, in brief, who are not blinded by political prejudice or partisanship or by the narrowing and corrupting power of money.

"Quid non mortalia pectora cogis.
"Auri sacra fames?"

In view of this fact the corporation should consider well the consequences which will follow the acceptance of his resignation and thus his practical dismissal from the university. Such an act will certainly alienate a very large number, to say the least of the alumni, especially of the younger portion, namely, those who have graduated within the last 25 years. On these younger alumni the future of the university depends much more than upon any rich man or men. It is of vastly greater importance to hold the respect, the affection, the good will, the active interest and co-operation of these younger alumni than to get any amount of money increased to the endowment by such a course as that instigated and advocated by Congressman Walker.

If the corporation endorses the action of Mr. Walker and President Andrews is forced to sever his relations to the university—for say what anyone will it is a forced resignation—the younger alumni, so far as they are men of insight and breadth of views, will of necessity be so humiliated and ashamed of their Alma Mater that they will be obliged to withdraw from her their sympathy and support. No sensible and broad minded body of men can possibly approve such a procedure as that now under way at Brown. It is the most suicidal policy for any institution of learning to alienate its alumni; but this is just what the corporation of Brown will most certainly do if it parts with Dr. Andrews. The university will not soon recover from such a blow.

The alumni really elected Dr. Andrews president. Now let them bestir themselves and enlist the aid of all true friends of the university and keep him there. If the corporation persists in carrying out the policy of Congressman Walker and those who agree with him then let these alumni and friends demand the resignation from the corporation of these men and elect others in their places who will sell their manhood at no price, however great, and who will administer the university in the spirit of freedom and treadth which is the essence of the university idea.

EX-REPRESENTATIVE OSGOOD.

Salem Citizen Dies, After Lingering Illness, of Consumption.

Salem, Mass., Aug. 21.—Charles Stewart Osgood, registrar of deeds for Essex county, died at his home here last evening after a lingering sickness of pulmonary consumption. He was born in Salem, March 13, 1839, and was the son of Charles Osgood, the famous portrait painter.

Mr. Osgood was admitted to the Salem bar in 1863, and in 1863-1864 was attached to the commissary department at Virginia. He was appointed deputy collector of customs for the ports of Salem and Beverly in 1864, and held that office until 1873, when he was elected to the house of representatives and served six consecutive terms, being chairman of the committee on railroads and committee on rules.

In 1879, while still a member of the house, he was elected registrar of deeds for the southern district of Essex county, which office he has held ever since.

For seven years Mr. Osgood was a member of the common council of Salem, four years as its president. He was a member of the board of aldermen in 1870-71, and a member of the school committee for six years. Mr. Osgood was a literary man of considerable note, and wrote a number of commercial histories for the Essex institute, of which he was librarian. He was also a life trustee of the Salem public library, and trustee of the Salem Athenaeum and Salem Lycaum.

A widow and five children survive him.

Boston batted Killen hard yesterday, played a perfect fielding game and backed up Klobedanz in fine style. Stahl, Duffy, Tenney, Allen and Collins were noted for their excellent work, and Boston's base running was a feature. Davis was ordered off the field by Umpire O'Day for disputing a decision, and Gardner was substituted. Ely did the best work for Pittsburg, while Sugden, Rothfuss, Donovan, Killen and Smith made some pretty plays.

State Department Reticent.

Washington, Aug. 21.—Officials of the state department were very reticent yesterday when asked concerning a report in circulation that definite instructions have been given all our foreign ambassadors and ministers to European countries to sound and ascertain the attitude of European government in case the United States should intervene in Cuba. While general denials were made by some of them, others intimated that the United States was ready to assume the position taken by President Grant in 1874, as shown by the instructions of Secretary Fish to Minister Cushing.

THE STALKING HORSE.

An Effective Way of Shooting Wild Birds In Olden Times.

One of the oldest methods of shooting woodcock and wild fowl was under cover of the stalking horse. In very early times the stalking horse was a horse broken in for the purpose of stalking. In the red letter days of poaching in Great Britain the poachers made use of an artificial horse for the purposes of sport. Poachers had not much money, and hence the expense of keeping a real horse was in most cases beyond them. The sham animal, such as is shown in the illustration, was long in use among sportsmen, including poachers, of former days, who, concealed behind it, could thus stealthily stalk on wild fowl in the water and land fowl crouched on shore. To make the artificial stalking horse an old writer directs that the sportsman should take "any piece of old canvas, and having cut it to the shape of a horse, with the head bending downward, as if he grazed, 'stope' it with clean straw, moss, flocks, or any light matter, and paint it as near the color of a horse as possible, and in the midst let it be fixed to a staff with a pick of iron in it to strike down in the ground at your pleasure, and stand fast while you choose your mark, and also to turn and wind any way you please, either for your advantage of the wind or for taking better aim, and it must be made so light that you may bear it easily with one hand, moving it and wagging it in such wise that it may seem to move and graze as it goeth. Neither must this in any wise exceed the ordinary stature or proportion of a common horse, for to be too low or little will not cover the man, and to be too big and huge will be both monstrous and troublesome and give a fright to the fowl." The sportsmen, taught by experience, found that early morning or late evening was the best time for going out with the stalking horse.

THE STALKING HORSE.

The stalking horse is more effectively used against wild fowl in the marshes than against woodcocks, these being mostly taken by nets and nooses.

Watch that sportsman. See, upon his back is slung the stalking horse. He now unslings it and, mounting it on his left arm, he presents it toward the birds. He then begins to walk, as quickly as the nature of the ground will admit, in a circle. He continues his walk, but contracts the circle. Meantime the birds watch his movements and feel that they are beset on every side. Every direction is blocked; everywhere appears that formidable and eccentric horse. "I will creep near him," thinks one. "Perhaps I shall escape his notice. He cannot mean to harm me. I have not made him angry." The sportsman behind the horse sees the bird approach nearer and nearer and, leveling a short gun through a hole in the shield, he lays him dead in a moment. Then up comes the sportsman's dog—always a valuable helper to his master — and bears the game to the spot to which he knows that it is his duty to take it. So well trained is this retriever dog that, if needful, he will plunge into the streams or search among the grass until he finds the bird, when instantly he will take it to his master.

A Shepherd Cyclist.

Arthur Graham of Carbon county, Wy., uses a bicycle in herding his sheep because he finds it more convenient and serviceable. He prefers it to the horse because it never balks, never goes wind broken, never runs away when left alone for a few moments and in many other respects is far more tractable than a pony. A very slight thing may stampede a herd of sheep and send them scurrying over the plains in wildest disorder. The sudden start of a pony, sometimes even the unexpected appearance of the mounted herdsman, is sufficient to cause an unreasonable rush toward those vast realms which stretch in all directions.

Herder Graham has had all of these experiences, and his many weary hours in the saddle hunting up the stragglers from a stampede have brought him to appreciate advantages of the wheel over the horse. For some unexplained reason the sheep appear to take kindly to the bicycle. Its silent meanderings do not seem to disturb them, and the cycling herdsman can go in and out, wherever inclination or duty calls him, with little fear of alarming the sheep.

LITTLE TRAVELERS.

Seeds That Are Borne to New Countries by Air and Water.

Men, women and children, too, have sometimes traveled rapidly through the air in balloons for long or short distances, but this way of traveling has its difficulties and dangers. By and by it may become a usual way of journeying, when we can manage to steer balloons, also to direct the starting and stopping of them better than we can do now. However, there are always plenty of travelers in the air, birds, insects and other living creatures—some which few people think of or notice, as, for instance, seeds. Man is a great sower. Year by year he puts in many seeds. We see the results in the gardens and fields, but still larger is the number of seeds which are not distributed through man, seeds carried about by birds, or wafted upon the breezes. It is probably during country walks in summer or autumn that we most frequently catch sight of seeds traveling through the air, yet even in winter and spring some are on the move which have ripened slowly and waited for a strong wind to give them a start.

There are seeds, many of them well known to our young folk, which have either what are called wings or something that answers the same purpose. Some of the winged seeds belong to trees. The "keys" of the ash and sycamore are the seeds, with bits of membrane over them, which act like wings or sails. Other forest trees have the like. Most of the pines and firs, for instance, when their cones burst open, send out their seeds, ready to speed along, and often they travel a good distance. The hop has the small flat seed attached to a scale, so that the wind may support it, but this plant has only a few flowers that are fertile. Then, in the group of plants which botanists call the umbellifers, because the flower stalks spread out somewhat in umbrella fashion, there are several kinds which have small winged seeds, such as the common cow parsley.

Hosts of seeds which travel past us, or perhaps above us, have not wings exactly, but a curious sort of fringe, which is light, elastic and yet strong. Often it is above the seed, and when that is ripe this fringe opens in shuttlecock style, and the future plant starts off rapidly or slowly, as may happen. This is best seen in the great family of the composites. There it has the name of pappus. Boys and girls know well the pappus of the dandelion. It is an amusement to blow off the feathered seeds from the round flower heads of that plant, or of one of its kindred, the hawkweeds.

Similar tops occur in the hawkweeds, and also in the hawk's beard, the shaggy long down suggesting their name. The groundsels, again, have the Latin name of senecio, because their white pappus was thought to be like the hoary hairs of old age. Among the thistles and knapweeds the bristly or spiny flower heads which act as a defense to the plants serve also to convey the seeds rapidly to distant places, and new crops spring up, often of surprising extent. It is a fact that a well known thistle of Europe, the seed of which somehow traveled to South America, has covered immense plains there, flourishing in the warmth and moisture of that region and stopping the growth of useful plants. The pretty little daisy of our fields has a seed which can travel, though it is only raised in the air by a tiny rim or edge. Other seeds are borne along by hairs, which are rather different, such as the cotton grasses, sedges and reeds. The feathery plumes of these are showy in summer and autumn. The willows, of which we have so many kinds, produce hair adorned seeds.

There are also seeds which travel, if not very far, owing to the force with which they are sent out from the ripe fruit or pod. Strolling over the fields on a sunny day, we often hear a succession of pops or crackles, which are caused by the bursting of the furze pods, which thus send the seeds to some distance. Tares and vetches distribute their seeds in the like fashion. Many seeds travel by water. They drop from trees into brooks, ditches and rivulets, which bear them to new places. Nuts take no harm from a journey in this way, and the hard seeds of borages, nettles, docks and other plants are not hurt even by a long float or swim.

THERE IS one way that a business man who will not advertise can keep himself busy. He can catch the itch and buy a Waterbury watch. When the former does not give him something to do he can wind the watch.

Narrow Escape at Braintree.

About noon yesterday Mrs. James Calhoun, who is visiting at Mr. Charles May's on Penn's Hill, was out driving and when approaching the Elm street crossing she evidently missunderstood the motions of the flag man and drove so near the track that the gate came down over the horse's back before she could stop. The flag man raised it enough to clear the horse's head at the same time telling her to back out. She was unable to hold the animal and a dash was made across the tracks tearing off the top of the carriage.

Mrs. Calhoun was badly shaken up and was taken in to Procter's store. Dr. H. L. Dearing was sent for. As we go to press she is resting quietly. The children were not hurt.

No blame seems to be attached to the flag men who did all they could to save her.

Clam Bake.

A party of about twenty-eight of the coal dealers and carpenters of Walpole had a real old fashioned clam bake at the Atlantic beach, Thursday afternoon. After calling on Mrs. John Ramsdell of Billings street, of whom they all are old friends they partook themselves to the beach where they spent the remainder of the day under the large shade trees.

RAPID TRAVELING

On the Quincy & Boston Street Railway Line.

Sunday Girls and Their Best Fellows in Darkness.

One Mile in Two Seconds and Twenty-one Minutes.

Editors of the Quincy Ledger:

Two men once met at the intersection of two roads in the country; one asked the other, "How far is it to Bungville?" The other answered, "About threee miles." The first man then asked, "How long will it take me to walk there in an hour?" The other fellow answered, "Yes."

Now I want to ask the following question: If it takes fifty-one minutes to ride from Cambridgeport to Neponset bridge, via Harvard bridge and Dudley street, on a car of the West End road, distance eight miles, how long will it take to ride from Neponset bridge, on a car of the Quincy and Boston, to Beale street in twenty-two minutes, distance one and one-half miles.

If I was called upon to answer that question and gave my answer on the same lines as the other fellow did in the country, I would be a Yankee, and say, "I think it will." But this is hardly to the point.

I left Neponset bridge at 8.30 P. M. Sunday last, on an electric bound for Quincy, but before I got there, something or somebody seemed bound that I should not. The first one and one-half miles was covered in the remarkable time of twenty-two minutes; remarkable in the fact that it was slower than any old horse-car time on record for that distance.

The first thing to happen that would attract the attention of anyone, except a blind person, was the almost total darkness that came upon us, while trying hard to climb the hill at the railroad bridge at Atlantic. Someone suggested that the lamps had not been trimmed properly, while others claimed that the company had run out of "juice," but never mind the reason. It was dark, and caused a great deal of kicking, as most of the passengers understood that light was included with the passage for five cents. It was noticed, however, that several young men with their Sunday girls, who occupied some of the front seats, made no complaint when they found themselves where Moses found himself "when the light went out."

When we arrived at Billings road and turned in on the loop track, there were exclamations heard on all sides. They were wearied ones, too; and of any length you might call for. Some had a pleasant accent, while others had a decided grumble to them. Among those who smiled at the situation was a pretty little woman with a bundle and a small grip; she said it would take her nearer home to go through the Downs, and I wished later that she had made it possible to have gone through the Downs, or over the Downs, but "there were others," also other cars, for I saw two on the same track just behind us. We became bunched and stopped, for what reason we did not know, but presently we saw three other cars pass down Hancock street toward Neponset. It was then decided that the company was using the loop for a switch.

After the three cars passed, we backed into Hancock street and started for Quincy. Those who displayed sad faces, and those who seemed to feel satisfied with a smiling face a moment before, swapped facial expressions, which apparently amused the indifferent ones, for they hugged themselves and smiled aloud.

Up to this point not a word had been said to the conductor, he, undoubtedly was doing the best he could to carry out the rules and regulations of the company, so if the cars did not run as scheduled it was not his fault. We soon reached a point near the Episcopal church when we met a car bound west. Our car switched its tail around the other way as if it was mad, and for the first time showed speed which indicated that the electricity was running stronger in a westerly direction and we all wished that Quincy was located at that point of the compass.

The pretty little woman with the bundle and grip thought that the conductor had decided (for her sake) to return and go through the Downs, but no, we shot past Billings road and did not stop until near Barry's corner on a siding. The car going west passed on.

Just then an old lady got on our car and said something to the conductor about being so kind and accommodating in coming back after her. The conductor said, "O that is all right, my good lady, us conductors are expected to do this sort of thing, and many other unreasonable things not put down in this catalogue." The old lady took a seat looking doubtful.

By this time the three cars we first turned out for at Billings Road came along and joined the procession, we might have been taken for a party going to a clam bake or a bicycle race; but we were not either. We were just plain, everyday people trying to get home, but couldn't.

We started for Quincy once more, we had a good start on the other five cars and as there was only one track, (thanks to the Quincy City government,) we had a cinch and crossed the tape at Beale street eight wheels ahead. Up to this point I had remained silent, as I was in no particular hurry to get home it was my privilege to look upon everything that happened as best suited my fancy, I chose the bright side as I always try to do, but here is where my trouble overtook me. I have conscientiously divided the blame between the railway company and my over-zealousness in trying to help another.

The pretty little woman with the bundle and "grip" got off at Beale street, and I, with politeness which I shall be careful about exposing again under similiar circumstances, offered to assist her in alighting from the car by taking her bundle; she innocently thought I had reached my destination so did not immediately offer to reclaim her bundle.

Ting-a-ling, and the car was off, and seemed to go faster than ever. I asked her how far she lived from where we stood, and she said with a sweet smile and a nod of her head in the direction of her house, that it was "not quite half a mile." I surely had got my foot and both hands in it this time. I said nothing, and we walked on in the dim light from a sleepy looking incandescent on the corner.

I thought as I walked along that if the distance was only half a mile I could get back in time to catch the sixth car, provided they went no faster than they had up to the time I left them.

Absorbed in this thought I was suddenly startled by hearing a cry from the bundle. I turned the bundle over and saw that one end of it looked just like the pretty little woman walking by my side. This was something different than I had arrangments for when I left home, but I appeared to understand the care of those kind of bundles and remained silent.

Presently (and not too soon to please me) we arrived at the pretty little woman's home, and when her husband came to the door and thanked me and gave me a five-cent cigar for my kindness, I felt relieved, said good night, and as I was in a hurry then I walked home.

Kindergarten.

The free kindergarten, opened last June under the auspices of the Quincy Home Science Association, closes with this week its regular session. It was desired to continue it through this month, but the association was unable to secure the services of Miss Trask, the teacher, for more than eight weeks. Four young ladies, graduates this year from the High School who have assisted at various times during the summer have, however, become so interested they propose themselves to carry on the school for the last week in August. We wish them all success in their kindly undertaking.

It is a pleasure to see interest in the good work of child-training manifested among our young people, and the thanks of the Home Science Association and of the community at large are due Miss Gertrude Walker, Miss Alice Perry, Miss Lillian Pratt, Miss Annabella Troup, Miss Mary Mary Joss, Mary McGuane, Miss Lina McPherson, Miss Lucy Mitchell, Miss Louise Cook, Miss Bertha Hayden, Miss Rachael Johnson, Miss Katharine Shuman and Miss Ada Thompson, each of whom has devoted a part of her summer vacation by assisting in the Home Sciene Kindergarten work.

Too much cannot be said of the tact, ability and enthusiasm of Miss Trask in the organization and conduct of the school. Friends who have been unable to visit it this summer will have an opportunity another year.

The Home Science Association is well satisfied with its kindergarten experiment. Whatever mistakes have been made, and these are inevitable in connection with any new enterprise will be corrected in future, and it is earnestly urged that such wide spread support and encouragement be given the Home Science Association in Quincy as will make it possible to carry on several free kindergartens next year as well as the free lectures in Home Science subjects to be given in the autumn and winter, for which arrangements are already being made.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

CITY —OF— QUINCY.

SEALED proposals for paving and curbing Copeland street in accordance with form of specifications to be furnished by the Commissioner of Public Works of the City of Quincy, will be received at the office of said Commissioner, City Hall, until 2 o'clock P. M., of the First day of September 1897, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read. Each proposal must be indorsed "Proposal for paving and curbing Copeland street," and be accompanied by a properly certified check for the sum of Five Hundred Dollars ($500,) payable to City of Quincy, which will be returned to the bidder unless forfeited as hereinafter provided.

A bond will be required for the faithful performance of the contract in such sum as the Commissioner of Public Works shall determine; such sum to be not more than one-third the amount of the contract; the sureties to be residents of Massachusetts and satisfactory to the Commissioner.

The contract must be signed and bond furnished within six days after the notification of acceptance of the proposal and in case of the failure of the bidder to sign contract and furnish bond within said time, the contract and the certified check accompanying the proposal shall be forfeited to the City of Quincy.

The proposals will be compared on the basis of the following quantities:

Furnishing and laying 7,200 square yards paving.
Furnishing and laying 110 linear feet crossing stones.
Furnishing and setting 3,600 linear feet straight edgestones.
Furnishing and setting 68 linear feet curved edgestones.
Furnishing and setting 7 driveway corners.
Resetting 1,170 linear feet straight edgestones.
Resetting 9 driveway corners.

These quantities are to be considered approximate only and the Commissioner of Public Works expressly reserves the right of increasing or diminishing the same, as he may deem necessary.

The right is reserved to reject any or all proposals or to accept the proposal deemed best for the city.

$200.00 for CORRECT ANSWERS!

Most Unique Contest of the Age — $200.00 Paid for Correct Lists made by Supplying Missing Letters in Places of Dashes — No Lottery — Popular Plan of Education — Read All the Particulars.

In the United States four times as much money is expended for education as for the military. Brain is better than brawn. By our educational facilities we have become a great nation. We, the publishers of Woman's World and Jenness Miller Monthly, have done much toward the cause of education in many ways, but now we offer you an opportunity to display your knowledge and receive most generous payment for a little study. The object of this contest is to give an impetus to many dormant minds to awaken and think; also we expect by this competition of brains to extend the circulation of Woman's World and Jenness Miller Monthly to such a size that we shall be able to charge double the present rate for advertising in our columns. By this plan of increasing the number of subscriptions and receiving more money from advertisers of soaps, pianos, medicines, books, baking powders, jewelry, etc., we shall add $50,000 a year to our income, and with this mathematical deduction before us, we have decided to operate this most remarkable "missing letters" contest.

HERE'S WHAT YOU ARE TO DO.

There are thirty words in this schedule, from each of which letters have been omitted and their places have been supplied by dashes. To fill in the blank spaces and get the names properly you must have some knowledge of geography and history. We want you to spell out as many words as you can, then send to us with 25 cents to pay for a three months' subscription to WOMAN'S WORLD. For correct lists we shall give $200.00 in cash. If more than one person sends a full, correct list, the money will be awarded to the fifty best lists in appearance. Also, if your list contains twenty or more correct words, we shall send you a beautiful Egeria Diamond Scarf Pin (for lady or gentleman), the regular price of which is $2.25. Therefore, by sending your list, you are positively certain of the $2.25 prize, and by being careful to send a correct list you have an opportunity of the $200.00 cash award. The distance that you may live from New York makes no difference. All have equal opportunity for winning.

PRIZES WILL BE SENT PROMPTLY.

Prizes will be honestly awarded and promptly sent. We publish the list of words to be studied out. In making your list of answers, be sure to give the number of each word:

1.	-R A-I-	A country of South America.
2.	-A-I-I-	Name of the largest body of water.

In sending your list of words, mention whether you want prize money sent by bank draft, money order or registered mail; we will send any way that winners require. The Egeria Diamond is a perfect imitation of a Real Diamond of large size. We defy experts to distinguish it from real except by microscopic test. In every respect it serves the purpose of Genuine Diamond of Purest Quality. It is artistically mounted in a fine gold-plated pin, warranted to wear forever. This piece of jewelry will make a most desirable gift to a friend if you do not need it yourself. At present our supply of these gifts is limited, and if they are all gone when your set of answers comes in, we shall send you $2.25 in money instead of the Scarf or Shawl Pin, so you shall either receive the piece of jewelry or the equivalent in cash, in addition to your participative interest in the $200.00 cash prize. This entire offer is an honest one, made by a responsible publishing house. We refer to mercantile agencies and any bank in New York. We will promptly refund money to you if you are dissatisfied. What more can we do? Now study, and exchange slight brain work for cash. With your list of answers send 25 cents to pay for three months' subscription to our great family magazine, Woman's World. If you have already subscribed, mention that fact in your letter, and we will extend your subscription from the time the present one expires. To avoid loss in sending silver, wrap money very carefully in paper before inclosing in your letter. Address:

REFLECTION.

Our business can be compared to a man gazing into a mirror.

The time and money that he has spent upon his toilet have not been wasted—but, for his pains, he finds himself looking like a different being.

The amount of time, money and perseverance that WE have put out has amounted to something, we assure you. When we stop and look back over the years that we have been in business in Quincy we have no fault to find with the results which have been accomplished.

And the thing that pleases us most is the fact that our customers are so well satisfied. The cause of it all is highest quality of goods at rock-bottom prices.

We treat each visitor to our store as a personal friend.

Small profits and active business travel smoothly in the same route; at least we find it so.

Prices just now are changing on many staples and we have to report advances on some goods, but as there is an indication of returning prosperity we know everyone will cheerfully meet it. A few cents paid in that way means dollars in the pockets of labor, because it will have more steady employment.

Our prices will always be lowest for best quality of goods.

Q. Y. C. OPEN RACE.

Plenty of Wind at Second Day of Series.

A Very Exciting Race from Start to Finish.

Little Peter, Muriel Hoodlum, Hazard, Rooster, and Vitesse, Winners.

The Quincy Yacht club was favored on Friday afternoon with ideal weather for its second open race. The wind blew strong from the west.

The club house, Great Hill, and the lawns bordering the beach were crowded with people. Brown's Brigade band discoursed music in the club yard.

As usual the preparatory gun was fired at 2.30. The first, second and second open classes were put over the regular course with the exception of rounding the Hull dolphin. This homeward stretch gave these classes their only windward work. The third, fourth and knockabout classes went over the number three course, familiarly known as the Jacknife course.

The first class went off with a rush, the Beatrice having the weather gauge, with "John T" at the wheel got a beauty of a start. The Little Peter was a good second, and "Bennie" Nickerson with the Addie was close on to his heels.

The Redskin was the greatest surprise party in that class. Heretofore her sailing qualities have been unknown. Friday she astonished the natives and if George Follett had not been caught in the sheet when she jibed around the black can buoy and got thrown overboard she would have made the other boats hustle for first money. She lost seven minutes by this accident. Her bulb, by the way, is to be made smaller by 1200 pounds. This small bulb will tend to make her work quicker.

In the second class the Privateer, with "Ned" Bockus at the stick, showed the other two boats in her class the way across the line.

The Privateer has been a very fortunate boat this season, but yesterday she had to lower her colors to Herbert Nute's new Muriel.

In the second open class the Princeps put up a plucky but hopeless race against the Hoodlum, which yesterday made the fastest time over the course. Joe Whiton is a true yachtsman; a man that will go in and fight out a race with such tremendous odds against him is a thorough sailor.

But the third class is the hottest class of the whole fleet. Of course the Adams boys got the call on the start with the Rooster, and kept it to the finish. Johnny Watson was a good second over the line with Maglautblin's Nancy Hanks. Johnny is a nephew of the famous Capt. "Nate" Watson, but he can't do our boys yet. Even Cape Codders find that they can learn from Quincy yachtsmen. The Sphinx carried too much sail, laying her over so that she filled her standing room with water and had to withdraw. The Cleopatra, while close-hauled on the starboard tack, claims that the Tacoma, which was on the port tack, forced her to ease off her sheet and fall off her course, thus losing a minute. She served notice upon the judges that a protest would be filed.

The knockabout class sailed the prettiest race of the whole fleet. There were seven of them and they did not vary three minutes when they finished. The Hazard, H. M. Sears' boat, was the winner in this class.

There was considerable sport in the fourth class. The Tantrum was the first to get away but she could not hold the lead against such boats as the Vitesse or Fantasy. The fight narrowed down to a duel between the two latter boats. The Vitesse finally won. It's seldom that Allerton and his Fantasy get defeated. The Ripple, which has a hollow mast, had it carried away just below the spreader. The mast had been sprung before she entered this race.

Taking everything into consideration this is the most successful race which was ever sailed under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht Club. Thirty-four yachts started. Last night a fleet of seventy was moored off the club house.

In the evening an impromptu entertainment was given in honor of the visiting yachtsmen. The Quincy Male Quartette was there and sang several selections with great spirit. Then Bill Sayles, a genuine West End darkey, gave a solo, and so did Professor Dan Haley. Professor Haley sang "Smart little bit of a man," "Dora Dean," and the "Laughing song" with a snap that brought down the house. Capt. George A. Devlin played a brilliant original selection on the piano and also "The Dandy Fifth." Mr. Neville rendered with great brilliancy "Anchored" and "A dream of my boyhood days." There was some good piano playing by Mr. Dodge and a violin solo by Mr. Oscar Michelle.

During the evening Commodore Sanborn presented the skippers of the wining yachts in the handicap races with the prizes which they won.

BRAINTREE.

Mr. A. J. Bates is now able to be out.

Mr. Gilbert Bowditch is home from Maine.

Mr. James Hender has returned from his visit to Maine.

It is reported that the Union church property, where the old church stood has been sold.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Arnold who are spending a few weeks driving through New Hampshire and Vermont, will spend Sunday in Ludlow, Vt.

While Captain Sheppard was driving across the Quincy Point bridge, Wednesday, his horse made a jump to the starboard, breaking an axle. He immediately "hove to" greatly relieving the anxiety of the timid (?) friend who was with him.

The many friends of Dr. Granger extend their sympathy in the hour of sorrow, caused by the sudden death of his four-year old son. The little fellow was taken sick while at the Cape, and survived but one day. The funeral took place Thursday.

Mrs. F. O. Wellington has returned.

Miss Fannie Torrey has returned from Plymouth.

Lawrence Spaulding has been visiting friends at Plymouth this week.

Mr. C. J. Keller and family started yesterday for East Tilton, N. H.

Mr. John A. Brigham of Pond street is quite ill from the effects of a cold and overwork.

Mrs. James T. Weeks and daughter, Maud, Mrs. C. I. Dimmock and Mrs. Watkins who are enjoying their vacation at East Tilton, N. H., are expected home the last of next week.

The family of Mr. N. G. Torrey is stopping at Winchester, N. H.

Rev. S. Brooks of Newburyport will preach in the First church tomorrow.

N. H. Hunt has recovered from his recent accident and is about with his friends once more.

John H. Simmons, Jr., returned on Monday from a week's visit with relatives and friends in Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wheeler and daughter Ethel spent the first of the week with Mrs. Wheeler's sister, Mrs. William White, on Pond street.

Stoughton Musical Society.

Members and friends of the Old Stoughton Musical Society will be delighted to learn that their second reunion will be held in Highland Park on Tuesday, Aug. 24, reaching the park by the Brockton street railway.

The success of the first reunion at the park last year was so far beyond all expectations, that the second is demanded in the interest of music and good fellowship. Pres. Daniel H. Huxford of Randolph has the matter in charge, ably assisted by Secretary Edwin A. Jones of Stoughton, leader of the orchestra, and Chorister Nelson Mann of Randolph, who will have charge of chorus.

The programme of the day will consist substantially as follows: 10 30 A. M. to 12 M., social reunion and greetings by old friends; 12 M. to 1 P. M., dinner, carried in baskets or procurred at the cafe; 1 to 3 P. M. singing from the Society's Centennial Collection, which will prove delightful to all; 3 to 4.30 P. M., entertainment by the Park company, which will be an attractive feature; 4 30 to 7.30, supper, and visiting many points of interest about the park; 7.30 and 9.15, grand concert by Maitland's Fifth Regiment band, Mace Gay, leader; 8 to 9.15, entertainment by the Park company, followed by an exhibition of the electrical fountain.

HOUGHS NECK.

Very fine weather at the beach, and residents can just barely move among the crowds that are arriving at the yacht race.

The crew of the Little Peter painted the town red last night over their victory yesterday.

Brown's Brigade Band gave a concert in Harvey's pavillion and gave some elegant music. Mr. Chas. Tyler delighted and captured the audience with his fine popular songs. He is now in great demand at the beach.

Master Harry and Ross Bates of Hyde Park late from the west are expected at the Murray House.

Mr. John Sullivan and Mr. Frank Morse, two enterprising fishermen made a great haul yesterday morning out near Sheep Island. They caught fifty-four mackeral and each measured nearly a foot long.

The sloop Ripple rendered herself useless yesterday. She broke her mast between Sheep Island and Racoon Island.

Mr. Joe. Dolan and Wm. Jacob, two young men of the Neck, had a match game of pool last night, Jacobs defeating Dolan by 4 balls.

Miss Mamie E. Day, Miss May E. Needham, Miss Ethel H. Paige from Hardwick, Mass., are spending a few weeks at Mayorth cottage on Manet avenue.

Today the final race of the Quincy Yacht club takes place at the Neck.

Wilson's orchestra is giving some elegant dance music at the Casino.

Mr. J. W. Kelly of Rockland, Me., is spending a few days with relatives on Crosby street.

Quincy will probably have to build a track or special road if the wheels continue to arrive at the Neck.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis P. Knight and daughters of Dorchester are spending the month at the Berwick cottage.

Mr. Mishell and family of Ashmont are stopping at the Jefferson Club cottage.

Mrs. William Merdy of Dorchester has been enjoying an outing here.

Mrs. J. C. Gallison of Franklin is spending a week here.

Mrs. George Baker and daughter Flossie are enjoying our ocean breezes.

Mrs. Charles Crowell, Jr., has returned to her home at Ponkapoag.

A GREAT SURPRISE IS IN STORE

for those who will go today and get a package of GRAIN-O. It takes the place of coffee at about ¼ the cost. It is a food drink, full of health, and can be given to the children as well as the adult with a great benefit. It is made of pure grains and looks and tastes like the finest grades of Mocha or Java coffee. It satisfies everyone. A cup of Grain-O is better for the system than a tonic, because its benefit is permanent. What coffee breaks down Grain-O builds up. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 15c. and 25c.

WHEAT IS NOW KING.

Dollar Mark Reached Yesterday at All Leading Markets.

Producers Are the Only Ones Benefitted.

Farmers Are Worth $90,000,000 More Than For Six Years.

Boston, Aug. 21.—Never in the history of this country has there been a greater change in the position of that great staple, wheat, than has come within the past three or four months, culminating yesterday in an advance of 6 cents a bushel for the day in the Chicago, New York and other markets. Reports also stated yesterday that wheat had reached $1 in Minneapolis, and the flour and wheat merchants were celebrating that event with a band of music.

Wheat at Chicago is 35 cents a bushel higher than it was a year ago, and nearly that much higher than it has been at any other period of the same date since the year 1891. The wheat growers have struggled along for nearly six years with wheat bringing them hardly more than 50 cents a bushel, and often even less. Today a great change must be noted.

Wheat has been steadily, but surely, advancing for several months, till now the farmer must be getting fully 30 cents a bushel more than a year ago, and very much more than at any other time for six years. This advance has come about gradually, to be sure, but all the time the farmer, and not the speculator, has been master of the situation. In the first place, the advance has come at a most opportune time for the farmer; just before the beginning of the harvest, and at a time when the growers had a good deal of old wheat on hand.

From the best estimates at hand the wheat crop of the United States this year will be at least 450,000,000 bushels. Some statisticians figure even above 500,000,000 bushels; something above an average crop.

On the above reckoning, the farmers of the United States will have at least 300,000,000 bushels of new wheat to sell this year, and, obtaining 30 cents a bushel more for it than a year ago, they will be better off than a year ago, or than almost any year for the past six years, by at least $90,000,000. This money they will get, and will have with which to pay for the necessaries and even the luxuries of life.

There may be added to the above sum at least $30,000,000 better returns than usual that the farmers will get for the old wheat they had on hand at the time the rise began. Merchants are feeling better all over the country, being fully aware that prosperity to the farmers means prosperity to everybody.

WHIRRING WHEELS.

Big Crowd at New England Fair to See the Bicycle Races.

Portland, Me., Aug. 21.—The crowd at Rigby park yesterday was nearly as large as the one of Thursday. Owing to this being bicycle day, there was not much horse racing, although an effort was made to meet the program by starting the turf sport in the morning. Gazette got the last two heats of the 2:10 pace, brought over from Thursday. The 2:07 pace was a cinch for Roan Wilkes, and the rest of the day was given up to the bicycle races, the cavalry drill and other attractions.

The bicycle races were pronounced as among the best ever seen in New England. Nearly all the professional crack-a-jacks were present and the racing they put up was gilt-edged.

Major Taylor, the colored boy, was the star of the afternoon, winning two first and one second and earning $100 in cash.

Arthur Gardiner won the mile open in good style, and Nat Butler, Newton Hoyt, Reynolds and Randall divided the rest of the coin.

Massachusetts Benefit.

Boston, Aug. 21.—The wreck of the Massachusetts Benefit Life association has raised one new question, which is likely to come before the courts in due time. This question is as to the liability of policy holders to assessment to meet outstanding liabilities at the time of the appointment of a receiver. In the case of the mutual fire insurance companies of this state this obligation is plainly set out in the policy. A policy holder has been held liable for two years after his policy lapsed for all parties insured while his policy was in force. By the last legislature this time was reduced to one year. The policy holders of the United States Mutual Accident Association of New York city, of which there are quite a number in this state, are receiving notices which remind them of an unexpected liability. The association went into the hands of a receiver in New York in 1896, Henry Winthrop Gray being appointed.

Program of W. C. T. U.

Portland, Me., Aug. 21.—During the last three days important meetings have been held at the house of Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens of this city to make arrangements for the programs of the World's W. C. T. U. and national W. C. T. U. conventions, which will be held in Toronto and Buffalo. Miss Frances Willard, president of the world's and national W. C. T. U.; Miss Agnes Slack of England, secretary of the world's W. C. T. U.; Miss Anna Gordon, assistant secretary; Mrs. Stevens, vice president-at-large of the national W. C. T. U., and president of the Maine W. C. T. U., and Mrs. Katherine Lente Stevenson, national corresponding secretary, were the officers present. Delegates from England, Germany, Syria, Armenia, Africa, Asia and Australia will be present. The United States W. C. T. U. will send 159 delegates, as it is the largest W. C. T. U. affiliated with the world's W. C. T. U.

Plans to Protect Fish.

Farmington, Me., Aug. 21.—The members of the Franklin County Fish and Game association held a special meeting last night, Enoch W. Whitcomb presiding. They discussed various plans for the better protection of the ponds and streams in this section, and it was voted to recommend to the state fish and game commissioners, at the hearing to be held at some future day, to restrict the number and size of fish to be taken by anyone person in Clear Water and Varnum's pond. The law on these ponds is off next year, June 1, for land-locked salmon, and the members think that without further protection the ponds might soon be depleted. The recommendation to the commissioners will also include togue and trout as to number and size.

Six-Day Bicyclists.

Boston, Aug. 21.—The leaders in the six days bicycle contest at Charles River park lacked just two miles last night of having ridden as many miles yesterday as on the opening day, which shows the excellent pace that they have kept up. Barnaby and Waller have dogged each other so far and each has 831 miles to his credit, and bid fair to leave the record far in the rear at the close of the contest tonight. Neither Hall, Blakeslee, Leslie nor Glick stand a show of winning, barring accidents to the leaders, but they will make a strong bid today for the lap money. Walters did not compete today, evidently being satisfied with the fair sized lump of lap prize money that he has secured, and Leslie quit after riding 18 miles yesterday. There was a fair crowd of spectators during the day and evening, but there was nothing of special interest in the work of the riders.

Massachusetts Republican Convention.

Boston, Aug. 21.—At a meeting of the Republican state committee yesterday afternoon it was decided to hold the Republican state convention in Music hall on Wednesday, Sept. 29, at 10 a. m. The presiding officer at the Republican convention will be Colonel W. S. B. Hopkins of Worcester. It was decided to hold the Republican caucuses on Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 21 and 22. The following named committee on resolutions for the convention was appointed at the meeting of the committee yesterday afternoon: Melvin O. Adams, Boston, chairman; Matthew Luce, Cohasset; Matthew Robenson, Salem; Arthur W. Wellman, Malden, and William H. Cook, Milford. Resolutions were adopted expressing regret at the death of Hon. Ashley B. Wright, respect for him as a man and admiration for his work as a member o fcongress.

Menace to Community.

Bangor, Me., Aug. 21.—John W. Rowe of Etna, who has been confined in the Bangor pesthouse, suffering from a severe attack of diphtheria, escaped from that institution and is at large. Rowe is in a dangerous condition, and is a menace to the community through which he passes. The officials have sent word throughout Maine, and it is hoped that he may be apprehended at once. When Rowe escaped he wore but a shirt and trousers with a blanket, snatched from the bed on which he lay. His keeper was out of the room for several minutes to attend to other matters and when he returned Rowe had completely disappeared, and an open window showed the manner of his egress. Rowe is more than 60 years of age.

Fire Chiefs Adjourn.

New Haven, Aug. 21.—The motto "Welcome Fire Chiefs," which has been prominently displayed throughout the city for the past four days, last night gave place to "Vale Fire Chiefs," as the 25th annual convention of the International Fire Chiefs' association, which opened in this city on Tuesday, was brought to a close. The officers for the ensuing year were elected, by acclamation, as follows: President, A. J. Kennedy, chief of the New Haven fire department; secretary, Henry A. Hills, Wyoming, O.; treasurer, D. C. Larkin, Dayton, O. This was a re-eleection for the secretary and treasurer, and the 26th re-election for Secretary Hills.

Firemen at Portland.

Portland, Me., Aug. 21.—Portland was in the possession of the firemen yesterday and nearly every department in the state was represented in the gathering. A finer day for the muster could not have been made to order. There were some 800 men in line in the parade in the morning. The parade was one of the best of its kind ever seen in Maine, and all along the route the firemen were warmly applauded for their fine marching and splendid appearance. The play out and reels in races in the afternoon provided rare sport to an immense throng of spectators on the eastern promenade.

Warrants For Ellis' Assailants.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 20.—County Attorney George W. Heselton has directed City Marshal Morse of this city and Deputy Sheriff Ames to apprehend the persons who assaulted Joseph E. Ellis at the Carson place, Wednesday evening. Warrants for several persons have been issued. Two of the warrants are for Rosie Carson, alias White, and Annie Carson, both of whom are charged with assault. The name of the man who used the knife on Ellis has not yet been learned.

Wheelmen Injured.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 21.—Harry Osgood and Crawford Hassett, two Lowell (Mass.) wheelmen, were found yesterday by Mark D. Grant of Windsor laying unconscious in the road in that place. The physician called reported that Bassett's fall from the wheel had caused a concussion of the brain. He is in a critical condition. The other was not dangerously injured. The young men were on a trip from Lowell to Machias on a tandem.

New 120-Yard Record.

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 21.—Bernard J. Wefers of the New York Athletic club lowered the world's record for 120 yards at the Worcester oval yesterday, running the distance in competition in 11 2-5 seconds.

Excursion Train Wrecked.

Toledo, Aug. 21.—A special to The Commercial from Lima, O., says: A terrible smash-up occurred here last night about 10:30 o'clock at the junction of the Lima Northern and Lake and Western railroads in the western portion of the city. A Lake Erie freight crashed into a Lima Northern passenger train, carrying a large number of excursionists on their return from Toledo, the train bearing a special excursion given by a store of this city. The Lake Erie engine was knocked off the track and badly demolished and the coaches of the Lima Northern overturned, badly injuring a large number of Lima's prominent people. All physicians in the city are pressed into service.

ALUMNI'S PRESIDENT.

Brown Graduate Writes Vigorous Protest on Andrews Case.

Alumni Is Urged to Combine Against Corporation.

Presidents Robinson and Andrews Made th University What It Is.

New York, Aug. 21.—Bradstreet's says: Special telegrams from trade centers throughout the country emphasize the growing prosperity of the farmer, due to higher prices for almost all agricultural product still in his hands, and point to a continuation of the demand which has been conspicuous within the past few weeks. The volume of trade continues to increase and prices are hardening. Associations of merchants at Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Chicago, St. Louis and the twin cities, in Minnesota, have secured reduced rates and enabled thousands of interior merchants to visit these cities and make purchases in person. No such volume of business, largely in anticipation of requirements, has been reported since 1892. Larger transactions have been in dry goods, clothing and shoes, and South and West in wagons and farm implements.

Another extraordinarily favorable bank clearings report is found in the total, $1,140,000,000 this week, which, while it is 1 per cent less than last week, is 40 per cent larger than in the third week of August, 1896, 26 per cent heavier than in 1895, 40 per cent larger than in 1894, and fully 55 per cent larger than in the like week of 1893. Compared with the like period in 1892, a year of large volume of business, this week's total shows a gain of 13 per cent.

Prices for staples continue the favorable movement of the past few weeks, with advances for wheat flour, wheat, new pork, butter, eggs, cheese, corn and oats.

Hides are also firmer and higher. Ginghams have advanced ¼c., while the cotton mills are starting up and jobbers in woolen goods are getting higher prices for spring delivery. There have been a large number of resumptions among iron and steel concerns this week, bessemer pig is 25 cents higher, and the outlook is for improvement. Sugar, cotton print cloths wool and petroleum are firm and unchanged, while coffee, almost alone among the staples, is lower than last week.

There are 221 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, against 214 last week, 264 a year ago, and 190 two years ago, 291 three years ago, and as contrasted with 456 in the third week of August, 1893.

Exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States and Montreal this week are the largest in any week since September, 1893, amounting to 5,218,000 bushels this week. Exports of Indian corn this week are also exceptionally heavy, the largest since the third week in April this year, amounting to 3,929,035 bushels.

The second quarter of this year showed slow but fairly satisfactory progress in net railway earnings. Gross receipts, which at the end of the first quarter showed a loss from a year ago, improved sufficiently to show a fractional gain at the end of the six months period, while net earnings more distinctly improved in percentage of gains.

Blake Confesses.

Albany, Aug. 21.—The mysteries of the kidnapping of little John Conway are practically solved. The capture of H. C. Blake, one of the ringleaders of the gang which perpetrated the crime, is responsible for the solution, as he has practically made a confession to the district attorney of this county and Mayor Thacher. His colleague, "Knapp," whom the police thought they had landed, when they arrested Thomas J. Byron of Sharon, Conn., is believed to be Albert S. Warner, a lawyer of New York city. A rumor has it that the abduction of the Conway lad was but a detail of a daring plot. It was planned, according to the report, to kidnap children in this vicinity by the wholesale and demand a ransom for their return. The work was to be done by a notorious gang of chooks, whose base of operations is New York city. The children were to be taken the same as was the Conway boy, and if ransom was refused were to be quietly disposed of.

Mrs. Ross' Answer.

New York, Aug. 21.—The amended answer to Mrs. Eugenie A. Webster Ross in the suit brought against her by William Dehon King and several relatives of the latter to prevent her from participation in the division of the property of the late William Henry Ross, was filed with the county clerk here yesterday. King died in March last at the Butler hospital, Providence, leaving an estate worth millions. Soon after his death Mrs. Ross claimed the property as his neice and sole heir. She also declared that the name William Henry King was assumed by her alleged uncle. In the amended answer Mrs. Ross reiterates these claims, and in addition says that the deceased was not the uncle or granduncle of William Dehon King or the other plaintiffs, and denies the assertion that she is not honest in setting up the claim she has advanced.

Run Down by Train.

Washington, Aug. 21.—A carriage containing H. C. Claughten, a well-known attorney of this city, and Miss Villa Custis, a daughter of Dr. W. G. N. Custis, was run down by a train on the Baltimore and Potomac railroad at Deanwood near the city last night. Both died while being brought to the city. Claughton was a widower and leaves four children.

News From Peary.

St. John's, N. F., Aug. 21.—A message has been received from Turnavick, on the coast of Labrador, dated July 28, stating that the steamer Hope, with Lieutenant R. E. Peary's expedition, had touched there that day and sailed again on its way to Greenland. All on board were reported to be well.

DEADLY GAS.

Luke Morrell Lost His Life Trying to Rescue Delore Richards From Cesspool.

Providence, Aug. 21.—Two persons were suffocated by poisonous gases in a cesspool late yesterday afternoon on Capron street. Delore Richards, aged 18, went down into the cesspool to clean out a pipe which connected this cesspool with another, and was overcome by gas. Luke Morrell who has a family consisting of a wife and five children, attempted to rescue him and was himself suffocated.

Young Richards slid down a rope, disdaining to wind it around him. Had he done so two lives would not have been lost. The instant he reached the bottom, he began to reel. His father shouted to him to grasp the rope. He groped for the rope blindly, and finally grasped it. Just as his father started to haul him up, Delore's fingers relaxed, and he fell to the bottom of the vault.

The father's shouts brought Luke Morrill, aged 44 years. He said: "I will bring your boy up," and seizing a ladder near at hand tilted it down into the cesspool. When he had got half way down on the ladder he swayed made a convulsive effort to climb to the support and fell to the bottom of the cesspool, where he lay dead beside the boy he had tried to save. The bodies were recovered by the police who hauled them to the surface with ropes and grappling irons.

Operators' Statement.

Pittsburg, Aug. 21.—The coal operators at their meting yesterday, after waiting in vain for an answer from President Ratchford to their telegram, asking for a conference hre today to arbitrate the strike question, issud a statement at midnight. The operators' statement says that they have exausted every effort to make an amicable settlement, but the miners decline either to meet in conference or to arbitrate. The position taken by Mr. Ratchford occasions great surprise to the operators. He insists in bringing in all competitive states, when he knows the operators of other states will under no circumstances attend a joint convention. In making this demand, Mr. Ratchford is seeking to delay a settlement in hopes that he may bring to his aid all the labor organizations of the country and assume such political influence as will frighten the politicans into insisting upon a settlement of the strike without regard to the merits of the case.

Labor Conference Called.

Columbus, O., Aug. 21.—The national executive board of the United Mine Workers adjourned ysterday after having issued the call for the conference of organized labor to be held in St. Louis, Aug. 30. The board rejected the proposition to arbitrate the wage dispute in the Pittsburg district, claiming that such action would be prejudicial to the interests of the miners at large. The board is willing to consider overtures for the arbitration of the subject when the overtures come from operators in all sections of the competitive district. In the call the history of the strike is recounted, and a strong appeal is issued to the labor interests of the country. The object of the St. Louis convention is to protect against the usurpation and tyranny of the courts and to formulate plans to compel a return to the principles of a free government.

Correspondents Expelled.

Havana, Aug. 21.—Captain General Weyler has signed an order expelling from Cuba Edouardo Garcia, a local correspondent, and George Eugene Bryson, a correspondent from New York. The former was yesterday embarked on the Spanish steamer Panama, sailing for New York direct, while the consul general has been notified that the latter must leave the island during the coming week. Mr. Garcia, who was interviewed at the dock before the vessel sailed, affected to speak in high terms of the treatment he had received from the Spanish officials during his incarceration.

Baseballists Going West.

New York, Aug. 21.—The trip of the Baltimore team of the National league and a team of all-America players to California and the West next winter is now an assured thing. Final arrangements were completed at Eastern park yesterday afternoon. Manager Barnie of the Brooklyns and Manager Selee of the Bostons, assisted by J. Frank Eline of Baltimore, the financial man of the venture, will pilot the teams from the Atlantic to the Pacific by way of the South.

Combining Against Anarchy.

Madrid, Aug. 21.—A dispatch to The Skoelnische Zeitung from Madrid says that Italy, Austria, Russia and Germany have accepted the proposal of the Spanish government to adopt international measures against anarchy, the chief of which will be the establishment of a penal colony for the life detention of dangerous anarchists. France has not replied to the Spanish note. It is expected, says the despatch, that the United States, Great Britain and Switzerland will refuse to co-operate.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The site for Fall River's (Mass.) new jail has been bought.

Henry C. Andrews, a prominent New York broker, died suddenly yesterday at Weymouth, Mass.

Sackett L. Duryee, aged 16, of Washington, won the national croquet championship at Norwich, Conn.

Paddy Purtell, the American boxer, defeated Lachie Thompson at London last night. This was Purtell's first fight in England.

Yesterday's session closed the Catholic Total Abstinence union national convention at Scranton, Pa. The convention will meet next year in Boston.

The tax assessors of Athol, Mass., report the value of real estate of that town at $3,289,360; personal property, $643,070; bank stock, $87,720; total, $4,020,100, a gain of $179,114. The tax rate is $17.20, a reduction of $6.30.

The Virginia Prohibition convention yesterday nominated Rev. L. A. Cutler of Louisa for governor, Professor G. M. Smith Deal of Richmond for lieutenant governor and J. B. Kennedy of Staunton for attorney general.

The Refractometer

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent occulists say concerning it.

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.

I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.

F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.

I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.

The Heroic Age.

He speaks not well who doth his time deplore,
Naming it new and little and obscure,
Ignoble and unfit for lofty deeds.
All times were modern in the time of them,
And this no more than others. Do thy part
Here in the living day, as did the great
Who made old days immortal. So shall men,
Far gazing back to this receding hour,
Say: "Then the time when men were truly men.
Though wars grew less, their spirits met the test
Of new conditions, conquering civic wrong,
Saving the state anew by virtuous lives,
Defying leagued fraud with single truth,
Not fearing loss and daring to be pure
When error through the land raged like a pest.
They calmed the madness caught from mind to mind,
By wisdom drawn from eld and counsel sane,
And, as the martyrs of the ancient world
Gave death for man, so nobly gave they life,
Those the great days and that the heroic age."
—Century.

The Concert of the Powers.

What compact, born of greed, is this that keeps
The ruthless Abdul on his throne to kill
And ravage when and wheresoe'er he will?
And while Armenia bleeding lies and weeps,
Her altars and her homes all laid in heaps,
Her daughters outraged and her sons on hill,
In valley, slain, diplomacy's sole skill
Is idle jargon, as of one who sleeps.
Ye powers, innocent blood is on your hands
In that ye basely have condoned for gain
The blackest crimes outside the jaws of hell.
Your cup is filling fast while ye refrain
To do the one strong deed the time demands
And let your guns roar out the tyrant's knell.

Shame on you, ye who boast that ye are free!
Armenia in her helplessness and woe
Appealed to you in tears, and ne'er a blow
Ye struck for freedom's cause on land or sea.
When Cretans ask for aid the tyranny
Of fiends to break, brave Greece responds, and, lo,
Your guns are primed, and shot and shell ye throw
Against the weak who fight for liberty!
Ah, ye who bear the Christian name, your creed
Is false to him who came the bruised to set
At liberty, the broken heart to bind.
'Tis with the powers of evil ye are leagued.
Your sordid, sinister designs shall yet
Their full and righteous retribution find.

Life's Mirror.

There are loyal hearts, there are spirits brave,
There are souls that are pure and true.
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you.

Give love, and love to your life will flow,
A strength in our utmost need.
Have faith, and a score of hearts will show
Their faith in your word and deed.

Give truth, and your gifts will be paid in kind,
And honor will honor meet,
And a smile that is sweet will surely find
A smile that is just as sweet.

Give pity and sorrow to those who mourn,
You will gather in flowers again
The scattered seeds from your thought outborne,
Though the sowing seemed but vain.

For life is the mirror of king and slave.
'Tis just what we are and do.
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you.

Without a Wife.

It's vera weel throughout the day,
When ta'en up wi' wark or play,
To think a man can live alway
Wi'oot a wifey.

It's vera weel when cla'es are new
To think they'll always last so
And look as well as they do noo
Wi'oot a wifey.

But when the holes begin to show,
The stitches rip, the buttons go,
What in the warl's a man to do
Wi'oot a wifey?

It's vera weel when skies are clear,
When frien's are true and lassies dear,
To think ye'll gang through life, nae fear
Wi'oot a wifey.

But clouds will come the skies athwart,
Lassies will marry, frien's maun part.
What, then, can cheer your saddened heart?
A dear, wee wifey.

It's vera weel when young and hale,
But when you're auld and crazed and frail
And your blithe spirits 'gin to fail
You'll want a wifey.

But mayhap then the lassie dear
Will treat your offers wi' a sneer.
Because you're cranky, gray and sear
Ye'll get nae wifey.

Then haste ye, haste, ye silly loon.
Rise up and seek about the toon
And get heaven's greatest earthly boon,
A wee bit wifey.
—People's Home Journal.

We Only Toil.

Why are we weighed upon with heaviness
And utterly consumed with sharp distress
While all things else have rest from weariness?
All things have rest. Why should we toil alone,
We only toil, who are the first of things,
And make perpetual moan,
Still from one sorrow to another thrown,
Nor ever fold our wings
And cease from wanderings,
Nor steep our brows in slumber's holy balm,
Nor hearken what the inner spirit sings,
"There is no joy but calm."
Why should we only toil, the roof and crown of things?
—Tennyson.

The year's at the spring,
And day's at the morn.
Morning's at seven.
The hillside's dew pearled.
The lark's on the wing.
The snail's on the thorn.
God's in his heaven.
All's right with the world.

BASEBALL TRAINING.

Players Might Maintain Much Better Physical Condition.

LOOSE HABITS; IRREGULAR MEALS

Umpires In Evidence—A Season of Scandalous Discord on the Field—Hurst and His Characteristics and Misfortunes—What May Be Expected of Various Clubs.

The goldfields of Klondike thus far have not tempted any National league ball player to desert his profession. These baseball stars love gold just as much as the ordinary run of humanity, but they have a small Klondike among themselves year by year, and they get their gold with none of the great hardships which the Alaska fortune seeker must encounter. Just imagine one of these $400 per month, Pullman car traveling, $3 a day hotel grubbers giving up such a "graft" for the uncertainties of Klondike!

Speaking of ball players at hotels is a reminder that there is one experiment which has not yet been tried by any manager, and when it is applied there is sure to be interesting results. It is an undeniable fact that half the players while "on the road" eat their breakfast at the hotels from half past 9 till 10 o'clock. At that late hour they are naturally hungry and spare not the viands named on the menu card. In most of the cities they must start for the grounds at half past 2, which makes it necessary for them to be in the dining room for lunch not later than half past 1. In reality most of them are in line when the dining room doors open. Therefore about 3 or 3½ hours is the time between these two matutinal meals which precede the game. This irregularity must surely affect the stomach. The stomach is the regulator of vision. No man has a correct vision whose stomach is not in good condition. So it is evident that this squeezing together of two meals each day before a game affects the eyes of the player, and as his eyes are half his stock in trade it affects his playing adversely. It is one great reason why teams on the road play less successfully than they do at home.

Ball playing is largely an athlete's work. The star must train and get into form. Why not make him stay in form? Think of a prizefighter eating breakfast at 10 o'clock, a lunch at 1 and then going into the ring to meet his opponent! I mentioned this irregularity of players in getting up to breakfast to a manager of a certain League club lately. His reply was, "They are called at 8 o'clock." There lies the trouble. The 8 o'clock call doesn't do the whole work, and the lax management lets it at that.

Another novel record has just been made. After losing 22 consecutive championship games to the Baltimores the Philadelphias on Aug. 3 finally defeated their hoodoo. There is no other case like it known in the annals of the national game. It is the more remarkable because the two teams are so much nearer matched than the one sided contest indicates. Philadelphia for years has had a team that ranked No. 1 as hitters, while the Baltimore pitchers have been far from the best and have been changed constantly. It was therefore not the inability to bat one or two certain pitchers, but looks like a piece of hoodooism, if there ever was such a thing. To make it all the more remarkable this same Philadelphia team, during its period of its lay down to Baltimore, has been able to win with ease from equally strong teams, particularly the New Yorks. There is a subject here for some baseball theorist who has time to sit down and figure out the why and wherefore.

UMPIRE TIM HURST.

In no year since baseball became a professional game has there been so much discord on the field between umpires, players and spectators as there has this year. Hurst was assaulted by a mob in Pittsburg, and had a fist fight with Catcher Peitz in Cincinnati. Sheridan was knocked down on the diamond by Hawley at Pittsburg and egged in another city. Kennedy the Brooklyn pitcher, hurled a ball at Umpire O'Day's head. Wolf, a local umpire in Louisville, was struck twice by Parke Wilson's fist during a wrangle over a forfeited game. And the slight punching in the ribs, pulling, hauling and pushing which all of them, except Lynch, received from time to time have been so common that they were considered unworthy of record by reporters.

But the climax came with the arrest of Hurst in Cincinnati on Aug. 4—in Cincinnati, which city seems to be the storm center for all the trouble. A decision which Hurst made did not please some of the spectators. One of them, who had just drained a glass of beer, hurled the empty glass at Hurst. It rolled to his feet. Very foolishly the umpire picked it up and sent it back whence it came. It was thrown at random, but struck an innocent party, inflicting a long scalp wound. The umpire was then attacked by the crowd, but the police managed to get him to the police station, where he was placed under bonds to answer the charge of assault and battery.

When one summarizes this state of affairs and stacks it up beside the magnates' "Address to the Umpires," issued last February, it becomes extremely funny. What is more, there is no club of the 12 which has not protested the assignment of one or more of the regular umpires to games in which its team takes part. All of this was forecast by me in one of the early spring baseball articles. So the umpire question remains the great unsolved problem which will again confront the magnates when they meet in the winter conferences.

Perhaps the fault will be found in the failure of clubs to maintain order among the spectators. Had the man who threw the beer glass at Hurst been promptly ejected from the ground the trouble would have ended there. As it is others will be encouraged to shy a few empty steins at the official on the diamond whenever they disagree with his decisions. Yet they expect him to make no mistakes in his work and at the same time dodge beer glasses.

There was a time in the National league when any spectator who addressed the umpire in harsh language was promptly led to the gate and put upon the outside. In those days no beer glasses were thrown, because no liquor was sold in the stands. But the National league of the eighties and the National league of the nineties are of different characters, and in this instance time has not bettered conditions.

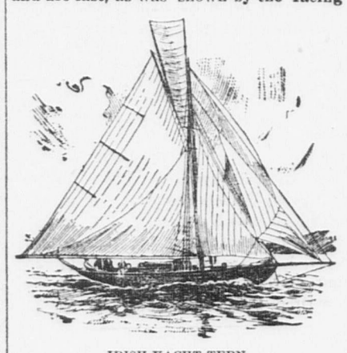
The home stretch of the great pennant race has been reached, and the finish promises to be the most interesting in years, because there are four clubs in the final sprint. It must not be forgotten that with these four teams there is little preference between first and second places—that is, the great desire exists to get into the Temple Cup series, while the clubs themselves believe there is "more in it" for the following season to finish second than first. Once champion and the club is expected to stay champion. In second place gives the club mighty prestige for next season's fight.

At this time it looks as if Cincinnati had no chance to end one, two, because its team finishes the season away from home, while the other three leaders' work is confined almost entirely to their own grounds. So it should be a three cornered struggle among the Bostons, Baltimores and New Yorks. Two of them will be happy on Oct. 2. The third will be the most bitterly disappointed of the 12. It will be a case of "so near and yet so far" with the rich Temple Cup prize just beyond its reach. It will be a grand finish and will attract widespread attention. O. P. CAYLOR.

ALL AROUND YACHTS.

Fast and Seaworthy and Good For Racing or Cruising.

A practical design for yachts is found in a class of boats used along the north of Ireland coast. They are exceptionally seaworthy, have good accommodation below, and are fast, as was shown by the racing



IRISH YACHT TERN.

during the recent Clyde fortnight, where they beat the Scotch boats. They are a handy craft, and make good small cruisers. A model of the kind is the Tern, which is described in detail as follows: Length on load water line, 25 feet; over all, 38½ feet; beam, 8 feet 6 inches; draft, 6 feet 8 inches; width, 5 feet 9 inches of head room under beams of coach roof. The keel is of cast iron and weighs 3½ tons. The boats have a fixed coach roof and skylight, and are fitted up for cruising as well as for racing. They have uniform draft fore and aft, adapted for beaching easily. Each has a sail area of 839 square feet, and they all rate at 30-35 linear rating.

The Manager's Point of View.

The usual wail about actors being unable to find employment is being heard on all sides. Commenting on it, Manager A. H. Woodhull of the Manhattan theater, New York, said:

"The same story was very much in evidence at the beginning of last season, and yet every competent and reliable member of the profession whom I know secured an engagement. Take the roster of any first class organization and you can easily demonstrate my proposition.

"As an instance, look at the company which George H. Broadhurst has engaged for 'What Happened to Jones.' When was George C. Boniface, Jr., disengaged? George Ober has just closed a five years' engagement with Hoyt. R. F. Cotton was with 'Lost, Strayed or Stolen' last season. William Bernard played the light comedy role in the all star production of 'The Sporting Duchess.' Mrs. McKee Rankin declined to leave New York and filled in most of her time with jobbing engagements. Anna Belmont continued in her original role in 'Too Much Johnson.' Kathryn Osterman was leading woman for Stuart Robson.

"So it goes all down the line. The actor who cannot secure an engagement has either been unable to demonstrate his ability or has an exaggerated idea of his importance."

Reed Bird.

The black pacing mare Reed Bird has been said by the Village farm people of East Aurora, N. Y., to Isaac Eckert, a Reading (Pa.) banker. Reed Bird is a black mare, 6 years old, sired by Heir-at-Law, 2:07½, dam Bobolink, dam of Boy Blue, 2:25½, by Mambrino King. Her second dam is Dictator Maid, by Dictator, sire of Jay Eye See, etc. Dictator Maid is the dam of Blackwood Chief, sire of the dams of Bright Regent, 2:06¾; Merry Chimes, 2:08½, etc. She is also the grandam of Old Globe, 2:14¾, at one time a leading trotter in the Village farm string.

A New Guideless Wonder.

A trotter has come to the front that goes exhibition miles without rigging of any description except a backband, bridle and overcheck. He is owned by W. P. Palmer of Sparta, Wis., and at a matinee held there recently trotted in 2:28¼. Subsequently he trotted a mile in 2:26. The track is a half mile. If the new horse is started on an exhibition tour, the performance will be one worth watching, especially if the Sparta horse, who is called Poco Tempo, succeeds in trotting well below 2:20.

Discus Throwing.

A new rule has been introduced in the laws governing the throwing of the discus, the event which was brought from Greece after the victory of Garrett of Princeton in the Olympic games at Athens in April, 1896. The missile is to be thrown from a seven foot circle instead of a box. The change was deemed advisable owing to the weight putters and shot putters, all of whom are discus throwers in embryo, being used to moving about in a circle instead of a box.

GOSSIP FOR WHEELMEN.

Inventive Genius Struggling After Mechanical Perfection.

THE PIONEER OF FEMALE RIDERS.

Difficulties of Conquering Social Prejudices. Secrets of Speed Production as Told by a Champion—What to Do With Old Chains—Stevens and His Record.

There is an insatiable desire for the chainless wheel, in spite of the fact that all the leading chain patterns are much nearer perfection than things mechanical usually are. The latest and apparently the simplest chainless device is a large wheel conveying the power from the pedal wheel to the rear axle. Ball bearings are provided to overcome friction as far as possible, and it is claimed that the new scheme has none of the dangerous delicacy peculiar to other chainless devices.

Speaking of chains, some cyclists who are riding wheels of the 1896 model cannot understand why it is that their bicycles go so much harder this year than they did last. They have cleaned them thoroughly, had the bearings polished until they were as bright as lamp reflectors, and still the wheel seems to take about 10 per cent more exertion to push it than in 1896, when it was new. Of course a bicycle is not expected to run with the same smoothness after a season's hard work, but there should not be such a change as to make the second year's pedaling a task instead of a pleasure. To those who complain about a difference in the ease with which the bicycle runs, it is suggested that a thorough examination be made of the chain. If it is considerably worn and the links are loose, dispense with it and buy a new one.

It is said that the first woman's bicycle was made by W. E. Smith in his factory at Washington. Smith came from England and was a firm believer in the benefits of athletics for the gentler sex. This first wheel for a woman he made for his young wife, who became the pioneer of female riders. Had Mrs. Smith been less courageous, less persistent, at that time the healthful and exhilarating exercise of bicycling might have remained much longer a secret to women, who have in a brief period of time become so generally its fascinated votaries. Mrs. Smith had much to contend with when she first rode a wheel—the jeers of the thoughtless and the surprise of friends, who felt it was not just the proper thing for a woman to do. But nothing availed against her tenacity of purpose, and she soon demonstrated that the bicycle was for the pleasure of women as well as men.

In a recent interview J. W. Stocks, holder of the world's bicycle record for the hour, gave away several little secrets of his phenomenal success at speed production. He rides 20 miles a day—ten in the morning and ten in the afternoon—and in the spring, when commencing training, uses a 66 gear. As he puts on muscle he increases his gearing, until in the height of the season he pushes a 98. This he considers to be a useful all round gear, although he shortly intends to experiment with a 119. His machine scales 23 pounds, and, as he tritely remarks: "I don't see the benefit of using a lighter one. What is the use of putting the push into the frame. I like it to go to the wheel direct."

Orlando L. Stevens, who recently defeated Bald and other cracks at Trenton, is a native of Ottumwa, Ia. He has been racing three years. He first came into prominence at a meet in Des Moines in July, 1894. He surprised the spectators by winning every race he entered, and incidentally broke the Iowa state record for a mile. Oct. 17, 1895, Stevens at Hendrick, Ia., won everything in sight. That day he created new class B competition records for one-quarter and one-third miles. The records are 23 1-5s. and 33 2-5s. respectively, and they still stand. That year he rode in 30 races, winning 18, riding second in 9 and third in 2. Last year he did little riding, but figured well in all the races he competed in.

Ben Brush's New Splint.

Ben Brush, winner of handicaps, has developed a new splint. The veterinary who is attending the colt hopes to arrest the growth of the splint, but he is not at all sanguine of success, and it is probable that Brush will remain in his stable for some time to come. The splint is on the off fore leg, not the one that was affected in the early spring, and it is in a conspicuous place. The first splint last spring kept Ben Brush from starting in the Metropolitan and Brooklyn handicaps, and came very near keeping him out of the Suburban.

The $25,000 Stake Postponed.

Horsemen interested in the proposed trotting meeting for a stake of $25,000 at Fleetwood have decided that it is expedient to wait until next year. No formal action is to be taken on the question, the idea being merely to wait. It is said that the full $25,000 has been provided for such an event next year, and all the great trotters are expected to be in it.

Some doctors are like owls. They look wise and talk wise but they don't think. In diagnosing disease they don't go back to the starting point. When a man gets sick, nine times out of ten his evident sickness is only a symptom of some hidden and long-neglected disorder. Most frequently the original and exciting trouble is a disordered digestion. If that is corrected nature will in the majority of cases do the rest. It is easy for a man to avoid sickness if he will keep a watchful eye on his digestion and resort to the right remedy the moment he feels himself out of sorts.

All disorders of the digestion are corrected by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It restores lost appetite, invigorates the liver, and fills the blood with the life-giving elements that build healthy flesh and firm muscles. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder, and nerve tonic. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. It cures wasting diseases and nervous troubles. It wards off disease of every description. Buy "Golden Medical Discovery" of reliable dealers; with tricky ones, something else that pays them better will probably be offered as "just as good." Perhaps it is for them; but it can't be for you.

"My wife has found great help from Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, as, when she takes cold from any cause it generally settles on her lungs," writes E. James, of Box 281, Brooklyn, Cuyahoga Co., Ohio. "The 'Favorite Prescription' we keep on hand all the time. It is a wonderful medicine. My wife has great faith in it. By being careful in the way we live and by using Dr. Pierce's medicines when we don't feel just right, we have had to call in a doctor but once in fifteen years."

A man can't either make money or enjoy life who suffers from headaches, and sleeplessness, and heart-burn. These troubles are caused by constipation. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a sure, safe, speedy and permanent cure for constipation. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. They never gripe. Dishonest druggists sometimes try to substitute inferior articles for the sake of profit.

AUTHORITATIVE EXPLANATION OF MARCONI'S WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

His Discoveries Not So Important or Original as at First Supposed and Not Likely to Soon Supersede the Morse System.

Somewhat exaggerated and slightly inaccurate accounts of Mr. Marconi's experiments in wireless telegraphy have been given to the public within the last few months. The more authoritative utterances of Mr. Preece, chief electrician of the British postal service, now show that the young Italian's discoveries are not so important and original as has been supposed. The practical usefulness of Marconi's invention, so far as can be seen at present, will be comparatively limited. It is nevertheless true that he has gone further than any one else in solving the question how to telegraph between two points not connected with wires.

In an address delivered in London Mr. Preece made it perfectly clear that the kind of energy which Mr. Marconi employs is the electro magnetic wave, or Hertzian wave, which is thrown off sidewise from a metallic conductor when an electric current in the latter is interrupted with very great frequency. No new form of radiance has been discovered. Marconi's generator or transmitter is really a piece of apparatus devised by Professor Righi and is only a modified form of Hertz's radiator. Two brass balls, A and B, are fitted tightly into the ends of a cylinder containing vaseline (which is a good insulator). Directly opposite and almost in contact with each of these large spheres are two small brass balls, and the latter are made the terminals of the secondary circuit of a powerful induction coil, C. A storage battery or other source of electricity, E, is placed in the primary circuit, which also contains an ordinary Morse key, K. The turns of fine wire composing the secondary coil are so much more numerous than those of the primary that the current induced in the former has a very high voltage or penetrating power. It would leap an air gap of at least six inches. So long as the key is open nothing happens, but when it is closed and the primary circuit is complete the secondary begins sparking with amazing rapidity, and a set of electro magnetic waves, about 250,000,000 per second, are thrown out sidewise from an imaginary line connecting the centers of the big spheres, let us say at D. The zigzag line which Mr. Preece has drawn on the underside of the cylinder is not intended to represent a wire, but the series of invisible electro magnetic waves.

MARCONI'S TRANSMITTER.

The most original part of Mr. Marconi's apparatus is his receiver, or relay. While it works on the same principle as Hertz's resonator it introduces a new feature. It is something more than a mere ring, carefully "tuned" to respond to vibrations of a certain frequency. In a sealed glass tube an inch and a half long and perhaps a quarter of an inch in diameter he inserts two cylindrical bits of silver, separated at their bases by half a millimeter, or about one-fiftieth of an inch. The outer ends of the silver "pole pieces" are connected with wires that pierce the glass. The tube is made airtight, and a high vacuum is created within it. But before these last two steps are taken the space between the butt ends of the silver pieces is filled with a mixture of fine nickel and silver filings, to which a trace of mercury has been added.

Now, if a "local" battery, B, such as is used in every country telegraph office, be connected with the apparatus, and an attempt be made to send a current through the latter, there will be no success unless the tube should be exposed sidewise to the electro magnetic waves sent off by Mr. Marconi's transmitter. Except at such times the filings act like an insulator. The tiny particles lie in disorder, or "higgledy piggledy," as Mr. Preece says. But when they come within the influence of the Hertzian waves they are "polarized" or arranged in order. They stick to each other, form a chain, and conduct the current. Consequently if an ordinary telegraphic "sounder," S, is placed in the local circuit, it will be actuated only when the nickel silver filings are polarized by the electro magnetic waves. In other words, it will repeat with accuracy the signals given by means of the key connected with the transmitter.

Two thin metallic wings, WW, are attached to the apparatus. By trimming these to the proper size the receiving instrument is attuned to the transmitter. If a crowbar is dropped on a pavement, it will ring out a certain note. Vary the amount of metal in it, and you change the note.

When an induction coil powerful enough to give a 6 inch spark is used with the transmitter, Marconi's receiver will pick up the waves at a distance of four miles. But for greater distances a coil capable of giving a still longer spark is required. Thus far the new wireless system has been used only to cover intervals of eight miles. A coil capable of sending farther than this would be very costly—far more so than eight or ten miles of wire. Hence Marconi's method is not likely to displace Morse's for general service. It seems to be best suited to secret communication in time of war, to fog signaling or to telegraphing to lightships or islands lying several miles off shore.—New York Tribune.

NEW STEEL DISCOVERED.

Said to Contain About Twenty-five or Twenty Per Cent of Nickel.

The manufacture of nickel steel will probably be revolutionized by a new process just invented in Pittsburg. A company has already been formed by well known local capitalists, and the new product will shortly be turned out in large quantities.

The new steel was invented by W. J. Williams, a well known steel worker. No patents have been taken out by the inventor, as he feared his secret would thus be learned by others and endless litigation might result. Careful analyses were made of the finished product by chemists, but they were unable to discover how the steel was made or the proportions of the different materials, as many of the substances had been changed by the furnace's heat.

It is claimed that the new steel contains from 25 to 30 per cent of nickel to the steel. Heretofore not more than from 3 to 4 per cent of nickel to the steel has been obtained by those engaged in the manufacture of it. The tests made showed that the Williams steel increased in strength and hardness to the point where 18 per cent of nickel was used, and from point to 25 and 30 per cent each addition of nickel made the product softer. This variation in the softness or hardness, they claim, is no disadvantage, as the steel will thus become suited to various purposes.

They claim that with the new steel knives may be made just as hard as now, with the additional advantage that they will never rust. The softer steel will be used for the spokes for bicycles, and a large trade is expected to be developed on this class of work.

The advantage gained by the new steel is that much less steel than ordinary can be used and yet have much greater strength.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Great Engineering Scheme.

One of the most important electrical engineering schemes on record, by which power is to be conducted from Santa Ana to Los Angeles, a distance of 80 miles, under a pressure of 33,000 volts, is now in process of consummation. It is proposed to deliver electrical energy equivalent to 4,000 horsepower in the car house at Los Angeles. The power station is in Santa Ana canyon, 12 miles from Redlands and 80 miles from the point of development. The current will be generated at 1,000 volts and transformed up to 33,000. The power is derived from the water of the Santa Ana river, which is to be directed from the stream by a canal, flume and tunnel work along the side of the canyon to a point where it suddenly drops through 2,200 feet of pipe, a distance of 750 feet, to the water wheels.—Electrical Review.

Aluminium Coated Sheets.

A middle west galvanized iron manufacturing company is producing steel sheets, coated with aluminium, which, it is claimed, are superior to and more durable than galvanized iron, tin plate or planished iron for many purposes for which those materials are now generally used. The special advantages of the aluminium coated sheets are stated to be that they can be worked and seamed without peeling, the coating adhering absolutely to the sheet, can be easily soldered, will resist the action of sulphurous gases, and can be heated to a red heat without destroying the coating. Moreover, they can, when desired, be polished to a luster equal to burnished silver or nickel.—Popular Science News.

Expensive Metals.

Charcoal thread used as filaments in electric lamps costs about $12,000 a pound, but an authority states that gallium is vastly more expensive than the carbon filament, 1½ grains of it being worth $25, or about $100,000 per pound. He also furnishes a list of the rarer metals, with their approximate prices per pound:

Beryllium and lanthanum	$10,000
Rhodium and thorium	6,000
Didymium and rubidium	4,000
Indium and tantalum	8,500
Erbium, niobium and yttrium	8,000
Ruthenium and vanadium	2,000

—Keystone.

A Contract From Australia.

It is announced that the Pennsylvania Tube works have received the contract for 100 miles of 12 inch lap welded steel pipe and 300 miles of 30 inch riveted steel pipe. The weight will be about 20,000 tons, and the order is said to be the largest ever made at one time. The pipes are to carry water to the Coolgardie mines, Australia.—American Machinist.

Castle Square Theatre.

The attraction announced by Director Cummings for the coming week, will afford a pleasing contrast to the plays recently produced at this theatre. "Doctor Bill" had a brilliant success throughout the country a few seasons ago and was particularly popular with Boston audiences. It is full of amusing scences, incidents and situations, the dialogue is bright with many humorous illusions and the action is quick and spirited. The cast: Dr. William Brown, Dr. Bill, Mr. Tony Cummings; Mr. Furman, Mr. Horace Lewis; Mr. Horton, Inspector of Police, Mr. Lon Seeley; George Webster, Mr. Charles MacKay; Baggs, Dr. Brown's servant, Mr. Lindsay Morrison; Mrs. Horton, Miss Lillian Lawrence; Louise Brown, Miss Grace Atwell; Miss Fauntleroy, Miss Mary Sanders; Ellen, Mrs. Horton's maid, Miss Rose Morrison. The attraction to follow "Doctor Bill" on Monday Aug. 30th is Paul M. Potter's adaptation of George du Maurier's celebrated novel "Trilby," by special arrangement with Messrs. A. M. Palmer and William A. Brady.

QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

VOL. 9. NO. 196. QUINCY, MASS., MONDAY, AUGUST 23, 1897. PRICE 2 CENTS.

"PUT ME OFF AT BUFFALO."

The City Now Grandly Decorated and Thousands of Veterans Arriving.

Buffalo, Aug. 23.—This city was never as profusely and as beautifully decorated as today, and it is all in honor of the Brave Boys in Blue, whose national encampment is now opening. The vanguard of veterans began arriving Saturday and a steady inpouring has continued since. Thousands more are coming, and the 23rd encampment is expected to be the largest in the history of the G. A. R.

Bunting of the color of the flag, draped, suspended, woven and festooned, floats everywhere. Here and there a knot of black crape stands out in sombre relief from the profusion of gay colorings, telling its story of those whom death has mustered from th long line of blue. Buildings, public and private, on almost every street bear proof of the work that has been going on for several weeks; of the lavish expenditure of months of ingenuity, skill and art. Nearly every window in the business section of the city has some catchy design, intended to compliment the old soldiers. Life figures of men in blue and gray grasping each other by the hand, stacks of arms twined with the Stars and Stripes, tents, glowing campfires and every thing pertaining to the incidents and art of war, served for th decoration maker.

The broad asphalt streets, for which the city is far famed, stretch a long pathway beneath the overhanging decorations and between the walls of draped buildings. On Main street, opposite the Erie County bank building and St. Paul's church, and at the junction of several streets, forming what is generally regarded as the business centre of the city, stands the welcome arch. It is a monster structure in the form of a monogram composed of the letters "G. A. R." The arch or span is formed by the legs of the letter "A," which is in white, while the "G" and "R" are in red and blue. This is surmounted by two beautiful shields, standing on which is a golden eagle bearing in its beak an electrical device with the word "Welcome." This is a thing of beauty by day and a pillar of fire by night, the illumination being accomplished by 2500 electric lights.

The Triumphal Arch.

Looking northward from Lafayett square, the glistening facade of the triumphal arch stands out like a massive wall of granite across Main street. This is another tribute by the citizens of Buffalo to the soldier guests. The structure is built to represent a solid piece of masonry, standing high above the street and penetrated by three arches. The large centre arch spans the street at a sufficent width to permit the passage of the marching columns, and on each side of the centre arch are smaller arches of the same design.

The triumphal arch is situated at the junction of Main and East Genesee streets, near Huron. A broad asphalt square opens to the east of the structure, giving its fine architectural features the benefit of an expansive view from three sides.

A block beyond the triumphal arch, at the entrance to Chippewa street, stands another arch, the grateful gift of the small colored contingent of Buffalo to the Grand Army. This arch is of pleasing design, and, like the triumphal arch, is composed of a large centre and two small side arches, the three stretching over Chippewa street from curb to curb. Its decorations are of bunting in red, white and blue, draped with evergreens and flowers. Pictures of war horees, and inscriptions expressive of the debt which the colored race owe to the men who gave them freedom, adorn the arch.

At the Circle, so called by reason of a large circular shaped park at the junction of of North street with Porter and Richmond avenues, are the reviewing stands, marked by the national colors. There are two of them placed one on the north and the other on the south sides of North street. There total seating capacity is 5000. President McKinley and other distinguished persons will occupy the north stand. Between the stands the veterans will march in final review before being dismissed by divisions.

Camp Jewett.

Camp Jewell, named in honor of the mayor of Buffalo, a city of 3500 tents provided for the accommodation of the visiting G. A. R. men, is situated at the front of a broad plazza in the city park system, adjoining Fort Porter and overlooking Lake Erie, the mouth of the Niagara river and the Canadian shore. At its entrance on Porter avenue, a few blocks below the reviewing stands, is another arch. It is made to resemble granite, and forms an imposing entrance.

The tents in Camp Jewett are mostly of the round class known as Indian tepee. They are arranged in streets, the central avenue being named in honor of General Grant. On the north the streets are named after Generals Sheridan, McClellan, Meade, Pope and Burnside. Those to the south side are Sherman and McCook. The cross avenues are Franklin, Porter, Hancock, Rosecrans, Hooker, McDowell, Schofield, McPherson, Stanley, Logan, Halleck, Bell, Thomas and Granger. At the exit from the camp, and on the line of the Fort Porter ramparts, stands the fifth and last arch. It is in the form of a horseshoe and is finished in imitation of iron.

Perhaps the most brilliant feature will be the living shield already referred to and which will be produced on Wednesday, the day of the great parade of veterans.

Four thousand children from the public schools, who have been for weeks under the careful instruction of Professor Joseph Mischka and Charles F. Hager, will be the life figures of this great work, which will stand on Chippewa street just below Delaware avenue, at the point where the line of march turns from Chippewa street into the avenue. Its position will be such as t face the marching columns for the two blocks on the line beyond the colored people's arch.

The platform upon which the children will be placed will be built squarely across Chippewa street, cutting off all traffic. It will resemble a large grandstand, the seats graduating upwards as the elevation increases.

This will give the shield the appearance intended, namely, of resting on an easel. The seating space will be so arranged as to form the outline of a shield, with red and white stripes and white stars, in a blue field, sorrounded by a border of black. Boys in black garments will form the background, while boys and girls alike, dressed in red, white and blue will fill in the stars and stripes of the shield.

These children of the shield will be divided into two reliefs to avoid the fatigue of remaining in position for about seven hours. The first 2000 will take their places in the morning just before the head of the column moves, and will remain in position until half of the procession has passed. Then they will be relieved by the second division, which will remain in position until the last man in the New York state division, as the left of the line, has passed. They will not only be seen but heard. All day long they will sing national anthems and patriotic songs, to the accompaniment of music. One of the features of the musical program will be the "Song of Freedom," composed for the occasion by Mrs. Robert Fulton, and rendered by the young voices, it is anticipated with wonderful effect.

During the night hundreds of veterans and their friends arrived, and today they are coming in by thousands. The various railroads entering Buffalo report that in addition to the hundreds of regular trains schedules have been prepared for 245 specials to arrive here by tomorrow noon. Among the prominent arrivals are J. Cory Winans, commander-in-chief Clarkson's staff; General J. R. Lewis, past junior vice commander, and General Daniel Ross of Wilmington, Del., a candidate for junior vice commander chief.

Camp Jewett, as the city of tents is known, is all ready for its inhabitants, and while it will not be formally opened until 4 o'clock this afternoon a number of posts are already installed. Ample arrangements have been made at the camp and elsewhere for the care of the sick. Three hospital tents have been erected at Camp Jewett, each in charge of a competent staff of physicians.

The honor of flying the first penant from any tent at Camp Jewett belongs to Reno post, No. 64, of Williamsport, Pa. A detachment of 11 members arrived Saturday and was assigned to tents 27-29. Clayton P. White of Williamsport was the first veteran to arrive and is quartered on the steamer Idaho, which has been assigned to the naval posts.

Among the later announcements of candidates to succeed Commander-in-Chief Clarkson are the names of John C. Linehan of New Hampshire, George H. Innis of Massachusetts, James A. Sexton of Chicago and General J. P. S. Gobin of Pennsylvania.

Big Crowd Expected.

Colonel Winans of General Clarkson's staff estimates the number of visitors to Buffalo during the week at 200,000, making the largest encampment ever held. In speaking of the choice of the veterans for the next encampment, Colonel Winans said so far as his information went there was but one choice among the delegates, and that was Cincinnati. There seems to be a feeling, he said, among some of the Eastern people that San Francisco wants the encampment, but that is a mistake. San Francisco is preparing to make a bid in 1899. With regard to the encampment being held in Richmond, Va., he continued, there is nothing in it. The people down there don't want it, and the old soldiers do not care to go there. The status of the negro is so different in the South from that in the North that it would cause much unpleasantness.

Notwithstanding this view the Young Men's Business association of Richmond has opened headquarters here, and the members are making quite an effort to secure the encampment.

In conclusion, he said, in his estimates, Pennsylvania would send the most people to the encampment, with New York second and Ohio third in attendance.

The race for the national presidency of the Women's Relief corps is exciting considerable interest. Mrs. Martin of Missouri seems to be the choice of the greatr portion of the delegates who have arrived. Illinois has again put forth Mrs. Thomas J. Miller, but as this lady has held the position for several years it is felt that some other should succeed her now. Mrs. Helen M. Griffiths of Iowa is also a candidate.

Five Children Drowned.

Toronto, Aug. 23.—At the foot of Cherry street there is a float made of rough timber, 12 feet long by 6 wide, used for conveying workmen from the mainland to the breakwater, a distance of about 100 yards. The float is worked by chains attached to the bank on one side and the breakwater on the other side. Yesterday afternoon 21 children, boys and girls, ranging from 8 to 13 years of age, crowded on the raft for the purpose of going to bathe at the breakwater. Half way across the channel, where the water is very deep, the raft capsized, and all the children were thrown into the water. There were many boats in the neighborhood, and these were quickly at the scene of the accident. All of the children were rescued except five.

Conspiracy to Defraud.

Washington, Aug. 23.—The Post prints a story to the effect that the authorities of the United States Soldiers' home in this city have unearthed what seems to be a conspiracy to defraud the home of funds, held in trust for the heirs of soldiers who have died in the institution. It is asserted that a local attorneys' firm, whose name is not given, has in several cases applied for letters of administration on pension money left in trust to the home.

Athenians Again Ask For War.

Athens, Aug. 23.—A great meeting of over 3000 people, held here yesterday, adopted an address to King George urging him and the government to reject the proposed peace treaty between Greece and Turkey and to resume the hositilities which were interrupted by the truce. The entire press, however, and a great majority of the public of Athens condemn the agitation for a resumption of the war.

SHOT AT OWN DOOR.

William Lawrence Attempts to Murder Judge Seaver at Woodstock.

Crime the Result of Former's Domestic Troubles.

His Wife Had Applied For Divorce on Ground of Brutal Treatment.

White River Junction, Vt., Aug. 23.—A serious shooting affair, in which Hon. Thomas O. Seaver was the victim, occurred at Woodstock yesterday morning. The assailant, William W. Lawrence, called at the Seaver residence and entered into a heated discussion with the judge, who ordered Lawrence to depart, and followed him to the door, where Lawrence drew a revolver and fired two shots, the first entering the judge's right lung and lodging under the shoulder blade. Lawrence immediately surrendered to Deputy Sheriff Thomas, and was taken to the jail to await a preliminary hearing today.

It is alleged that the difficulties which led to the assault began early in 1896, when Mrs. Lawrence left her husband and child and applied to Judge Seaver for the appointment of a guardian over the girl, who was about 7 years old. It is said that Lawrence tried to steal the child from the parties who were caring for her under the direction of the guardian, Joseph C. Enright, then state attorney. Judge Seaver then granted an injunction restraining Lawrence from interfering with the girl in any way. At the last session of the court Mrs. Lawrence petitioned for a divorce on the grounds of intolerable cruelty and refusal to support. The case was tried before Judge Start and dismissed because of insufficient evidence, the injunction was removed and Lawrence was given permission to see his child. Lawrence conducted his own defense, refusing counsel.

He has greatly disliked Judge Seaver ever since the guardian was appointed, and yesterday he called upon the judge and entered into a hot discussion with him. The judge ordered Lawrence to leave the house and followed him to the door, where Lawrence drew a revolver and fired two shots, the first of which took effect, as before stated. At the jail Lawrence was searched and a small quantity of morphine was found upon him, showing that he was undoubtedly a morphine eater, thus explaining why he has at times appeared to be mentally unbalanced.

Judge Seaver is highly respected and has been judge of the probate court for many years.

Well Known Irishman Dead.

New Haven, Aug. 23.—Captain James Reynolds, better known as "Catalpa Jim," one of the best known Irishmen in the state, died at his home in this city yesterday morning from catarrah of the stomach. He was born in County Caven, Ireland, 65 years ago, and came to this country while still in his teens. Almost 50 years of his eventful life were spent in this city. He was for 10 years town agent and later held the office of alderman and county commissioner. He was prominent in the Fenian movement, when the project was to invade Canada some 30 years ago. The funeral will take place tomorrow at 9 a. m. from his late home in this city.

Six Arrests In Cushman Case.

Bristol, Vt., Aug. 23.—Six arrests have been made in the Cushman case, the last being Mrs. Vivian Barrett, a sister of the dead girl. She is now in the county jail at Middlebury. She says that the story which Brittell told, concerning Poland giving Davis a vial with a reddish medecine in it is absolutely false, and that Poland did not give him a bottle in her presence. Vivan also announces that the story of her knowing of her sister's lamentable condition is also false. Yet letters are said to be in the hands of the authorities which would seem to prove that she did know of her sister's condition many weeks ago.

HORSE SHOER AND CARRIAGE SMITH.
Aug 16-1m

Our Way
of doing carriage repairing and horse shoeing suits everybody. We have the stock of materials, and mechanics for doing the best work in the city, and we are not backward in telling you so. But we invite you to be the judge, to compare our work and prices with those of other houses, and convince yourself. We wouldn't want you to do that if our way was not an honest one. If we repair a carriage and shoe a horse for you once, you will be convinced our way is the best and cheapest.

Edward Parker Deacon Insane.

Boston, Aug. 23.—Edward Parker Deacon, the decendant of an old and once distinguished family of this city the man who on Feb. 17, 1892, killed M. Emile Abeille in Mrs. Deacon's apartments at Cannes, France; the man whose exploits and actions have been the talk of society in France, England and America, and have created considerable public interest, was on Saturday committed to the McLean hospital at Waverly.

Was Known In Railroad Circles.

Norwich, Conn., Aug. 23.—George A. Harris died at his home in Preston early yesterday morning at the age of 57. Mr. Harris was for many years well known in railroad circles throughout New England. He was for nine years division freight agent of the New England, holding the position until failing health compelled him to retire from active business. He was a 32nd degree Mason. He leaves a widow and five children.

Barnaby the Winner.

Boston, Aug. 23.—Tom Barnaby was the winner of the six days' bicycle race, eight hours a day, which was brought to a close at the Charles river track Saturday evening, covering 993 1-3 miles. The previous record for a like race was 874 1-6 miles, made on an indoor track by Frank Waller.

Mexico Wants Gold.

City of Mexico, Aug. 23.—There will be a cabinet meeting to consider the monetary situation in the middle of this week. The project for accumulating a gold fund attracts attention and is approved in many quarters, being favored as a measure to gradually get in readiness to put the country on a gold basis, should that necessity become apparent.

Japan Consents to Arbitration.

Washington, Aug. 23.—The state department has been officially informed of Japan's acceptance of the offer made by Hawaii to arbitrate the immigration controversy between the two governments. So far as the administration has been informed the details are to be arranged between Minister Shimamura and the Hawaiian foreign office.

Fire in Paint Shop.

The alarm from Box 72 at 9.08 Saturday night called the department to a hot fire in the paint shop of C. M. Winneberger at Quincy Point. The fire, which is supposed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion was burning briskly when the department arrived and it required prompt work to extinguish the flames. All of Mr. Winneberger's paint and brushes were destroyed and the interior of the building was badly scorched. An old carriage in the building was partly burned. The loss will be in the neighborhood of $100. The building was owned by John A. Mahoney.

Cruelty to Horse.

Word was received at the police station Sunday afternoon that parties were abusing a horse on New road. Inspector McKay went up and found the horse to be owned by Walter Chadwick, a junk dealer. It was said that the horse was down and that they had been trying to get the animal on his feet. Several of them had tried to lift the animal by the tail and had nearly broken it off. Not being able to get the animal up by this means they had split his ear open. Inspector McKay shot the animal and put him out of misery, and then arrested Chadwick for cruelty to animals.

Chapter of Accidents.

While going to the fire at Quincy Point Saturday night a team of some kind ran over a dog near the residence of the late Edward A. Spear at the corner of River street. The dog was injured somewhat and remained in the street. Shortly after, Samuel McKay of Wollaston came along on his wheel and not seeing the dog he ran into him. He was thrown off and severely injured. Later he was carried to the office of Dr. Garey where it was found his collar bone had been broken. The bone was set and McKay taken to his home. McKay's companion was also thrown off by the same dog but escaped with a few bruises.

Polisher Missing.

James Hastings, aged 36 years, a stone polisher, residing on Town hill, is reported as missing since Aug 16. He left home that morning at 5.30 to go to work and nothing has been seen or heard of him since. It is thought that he had not more than $10 with him at the time of his disappearance. He was 5 feet 9 inches tall, brown eyes, sandy mustache, and had on dark trousers, a small checked coat, no vest, light outing shirt, tan shoes and brown felt hat. He has a wife and several children.

Fell Into the Brook.

A well known West Quincy young lady took an unintentional bath in Furnace brook Friday night. The young lady was coming down Furnace avenue and in some way lost her balance and before she could save herself she was in the water. She fortunately escaped with a wetting. The street is rather rough, and there is no fence on either side and nothing that could be called a sidewalk. There is however a brook on each side of the street and care must be exercised at all times.

Great Day at Quincy for the Yachts.

THE MORNING RACE.

Ida J., Muriel, Hoodlum and Mongoose the Winners.

The Quincy Yacht Club pulled off two of the prettiest races on Saturday that was ever sailed in these waters.

The morning race was a re-sail from Thursday's race for the first, second, second open, and knockabout classes who were becalmed on that day and could not finish within the time limit.

At the time the race was started at 10 o'clock the air was light. The judge's boat was moored quite a distance outside of Spear's stand as the water was too low to admit of starting the race from off the float. The judges were Secretary Whiting and Dr. Frederick E. Jones. Sixteen yachts started. Soon after the starting time the wind freshened up from the west. Before the race was finished the boats had all they could lug.

The first class started off in a bunch. For a few seconds there was a little confusion as the Hoodlum inadvertently crossed the line and got in the way. It looked, a few minutes before the gun fired, as though the Ida J. would have a poor start as she was over towards Pig rocks, but she pulled herself together, reached the starting line just as the gun was fired, and lead her class around the course. The Redskin draws so much water that she was handicapped from the first by the large quantities of seaweed she scooped upon her fin. The Emma C. sprung aleak and consequently made a poor showing, and had to pull out of the afternoon race.

In the Second class the Muriel easily defeated her competitors.

The Hoodlum in the Second open class ran the romance out of sight. So that she pulled out early in the game. The Hoodlum made the fastest time, both on actual and corrected, of any boat over the course which was the regular No. 1.

The knockabouts as usual went over the triangular course like a flock of birds, the Moongoose being a winner with but five seconds to spare over the Cockatoo.

LIVELY SCRUB RACE.

The Privateer Allowed the Nancy Hanks Five Minutes.

During the race in the morning the Privateer and Nancy Hanks came off to the judges' boat and asked to be started on a scrub race. "Ned" Bochus sailed the Prateer, and "Mel" Woods the Nancy. The Privateer jokingly gave the Nancy a handicap of five minutes, as she is 2 feet, 7 inches shorter than the Privateer. The course was up to the wreck buoy and back. The Privateer won in 3 minutes, 45 seconds, actual time, but the Nancy won on corrected time by 1 minute, 15 seconds.

LADIES AT HELM.

Squantum Yacht Club Entertains the Fair Ones.

The annual ladies day event of the Squantum Yacht club was held Saturday at the club house Norfolk Downs. During the afternoon the yachts in the fleet with their guests enjoyed a sail in the harbor, after passing in review of the Commodore's yacht. Returning from the sail refreshments were served in the club house and the festivities closed with a dance.

Gen. Bates Still a Winner.

When the Gen. Bates hand engine was located at East Weymouth she was the pride of the town, as she was a great prize winner at musters. Some years ago she was purchased by a Maine town, and little has been heard from her by her old admirers. She is located at Lisbon Falls and retains her old name, "Gen Bates No. 3." At the firemen's State convention in Portland last week the Gen. Bates was entered among the first-class engines. She was the first to play and set the record at 197 feet, and none of the others came dangerous near.

Mollie June Won.

The Weymouth Driving club held a series of trots at Weymouth park on Saturday, in half-mile heats. The gray mare "Molly June" owned by Charles Hall won the 2 35 class in three straight, time 1.11 1 4, 1.13 1-2 and 1.10. Her rivals were Eunice, David S and Lily R.

Velvet won the special class in three straight in 1.22 1-2, 1.21 and 1 23. The 2 35 class required seven heats and Lady Banker won.

TODAY'S COURT.

Mitchell Dasselle was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

John Brown and Michael Drohan were arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Both were continued until Sept. 20.

Thomas Thompson was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

John Gallagher was arrested Saturday night for drunkenness at Quincy. Sunday he was bailed. This morning when the case was called he did not answer and he was defaulted.

George W. Coffin was fined $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Dennis Mahoney was fined $5 for drunkenness at Braintree.

Mitchell Dasselle was arraigned for overdriving a horse at Quincy. He was fined $10.

Walter Chadwick was arraigned for cruelty to a horse at Quincy. Case continued until Tuesday.

The case of Ernest W. Phillips was called and again continued until Sept. 8.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

AFTERNOON RACE.

Forty-Four Yachts Started but Reefing Breeze Caused Withdrawals.

By the time the afternoon race was started the wind had piped up to a reefing breeze. Most of the skippers tucked in a single reef. Those who did not regretted it and in some instances had to withdraw.

The same courses were sailed as at the previous races.

The sight of the club house was an imposing one. About 125 yachts were around the club anchorage. Forty-four yachts started in the race.

When the First class started the Beatrice lead the boats across the line. The Little Peter soon forged ahead and gave the others a good dusting. She was an easy winner. The Ida J. was on hand but unfortunately her crew did not show up so she could not start.

In the Second class the Privateer made a clever start. But the long, lean Muriel gave her a good pull, and, when the Hull dolphin was reached and rounded, passed her and kept the lead to the finish.

The Hoodlum in the Second open class ran the rest of the class hull down.

The Knockabouts went off with a rush, the Fly leading. Out of five boats sailing over a seven-mile course there was but a difference of 1 minute. 24 seconds. That is wonderful work. The Fly, after losing her position as leader finally regained it after half of the course had been covered, and held it to the finish.

The Third class was the largest one of the whole race and was hotly contested from the start to the finish. The Cleopatra was compelled to withdraw early in the race, she having sprung her mast. When the starting gun was fired the boats bunched and crossed the line together with the exception of the Vimoose, which crossed a little ahead of the gun. The judges called her back and made her start over. The Rooster made a poor showing as she carried too much sail. Scott's new Arab soon took the lead and held it all around the course. The Wrinkle, Small's new creation, pushed her hard as did the Tacoma. The Tacoma protested the Wrinkle for fouling the stake boat.

In the Fourth class the Vitesse sailed another pretty race.

Keith's Theatre.

The almost ideal form of entertainment which is furnished nowadays at Keith's amusement palace in Boston is attracting the attention of managers all over the country, among whom it is generally admitted that the enterprising pioneer of continuous performance deserves all the success which has come to him. It has occasionally been predicted that the limit has been reached in the high tone of the performances, but each week's announcement usually has some name that surprises the public. Last week it was Guille, the noted French tenor who has made a phenominal hit, and will be continued the week of Aug. 23, when he will be succeeded by Mme. Marie Travary, America's greatest lyric artists, who is to make her debut in vaudeville. M. Guille will have a new repertoire this week, and his accompaniments will be played by the Symphony Orchestra, which organization will continue to give daily concerts until the middle of September. The Biograph will have the usual change of motion pictures.

Under Two Reefs.

The LEDGER was not one of the papers which placed the Tacoma ahead of the Wrinkle in the summary of Friday's race.

The Nettie, owned by Walter Burgess, won the Corinthian championship at Marblehead on Saturday.

The yachting fixtures of the week includes three open races: at Duxbury on Thurday; at Kingston on Friday, and at Plymouth on Saturday.

Butcher Boy Won.

The muster and parade which took place in Braintree Saturday afternoon called out crowds of people from all directions. The procession, composed of Company K, fire organizations, bicycle features and the various trades headed by the band made an interesting spectacle. The principal excitment was over the "play out" by the hand engines. The "Butcher Boy" was the first to play and made a record of 184 feet and 4 inches. The "Union" from East Braintree came next, throwing a handsome stream, but fell a little behind, with 182 feet and 6 inches. The "Ocean" was the last to play she was in the hands of the Randolph veterans She threw 153 feet 7 inches. The day was a perfect one and it was nearly six o'clock when the afternoon's sport ceased. In the evening the band gave one of its finest concerts in South Braintree square.

The Fire at Quincy Point.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

The fire in Winneberger's paint shop at Quincy Point Saturday evening again showed the inefficiency of the Hose 4 company. The apparatus at the Centre arrived before Hose 4 was taken from its house which is only about 1000 feet from the scene of the fire. The building would have been doomed had it not been for the heroic services of some of the Point residents who saved several wagons and drew the business carriage from the building and thereby saved the building from destruction. The fire was evidently of incendiary origin as fire was found in three different parts of the building.

This is the second time that Hose 4 and its "Dublin Company" have failed to respond to alarm in the immediate vicinity of its house, and it is about time that the Chief Engineer made a change.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

CITY —OF— QUINCY.

SEALED proposals for paving and curbing Copeland street in accordance with form of specifications to be furnished by the Commissioner of Public Works of the City of Quincy, will be received at the office of said Commissioner, City Hall, until 2 o'clock P. M., of the First day of September 1897, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read. Each proposal must be indorsed "Proposal for paving and curbing Copeland street," and be accompanied by a properly certified check for the sum of Five Hundred Dollars ($500,) payable to City of Quincy, which will be returned to the bidder unless forfeited as hereinafter provided.

A bond will be required for the faithful performance of the contract in such sum as the Commissioner of Public Works shall determine; such sum to be not more than one-third the amount of the contract; the sureties to be residents of Massachusetts and satisfactory to the Commissioner.

The contract must be signed and bond furnished within six days after the notification of acceptance of the proposal and in case of the failure of the bidder to sign contract and furnish bond within said time, the contract and the certified check accompanying the proposal shall be forfeited to the City of Quincy.

The proposals will be compared on the basis of the following quantities:

Furnishing and laying 7,200 square yards paving.

Furnishing and laying 110 linear feet crossing stones.

Furnishing and setting 3,600 linear feet straight edgestones.

Furnishing and setting 68 linear feet curved edgestones.

Furnishing and setting 7 driveway corners.

Resetting 1,170 linear feet straight edgestones.

Resetting 9 driveway corners.

These quantities are to be considered approximate only and the Commissioner of Public Works expressly reserves the right of increasing or diminishing the same, as he may deem necessary.

The right is reserved to reject any or all proposals or to accept the proposal deemed best for the city.

BEAUTIFUL CARPETINGS.

It's not within the power of mortals to command success, but the new '97 Fall Carpets will deserve it. The carpet man has fairly outdone himself,—the new effects are simply rich and beautiful. You never dreamed of having such a carpet store as ours in your midst, and it's only our equitable ideas of small margin profits for the most servicable goods, that has brought it all about. "The best goods on earth at rock bottom prices;" so say the "Powers-that-be," in this store of the people. An inspection of new stock will convince you that we have the right sort of goods.

FINE BALL GAME.

One of the Best of Season, but the Tubulars Lost.

The T. R. & S. Co. team was defeated for the second time this season by the crack Arlington A. A. team on Saturday in one of the best games played on the Park this season. The T. R. & S. Co. boys only found Quinn for five hits; Arlington getting 12 off Willmore. Score 9 to 5.

The umpiring was very poor on the part of the Arlington umpire, he being responsible for at least two runs for the visitors.

The features were the work of Corbett and Quinn for the visitors, Guston was the star of the Tubulars, he leading the batting and put up a fine game in the field. Dunn and Duffy also played a good game.

COUNTY AND VICINITY

—The water sports of the Hull yacht club on Saturday equalled in interest those of the gala day of July 21. The capsize of a dory with a man and woman was an incident of the day. It was not an accident however and the "woman" was a man, but women nearly fainted and men were deceived and rushed to the rescue. The duck and drake race and water base ball were leading features, but there was a great variety of aquatic sports.

—Mr. and Mrs. James I. Emery of North Abington celebrated their golden wedding last week.

—Mrs. Alfred Tucker of Randolph died Sunday from arsenical poisoning.

—Rev. Daniel Gleason of Lowell will be the new pastor of St. Mary's church at Randolph.

—Levi J. Bradley of Scituate a veteran of the war and respected citizen, died Saturday night, aged 76 years.

Street Was Too Narrow.

Mitchell Dasselle was arrested Saturday by Officer Ferguson for drunkenness and fast driving. Shortly after noon Dassell, seated in a buggy, came from Boston driving at a rapid gait and somewhat recklessly. He turned into Washington street and had several narrow escapes from smashups before he got past the Street Railway office. He then attempted to turn into Coddington street and in doing so brought up against the stone post with the result that he was thrown out. He escaped without injury. It was then that Officer Ferguson took care of him.

—Mrs. Stowe's daughters say they are not in need of pecuniary assistance, private or public. Only a short time ago, it was given out that Mark Twain was poor and needy, but later it was denied. Somebody seems quite ready to raise the poverty cry in the cases of people who are more or less in public view, and it must be a serious annoyance to the victims of these meddlesome people.

☞The Chief Executive of the nation appreciates the good things of life. Hence his selection of Plattsburg for a vacation resort. Plattsburg is a beautiful town and the Fitchburg R. R. is the best way to reach it.

—The first political convention of the fall campaign will be held by the prohibitionists in Boston, September 8. As represention in the convention will be unlimited and no credentials will be necessary, it is fair to suppose that no great effort is being made to secure nominations on the party ticket.

☞The Cambridge tax rates is $17.50, and Newton $16.20.

QUINCY'S SOLID MEN

And Some Women Too Who Pay a Big Tax This Year.

Quincy has many solid men and women and business firms as will be seen by a list of all who are this year called upon to pay into the city treasury $50 and upwards. The tax rate is $18.80 so that a tax of $50 represents a valuation of over $2500, and a tax of $100 a valuation of over $5000. The instalment today include those names having property in Ward Two; the cents in addition to the amonut given are omitted for convenience:

TALK OF THE CITY.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Labor day two weeks from today.

The sewer work has many visitors.

Schools open two weeks from tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Sheppard were at Maine resorts last week.

Illumination at Houghs Neck next week Tuesday.

Mr. Charles Carter and Mr. Walter Holmes are away for two weeks.

The Fifth regiment will have a drill at Waltham, Wednesday, Sept. 9.

The City Council will hold its next meeting on Wednesday, Sept. 1.

Mr. W. F. Sidelinger is spending his vacation at local points of interest.

Miss Casilda Gardiner of Atlantic street is spending her vacation in Maine.

J. W. Jones has sold his house on Bunker Hill avenue to A. Matteson.

The frequent heavy rains make it difficult to keep the streets in good order.

Rev. Walter Russell Breed of Christ church preached at Nahant on Sunday.

Master Robert Nelson of Atlantic street has returned from his extended visit in Maine.

Miss Amy Alden of Clive street has returned from her extended visit in New York.

Miss Elizabeth J. Shepherd, clerk to City Clerk Keith, is enjoying a vacation this week.

Clerk J. P. S. Churchill of the district court returned from his vacation this morning.

Coddington street was open for travel on Sunday, the sewer trench having been filled in.

Mr. John Robbie of the Glencoe Granite Company is taking a six weeks' trip through Europe.

Chief Engineers Williams was one of the judges at the hand engine playout at Braintree on Saturday.

Work was commenced this morning putting in the street railway turnout in ront of Music hall on Hancock street.

Miss Gertrude Davis of Billings street has returned from a two months' visit in New Bedford and Martha's Vineyard.

Rev. Mr. Bryant of Boston preached a very acceptable sermon at the Washington Street Congregational church Sunday morning.

The employes of the street department held their annual outing at Rock island Saturday and enjoyed one of Pawsey's celebrated clambakes.

The heavy rain Sunday afternoon caught many wheelmen away from home. After the shower the streets were very muddy and tumbles were numerous.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Hoyle of Rumford Falls, Me., and Miss Thurlow of Bath, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Brown of Wollaston.

There was a great flight of shore birds on Sunday. At Rose Cliff nine flocks of yellow legs, ring necks and peep were counted within the space of two hours.

The fleet of yachts which rendezvoused off the Quincy Yacht club house on Saturday afternoon was without doubt the largest fleet ever seen in these waters. It was a sight well worth seeing.

The concert entitled "The Wrecker's Daughter," which was held at Music Hall, Atlantic, a short time ago is to be repeated at the Town Hall Braintree, Wednesday evening. Dancing will follow the entertainment.

Good fares of mackerel are reported from all parts of the bay. One boat pulled in 50 Sunday and another one six dozen. Most of the fishing is done either off Sheep island or off the westerly end of Grape island. Smelt are being pulled in by the hundreds.

A bicycle rider was run into at the corner of Hancock and Walnut streets, Sunday afternoon, by a team driven by Mrs. J. Kerrigan. The rider was thrown off and quite severely injured. He was taken to the office of Dr. Bruce. His name could not be learned.

The funeral of Mr. Daniel Flowers was held Sunday from his late residence on Newcomb place and was very largely attended. Rev. Arthur Bumpus of Natick officiated. There was a profusion of beautiful flowers. After the services the body was placed in the receiving tomb to await the arrival of Mrs. Flowers.

Many of the worshippers at the Bethany Congregational church are away on their summer recreation, but there was a large congregation to welcome the pastor, Rev. E. N. Hardy, who has been abroad six weeks. His sermon was from Peter 4: 17. The decorations were beautiful, consisting largely of goldenrod and sweet peas, and a set piece with the word "Welcome."

There were band concerts for everybody Saturday night. The Weymouth band played in City Square, Brown's Brigade band at Houghs Neck, and the Braintree band at South Braintree. This served to divide the crowd somewhat, although there was a fairly good crowd at City Square. The concert by the Weymouth band was an excellent one and was greatly enjoyed. The fire alarm shortly after 9 o'clock scattered the crowd somewhat.

HOUGHS NECK.

Mr. J. M. Coverney of Hyde Park drove to Houghs Neck Sunday and left his team standing in the street a few minutes while he made a call. When he came out the team had disappeared. It seems that when left alone the horse walked off. He was later found by Officer Sandberg on Coddington street.

Very cloudy weather Sunday morning, but cleared up toward noon to allow the residents to hear the band concert. Bicycles arrived by the score.

Mr. Warren Gifford, aged 20 years and 9 months, late of Houghs Neck, died Saturday at his home in Brockton. A year ago he was stricken with consumption and was sent to the Cape for his health, and returned shortly. This is the second death inside of one year in the family.

A very noisy gang of yachting men were around the beach Friday evening disturbing the sleepers and tearing down signs, the crowd is known by two responsible parties. Their work was blamed onto the young boys of the Neck, by some one that knew too much.

Mr. J. N. Morse of Roxbury is a guest of Mrs. Morse on Manet avenue.

The Houghs Neck Intermediates will play the Quincy Riversides on Illumination day.

A concert and dance will be held soon in aid of St. Frances church in Cavanagh's opera house, on corner of Sea and Winthrop streets. Some very nice talent have volunteered their services.

Master Ross and Harry Bates of Hyde Park are expected at the Murray cottage as guests of Mrs. Bates for a few days.

The Klondyke gold craze has seized some people here. Mr. Richard Tibbett of the Loretto, a prominent traveller, is to start next April with an excursion.

The report of the concert at the chapel last week was first inserted in the PATRIOT and then overlooked for the LEDGER, which accounts for its appearance at this late date.

The concert at the chapel Thursday evening was a success. The talent was of the first class and every number was encored; but owing to the lateness of the hour the audience was obliged to be satisfied with the first selection.

Miss Olive Mead should have a special notice and her playing showed from her selections a taste and capability not often given to the public to enjoy.

Mr. and Mrs. Simmons should also be mentioned. Their voices were in good condition and their selections were of that class that never fail to stir up their listeners.

Miss Chapman's sparkling little pieces pleased the audience and they recalled her more than once before they were satisfied.

Messrs. Louis Griffith and Gordon Jones' selection was up to the mark as every one can testify. Particular mention ought to be made to the deep bass tones sung by Mr. Jones and the music found in the deepest of them. Mrs. Dr. Brown, Mrs. Ball and Miss Grace Isaac added greatly to the evening's enjoyment.

We must mention Mr. Walter Packard, and the audience will do the rest. His voice still retains its old musical strain, and well suited to the piece he selected. Last but not least must we mention Miss Maude Pierce. Her opening piece was performed in a very artistic manner and showed what training her fingers had attained. Her rendering of "Home, Sweet Home," by Thalberg, was, appreciated greatly by the musical part of the audience. The concert taken in all was one of the happy events of the summer.

Thanks should be given to the gentlemen that worked so hard towards success of the concert, namely: Messrs. Williams, Humphrey, Packard, Simmons and Horton. The ladies must have a special mention, Mrs. Ransom, Mrs. Simmons and Miss Johnson.

To these ladies a compliment should be paid for the decorations. The stage was one mass of flowers; the pretty parlor lamp, and handsome rubber plant made a veritable bower which enhanced the beauty of the scene and every one was of one opinion and all sought their pillows well satisfied with the way the evening was spent.

Lines Written In a Junkyard.

[With apologies to Rudyard Kipling.]

A fool there was, and he bought a wheel
(Even as you and I),
Some leather and rubber and a hunk of steel
(We knew how sore in a week he'd feel),
But the fool only thought of the miles he'd reel
(Even as you and I).

Oh, the trouble he spent, and how double he bent
(The fool with his lead pipe wheel!),
For the dealer had seemed of honest intent
And had told him 'twas cheaper to buy than rent,
But that wasn't at all what the dealer meant
(The dealer that sold the wheel).

For the wheels weren't round, and the tubes weren't sound
(The wheel lies there on the heap),
And the tires were made of paper, he found,
While the bearings were cast iron balls—unground,
And he'd sell the whole thing for a cent a pound
(The wheel that he got so cheap).

—New York Sunday Journal.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

—The boy preacher in Texas, who was dragged from the depths of iniquity at the age of 18, holds his audience spell-bound as he tells of the wicked things he has done. Preaching, like other things in Texas, has to be well spiced to be acceptable.—Lewiston Journal.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

Admits Killing Captain and Mate Sanders.

Murderer Then Took Charge of Ship and Ordered Her Fired.

Boston, Aug. 23.—The latest account reaching the United States from Bahia, Brazil, says that United States Consul McDaniel of that place, by a preliminary examination, has obtained the following facts in relation to the tragedy on board the American schooner Olive Pecker:

The ringleader of the mutiny was John Andersen, a Swede, but a naturalized American citizen, the steward of the Olive Pecker.

Andersen claims that he killed Captain Whitman justifiably, the harsh and overbearing conduct of his superior officer provoking him to commit the deed.

Sanders, the mate, attempted to save the life of the captain, and Andersen, to save his own life, was also forced to kill the mate.

The remainder of the crew do not appear to have made any attempt, or at best only a feeble one, to protect the lives of their officers.

Andersen is very reticent, and has declined to give the particulars of the captain's harsh treatment, or the particular acts which led up to the killing.

After Captain Whitman and Mate Sanders had been killed Andersen appears to have taken complete control of the vessel and to have intimidated the five other members of the crew.

According to their stories Andersen suggested the firing of the vessel, evidently with the hope that the fire would conceal all traces of the crime, and that it would be believed the vessel had foundered and the captain and mate had been washed overboard.

The crew were to represent themselves as survivors, and to pretend they had escaped in the small boats.

The vessel was accordingly fired and the crew took to the boats about 120 miles from the Brazilian coast.

They drew lots as to the way they were to divide themselves up in the two boats, the five members of the crew being anxious to have the authorities here believe that none of them was desirous to be Andersen's shipmate.

The lot fell to John Lind, seaman, a Swede, the four others, William Hosburgh, engineer, Juan Dios Barriel Gumierrez, Andrew March and Martin Barstad, sailors, going in the other boat.

When these four men reached the Brazilian coast they immediately went before the authorities and united in a statement regarding the crime, placing all the blame on Andersen and representing that they had no complicity in the affair, but it is not quite clear why they were unable to protect the lives of their captain and mate.

Andersen and Lind attempted to ship on two Norwegian vessels in Port Bahia, but a description of the men and been given to the Brazilian authorities and they were promptly arrested.

When visited by the American consul Andersen freely admitted having killed the captain and mate, but claimed that he was justified, but it is believed Lind was his accomplice.

The entire crew are now prisoners in the house of correction, and are being held there until the arrival of an American war vessel to convey them to the United States. No merchant steamer is willing to take the prisoners, who will be held in confinement until the government sends after them.

Consul McDaniel expresses great satisfaction at the co-operation given him by the Brazilian authorities and the promptness with which they arrested the alleged murderers.

Hosburgh, the engineer, is an Englishman, Gumierrez is a Spaniard, March is an Englishman and Barstad is a Norwegian. Andersen is believed to be the only naturalized American.

Consul McDaniel has received no instructions from the state department regarding the disposition of the prisoners and does not know when a naval vessel will be sent to take them to the United States.

Duchess of York a Favorite.

Dublin, Aug. 23.—The Duke and Duchess of York passed yesterday quietly with visits to Howth castle, where they were the guests of Lord Ashbourne, lord chancellor of Ireland, and to St. Ann's clentarf, the seat of Baron Ardilaun. Everywhere they go the reception tendered them by the people is most cordial. The Duchess of York is fast becoming a great favorite.

Threatening Indians.

Chelsea, I. T., Aug. 23.—A report has reached here that the Keetoowa society, an organization among the Cherokee full blood Indians, had threatened personal violence to the members of the Cherokee commission should they enter an agreement with the Dawes' commission looking to the destruction of the tribunal government. As a result there is much stir in full blood circles of this district.

Famine Evidences Disappear.

London, Aug. 23.—The Times' correspondent at Simla says that good rains have fallen everywhere throughout India, except in the districts of Bombay and Deccan, and the crops promise to be exceptionally large. The numbers on the relief list are steadily diminishing and evidences of famine are rapidly disappearing.

Remarkable Shooting.

Houston, Aug. 23.—Adolph Toepperwein of San Antonio made a remarkable performance yesterday, breaking 975 clay pigeons out of 1000, using a 22-calibre repeating rifle. This breaks his own record of 955 out of 1000, which was the world's record.

The Refractometer

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent occulists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.
I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.
F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.
I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.
JACOB GOLDBERG, M. D.

This is a very expensive instrument, but we consider nothing too good for our patrons, and have placed one in our optical room.

STRIKE SITUATION.

Week's Developments Awaited With Interest. Today's Conference.

Pittsburg, Aug. 23.—Developments in the coal miners' strike situation in the Pittsburg district will be watched with unusual interest this week. Both sides were apparently at rest, but it has developed that at the conference today there will probably be a disruption. By many it is believed that M. D. Ratchford, the national president of the miners' organization, will not be present. It is claimed that he will stick to his original assertion that he will not agree to arbitrate unless al the states involved are represented. It is a well known fact that the operators of other states will not join the local operators in the local movement for arbitration. If Ratchford is obdurate the conference will be useless. From a reliable source it was learned that if the operators start any mines on the lines laid down, other mines will also be started by the miners.

It is proposed to select operators who are not represented at the conference and who are friendly to the miners. They will be given permission to mine coal at the rate demanded, and the coal stored. By this means it is expected to get a fund from the union miners that happen to be working, and with this fund pay the expenses of a fight against imported labor. The miners' officials are making arrangements to have a fund on hand to send foreign labor home just as fast as it arrives. With mines operated under the jurisdiction of the labor leaders, and with operators who are friendly and reap a profit, they hope to have available large fund. This plan has been outlined and will be submitted to the national officers if the conference proves a failure.

Religious services were held in several of the miners' camps yesterday, and all were largely attended, but not withstanding the religious spirit pervading the camps, a conflict between workers and strikers took place in the afternoon, during which three strikers were badly hurt, but none are in a serious condition. Five of the men who are working for the New York and Cleveland Gac Coal company went to William Seamon's boarding house, about 1 1-2 miles from Oak Hill tipple where a number of strikers are quartered, for the purpose of persuading the strikers to go to work. The meeting was a stormy one and resulted in Antonio Podasky being shot near the heart the bullet going almost through his body. Grongron Pimond was shot in the eye and Botisto Dalmeso was cut with a razor. The injured men are all strikers. This was the only disturbance recorded at the camps yesterday. The aggressive workmen escaped before the men on Oak Hill were aware of the fight. The report that Sandy Creek comp will be abandoned is denied by the strikers and they say that the men will be sent there from Plum and Turtle Creek.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Frank Quinn, aged 32, a well-known young man at Portsmouth, N. H., committed suicide by hanging. He had been in poor health for some time and became despondent.

A barn belonging to Brown Stevens at Atkinson, N. H., burned, together with 40 tons of hay, five horses and other live stock. Loss, $3000; no insurance; cause of fire unknown.

During a heavy thunder storm yesterday afternoon a barn occupied by G. V. Bowen at Acton, Mass., was struck by lightning and burned. Loss, $2500; insured.

The Russian government is meditating the promulgation of a decree prohibiting the export of wheat, owing to the small crops in Southern Russia. The report is causing some uneasiness to those interested.

A North Adams (Mass.) dispatch says the dead body of a man was found in the woods in Bear swamp. The body was that of a man about 40 years of age, and was badly decomposed.

Emma Brown, aged 19, and Gertie Regan, 18, were arrested at Worcester, Mass., about midnight on a charge of forgery. They are wanted by the Springfield police for raising a check paid one of the girls by a farmer.

A tally-ho coach with a number of the members of the John Palmer association of Brooklyn and their friends was run into at Coney Island last night by a trolley car and wrecked. Fifteen of the occupants of the coach were injured.

Lightning struck the barn of E. E. Warran in South Chelmsford, Mass., yesterday and all buildings were burned. Loss, $5000. Lightning also struck the house of Michael Harrington in North Chelmsford, which was also burned. Loss, $3000.

Miss Mary Kelleher, a domestic in the employ of B. F. Jones of Brockton, Mass., a summer resident at Monument, while getting into a small rowboat from a yacht was thrown into the water by boat capsizing and drowned. Another lady of the party was also thrown into the water, but was rescued.

SABBATH AT CHAMPLAIN.

President Attends Service and Is Then Buttonholed by Politicians.

Hotel Champlain, Bluff Point, N. Y., Aug. 23.—The last Sunday for rest for President McKinley prior to his departure from this summer resort was rather rudely shattered by the removal to this scene of the Worth-Platt Brooklyn controversy. The president started the day well by attending religious services in the drawing room of the hotel and listening to a sermon by Rev. J. A. Gamble of Plattsburg. "Exhalt not yourselves too highly," preached the pastor, and the president listened with grave attention. Ex-Senator Lispenard Stewart, Abner McKinley and the ladies of the presidential party were present, but L. E. Quigg, chairman of the New York city Republican committee, found no comfort in it, and while the familiar strains of "Old Hundred" floated out of the windows across the balcony sat and talked politics with Congressman Francis J. Wilson of Brooklyn. When service was over Mr. Quigg intercepted the president in the corridor leading from the drawing room to his private apartments and asked for a conference. Mr. Quigg's conference did not last more than 10 minutes, finishing in the president's room. Later Mr. Quigg thought that he might stay over until today and have a further talk with the executive. Congressman Wilson, who is an active candidate for postmaster of Brooklyn, and favored by Mr. Willis, who is against Worth, saw the president, but only for a few minutes.

Mr. Quigg was in close conference with Congressman Wilson, and still later talked with Secretary of War Alger. He declined to talk much about the matter, saying that he had come up to see the president about a purely personal matter. He was asked if it was not designed to use Mr. Wilson as an addition to the Willis, Sharkey, Atterbury combination in Brooklyn against the Worth-Low forces, and answered: "Mr. Platt, as United States senator, is entitled to name the postmaster of Brooklyn."

The arrangements for the departure of the presidential party from here tonight are all completed. The last entertainment is to be a minstrel performance by the waiters. The party will leave on a special train composed of President Depew's private car and two Wagner cars. They will arrive in Buffalo at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon. Abner McKinley and family will probably go to New York city, and J. W. Burdick, who has been with the party during their stay here, will leave them at Albany.

TO USE PETROLEUM.

Torpedo Boat Now Being Built Is to Be Fitted With New Engine.

Washington, Aug. 23.—The secretary of the navy has ordered Lieutenant Nathan Sargent to proceed at once to the oil fields of Pennsylvania, where he will make a careful investigation of the various grades of petroleum produced in that region, with a view to its use as fuel for marine engines. Upon the conclusion of this work he will report to the authorities in charge of the Newport torpedo station, and plans will be drawn for an oil engine which will be placed in one of the new torpedo boats now being built by the Hereshoffs.

This will be the first attempt to use petroleum as fuel for the torpedo fleet, but from the success that has been attained with this motive force in swift steam launches owned by private parties, both here and abroad, the navy department looks very favorably on the experiment. Some of the advantages expected from the new fuel are economy of machine space and consequently greater fuel carrying capacity, economy in the cost of fuel and the ability to develop extremely high steam pressure under forced draught.

The plans for the new engine are not yet laid, and will depend largely on the report on the various grades of petroleum at command. It is possible that with this innovation in fuel will be combined the use of the steam turbine engine, whose success in the English torpedo boat Turbina has marked a decided epoch in the development of these fleet-footed destroyers abroad.

Passing on to Lafayette park, in the centre of which stands the soldiers' monument, the veterans, who fought at any corner of the great struggle, will be able to pick from the 22 corps badge designs displayed the one under which he did battle. The designs are unique and handsome. These corps badges, like the welcome arch, will be illuminated and will do service night and day.

Man Banished From Skaguay.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 23.—The steamer Coquitlan has returned from Dyea and Skaguay. She brings word that a man has been banished from Skaguay by prospectors for attempting to collect a toll of 50 cents from each person crossing a tree which he had felled across a creek on the trail. He was given 12 hours to get out. The day the steamer left five men arrived with $40,000 in gold dust. The steamer Danube has started on her voyage to Skaguay bay with another crowd of miners for the Klondyke and a full cargo of freight. The Danube, on her return, will make a trip to St. Michaels with materials and men for the construction of the Canadian Pacific Navigation company's Yukon steamers. Sergeant Paven of the Northwest mounted police took up with him a quantity of provisions. Sergeant Paven also took up the necessary equipment for a post-office at Tagish lake.

Exports of Lumber.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—The Timberman gives the following summary of the year's lumber exports from all United States ports: The quantity of our exports of forest products for the year ending June 30, 1897, as compared with those for the year ending June 30, 1896, shows an increase of slightly over 100 per cent, and as compared with the average for the five years beginning June 30, 1886, an increase of a fraction less than 60 per cent. The total value of our exports of domestic forest and lumber products for the year ending June 30, 1897, as compared with the previous 12 months, was $39,624,800, against $31,947,108, or an increase of over 24 per cent.

Latest Balloon Story.

Christiania, Aug. 23.—A dispatch to The Fremskeidt from Sando says that a balloon was seen on Aug. 18 moving at a great height and in a northwesterly direction. From the balloon depended a tackle, which appeared to be luminous.

QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

VOL. 9. NO. 197. QUINCY, MASS., TUESDAY, AUGUST 24, 1897. PRICE 2 CENTS.

THE OPENING OF CAMP JEWETT.

Crowds at G. A. R. Convention Make Buffalo Streets Impassable.

Buffalo, Aug. 24.—The city is now in full possession of the Grand Army veterans. It is impossible to ascertain how many thousand strangers are in the city. All the principal streets are so crowded that they are almost impassible. Yesterday afternoon, Camp Jewett was officially opened by Commander-in-Chief Clarkson, Mayor Jewett and other G. A. R. and city officials.

The veterans are to be well cared for in camp. Everything that could possibly give comfort has been provided by the thoughtful committee.

In accepting the camp on behalf of the veterans, Commander Clarkson said: "Mr. Mayor and gentlemen of the camp committee and citizens of Buffalo: "I accept on behalf of the Grand Army of the Republic this magnificent camp. It represents great care on behalf of your committee. It represents great expense and it represents experience.

"It is evident to me that this camp has been laid out and planned by men who understood a soldier's life. It is evident that no 'greenhorn's' hand accomplished this work. I wish we could have enjoyed such camps during our soldier days, but we are older now and old enough, perhaps, to enjoy the good things of life.

"We thank you for the portion of your hospitality which this beautiful camp represents. If we can judge from what we have seen thus far we shall all go away impressed with the bounty of your hospitality.

"On behalf of my comrades I thank you."

General Clarkson entered the pavilion when his remarks were concluded and was given an impromptu reception by officers from Fort Porter and officers of the National Guard. Later he made an inspection of the camp in company with the officers of his staff, after which he returned to his headquarters at the Iroquois.

COLONEL JOHN C. LINEHAN.

General J. P. S. Gobin of Lebanon, Pa. a candidate for the office of commander in-chief to succeed General Clarkson, arrived here yesterday afternoon and opened headquarters at the Iroquois.

General John C. Linehan of New Hampshire, also a candidate, opened headquarters at the same hotel.

Editor Sunary of the Richmond (Va.) State said last evening that his committee were doing good missionary work, and had every reason to believe they would get the encampment in 1899.

A delegation of prominent Cincinnati business men have arrived to press Cincinnati's claims for the national encampment in 1898. Headquarters have been opened at the Iroquois hotel.

Colonel John C. Linehan of Concord, N. H., now commissioner of insurance for that state and former junior vice commander of the Grand Army, is the most formidable of the new candidates for commander-in-chief.

Pennsylvania veterans are booming Colonel Gobin of that state for commander-in-chief. Already over 500 Pennsylvania men are here, and they are all working hard for Colonel Gobin's success.

The Richmond "boomers" arrived in town and immediately proceeded to take possession of the encampment for '99. There are 18 of Richmond's leading men in the party, and the Richmond headquarters is in the Ellicott square building.

A noble enterprise which is likely to enlist the attention of the Grand Army delegates during their session here is the establishment of a sanitarium for the benefit of veteran soldiers and sailors of the war for the Union. It is proposed to locate on the island with Castle Pinckney, in the harbor of Charleston, S. C., a refuge for old soldiers who are sick, and congress is asked to take advantage of an offer of the very favorable location for the purpose.

The scheme has the endorsement of Commander-in-Chief Clarkson. There now appears to be no doubt that Cincinnati will have the honor of entertaining the Grand Army of the Republic next year. In fact, there appears to be no opposition.

The display of electricity made by the city authorities and private citizens last night was dazzling. Main street for miles was one blaze of light, and the tens of thousands of visiting veterans cannot find words to express their pleasure at the marvelous sight.

The illuminated arch at Main and Niagara streets and the display or army corps badges outlined in colored incandescent lights in Lafayette square are the centers of the greatest gatherings of people. Here they are packed in a solid mass for squares.

Big Evening Parade.

The special feature last night was the parade of the fraternal societies in honor of the visiting veterans in which upward of 15,000 people participated.

The exempt firemen, Veteran Firemen's association, four lodges and 32 subordinate lodges of Odd Fellows, the Buffalo Turnvein, Catholic Uniformed Knights, the Central Council and 24 local branches of the Catholic Mutual Benefit association, companiec A and B of the Hibernian rifles, 12 divisions of the local Ancient Order of Hibernians, Polish societies, Italian societies, Knights of Pythias, 24 tribes of the Order of Red Men, the local council of the Royal Arcanum, Knights of the Maccabe, Select Knights, Uncle Sam's, Order of the Foresters of America, Independent Order of Foresters of America, Army and Navy union, German Knights, the Gun squad and the German Dragoons were in line. E. C. Shafer was grand marshal. The streets through which the parade moved were so crowded that progress was painfully slow, and at intervals impossible.

A reception was tendered to Commander Clarkson last evening at the Music hall, and he greeted and shook hands with several thousand people. The hall was profusely decorated with flags, bunting and portraits of famous generals.

In receiving the guests, the commander was assisted by Miss Clara Clarkson and Miss Mabel Burmeister, daughter of the adjutant general of Commander Clarkson's staff.

A beautiful jeweled badge is to be presented to Thaddeus S. Clarkson, the retiring commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., during the encampment this week. It is the gift of the 600 members of the commander's staff. President Mc-Kinley will make the presentation address. The badge is a dazzling combination of gold and diamonds and combines three emblems. It is the handsomest and most costly tribute ever made for a retiring commander of the G. A. R.

The Ladies' auxiliary of the National Association of the Naval Veterans held the first session of its annual convention yesterday. Delegates were present from the four posts of the union—Salem and New Bedford, Mass., Providence and Baltimore.. Routine business alone was considered.

During the parade last night, Miss Libbie Murphy was crowded off her bicycle and thrown under the wheels of a trolley car. She was instantly killed.

Comrade McKinley En Route.

Hotel Champlain, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Mrs. McKinley was presented yesterday with an oil painting, a floral piece painted by C. W. Seavey, of Boston. The giver did not wish his name mentioned. The closing entertainment at the hotel took place in the dining room at 9:30 last night, and was extremely ludicrous, the colored waiters forming the talent.

The president was amused at the pretentious titles given by the performers.

The presidential party left last night on a special train of three cars. The party consisted of President McKinley, Mrs. McKinley and servants, Secretary of War Alger and Mrs. Alger, Major Pruden of the White House, and Assistant Secretary Cortelyou. Secretary Porter did not go with the president. Secretary of War Alger said last night: "You may quote me as saying that the presidential party will return here next year."

SENATOR GALLINGER

Enthusiastic on Business Prosperity in the West---New Hampshire Patronage.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 24.—Senator Gallinger has reached this city after a tour of the far West, concerning whose business prospects he is enthusiastic. In an interview he said that New Hampshire would lose none of the federal patronage which usage has given her. The senator said there was no rupture in the New Hampshire congressional delegation over distribution of offices in this state. The delegation has not united in recommendation of any candidate for local offices, he said, "because one member of the delegation has refused to be bound by any majority action of the delegation by ballot. I am not the dissenting member of the delegation. Further than this, I do not care to specify, except to say that the ostensible cause of our failure to unite in recommending appointments is based upon new and novel geographical basis which I fail to comprehend."

After spending a few weeks at home Senator Gallinger will go to the Mississippi valley with the sub-committee of the senate committee on commerce to investigate the subject of levees, jetties and reservoirs in the Mississippi basin. The committee will begin work at St. Paul about the middle of September, and from there will go to Montana to the headwaters of some of the Mississippi tributaries. The committee will then make a tour of the entire Mississippi river by steamboat.

Maniac With Razor.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 24.—A special to The Republican from Hardwick says: Last evening a sensational cutting affair on the highway in this place, in which Arthur W. Farrington, keeper of the Hardwick town poor farm, narrowly escaped death at the hands of an infuriated man whom he was taking to the farm. The man, after an unsuccessful attempt to kill Mrs. Farrington, who was riding in the wagon, slashed his own throat three times with the same razor and died a half hour later. He was probably insane. The assailant was Joseph G. Lareau, a Frenchman.

Would Not Pay Fine.

Boston, Aug. 24.—The captain of the steamer Brookline, from Port Antonio, Jam., reports that Captain Murphy of the steamer Bermuda is serving a sentence of 30 days in jail, in preference to paying a fine of £100 sterling, on the accusation of violating one of the international laws while in command of the steamer Laurada. It is charged that the Laurada took out clearance papers from an American port for Jamaica and then conveyed a filibustering expedition to Cuba.

New Shoe Company at Holbrook.

Holbrook, Mass., Aug. 24.—A new company have been formed to succeed to the business of the Paine Shoe company. It will be incorporated under Massachusetts laws under the name of the Howard Platts & Paine company, and will commence the manufacture of medium and high grade shoes at once in the factory formerly occupied by the Paine Shoe company, which has been closed for some weeks. The new company has already booked a good number of orders.

Price of Bread Going Up.

Boston, Aug. 24.—Many of the large flour dealers and wholesale bakers in the city express opinions that the price of bread will go up. A prominent Chamber of Commerce member said on this point: "The price of flour from the mill yesterday was $6.25 for the best flours, and this was a very unusual market. The advance is based really on the shortage in the foreign market, France and England both being short on wheat."

Judge Seaver Will Recover.

White River Junction, Vt., Aug. 24.—Hon. Thomas O. Seaver, victim of the shooting by William W. Lawrence of Woodstock yesterday, isshrdluemfwpp Woodstock Sunday, is resting comfortably. The indications are that he will recover. The hearing to be given Lawrence will be deferred until Mr. Seaver's condition is determined.

Centennial President.

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 24.—At a meeting of the semi-centennial committee last night, the position of president of the day for the first day of the celebration, Oct. 11, when the literary exercises will be held, was tendered to Hon. William W. Crapo.

Globe Trotter's Relatives Anxious.

Attleboro, Mass., Aug. 24.—Relatives of Captain Slocum, who left Boston in the small sloop Spray in 1895 to circumnavigate the globe, have heard nothing from him since last October. At that time he was in Australia.

Want Patrician's Wealth.

Rome, Aug. 24.—There is considerable agitation among the peasants in the Lazir district in favor of a redistribution of the vast uncultivated estates of the patrician families. Seven hundred villagers with their wives and children, carrying the national flag and headed by a band playing the royal march, started from Marino, a few miles southeast of Rome, intending to seize and divide the estate of Prince Colonna at Lefratocchie. The authorities intervened and persuaded them to disperse. Troops have been dispatched to prevent further disturbance.

AT THE READVILLE CIRCUIT.

Four to Five Thousand People Saw Great Racing on Heavy Track.

Readville, Mass., Aug. 24.—The camp of the grand circuit followers was alive with interest at the Readville track, where the first day of their meeting in the New England states commenced. Early in the morning a rainstorm dampened the ardor of the followers of the great light harness horses, and for the afternoon sport the track was heavy and cuppy with a late start.

It was counted that the 2:08 pace was to be the greatest race of the season, and so it looked on paper. Guinette, on the strength of the Murphy money from Chicago, was a strong favorite. The day was cold and cheerless, and that, with a cuppy track, retarded the horses at least three seconds and helped to anchor the favorites after a brilliant dash.

Bumps got the pole on the first turn, and while he and Guinette raced off in the lead together the latter could not lead the son of Baron Wilkes. At the distance flag Guinette made a terrific spurt, and was nearly on even terms with Bumps when he went to a break and Bumps won. The same two horses raced off the second heat, but turning into the stretch both were beaten by Planet, who came up from the rear and outstepped them. Planet did the same thing in the third heat, but the judges and none others saw the finish with Heir-at-Law in the lead. It was quite dark when the fourth heat was won. McCleary shot past the bunch and won by a neck. Darkness then compelled a postponement. Had the day and track been good the time would have shown more creditably.

Four or five thousand people interested themselves with the colt and slow trotting race, and as a preliminary to the pacing race. Lady Geraldine went down in the colt race, while theHamlin stable captured the slow trot with the Abbott.

Miners' Conference.

Pittsburg, Aug. 24.—The conference operators and miners adjourned shortly before 11 o'clock without reaching an agreement. Another conference will be held today, when both sides hope to effect a settlement. G. W. Schlenberg a member of the operators' committee stated that the question of settlement in other states had been eliminated and that the conference was dealing entirely with the rate in the Pittsburg district. National President Ratchford of the miners said that the men are still firm for the 69-cent rate, and District President Dolan said that a settlement in 10 mines, after the opening of the conference, was not impossible.

The Refractometer

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent occulists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.

I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.

F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.

I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.

JACOB GOLDBERG, M. D.

This is a very expensive instrument, but we consider nothing too good for our patrons, and have placed one in our optical room.

THE ESTABLISHMENT of a yacht yard in this city by Hanley will be a big card for Quincy and her famous yachtsmen. It will not be more than a couple of years at the outside before Quincy becomes the centre of the yacht building industry in New England, the building of the Strandway at City Point having suddenly brought about this addition to our industries.

The Brockton Fence.

At Brockton there is a fence between the tracks at the depot. After all of the warning that has been given there is not a day, says the Enterprise, that several patrons of the railroad do not ascend the platform on the wrong side. They have to go down and around. Just remember that if you want to go south you take the train on the west track, and if north on the east track.

Bicycle Railway Soon.

The Post reports that a secret conference of the promoters of the recently chartered Boston, Quincy & Fall River railroad was held Monday evening at the Revere House. While no details were given out for publication, it was learned that measures were taken for immediate location and construction of the line. It is probable that work will be started on the section between Boston and Brockton early in the fall.

A Bad Corner.

West Quincy citizens are complaining of the crowd of young hoodlums that make the corner of Copeland and Cross streets their stamping ground. These young fellows insult people who are passing and make a general nuisance of themselves. Sunday when respectable people like to have things quiet they were on Copeland street playing ball and were for some reason unmolested by the officers on duty. Monday noon an inoffensive peddler came along and not being satisfied with calling him names they began to stone him. Many of the stones thrown found their mark and to save himself he was obliged to take shelter in a neighboring house. Attention has been called to this gang of hoodlums frequently by the LEDGER, and it should be stopped. When an officer is about they are quiet enough, but as soon as his back is turned they are at it again. The only effective way to check this nuisance is to send one or two of them to jail for a few months.

☞ The subscriptions to be added to Boston's appropriation for the Gen. Joseph Warren monument now amount to $5,223.10.

PLURALITY VOTE.

A Section of Election Laws Which May Overrule the Majority.

Section twenty-five of the Massachusetts election laws has obtained prominence within the past few days, because of the fact that it revolutionizes nominating conventions of the past and may give the nominations to the party who receives the highest number of votes which may not necessarily be a majority.

Section 25, Chap. 530, Acts of '97 reads as follows:

"At any political convention except a convention for the nomination of State officers on motion of any delegate which receives the support of one-fourth of the delegates present, the nomination of any candidate shall be made by roll call in the following manner. The clerk or secretary of the convention shall call the roll of the towns and cities in an alphabetical order, or of wards in a city in numerical order, and each delegate shall as his name is called state in the hearing of the convention the name of the candidate for whom he desires to vote, and the person receiving the largest number of votes on such roll call shall be the candidate of the convention."

One contention is that the term "state officer" applies to councillor, senator and representative, as well as to governor and the rest who are nominated at the state convention.

If this is so, the old majority rule still holds except in county or congressional nominating conventions. If not, when Quincy meets to nominate her representative candidates the two who receive the largest poll may be the nominees. No "necessary for a choice" this year; no long drawn out contest for a majority, with one or two votes lacking until finally some one changes allegiance and gives some leading candidate the nomination; one ballot and all is settled, if only a quarter of the voters present demand a nomination by roll call.

But it is not at our Representative convention that the delegates have the greatest contests. The greatest fight in this vicinity was at the senatorial convention which nominated Hon. John F. Merrill for his first term, when over 100 ballots were taken. Had a plurality vote been sufficient the nomination would have gone elsewhere, as Mr. Merrill was not a leading candidate at the start.

This new law may play an important part in some of Quincy's municipal conventions when there are three or more candidates in the field. Any two wards of the city will be strong enough at the Republican convention to ask a roll call. In a convention of 74 delegates, as last year, it is possible that 20 delegates may make the nomination if the others are scattered. For instance with five candidates in the field one might receive 20, another 19, a third 15, a fourth 11, and the last 9. The one receiving the 20 votes would be nominated.

Ladies' Day Guests.

Among the guests of the Squantum Yacht club on the Ladies' day sail were:

Yacht "Arcturus"—Captain C. E. Seaman, Mr. Y. Johnson, Miss Gussie Jones, Miss Sands, Miss Croswell, Miss Black, Mrs. S. E. Fitzgibbons, Mrs. Lewis, and the Misses Lewis and Walsh.

Yacht "Quisette," — Captain Archer Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, Miss Edith Crane, Mr. and Mrs. W. Percy Edgar and Miss Louise Hilliard of "The Walking Delegate," Mr. Howard Gannett, Jr., Miss Edith Jennings, Misses E. A. Wheeler and Caroline Holmes, and Messrs. Benjamin Sargent, Fred S. Holmes, E. H. Gallup, Ed. E. Piper, and Fred S. Howard.

Yacht "Wild Duck,"—Commodore Flood, Misses Lena Flood, Jessie Smith, Maud Fletcher, Bennett, Butter, Dickenson, Fountain, Chamberlain, West, and Messrs. Walter Dunham, Frank Freeman, William Dickenson, and Fred West.

The sloop yacht "Naiad Queen," Captain Herbert Smith, also entertained a jolly party.

The Magazines.

The September number of The Delineator is called the Autumn Announcement Number. Its forecast of Autumn fashions, with color-plate illustrations, being authoritative. With this number of the magazine is begun a department of exceptional interest and value—a page devoted to Social Observances, in which Mrs. Mary Cadwalader Jones brings the weight of unquestioned authority to the discussion of good form. Other serial features begun in this issue are Home Taxidermy for Women, by W. S. Edwards, and "Japanese Women," by Frances Stevenson. There are two capital short stories. The Butterick Publishing Co. limited, 7 West 13 street, New York.

The September number of "What to Eat" is a gem. We are reminded that we are in the midst of the watermelon season by the cover, which has a big slice of that fruit suspended in the heavens in place of a moon, while two awe-struck little darkies contemplate the wonder with amazement. Inside appears a story by Miss Harris entitled, "The Cook at Kennedy's Camp," A Vegetarian Luncheon, by Miss Anna B. Weeks, Stories for the Table, by Mrs. Leo, of New York, and menus, jokes, etc., etc.

—Cats, large and small, make the most careful toilet of any class of animals, excepting some of the oppossums. Lions and tigers wash themselves in exactly the same manner as the cat, wetting the dark, india rubber-like ball of the forefoot and the inner toe, and passing it over the face and behind the ears. The foot is thus at the same time a face sponge and brush, and the rough tongue combs the rest of the body.

COUNTY AND VICINITY

—Mrs. Daniel F. Wood of Hyde Park died Monday in her 75th year.

—Rev. Daniel J. Gleason, the new pastor of St. Mary's church at Randolph is 46 years of age, and was born in Tipperary, Ire. He has been stationed at Cambridge and Lowell.

—Canton is moving for an electric street railway to Norwood.

—Pickpockets now operate on the electric cars. At Neponset Sunday a woman discovered that a man seated beside her had his hand in her pocket and immediately began to beat him. He jumped off the car but an officer arrested him.

—Monday, the 30th, will be the last day for marking cases for trial for the September session of the Norfolk superior court (jury waived) and also for libels for divorce. Under a recent order of the court a separate and additional session for court work will be held each grand jury week, while an extra session will be held on the first Monday of February.

—The reception given by Mr. R. R. Loud of Weymouth Saturday evening was a society event largely attended.

—Stoughton officers raided the Avon House at Avon on Sunday and found whiskey and wine in a trap under the floor.

—An infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Jordan of Randolph drank water from a saucer containing fly paper on Sunday, and nearly lost her life.

Yacht Percentages.

The list of percentages of the yachts belonging to the Yacht Racing Association of Massachusetts, as compiled by Secretary Bliss, up to Aug. 21, shows but a small difference from the former ratings of boats. New leaders are announced for the first open, second cabin and the knockabout classes.

Renyard heads Little Peter in the first class, having won the only race in which she has been started. Ida J. is but a fraction over one point behind Little Peter.

Hoodlum still holds first position in the second open class. Twelve firsts stand to her credit.

Muriel jumps to the top in the second cabin class, replacing Privateer.

The Rooster, owned by the Adams boys, and the Vitesse have retained their respective places at the top of the third and fourth classes.

Cock Robin has a safe lead of over ten points in the knockabout class. Gosling holds second place and Cockatoo third.

Wollaston Post Office.

Advertised letters for week ending Aug. 21: Mr. F. E. Rumney, Mr. Ferdinant Ronnewin, Mr. W. P. Kingman, Miss Annie McDonald, (2), Miss Nellie Newell.

—A Maine paper tells of a farmer in that state who hired two boys to help him cut his hay, and when the work was finished gave each of them a cent for the work they had performed, and then offered to harness his team and haul the boys home for a cent apiece.

—The DAILY LEDGER sent to any vacation address. Call at or send postal to the office. Sent for the week or month. It will brighten your vacation with all the important news of home.

TALK OF THE CITY.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

A stormy day!

Yes, more rain.

Lookout for washouts in the streets.

How it did pour through the noon hour.

Mrs. Black has returned from a visit at Barre.

Tomorrow will be the last Wednesday of August.

Miss Grace Doble goes to Bethlehem, N. H., today.

Letter Carrier John Farrell has returned from his vacation.

The electric cars to Squantum carried about 450 Sunday.

Misses Lottie and Jennie Crowell are at Hampden Corner, Me.

A daily installment of heavy taxpayers appears in the LEDGER.

W. F. Bassett has returned from a three weeks' visit at Plymouth.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Cherrington have returned from their vacation.

Frank Leslie, clerk at Timberlake & Small's, is on his vacation.

Regular meeting of the School Committee next Tuesday evening.

Miss Isabella Moir of Rogers street has returned from a visit at the Cape.

Cephas Drew and wife of Walker street have gone to Brant Rock for a week.

The grand circuit at Readville is not having Brockton luck as to weather.

Miss Nellie Kennedy is the guest of Miss Lizzie Curley of Hancock street.

The weather today is not of the kind that will please the horse men at Readville.

Miss Harris of New London, Conn., is the guest of Mrs. L. A. Pratt of Squantum.

Everett Pollard, clerk at E. H. Doble & Co.'s, has gone to Maine on his vacation trip.

Two of the employes of the Q. & B. St. Ry. are spending their vacation at Squantum.

Frank Baker and family of West Quincy have removed to their former home in Ohio.

Miss Birdie Sweeney of Lowell is the guest of Miss Alice Newcomb of Clive street.

John Flynn has established a cleansing and dyeing establishment on Copeland street.

Miss Katie Sullivan of Sagamore street has been spending the week at South Boston.

Mr. Harry H. Whitcomb of Atlanta, Ga., is the guest of Mr. Herbert W. Lawton.

Mrs. William Henley of Somerville is visiting her sister, Mrs. M. C. King, for a few days.

Miss Susie L. Gragg and Mrs. Charles A. Gragg have returned from a month's visit to Maine.

Miss Delia R. Lyons of Jamaica Plain is the guest of Miss Myra Shea of Water street Atlantic.

It would be rather interesting to know what proportion of Quincy's population are bicycle riders.

Mr. George and Miss Lillie Brown of Everett were the guests of Miss Annie Leary on Sunday.

The Quincy & Boston base ball nine are talking of going to Cottage city to play the street railway nine at that place.

Rev. W. W. Dornan of this city officiated Sunday at the funeral services of Mrs. Lucy M. Wilbur at Randolph.

Misses Cassie and Georgie Thayer of Crescent street have gone to Centre Harbor, N. H., for a two weeks' trip.

Nearly all of the young lady clerks at City Hall are away this week on their vacations, and it seems a little lonesome.

James Panton has been spending a few days in town. He reports his father's family to be in good health at Newark, N. J.

Miss Gladys Dickey and Master Harry C. Dickey of the Hawthorne House, Winthrop, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Page of Beach street.

Word has been received that Mrs. Eliakim Byard, formerly of West Quincy, was severely injured at Brewer, Me., recently, by being thrown from an electric car.

Auctioneer Crane will sell the estate of the late Patrick Garrity at West Quincy at executor's sale on Monday next. There is a dwelling house, stable and large lot of land.

If the weather of Monday and today continues the proprietors of beach houses might as well put up their shutters, but it is probable that September may be the best month of the year.

Mr. "Al." Shay of Hamilton street, Wollaston Park, who fell from his wheel Saturday night is fast losing that battered look he wore Sunday. Mr. Shay has changed his gear, for when seen today he was trimming his lawn.

Among the many wheelmen who were caught in the shower Sunday were Mr. C. J. MacDonald, Mr. "Len" Addison and Mr. Frank Finnigan of Wollaston Park. They were at the Salem Willows and paid the regular rate to get home by the aid of steam and the invisible power.

Mr. George H. Garvin of Wollaston Park is just $3 richer today by having made his usual good shot at the object in sight. This time it was a six foot seal sporting in the water between Moon head and the Squantum ledges. Mr. Garvin also showed a good bag of peeps to his friends as a result of his outing.

Capt. A. C. Gardner of the Wollaston Yacht club, who was out Sunday on his steam yacht Winona, aided in the rescue of five men off Stony beach, whose yacht had suddenly capsized by a squall. But for his timely assistance the number of deaths by drowning this summer would probably be greater.

The Big Brockton Fair.

The management of the Brockton fair always liberal, is more so than ever this year, and the announcement is made that $8,700 will be offered for the track events. This is $1,100 more than even the liberal purses of last year.

Following is the list of the four-days' track events, together with the purses offered.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 6.

2-year-old, trotting (closed)	Stake, $400
2:50 class, trotting	Purse, $300
2:35 class, pacing	Purse, $300

THURSDAY, OCT. 7.

4-year-old (closed)	Stake, $600
2:30 class, trotting	Purse, $300
Free-for-all class, pacing	Purse, $800
2:18 class, trotting	Purse, $500
Double team, trot or pace	Purse, $1,000

FRIDAY, OCT. 8.

3-year-old, trotting (closed)	Stake, $500
2:26 class, trotting	Purse, $500
Free-for-all, trotting	Purse, $800
2:16 class, pacing	Purse, $500

SATURDAY, OCT 9.

3-year-old, pacing (closed)	Stake, $500
2:35 class, trotting	Purse, $300
2:21 class, trotting	Purse, $500
2:20 class, pacing	Purse, $500

Then there will be thousands of dollars given in premiums for horses, cattle, swine, poultry, pets, beside the great amount always distributed in premiums for fancy work of all kinds in the exhibition hall. The Brockton Fair is the success that it is, simply because it is liberal in its treatment of both exhibitors and patrons and in return the public is liberal in its patronage. No other fair in the country is run on just the same line as the Brockton Fair.

TODAY'S COURT.

Edward Sullivan was arraigned for drunkenness at Braintree. Case continued one week.

The continued case of Walter Chadwick for cruelty to animals at Quincy was called. There was evidence offered that the horse had been abused but there was no evidence to show that Chadwick had beat and bruised the horse.

Thomas Kenney was arraigned for defacing a dwelling house of Daniel S. Baxter at Weymouth, by keeping twenty hens in it. He was fined $10.

Joseph La Breck was arraigned for mutilating a horse at Quincy owned by Walter Chadwick. He was fined $10.

Copeland Street Sewer.

Work on the Copeland street sewer is progressing favorably except on rainy days, although the contractors have not as many men at work as they have been having. There is but one gang. With the exception of foremen these are citizens of Quincy. The Commissioners have given Messrs. Brine an extension of time and it is thought that if they have any kind of weather that about three weeks will complete this section.

—A woman has recently applied for a patent for putting glass in the oven doors of kitcheners and bakers' furnaces to allow the process of baking in ovens to be watched without opening the doors. By this "windowed oven" it is also claimed that fuel will be saved, for the continual opening and shutting of an oven door is always sure to necessitate the piling on of more coal.

Against Centralizing Trade.

The Boston papers are howling with rage because the Consolidated road will not grant reductions of fares so that people will flock to Boston and purchase goods. They intimate that the Boston merchants transact much business over the Consolidated road and ought to have recognition. We believe that that way of doing business was abolished years ago. It is no longer necessary to make a man a present to secure his business, for trade is gradually being put on a business basis, to the betterment of all concerned. The Boston papers apparently forget that there are other merchants along the line of the Consolidated who have rights that the road is equally bound to respect. They pay more money to the road than the Boston people do, and why should the Consolidated seek to injure these customers. The Consolidated is all right, and the merchants along its lines deeply appreciate its stand.—Taunton News.

Sir Walter Raleigh had a court suit of armor of solid gold inlaid with jewels.

A GREAT SURPRISE IS IN STORE

for those who will go today and get a package of GRAIN-O. It takes the place of coffee at about ¼ the cost. It is a food drink, full of health, and can be given to the children as well as the adult with a great benefit. It is made of pure grains and looks and tastes like the finest grades of Mocha or Java coffee. It satisfies everyone. A cup of Grain-O is better for the system than a tonic, because its benefit is permanent. What coffee breaks down Grain-O builds up. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 15c. and 25c.

HIS SOLEMN INITIATION.

It Had a Value and the Candidate Was Alive to the Fact.

"My friend," said the grand high punk-a-punk with sepulchral solemnity, "you now approach that portion of the ordeal of initiation into our noble order in which you will be required to take upon yourself a binding obligation. While this obligation will not conflict with any duty you owe to society, your family, your religion or your country, it is my duty to warn you that it commits you to the performance of what we regard as important and necessary works and to the forsaking of certain things we regard as evils. Bearing this in mind, are you ready to proceed further in this solemn ceremony?"

"I am ready to take the obligation," replied the candidate in a clear, firm voice, "provided it does not deprive me of the privilege of manufacturing and selling the 'housekeeper's friend,' a little device of my own for seeding raisins, grating horseradish, putting scallops around the edge of a pie, opening a tin can, lifting a pan of hot biscuits from the oven without burning yourself and cleaning lamp chimneys. The usual price of this unique article, gentlemen, is 25 cents, but in order to introduce it I will sell it to members of this noble order at the ridiculously low figure of 15 cents, with a further discount to purchasers of six or more. Upon the removal of this hoodwink from my eyes, gentlemen, it will afford me pleasure to read to you a lot of unsolicited testimonials to the merits of the 'housekeeper's friend' from parties who have used it and are thoroughly acquainted with its merits. Go ahead, mister, with the obligation."

He was subsequently tossed in a blanket and treated with great personal disrespect in other ways, but he had no regrets. He had got his work in.—Chicago Tribune.

His Real Worth.

The spirit of thrift which pervades or used to pervade New England is amusingly illustrated in a remark made once by a Vermont farmer.

He had been seriously ill in midsummer, but his strong constitution stood him in good stead and he quickly rallied. On being asked in the autumn how he was feeling, he said cheerfully: "Oh, I'm fair to middling now, thank ye, but anyway it don't make so much difference, seeing the farm's pretty well slicked up. If I'd a died in haying or harvesting time, it would have been full $50 damage to me." Then, after a thoughtful interval, he added, "Come to think of it, that's too low a figger—$60 would be nearer."—Youth's Companion.

Perhaps.

"I cannot—I cannot!"

She held it in her hand and gazed at it with all her soul in her eyes.

"I can't part with it. I never could look the world in the face."

She wept, covering her face with her hands.

To be sure, the comb was only an ornamental bauble, but still she ought to have been able to part with it. Perhaps, however, she had been washing her hair with ammonia water.—New York Press.

Equality Impossible.

"Woman," shrieked the oratress, "demands only equality before the law."

"It can never be," said the wise one. "She who can weep effectively will always have the best of it with the jury."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"I guess you don't know Pilcher."

"Why not?"

"He'd have 'em in his wife's name."—Detroit News.

"Bigamy seems to be a summer disease."

"Yes, men get out of their heads in hot weather and think they can manage two women at once."—Chicago Record.

Too Much of One Thing.

"Our party, my friend, is the salt of the earth."

"Yes, suh," replied the old colored voter, "but we's powerful short on flour."—Atlanta Constitution.

Richer at Home.

"What is the use of going to Klondike?" asked the magnate. "There is enough money in ice right here at home."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Will Follow Canovas' Policy.

London, Aug. 24.—A dispatch to The Standard from San Sebastian says: "General De Azcarraga, the new premier, desires to continue the policy of his predecessor, Senor Canovas Del Castillo, as far as possible, and does not apprehend any complications. He is confident that the United States will preserve its present attitude of cordial friendship and will not insist upon mediation. Spain would not refuse to submit the settlement of claims of American citizens in Cuba if on the understanding that only the damage suffered at the hands of her forces and authorities were to be the subject of examination, and reserving all her own counter claims arising from filibustering

Wheat Set Back.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—The upward rush of the wheat market was stopped yesterday. The September option was sold as high as 1.02½ per bushel on the curb, but broke badly on 'Change under a perfect flood of realizing sales, declining to 95 cents in the first five minutes of trading and closing at 96, a decline of 4½ since Saturday. December also suffered the closing price, 95¾, being 3 3-8 under Saturday's closing figures.

The Age of Reason.

If you want to get rich in a brief day or two,
Devise a bo. swindling scheme.
The public will straightway contribute to you,
No matter how foolish your plan may seem.
If you only explain
That each victim shall gain
Through the losses the other investors sustain,
The wildest and craziest swindle will "go."
Folks like to get something for nothing, you know.

If you have a good thing that is perfectly fair,
With a sensible profit in view,
Nobody will care to invest in a share
For the purpose of helping you through.
We'll not cheat or steal,
But most of us feel
Suspicious of any legitimate deal
Where the gains are for all and in consequence slow,
Where a few do not take from the many, you know.

We laugh at the man who will buy a gold brick
Or foolishly sign a blank check.
"Such Reubens," we're wont to declare,
"make us sick,
For they'll get it, of course, in the neck!"
What we want is some plan
Where each of us can,
In a businesslike way, be the brick selling man,
Some plan that gives only the "favored" a show
To get something for little or nothing, you know.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all uffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

GUEST AT PETERHOFF.

President Faure of France Warmly Received In Russia.

Czar and Grand Duke Met Him at Cronstadt.

Enthusiastically Greeted on All Sides by Military and Civilians.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 24.—President Felix Faure of France is now an honored guest at Peterhoff castle, Emperor Nicholas' city residence. The president and suite arrived yesterday and the reception given him was most enthusiastic. All classes, nobles, peasants, soldiers, sailors and civilians joined in giving a hearty welcome to the visitor. The czar first greeted President Faure on the royal yacht Alexandria. Their meeting was most cordial, warm embraces being indulged in as soon as Mr. Faure stepped on the Alexandria's deck.

Contrary to Russia's custom the people were allowed to enter the park and to line the route followed by President Faure and the other high personages.

The czar emerged from the palace, entered a carriage drawn by two gray horses and drove to the landing stage. His majesty wore the uniform of a captain in the Russian navy, with the ribbon of the Legion of Honor on his breast.

Grouped at the landing stage were the high court dignitaries and the Russian minister for foreign affairs, Count Muravieff; the French ambassador to Russia, Count Lannen de Montebello; General Boisdoffro, chief of the French general staff, who is to replace the Count de Montebello at St. Petersburg, and Baron von Moronheim, the Russian ambassador to France.

CZAR NICHOLAS II.

The Grand Duke Alexis went alongside the Pothuau, on board of which was the French president, and welcomed the latter to Russia in the name of the czar.

A large fleet of pleasure steamers had by that time assembled in the roads, and the most intense enthusiasm was manifested when Grand Duke Alexis and President Faure left the Pothuau and proceeded to the Alexandria. The czar awaited the president at the top of the Alexandria's gangway, and the moment M. Faure set foot on the deck of the imperial yacht warm embraces were exchanged between the czar and president, which were the signal for a storm of cheering, the waving of handkerchiefs and other marks of popular and enthusiastic delight. The sailors manned ship at the same time and gave the regulation cheers for the czar and his guest.

The Czar's Compliment.

When the Alexandria arrived at the landing stage the high court dignitaries were again grouped to receive the czar and his guest. President Faure was dressed in a frock coat and wore the insignia of the Grand Collar of the Order of St. Andrew, which decoration was presented to him by the czar in June, 1895. Out of compliment to his guest, the czar also wore the same order. When the imperial yacht was safely moored alongside the jetty the French president was the first to land, and the band of the imperial guard struck up the "Marseillaise." The czar followed M. Faure ashore and immediately presented his guest to the Grand Dukes Vladimir Cyril, Beris, Andrew, Paul, Constantine, Nicholas, Peter, Michael, George and Serglus.

A procession of 12 victorias and four landaus was then formed. The czar and President Faure were seated in the first carriage and the four carriages following were occupied by the grand dukes. M. Hanotaux and Count Muravieff were seated in the sixth carriage and the remaining vehicles were occupied by high court personages, the ambassadors present and others.

The guard of honor, which was furnished by the Red Cossacks, saluted, and the procession then slowly drove to the Peterhoff palace, situated about 800 yards distant.

The route to the palace was lined with troops and behind the soldiers were massed enthusiastic crowds of people, who were frantic in their acclamations, which were re-doubled when the procession having passed, the hedges of soldiers no longer separated the people. Several bouquets of flowers were thrown into the imperial carriage while the latter was on its way from the landing stage to the palace.

Upon arriving at the Peterhoff palace the czar presented President Faure to the various court officials and then reentering the victoria, his majesty drove alone to the Alexandria palace, the residence of the czarina. A few minutes later President Faure emerged from the Peterhoff palace, accompanied by General Bilderling, and drove to the Alexandria palace in order to offer his homage to the czarina.

A private luncheon followed in the white hall of the Peterhoff palace, which was beautifully decorated. M. Faure sat on the right of Emperor Nicholas. There were 34 guests, including M. Hanotaux, the French foreign minister. During the afternoon the French president visited the Russian grand dukes.

In the evening a state banquet was given President Faure by the czar.

WEEKLY CROP REPORT.

Weather Still Wet and Cold and Harvest Retarded.

Potatoes and Fruit Will Be Light Yield.

Oats Rusting--Haying About Over--Excellent Pasturage.

Boston, Aug. 24.—The weather of the week past was a mixture of sunshine and showers, with cool nights. On several mornings in the interior the mercury fell dangerously near the frost point. Severe electrical disturbances were numerous. Generally speaking, crops continue in poor condition.

Maine.

Nearly all correspondents are unanimous in the opinion that the potato crop will be a partial failure at least. The tops have made a heavy and thrifty growth, but the tubers are small, and rust is quite generally affecting the crop. The general condition of all crops is at a low average. The prevailing cool weather makes it certain that little corn can mature and much will be used for feed and ensilage. A few pieces of grain have been cut in fairly good condition, and in extreme southern sections oats are all in. Grain is ripening very slowly. Enormous quantities of blackberries are being picked; garden vegetables looking at their very best; apples scarce.

New Hampshire.

Frequent rains have kept low meadows flooded; feed in pastures continues good. The weather is too cool, especially nights, for corn to ripen, although a light frost on the 21st in the Connecticut valley will check growth and help to mature the crop in that section. Potatoes indicate not more than half a crop; the rust known as macrosporium has blasted many fields and the tubers are small and unripe. There is a good second crop of hay, yet it is hard to dry it; much will be cut this week if the weather is favorable. Blackberries are abundant, and it is said to be a good celery year. Peaches and plums decay on the trees; grapes cannot ripen without more hot weather. Oats show rust and are light in weight.

Vermont.

Corn is still two or three weeks late, and with the cool nights, very near the frost point on the 19th, 20th and 21st, the outlook for this crop is dubious. The condition of the potato crop is also bad; the season has been too wet, and in this state the general yield will probably average as low as elsewhere. Oat, wheat and barley harvest is in progress, and practically completed in some of the western sections; rowen is an extra fine crop. Oats are rusting to some extent, but appear to be well filled and will harvest in good shape. There is a large second crop of grass which is difficult to secure by reason of numerous showers; pastures seldom hold out in such fine shape as at present.

Massachusetts.

Potatoes are badly affected by blight, except in scattered localities, and the crop is said to be the lightest for years. Corn will be very late, even if it ripens, and much fear is expressed that a great deal will not reach a stage of maturity. A heavy crop of rowen is in prospect, but injury will result unless more settled weather comes. Vegetables, such as beans, squash, pumpkins, tomatoes, etc., are reported to be poor and light. Fruit is dropping before ripening, or rotting on the trees. The cranberry crop promises to be considerably smaller than last year. In many places weeds do more than hold their own and crops have a poor time of it. The tobacco harvest is well advanced.

Rhode Island.

There were several heavy showers during the week, nearly all accompanied by thunder and lightning; many haystacks were struck and destroyed, but growing crops did not suffer much damage, although the ground is well waterlogged. In this state the crop conditions are not materially different from the other states of the district. Pastures are in excellent condition. Onions have blighted and will probably be less than half a crop; muskmelons also blighting; turnip seed a fair crop. Potatoes rotting seriously.

Connecticut.

The week shows a slight improvement. Potatoes have about reached growth; the tops are generally dead from effects of blight and wet weather, but the rot is not increasing. The yield will be light. The outlook is poor for sweet corn, and while field corn will ripen, it will be in limited quantities. A heavy crop of rowen is being cut. Peaches begin to ripen, but complaint is made of rot and lack of flavor; early grapes also suffer from black rot. Outlook for apples is good for a medium yield. Tobacco is in better shape than last week, but growing slowly.

ALFRIDI'S ADVANCE.

Report That Two British Forts in India Have Fallen.

Simla, Aug. 24.—There are persistent rumors here that Fort Ali-Musjid and Fort Maude, which were attacked yesterday morning by the Afridis, have fallen into the hands of the enemy, but there is no official confirmation of these reports.

The Afridis attacked Ali-Musjed and Fort Maude. The enemy's line is a mile and a half long. Another body of Afridis is working towards Kadam. All the Afridis are said to have joined in the uprising.

The news contained in this official dispatch is most important, probably meaning a protracted campaign and desperate fighting. A general revolt of the Afridis was what the Indian government feared the most, and it now seems to have taken place.

At Boston—

The Bostons climbed two more rounds of the pennant ladder yesterday by winning both games from the Louisville, the first of their series here. It was what might be called good baseball weather, but the attendance was small. The first game was a slow, sleepy and listless one. Strafford and Dolan played wretched ball, and their errors gave the Bostons all the runs they made. Louisville made two hits off Nichols in the first inning and only one more in the ninth. A fine running catch by Clarke, a line catch by Allen and a foul catch by Bergen were the only features.

In the second game the Bostons opened on Clark and pounded him unmercifully throughout the game. They began the first inning with two singles, a triple and a home run, and this was a sample of what happened all through the game. Clarke's magnificent fielding in left field was especially noticable. He made a fine catch close to the fence and another hot liner. Duffy was in his old time form and put two balls over the fence in left field. Tenney and Collins helped along the score by heavy hitting.

Death grimly bars the passage-way through the door of happiness for thousands upon thousands of wistful women. The woman whose nerves are racked by pain, and whose strength is sapped by debilitating drains, due to weakness and disease of the organs peculiar to women, cannot be happy. She is not only shut out from happiness, but death daily confronts her. Maternity, to a woman thus afflicted, is fraught with great danger. Even if she escapes with her life, it is only to live a martyr to untold agony. This is needless. Thousands of women have found a sure, and certain remedy and have spoken in no uncertain words of its almost miraculous action.

This remedy is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly upon the organs that make wifehood and motherhood possible. It gives them health and vigor. It stops weakening drains, allays inflammation and soothes pain. The nerves, no longer tortured, resume their natural function of directing the healthy action of all the organs of the body. Under its benign influence the weak, sickly, nervous, fretful invalid, becomes a robust, capable, helpful, amiable wife, fitted for the duties of motherhood. All good druggists sell it.

"Three years ago," writes Mrs. J. N. Messler, of 1794 Vanderbilt Avenue, New York, N. Y., "I was given up by some of the best physicians in this city. They said there was no cure for me unless I would go to a hospital and have an operation performed. I could not walk across the room for the pain in my side. I thought I would die. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and after I had taken three bottles I could work, walk, and ride. I could write a year and not praise your medicine enough."

Dr. Pierce's book, "The Common Sense Medical Adviser" is a treasure in any family. It contains 1008 pages and 300 illustrations. A copy FREE to every person who will send to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of mailing only. For cloth binding, send 31 stamps.

QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

VOL. 9. NO. 198. QUINCY, MASS., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 25, 1897. PRICE 2 CENTS.

CHARTER OF THE BROCKTON POST.

Council of Administration to Meet in Boston and Act on Annulling.

Brockton, Mass., Aug. 25.—Department Commander John M. Deane took action in the controversy with Fletcher Webster post 13, G. A. R., of this city before leaving for Buffalo by issuing an order, which has been received by Commander Brown of the local post, giving notice that the council of administration will meet in Boston Sept. 13 to consider the recommendation that the post's charter be annulled. The order is presumably based on section 4 of article 1 of chapter 5 of the rules and regulations of the G. A. R., which provide that a department commander may suspend or annul the charter of a post with the advice and consent of the council of administration, provided that such post shall have been notified in writing of said proposed action and given an opportunity to appear before the council of administration and be heard in defense and purge itself of offense, if any has been committed, and provided, further, that in case of such suspension or annulment of the charter upon such hearing all the papers in the case, with the order of suspension or annulment of a charter, shall be sent to the national headquarters for the approval or disapproval of the commander-in-chief.

The order from Commander Deane alleges several reasons why he will ask for the annulment of the charter of post 13, among which are the refusal to elect delegates to the department encampment in 1897, the language used in a letter to Department Commander Derby in reply to an inquiry why the post did not elect delegates in December, '96; its disobedience of the order sent out in June to fill the vacancies in the delegation, and alleged refusal to discuss the pending differences with Department Commander Deane and a refusal to obey an order to send certified copies of its record of certain meetings of post 13, held in June, to department headquarters. Commander Brown will present the order to the post this evening, when the post will take such action on it as they deem expedient. It is predicted, however, that the post will meet the issue with Department Commander Deane without relinquishing the position it has taken, now interpreted as antagonistic to the state body. It is also believed that the bitterest contest is ahead over what is termed a matter of principle.

Coastwise Rates Going Up.

Boston, July 25.—There has been some improvement in the rates for coasting sailing vessels and the outlook is extremely favorable for a strong advance before winter. Freights from Philadelphia and Baltimore jumped suddenly last week, although there was a slight reaction within a day or two. The scarcity of tonnage has caused Southern rates to increase, and even at the advance offered there are very few vessels available. This is in a great measure due to the reluctance of owners and captains to engage in the Southern trade during the next month, which is known among the shipping fraternity as the hurricane month. Vessels are receiving from 60 to 65 cents per ton for coal from Philadelphia to this port, and 70 cents per ton from Baltimore. An additional 5 cents per ton is allowed for vessels bound through five bridges and 15 cents a ton additional for those bound through seven bridges.

Boys Piled Bricks on Track.

Providence, Aug. 25.—John O'Rourke and William Brand, each about 9 years old, were arraigned before Judge Sweetland in the Sixth district court yesterday on the charge of placing obstructions on the track of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. They pleaded guilty and were held for the action of the grand jury in the sum of $500 each. The lads placed a number of bricks on the tracks and then went to a secluded spot to see the engine hit the missiles and knock them into the air. The obstruction was discovered by an officer and removed before and harm was done.

STRIKE TO CONTINUE.

Arbitration Conference at Pittsburg Proved a Failure.

Operators Firmly Refuse to Pay 69 Cents.

Cleveland Plan to Open Mines Will Now Be Given a Trial.

Pittsburg, Aug. 25.—The great coal strike is to continue indefinitely. The conference of operators and miners' officials failed to agree on a settlement and adjourned. So far there has been very little trouble, the men behaving themselves with remarkable fortitude, but the importation of non-union diggers will undoubtedly cause outbreaks of a serious nature.

The operators were firm, but every argument of the mine owners was met by the miners' leaders, and it was decided to end the conference.

President Ratchford gave out the following statement:

"We have disagreed. Our proposition remanied unchanged. Besides our proposition to arbitrate we made them a second one along the lines of bringing about a general conference of miners and operators of all the mining states. They refused to lend their efforts in that direction, and the strike will be continued.

"We have no other plans for the future."

Immediately after the close of the conference, J. B. Zerbe called a meeting of operators to discuss the situation and outline a plan for future action.

At this meeting the miners' ultimatum to return to work at the 69-cent rate, pending arbitration, was rejected. The operators will now carry out the plan adopted at the Cleveland conference and will open their mines at once. If the old men will not accept their terms new ones will be imported.

The press committee began the preparation of a statement for the public, giving the operators' side and placing the responsibility upon the miners' officials.

PICKING UP PEARLS.

New and Profitable "Pastime" Indulged In by Arkansas People.

Little Rock, Aug. 25.—New discoveries of valuable deposits of pearls in lakes and rivers in Arkansas have added greatly to the excitement already existing over similar discoveries, and thousands of persons are wading through the water in different parts of the state searching for precious gems. The latest and most sensational discoveries were made in the Arkansas river and the creeks, lakes and bayous near Little Rock, where pearls have been picked up ranging in value from $1000 to $800 each. Hundreds of people are working the Saline, White and other rivers, and many valuable finds have been reported. Additional discoveries were made on the Fourchere river, and hundreds of people are swarming to that stream.

It is claimed there are 57 streams in the state that are rich in pearls of large size. It has now developed that in the course of a survey made in White river in 1895 $5000 worth of pearls were collected by members of the survey. Recent discoveries lead to the assertion that never in history were so many and such large pearls discovered. Pearls of from 30 to 50 grains in weight are no uncommon thing to find in the possession of country lads, who fish for pearls for pastime. The color of the pearls found is that of a saline rose, and the texture is first-class.

Inspection of Rockport Breakwater.

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 25.—The annual inspection of the Rockport breakwater, a government work upon which nearly $5,000,000 is to be expended, took place yesterday. Captain Charles M. Candage, chairman of the commission on the breakwater, issued about 50 invitations to prominent gentlemen, and nearly all were accepted. The most noted among the visitors were Senators Lodge and Hoar, Congressmen Moody and Sprague, ex-Mayor Stoddard of Worcester, Mayor Sortwell of Cambridge, C. W. Siemens of New York and Colonel Mansfield of the United States Engineer corps who has charge of the government work in this district. The party arrived on the noon train and critically inspected the work from tug H. S. Nichols, returning to Turk's Head inn, where a banquet was served and speeches made by the two senators, warmly indorsing the project.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

McKINLEY AT G. A. R. CONVENTION.

President Arrived Yesterday and Made a Speech—Banquet and Campfire.

Buffalo, Aug. 25.—Yesterday was a great day for the veterans and this city. With the exception of the retail trade all business is suspended.

The city is jammed with people, who are still coming in by the thousands. Railroad officials estimate that at least 300,000 people have been brought to the city. What will become of them tonight is a problem. All the hotels and public buildings have their full quota, and train after train is arriving from all points. More than 50 special trains from eastern New York came in this morning.

There is much activity at the various headquarters preparing for the parade, each department commander making out his roster and receiving reports from the adjutants of posts.

The New England states will make a good showing. Massachusetts alone will have 3000 men in line and, thanks to the indefatigable efforts of Comrade William L. Ross, Department Commander John M. Deane and staff will be mounted, he having secured horses.

This 31st encampment is the largest in the history of the Grand Army and probably will never be equalled. As years go by the veterans' ranks are thinned more rapidly by death, and old age creeps upon them, rendering them too feeble to travel and undergo the excitement of the encampment.

Colonel Sexton of Chicago has withdrawn as a candidate for national commander of the G. A. R. There are now three eastern and one western candidates for commander-in-chief. Of Cincinnati's success in her race for the next encampment there appears to be little doubt, although Denver has loomed up as an aspirant for the honor. A close friend of General Linehan of New Hampshire claims that George E. Innes, the Massachusetts candidate, will withdraw sooner than see a Western man elected. At General Goben's headquarters Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware are claimed for the Pennsylvania man, and his friends say he will be in the fight to the end.

The features of yesterday were the arrival of President McKinley, accompanied by Secretary Alger and Governor Black of New York; the banquet to the president last evening and the parade of the naval veterans and ex-prisoners of war. During the day there were upwards of 30 corps, brigade, regimental and company reunions. The naval veterans, ex-prisoners of war, ladies of the G. A. R. and the Association of Nurses held their conventions, and there were many receptions given by and to the ladies of the auxiliary associations. A trip on the lake, participated in by about 2000 ladies, was one of the pleasantest of the many entertainments. Last evening there were a number of campfires for the men and receptions and musicales for the ladies. An illuminated bicycle race last evening closed the day's events.

Comrade McKinley Arrives.

Yesterday was the day for the Grand Army of the Republic to pay tribute to the President of the United States, one of their comrades, and with such fervor did they perform that duty that the afternoon will go down in the memory of those who witnessed it as the banner day of the encampment. From the moment that the special train that bore the president to the city arrived until he retired it was one glorious and spontaneous glorification, and President McKinley said that he had never before half appreciated the warmth of sentiment amongst the veterans. From the depot to the Niagara hotel, a distance of two miles, the streets were lined with people, and at the hotel, where is a great square in front, the police and soldiers from the near-by barracks, even with the re-enforcement of extras, had difficult work to keep the multitude in position. Even when, with Mrs. McKinley and Governor Black, the president had entered the hotel and vanished from sight there followed after him the cheers of the people until he had to come to the balcony, where, after some sort of order had been restored, he said:

I come to greet you and to thank you at the same time for your generous welcome. The Grand Army of the Republic seems to be on foot today, but not carrying arms. Those were long since laid aside, and the Grand Army of the Republic is today dedicated to peace (applause) and to a Union forever. I am glad to be in the city of Buffalo with my comrades of '61 and '65 and my comrades now. I thank you all and bid you good afternoon.

The Banquet.

Shortly after 5 o'clock Columbia post, dressed in handsome fatigue coats and white duck trousers, arrived at the hotel and acted as escort to the president to the Elliott building, where the post entertained the president at a banquet.

As the president passed from the hotel to the banquet hall the police had to literally drive a way through for the carriages, and at the Elliott club the corridors were so densely packed that the president had to be lifted through by stalwart policemen. In the reception room of the club he met the prominent citizens of Buffalo, and then a little later he entered the great banquet hall as the guest of honor of Columbia post of Chicago, with 500 other distinguished guests and soldiers. At the guest table sat Commander C. H. McConnell of Columbia post, toastmaster of the occasion; President McKinley, T. S. Clarkson, Archbishop Ireland, Mayor Jewett, General Russell A. Alger, Governor Frank S. Black, General James E. Curtiss, Chaplain in Chief Mark B. Taylor of Brooklyn, Charles W. Anderson, the negro orator; Wilson S. Bissell, William J. Connors, Colonel Swift, Governor Pingree of Michigan, Past Commander-in-Chief T. W. Lawler, Representative Mahany, Representative Alexander, C. P. Porter Johnson of Chicago, Colonel Blackburn of Chicago, Colonel Gage, General Walker, General Romits, Colonel John D. Weber, Colonel J. H. Horton, Colonel Atkinson, Alderman Fitch of Chicago, Henry D. Estabrook of Chicago, Fred W. Peck of the Chicago Auditorium, General John S. Wise and Augustus F. Scheu.

When an elaborate menu had been discussed the toastmaster called for Governor Frank S. Black, and he responded as follows:

The Columbia post of Chicago has permitted me to extend to its guests a welcome to the state of New York. In discharging this agreeable task I wish first to extend to the post my own acknowledgment of its favors and to make at least some imperfect expression of my pleasure at meeting its members within this state. To all its distinguished guests I am glad to offer the assurance that their presence here will be among the gratefully remembered events in the history of the city and the state.

Senator Hanna, who had just arrived, came into the banquet hall. His entry was noted by applause at the further end of the hall, and as the proceedings paused, the president rose from his seat and moved along the hall to meet him. There was a shout of applause as the two men clasped hands, and the president's left hand went upon Mr. Hanna's shoulder. Both took their seats amid applause.

The toastmaster then announced the toast "The City of Buffalo Welcomes the Grand Army." Mayor Jewett made an appropriate response. When Mr. Jewett had finished his address President McKinley was introduced, and for fully five minutes it seemed as though the roof would have to fall or the side walls bulge with the roars of applause and the greeting: "Wheat, 103; silver, 40."

President McKinley's Speech.

Then the president said, very slowly and distinctly:

Mr. Toastmaster and Comrades and Fellow Citizens—

I wish I might frame fitting words to make suitable response to the more than gracious welcome which you have accorded me here tonight. I come with no set form of speech; I come with no studied phrases to present to you, but I come in the spirit of comradeship to talk with you as we have often talked in the past around the campfires in war as well as campfires in peace.

To me, I see by the program, has been assigned the toast "The Country and its Defenders." My fellow citizens, blessed is that country whose defenders are patriots. Blessed is that country whose soldiers fight for it and are willing to give the best they have, the best that Success.

Recovery from lockjaw is rather unusual. Dr. Abele has just pulled a horse through that most horror-exciting disease. At one time all the muscles stood out like knotted cords. The legs were rigid, head and tail straight and immovably extended, while the jaws were so set there was not one-half an inch motion to the jaws.

Antitoxin imported from Paris was used. Gradually the symptoms began to abate until now the horse is as well as ever. The use of antitoxin for this disease is of quite recent origin.

A Delightful Trip.

Quincy will have several representatives on the grand summer pilgrimage of the First regiment, Patriarch Militant, I. O. O. F. next week. Captain A. W. Stetson, Ensign C. F. Route of Labor Day Parade.

Chief Marshal Fred J. Kneeland, of the Labor Day parade in Boston, Sept. 6, has announced the route of parade. The parade will start at 10 o'clock from Copley square and will proceed as follows: Boylston to Berkeley street, Columbus avenue, Dartmouth, Dedham, Washington, Eliot, streets, Park square, Charles, Beacon, School, Washington, Milk streets, to Post Office square, where it will be reviewed by the chief marshal and dismissed.

Prompt Payment.

SEWER REGULATIONS

Deposit of Estimated Cost Required before Connection.

Rules and regulations as to entering the sewer will soon be necessary in this city, and it will facilitate matters if such rules are soon adopted. The sewer department of Hyde Park has recently framed regulations which are quite lengthy.

At the outset those desiring to connect are informed that a deposit of the estimated cost is required before commencement of work. Then construction of private sewers must be made under the direction of the board or their agents, and only after permit.

No cesspool either directly or indirectly shall be connected with or drained by a sewer. Grease traps may be required. If vitrified pipe is used it shall be from five to six inches in interior diameter; if of iron, four to five inches.

The bottom of cellars or basement clear of buildings hereafter constructed shall be at such an elevation that the private sewer therefrom shall have a fall of at least one in twenty to the crown of the common sewer.

The applicant must pay all the costs of connection including all labor and material, etc. The estimated cost shall be reached by taking the sum of $25 as a basis, which shall be held and considered as the average cost of constructing the particular sewer from the common sewer to the street connection of the estate of the applicant, and adding thereto the estimate cost of the actual construction of the private sewer from street line to house connection. Violators of the rules are liable to a penalty of $20.

Street Watering Assessments.

The street watering assessment in Watertown is nearly double that of Quincy, being three and three-fourths cents a foot, against two and two-tenths in this city; but here the city pays one half, so that street watering costs more in Quincy than in Watertown.

Property holders in Watertown are much exercised over the tax assessed upon their land this year for the first time. Heretofore only a small part of the streets of the town has been watered during the dusty days in summer, and the town paid the bill. This year the town voted to water the principal streets and to assess the cost upon the abutters. It was supposed that the assessment would not be more than two cents per running foot of frontage. When the assessors figured the amount of territory watered and the frontage of lands abutting, they made the assessments 3¾ cents a foot, and the assessments made upon land owners vary from seventy-five cents to $130. Those who own large tracts of unoccupied land, bordering on the main streets, and who are holding them for building purposes, are especially complaining at the excessive charge for street sprinkling which, they argue, is not the slightest benefit to them. Some say they will not pay the assessment unless compelled to by the courts, while others state that they intend to pay the tax under protest. One point made by these people is that a large part of the street watering is done by the permanent members of the fire department, and that those whose property abut on such streets watered should not be assessed and then be called upon to pay their share to maintain the fire department.

Readville Today.

The races at Readville were postponed yesterday on account of the rain. The horses were called today at 12 30. The events include the unfinished 2 08 pace, the 2 11 trot, 2.11 pace and three-year-old trotting stake. Today's races will be the most interesting of the week, as such noted campaigners as Alcidalia, Baron Rogers and others start in the 2.11 trot. Frank Bogash, who has been a big winner all through the grand circuit, is scheduled to start in the 2 11 pace against a fast field of sidewheelers. Star Pointer's trial will be made on Friday, as announced provided the track is in condition.

TODAY'S COURT.

Frank Smith of Randolph, charged with keeping a liquor nuisance, had his case continued until Feb. 25.

Andrew Tracey and James Kennedy for being drunk at Quincy were each fined $5.

Joseph Christopher for being drunk at Quincy; case con inued.

According to a celebrated anatomist there are upwards of 5,000,000 little glands in the human stomach. These glands pour out the digestive juices which dissolve or digest the food. Indigestion is want of juice, weakness of glands, need of help to restore the health of these organs. The best and most natural help is that given by Shaker Digestive Cordial. Natural, because it supplies the material needed by the glands to prepare the digestive juices. Because it strengthens and invigorates the glands and the stomach, until they are able to do their work alone. Shaker Digestive Cordial cures indigestion certainly and permanently. It does so by natural means, and therein lies the secret of its wonderful and unvaried success.

At druggists, price 10 cents to $1.00 per bottle.

☞ The trotting at the Bridgewater fair next month promises to be of unusual interest. On the 16th there will be three good races 2:24, 2:27 and 2:40. On the 17th 2:19, 2:30 and 2:35. There will also be running races. Entries close Sept. 9.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy always affords prompt relief. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

☞ The Assessors of Salem report an increase of but $107,000 in the valuation of the city, and the tax rate is $17.30.

How Hard Times are Brought On.

Just notice how severe is the punishment of a nation which merely overstays its time of prosperity. We have in the United States and its wonderful upliftings in the direction of wealth, special temptations, and we stay prosperous, in our minds at least, longer than other nations; and the result is that we suffer more severely than they. We are also the last to recuperate. We make hay abundantly when our sun is shining and the barns are full. Why should we be careful about hay? Let the cattle trample on it and be bedded in it. We have plenty. Why should we who revel in abundance glean also the fields like the poor? In such times we all become lavish and expect pennies to take care of themselves. We go on from one folly to another. We spend capital and persuade ourselves that we are only spending income. It is easy not only to mortgage our future but to deceive ourselves and to say that this is only temporary, only meeting a passing emergency. By our extravagant ways we honeycomb what we have. By and by our confidence gets broken up and the clock strikes for settlement. Nowadays such a settlement is a world settlement, and a thousand million people make it a very complicated business.—Hon. Thomas B. Reed in The Illustrated American.

Old Stoughton Outing Postponed.

Owing to the heavy rain storm of Tuesday, the outing of the Old Stoughton Musical Society has been postponed to Tuesday, Aug. 31, and will be carried out according to the program arranged by Prest. Daniel H. Huxford, Secretary Edwin A. Jones and Chorister Nelson Mann; sing from 1 to 3 P. M.

Indications now point to the largest outing that Highland Park has ever seen, even surpassing the Society's outing of 12,000 people in 1896, which was so enjoyable to all. The park was handsome then, but the park of 1897, with its electric fountain, is not surpassed by any park in the State.

Asst. Treasurer Henry E. Reynolds of the Brockton Street Railway Co. assures us that the park company will be superior to any that have appeared there, and he is not sorry the weather did not approve, because the attractions will be so much better next week.

Singers and musicians who are members, go and take your friends. There will be solo and chorus singing by 300 voices, assisted by a good orchestra. Musical people and those who like to hear music, are cordially invited, the park being open and free to everybody.

New Milton Directory.

Edward A. Jones has issued the second volume of the Milton directory, which contains 2243 names an increase of 209 over 1894. It makes a neat typographical appearance, and is prettily bound. A map of the town by C. E. C. Breck, will be prized; it shows the boundary of the Blue Hills reservation in Milton and parkways and play grounds; also the location of fire alarm and police signal boxes. It contains a business directory, street directory, town register, and much which will prove handy for reference.

—In order to keep within the appropriation of $150,000, about one hundred of the gypsy moth hunters must be discharged, which Secretary Sessions considers an unfortunate necessity, as the work of destroying the nests, which comes in the winter season, is the most important feature of the battle against this pest. The men who are thus dismissed have been well trained in the work and it is unfortunate that necessity compels this step. —Ploughman.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

CITY —OF— QUINCY.

SEALED proposals for paving and curbing Copeland street in accordance with form of specifications to be furnished by the Commissioner of Public Works of the City of Quincy, will be received at the office of said Commissioner, City Hall, until 2 o'clock P. M., of the First day of September 1897, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read. Each proposal must be indorsed "Proposal for paving and curbing Copeland street," and be accompanied by a properly certified check for the sum of Five Hundred Dollars ($500,) payable to City of Quincy, which will be returned to the bidder unless forfeited as hereinafter provided.

A bond will be required for the faithful performance of the contract in such sum as the Commissioner of Public Works shall determine; such sum to be not more than one-third the amount of the contract; the sureties to be residents of Massachusetts and satisfactory to the Commissioner.

The contract must be signed and bond furnished within six days after the notification of acceptance of the proposal and in case of the failure of the bidder to sign contract and furnish bond within said time, the contract and the certified check accompanying the proposal shall be forfeited to the City of Quincy.

The proposals will be compared on the basis of the following quantities:

Furnishing and laying 7,200 square yards paving.
Furnishing and laying 110 linear feet crossing stones.
Furnishing and setting 3,600 linear feet straight edgestones.
Furnishing and setting 68 linear feet curved edgestones.
Furnishing and setting 7 driveway corners.
Resetting 1,170 linear feet straight edgestones.
Resetting 9 driveway corners.

These quantities are to be considered approximate only and the Commissioner of Public Works expressly reserves the right of increasing or diminishing the same, as he may deem necessary.

The right is reserved to reject any or all proposals or to accept the proposal deemed best for the city.

CHARLES F. KNOWLTON,
Commissioner of Public Works.

TALK OF THE CITY.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Did you get wet Tuesday?

Today's weather is appreciated.

Stephen A. Foster, Esq., is in town.

The vacation month is drawing to a close.

Mr. Arthur B. Holden is at Harpswell, Maine.

Mrs. E. A. Whiting of Wollaston is at Falmouth.

A patent was issued this week to Thomas L. Sturtevant.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ilsley of Foster street is convalescent.

Several Quincy men are at Readville races this afternoon.

Miss Nellie Coughlin of Atlantic street is visiting in Boston.

Proposals for the Copeland street paving will be open next Wednesday.

Mrs. John Mullen of East Milton has gone to New Bedford for a week.

Miss Harriet M. Phillips is visiting friends at Mt. Vernon, New York.

The Ward Three list of heavy taxpayers will be concluded in tomorrow's LEDGER.

Mrs. Roger Wilde and daughter Louise have gone to Monument beach for a few days.

The LEDGER is always glad to receive items of news, even if it is only a brief local.

Henry H. Faxon's taxes in Quincy, Chelsea and Boston amount to about $30 per day.

Street sprinkling is assessed on all streets watered, no abatement being made for corner lots.

Miss Etta Harding of Botolph street, returned Tuesday from a month's vacation at Beverly.

The Misses Helen and Bertha Waldron have gone on a visit to Richmond Corners, Maine.

The average temperature of Tuesday was 60 degrees, the noon temperature being the lowest since June 14.

The Ward One tax bills may be out today and other wards will follow in order with intervals of a few days.

George Burr and family have moved into the house on Billings street, formerly occupied by the late I. W. Moody.

A towboat left Hull this afternoon with several yachts in tow for Duxbury, where an open race will be held tomorrow.

The Rev. Edward A. Robinson and family of Wollaston have been passing an enjoyable vacation at South Yarmouth.

An antique clock at the Quincy Second Hand Variety store would take first price for antiqueness. It is a great curiosity.

Lathers are at work on the auditorium of Music hall and good progress is being made on the building by Contractor Perkins.

Wollaston people are anxious to have the electric road built. The delay is annoying to those who favor rapid transit in that place.

Hancock street near Music hall is closed to travel today except for the electric cars, but a rush job is being done and the street will probably be open tonight.

Mr. Arthur T. Brasee has accompanied Miss Ada L. Goodrich to her home in West Berkshire, Vermont, where they will spend two or three weeks with her parents and friends.

W. R. Lofgren, who is at Stockholm, Sweden, writes to the LEDGER that the exposition in that city is something great, especially the sporting and tourists' building. One of the novelties is a Laplanders' camp. He sends regards to all.

Francis L. Souther camp has organized a tug of war team and base ball club and will be represented at the Sons of Veterans' field day at Elkins park. The final meeting of the camps in the association was held Monday evening at Brockton, and reports were favorable.

—The DAILY LEDGER sent to any vacation address. Call at or send postal to the office. Sent for the week or month. It will brighten your vacation with all the important news of home.

☞ The Knights of Columbus will hold a big reunion and picnic at Caledonian grove on Sept. 4. Many entries for sports have been received.

☞ It is a pea green fence which agitates the people at Onset Bay.

HOUGHS NECK.

Pleasant again.

Morning tides all this week.

The rain yesterday was a great disappointment to the people at the Neck; where the season is drawing to a close, every day counts. If many were like yesterday the visitors would be on the wing, with bag and baggage for home, sweet home.

Work is being pushed along on the Houghs Neck opera house in order to have everything in readiness for the concert in aid of the Catholic church. It is to be hoped that every one interested will do what is expected of them and make the concert a success.

Owing to the heavy storm the auction that was to have taken place was poorly attended. Mr. John Cullen was on deck and bought the lot of land; it being the lot adjoining his, which was the proper thing to do.

The people of the Neck have made up their minds that Brown's Brigade Band had a happy faculty of filling in the spare hours and loose minutes; they miss the band and wish the time back fully a month or six weeks, in order to again go over the happy times they enjoyed in listening to the popular airs and eating peanuts.

The committee on the illumination do not appear to appreciate what the local papers are doing for Houghs Neck this summer. The LEDGER has advocated improvements, the Sea street boulevard, a marine park, etc., but what thanks or reciprocity.

Mr. Dolan of the Bijou cottage is spending a few days with his family.

Much concern is felt in the sudden illness of the little niece of Mrs. Dr. Murphy of Harbor Light cottage. Her bathing the latter part of last week brought on inflamation of the stomach, and it was feared at one time that something more serious would follow, but owing to the skilfulness of Dr. Murphy and faithfulness of the doctor's wife she is better and in time will be about and enjoy the remainder of her vacation it is hoped.

The Houghs Neck Juniors are going to play the Hillsides from Braintree Thursday. The former defeating them before and hope to do it again.

A BACHELOR'S THOUGHTS.

More or Less Wise Sayings of an Unmarried Male.

The best cure for a love is another one.

In youth we believe more than we know; in old age we know more than we believe.

Some men succeed by ability, others rely on whiskers.

Lots of bald headed men who don't believe in faith cure use patent hair restorers.

Everybody is conceited, only some folks can act as if they weren't better than others.

Some men always insist on going it alone, even when their wives' hands have all the cards.

No man ever really believes that a girl was never kissed, but he likes to hear how well she can say it.

If some girls had their wedding outfit burned up the day before, they wouldn't see anything to get married for.

He who loves and runs away will live to love another day.

When most girls get to talking about an affinity, what they really want is a man.

Lots of men marry women because they are too tender hearted to hurt their feelings.

No woman can ever get much comfort out of a good cry unless she has her hair down and an old wrapper on.

When a woman talks about things "pulling at her heart strings," it is just as likely as not to be ice cream and pickles.

The average man overestimates his wife's affection for him about as much as he does the importance of his trade to the butcher.

A woman spends half of her time being sorry she has said things to her husband and the other half being sorry she was sorry.

When a girl has definitely made up her mind to have a particular man, she begins to insinuate to him that she has always felt sure she would break under a great grief.

The ministers ought to tell the women that playing on the heavenly harps and wearing the golden crowns is just as pleasant as trying a new love song on the piano and wearing a new Easter bonnet at the same time.—New York Press.

Romance and Reality.

Romantic Miss—Do you love me well enough to do battle for me?

Ardent Suitor—Aye, against a thousand.

"Well, Mr. Bigfish is paying me a good deal of attention. Would you fight him for me?"

"Yes, I would."

"Could you defeat him?"

"N-o; he'd probably thrash the life out of me."

"Mercy! Well, never mind. I'll take you without any fighting, and, oh, do please remember, my darling, promise me on your honor that if you ever see Mr. Bigfish coming you'll run."—New York Weekly.

The perfectly round shaped pearls are most valuable; next come the pear-shaped, and, lastly, the egg-shaped.

It is believed that butter was first used by the Arabs, who made it from the milk of the goat or sheep.

QUINCY'S SOLID MEN

And Some Women Too Who Pay a Big Tax This Year.

Quincy has many solid men and women and business firms as will be seen by a list of all who are this year called upon to pay into the city treasury $50 and upwards. The tax rate is $18 80 so that a tax of $50 represents a valuation of over $2500, and a tax of $100 a valuation of over $5000. The instalment today include those names having property in Ward Three; the cents in addition to the amount given are omitted for convenience:

COUNTY AND VICINITY

—A new hook and ladder truck was added to the Brookline fire department this week. Chief Johnson has not as yet made up his mind whether he will make it a two or three-horse hitch. The truck is arranged for either. There are seven ground ladders of 45, 30, 23, 18, 16 and 12 feet in length, two roof ladders of 14 feet each, and two side ladders 25 feet each. The ladders are finished in natural wood and the truck in carmine and gold striping.

—Thirty-five prizes ranging in value from $35 to 50 cents are offered for the Dubois road race at Brockton on Saturday; also time prizes.

—Judge Ely and family of Dedham are at the Myles Standish Hotel at Duxbury.

—After a shut down of six weeks the Kinsley Iron and Machine Company's rolling mill at Canton is running full time.

—Proposals are wanted for a new High school in Needham to be opened Aug. 30.

—George Winn, a Windsor, Vt., jeweler, was much surprised the other morning at the way in which a bat with three young ones got away from him. He had found the four in front of his house, and he took them in and put them on a table. The old bat, which had shown fight, then turned on its back and feigned death. The little ones fastened themselves to it and the old one flopped instantly and flew away, taking its family along.

—One of the oldest women teachers in the public schools of Portland, Ore., has the Klondike fever, and proposes going north. The clerk of the board of education, a California forty-niner, advises her to take up a load of candles, cigars and nuts rather than to try any other way of making money or a living there. He recalls the visit of a woman with such a cargo to a Californian camp, and says that she cleared $1000 between Saturday and Monday.

If the valuable properties of Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient were universally known, no family would be without it. It is the best known preventative of and cure for Biliousness, Sick Headache, Constipation, Imperfect Digestion, Disordered Stomach, Vomiting, Loss of Appetite, Eruptions on Face, Prickly Heat, and all bad effects arising from excesses in eating or drinking.

KLONDIKE IMPOSTS.

UNJUST RESTRICTIONS PLACED BY CANADA ON GOLD MINING.

Such a Fiscal Scheme May Result In an American Uitlanders' Protest—The Attempt to Enforce This Policy May Cause a Revolution.

According to a telegram from Ottawa the Dominion government has determined to submit American gold diggers in Canadian territory to treatment even more vexatious and oppressive than was originally proposed. Should it attempt to carry out the regulations which have been issued it will provoke upon the part of American uitlanders in the Klondike district an uprising similar to that which was planned by the English uitlanders at Johannesburg, and which the Jameson raid was intended to promote.

If the Ottawa authorities had set about deliberately to exasperate an American community beyond the bonds of endurance, they could have hit upon no means more certain to attain their end than the complex worrying, grinding scheme of confiscation and taxation which has actually been devised. That no fiscal scheme so galling and so merciless was ever before put forward by a professedly liberal government we may safely affirm when we consider the circumstances under which it is to be applied and the extraordinary hardships and dangers which have to be faced by the hunters of gold amid the rigors and privations of an arctic winter.

The features of the scheme are four, and it is hard to say which is the more unreasonable, harsh and obnoxious. We observe, in the first place, that if a miner should happen to arrive in the Yukon goldfields penniless he could not locate a claim, no matter how promising might be the surface indications detected by him. In his own interest he will not wish to disclose the richness of his find until he has registered a claim, but this he cannot do except on the payment of $15, a sum which, upon the hypothesis, he does not possess.

We will suppose, however, that a miner has managed to raise the $15 needed to pay the registration fee, but has had the ill luck to find the surface indications imperfectly sustained in the subsoil, so that during his first year he is barely able to procure food and lodging from the proceeds of his diggings. Then he is confronted by the second requirement of the Dominion government, which orders him either to pay an annual assessment of $100 or to renounce his claim, though it might well happen that the next year's digging in another portion of the claim would disclose a large amount of treasure. Again, we will assume that the gross yield of a given claim during a year was $1,000, out of which, after the registration fee and annual assessment demanded by the government were deducted, there would remain $885. Every penny of that amount would probably be needed for food, shelter and tools. Nevertheless the miner would encounter the third requirement of the Dominion government, which would call upon him to pay $200, that is to say, a royalty of 20 per cent on the gross yield of his claim. Not having been able to save a cent, the miner, of course, could not pay the royalty, and the loss of his claim would be the penalty. Let us take for granted that the gross annual yield of a claim were $10,000 or $20,000. Here again it is obvious that, if men had been employed to work it on wages at the rate of $10 or $15 per day, the exaction of a 20 per cent royalty on the gross yield would amount practically to a confiscation of the net profit.

Even in the exceptional cases where from $50,000 to $100,000 might be extracted in a single year the demand for a 20 per cent royalty would be felt to be excessive and tyrannical on the part of a government which had done absolutely nothing to facilitate the workings of the Yukon goldfields. There never was a more barefaced attempt to reap where one has not sown than this of the Ottawa authorities. It was American miners that discovered gold in the Klondike district. It is through American seaports, Juneau and St. Michael's, that the northward immigration has since poured in and that supplies are forwarded. Absolutely nothing was done by the Canadian authorities for the maintenance of law and order in the gold bearing region until the hope of grabbing a part of the precious harvest caused them to dispatch thither 25 mounted policemen, a force which presently is to be quadrupled.

Now, if we bear in mind the numbers of the treasure seekers that have gone northward from San Francisco and Seattle since the gold fever began, we can see that several thousand able bodied and adventurous men, almost all of them in the prime of life, will be assembled at the Klondike during the approaching winter. A community so eminently and almost exclusively virile would be abundantly able to make laws for itself and to uphold peace and order, but it is absurd to suppose that 100 policemen can coerce it into submission to oppressive laws made by outsiders. The work of ascertaining the gross outcome of every claim, which is the condition precedent to the intake of a 20 per cent royalty, would require the vigilant and incessant serivces of hundreds of policemen, and hundreds of others would be needed to form a cordon around the district so as to prevent a miner who had "struck it rich" from escaping with his dust and nuggets into the neighboring American territory.

The truth is that under any probable circumstances the collection of the proposed 20 per cent royalty would prove impracticable, and any attempt to collect it in the state of things that will exist this winter at Klondike is likely to occasion disturbances of a grave character. Should the 110 policemen whom the Dominion government expects to have at its disposal in the district undertake to use force for the purpose of securing the assessments and royalties prescribed by law we should not be surprised to hear that they had been quietly made prisoners and disarmed, and either shipped back to Canada or allowed to go on parole.

There is still another feature of the plan to squeeze the Klondike devised at Ottawa which in theory may look well enough, but which in practice will be likely to cause a good deal of trouble. We refer to the regulation that in all placer grounds every alternate claim is to be reserved for the government, which will sell or work it for the benefit of the revenue of the Dominion. This is to revert to Spanish traditions with a vengeance. The inevitable effect of such a law, could it be put in force, would be to deter miners of every nationality, including Canadians themselves, from seeking to discover any more placers in Canadian territory. All the efforts of the gold hunters now gathered at Klondike, or on their way thither, would, as soon as that district is exhausted, be directed to finding similar deposits within the American boundaries. No miner, while equally tempting and unrestricted parts of the Yukon region are open to him, will look for placers in a section where half of the gold bearing soil laid open by his labors must be set apart for a rapacious government. How this regulation is to be applied to the Klondike or to other placers in Canadian territory which are already under the spade we are not told.

It is certain that an attempt to confiscate one-half of the claims which the Klondike miners are now working would be apt to cause a revolution. The miners would probably meet and declare their independence of the Dominion government, after which they would, no doubt, express a desire for the annexation of the territory, thus proclaimed autonomous, to the United States. That, it will be remembered, is precisely what the English uitlanders at Johannesburg intended to do and what the British parliament and government have virtually approved by refusing to punish Mr. Rhodes for trying to further it.—New York Sun.

OIL FOR WAR VESSELS.

System Which Will Increase Speed and Save Fuel.

Judge M. A. Chipman recently went to Washington to file patent applications and interest proper government officials in inventions by Frank M. Reed of Anderson, Ind., which have been completed, tested practically and found to be capable of revolutionizing the handling of war vessels at sea.

The inventions carry out to perfection the idea originated by Russia in using oil instead of coal for a fuel for war vessels. Reed's invention covers a system of oil burning which would make it possible for a vessel like the Indiana to carry enough fuel to last on a trip around the world. The system is gas generation from oil. The gas is generated by an atomizing plan, is smokeless and capable of a tenth more heat than the Russians get, or 33 per cent more heat than the government is now getting from coal.

Instead of 30 stokers, which are now necessary on a great war vessel, one man could handle all of the valves.

Another one of the inventions covers a storage tank that is absolutely bullet and shell proof. The cost of the equipment is very small and would be paid for in a month or so in the saving of fuel.—Exchange.

Colleges Selling Diplomas.

Dr. S. C. A. Rubey of Clinton, secretary of the Kansas state dental examining board, and Dr. H. S. Lowry of Kansas City, a member of the board, examined Kansas City dental colleges the other day. The result was a conference with Prosecutor Lowe, who will institute proceedings in a few weeks to have the charters of two of the institutions revoked. Criminal proceedings may also be instituted against the officials of these colleges. The colleges in question have been selling diplomas, Dr. Rubey says, for what they would bring, and in many instances have sold them to persons outside the city who have never been inside the colleges.

"They have been grinding out diplomas for almost any price," said Dr. Rubey, "and I have positive evidence that in some instances diplomas have been sold to persons who have never been in Kansas City. We intend to prosecute them as frauds and to have their charters revoked."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Dr. James Charles' Airship.

Dr. James Charles of Richmond, Ind., who for 20 years has been making a study of aerial navigation, and who for a year past has been working on plans for an airship, on a recent day announced that he had them completed.

They were exhibited in connection with a model of the ship to all who cared to call to see them, and much interest was taken in the matter. Dr. Charles' ship is much like that of Professor Langley, but it improves on it in some radical features. The propelling power will be steam or electricity, and the ship will be about 30 feet long and designed to carry half a dozen people.

A stock company will be organized for its manufacture. If it proves to be a success, one of the first trips will be to the Alaskan goldfields.

Roller Polo Meeting.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 25.—The National Roller Polo association held an adjourned meeting at the Falmouth House last night. Manager Fred Doe announced that he has completed arrangements to continue his club in New Bedford for the coming season. An application was received from Taunton and was laid on the table pending evidence that a club sufficiently strong to make a stand against other clubs could be shown. Reports from the other clubs indicate that the season will be very successful, and that the sport will be of a satisfactory nature.

Praise For Mate Saunders.

Boston, Aug. 25.—Captain Hart of the four-masted schooner Mabel Jordan, now in port at Baltimore, in a letter to his Boston owners, states that William Saunders, the first mate of the ill-fated schooner Olive Pecker, who was brutally murdered with Captain Whitman off the South American coast, was formerly first mate of the Jordan. Captain Hart speaks in the highest terms of the murdered man, and says that he was a most capable and reliable man while an officer on his vessel.

Endeavorers' Convention.

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 25.—The 12th annual convention of the Maine State Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor convened in this city today and will be in session three days. The indications point to the largest attended and most successful convention ever held in the Pine Tree state. Arrangements have been made to entertain 350 delegates. Rev. Francis E. Clark of Christian Endeavor fame will be present and deliver an address later in the week.

Found Hanging to Door Knob.

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 25.—Mrs. Mary Blodgett, a nurse, was found dead at her room in the house of W. L. Kinsman on Lincoln street last night. She had hanged herself from the door handle. Despondency was the cause, and possibly domestic trouble as she had been heard to threaten self destruction. Her husband is John Blodgett of Cambridgeport.

SLAUGHTER IN AFGHAN

Fort Ali-Musjid Abandoned by the Loyal Afridis Troops.

Three Hundred of Garrison Were Killed.

Pathan Tribe Gives Out Ridiculous Terms For Peace.

London, Aug. 25.—A special dispatch from Bombay says there is an unconfirmed rumor in circulation there that the Afridis have attacked Fort Ali-Musjid with great determination. The garrison made a sortie in full force, endeavoring to disperse them, but met with a desperate resistance and lost 300 killed. The remnant of the garrison then abandoned the post and made its way to the station on the Lowragt.

The garrison at Fort Ali-Musjid was composed of Afridis, with Afridi officers. If, as one report says, they died fighting desperately, it may be regarded as proof that the continued loyalty of the Afridis in the Indian army.

The attack was led by Mir Bashir of Tirah, the high plateau which is the summer headquarters of the Afridis and the Orakzis.

Mir Bashir is a well known frontier chief. In 1880, during a period of similar discontent, he proclaimed himself king of Tirah and began to raise and drill an army. But he became unpopular through his imposition of taxes and his influence gradually melted away.

A Simla dispatch, dated Tuesday evening, says:

The Afridis have not ventured upon active hostilities today, but remained in the hills about Khaibar, where for the present they are practically safe from attack.

Notoriously the vainest of the Pathan tribes, they had the audacity to suggest the terms under which they would agree to disperse to their homes. These were the withdrawal of the troops from Swat and from the Samana range, the surrender of all the Afridi women living within our border and the revision of the salt regulations. They do not seem to realize that their rising must inevitably lead to a complete breaking down of their power as the dominant clan on the Peshawur frontier.

Woodford's Delicate Mission.

London, Aug. 25.—The Paris correspondent of The Daily Mail says: "The conference between United States Minister Woodford, Ambassador Porter and Ambassador White has failed to arrive at any definite decision. General Woodford's task is extremely delicate. He has been instructed to put the screw upon Spain, but to avoid any step which will lead to an open rupture. Much depends, therefore, upon Spain's attitude, and upon the amount of support she receive from Europe. On both these points the reports of Ambassador White and Ambassador Porter were unfavorable to the American case. The Spanish government is forced by public opinion to continue the policy of Canovas and the sentiment of both France and Germany is decidedly hostile to American interference. Under these circumstances it is probable that until Minister Woodford is able to feel his way more clearly, an American policy would be watered down to the maintenance to the claims of American citizens in Cuba, set off by Spain's claims with regard to filibustering."

Philadelphia Republicans United.

Philadelphia, Aug. 25.—For the first time since the control of the Republican organization in Philadelphia was wrested from Senator Quay, a regular Republican convention, representing every faction in this city, yesterday nominated, with practical unanimity, a pronounced Quay partisan by naming Colonel Clayton McMichael, proprietor of the Philadelphia North American and a director of the Associated Press, who is one of the recognized Quay leaders in eastern Pennsylvania, as the candidate for city treasurer. Colonel McMichael said yesterday that he entered the contest only because the friendship of all factions united upon him to perfect the Republican harmony which puts Senators Quay and Penrose in what is regarded as undisputed control of the Republican state organization. All the newspapers, Republican, Democratic and Independent make complimentary comment upon Colonel McMichaels selection, referring in eulogistic terms to his career in politics and in active journalism.

Hypnotism Unrecognized In Law.

San Francisco, Aug. 25.—The state supreme court has affirmed the judgment of guilty of murder in the first degree found against J. E. Banks, who killed Mrs. Harriet Stiles and J. B. Borden at Ocean Side, San Diego county, on Sept 6, 1885. The case was appealed on the points that the evidence was circumstantial and that the lower court erred in refusing to allow a hypnotist to testify that he hypnotized the defendant after the murder and that the latter denied the crime when under the hypnotic spell. Commissioner Searles, whose opinion was affirmed by the court, said that the law did not recognize hypnotism. In passing on the case the supreme court agreed, but Justice McFarland said that he did not quite agree as to the attitude of the law toward hypnotism. It could not be considered in this case, though it might in others.

Silver Dollar Worth Forty Cents.

New York, Aug. 25.—Bar silver made new low records again yesterday, both in this city and in London. The price declined abroad to 23 7-8d. per ounce, a loss of 1-4 of a penney. Commercial bars sold here at 51 1-2 cents an ounce, a fall of 3-4 of a cents, and assay bars were quoted nominally at 51 5-8@51 3-4. At the price of the assay office bars the bullion value of a silver dollar was reckoned at 40 cents.

Wellman Meets Nansen.

London, Aug. 25.—A dispatch to The Daily Chronicle from Christiana says that Walter Wellman has been there to discuss a projected Polar expedition with Dr. Nansen, who thinks his idea a good one. Mr. Wellman expects to make his start next summer.

The Refractometer

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent occulists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.

I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.

F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.

I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.

JACOB GOLDBERG, M. D.

This is a very expensive instrument, but we consider nothing too good for our patrons, and have placed one in our optical room.

McKINLEY AT CONVENTION.

any man has, their own lives, to preserve it because they love it. Such an army the United States has commanded in every crisis of her history. From the war of the Revolution to the late Civil War, the men followed that flag because they loved it and believed in what it represented. That was the stuff of which the army of '61 was made. Everyone of them not only fought, but they thought. And many of them did there own thinking, and did not always agree with their commander.

That young soldier in the late war upon the battle line, went ahead with the color guard, bearing the Stars and Stripes way in front of the line, but the enemy still in front of him. The general called out to the color bearer, "Bring those colors back to the line," and quicker than any bullet, that young soldier answered back, "Bring the line up to the colors." It was the voice of command, there was a man behind it and there was patriotism in his heart.

"So nigh to grandeur is our dust; so near to God is man when duty whispers 'Lo, thou must,' the youth replies, 'I can.'"

And so more than 2,000,000 brave men thus responded and made up an army grander than any army that ever shook the earth with its tread and engaged in a holier cause than ever engaged soldiers did before. What defenders, my country men, have we now? We have the remnant of this old, magnificent, matchless army of which I have been speaking and then, as all cases in any future war we have the brave men who fought against us on Southern battlefields. The army of Grant and the army of Lee are together. They are now one faith, in hope, in fraternity, in purpose and in an invincible patriotism. And, therefore, the country is in no danger. In justice strong, in policy secure and in devotion to the flag all one. My fellow countrymen I thank you and bid you good night.

The president's allusion to the South and its unity with the North was received with the most vociferous applause the audience standing on their seats to cheer.

National Commander Clarkson responded to the toast "The Grand Army." General Russell Alger, the secretary of war, spoke to the toast, "The Army of the United States." Hon. Henry Estabrook spoke to the toast, "The General." Charles W. Anderson, a colored orator, talked of the colored troops; Hon. C. P. Johnson discussed the American volunteers and Hon. John S. Wise talked upon "Under the Flag." Mr. Wise, who was a Confederate officer, was received with much enthusiasm, and his address was marked by its spirit.

Archbishop Ireland replied to the toast, "The Chaplain."

President at Campfire.

President McKinley visited two campfires during the evening at two of the local churches, and the crowds that greeted him were tremendous. He spoke briefly at one, saying:

Ladies and Gentlemen—The saddest part of the reunion of the old soldiers of the army is that at every annual encampment we miss many familiar faces; our comrades are diminishing with the passing years; the circle is narrowing and every annual roll-call discloses one and still another not present, but accounted for. They have gone from human sight; they have passed from association with us here any longer; they have gone to join the great majority of that army with which they were so long associated, and they sleep tonight within those green tents whose curtains never outward swing. Grant has gone, Sherman and Sheridan and Thomas and MacPherson and Logan and a long list besides, rich in precious memories. And not only have the great commanders gone, but the rank and file of that splendid army have joined their old commanders on the other shore. They are gone who seem so great; their glorious work is here and they wear a purer crown than any man can weave them. Speak no more of their renown, but in the vast cathedral leave them; God accept them; Christ receive them. It is our duty, it is our business to perpetuate their memories; it is our duty, it is our business to preserve and improve and strengthen and glorify the magnificent institutions for which they fought and for which they gave their lives.

I thank you, ladies and gentlemen, for this moment that you have given to me to pay my respects to that noble army of volunteers, the sacrificial giants who threw darkness asunder and thus insured our national existence. (Great applause).

Wool In Good Demand.

Boston, Aug. 25.—The wool market here shows an excellent demand in progress with the tone of value hardening and sales ruling large. The demand is principally from manufacturers, and dealers are finding no obstacles to disposing of their stocks. Territory wools continue to maintain a firm tone, and large lines are being sold on the scoured basis of 40 and 42 cents for fine medium and fine, while a choice staple calls for 45 cents, while many dealers ask above that figure. The fleece wool trade is light, but prices hold firm. Many dealers, however, are holding their stock for an advance. Australian wools continue in good demand with prices hardening.

Uniform Divorce Law Drafted.

Cleveland, Aug. 25.—At the meeting of the uniform law commission yesterday, John C. Richberg of Chicago, as chairman of a special committee appointed for the purpose, reported a draft of a divorce law for adoption in all the states, to be submitted to the National Bar association. If the association approves it, the members will urge its adoption by their different state legislatures. The bill is modeled after the divorce law in force in the District of Columbia, which was drawn by congress. The belief is generally expressed by members of the commission that the bill will be approved by the National Bar association.

Drank Muriatic Acid by Mistake.

Attleboro, Mass., Aug. 25.—Mrs. Joseph Drachineki of North Attleboro yesterday drank three ounces of muriatic acid by mistake and died six hours afterward.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

DRAWING THE JURY.

Special Venire Challenged In the Luetgert Murder Trial.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Luetgert, the defendant in the murder trial, recovered his self possession yesterday and smiled and chatted pleasantly with his lawyers and his son, Arnold, who was constantly near him. When court was called to order Attorney Phelan for the defense got up and said:

"We desire to withdraw the plea of not guilty entered in this case and to enter a motion to quash the indictment against the defendant as to each and every count."

State Attorney Denneen had no objection, but the court overruled the motion.

An exception was taken and the plea of not guilty was again made.

The roll of the veniremen summoned under the new jury commission law was then called, but after it showed that 56 of the 100 summoned were in court, Attorney Vincent, for the defense, arose and objected to them, assigning 28 reasons for his challenge, raising the point of unconstitutionality among other things. His argument was brief. Assistant State Attorney McEwan replied to the motion of the defense, holding that the law was not special legislation, as asserted, but making no special objection to the drawing of the jury under the old common law.

When argument was concluded Judge Tuthill said he did not desire to place the prosecution in an embarrassing position. He did not think the state should be called upon to test any new law in the trial of such an important case as this was acknowledged to be, and this more than the reasons assigned by the defense moved him to sustain the objections to the contemplated method of drawing the jury. He then issued an order for a special venire of 100 men.

Diedrich Bicknese, Leutgert's brother-in-law, created a scene in the jail yesterday, by denouncing Luetgert and accusing him of murder. Bicknese was walking through the jail before court opened, and on the third floor suddenly confronted his brother-in-law, who was peering through the bars. Pointing a Luetgert, Bicknese exclaimed: "There is the man who murdered my sister. This is the best place for him. He ought to be hanged."

Luetgert made no sign that he recognized the brother of his missing wife.

Resources of National Banks.

Washington, Aug. 25.—The treasury department published yesterday a comparative statement of the resources and liabilities of all the national banks in the country on July 23, compared with a corresponding date last year, and with the last call made this year. The showing is a very gratifying one to the treasury officials and the figures indicate a gradual expansion of business, especially in the amount of deposits. The statement follows. Individual deposits—July 14, 1896, $1,668,000,000; May 14, 1897, $1,728,000,000; July 23, 1897, $1,770,000,000. Lawful money reserve—July 14, 1896, $344,000,000; May 14, 1897, $415,000,000; July 23, 1897, $413,000,000. Loans and discounts—July 14, 1896, $1,959,000,000; May 14, 1897, $1,923,000,000; July 23, 1897, $1,966,000,000.

Master Masons Eligible.

Rochester, Aug. 25.—The opening session of the annual conclave of the Knights of Rome and the Red Cross of Constantine in the United States, the most exclusive and highest in rank of any Masonic body, was held yesterday in the Masonic temple. The conclave was one of the most important which has ever been held in this country, as at the session it was decided to make master Masons eligible to membership in the order. Up to this time only royal arch Masons have been eligible in this country. This change has been the subject of much discussion, the consent and approval of the heads of the Knights of the Red Cross, both in England and Europe, had already been obtained for this important change.

Architect Commits Suicide.

Farmington, Me., Aug. 25.—Frank W. Lombard, aged 34, committed suicide last night at his home in East Wilton by taking poison. Mr. Lombard was a graduate of the state normal school and was well known as an architect in Boston. His wife is a successful milliner here and is at present visiting in Damariscotta. Mr. Lombard left a letter behind, the contents of which were quite pathetic.

VOL. 9. NO. 199. QUINCY, MASS., THURSDAY, AUGUST 26, 1897. PRICE 2 CENTS.

45,000 GRAND ARMY MEN IN LINE.

A Mighty Host Marched at Buffalo, Led by President McKinley.

Buffalo, Aug. 26.—It was the zenith of the Grand Army's glory, said the veterans as they talked of yesterday's parade at their camps last night.

Forty-five thousand marched through the streets swathed in flags and bunting receiving the ovation of 500,000 people, whose gratitude and admiration was envinced in every way that human devotion can find public expression. The president of the Union they fought to save, himself their comrade, was at their head. When the line of the great procession moved, at 10:30 o'clock, the sun was shining and the sky had not a cloud. The threatening conditions of the early morning had all passed, and the rain storm of the night left as its legacy a clear, bracing air that was like a tonic to the marching men.

Through the streets, packed with one of the most loyal crowds that ever assembled to do honor to the nation's heroes, the procession moved for 5 hours and 42 minutes.

Under a gigantic arch of welcome, fashioned as a "G. A. R." monogram, under a massive triumphal arch, resembling polished granite, and under an arch radiant with bunting, erected by the colored people, the soldiers marched to the living shield, composed of 2000 children from the public schools of Buffalo, who sang national anthems as the procession wheeled before it and moved on to the reviewing stand.

Along the route of march, 100 girls, dressed in the colors of the flag, scattered flowers in the path of the soldiers.

President McKinley rode in a carriage at the head of the procession, and waived his hat to the cheering, applauding crowd. At the reviewing stand he took his position with Commander-in-Chief Clarkson and Governor Black, and the headquarters' staff passed in review.

Of all the throng viewing the procession, no person was more enthusiastic, more generous in treatment or more affected by the sight than President McKinley. For six long hours, with his hand on his hat, continually uncovering to the national colors or the salute of the veterans, the president watched the array of proud veterans march by. It was certainly a column to inspire admiration. Such men as Secretary of War Alger, General Lew Wallace and General John Palmer walked side by side with negroes or the decrepid pensioner whom they had to assist. When the reviewing was over, the president, tired though he was, expressed only the greatest pleasure.

The closing event of the evening was a reception to the president at the Music Hall, and the side events, the reception by Mrs. Catherine F. Hirst, national president of the Ladies' G. A. G., at the Iroquois hotel, and a reception by Mrs. E. C. Woodley, national president of the Army Nurses, at the Women's union. In addition to these numerous receptions there were several by minor organizations.

The president's decision to ride in the parade with the veterans was received with great satisfaction, but the completion of the details made a brief delay in getting the parade started. The president decided, as a mark of courtesy, to have Governor Black ride with him. The president breakfasted about 9 o'clock in his private rooms, with General Alger and Senator Mark Hanna as his guests. After breakfast, the president, General Alger, Governor Black and his staff left in carriages to take their place at the head of the column. The crowd about the hotel was so dense that the police had to forge a way through for the carriages, the people absolutely refusing to get from under the horses feet.

When the head of the column was reached and the party awaited the order to move, a cordon of mounted police had to work with energy to keep a space cleared. At the reviewing stand, a large, gaily decorated compartment in the middle of the 3000 seats for spectators had been set apart for the president and other distinguished guests. Archbishop Ireland was the first comer to receive recognition from the assemblage, a hearty cheer being accorded him as he took his position on the stand. General Ruggles, the adjutant general of the army, and General Sickels were recognized. Senator Mark Hanna came to the stand early, but few people seemed to recognize him and such greeting as he received was from friends in the McKinley portion of the stand.

Mrs. McKinley, Mrs. Alger, Miss Alger and Fred Alger drove to the house of George W. Miller and saw the parede from there.

The Passing Hosts.

It was 11:22 exactly when the head of the column reached the reviewing stand. When the mounted escort had passed, the carriages containing the president and Governor Black drove up, and, attended by the committee and the governor's staff, they dismounted. The vast crowd rose and cheered vociferously. At 11:30 the parade moved again, and as the staff and aides passed and saluted, the president and Governor Black arose and doffed their hats, remaining standing until the aged veterans composing the staff had all passed. Then they seated themselves. President McKinley in the centre, Governor Black on the right and General Clarkson on the left.

When the Illinois division passed the veterans uncovered and waived hats and hands, and the president again rising returned the salute by kissing his hand to them. The orders were very strict that in passing the reviewing stand the men should keep eyes to the front, but enthusiasm was greater than duty and nearly every post broke it.

"You're all right," shouted one man who passed, and another supplemented it with, "We're all McKinley men."

The president smiled his greeting. When the Pennsylvania division passed, with 22 tattered flags of the regiment of the war, President McKinley motioned to the crowd on the stand, and with one accord they arose and uncovered.

"Hurrah, hurrah, we'll sing the jubilee," started a voice in the crowd, and high rose the chorus for a few minutes, dying away as the next band in line destroyed the harmony. The president paid a tribute to some colored veterans as they passed by waiving his hand to them.

The Pennsylvania division was very large and took some time to pass. Some men from a post at Bradford, Pa., hit upon a novel method of obtaining recognition from the the president. The man nearest the president's end was directed to get near the president and shake his hand. The others formed a chain by grasping hands. The president laughed heartily at the scheme. The battle flags earned by the post from Erie, Pa., received a special welcome from the president. It was 1 o'clock before the Pennsylvania division had got by the reviewing stand.

Ohio came next, and as its banner came in view there was a roar of applause, and the president smiled his acknowledgment of the tribute. This was repeated, with more emphasis when the Canton, O., post came along, and the president stepped to the front of the platform, clapped his hands vigorously while the members of the post waved their hats and shouted.

At 1:30 the president and Governor Black left the reviewing stand, just as

ASSASSIN'S AIM SURE.

President Borda of Uruguay Killed While Leaving Church.

Murderer Is a Soldier and Aged 27.

Anniversary of Independence of Republic Was Being Celebrated.

Montevideo, Aug. 26.—President Borda was shot and instantly killed yesterday afternoon by an assassin who awaited his egress from the cathedral. The crime was committed during the celebration of the anniversary of Uruguay's independence.

Following the assassination, and while the immediate members of the president's official family were still bending over him where he had fallen, there was a forward movement of the crowd which had gathered, and in order to protect the dying president his military escort attacked the crowd and succeeded in driving it back, only after many persons had been wounded and several killed.

The assassin is Avelino Arredondo, an officer in the Uruguayan army. He is a Uruguayan and only 27 years old. Now that Uruguay's chief is dead he is calm and declares that he is content with his action. Arredondo, who is in prison, under a close guard, declares that his crime was not inspired by anything but a personal hatred for the president. He had, he said, no accomplices, and is willing to take upon himself all the consequences of the deed.

London, Aug. 26.—A dispatch to The Morning Post from Buenos Ayres says that while the assassination of President Borda is universally denounced, his removal from the sphere of control is regarded as a good thing for Uruguay. He has all along been suspected of keeping the revolution alive for his own purposes, and he was connected with a firm which provided military materials for the government, whereby he had amassed a fortune.

Washington, Aug. 26.—The assassination of President Idiarte Borda of Uruguay was not altogether a surprise to officials here who have watched the recent outbreaks in Uruguay. This was the second attempt on the president's life, the former being made by a crazy student named Revecca. The last mail advices received here showed that the revolution had broken out afresh, the peace delegates from the insurgents having given up the hope of securing peace and withdrew to Argentina. Further agitation was occasioned by the reports that the government receipts had shrunk $1,600,000 during the year as a result of the revolution. The last issue of the Montevideo Times received here states that the president remained away from the state house in evident fear of his life. At the same time a "colorado" or junta of those seeking to overthrow the government had established active operations at the capital. The assassination of the president doubtless brings the country to a revolutionary crisis which has been long impending. The revolution thus far had been confined to the country districts, where several extensive engagements had been fought, the government forces having the advantage.

Striking For Principle.

Waltham, Mass., Aug. 26.—There is no change in the outlook of the strike of iron moulders at Davis & Farnum's foundry, and the indications are that the differences will not be readily settled. The strikers say that they positively refuse to work upon the job that the company has undertaken to do for the non-union foundry in Boston as a matter of principle. They have no fault to find with their wages with the company or with any other of their work, but will never agree to do thus work. Superintendent Brown declares that the men shall not return under any other conditions, and says that in case they hold out he will have no difficulty in filling their places. The strikers have received assurance of financial and moral support from the International union, and have been urged to stand firm in the position they have assumed. Today is pay day at the foundry, and it is possible that the day may bring about some changes in the situation.

Guinette Won.

Readville, Mass., Aug. 26.—After a day's interruption because of rain the circuit races were resumed at Readville park yesterday. In the 2:08 pace, left over from Monday after four heats had been paced, Guinette captured two more heats, clinching his hold on first money. In the first heat of the day Drivers Geers and Starr were called upon to explain why they dropped the heat, and their replies bein gunsatisfactory each was fined $100. Fannie Foley, the favorite in the race for foals of 1894, could get no better than second place in a single heat, and Frank Gogash, the first choice in the 2:11 pace, could not even get that. Baron Rogers was favorite in the 2:11 trot, but was obliged to share honors with Athanto in the two heats that were trotted before the race was put over till today.

BOSTON WON AND LOST.

Two Games With Louisvilles Yesterday—One a Whitewash.

National League.

At Boston—

Boston and Louisville played two games yesterday, and in the first the home team had quite a picnic with Frazier, batting him almost at will. A wonderful catch by Clarke in the fourth inning was a feature, and Collins and Hamilton also distinguished themselves.

In the second game the tables were turned, and at the close Boston found themselves shut out, it being the second time this season on the home grounds. Sullivan was batted hard and the visitors bunched their hits in the first and fifth with telling effect. The fielding of Collins, Hamilton, Allen, Strafford and Clingman and the batting of Clarke and Collins were the features.

HOUGHS NECK.

Has summer arrived?

This is one of the best days of the season at the beach. There may be several more weeks of beach weather.

Wednesday an elegant day at the Neck.

Tides all in the morning now.

Mr. J. N. Snow and son Harry, spent the day at the Snowflake cottage on Bay View avenue.

Smelt and mackarel have set in here in great style and blood worms are at a premium. Everyone is catching all the way from 3 to 10 dozen.

Mr. J. F. Dolan of Rockland is spending his vacation at the Neck.

Everyone is getting ready for Illumination day at the Neck, especially their water buckets and lanterns.

The concert and dance in aid of the Catholic church promises to be a grand affair, a host of talent have kindly volunteered their services and will be mentioned in tomorrow's LEDGER.

The second annual concert of St. Frances' church will be held this evening at the Houghs Neck opera house. A fine programme has been arranged for the concert by Rev. Fr. Purcell, and it is expected that a large number of the Neck residents will be in attendance. A dance will be held, ending at 2 o'clock, and a special car will convey the Quincy people home.

Mrs. A. Tileston and daughter Idelle and son John, were the guests of Mrs. F. Bates at the Murray cottage Wednesday, also visiting her daughter Gertrude.

There will be two local ball teams of Houghs Neck play Illumination day, the prize being $10 for the winning team.

Mr. William Doole of New York is a guest of Mr. Newcomb at Houghs Neck.

WHO WAS IT.

Said He Was From Quincy—Arrested at Bridgewater.

Sleep is a precious luxury. It is also treacherous, and caters to neither time, space nor distance, and has been the creator of trouble in a greater or lesser degree since the beginning of time. With an overindulgence in drink as a lieutenant it has often driven its victims to jail, and came very near adding another to its conquests of this nature in police court at Brockton Wednesday.

A man who had fallen under the spell of the combined influence in a train and refused to pay his fare when awakened was arrested at Bridgewater last night for drunkenness, after being put off the train for the reason stated. When arraigned before Judge Reed this morning he appeared to be a pretty clean sort of a chap and was desirous of going to Sandwich to secure employment. He came from Quincy and his spree had cost him nearly all his money. He had but $1 with him and would be obliged to serve a short time of imprisonment at Plymouth if the regular fine for his offence was imposed. This would have undoubtedly imposed an undeserved hardship upon him, and the court appeared reluctant to censure the young man unjustly. Still it was felt that he should be punished in some way, so he was called upon to give up his paltry possession and his efforts to get back to Quincy no doubt had the effect of further impressing him of the evil of his ways.—Brockton Times.

TODAY'S COURT.

The ten year old feud among the Schatzels of West Quincy was again aired in court. Wednesday John B. Schatzel found that his right of way from his home to Willard street was blocked with stones, bottles, old cans, etc. At night when he came home it was worse. After supper he proceeded to clear the way when he was set upon by Louis, John and Ann Schatzel, and a free fight followed in which even "the kids took part. The court thought the best thing to have done would have been to secure an injunction to prevent further trouble, but finally discharged Ann and fined Louis and John $10 each. They appealed.

John McCarthy, who was caught Wednesday afternoon near City Hall, by Officer Ferguson assaulting a boot-black, was arrainged for drunk and assault and fined on each.

John Gallagher who was defaulted the other day in a drunk case, was brought into court and fined $5 for drunk, and $2 for default.

☞ The descendants of Capt. John Locke who settled at Rye, N. H., in 1655, held a reunion Wednesday at Rye. About 300 were present. The sum of $225 has been raised for a granite monument.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

DIED.

ZIOLKOWSKI—In Quincy, Aug. 25, Laurence G., son of Max and Lavein E. Ziolkowski of Germantown, aged 1 month and 11 days.

THE OLD FIGHT.

Belief that Commissioner Morrell is After Renomination.

A dispatch from Dedham to the Globe says, there is a probability that the trouble with Norfolk county commissioners over the rebuilding of the court house, which terminated in the sensational hearing before the legislature last year, will once more come to the surface this fall over the fight for a successor to Commissioner Melville P. Morrell of Hyde Park, whose term expires Jan. 1.

Morrell, it will be remembered, was chairman of the board which had charge of the work done at the court house, and against whom the charges were made and the investigation held. Last fall Watts Bowker of Brookline, one of the commissioners under fire, tried for a renomination. He was badly beaten all over the county, the fight being between two outsiders, Capt. Wadsworth of Milton and James Hewins of Medfield. The former won by three votes.

It is not known whether Mr. Morrell is a candidate for renomination, but it is understood that he is in the hands of his friends.

If he decides to run, the fight will probably be centered on him, as it was last fall on Mr. Bowker.

The Dedham dispatch adds that there are two candidates from that town for the office, but Dedham has the court house and many of the county officials, and it is time that Quincy, which has no county official, which pays one-tenth of the whole county tax, and the eastern Norfolk towns, should be represented.

Open Yacht Races.

The three days yacht racing on the South Shore was inaugurated this morning by an open race by the Duxbury Yacht club in Plymouth bay. Miss Fanny Davenport has offered a handsome silver cup, valued at $250, to be known as the "Davenport Cup," open to all yachts of the third class and to be sailed for under the rules of the association. The race of the third class today will count as one of four races for the cup. This cup becomes the property of the owner of the boat winning three out of four races of this class in any one season. The second race for this cup will be sailed on Thursday, Sept. 2, at two o'clock. The third race in this series will be sailed on the following day and the fourth on Saturday if necessary. The first prize will be considered the leg for the cup, the second is $10, and the third $5.

Tomorrow morning the open race at Kingston will take place, and there will be water sports and a clambake, followed in the evening by a ball in the Town hall.

On Saturday an open race at Plymouth.

TALK OF THE CITY.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

This is a grand day.

Today promises well, too.

No rain on Wednesday for a wonder.

The Ward One tax bills were sent out today.

Samuel G. Curtis was granted a pension this week.

The Democratic City Committee meet this evening.

The stars defeated the Granite street nine by the score of 15 to 7.

Household furniture is advertised to be sold at auction at East Milton on Monday.

Mrs. John Courtney of Roxbury is visiting Miss Ella Chubbuck of Bennington street.

Miss Ruth L. Hayden of this city is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Belcher of Randolph.

The board of Registrars have held two private meetings this week to revise the ward lists.

Andrew Larson, who died suddenly, had many friends, who have subscribed over $200 for his family.

The Bronson estate at Atlantic to have been sold at auction on Wednesday, was sold previously at private sale.

George F. Murphy of Campello, formerly of this city, is visiting his cousin, Mrs. Alex. McCabe at 16 Penn street.

Miss Mabel Gladys Chubbuck of Bennington street is visiting friends at Lake Winnipesaukee, Alton Bay, N. H.

The Marshfield fair opened Wednesday. Today the annual dinner takes place and Dr. William Everett of this city speaks on Daniel Webster.

Workman in laying the turnout of the street railway on Hancock street near Music hall were surprised to find a quarry just under the surface. Several blasts were necessary before the sleepers and rails could be laid.

The Quincy & Boston street railway base ball team will go to South Framingham on Saturday for a game with the Wayside Park club. The Framinghams say their team "can't be beat," and the Q. & B. team has not lost a game this season.

A large number gathered in I. O. O. F. Hall Wollaston, Wednesday evening, when the third degree staff of Mt. Wollaston lodge exemplified the degree. It was performed in a very creditable manner. After the meeting a collation was served in the banquet hall and a pleasant hour was spent doing justice to the good things prepared and in listening to the speeches by both members and visitors.

COUNTY AND VICINITY.

—Thirteen engines are already entered for the muster at the Weymouth fair.

—James Bearse, a G. A. R. veteran of Scituate died suddenly on Wednesday of heart disease, aged 58 years. A widow, two sons and a daughter survive him.

—This evening at Sharon the Sharon Centre School Association will celebrate its 26th anniversary. All teachers and pupils of the school are invited.

—At the Bailey-Bayley reunion at North Scituate Beach on Labor day, Prof. Eben H. Bailey of Boston will have charge of the music. There will also be addresses and a good time.

—There will be a concert by the Holbrook band at Holbrook Friday evening.

—An addition is being made to the South Weymouth depot.

☞ There are unmistakeable evidences of returning prosperity visible all over the country. The crops have been good, work in every line of business is becoming more abundant, and that means plenty of money for spenders. Advertisers ought to reap a rich harvest during the fall and winter.

The heavy taxpayers of West Quincy will be printed in the DAILY LEDGER tomorrow.

ON THE VOTE OF 1892

Quincy Entitled to 22 Delegates to the Go'd Convention.

The Gold Democrats of Massachusetts have issued a call for a State convention on Sept. 30.

The basis of representation has been fixed at one delegate for each town and ward of a city and one additional delegate for each 100 votes and also for an excess not less than 50 votes cast in the year 1892 for democratic candidates for electors of president, and the basis of representation to other conventions of said party to nominate candidates to be voted for at the next state election will be the same.

This will give Quincy 22 delegates as follows:

	Vote.	Delegates.
At large,	1515	1
Ward One,	263	4
Ward Two,	249	3
Ward Three,	329	4
Ward Four,	371	5
Ward Five,	138	2
Ward Six,	165	3

The caucuses will be held either Sept. 23 or Sept. 24. For nomination of candidates for Representatives caucuses will be held Oct 11 or 12.

A GOOD LESSON.

How Some Youngsters Got Square With a Junk Dealer.

When an unknown man strikes Brockton and they don't know where to locate him, they seem to call him from Quincy. This junk dealer may belong in Quincy and he may not, but it is a good lesson, and junk dealers will find that it don't pay to cheat even boys.

The Times says, there was a spill of junk at the north end Wednesday. An empty bottle collector who visits this city about once a week, and who resides in Quincy, was going his usual rounds when two wheels were detached from the body of his wagon simultaneously. Bottles of all descriptions and sizes were instantly strewn about the street, and a considerable portion of them were smashed. Investigation revealed the fact that one nut on each axle of the team had been unscrewed. It looked like a "put up job," and the junk man swore like a trooper. No one was in sight, however, but a Times reporter, and he pleaded not guilty. New nuts were secured and the irate bottle vender started Quincyward.

As the reporter returned the same way 10 minutes later he found a half dozen boys diligently cleaning up the broken glass and carrying it to the dump. He inquired of a 12-year-old why they were so anxious to clean up the debris. "I'll tell you if you don't put it in The Times," was the reply. "You see, it was our fault, and we don't want any one to ruin their wheels."

"How was it your fault?" inquired the reporter.

"Wall, he skinned us last week, and now we've got square with him."

"How did he skin you?" asked the reporter.

"We sold him 14 bottles which he promised to give us 10 cents for with which to buy a bat. He said he had no change and would bring us the money in a few minutes. We kept on playing and he drove home, see. Well, today he lost more than he gained that day, see."

According to a celebrated anatomist there are upwards of 5,000,000 little glands in the human stomach. These glands pour out the digestive juices which dissolve or digest the food. Indigestion is want of juice, weakness of glands, need of help to restore the health of these organs. The best and most natural help is that given by Shaker Digestive Cordial. Natural, because it supplies the material needed by the glands to prepare the digestive juices. Because it strengthens and invigorates the glands and the stomach, until they are able to do their work alone. Shaker Digestive Cordial cures indigestion certainly and permanently. It does so by natural means and therein lies the secret of its wonderful, and unvaried success.

At druggists, price 10 cents to $1 00 per bottle.

Cook—Watson.

Mr. Philip D. Cook of this city and Miss Mary Watson of Roxbury were married at the rectory of St. Patrick's church, Roxbury, Wednesday evening. After the marriage a reception was held at the bride's home. Mr. and Mrs. Cook were handsomely remembered by their many friends. The groom is one of the best known young men in Quincy. He is associated with his brother in the granite business.

☞ Work on the new Bridgewater, Whitman & Rockland street railroad is being rapidly pushed, and the contractors, Messrs. James F. Shaw & Co., expect to have the entire road completed and in running operation by Sept. 15. That portion of the road between Sprague's Hill and the railroad crossing in East Bridgewater is completed, and cars began running over the same Tuesday.

☞ The Wabash Railroad continues to cater to the travellig public in the most up-to-date way with through sleeping cars from Boston to Chicago and St. Louis, vestibuled trains, parlor and dining cars, and rates as low as any for such service. Its freight service shows the same desire to serve the public. Daily merchandise cars are run from Boston to St. Louis and to Kansas City and Denver, making on the Wabash rails an average running time, including stops, of 21 miles per hour. Shippers, to obtain this service, should see that their shipping receipts are marked "via Wabash Railroad." 22-tf

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent occulists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.

I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and, when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.

F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.

I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.

JACOB GOLDBERG, M. D.

This is a very expensive instrument, but we consider nothing too good for our patrons, and have placed one in our optical room.

A GREAT SURPRISE IS IN STORE

for those who will go today and get a package of GRAIN-O. It takes the place of coffee at about ¼ the cost. It is a food drink, full of health, and can be given to the children as well as the adult with a great benefit. It is made of pure grains and looks and tastes like the finest grades of Mocha or Java coffee. It satisfies everyone. A cup of Grain-O is better for the system than a tonic, because its benefit is permanent. What coffee breaks down Grain-O builds up. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 15c. and 25c.

THE SCOTCH.

[A valentine addressed to Mr. Ian Maclaren of Drumtochty by his sincere admirer, John Kendrick Bangs.]

You've superseded our national game
And given to those who scoff
At national things a sport you call
The wonderful game of golf.

You've put in the place of negro tales
The tales, which you say are true,
Of the dialectual queernesses of Old Sandy MacGraw MacHugh.

You've put on the necks of our dude so brave,
All in line with your dominant plans,
Instead of the ties of the Englishmen
The plaids of the Scottish clans.

But in all of your lives there are just two things
You Scotchmen will never do,
In spite your genius and dialect
And Sandy MacGraw MacHugh.

Our climate is such you never can make,
No matter how much you vex,
Us wear the bare knees of the highland man
Or the skirts of the opposite sex.

And finally, sir, it matters no jot
How hard you Scottish men try,
You'll never succeed with all of your Scotch
In spoiling our love for rye.

—Harper's Bazar.

OLEANDERS.

"Margaret! Is it possible? After so many years! Tell me you are not a dream, Margaret! Margaret!"

John Stair put out his hands as he spoke and caught both those of the woman firmly in his hold. She, rising from her seat, gazed at him with startled eyes and parted lips, while the flowers in her lap were scattered in a rosy mass about her feet.

"I was thinking of you," the man went on in a soft voice of entire gladness. "In all the years, the long ten years, since we said goodby you have been in my remembrance always, always. At every little pause in the life which has been so full and yet so empty your face has come before me, and here just now, looking at the sea and the sunlight, the pain was more than I could bear. I turned to leave the terrace, and there you were among the flowers, Margaret. In all my life it is the first good turn that fate has done me. Tell me you are glad to see me again."

Margaret drew her hands from his with a sigh, still looking up at the thin, keen face, the gray eyes bent eagerly upon her.

"Glad—yes, I am glad," she said, but her voice was sad with the remembrance of long pain and much weeping. "It will be worse afterward—but for the moment—ah, John, how long the years have been! How lonely!"

There was a pause between them, and he sat beside her on the low bench, each afraid to break the silence, while he gathered up the flowers and laid them on her knees again. Round them azaleas and oleanders grew in a glowing curve of rosy color, shutting out the length of terrace. Before them, beyond the glitter of the white houses on the beach, lay the sea, blue and sail flecked, meeting the blue curves of the cloudless sky in its serenest mood.

"Tell me of yourself," he said at last, leaning forward and touching the flutter of black ribbons on her white dress. "I know so little—just a few meager lines in the paper or a chance remark in a man's letter. I know that he is dead, that you are free, but that is all. Tell me, Margaret."

The spell of his entreating voice was on her, and the long sorrow of her lonely life came to her in a vivid stroke which caught her by the throat in a sob and drowned the blueness of her eyes in tears.

"There is not much to tell," she answered, leaving her fingers in his clasp. "Six months after you left for India I was married to him, as you read, of course."

Her brow knitted sharply in an instant's contraction of pain, but he did not turn away.

"Yes?"

"Well, there it is—the story of my life," Margaret said, with a little smile sadder than her tears. "I was 20, penniless and pretty. I married a millionaire of 60, and you—you went to India."

A silence, while the eyes of both were bent upon the sea and the sound of music from the hotel terrace above came faintly over the flowery screen around them.

"He was generous in his way," Margaret went on after a little. "He freed my father from the money he owed him, and the boys got on all right and Dolly made a good match. Father and mother got their part of the bargain, and he—well, he got his too."

John Stair flung her hand from him suddenly and turned away sharply.

"Ah, you wince!" said Margaret bitterly. "But for me—think of it—he was hard and miserly and coarse, and I was his wife and loved you."

Stair turned to her again.

"But now? You are free?"

"Yes," she answered slowly, "I am free. Two years ago he died and left me free and rich and childless. Tell me now, John—tell me about your wife."

"Ah, no; not now," Stair said eagerly. "Let us forget for a few hours—forget all except that we have been so long apart that we have met again, Margaret."

"No, no, you shall tell me," Margaret cried sharply. "Why, why did you marry? You were a man, and strong. There was no one to torture you. You shall tell me."

The eager look on Stair's keen face faded, and his face grew white.

"It was in India. I was ill, down for months with fever, and she nursed me at the risk of her own life and good name. I could do nothing else but marry her. Poor Martha!"

"Martha—is that her name?"

"Yes."

"What is she like—your Martha?" There was a ring of scorn in Margaret's voice, but her eyes saw the sea through the glitter of her unshed tears. "What is she like?"

"A homely little body, very small and very plain. Her whole soul and affection, I think, is centered in her boy. She worships him"—

"Ah, she has a child?"

"Yes. The little one was born in India, grew up very delicate, and two years ago she brought him home. He is all right now, I believe, and she seems happy about him at last. I got leave about a month before I expected. She does not know that I am in Europe. I wandered here out of my way—not being in a hurry to get home to Martha, and found you, Margaret."

The thrill of gladness softened his voice again as he uttered her name, so long unspoken, and his eyes noted tenderly every little detail of her beauty, the glitter of her fair hair, the curves of her lovely face, the folds of her soft white dress. From the terrace above the sound of the music came faintly in a dreamy air. A warm, light breeze touched the laces and ribbons of her dress and swayed the leaves above them till the little lights and shadows danced to and fro over her figure and the flowers on her lap. The years had only added to her beauty, and they had been so long apart.

"Better that you had not—in the end better a thousand times. We must pay for it afterward with such a heavy price! Fate has been such a heavy usurer to us, my dear."

"If I could only pay for both of us," said Stair. "But, in spite of the price, tell me, Margaret, you are glad that we have met. Let fate exact what price she will, tell me that you are glad just for one minute—glad to be together and alone, dearest."

His lips touched hers, and for a moment her head lay on his shoulder. The music wailed above them, and the breeze gave a shivering sigh and left them alone, while for a minute's space life and time and the universe itself were forgotten. Then with a footfall as light as the leaves which the breeze stirred a woman came round the curve of the flowery screen and stood before them. She was very small and plain, with a wan, white face, from which the pale hair was parted in sedate, smooth bands, and her dress fell in somber folds upon the rosy blossoms which the wind had scattered from Margaret's knees to the ground. Her empty hands were interlaced, one upon another, and pressed against her bosom.

"I—heard you—a little while ago," she said after a moment, while Stair and Margaret sat dumb. "I was on the seat beyond. I heard John's voice and what he said. I am Martha."

Stair had sprung to his feet and stood looking down at her. Margaret buried her face in her hands.

"I am Martha," the level, toneless voice went on gently, "and—the child—my little son—is dead."

Stair made a step forward, but she motioned him back with a gesture.

"He was ill again, a month ago, and the doctors said I should try a warmer climate. So I brought him here to the sun and the flowers. He died a week ago, my little son, and I came to gather the flowers he was so fond of and take them to him. He loved the color, and the earth is so brown and cold upon his grave." Again she clasped her hands upon her bosom and looked at Margaret with her sad eyes that were tearless. "I heard you, John, and what you said. It is true, I know. I am plain and homely, and you married me for pity. No, indeed, I do not blame you. You were very good. Many men would not have done so much. And now—the child is dead! And you"—she turned to Margaret with a break at last in her level voice—"you have gathered all the flowers I could reach!"

Slowly Margaret lifted up her face and looked at Stair's wife—wan, with hanging black garments and hands stretched out toward the blossoms on her lap. Almost without knowing, she lifted their mass of rosy color and laid it in those empty hands. Martha held them gently and stood looking at the two for a moment—the man who was her husband and the women that he loved.

"I—will take them to the child," she said.

She turned away. In one moment the sunlight darkened to her eyes, and before Stair could catch her she had fallen on the marble of the terrace.

She had taken them to the child.—Madame.

Lime For Clover.

For a good many years past there has been a general complaint among farmers in the older states that it was impossible to get a catch of clover as freely as in olden times. Some have attributed this to a lack of potash in the soil, and there is no doubt that light applications of potash have stimulated a growth of clover where it would fail otherwise, but it seems to be now a settled fact that the failure is more often caused by acidity of the soil that can be remedied by a moderate application of lime. Clover catches more freely in a limestone soil, and those farmers who have applied 10 or 15 bushels of lime to the acre have no trouble in growing an abundance of clover annually. We all know how freely it comes in wherever wood ashes are spread or even where there has been a little fire of brush in the field, and it is probably as much from the lime that is in these ashes as from the potash that the soil is made receptive to the clover plant.—J. H. Hale in Hartford Courant.

Taught a Lesson.

A good story is told of Lord Hawke, the cricketer. When playing at Sheffield one day, he invited a well known and highly respected "professional" to take lunch with him in the "gentlemen's" pavilion. One of Lord Hawke's colleagues thought it necessary to object to the presence of a professional player at the table. "Then, sir," said his lordship, turning to his friend, "since I cannot entertain you here perhaps I may have the pleasure of lunching with you." And with these words Lord Hawke proceeded to the players' meal in their pavilion.—Pearson's Weekly.

Luigi Ascends Mt. St. Elias.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 26.—A special from Nanaimo says: Prince Luigi of Savoy and party of Italians reached the summit of Mount St. Elias July 31 at 12 o'clock, noon. The altitude indicated by the mercurial barometer is 18,100 feet. The party was 51 days on snow and ice without sickness or accidents. The Italians are returning on the Topeka.

Russia and Germany.

London, Aug. 26.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily News says that Count Muravieff, the Russian foreign minister, has informed M. Hanotaux, the French foreign minister, now in St. Petersburg with M. Faure, that Russia will act hand in hand with Germany in the peace negotiations between Greece and Turkey.

Cuban Question First.

London, Aug. 26.—The Standard's correspondent at San Sebastian says: I learn that Spain has often intimated her willingness to make considerable reductions in the contemplated West Indian tariffs in order to develop the trade of Cuba with the United States, and was willing to negotiate a reciprocity treaty when the Dingley tariff came into force. But the United States government received her advances coldly because it wanted the Cuban question first. Indeed Spain is now aware that American diplomacy will soon raise other and more important issues before any commercial questions are likely to be mooted.

Killed In a Mine.

Shelburn, Vt., Aug. 26.—A. K. Moore, a member of the firm of McNall & Moore, millers, was killed in a terrible manner at his mill yesterday afternoon. He was caught in the shafting and his body crushed. He leaves a widow, one son and a daughter.

SITUATION IS WORSE.

Government of India Has a Grave Crisis to Confront.

Afridis Rebels Now Control Kyber Pass.

To Dislodge Them Will Be a Most Severe and Bloody Task.

Bombay, Aug. 26.—Advices from the frontier indicate that a crisis is at hand and that fighting is going on. The government regards the situation as very grave. Immediate action will be taken to suppress the rebellion.

The government is confronted with the following state of affairs: Khyber pass has fallen into the hands of the Afridis; the posts in Kurran valley are threatened by the powerful tribe of the Orakzais; the Mohmand tribesmen are meditating an renewal of hostilities around Fort Shabkadr, while thousands of troops are engaged in crushing the revolt in the Swat valley and two large brigades are holding the Tochi valley, where the Mahsud-Mazliris are again hostile.

The authorities are convinced that Fort All-Musjid could only have fallen after desperate fighting, as the native garrison of Khyber rifles, grand fighters, were made up of men who rendered valuable assistance in the Black mountain expedition of 1888. The fall of the fort is a very serious blow, for it isolates Fort Lundi-Kotal, which is at the extreme end or Khyber pass, garrisoned by 300 Khyber rifles and necessitates the prompt reconquest of the pass.

This is certain to prove a most formidable task, of which the British troops had a foretaste on Monday, when a body of artillery, cavalry and infantry left Fort Bara, South of Peshawur, in order to repel the Afridis, who were then advancing down the Bazi valley. The troops returned early Tuesday morning and reported that many of the men had dropped out for want of water, none being procurable along the route, while the Afridis, although shelled by the British, maintained their position on the heights, threatening the loyal village of Kadam and the British position, Fort Jamrud, at the mouth of the pass.

Fort Jamrud is held by a strong force of British and native troops, and the British front extends about 35 miles from Shabkadr along the north side of the Cabul river and southwards to Peshawur, where the troops are massing as the Bazoa demonstration against Orakzais, who occupy the region south of the Afridis, but have not yet assumed the belligerent proportions of their northern neighbors. There is a rising, however, of small parties, which is proving troublesome, near Kohat, and it is expected that both tribes will try to close the Kohat pass. Numbers of tribesmen are moving up towards Khyber from Kohat and that district, making the salt tariff the pretext for hostilities.

The wildest excitement prevails among the Hindoo traders at Banu on Kurram river. It is rumored that 5000 Waziris intend to swoop down there, sack the town and massacre the inhabitants. The mullah and his emissaries, especially those from the Afghan governor of Khost, are actively stirring up the Waziris, who are also affected by the disloyal attitude of the Kurrum tribes, and emboldened by the knowledge that the garrison at Banu is very weak.

There is one ground for satisfaction in the fact that except in a few instances the Afridi levies remain loyal in the face of temptation to join their kinsmen, as was conspicuously the case at Fort Maude.

Somewhat more hopeful intelligence comes from the Swat valley, where the Bonerwals have opened up peace negotiations. The authorities expect that this will have a widespread influence, especially if it is followed by submission. It appears that the Bonerwals have suffered far heavier losses during the recent fighting than has been supposed.

Cuban Situation.

Havana, Aug. 26.—There are 40,000 Spanish soldiers in the hospitals in Havana and at other principal points. About 2000 are sent back monthly to Spain incapacitated. Sickness is increasing. The health of the city is not good. The official reports show that for the week ending Aug. 12 the death rate was 90 per 1000. Business is at a complete standstill. The army is not being paid, and a feeling of hopelessness prevails among Spaniards and Cubans alike. No one has much faith in the success of General Woodford's mission to Spain. The situation throughout the entire island is one of inaction. The insurgents are not on the move, except in the case of small bodies searching for provisions. Stories of important recent engagements are unfounded. The United States consuls throughout the island have been refused leave of absence and are restless under the restraint. Several of them are sick and wish temporary relief.

Foresters' Officers.

Denver, Aug. 26.—The selection of supreme officers of the Foresters of America occurred yesterday afternoon. These were selected: Joshua A. Shaw, New York, supreme chief ranger; Thomas F. Donahue, Rhode Island, supreme treasurer; E. McMurtry, Lowell, Mass., supreme financial secretary; A. Hogan, Lowell, Mass., supreme recording secretary; James Smith, Connecticut, senior woodward; W. J. Bork, Pennsylvania, junior woodward; J. E. Mussard, Denver, senior beadle; John P. Semar, Massachusetts, junior beadle; trustees, H. E. Mooney, New York; J. P. Sullivan, Massachusetts; J. J. Doyle, New Hampshire; auditors, J. W. O'Reilly, New York; J. T. Wafer, Brooklyn; William Duge, New York.

Bourne's New Library.

Bourne, Mass., Aug. 26.—The formal opening of the Jonathan Bourne public library occurred yesterday. The address by Joseph Jefferson was especially good. Rev. S. S. Seward of New York, M. C. Waterhouse, Rev. N. H. Chamberlain, Superintendent of Schools Tice and others also spoke. A letter from ex-President Cleveland expressing regret at his absence was read.

G. A. R. MEN IN LINE.

the department of Connecticut arrived at the place of review. Lunch was served at a private residence near by.

The department of Massachusetts was also disappointed at not seeing the president. The stay at lunch was very brief, however, and by the time the Rhode Island delegation had come in sight the president and Governor Black were back in their places, and the president was again bowing and smiling and lifting his hat to the veterans in an indefatigable manner. At five minutes after 2 the Washington (D. C.) division passed, and was accorded a special welcome by the president, the colored veterans being especially recognized. The Michigan division earned great applause for its appearance.

General Alger In the Ranks.

When Fairbank post of Detroit came along, Secretary of War Alger was seen upon the right flank of the first company, marching in the post uniform. the president pointed him out and the stand occupants gave General Alger a round of applause.

With Lafayette post of Indiana walked General Lew Wallace and he received a warm welcome. At the head of the Minnesota division a drum corps of the oldest veterans attracted the attention of the president, and he gave them a special recognition. Not one of the interesting features of the parade missed the president's attention, and he laughed heartily at the corn and wheat displays of the West and the complimentary reference to prosperity.

It was 10 minutes after 3 when New York State Department Commander Shaw and his staff saluted the president and the New York state veterans began to file by.

They comprised two divisions and formed the largest department in line.

The tattered flags of New York elicited the greatset applause, and Gettysburg post of New York city was heartily cheered. On and on went the column, and for over an hour it was nothing but New Yorkers. Jefferson county's representation stopped in front of the stand and cheered for the president. Oneida county paid a similar tribute. General Alger joined the reviewing party while the New York delegation was passing. It was close to 5 o'clock when the last of the New York state division passed the stand, and after nearly six hours of constant attention, the president and Governor Black were driven to their hotel, amid three cheers of old soldiers and the applause of a vast crowd of people.

Throughout the entire day the great crowd was most orderly and there was no intrusion upon the president. The president admitted that he was tired with the day's work, but said he was pleased.

It is estimated that there were over 45,000 veterans in line.

President McKinley, after his return to the hotel, said of the parade:

"Even to a veteran the sight was a most surprising as well as inspiring one. It is too bad that every child in the country could not see it, for it would surely inspire patriotism and inculcate all the good qualities that go to make up the American citizen. I had never supposed until today that so many brave survivors of the war were capable of following martial music through city streets. Such a display of patriotic courage cannot fail but be of benefit to the entire country."

President Visits Camp Jewett.

President McKinley visited the G. A. R. encampment at Camp Jewett this morning. He intended going there yesterday afternoon, and all arrangements had been made for his reception, but he concluded that he was too weary. Mrs. McKinley and Mrs. Alger were both worn out yesterday and could not attend the evening exercises. Senator Hanna dined with the president last evening. He said that it had been decided by the president and Mrs. McKinley to board his yacht this afternoon and go from here to Cleveland. Secretary and Mrs. Alger will be of the party.

The Commercial says: Some indications, based upon a careful inquiry among the various posts in the city, favor the election of General Gobin of Pennsylvania as the next commander-in-chief, and if the place of holding the next encampment is first decided and Cincinnati wins Gobin's election is a sure thing.

There were many prostrations from heat and other causes among the marching veterans and the ambulances were constantly on the move. Fully 200 people were treated for different ailments. Archbishop Ireland was mustered into the Grand Army of the Republic last night. He has been considered, popularly, as a member of the G. A. R., but it was not until yesterday that he really became a comrade. He has been a member of the Loyal Legion for many years.

Past Commander-in-Chief Kountz secured a dispensation from Commander-in-Chief Clarkson authorizing Past Commander-in-Chief Lawler to muster the archbishop into the G. A. R.

Congratulatory addresses were made by General O. O. Howard, Past Commander Lawler, Commander Adams of Lafayette post and others.

American National Party.

St. Louis, Aug. 26.—The first national convention of the American party, a new political organization, which, as the call issued from Detroit says, will be devoted to the restoration of the spirit and sentiment of the original federal constitution, met here yesterday with about 50 delegates present from nine states and one territory. The states represented are New York, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Colorado, Louisiana and Indian Territory.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all uffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

WHITE PASS ROAD.

Company Will Build One Next Year to Reach the Yukon.

Skaguay, Alaska, Aug. 17, via Seattle, Wash., Aug. 26.—A civil engineer of Juneau, C. E. Garthside, and six assistants, are now surveying the White pass in the interest of an English syndicate, which intends to run a railroad from Skaguay, the entrance to the pass to Taku Arm, 68 miles, and eventually to the Hootalinqua river, 110 miles. This road, when completed, will form the shortest and quickest route to the Yukon country, and it is the intention of the company to build wharves and warehouses at Skaguay. The highest altitude of the road will be at the summit of the White pass, 2600 feet.

The road will cost more per mile than other railroads, but as the trail is the natural outlet from the Yukon the promoters expect to reap large returns. The present trail over the pass used so much at present by ingoing miners was cut by this company.

Mr. Garthside states that it will be impossible for more than one-quarter of the men now on the trail to reach the Klondyke this year. Work on the railroad will be commenced in the spring and the road to Taku will probably be completed in six months from then. Skaguay is destined to become a large town and should the railroad become a fact will distance Juneau as an outfitting and general commircial point.

Many Juneau merchants have opened branch stores here already. The great majority of people arriving cannot get down the river this year, and those who realize this fact are locating lots in Skaguay and starting to build. In a year the town will undoubtedly contain 2500 to 5000 inhabitants.

The White pass in its present condition is passable for the entire distance to Lake Bennett, and a man without a pack can go over it in 24 hours, and it seems to be the better trail for those who have brought horses with them.

COLD, BUT NO GRUB.

Reported That Provisions Are Growing Very Short at Dawson.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 26.—The steamer Williamette arrived from Alaska yesterday carrying the following passengers:

J. W. Virgin, J. H. Webber, W. H. Hockaday, C. H. J. Wiseman, A. Bell and Arthur Needham. The Williamette left Skaguay, Thursday, Aug. 19, Juneau Friday and Sitka, Saturday. She brought down no gold, although $20,000 was offered by a party of four men who had crossed over from Dawson City, leaving there Sunday, July 4.

These men, however, only wanted to come as far as Juneau, where they expected to winter, and as the purser was not sure at the time the gold was offered that the boat would stop at Juneau, he declined to take it on board.

They reported that provisions at Dawson were growing very short.

One of them said that he had a friend who had several buckets of gold, but was living on a daily diet of two spoonfuls of beans and a piece of bacon as large as his hand.

Tornado In Connecticut

Danbury, Conn., Aug. 26.—A minature tornado struck the town of Bethel, about four miles from this place, yesterday afternoon. The rumble could be heard for fully 10 minutes before the wind struck the village. Nearly 100 trees were torn up by the roots, so strong was the wind, and the tin roof of William Ohler's large three story frame house was lifted bodily from the roof boards and hurled a distance of 100 yards Dishes and other household articles were shaken from the shelves in a number of houses and the horse shed of Georg A. Kinner, a hat wire manufacturer, was completely destroyed, portions of it being carried at least 400 feet and scattered in every direction. The tornado came, apparently, out of a cloudless sky, and the wind blew with great force for about five minutes, when it subsided as quickly as it had come. At the Bethel reservoir, at the same time, there was a cloudburst of no mean proportions, and the banking around the reservoir was badly washed away.

Car Jumped Track.

Revere, Mass., Aug. 26.—A Lynn and Boston electric car jumped the track at Crescent Beach last evening and collided with another going in the opposite direction. Both were loaded with passengers and several of them were thrown out and severely bruised, though no one was seriously injured. The presence of mind of a motorman, who suddenly reversed the power, alone prevented a very bad catastrophe. The injured are: Mrs. Dr. Shapira, 80 Green street, Boston, internal injuries; Miss Minnie Desmond, Chelsea, knee injured; Miss Nellie Denning, Chelsea, injury to arm; Miss Gertie White, Revere, leg injured; Mrs. F. M. Jones, Somerville, injury to knee; Mrs. E. Chickering, Medford, knee injured; W. L. Chitterbuck, Greenfield, bruised over the eye. The injured were attended by a local physician and later were sent to their homes.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

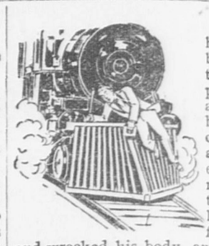
The National Wholesale Grocers' association held its third session at New York yesterday.

General Wilson, chief of the engineers of the United States army, is on a tour of inspection of works in New England.

The Spanish queen regent will not formally receive General Woodford, the United States minister designate, until after the court returns to Madrid from San Sebastian.

The bakers of Indianapolis have scaled down the size of their loaves. The bakers say that it is only a question of time when the loaves will be made still smaller, as when the flour which they now have in stock is exhausted they will have to buy at an advance price.

The general strike of the cloakmakers of New York and vicinity, which has been threatened for a long time, has been ordered. Henry Fischer of the board of walking delegates of the Brotherhood of Cloakmakers announced that the 12,000 cloakmakers in the brotherhood will be called out today.



The man who has been struck by a locomotive and is picked up alive and carried on by the cow-catcher has had a miraculous escape. The man who through neglect has sacrificed his health and wrecked his body, and through the merits of a medicine is picked up alive and restored to health has had an almost equally wonderful experience. There are thousands of men, who have for years overworked themselves to the neglect of their health, and then when utterly wrecked in body and shattered in nerve have been picked up and restored to health by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It is a marvelous remedy that corrects all disorders of the digestion, invigorates the liver, and fills the blood with the life-giving elements that build new flesh and muscle. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption and is a specific for diseases due to disorders of the digestion or imperfect nutrition. Druggists sell it.

"Myself and wife," writes Mr. H. G. Adams, of Turners Station, Henry Co., Ky., "have taken five bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription.' The medicines are curing both of us. We can't say too much for them or for you. My wife persuaded me to quit the doctor here and try one bottle of your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I did so, and I thank God for it. I have recommended it highly to many of my neighbors. I told them that if it did not do them one dollar's worth of good that I would pay for it.

"I will give you a little statement of my own case. I was enervated, could hardly get up in the morning, never got a whole night's sleep, was short of breath, had a tight feeling in the stomach, and was restless. I would throw up my food, and had numerous other ailments which I have not time to write about now. I now feel better and look better than ever before in my life."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the surest, safest, quickest cure for constipation. They never gripe. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Substitutes are sometimes dangerous, and always cause discomfort.

Things Personal and Impersonal in Quincy

Bits of Flotsam Found On Many Seas.

How the Political Field Appears Before the Lawn Mower of Public Opinion.

A few days ago I took occasion to say a thing or two about reporters who are forever digging in the mire of immorality and who always are very anxious to defend their position by covering themselves with the cloak of journalism. True journalism compells no man or woman to lower themselves to the level of the beast in order that the ends of the profession may be attained. My ever entertaining contemporary, the Scribbler of the Brockton Enterprise, has something to say on the subject. Listen—"I suppose the reporter who wrote that had to live," thoughtfully remarked a citizen after reading an "expose" of Brockton the other day. The citizen was too kind. There is no reason why a man should live who writes that sort of slush and defamatory sensationalism. He isn't needed on the earth; he has no place or excuse for being here. It is idle to say that reporters must go where they're sent. Does anyone suppose that first-class reporters are sent out to get alleged evidence against New York and Boston dives, and drink poor rum and induce poor wretches of women to commit filthy crimes in their company? Does anyone suppose that the reporters sent revolt at the nature of their employment? Not for a minute. They enjoy it; they revel in it; they take pride and pleasure in acting as the "sleuths of newspaperdom." The work suits them down to the ground. Waste no pity on "the reporters that must live." The man who for a few dollars will deliberately do dirty work of any kind kind is not to be pitied. He is to be exterminated like a snake, and deserves nothing better of his fellowmen than the treatment meted out to the snake family. Like them, he is dirty, slimy, treacherous, and drives his poison into friend and foe alike.

The political horoscope which was given publicity in this column some weeks ago has been found fault with by some would-be politicians and office seekers. There are many in the city who are willing to stake their all on the chances of Herbert M. Federhen being the candidate for Mayoralty honors on the Republican ticket. "Herb" Federhen is a mighty good fellow and would make a good man for Quincy's chief executive, a fact that anyone who ever pulled on the ropes or manned the brakes on the old Vulture, or whoever has had the good luck to play on a scrub nine with him at Quincy Point, will testify to. If the unvarnished sentiment of the Hammond faction could be seen aright, the name of Mr. Federhen would be their first choice. In addition to the Hammondites, there are many other citizens who supported Mr. Adams at the last two elections who would gladly do service for the Point man if Mr. Adams should be out of the race at this next campaign. I realized all these things when I placed the tout finit at the end of my former article. But—if it wasn't for the buts and ifs in this world, the earth's history from Genesis down to the present day would have to be rewritten—but—I say again, I understood the situation as the men who will run the campaign understood it, and if some of my embryonic critics in matters political had been in a position to obtain their information as I was enabled to obtain it, their lyres would have been attuned differently. The name of Mr. Bryant has been mentioned before and will be again before the municipal convention but—after that it will be heard less. Mr. Bryant's name has been mentioned before and Mr. Bryant has arisen to assure the citizens of Quincy that he will not be a candidate for Mayor. This means in political diplomacy that Mr. Bryant does not want the nomination—if he cannot get it. At the very outset the gentlemen from Ward Wollaston has begun to exhibit the traits which mark the politician and those who intend to oppose this man's chances will have to provide themselves with a political lexicon if they would successfully translate the Gallia est Omnis of this would-be Caesar. The record of Mr. Bryant in recent years is well know to every schoolboy. His opposition to Mr. Hammond's candidacy was only equalled by his regard for the street railway company. It was due largely to his work and enthusiasm that "Fifth Estate" revolted so ferociously against Mr. Hammond and it was due in some degree to this revolt that the part of Wollaston known as Quincy was saved to the house of Adams. Mr. Bryant, since his advent to the Council, has displayed various characteristics which have made friends and enemies for him at different periods. His first motto has been "Wollaston, Right or Wrong!" and in sticking to that motto by riding rough-shod over the Council, he has displayed a lack of tact and discretion that would not well adorn the Mayoralty chair. In his efforts to keep the Council down to a business basis, he is to be commended and his fights against the street railway company were, at times, worthy of support, while at other times, they showed Mr. Bryant's ideas were to be considered paramont to the interests of the city. I may be mistaken, but I can form an idea that with Mr. Bryant in the Mayor's chair there would be a volcanic eruption in the departments under him. If he would guarantee fhis beforehand, he would find many supporters. Mr. Bryant has tried to retrieve some of the political indiscretions that he has been the author of, by influencing Congressman Barrows to endorse for the Postmastership, the candidacy of Mr. Hammond. Such support from such a quarter was a surprise both to many Republicans, and citizens of all political beliefs in particular. If this move on Mr. Bryant's part was made to catch the sympathy of the Hammondites, he is lacking one move yet before he can jump into the kingrow and that one move is the fact that Mr. Hammond is not yet Postmaster. If the city election could be postponed until after President McKinley has given the desired approval, the chances of Mr, Bryant's success could be more accurately determined. But, since the Postmastership is yet an unknown quantity, the followers of Mr. Hammond will look with suspicion on this new Colossus who would like to stand with one foot on City Hall and the other on Third Hill. As to the other candidate who has been mentioned, Mr. Thompson has been saying nothing out loud though it can be stated that the old simile of the saw horse and cord wood can be appropriately used in this case. Mr. Thompson was a candidate for Mayor once before but it was at a time when circumstances so shaped themselves that his position was an unenviable one. Mr. Thompson has followed the rounds of the political ladder that some of his predecessors for Mayoralty honors have climbed before him, and it is not unnatural for him to aspire for the goal reached by some who were not better fitted to hold it than he. Mr. Thompson has wisely kept aloof from the family quarrels of the Republican party and if the proper conditions could be exacted from him he might get the united support of both factions.

In the Democratic party there is more or less haziness along the political horizon. The popular cry, however, seems to be in favor of some man who will have Democracy in him to put none but Democrats on guard at City Hall. When Mayor Adams was first elected to office, it was thought that he would act the part of the political shifter but those who expected him to do this were disappointed. When he was nominated for the office a second time, it was confidently expected that he would profit by one year's experience and do something—anything—if only to emulate Mrs. Partington. But he didn't. Our Chief Executive is a thorough gentleman and, in spite of his highstation, executive and social, nobody need fear any embarrasment in approaching him. He is the very personification of good, old-fashioned Democracy, and he endeavors to make everybody who has business dealings with him or the city, to feel perfectly at home in his presence and go away feeling satisfied that the citizens of Quincy have a man in the Mayor's chair who can be depended upon to keep in touch with the common people as often as the occasion requires it. But—another but—Mayor Adams is not a politician. Perhaps he does not care to be, and I do not blame him much for not wanting, but it is the successful politician nowadays who is accorded a triumph; a man who will throw feelings of personal pride to the winds in order that he may be solid with his party and his party's "machine." Mayor Adams went about making his appointments as suited his fancy. In this he undoubtedly did right from the point of view from which he looked at the situation but a man who is the candidate of a political party is supposed to have no views of his own when the interests of the party are at stake-he must leave that to the "machine" and, if he doesn't, then he had better have his requisecat in pace engraved on his political tombstone in time for, after he has departed, you can bet your dollar wheat, whatever that term means, that his erstwhile political friends of the "machine" will see to it that some other inscription is written on the stone that marks his political resting place. Mayor Adams, in making his appointments, did not stop to consider whether or not the man whom he wanted was a Democrat; he simply looked about for the men who suited his ideas of good government best, and he appointed them to office regardless of the criticism which followed. It was a bold step to take and it is safe to say that no such precedent will be established by a Republican Mayor and it is this knowledge which prompts the partyites to look around for a man who will make a "clean sweep" of the stone fortress that guards the cemetery. The persistency and unique promptness with which the officials in charge of the collection of the taxes pursued their task has called forth much adverse censure this year as it did last. In spite of the hard times, the summonses and warrants for unpaid taxes were turned out in job lots and many a poor but worthy taxpayer found himself seriously handicapped when brought face to face with the mandate—"Pay now or go to jail!" That there are "dead beats" who make a business of evading taxes as they do everything else, I have not the slightest doubt and I do not blame the authorities for making an example of them, but it is a fact that these evaders are the ones who do so year in and year out, and as they are well known to those in charge of the department regulating the collection of taxes, it did seem a little beyond the limit of necessity to exact the "pound of flesh" from all for the sake of a few, ere the arm was bared for the operation. It has been said that the officials of the tax department were not to blame for doing this; that it was the orders from other sources because money in the city treasury was low and that the only way to preserve the credit of the city was to collect the taxes as speedily as possible. If this were so, 'twere well that it should have been explained to the people for if there is anything that will cause the mercury of public opinion to fluctuate, it is the influence caused by taxation. Even while attending rallies in favor of his candidacy last year, Mayor Adams was besought personally after the meetings by many poor men whose one complaint against the administration was the one relating to this "hounding" after the taxes. It isn't the travelling, it's the pace that kills. "Sometimes our indiscretions serve us well" but it is not so certain that political destines are waiting for the chance to shape our ends, whether they be rough-hewed or not.

Did you notice how the people of Wollaston swooped down upon the Council at the last meeting. It was to be expected that the people of Ward 5 would "kick" when the announcement of the proposed extension of the electric car service through it's streets was announced. If any other part of the city had been invaded by the street railway company, the people of Wollaston would have looked on encouragingly and would have applauded the effort but when it came to laying the tracks in Wollaston's streets, Oh no, you mustn't think of doing that and why? Oh we are Wollaston you know and are "exempt from public haunt." Wollaston would fain be a second Milton in this respect but it is to be hoped that the City Council will look the matter squarely in the face and treat Wollaston the same as it would any other section of the city.

STYLUS.

MARRIED A BOSTON BRIDE.

Mr. Philip D. Cook of this city was united in marriage to Miss Mary Watson of Boston on Wednesday evening, the ceremony taking place at the parochial residence of St. Patrick's church.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the happy couple were driven to the home of the bride where a reception was held.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook were the recipients of many handsome and useful presents. They will, after a short trip, reside in this city, the groom having business interests here, being a member of the granite firm of M. E. Cook & Co.

BOLD BREAK.

Burglars Do a Cool and Daring Job.

Ransacked a Store on Granite Street.

Provided Themselves with New Wardrobes From Collars to Boots.

Burglars of the most advanced type of the make-yourself-at-home brand made a bold break at Pierson's variety store at Swithins's Corner on Wednesday evening about 11 o'clock.

The burglars gained an entrance by removing a pane of glass from a rear window. Once inside they prepared to conduct themselves as if they were in their own homes.

They fitted themselvs to underwear, over-shirts, shoes and even to the latest style collars. They also took two pipes, one, a meerchaum worth $8 and another, a brier valued at $2.50.

Before leaving the store they invaded the tonic case and helped themselves to hop beer. Mr. Pierson also reports that they stole a quantity of cheap jewellry and two boxes of rings.

A lot of burnt matches was found on the floor of the store by Mr. Pierson and he is congratulating himself to think that his place was not burnt out.

A light was seen in the store about 11 o'clock on the evening of the break but it was thought by the man who saw it that the proprietor was inside.

Mr. Pierson states that the goods taken were valued at about $50.

IN AID OF A CHURCH.

The annual concert and dance in aid of the church of St. Frances-by-the-Sea was held at the Houghs Neck Opera House last night and, like it's predecessors, it was a grand success, socially and financially.

The programme which had been arranged under the supervision of Rev. John F. Purcell, was as pleasing as it was varied.

The numbers were as follows:

Song, Miss Grace McVey
Recitation, Mr. Edward Machiavelli
Song, "Mona" Miss Mary E. Elcock
Song, "Beware of That Handsome Young girl," Helen Sheahan, Evangeline White, Bertha Linden, May Bailey.
Song "The Lily and the Rose," Miss Julia Donohue
Song, Mr. Daniel J. Padula
Dance, Evangeline White and Helen Sheahan
Song, "Come over the Moonlight Sea," Misses Annie and Eleanor Roche
Song, "I Love My Girl," May Bailey
Song, John Phelan
Song, "All Coons Look Alike to Me," Helen Sheahan
Song, "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," Evangeline White
Pianists, Misses Barron and Sheahan.

At the close of the concert, dancing was enjoyed until 2 o'clock this morning. Special cars were in readiness to convey people to Quincy at the close of the dance.

ODD ITEMS

An experimental race was recently made in a French office between a skillful type writer and an expert penman, the test being the number of times a phrase of eight words could be reproduced in five minutes. The typewriter scored 37 and the penman 23.

Somebody has noticed that the cheerful alacrity with which a young man will guide his girl towards a milliner's shop window before they are married is equalled only by the marvelous skill with which he will steer her away from one after she becomes his wife.

If there was anything the late Senator Harris loved it was the press. If he could have his way he once said, he would "melt all the type into bullets and turn all the paper into wads and all the presses into guns and shoot the head off every editor in the United States."

A CONTINUOUS PERFORMANCE.

If the District Court room was a newspaper office, the title "Schætzl vs. Schætzl" would be kept "standing" in type and if the aforesaid Court was to be transformed into a variety theatre, this celebrated case would undoubtedly be advertised as a continuous performance.

Another act of this famous family feud was heard in the Court yesterday morning when John Schætzl, his wife Annie Schætzl and his son Louis Schætzl, were arraigned for assault on John B. Schætzl. The alleged assault took place on Wednesday evening on a private way that has been the subject of litigation between both families of the Schætzls.

Some time ago, the Superior Court granted an injunction restraining the family of John Schætzl from preventing the other Schætzls from passing over this private way which leads from Willard street in the vicinity of No. 14. Wednesday morning, as John B. Schætzl told the story, when he started to drive out from his place, this private way over which he had to pass before reaching Willard street, was covered with tin cans and broken glass which, he alleged, the other Schætzl family placed there to cause him annoyance. He cleared the debris away and when he returned home at night he found that the street was in a worse condition than when he left home in the morning.

He said he started to clear it away when the three defendants came out at him and assaulted him, and as evidence of the assault he exhibited several marks on his head and arm.

Caroline Schætzl, testified that she saw Annie Schætzl with a rake, that she saw Louis Schætzl throw a stone and that she also saw little Annie Schætzl, or, as she called her, "the little kid", throw a stone.

From all accounts it was a lively scrimmage and it might have resulted more seriously if Officer John J. Barron had not arrived on the scene just then and placed the three defendants under arrest. The officer said that when he arrived at the scene of the fight John B. Schætzl's head was cut and covered with blood and he bore other marks of the assault.

The defendants claimed that John B. Schætzl was the agressor and whatever hitting they did, it was in self defence.

Judge Humphrey, in reviewing the case, said that if it was true the defendants had been ordered by the Superior Court to offer no molestation to John B. Schætzl while travelling over this private way, they would probably be sent to jail for disobeying the order of the Court if the case should come to trial in the Superior Court at Dedham and it could be proved there that the said order of the Court had been disobeyed. He then imposed a fine of $10 on John and Louis Schætzl and he discharged Annie Schætzl.

John and Louis Schætzl appealed from the decision of the Court and were held in $200 bonds for trial in the Superior Court at Dedham on the first Monday in September.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The summer season at the Castle Square Theatre ends with the coming week and the attraction announced by Director Tony Cummings is Mr. Paul M. Potter's dramatization of George de Maurier's celebrated novel, "Trilby," by special arrangement with Messrs. A. M. Palmer and William A. Brady. The organization has been added to for this production.

On Monday, September 6th., the Castle Square Theatre Stock Company, organized for the coming Fall and Winter season, makes its appearance in Belasco' and De Millie's famous comedy, "The Charity Ball", which will be produced in a most elaborate style. Many improvements have been made in the theatre for the coming season and the additional decorations will include a new curtain from the design of Mr. Ansel Cook.

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?

In spite of statement that the tide of prosperity has turned from it's ebb and is working shorewards, there are a lot of doubting Thomases in the country who will not bring themselves to believe that any optomistic signs are in evidence unless they can see the show with there own eyes. That has been the experience in Quincy at any rate. Unfortunately this city has been obliged to depend upon one industry for it's advancement and success and it has been found out many a time from bitter experience that whenever the granite business is dull, the entire city falls into a state of lassitude from which there is no escape. To encourage us during the years of business depression that have just passed, we were told that the granite trade would pick up in time and we were reminded that it was always the first business to collaspe and the last to be resurrected in times of business instability. With the election of a Republican president and a Republican Congress we were told that what the granite industry needed for a stimulus was a higher tariff and both Republicans and Democrats alike waited patiently for the day when the tariff bill became a law and a duty of 50 per cent. was placed on foreign granites. Of course it is a little early yet to see prosperity blooming up like a dandelion; nobody expects that right away, but what would set the people of Quincy at rest is the guarantee that business in the granite industry would improve some time no matter when. That much in itself would be a consummation devoutly to be wished. We may be wrong in inferring, but there are many of our citizens who are of the opinion that the granite industry of Quincy has been confined too limitedly to the monumental line of work. Of course, Quincy, situated as it is, has to depend a good deal on the deaths of other people for it's own prosperity and the sentiment in the past has been to confine the work of Quincy towards one particular branch of the trade while neglecting to look after the other lines of work, especially in the building line. If, as our manufacturers proudly claim, that Quincy granite is the very best stone in the world for monumental or building purposes, why not let "the dead past" take care of itself and let Quincy advance into the arena of fair competition where live men are the ones who want work done and are willing to pay for it? During the past few months contracts for public buildings have been awarded by the wholesale and out of all the contracts so awarded, we have not noticed in any instance where Quincy granite was to be used. Our granite men should bestir themselves if they have not in the past, to the great possibilities that are awaiting the reception of a good stone that will stand the test of time. In days of yore, when Quincy was a smaller but far more busier place than it is now, her granite was famous far and near for it's many qualities. Those were days when the government buildings from New York to New Orleans were the best monuments that Quincy conld have erected to her name and today they stand as firm and as beautiful as the day they were dedicated.

As we have said before, the monuments which Quincy has sent out in recent years have had requiescat in paces inscribed upon them and we are inclined to believe that the products sent out from here have been expressive of the place from which they were sent.

If there is a chance for a showing for granite in building work throughout the length and breadth of the universe, Quincy wants that chance and we can guarantee to give a return that will ensure satisfaction to the parties receiving it as it will guarantee a title of honor for the place that sends it out for public inspection.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Now that the question of nominating a successor to Mr. Morrell of the County Commissioners has arisen, it would be well for the citizens of Quincy to unite in demanding that the member of the board to be, should come from this city. Quincy is the only city in the county and it has more inhabitants than any of the other towns. For some years past the interests of the city of Quincy have not been looked after with that care which has marked the actions of the Commissioners in other places. When Quincy was represented on the board before it was by Mr. John Q. A. Field and he made as good a Commissioner as ever undertook to conduct the business of the County. If it had not been for Mr. Field's knowledge of affairs as they really existed, much of the wrongdoings brought out at the recent investigation would never have seen the light of public opinion. Mr. Field would be a first class man to have back on the board and we hope the citizens of Quincy will bestir themselves before it is too late.

Whenever a resolution favoring the employment of Quincy citizens on our public works has been introduced into the Council, it has always been accompanied by a sneer from some quarters and from others objections have been received on the ground of alleged illegality of the action. In this connection it will be interesting to read the following from the Marlboro Times:

"If the opinion recently rendered by the solicitors for the town of Revere holds good in the courts, it is more than likely that there will be an attempt made in many places to do away with the contract system on public works and, to a certain extent, establish the day system, or at the outside, employ only full fledged citizens. It seems Revere voted in town meeting to erect a building by day labor and to employ thereon only union workmen. The legality of this action was questioned and referred to the solicitors, who are attorneys of good repute doing business in Boston who have rendered a detailed opinion sustaining the action of the town."

George A. Litchfield, who was the one-time president of the Massachusets Benefit Life Association, is out with a public notice in which he says that he will be pleased to hear from any of his old friends who have lost money by the failure of the above-named association and that he will do his best to replace their insurance in some other company if they want him to.

When we read this notice we thought that the pen of Editor John B. Wright of the Haverhill Gazette would be dipped in vitriol as soon as his eagle eye rested on the invitation of Mr. Litchfield. Nor were we disappointed. Here is what Editor Wright says:

Really George, you cannot be of the least assistance. What the policy holders want at the present juncture is advice upon which they can place implicit reliance. You see the point don't you George? No one of them questions your—shall we say sincerity and let it go at that,—but they do not see how such advice as you would be likely to give would benefit them in the least. They might consult with Insurance Commissioner Merrill, but hardly with you.

This hue and cry about dollar September wheat being a boon to the farmer who raised it does not amount to much when you come to shell the kernels. The September wheat has been gobbled up by the speculators long ago and any profit that may come from this particular brand of dollar wheat goes right into the pockets of the men who hold seats in the various stock exchanges. If you don't believe this, just look at the papers for two weeks past and see the names of the men who have made thousands of dollars in a single day from the wheat stock manipulation. When prosperity comes, it will come in substance, nor will it be hatched out by the aid of stock exchange incubators.

How man European monarchs would have dared to ride at the head of an immense procession through crowds that numbered thousands, and entirely unprotected by military, as did President McKinley at the Grand Army parade in Buffalo on Wednesday? The magnificent reception which the nation's head received at Buffalo, from citizens of all classes and creeds, proved far more forcibly than any oral or written argument could have done, that there is no welcome in this country for anarchists or others of their ilk.

It has got so now that when a man gets drunk and finds himself in Brockton and is in such a condition that he doesn't know where he belongs, he is at once "set down" as coming from Quincy. Is this one of the advantages of being a no-license place?

The Boston Transcript, mindful perhaps of its own city government, remarks:—"It is proposed to put the figurehead of the old flagship Hartford in the Hartford City Hall, but if it is like most City Halls, it has too many figureheads already."

This is a queer world. Out in Chicago the other day a man was bound hand and foot by people at whom he had thrown gold dollars. The people who thus confined him explained their action by the fact that the man was insane.

Even though Editor Noyes of the Taunton Herald is an unmarried man, he takes great delight in making the children of that city happy. The children's outing under the auspices of the Herald the other day was a "howling" success.

John Barron used to be a good ball player when he covered first base for the old St. John's nine and since he has become a police officer he has sustained his reputation. On Wednesday evening, he made a "three bagger."

INCAPACITATED FROM DUTY.

Chief Engineer Williams of the fire department is confined to his house with his old enemy, throat trouble. While he is not dangerously ill, he has been obliged to relinquish the cares of the fire department to Assistant Chief Frank Packard. This morning the condition of Chief Williams had not improved any but his many friends hope to see him speedily restored to health.

QUINCY LADY SELECTED.

The many friends of Miss Carrie Follett Spear of this city will be pleased to know that she has been selected as instructor in music at the Framingham State Normal School and also in the Framingham public schools. She will be the successor to Prof. William S. Tilden of Medford who has resigned. The salary is $900.

Miss Spear is a graduate of the Bridgewater State Normal School.

FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER.

Already there is talk of nominating some man for County Commissioner to fill the vacancy which will occur on Jan. 1, when the term of Commissioner Morrell will expire.

In the town of Dedham there are two candidates mentioned Ex-Representative Henry D. Humphrey and John J. Hayes. The town of Medfield has another candidate for the position in the person of James Hewins who was a candidate for a position on the Board last fall and was defeated by Capt. Wadsworth of Milton by three votes.

A newspaper dispatch from Dedham says that Mr. Morrell is "in the hands of his friends" which is akin to saying that he wants a reelection.

Morrill, it will be remembered, was chairman of the board which had charge of the work done at the court house, and against whom the charges were made and the investigation held. Last fall Watts Bowker of Brookline, one of the commissioners under fire, tried for a re-nomination. He was badly beaten all over the county.

The people of this part of the County cannot conceive of the possibility of Mr. Morrell thinking seriously of receiving the nomination again for County Commissioner.

The sentiment of the great voting public has been expressed so often before and so emphatically against Mr. Morrell and his confrers of the old board that it would be suicidial for him to even consent to stand for a nomination.

ELECTED NEW OFFICERS.

The regular monthly meeting of the West Quincy branch of the Granite Cutters' National Union was held last night and the following officers were elected:

President,—Frank J. Daveron.
Vice-President,—Robert Watson.
Corresponding Secretary,—Frank P Foley.
Financial Secretary,—Michael J. O'Brien.
Treasurer,—Jeremiah Curtin.
Standing Committee,—Frank J. Daveron, John O. Moyle and John P. Reddington.
Grievance Committee,—H. W. Campbell, John O. Moyle, Frank P. Foley, H. F. Geer and John P. Reddington.

A BAD SMASH

Says the Brockton Times:— There was a spill of junk at the north end this forenoon. An empty bottle collector who visit this city about once a week, and who resides in Quincy, was going his usual rounds when two wheels were detached from the body of his wagon simultaneously.

Bottles of all descriptions and sizes were instantly strewn about the street, and a considerable portion of them were smashed Investigation revealed the fact that one nut on each axle of the team had been unscrewed. It looked like a "put up job," and the junk man swore like a trooper.

No one was in sight, however, but a Times reporter, and he pleaded not guilty.

New nuts were secured and the irate bottle vender started Quincy-ward.

As the reporter returned the same way 10 minutes later he found a half dozen boys diligently cleaning up the broken glass and carrying it to the dump. He inquired of a 12-year-old why they were so anxious to clean up the debris. "I'll tell you, if you don't put it in The Times," was the reply. "You see, it was our fault, and we don't want any one to ruin their wheels."

"How was it your fault?" inquired the reporter.

"Wall, he skinned us last week, and now we've got square with him."

"How did he skin you?" asked the reporter.

"We sold him 14 bottles which he promised to give us 10 cents for with which to buy a bat. He said he had no change and would bring us the money in a few minutes. We kept on playing and he drove home, see. Well, today he lost more than he gained that day, see."

HE SQUEEZED THE "SHINER."

If John McCarthy had known a thing or two more about the intricate workings of the world, the last boy that he would have assaulted would have been Isaac Sorgman.

Isaac is the official "sh.ner" of the police department though he is willing to cater to anybody else's boots if the owners are willing to reciprocate to the tune of 5 cents on week days and 10 cents on Sundays. Wednesday afternoon while the "shiner" was perambulating peacebly near City Hall, McCarthy, who was a little the worse for imbibing, came along and caught hold of Isaac. After getting a good grip on him, he began to shake him and squeeze his arm. This method of making an acquaintanceship was not particularly relished by Isaac and he began to cry and yell for the police. Officer Ferguson heard the cries and ran to the rescue. He loosened McCarthy's grasp and enquired what the trouble was. McCarthy claimed that Isaac stole a scythe from him but the "shiner" protested that he had nothing in his possession but his blacking and brushes. McCarthy was taken into custody and in Court yesterday morning he had to pay an aggregate fine of $7 for drunkenness and assault. It is said that the "shiner" will introduce a free trade policy between himself and Officer Ferguson's boots in the future.

A SAD HOME COMING.

Mrs. Daniel Flowers of Newcomb place whose husband was found dead in bed a week ago today, arrived home on Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs Flowers was visiting at her home in Prince Edward's Island when the sad event occured and her home coming was an especially sad one. The body of her husband, which had been in the receiving tomb since Sunday, was taken out on Tuesday afternoon while Mrs. Flowers was at the cemetery and was interred. Nature had dealt kindly with the remains and the body looked as natural as when alive.

The check from the Order of United Workmen, of which the deceased was a member, was turned over to the family in very prompt order. The certificate of death was filed Saturday and the check for the amount due was received on Tuesday evening.

DISTRICT COURT.

WEDNESDAY.

Joseph Christophoro was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. The case was continued for one month.

Henry Tracy was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

James Kennedy was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

The continued case of Frank Smith of Randolph for keeping a liquor nuisance was continued for 6 months.

The liquors and vessels seized from Thomas Curran, an expressman, at Quincy were forfeited to the Commonwealth.

THURSDAY.

John, Louis and Annie Schætzl of Quincy were arraigned for assault on John B. Schætzl. Annie Schætzl was discharged and the other two defendants were fined $10 apiece.

John McCarthy of Quincy was fined $5 for drunkenness. For assault on Isaac Sorgman he was fined $3.

The continued case of John Gallagher for drunkenness was heard and the defendant was fined $5. The defendant was also fined $2 on a default warrant on which he was brought into Court.

TODAY.

The continued case of Benjamin Bannon of Braintree for drunkenness was called and he was fined $5.

The continued case of Martin G. Holbrook of Randolph for violating the liquor law was called and was continued till Monday.

James Collins and Michael Devlin of Boston were arraigned for illegally transporting liquor through the streets of Milton. The two men said they were employed in a Boston brewery and the beer that they had was furnished by the owners of the brewery and was given to the men who were holding their annual outing in a Milton grove. The case was continued till Sept. 11 and Lawyer McAnarney, counsel for the men, and Chief Pierce of Milton will visit the brewery tomorrow to see if the stories told by the men are true. Chief Pierce caused quite a laugh by suggesting that all of the officers and court attaches should be invited to go on this junket.

Notice to Contractors.

CITY OF QUINCY.

SEALED proposals for paving and curbing Copeland street in accordance with form of specifications to be furnished by the Commissioner of Public Works of the City of Quincy, will be received at the office of said Commissioner, City Hall, until 2 o'clock P. M., of the first day of September 1897, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read. Each proposal must be indorsed "Proposal for paving and curbing Copeland Street" and to be accompanied by a properly certified check for the sum of Five Hundred Dollars ($500.—) payable to City of Quincy, which will be returned to the bidder unless forfeited as herein-after provided.

A bond will be required for the faithful performance of the contract in such sum as the Commissioner of Public Works shall determine; such sum to be not more than one-third the amount of the contract; the sureties to be residents of Massachusetts and satisfactory to the Commissioner.

The contract must be signed and bond furnished within six days after the notification of acceptance of the proposal and in case of the failure of the bidder to sign contract and furnish bond within said time, the contract and the certified check accompanying the proposal shall be forfeited to the City of Quincy.

The proposals will be compared on the basis af the following quantities:

Furnishing and laying 7200 square yards pavings.
" " " 110 linear feet crossing stones.
" " setting 3600 linear feet straight edgestones.
" " " 68 linear feet curved edgestones.
" " " 7 driveway corners.
Resetting 1170 linear feet straight edgestones.
Resetting 9 driveway corners.

These quantities are to be considered approximate only and the Commissioner of Public Works expressly reserves the right of increasing or diminishing the same, as he may deem necessary.

The right is reserved to reject any or all proposals or to accept the proposal deemed best for the City.

CHARLES F. KNOWLTON,
Commissioner of Public Works.

TROUBLE ON THE LINE.

The intermittent ringing of the fire alarm bells during the morning was due to troubles on the line at Squantum and the members of the electrical department under Inspector Gavin went down and cleared the lines.

New York Sun—Rapidity of decay—With the usual air of the man who is positively sure he is a superior being when he its talking to his wife, he was telling her of the earth's population and the rapidity with which people died. "Did you know, my dear," he remarked, most impressively, "that one person dies every time you breathe?" "Yes," she responded, "and one would die every time you didn't breathe if you tried it very long." Somehow after that his interest in the subject seemed to languish.

Scrofula Eruptions

Little Girl the Victim of Impure Blood—Suffered Intensely Until Hood's Sarsaparilla Cured.

"When three months old, my little daughter had eruptions on her face. I was obliged to keep her hands tied at night and it was necessary to watch her during the day. She would scratch herself whenever she had the chance, until her clothes would be covered with blood. We concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, because I had great faith in it, and after awhile, we could see that she was getting better. People often asked 'How did that child burn her face?' and they said she would certainly be left with scars, but she was not. It is now a year since she was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla and her face is as smooth and white and soft as that of any child." MRS. WILBUR WELLS, Warren, Conn.

OLD STOUGHTON OUTING POSTPONED

Owing to the heavy rain storm of Tuesday last, the outing of the Old Stoughton Musical has been postponed to Tuesday Aug. 31, and will be carrried out according to the program arranged by Pres. Daniel H. Huxford, Secretary Edwin A. Jones, and Chorister Nelson Mann; sing from 1 to 3 p. m.

Indications now point to the largest outing that Highland Park has ever seen, even surpassing the Society's outing of 12,000 people in 1896, which was so enjoyable to all. The park was handsome then, but the park of 1897, with its electric fountain, is not surpassed by any park in the State.

Asst. Treasurer Henry E. Reynolds of the Brockton Street Railway Co. assures us that the park company will be superior to any that have appeared there, and he is not sorry the weather did not approve, because the attractions will be so much better next week.

Singers and musicians who are members, go and take your friends. There will be solo and chorus singing by 300 voices, assisted by a good orchestra. Musical people and those who like to hear music, are cordially invited, the park being open and free to everybody.

ON HANGMAN'S.

Life Saving Record of Men Who Inhabit this Lonely Rock.

Just at the entrance to Quincy Bay, about nine miles from Boston, there is a picturesque little island, surrounded by rocky ledges, that go to enhance its scenic value, but are of no utility otherwise.

This diminutive conglomeration of rock, sand and earth for many years has been known by the grim appellation of Hangman's island. Generations ago, when the merchant ships of Boston were but just beginning to attract attention, in the days when piracy and mutiny were frequent and masters of vessels had power of life and death over their crews, says the Globe, Hangman's island was a sort of sailors' Newgate, and many a mutinous mariner was there treated to a "long rope and a short shrift" by unrelenting commanders.

Today, this island around which cluster so many grim memories of the past, and which is but little known except by yachtsmen and others, who are familiar with the harbor, is occupied by three peaceful lobstermen, who lease the island from the state authorities, and have made the place notable for the number of lives they have rescued and the number of small craft that they have saved from going to destruction upon the sharp rocks. During 19 years the island has been inhabited by one or another of these three hardy lobstermen the pioneer being bronzed Bill Greenfield, and in that time they have saved more human lives and prevented more boats from being destroyed than it has been possible to keep the record of.

The cry of the distressed and drowning has never gone unheeded, whether during the night or day, by these volunteer life savers, and, times innumerable, when the darkness and storm has made it an act of greatest peril to embark in the surf, the lobstermen from Hangman's in their stout dories, have brought aid to men who would otherwise have perished, and many a man has been rubbed back to life and consciousness by the side of a glowing fire in one of the little cabins upon the island.

Bill Greenfield came to Hangman's when he was a young man and he has spent the summer and fall there every season since. Fifteen years ago he was joined by Jim Glassett and afterward by Jim's brother Bill. The two latter men spend the best part of the year upon the island, residing in their little cabin on its western end until deep into the winter. The record that they have made as lifesavers is one of the reasons that they are allowed complete control by the harbor and land commissioners; but very little has ever been said about it, except among the yachtsmen. In 19 years not a season has passed when Greenfield and his associates have not saved several lives. About an hour after midnight during the first night of the recent gale, while the war of the wind and waves almost drowned every other sound, Jim and Bill Glassett were awakened by the short, sharp barking of Prince, the shaggy little dog. The Glassetts awoke to find Prince in a state of great excitement, running about the cabin and scratching at the door. Listening intently, they heard cries of distress rising above the noise of the storm, and from some point off the southwestern portion of the island.

The Glassets quickly donned their oilskins and aroused Bill Greenfield. The men lost no time in shoving their dory into the surf and making in the direction of the cries, which were gradually growing fainter.

The heavy sea made the progress of the boat very hard. Several hundred yards from the shore they discovered two men clinging to an upturned sloop in a half dead condition They had been buffeted about in this position for several hours, and could not have clung on much longer.

With considerable difficulty the men were extricated from their perilous position. One of them lost consciousness on being taken into the boat. They belonged in Wollaston, where one of them is a special police officer. They had moved their boat off North Weymouth and were on board when it was driven from its anchorage and down toward Hangman's. This is only one of the many rescues accomplished by the islanders. Four weeks ago they rescued a party of men from Quincy whose boat was overturned by a sudden squall. The men had been clinging to the upturned craft for a long time.

"One of the worst cases I remember," says Bill Greenfield, "was that of two young men who were tipped over in the harbor some time two years ago. They were out sailing early in the evening when a storm came up and their boat was overturned down beyond Paddocks. It was in the fall and the young men were in the water for many hours. About 1.30 in the morning I was awakened by hearing the most agonizing screams for help. The wind was then blowing a gale. Jim and I put out in a dory and found two young fellows clinging to an overturned boat for dear life. Both of them were well nigh done out when we reached them and fainted in the dory. We brought them ashore and my wife kindled a hot fire in the house. We worked over them until daylight before they were able to speak. I have forgotten their names. One night a 24-foot yacht owned by a doctor of Salem was driven on the rocks at the end of the island. There was a lady aboard, the doctor's wife, and several other people The yacht was firmly wedged on the rocks and the waves were pounding her. We went out and got them ashore and kept them till the next day, when we took them to Quincy. After the yacht was taken into deep water she sank. Jim and I raised her. The doctor came back and promised to pay us for raising the yacht, but we haven't heard of him since. "Yes, I've lived on this island in the lobster season for 19 years and I've seen some tough cases. I can't remember half the people that Jim and Bill and I have saved from drowning. During stormy weather a great many boats that go adrift are driven on the island. Last week we went out and got a yacht from North Weymouth that was driven on the rocks. "We're here for lobstering, but it's a hard-hearted man that would stay safe ashore and see his fellow-men going to their death."

Bill Greenfield has dragged his living from the sea since childhood. His wife and three children live on the island during the summer. He has a pretty 14-year-old daughter who can row a boat like a man, and who sometimes goes out in the boat and helps her father to pull the lobster pots. The Glassetts are brothers and bachelors. Bill is something of an artist, and the walls of his cabin are adorned with pictures of harbor scenery. Not the least important resident of the island is the dog Prince. Many a man owes his life to Prince's never-ceasing vigilance.

DO YOU COUGH?

Don't delay. Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure. It will cure coughs and colds. It will cure sore throat or a tickling in the throat. It will cure pains in the chest. It will cure influenza and bronchitis and all diseases pertaining to the lungs, because it is a pure balsam. Hold it to the light and see how clear and thick it is. You see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Large bottles, 50 and cents $1.00 per bottle.

LITERARY NOTES.

"The meaning of Greater New York" is the title of an article in Demorest's Magazine for September which is its own explanation. It is intended to answer all those questions about the consolidation of New York and Brooklyn which people with intelligent curiosity are always asking their friends and which their friends are rarely able to answer.

A CURE FOR CONSTIPATION AND HEADACHE?

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache and is the best Spring Medicine. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50 cents and $1 a package.

FOOD'S THE THING.

In bird, or beast, or man, diet has a vast influence on both physical and mental characteristics. An ill-fed bird won't act right, look right or sing right. An ill-fed horse is only part of a horse, not a whole one. An ill-fed human being is a subject for profound pity, especially an ill-fed CHILD. Proper feeding doesn't mean quantity alone—the consideration of QUALITY is equally important. Wholesome food was never so low in price as now, as our experience fully proves. Nature gives you sunshine and fresh air. We give you (almost) the third essential for good health, namely, GOOD GROCERIES. THE CREAM OF GOODNESS at skim milk prices is what you will find here. We would like to have you know more about our store, our goods and our prices.

Few people are aware of the variety of goods required to be kept in a modern "up to date" grocery establishment. If we were to enumerate our extensive stock it would nearly fill one issue of this paper. Great care has to be exercised in selecting goods to meet the wants of our customers and there is where our long experience is of benefit. We know what importer or dealer in New York or Boston to go to to obtain just the right thing at the right time. What quantities to buy to meet the demand and ensure absolute freshness at all times. At this season of the year we recommend a light meat diet, with plenty of good bread and butter, fruit and cereals. And remember that anything seasonable and reasonable in the line of first clsss groceries can be found in our store.

A MARKET DAY.

'Twas a market day in Dublin'town,
And the boys and girls were going down
With their wares to sell—fine ducks and geese,
Lambs and mutton without their fleece,
Onions, cabbages, beets, what not,
Culled from many a garden spot,
And there, on top of her market cart,
Sat Maggie Moran, the pride of my heart.

Says I to her, "It is time, I guess,
That you were buying your wedding dress,
For my heart you are using rather rough
And have kept on a string quite long enough."
She laughed, and, shaking her frowsy head,
"I'm not quite ready to marry," she said,
"And if you're in haste the better plan
Is to turn your back on Maggie Moran."

"Maggie Moran is the girl I'll wed,
And nobody else in this world," I said.
And I jumped in her cart as she turned about
And held her fast so she wouldn't fall out,
For she drove us home at a rattling pace,
With a roguish smile on her blushing face,
And the nimble pony soon set us down
Far and away from Dublin town.

Said Maggie's mother, "My girl, what luck
Did you have in selling your garden truck?"
And Maggie said, with a hearty laugh,
"I sold my geese and brought home a calf!"
Oh, the very next morn we both went down
To the parish priest in Dublin town,
And he made us one with little delay,
And it's out of the market we are today!
—Josephine Pollard in New York Ledger.

COALING A BIG SHIP.

Crude Methods Employed Which Make It a Slow and Expensive Job.

All the ships of the transatlantic lines are coaled by practically the same crude method. Barges of about 350 tons capacity are brought alongside of the ship, booms are rigged, and, by tackle controlled by a donkey engine, steel buckets are lowered to the barge, filled by four men with shovels and hoisted to a projecting platform, where two men dump the bucket and shovel the coal into the porthole. It is then taken by other men and stowed away in the ship's bunkers. Five and a half of these bucket loads equal a ton, and tally by count of the buckets is the only record to show how much coal the steamer has taken aboard.

In coaling the steamship St. Paul of the American line 48 men are employed inside the ship. The average amount of coal bunkered is 3,000 tons. The time required to unload and stow is about 40 hours, and the total average cost of the work is $1,000. These figures, varying only with the coal consumption of the ship, will apply to the vessels of other transatlantic lines.

Effort to reduce this expense has been productive of many ingenious mechanical devices, and the inquiry is often raised why none of these is in general use. The answer is given in the statement by a representative of one of the transatlantic lines, "We have had many offers to deliver coal to our steamers at the rate of anywhere from 50 to 500 tons per hour, but what is the use when we cannot take care of it inside any faster than we do now?" In a modern ship fuel must be stored wherever room can be found that is not required or available for other purposes. Coal cannot be received on board faster than it can be stored away in the bunkers, which, in the case of a modern liner, is at the rate of about 1½ tons per man per hour.

More primitive methods prevail in ports of less importance than those at either end of the Atlantic lines. In the West Indies coaling is almost exclusively done by negro women, who pour in a ceaseless stream over the gangplanks, each carrying about 100 pounds of coal in a basket poised on her head.

In Mediterranean ports the work is done by men instead of women, but for the most part with the same primitive implements, shovel and basket.—S. Howard Smith in Cassier's Magazine.

The Antiquity of the Thimble.

Somebody wrote: "To the Dutch the ladies of all nations are indebted for the invention of the thimble. The Dutch achieved this great invention about the year 1690."

How can this stupid error have arisen? The thimble is probably prehistoric. Thimbles in some form or other must have been used by the women who executed the rich embroideries of the mediæval time. The late Professor J. E. Thorold Rogers, in his "History of Agriculture and Prices In England," mentions, under the year 1494, one dozen thimbles which cost 4 shillings. What is, however, more to the purpose, they are frequently alluded to by our old dramatists. Here are two examples from the greatest of them.

In "The Taming of the Shrew" Grumio says:

"I commanded the sleeves should be cut out and sewed up again, and that I'll prove upon thee, though thy little finger be armed in a thimble."—IV, 3, 149.

In the early days of the civil war between Charles I and the parliament, when the citizens of London were called on to send in their plate to be coined into money, the royalist jesters made fun of the puritan dames who were said to have given even their silver thimbles to the cause.—Notes and Queries.

Plant Culture by Amateurs.

"Amateur florists should study the habits of the plants in their collections in order to give the special care needed by each variety," writes Eben B. Rexford in The Ladies' Home Journal. "Not only does this advice apply pertinently to watering, but to the position in the window. Your plant window may be a southern one which will admit a great deal of sunshine. This will exactly suit geraniums, heliotropes, roses and plants of that class, but begonias, primroses and many other plants adapted to house culture are not particularly fond of strong sunshine—in fact, are often injured by full exposure to it. It is possible to find out exactly what course to pursue and to effect a compromise between these two classes of plants without a change of windows. Find out what plants like partial shade and give them positions in the rear of the sun loving plants. In this way the plants which require sunshine will not be robbed of it, and those which do not require sunshine will not be harmed by having an excess of it."

Sarcastic.

"Mercy!" cried Mr. Barker at the restaurant. "Waiter, is this Neufchatel cheese?"

"Yes, sir," said the waiter.

"Well, I must say it tastes like very old chatel cheese. Bring me some cottage cheese instead and be sure it is made of some cottage since the original Queen Anne period."—Harper's Bazar.

Leisure is a very pleasant garment to look at, but it is a very bad one to wear. The ruin of millions may be traced to it.

Shakespeare had a vocabulary of 16,000 words and Milton one of 8,000. University graduates rarely exceed 4,000.

In Ottawa newsboys are required to take out licenses to carry on their business.

ONLY A TOAD.

But He Proves Himself the Friend of the Thrifty Farmer.

Many people view with disgust and loathing this rough, uncouth, leathery coated little creature, with his distended stomach and squat, ungraceful form, yet their aversion is totally without reason. The toad is not venomous or harmful, nor can he be utterly ugly with his singularly clear and brilliant eyes. An old superstition says, "The toad has a jewel in his head." If he has, it must be the gleam of the jewel that flashes through his eyes and lights up his otherwise unattractive countenance.

However this may be, the toad is a jewel in himself from an economic point of view. The farmer has no better friend or ally in his warfare against injurious insects. The toad comes forth mostly at night, when such insects as the cutworm are abroad. When I am working in the garden and inadvertently disturb a toad, I always feel like begging his pardon, for, however queer it may seem to some, I like toads. In this Dakota land they are very abundant, and I notice that insects are proportionately few.

When following the breaking plow, I have often been a reluctant spectator of the last sad tragedy in the lives of some of these beneficent little creatures. They love to burrow down in the earth to just about the depth that the plowshare takes, and there they are sometimes sliced in two. On these occasions when examining the contents of their stomachs I have been surprised at the quantity they could hold. I have also noted the prevalence of injurious species of insects, such as leaf beetles, cutworms, grubs and their larvæ.

Once after a victim passed under the plow I took pains to note the contents of its stomach, which consisted of 4 large cutworms, 2 bean beetles, 17 small leaf beetles, 8 small manure beetles, 3 flies, several larvæ and about a teaspoonful of the small aromatic yellow ants. This was only a medium sized toad, and now just think how many such meals he had taken in his life; then think of his millions of relatives and the meals they had eaten in their lives. After that remember that in their pollywog state toads clear out myriads of larvæ from stagnant water and do much toward lessening the great mosquito pest, and you may imagine the vast quantity of injurious insect material they must have destroyed.

I have domesticated and colonized toads in my cellar and garden and always felt amply repaid by the decrease in the number of the insects. It makes little difference to the toad whether his meal be of cabbage worms, mosquitoes or bean beetles. Down they go, and as he rubs his throat with one "hand" he winks his off eye and is ready for more.—Our Animal Friends.

Dad Clarke's Order.

Ball players thrive on good food when they are traveling. Some of them go through the bill of fare at the big hotels like hungry tramps at a cottage door. Several years ago the New Yorks were in Louisville. Dad Clarke and Eddie Burke were sitting at the table together, and Eddie said to Dad:

"You give the order."

Dad picked up the "programme" and was confronted with a long list of French dishes which Dad would not have attempted to pronounce for big money.

"Come here," yelled Dad to the waiter, "and don't be swelling up in that dress suit!" Then Dad put his forefinger on the bill of fare and let it slide slowly down past the various names.

"Gimme some o' that.

"Bring me a lot o' that.

"I want plenty o' that.

"Lug along a dish o' this.

"Gimme a pile o' that stuff and have it good. See?"

"Wee! Wee!" said the waiter, who turned inquiringly to Burke. Eddie waved him off with the imperious request:

"Bring me the same."—New York Sun.

The Pope and London Smoke.

Leo XIII is no stranger to the English court, but it is by no means generally known that the pontiff once paid a personal visit to this country. Such, however, is the case, though the event occurred 50 years ago, when he was simply Monsignor Pecci, acting as legate at the Belgian court, and when he was being consulted recently with regard to the building of the new cathedral at Westminster he asked whether any white marble was to be used, adding laughingly: "When I was at St. Paul's cathedral, they showed me some black marble and said it was white. London seems to be far too smoky for white marble."—Westminster Gazette.

The New York botanical garden, planned for Bronx park, will be the third largest in the world. It embraces 250 acres.

STURGEONS IN COMMERCE.

Some of the Points of Singularity About the Fish.

The sturgeon is naturally an inhabitant of the large rivers and brackish water of the north temperate zone, more particularly of Europe and America. The Sacramento, the San Joaquin, Russian river and the Columbia on the west and the Hudson and Delaware on the east are very favorable to its production in great quantities.

This interesting and curious fish has many points of singularity. Its armed exterior skeleton seems to point to its being one of the few descendants of the ganoid, or armor plated fishes of the prehistoric ages. The position of the mouth is much the same as in the shark family, but its form and function are rather that of the remora, or sucker family. The flesh, too, is remarkable as being a reddish and yellow and part white. English fishmongers call it "beef and veal." In that country it is usually cooked by baking with a stuffing of fine herbs.

There are several varieties of the sturgeon family, the sturgeon proper (Accipenser sturio), the beluga and the sterlet being the principal, the two latter kinds belonging to the Russian waters.

Some 25 years ago there were millions of sturgeons in San Francisco bay and tributary waters, principally in the mouths of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, where they lay on the muddy bottom, feeding on clams and bottom fishes. The Chinese, who have an inordinate fondness for gelatinous substances, such as isinglass, sea swallow nests, trepang, etc., imported from China a very deadly hook for capturing the sturgeon, which they caught solely for the marrow in its peculiar backbone. They stripped out the backbone and threw away the rest. Some of the backbones were sent to China, where isinglass is made from them and also a highly tenacious glue. The principal use, however, is for making gelatinous soup.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Growth of the South.

Where the proud city of Birmingham stands today there were in 1877 only wornout fields. Chattanooga was a dilapidated village. Atlanta still sat in the ashes of the war. Florida was almost as much of a wilderness as in the days of Spanish rule. Texas had made no impression upon the world's markets as a cotton producer. The states of Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas were in poverty and despair because of the miseries of the reconstruction period. The coal and iron mines of Tennessee, Alabama and Virginia were practically undiscovered and unopened. There was no serious competition by any southern port with New York and Boston for the export and import trade. With a single exception there was not one great railroad system in the south, and that did not touch the southeastern part.

Twenty years ago the manufacture of cotton in the south was wholly an infant industry, and cities now known as textile working centers were mere trading posts at the crossroads. The fruit and vegetable business of Florida was so small as to attract little attention, while the fruit and melon business of Georgia did not exist at all. Southern farmers then bought their corn and meats instead of raising them as they do now, and the cotton crop of Georgia, notwithstanding the comparatively low prices and notwithstanding the cities have absorbed so much of the rural population, is twice as large as it was then.—Macon Telegraph.

Curiosity.

Crowds representing innate human curiosity gather easily in large cities. A fairly good looking wagon was driven hurriedly up to a place on Diamond street one day recently, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. In a moment two boards had been placed across the top of the vehicle. The six or seven men who stopped to look on at the unusual proceeding soon swelled to a throng when four small pillows were brought out and deposited on the boards. "What's up?" inquired a tall, thin man, an eager look in his eye, the remark being addressed to a boy who had swiftly climbed a pole. From his vantage point the youngster made laconic answer, "Dunno unless a man's sick or dead in there."

At this point the two men at work brought out and placed squarely on the pillows something which looked very much like a stretcher. Everybody craned his or her neck for the next appearance of the quiet workmen. The latter were not long in coming. Between them, walking very carefully, they carried a large mirror, which they placed on the stretcher and then covered with a white cloth. In another instant they had turned down toward Wood street, and the most excited men in the crowd looked dejectedly at each other. A possible tragedy requiring the coroner's presence, or at least a doctor's, had been converted into a furniture insurance precaution.

QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

VOL. 9. NO. 200. QUINCY, MASS., FRIDAY, AUGUST 27, 1897. PRICE 2 CENTS.

$81,000 TAKEN OUT IN THREE DAYS.

Rich Find of Gold in Alaska by Three Men in Three Weeks.

Skaguay, Alaska, via Seattle, Aug. 27.—This daily doubling town is again convulsed with excitement. Three new men have just made the painful trip out from the Klondyke, and made it in the fastest time on record.

In just 20 days Jimmy McKay, Archie Schelp and "Kid" Birch, all originally from Juneau, have poled their shallow boat up the Yukon river, rowed across the lakes and crossed Skaguay pass to this maelstrom of feverish activity.

The party of three men brought with them probably $81,000 in drafts and dust. The amount represented an average of one winter's drifting and part of one summer's washing for each. Each has touched but a little of his claim. They say that the riches of the Klondyke river have barely been nibbled; that $3,000,000 of gold will go out in the spring from the present claims, and that there many unexplored creeks there which should yield fabulous returns to small labor as those now sending out golden wealth.

Yesterday's news, added to the glowing reports of the Stewart party, has confirmed the golden dreams of the Skaguay millions. The struggling for a place on the crowded trail was noticeably increased. A man no longer lends a helping hand to another's stalled horse, but goes around him and ahead with the lust of gain. The gold fever has almost killed Samaritanism.

It's "anything to get there." Men who faltered, discouraged at the slim prespects of getting over without many horses of much money and pluck, have hardened. The number of pack saddles now being clinched on to protesting animals is double that of a few days ago.

The task set for the men in hauling heavy outfits over an awful pass and in enduring the biting exposure of Alaskan patrol duty is as bad as Arctic exploration, but from the spirit, experience, bone and sinew and leadership of these big Canadians it is certain they will do it.

They receive the respect and admiration of every man on the trail. Said one old timer: "You bet they don't need vigilantes over on the Canadian part of this trail and in the Klondyke. No man there will ever have a chance to kill two men. The northwestern police are hustlers."

Yesterday's party brought significant facts. Flour was selling at $16 per hundredweight, bacon at 40 cents a pound, coffee at $1.50 a pound and other goods in proportion on July 26 at Dawson.

This was even after heavily loaded stern wheelers from St. Michaels had arrived. The Indians receive $50 a duck, and $20 a piece were paid for the first salmon of the run. From these prices in summer some idea may strike one as to what will be asked in the winter. Dawson City is today trebly the whirlpool of extravagance that were ever the most colossal bonanza towns of the American West.

Harry Ashe went to Klondyke last year with a little bad whiskey. He left there on the second Yukon steamer, about July 10, with $200,000. His successors, Becky & Stevens, cleared $25,000 in two weeks. They have two men weighing gold day and night. Nothing goes in Dawson City less than a 50-piece or its equivalent in dust. The smallest saloon check is for that amount. Historic recklessness is dwarfed.

A brewing outfit, weighing over 13 tons, was taken over Dyea pass last March. It arrived at Dawson City July 11. The cost was enormous and so are the present profits. The little plant turns out eight barrels a day. The beer brings $1 per pint bottle. As the owner says: "Money is demonetized at Dawson. Men will pay anything you ask for things to eat and drink."

The McKay party are all going back again as soon as a winter's supply of food can be got together at Juneau or Seattle and hustled here. They think the Portland's gold will not run over $750,000, a little over a ton, but that fully $4,000,000 will be out in the early spring, and that next summer's washup will show up double that amount of precious yellow metal.

In the meantime the horde of eager gold seekers here are uselessly swarming through the Skaguay trail, which has a single point that a man could cross in 20 days with a few days' work, now takes an hour and three-quarters to tediously pack over. They could save three and a half miles in a day's work if it were not "every man for himself," which means "the devil for all."

WOMEN TAKING PART.

Wives and Daughters of Striking Miners on the March.

They Hoot and Jeer Men Who Are Working.

The DeArmitts Are Evicting All Strikers From Their Cabins.

Pittsburg, Aug. 27.—The wives and daughters of the striking miners at De Armitt's Oak Hill mines, near Turtle Creek, took a prominent part yesterday in the demonstration against the working miners.

A dozen or more women gathered at the camp, and with flags and banners marched along the roads leading towards the Tipple. On their way they met a number of miners going to the pit, and they greeted them with yells and jeers. They derided the miners who were working and ridiculed them in a manner which caused many of them to hang their heads in shame. The women say they will make a demonstration every day hereafter.

The strikers claim that only 15 men were at work in the Oak Hill mines yesterday, and that the output was only 35 pit cars, while the company officials say that 55 pit cars were mined.

Superintendant S. C. De Armitt and four deputy sheriffs commenced the work of evicting the families of the Plum Creek strikers yesterday. The work will be kept up until the company has possession of all its houses.

At Bunola the mineowners are gradually gaining on the strikers. W. J. Brennan, attorney for the miners, is preparing his answer to the bill of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company in the proceedings against the miners' officials and strike leaders for contempt of court. The answer will declare that the camp and marching are not for the purpose of intimidation or menace to any one but merely to indicate to the men in the mines that the miners generally are on strike and to demonstrate their strength by a show of numbers.

Gus Datte, who is in charge of the sheriff's deputies at Plum Creek, was told by the sheriff's attorney that under the injunction he could not interfere with marchers who paraded with a band at their head. The only ones he can stop are those who are intimidating the workmen.

A large parade and meeting was held at Turtle Creek last night without molestation from the deputies.

President Dolan addressed a big meeting at Clare Ridge, Westmoreland county, last night. Before leaving the city he gave the details of his arrest at McGovern. He went before Judge McIlvain and was told that he had not violated the provisions of the injunctions and was discharged.

Important Case at Law.

Boston, Aug. 27.—A suit has been brought by James Stevenson against Mrs. Sarah Kimball, Louise Wilson, W. P. Wilson, Elijah George, register of probate and insolvency, and Carleton Hunneman, who have been connected with the insolvency proceedings instituted by Mrs. Kimball and Mrs. Wilson. Attatchments have been made against the estates of the defendants aggregating $300,000. The plaintif brings action on the ground that the proceedings have been improperly brought, in consequence of the false certification on the part of Register George of the notice of insolvency issued against Stevenson. It is claimed that the law requires that the notices shall bear the seal and signature of the court, and that when the notices in this case were sent out, both of the judges were out of town. In the case of Stevenson the same practice was followed that had been in vogue in the insolvency court for half a century, so that Mr. Stevenson's contention, if sustained, is likely to be important in its consequences.

Greenbacks Again.

St. Louis, Aug. 27.—The new American party was launched here yesterday by a convention of between 40 and 50 delegates, representing nine states and one territory. The national committee was elected with Colonel E. H. Sellers of Detroit as chairman. Fred Carlisle of Detroit, who was selected for the position of secretary of the committee, is an old time Republican. He was secretary of the committee on resolutions at the organization of the Republican party "under the oaks of Jackson," (Mich.), 43 years ago. A platform was adopted which favors an adjustment of the tariff and internal revenue as will produce sufficent money for the government's expenditures. The platform favors the demonetization of both gold and silver and holds that all currency should be in the form of treasury notes of unlimited legal tender quality.

Four More Luetgert Jurors.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Four more jurors were accepted yesterday for the Luetgert murder trial. They were T. J. Mahoney, salesman; James B. Boyd, printer; Henry Franzen, soapmaker; Robert Bibbs, salesman. There is no falling off in the crowd that daily fills the courtroom. There was talk yesterday of Luetgert breaking down, particularly if he be put on the stand.

J. P. COBIN THE NEXT COMMANDER.

Cincinnati Selected for Next Encampment—Exciting Contests.

Buffalo, Aug. 27.—General J. P. S. Gobin of Pennsylvania has been elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, and Cincinnati has been selected as the place of the next encampment. Thus ends one of the most interesting contests in the history of the Grand Army.

There was a great chance last night for some of the "I told you so" men to go around and inform their friends that they predicted this outcome weeks ago," but as a matter of fact the result was in doubt until almost 6 o'clock last night, when the ballots of the convention decided it.

John C. Linehan was a good third in the race, and there was a possibility of a stampede going his way, but George H. Innis of Boston was not in the race at any stage. He had the support which had been pledged to him by Massachusetts at the last state encampment, but he did not call it forth. Had he done so, he would undoubtedly have found a division in his own delegation.

The nominating speech with which Past Department Commander W. T. Wetherbee placed him before the convention was not even seconded, and Mr. Innis' name was withdrawn almost as soon as it had been presented.

Colonel Linehan remained in the race, and the first ballot gave this result: Gobin 296, Mack 253, Linehan 181. This did not give any candidate a majority, and a second ballot was taken. While this ballot was progressing Colonel Linehan's name was withdrawn, and then General Mack, Ohio's candidate, was removed from the field, leaving General Gobin in undisputed possession.

This move on the part of the candidates from Ohio and New Hampshire simply discounted the inevitable result. Had the ballot been finished and counted, there is no doubt that General Gobin would have been elected. The other candidates noted which way the wind was blowing, and gracefully got out of the way.

The struggle was precipitated immediately after the executive session was called to order by the report of the committee on rules giving as the first event in the order of business the selection of the place of the next encampment.

Cities desiring to have the next convention were given a hearing. The citizens' committee of Cincinnati was admitted, consisting of W. B. Melish, chairman Convention league; M. E. Ingalls, president Big Four and C. and O. railroads; Gustav Tafel, mayor of Cincinnati; J. M. Blair, president Chamber of Commerce; Michael Ryan, assistant United States treasurer; J. H. Bromwell, member of congress, Ohio.

President Ingalls presented the claims and attractions of the city in a happy speech, and the committee retired.

Delegate Woodruff of California presented the claims of San Francisco.

On the first ballot Cincinnati received 526 votes and San Francisco 214. The vote had not been announced when Mr. Woodruff withdrew San Francisco and asked that the selection of Cincinnati be made unanimous. This was agreed to by acclamation.

Following the selection of Cincinnati, Archbishop Ireland was called to the stage and made one of his glowing, patriotic speeches. He was followed by General Lew Wallace, who made a short address glorifying the Grand Army.

The ladies of the G. A. R. reassembled yesterday with Mrs. Hirst in the chair.

The committee on consolidation reported against consolidation with the Women's Relief corps, and the discussion of the report showed that a majority of the members agreed with the committee.

The reunion of the Cavalry corps, a part of the Eighteenth Army corps, was held at Camp Jewett and was the largest and most enthusiastic reunion of the day. Major General Daniel E. Sickles was the conspicuous figureof the gathering and the principal speaker.

Burnside's old command, the Ninth Army Corps, held its annual reunion yesterday afternoon. The veterans gathered nearly 100 strong and fought over again the battles in which they participated during the late war.

An informal reunion of the Fifteenth Army Corps was held. This corps had but three commanders during the war, viz: Generals W. T. Sherman, Frank Blair and John A. Logan.

The Eighteenth Army corps also held its annual reunion. There was only a small number present. A force belonging to this corps under General A. H. Terry received a vote of thanks from congress in 1865 for unsurpassed galantry at the capture of Fort Fisher.

The Sixth Army corps held a reunion which was just a plain social meeting of old companions in arms.

Several campfires were held last evening, all of which were well attended. At the Delaware Avenue M. E. church, Governor Black delivered a brief address.

Archbishop Ireland spoke at some length at the chaplain's campfire in the Church of Our Father.

Grand Army post, No. 128 of Philadelphia gave Commander-in-Chief-elect General J. P. S. Gobin of Lebanon, Pa., a rousing reception at the Hotel Iroquois last evening. There was a big assemblage of Pennsylvania veterans and much enthusiasm. General Gobin spoke briefly.

Salmon For Maine Ponds.

Farmington, Me., Aug. 27.—Through the efforts of the Franklin County Fish and Game association two shipments, containing several thousand land-locked salmon, have just arrived from the state hatchery. The fish were liberated in Varnum's and Clear Water ponds. The lot contained some Pacific coast salmon, which, the commissioners say, will thrive and rapidly grow in our ponds. Charles G. Atkins of the United States fich hatchery at Craig Brook visited Rangely and vicinity with a view of establishing a government hatchery there. The investigation was made in answer to a special request of United States Senator William P. Frye. Mr. Atkins in his report to the United States fish commissioner said that the place examined presented very little encouragement for the establishment of a profitable fish hatchery.

Wrenn Holds Tennis Championship.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 27.—Robert D. Wrenn again won the championship of the United States in tennis by defeating W. V. Eaves of London in a close and intensely interesting match by a score of 4-6; 8-6; 6-3; 2-6; 6-2. Eaves showed great tennis in the first and fourth sets, but in the other three sets Wrenn played all round him. The match was the finest exhibition of tennis ever seen in this country.

Veterans "Obeyed" Law.

Toronto, Aug. 27.—One hundred and fifty members of the G. A. R. arrived here from Buffalo yesterday and marched up Younge street, carrying the Stars and Stripes. It is a violation of a civic ordinance to carry a foreign flag in this city unless a British flag is also carried. A policeman stopped the procession and told the marchers of the violation. They bought a small Union Jack, but not one of them would carry it. Finally a boy was hired to do that duty and the veterans continued on their way.

Aged Woman Suicides.

New Canaan, Conn., Aug. 27.—Mrs. Sarah Carter, aged 75 years, died at her home, about two miles south of this place, yesterday afternoon as the result of taking a quantity of paris green with suicidal intent. The old lady lived on a farm all by herself, and it is thought that her lonesome life and her inability to look after the farm on account of her age led her to end her life.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all uffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

Washington Forecast.

It now promises to be decidedly warmer in New England by Saturday, probably with temperature between 80 and 86 degrees at the highest. The warm weather will probably continue Sunday and possibly well into the week. It will doubtless continue fair and generally clear Saturday and Sunday, with southwesterly winds.

Death of a Veteran.

Mr. George A. Lund, who died in this city on Tuesday was taken to Milford for burial on Wednesday, funeral services being held from the Unitarian church. His mother is still living in that town. Mr. Lund was a genial man and for many years work in the manufactury of John McLane, who furnishes post office fixtures. He was a member of Lull post, G. A. R., and the veterans attended the funeral. Mrs. Florence Adams of this city is his sister.

Break on Granite Street.

The variety store of F. J. Pierson on Granite street was entered by burglars sometime during Wednesday night. Entrance was made by breaking a glass in the rear door and turning the key in the lock. The parties carried off a miscellaneous lot of goods, consisting of two pipes valued at $11; a pair of shoes; a lot of rings valued at $15; a gold plated watch, clothing and cigars, the total value being about $50. The break was reported to the police, Thursday.

Party at Wollaston Park.

A very enjoyable birthday party was given by little Miss Bula Loud at her home on Beach street on Thursday afternoon. This being Bula's ninth summer her little friends were naturally of about that age, and all went home feeling happy with the knowledge that they had not only had a pleasant time themselves but had also left their little friend Bula feeling happy with the many tokens of childish love they brought with them. Among those present were: Lizzie B. Linnell, Rena Grant, Edith Chapman, Susie M. Page, Beatrice Given, Ethel Marr, Emma Fowler, Ethel James, Gester Cleaves,

BE PREPARED.

Majority Should Not Permit Minority to Rule.

It will be well, says a well known gentleman to the LEDGER, for the delegates to the Norfolk County Republican convention, to have in mind the amendment to the election laws which permits one-fourth of the delegates to call for a roll call, when a plurality will make the nomination. It will be impossible for Commissioner Morrell to secure a majority of the delegates, he added, but he may have one-fourth, and should the opposition be scattered, Mr. Morrell with a vote of 30 to 40 might capture the convention. The opposition should be prepared to unite should a roll call be ordered.

At the convention last year there were from 121 to 110 votes cast, and majorities wavered betweed 62 and 56. On the first ballot 120 votes were cast and E. D. Wadsworth and James Hewins received 44 each, the other 32 being scattered among four other candidates. Had the second ballot been upon roll-call under the new law Mr. Mowry would have been nominated, although he lacked five of a majority. So it would have been on the next three ballots. Then Mr. Hewins withdrew in favor of Oscar B. Mowry, but his supporters broke and Capt. Wadsworth was nominated by a large majority, having 78 of 110 cast.

Figures are not at hand giving the size of the county convention this year, but if there are 120 delegates as last year it is possible that 40 for Morrell might carry the day if the other 80 were about equally divided among three or four candidates. The opposition must unite.

It is wel that the situation is understood before the caucuses, for care will be exercised in the choice of delegates.

Blue Hill Parkway.

Proposals for the building of the Blue Hills parkway from the Neponset river to Brook road in Milton were opened by the Metropolitan Park Commission Thursday, and the contract was awarded to Frank X. Saucier of Boston at $14,748. The length of the parkway will be about 1500 feet, and the work will consist of grading, filling, draining, gravel work, surfacing, etc. Three thousand four hundred and fifty square yards of gravel walk surfacing are called for, as well as nearly 1000 yards of loam surfacing and more than 12,000 yards of broken stone surfacing. The proposals were fifteen in number, and the contract went to the lowest bidder, Mr. Saucier. The next lowest bid was $15,021, by John A. Whittemore's Sons of Boston.

Milton is especially favored by the location of the Blue Hills reservation, and this parkway is a continuation of the Blue Hill avenue boulevard from Boston and will be extended to the reservation, which it will enter at Canton avenue near the Town farm. Milton is bounded on the south by ten or twelve miles of the reservation which is accessible from Randolph avenue, Forrest street, Hillside street, and Canton avenue. The rich town should not kick if its Metropolitan park and boulevard assessment is a large sum.

Takes a Man's Place.

Miss Carrie Follett Spear of this city has been elected as instructor in music at the Framingham State Normal school and also in the public schools of Framingham at a salary of $900 per year. Miss Spear is a graduate of the Bridgewater Normal and has taught music in the Holbrook school and to private classes, and has been prominent in some of the best concerts given in Quincy, notably those by the Quincy Musical society. She takes the place of Prof. William S. Tilden of Medfield, who resigned, and will begin her duties in September.

More Crooked Work.

Now it is asserted that is has been the custom of the old management of the Massachusetts Benefit Life Association to settle certain cases for less than the face of the policy, taking the full amount out of the treasury, and crediting the difference to legal fees, contesting claims, etc. The question is now raised whether those who have thus made settlements cannot now come in, demand the payment for the full amount of their policies, and so swell the liabilities of the association.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of Benjamin Banner for drunkenness at Braintree was called and he was fined $5.

Thomas O'Halloran pleaded guilty to keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell at Randolph. Case continued two weeks.

The case of Martin G. Holbrook for the illegal keeping of intoxicating liquor at Randolph was called and again continued until Monday.

James Collins and Michael Devlin were arraigned for the illegal transportation of liquor at Milton. Case continued until Sept. 11.

MILTON.

Chief of Police Maurice Pierce is enjoying a brief vacation and Deputy McDermott is acting as chief.

Milton officers overhauled a load of beer Thursday that was on its way to the Swedish grove and arrested James Collins and Michael Devlin for the illegal transportation of liquor. It afterward turned out that the beer came from a Boston brewery who had hired the grove to give their employes an outing, and the beer was sent out for their use as a gift from the brewery.

SQUANTUM PARK.

May be Metropolitan Park But Not a Boston Park.

With or without the advice of John C. Cobb of Milton, special adviser to the Mayor on the purchase of real estate, the Journal says, Hon. Josiah Quincy recently decided that the park system of Boston could be greatly benefited by extending it into Quincy.

When the city modernized its sewer system it became necessary to purchase about 15 acres of land at Squantum Head, owned by the Butler heirs, as the owners refused to part with a portion of the property. This is now held by the Street Department of Boston.

Mr. Quincy wrote to Superintendent of Streets Wells and suggested that in view of the recent establishment of a street railway line to Squantum by the Quincy & Boston Street Railway Company, it would be well to transfer the land to the Boston Park Department.

Mr. Quincy was not then aware that the Metropolitan Park Commission received from the Legislature of 1897 full authority to take Squantum Head for an extension of the Neponset River Reservation.

Having since become acquainted with the facts, he has abandoned the idea of annexing a part of Quincy to Boston for park purposes. In justice to Mayor Quincy it should be stated that his intimate and recently official relations with the Boston and Quincy Railroad Company did not bias his views in considering the advisability of a beautiful park as an attraction for patrons of the road.

West Quincy Branch.

At the regular monthly meeting of West Quincy Branch, Granite Cutters' National Union, held on Thursday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing term :

President,—Frank J. Daveron.
Vice President,—Robert Watson.
Corresponding Secretary,—Frank P. Foley.
Financial Secretary,—Michael J. O'Brien.
Treasurer,—Jeremiah Curtin.
Standing Committee,—F. J. Davoren, John O. Moyle, John P. Reddington.
Grievance Committee,—H. W. Campbell, John O. Moyle, F. P. Foley, H. F. Geer, John P. Reddington.

Don't Like Two Fares.

The people of Atlantic think they are getting a pretty tight squeeze when they are compelled to pay ten cents to ride on the electric cars from their doors to either Quincy Centre or Neponset bridge. The distance is very short and it is hard for them to see wherein the electrics are to benefit them at all, unless a more liberal policy is adopted by the Quincy & Boston Co. It would certainly seem as though one fare should be ample for this two miles of travel.

No Race at Duxbury.

There was a lack of wind for the open race off Duxbury on Thursday, and none of the yachts finished within the time limit of three hours, although the Privateer of Quincy was only three minutes over time. The race will be sailed over next week Thursday.

This morning the open race of the Kingston club was started, and tomorrow there will be one at Plymouth.

Smashup.

A horse, attached to a vegetable wagon from Glen Rose farm, East Braintree, became unmanageable and ran down Granite street, and when near the Greenleaf hotel struck an open buggy belonging to John Q. A. Field, smashing one wheel to splinters.

COUNTY AND VICINITY.

—There is a complaint in Dedham because so many women and children ride on the sidewalk.

—The selectmen of Walpole have granted a franchise to the Norfolk Southern street railway company from Norwood line to Foxboro line. The company also desire to build from the center of the town to East Walpole. The new road to extend through the towns of Norwood, Walpole, Foxboro and Mansfield and will be about 17 miles in length.

☞ The following sign on a farmhouse not far from a certain Massachusetts town is possibly responsible for the vacant rooms and the complaints of the owner: "Summer boarders taken in." The Boston Evening Transcript remarks that George Washington, in his best estate, could not have been more truthful than the author of the sign.

TAKEN FROM GYPSIES

A Braintree Boy Who Has Been a Captive.

A dispatch to the Globe from New York reports that Ernest Maden, a boy of 15, the son of a livery stable keeper of Dyer's hill, South Braintree, Mass., was rescued by Capt. Schmittberger and the detectives of the West 47th street station from a band of gypsies, with whom he had been travelling seven or eight weeks.

The gypsy and his wife in whose company the boy was found are locked up as suspicious persons. Whether or not a charge of kidnapping will be sustained is doubtful. Capt. Schmittberger says he will probably make it against them.

Capt. Schmittberger was told since the arrest that a boy, who was supposed to be the son of wealthy parents, was held captive by a band of gypsies. The boy, the captain's informant said, was compelled to do all sorts of housework, to mind the gypsy's baby and was not allowed his freedom. The boy, it was said, was shamefully ill-treated, and had been kidnapped somewhere up in the state. It was also said that he was being held for a ransom.

The man and wife of the camp were arrested and will be arraigned for kidnapping but they say they did not kidnap the boy. He was such a nice little boy that we took a liking to him, and when he told us that he was going to New York we told him that we were bound there too, and that he might come along and mind the baby. And he did. He said his father had been dead five years and his mother ten."

Gilman Maden, father of the Ernest Maden was seen at his home, Dyer's hill, Braintree, Thursday night. He said that his son Ernest was always an unruly child, and that four years ago, when the boy was 11 years old, he had him committed to the state reformatory for being an unruly and stubborn child.

Officer Benjamin Loring got Ernest a home with a farmer at Chicopee Falls, but he ran away from there and came home to South Braintree, having been gone a little over a year. Ernest was next given a home in Colebrook, Conn., but ran away from there last spring. He came back to South Braintree, after awhile, and told some of his young friends and neighbors that he was obliged to do a man's work and it was too hard on him.

Officer Davis of Fall River took the boy back again to Colebrook, and he remained there until six months ago. The state officers have been looking for him since, and have been to Braintree in search of him.

Mr. Maden says that Ernest will not remain at home, and it would be useles for him to take him back. He will probably be returned to the state reformatory.

People in South Braintree who are familiar with the case have much sympathy for Ernest. They say he was not treated as a boy should be at home. His father married again when Ernest was quite young, and after that the trouble with the boy began. Mr. Maden at one time worked at Kane's livery stable, and afterward for the Old Colony road. He is out of work at present.

Mr. Charles P. Hutchins of Wollaston is making a tour of the Provinces.

Miss Alice Apollonio of Marshfield Hills is the guest of Miss Corinna Wilde.

Miss Lillie Brown of Everett is the guest of Miss Annie V. Leary of Hancock street.

Mrs. James C. Bates of Wollaston is passing the summer at Hillsboro Centre, N. H.

The first real estate tax for 1897 was paid this morning by Mrs. Louisa A. Hanson.

The steam roller is at work today upon a new road to Sheppard's coal wharf at Quincy Point.

Miss Leonora Remington of Ashmont is the guest of Mrs. T. W. Mosley of Atlantic street.

Mrs. Abner Robbins of Union, Oregon, is visiting her sister, Mrs. John D. Nutting, of Douglas street.

Work putting in the turnout on Hancock street, opposite Music hall, will be completed today.

Mr. William L. Thomas and Miss Mattie Frye have returned from a two weeks' visit at Weirs, N. H.

Miss Winnie Seamen of Squantum street returned Thursday after an extended visit in New York and Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ramsdell with Miss Helen Curtin, Mabel Read and Georgiana Priest spent Thursday at Walpole.

William McCormick, president of the Farmers' bank of Emden, Ill., and a newspaper publisher is visiting relatives in West Quincy.

The Democratic City Committee met Thursday evening at which it was voted to hold the caucuses on Thursday evening, Sept. 16.

A few days more work by the steam roller and a small gang of men would put Sagamore and Billings street in a very good condition.

Mayor Adams will sail the Hoodlum next week at Marblehead in her three races with the Cock Robin. Much interest is felt in this match.

The Arbutus is cruising along the North Shore this week with Messrs. Charles Hall, Amos Merritt, John Q. Cudworth and Eaton Pierce abroard.

The Quincy Yacht Club's concert by six pieces of Baldwin's Boston Cadet band this evening will be the club's closing social function of the season. Mr. Harry C. Daggett will lead the orchestra.

Billings street people would appreciate it very much if the unsightly pole on the northerly side of their street were removed, as since the electric road have added theirs, it tends to increase prominence of those not actually needed.

C. H. Johnson, Inspector of Animals and Provisions, reports a large number of cases of glanders in the city. Reports have also reached the office that several cases in the city have not been reported. The Inspector is on the alert for violators of the law and owners of horses should be on their guard. A horse of Charles Stanley of Granite street was killed on Thursday.

Our fellow townsman, Mr. William A. Jordan of Wollaston, was one of the prominent figures at the 25th annual carnival of the Red Men of Massachusetts. Mr. Jordan was made one of the great chiefs of the council, Grand Junior Sagamore; was one of the three members of the committee on credentials; and also chairman of the committee on foreign correspondence.

☞The Bookman tells of a Scotch hotel keeper who was not ovewhelmed by the honor of sheltering Tennyson:—"Do you ken who you had wi' you t'other night?" "Na; but he was a pleesant shentleman." "It was Tennyson, the poet." "An' wha' may he be?" "Oh, he is a writer o' verses, sich as ye see i' the papers." "Noo, to think o' that! jeest a pooblic writer, an' I gied him ma best bedroom!" If it had been Bobbie Burns, it would doubtless have been different.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

Concert and Dance in Aid of St. Frances' Church.

The fourth annual concert and social for the benefit of St. Frances' church was held in the Opera House Thursday night, followed by a dance in Costello's Casino. It proved a great success and brilliant affair. The programme was up to date and every one was encored over and over, especially the little tots, Misses Helen Sheahan, Evangeline White, Bertha Linden and May Bailey. Miss Grace McVey should have special notice for her ability in singing. Mr. Edward Machravelli should also be mentioned for his recitation. Miss Elcock's song, Mona, pleased the audience, she being called three times. Miss Julia Donahue and Mr. John Padula should also be mentioned, their voices being in fine condition and their songs satisfied the audience. Miss May Bailey and John Phelan captured the crowd with their songs.

Mr. L. P. Newton of Lynn, well know in shoe circles, is a guest at Pierce's Hotel.

Mr. S. M. Link of Albany, N. Y., has arrived to spend illumination day at Mears' hotel.

The residents of the Neck were about to say that winter was setting in, but not yet.

The water has been very warm these last few days.

Mr. John E. Rice, Phillip Crosby, John R. Meany, Oscar Jones of Boston will be guests on illumination day at the Lorrett o Hotel.

Webster's Greatest Triumph.

Dr. William Everett of this city was one of the speakers at the Marshfield fair on Thursday, and the Globe reports him as follows:

Dr. William Everett of Quincy was next introduced, amid applause. He said: "I came here, not knowing what fate might befall me. I fancied we men were invited to attend the county fair in order to teach you things we know, but I learn from your president's remarks that it is for the purpose of taking the conceit out of us.

"Mr. Lovering said that this is the farmers' year, but consider, what would the farmers' crops amount to without the railroad and steamship lines, and the cities with their accumulations of capital, which collect the productions of the scattered farms and gather them to cities, whence they are scattered to the consumers? It is a great thing to have good crops, but it is still a greater thing to have all the arts and trades working harmoniously together. It is the combination of all these which makes prosperity.

"We who once knew Daniel Webster would not have dared to call him 'Webster,' or 'Daniel Webster,' for he was Mr. Webster with us. He was orator, statesman, fisherman, farmer, friend, and was more than all these. He was as dear to Massachusetts as to his native New Hampshire. He could see many interests and could care for manufacturing as for farming, for commerce as for art. Like him, you should not let your own home thoughts shut you out from the foreign nations with which you are linked like sisters.

"What was Webster's greatest triumph? It was not in oratory, in any of his famous speeches. In 1842, when the envoy of England came here to determine the boundary between this country and Canada, all the hot spirits of the country were desirous that Mr. Webster should make the line a straight one, even if war came of it, but he withdrew from what he considered the rights of the case, withdrew in the interests of humanity, to prevent a war between sister nations.

"Those who now, in our congress, proclaim that war would be a good thing, should see this Godlike form rise in the senate and proclaim 'Peace on earth, good will to men.'"

WHALEN AT THE WAKE.

Did ye iver hear the story av Whalen at the wake?
Sit down until I tell ye, an yure heart an sides'll break.
Twur the best man in creation
Wur the corpse av the occasion,
Whin Whalen raised the divil at the wake.

The poipes wur passed in plinty, an the whisky, fur from mean,
Had beads a king might envy for the round neck av his queen,
An Whalen, gittin frisky,
Swore there niver wur such whisky
From Killybegs way down to quarantine.

"If the dead could drink," says Whalen, "he would not be lyin flat.
No man that drunk this whisky iver slept as sound as that.
With that bead around it glancin
It would set the dead to dancin
An make him kick the daylight through his hat."

Thin Whalen filled his tumbler ivery time the jug went round,
Till he fell into a slumber that wur beautiful an sound.
Thin, the rest—for to dec'ave him,
Sez, "Suppose we go an l'ave him?"
An they did—beside the dead corpse on the ground.

Now, the story comes: Whin Whalen woke at last in his surprise,
He saw the dead man sittin up an rubbin av his eyes.
Sez the dead: "If that ain't Whalen,
Thin the soight av me is fallin.
Will ye kindly be a-helpin me to rise?"

"D'ye take me for the judgment?" says Whalen, shiverin,
While the hair av him stood straighter that his legs had iver been.
"Ye can lie there, ye can die there—
Reach the devil, or the sky there,
But the house of you can niver hold me in."

Thin Whalen made a dash for the nearest winder sash,
An knocked a dozen winder panes to smithereens an smash.
An the crowd, a-rushin in,
Saw the dead man wid a grin,
An followed after Whalen in a flash.

An they took the winders wid 'em. There wur niver such a time.
Folks thought the town wur crazy, an the bells commenced to chime.
Says Whalen, "Whin they lay dead,
By the hivins let 'em stay dead."
While the fincs he continued for to climb.

Now, the truth av it's, 'twur risky to be usin such good whisky.
Small wonder that the dead man got to feelin fine an frisky.
"If he dies again," says Whalen,
"At his wake he'll find me failin.
He can sit up wid himself an run the wake."

Only a Ham.

"I've just worked up a good story about our star being kidnaped by bandits in Italy," said the press agent, "and the villain being caught and sentenced to prison for life."

"Won't do," said the manager. "Some fellow will be sure to say something about the severity of the sentence being out of all proportion to the crime of stealing a ham."—Indianapolis Journal.

Anxious to Please.

He fell upon one knee as he took her soft hand in his and pleaded with her.

"Mabel! Darling!" he cried. "Say that you will return my love!"

"I will do better than that," she answered as she tried to intimate by one or two quick jerks that she considered her hand her own. "I won't take it in the first place, so there will be nothing to return."—Chicago Post.

Quite Possible.

"Miss Flyte, do you think Miss Giggle is laughing at me?"

"I can't say, Mr. Softleigh. She often laughs at almost nothing."—Tit-Bits.

A POETICAL PROBLEM.

Fame Was Alluring, but Money Also Had Its Charms.

He was sitting near an open window enveloped in thought and cigar smoke.

"Really," he said at last, "it is a very puzzling problem."

"What is?" demanded the man who was enveloped in cigar smoke without the thought.

"The relative value of good literature and bad."

"I don't believe I quite follow you."

"Probably not," said the man who had a little thought tangled up with his cigar smoke. "You've had no occasion to find out the market value of good poetry and doggerel. You never have had to decide whether you will go in for money or fame."

"Have you?"

"I'm struggling with the problem now. You see, I've written a little poem—a mere trifle, you know."

"Of course. They all are when their authors want to read them to you, even if they are 86 stanzas long."

"But I don't want to read this to you, and it really is a mere trifle as regards length," protested the poet.

"Well, where's the problem?"

"I'm coming to that. You see, I thought it would be nice to have it in a magazine. It takes a little higher grade of stuff to get into the magazines, you know—at least, it's supposed to, although there are people who doubt it—and I thought it would give me a little better standing in the literary world to have it printed in one of them."

"But they wouldn't touch it?"

"On the contrary, I was offered $3 for it."

"Better take it. They don't pay much for poetry now until a man has written himself out making a reputation. Then they'll pay high prices for drivel."

"But I have an offer of $5 for it from a newspaper," explained the poet. "It won't do me so much good in the literary world, but I can't forget that money is money."

"That is something of a problem if you intend to go into that line regularly. However, money is money. I think I'd take the $5 and try to work into the magazine later."

"But there's a soap manufacturer here who will give me $25 for it if I will revise one line so as to get in the name of his soap," persisted the poet. "Now what shall I do—call it high class poetry and let it go for $3 or make it doggerel and sell it for $25? What is the relative value of"—

But the poet was alone. The problem was too much for his companion.—Chicago Post.

Asking For the Politician's Daughter.

"Did you speak to the father of the girl you wish to marry?" said one young man.

"Yes," replied the other.

"Did he give you any encouragement?"

"He seemed to think he did. He is a politician and has been haunted by constituents ever since election. When I told him the ambition of my life, he said very gravely that it was seldom anybody secured exactly what he desired; he couldn't see his way clear to making me the groom at his daughter's wedding, but he'd see what he could do about getting me the place of best man."—Washington Star.

A Mean Advantage.

"That man Nibley isn't to be trusted. He'd take advantage of you quicker than a wink if he saw a chance to do so."

"How do you know that?"

"I overheard him and his wife in an argument last night, and when he saw that she was getting ahead of him he yelled, "Look out, there's a mouse!"—Cleveland Leader.

No Unnecessary Expense.

Real Estate Agent (out west)—Good morning, sir. What can I do for you? William, bring the gentleman a cigar. Do you want to buy a lot?

Caller—No; I want to sell one.

Agent—William, never mind the cigar.—New York Weekly.

It Seemed as Large.

"What are you crying for, Willie?"

"Johnny Jones hit me with a rock."

"With a stone, you mean. A rock is as big as a house."

"Well, this one felt that big anyhow."—Indianapolis Journal.

Even Worse.

Hungry Higgins—I wouldn't mind goin to Klondike if it wasn't fer havin to dig out the gold.

"No; tell him we won't lend it, but if he needs exercise he can come over and cut our grass."—Detroit Free Press.

An Eyewitness.

"Have you any witness to this assault on you?" asked the judge.

"Yes, judge. I was there myself," answered Hans.—Fliegende Blatter.

Hard Conditions.

"But the conditions of life on the Klondike must be hard."

"Yes, even the milk of human kindness is condensed."—Detroit News.

MT. ST. ELIAS.

Success of Prince Luigi's Expedition---Fixes Altitude and Other Questions.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 27.—The expedition of Prince Luigi of Savoy to the summit of Mount St. Elias has fixed finally the altitude of the mount at 18,120 feet. The expedition has also answered definitely questions asked by scientists as to whether or not St. Elias was at one time a great volcano.

There is not the slightest indication of volcanic action anywhere. A new glacier was discovered by the explorers from the eminence of Mount St. Elias, between the Augusta mountains and Great Logan. It takes its course, apparently, to the sea, and was named by the prince, "Colombo."

Advancing up these glaciers and moraines took 39 days.

At Pinnacle pass was found the first evidence of Russell's expedition in 1891, in the shape of a tent bottom and a rusty fork.

The divide connecting Mount St. Elias and Mount Newton was 8000 feet high. The Americans raised the Stars and Stripes over the camp there and Prince Luigi and his party cheered for the flag.

At 1 o'clock on the morning of July 31, they commenced the ascent of the great mountain. For 11 hours the upward climb was made, and at exactly five minutes before 12 the summit of St. Elias was beneath the feet of the explorers.

There was neither wind nor fog and only 20 below freezing. The prince planted the Italian flag on the topmost peak and photographed it. He then took a picture of the American and Italian flags. The prince does not consider the ascent difficult, except for the last few hundred feet, which is a mass of solid ice.

Quigg's Plans.

New York, Aug. 27.—Chairman Lemuel E. Quigg of the New York county Republican committee, in accordance with resolutions passed at the meeting of the special committee composed of delegates from the borough, comprising the Greater New York, directing him to confer with the officers of all political organizations opposed to Tammany hall for the purpose of holding simultaneous conventions and agreeing on a union ticket, has sent out invitations for a conference to be held on Aug. 30. The invitations were sent to R. Fulton Cutting of the Citizens' union, John K. Creevy of the committee of fifty of Kings county, Edward J. H. Tamsen of the German American Reform union, Henry D. Purroy of the home rule democracy, Francis M. Scott of the national Democracy, Thomas J. Creamer of the Manhattan Democracy, Julius Harburger of the Independence Hall Democracy, James O'Brien of the young Democracy, John B. Paines of the German-American Citizens' union, and General Wager Swayne of the Republican organization of the city and county of New York.

Yale Football Notes.

New Haven, Aug. 27.—According to a letter received from Captain Rogers the Yale football team will come here about Sept. 20 and will begin practice at the field. J. C. Cutten of the Theological school, formerly of Arcadia university team, will be in the team. He is a fine player. Rogers and Benjamin are all of the veterans to be re-enlisted, though Chadwick possibly may enter the law school and he will then be eligible. Of the substitutes who played last year and from whom some good material may be developed this year, and who will return, are: Dustin, who played substitute guard; the younger Sutphin, also a subguard; McFarland, sub-center; Conner and J. P. Camp, sub-ends; Atkin and Hins, sub-halfbacks, and Gerard, subfullback. Of last year's team Hamlin, Ely, Hines and Benjamin will surely return.

Populist Convention Call.

Boston, Aug. 27.—The following circular has been sent out by George F. Washburn, chairman of the state executive committee of the People's party: The annual state convention of the People's party will be held in Arcade hall, 7 Park square, Boston, Saturday, Sept. 18, 1897, at 11 o'clock a. m. The basis of representation will be one delegate for each town and city and one for each 50 votes or majority fraction thereof cast for our candidate for governor in 1895.

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent occulists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.

I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.

F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.

I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.

JACOB GOLDBERG, M. D.

This is a very expensive instrument, but we consider nothing too good for our patrons, and have placed one in our optical room.

FROM KHYBER PASS.

Fort Lund-Kotal Taken by Afridis After a Hard Battle.

Simla, Aug. 27.—The Afridis attacked Fort Lundi-Kotal Tuesday. The garrison held its own until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, when, after sharp fighting, in which the native commander of the garrison was killed while leading his men, the enemy gained an entrance. The fight was continued for two hours inside the fortification by the Khyber rifles in the towers at the angles of the fort, which was strongly built of stone. The Afridis lost heavily before they captured the place. They looted the fort, capturing a quantity of supplies, and then burned the structure. The fact that no news has been received of the fate of the garrison leads to the belief here that they succeeded in making terms before they surrendered.

The news is confirmed here that the Orakzais have risen and cut the telegraphic communications with all of the garrisons and posts of Kurran valley.

A message from the queen to the viceroy was read as follows:

"I am grieved at the loss of my brave officers and men. I trust that the wounded are doing well. It is most gratifying to me to see how well my troops have behaved. The conduct of all my troops has been admirable."

The message was read at all the parades of the troops at the front and was received with cheers and enthusiasm.

The success of the Afridis in closing Khyber pass compels a reconsideration of the whole border question. Under the existing agreement the Afridis in return for liberal subsidies undertook to keep the pass open to furnish men for the Khyber rifles and to resist attacks without our aid.

The demands upon the military resources for Tochi, Malakand, Kohat, etc., prevented sending a force to meet the sudden raid on the pass. The punishment of this breach of faith of the Afridis is justified, while it is absolutely necessary for the future safety of the frontier that they be dispersed and disarmed. No such success as they have temporarily gained has ever before been recorded on the northest border. The government is bound in common prudence to mobilize a force at Peshawur strong enough to traverse the whole country south and the Khyber pass from end to end. The policy of disarmament has never been attempted heretofore with the Pathan tribes, but it must now be introduced, as there is ample evidence that the Afridis are largely armed with breach-loading rifles, and recent experiences show the danger to the frontier from masses of armed tribesmen nominally under the political influence of the British government.

Fall River Sensation.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 27.—The investigating committee of the city government, which is trying to find out whether the members of the public instruction committee have mixed up in any corrupt practices, sprung a sensation on the city yesterday afternoon, when it begun its third session. By a vote of the committee, Charles R. Cummings, counsel, and Councilmen Hoag and Shay were invited to sit in the room while witnesses were examined, and Mr. Cummings was allowed to cross-examine. This he demanded as his right, because his clients were charged directly by Bobrick with asking for boodle. In the afternoon the committee ended its session and Chairman Baker announced that the committee had decided to exclude Counsel Cummings and also Hoag and Shay. The chairman said that the privilege which was granted ended with the examination of Bobrick, the Boston furniture man, who is the immediate cause of the whole investigation.

The Grand Circuit.

Readville, Mass., Aug. 27. — Fine weather brought out an attendance of 5000 at the Readville park races yesterday afternoon. The surprise of the day was the victory of Grace Hastings in the 2:11 trot, left over from Wednesday. Baron Rogers was a strong favorite, but proved unsteady, and Grace Hastings won three straight, the Baron getting second money. Passing Belle had little trouble in making it one, two, three in the 2:25 pace. In the Massachusetts stake race Oakland Baron was first choice, but did not get one heat of the four trotted, the race being unfinished. The 2:16 trot also had to be carried over after three heats, of which Ragle Flannagan secured two and G. H. P. one. Today Joe Patchen (2:01½), driven by Ed Geers, will attempt to lower his pacing record, and tomorrow Star Pointer (2:01¾) will make a similar effort.

Senator Wellington Turned Down.

Ocean City, Md., Aug. 27.—Senator Wellington and his machine combination of politicians, who sought to run the party and prevent the nomination in Baltimore of William T. Malster, the choice of the voters for mayor, were defeated in the state convention yesterday. The friends of Postmaster General Gary and of Congressman Barber of the First district and Congressman Mudd of the Fifth district controlled the convention. It was Congressman Mudd, who, as speaker of the house of delegates in the legislature of 1896, made Wellington United States senator, and yesterday the votes of the delegates controlled by him defeated the man who set himself up as dictator of the Republican party in Maryland.

Salisbury's New Proposal.

Constantinople, Aug. 27.—Lord Salisbury has made a fresh and important proposal in the matter of the settlement of the indemnity due Turkey from Greece. He suggests that Great Britain, France and Russia jointly guarantee the indemnity loan and control the revenues set apart for the purpose of meeting this obligation. He invites the other powers to participate in the guarantee if they choose to do so.

Blandford Reunion.

Blandford, Mass., Aug. 27.—The plans of the citizens of Blandford for a grand reunion of the former residents and their lineal descendents were most successfully consumated here yesterday. A banquet was served at the fair grounds. It is estimated that fully 1200 people sat down at the tables. The after dinner speeches were made from the judges stand with the audience seated in the grand stand.

Novel Race Arranged.

Lewiston, Me., Aug. 27.—Preparations are being made for the state fair here next week. Among the novel events will be the horseless carriage race. The pacing race between Bismarck and Gipsy M will take place Friday.

National League.

At Boston—

Cuppy proved a puzzler for Boston yesterday, while Nichols was an easy mark for Cleveland. The visitors put up a perfect fielding game and batted hard, while Boston's hits always fell into somebody's hands. A magnificent running catch of a foul by Bergen in the first inning and the fielding of Childs and Allen were the features. The batting of Wallace, Burkett and Childs was strong

Hawaiian Advices.

San Francisco, Aug. 27.—Hawaiian advices says: The Hawaiian government has not yet received an answer from Japan regarding the offer to refer the immigration trouble to arbitration. There is no change in the situation here. The Hawaiian Star, commenting upon the admission of the Japanese that in case of trouble all the Japanese in Honolulu were to meet at a rendezvous, says: If we look up the Japanese correspondence and the articles in the Japanese press there is found frequent allusion to an uprising in the islands. It is one of the excuses for the presence of the Naniwa in our waters. Should such a rising take place it would be very easy for the Japanese government to repudiate it if unsuccessful, and it would be very easy to reap advantages were it successful.

Received 10,000 Volts.

Bath, Me., Aug. 27.—William Vanscoy, 2 years old, an oiler for the last four months in the Bath electric station, was instantly killed last night by coming in contact with a live wire. He was standing on a machine and in reaching up to take down a wire took hold of the wrong one. Superintendent Day was close to him, but he was dead before he could be taken down. While a current of over 10,000 volts passed through his body, the doctor who was called could find no marks on the body. Vanscoy leaves a widow.

Queen Regent Threatened.

London, Aug. 27.—A dispatch to The Daily Mail from San Sebastian says that the Spanish government has learned that at a secret anarchist meeting in London it was resolved to revenge the execution of Angiolillo, the assasin of Canovas Del Castillo, by an attempt upon the life of the queen regent of Spain. Twenty of the ablest Barcelona detectives, it is reported, have been detailed to protect the queen regent.

Bail Increased.

Brockton, Mass., Aug. 27.—Maurice O'Connell, Michael McDonald and John Connell, who are charged with assault on Special Officer Perkins, have been placed under additional bonds, amounting to $10,000 each, owing to the very critical condition of the officer. This is the case in which, while the officer was making an arrest, he was set upon by the prisoners's friends and maltreated.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

VOL. 9. NO. 201. QUINCY, MASS., SATURDAY, AUGUST 28, 1897. PRICE 2 CENTS.

Social Realm of the "City of Presidents," and Greater Quincy.

The longer on this earth we live
And weigh the various qualities of men,
Seeing how most are fugitive,
Or fitful gifts, at best, of now and then,
The more we feel the high stern-featured beauty
Of plain devotedness to duty,
Steadfast and still, nor more with mortal praise,
But finding ample recompense
For life's ungarlanded expense
In work done squarely and unwasted days.
—LOWELL.

THE PURPOSE IN LIFE.

Do the tears that arise in the heat of the strife
Seem to hide from your vision the purpose of life?
Do the myriad cares of laborious days
Leave the doubt in your heart whether living them pays?

Banish doubt and plod on. Life was given to man
As a part of creation's mysterious plan.
Each must carry what burdens the years may bestow
Until burdens and bearer alike are laid low.

And the end of the road is a couch with a pall,
And it may be the couch is the end of it all,
Or it may be the spirit, released from the clod,
Shares the freedom of time with the infinite God.

'Tis but folly to dig into moss covered creeds.
Let your life be a record of generous deeds.
Not the wisest may fathom futurity's plan,
But the weakest may live as becometh a man.
—Chicago Times-Herald.

A COWBOY'S RIDE.

It was a lively time at Pine Ridge, or at least at the agency, being "issue day" and pay day also. The agent would order a steer or a fat cow driven from the corral, and calling the name of the Indian to whom it was issued turn it loose upon the prairie and the mercies of the gentle red man.

The excitement was great, but Joe Strange observed that one of the Indians took no part in the bloody sport. Old Pink Eye was narrowly watching some men in the busy throng, and when Joe started toward the commissary the Sioux stealthily followed him. It was apparent that he was the person watched.

Strange was a partner in the business of the Flying S Cattle company and would draw a large sum of money from the government's representative at Pine Ridge in payment for beef cattle furnished to the agency on that day.

The money was paid before the eyes of the watching Sioux. The Indian hastened from the commissary, and then it was Joe's turn to go a-spying.

Old Pink Eye made his way to where a couple of cowboys were lounging and said somthing in an undertone, after which the trio separated. The men were Dunc Moore and a fellow whose real name was unknown, but who rejoiced in the elegant sobriquet of Smoky Bill. It was plain that the fellows were working a scheme, and Joe determined to be on his guard, for the money must be in Chadron on the following day.

At the time of this incident the country lying between the agency and Chadron, Neb., was a waste of wild grass land, and the better thoroughfares of today were represented by a dim trail. A fleet horse and a trusty six shooter in the hands of a lone cowboy were the only express and insurance company, but those were generally reliable, and Joe Strange intrusted his money to their care.

Calling to Charley Ray, a dashing young cowboy, he sauntered carelessly down the trail and unfolded a plan to outwit the Indian and his white allies. Charley was to ride out with the night herd, and when well out of sight of camp Strange would join him and turn over the money. Then Charley was to make a dash for Chadron.

The start was made, but subsequent events proved that Pink Eye had kept the conspirators posted.

Ray was mounted on the best horse in the section and was armed with six shooters and a favorite rifle. His instructions were to deliver the money to the Elkhorn National bank at any cost, and Joe hinted that it might be advisable to be prepared for a running fight. It was 9:30 when he started, and he determined to make the trip, a distance of 80 miles, by daylight.

The first ten miles were passed without mishap, then, looking back, the messenger could see in the moonlight a trio of horsemen just descending a long ridge and riding at a keen gallop. They were Dunc Moore, Smoky Bill and the half breed Pink Eye.

Two miles more and the Hat ranch was abreast, and there the flying horseman noticed that the corral was filled with tough cow horses. What if the robbers changed horses there? Well, the old pinto he was riding was full of nerve, and, as the rider observed, "it would be a cold day when a cow horse passed him." Besides, what were the shooting irons for? Dunc Moore was a good shot, but he couldn't shoot till he came in range, and right there lay the difficulty, if the pinto held out. Talking of that, that's what the pinto was there for, and Charley Ray leaned forward in the saddle with an exclamation that was partly a word of encouragement and partly an honest cuss word, while the good horse galloped on.

The robbers secured a relay of horses at the Hat ranch and began the pursuit anew, but Ray had got the start in the meantime and kept it pretty well, although the robbers were nearly always in sight. Forty miles, 5½ hours, and the race is not yet finished. The pinto travels more slowly now, but the pursuers make a spurt, and something must be done. The only thing to do is promptly done. The three rifle balls follow each other in quick succession in the direction indicated by the sound of galloping hoofs. This checked the robbers for a time, but they did not give up the chase.

The country now became more rolling, and the robbers could safely approach within 300 or 400 yards by keeping the ridges. Just how the robbers would attempt to secure the money the messenger did not know, but that they were desperate characters was well known throughout the section. Ray did not think that they would murder him as long as a chance remained to secure the money by a less dangerous course, but his position was such that he did not care to risk his head to the marksmanship of Dunc Moore just for a paltry $2,000 or so, which, after all, was no matter of his. He resolved to hit the trail just as hard as ever the old pinto could put his hoofs down, and, if that would not suffice, take the next chance that offered.

Aside from constant apprehension at the sound of hoofs in the rear, nothing marred the beauty of the moonlight ride until a point within five miles of Chadron was reached. The occasional howl of a coyote only lent interest to the situation. It is strange that such things sometimes give cheer to a state of otherwise utter loneliness.

But now something happened to make the horseman realize that he was not alone. The time to act had come. Chadron was only five miles distant, and it was near daybreak. The robbers' horses were dead on their feet, and even the old pinto, the toughest horse on the range, began to twitch his ears, which with him was a sign of extreme fatigue. All at once the robbers made a dash, and it seemed that the finale of this prairie drama was at hand. If there is anything in the horse mind that corresponds to our own "don't give up the ship," the old pinto must have chosen it for a motto in early life. He certainly realized that he must reach Chadron ahead of his pursuers, and he then and there esablished a standard of faithfulness that many "humans" would do well to emulate. Never a tight pinch but old Spot was there and ready to do his full duty. The rider seized his weapons, and the old horse began to cover space at a most astonishing rate for a horse that had galloped all night. Now he almost flies, and the pursuers are left hopelessly in the rear. The money is saved, and in half an hour they see the crooked streets of Chadron gleaming in the light of a new day The old horse staggers bravely up to the Elkhorn National bank, but it is his last great gallop, and in a few days Charley Ray mourns the loss of the best horse that ever carried a brave rider on the western plains.

When Dunc Moore and Smoky Bill reached town, they insolently inquired of Charley "why he didn't wait for them." Though robbers by intent they had really committed no breach of the law and went free.

When Joe Strange reached Chadron on the following day, he merely said "he expected it" and paid Charley the value of his horse.

Charley Ray went to Colorado and married, and now, to the wondering children on his knee, he sometimes tells of the famous ride from Pine Ridge to Chadron.—Atlanta Constitution.

Pangman's Tree.

Peter Pangman is set down in Canadian annals as being the first white man to reach the Rocky mountains, and also the first white man ever to see them from the east. While in the employ of fur traders he ascended the Saskatchewan above its junction with the Clearwater, and, looking to the westward, he saw the white mass of the Rocky mountains, to which he afterward penetrated, but he marked this spot of his first vision by carving his name on a pine, which from that day became known as "Pangman's tree."

The great north country was far enough off in 1790. Peter Pangman had no special cause for believing that any second person would pass that same way. It was more reasonable to suppose that time or fire or wind would destroy this one pine among the million other pines, and yet 107 years after he made his rude inscription "Pangman's tree" is spoken and written about. Some years after the Northwest Fur company established a post on the Saskatchewan in the vicinity, which came to be called Rocky Mountain House. But the post was described by its proximity to the tree and not vice versa. All the travelers and traders of the early days speak of this place as "three miles below 'Pangman's tree.'" The Rocky Mountain House took its name because it was so near this Rocky mountain tree. The tree was a landmark before the trading post and continued to be after the post had ceased. A transcontinental railroad passes not far away now, but it has not obliterated the memory of the post nor blotted from the minds of men the living and leafy monument.

As for Peter Pangman, he went into history the day he carved his name in the bark and identified himself with the tree. After years of plain and mountain service he returned to the eastern parts of what is now the Dominion of Canada and bought lands and reared a family. A son of his has been a member of the Canadian parliament. This may preserve the name of the son, but as for his father he will be remembered over a great region and in histories and geographies as the author of "Pangman's tree."—Kansas City Star.

Last of the Old School.

The French artist M. Francois Louis Francais, who died recently at the age of 82, was the last representative of the old school of French painters. He was of humble origin, and in early youth was apprenticed to a bookseller. But his talent for painting had already begun to manifest itself, and in his spare time he devoted all his energies to its cultivation, with such success that by the time he attained his majority he was able to support himself as an artist. After studying under Gigoux he became an exhibitor at the salon just 60 years ago. In the next few years he was much influenced by Corot, of whose friendship he ever remained proud.

An Anniversary Prison Dinner.

The other day a dinner was given in Johannesburg by two of the reformers to those who were associated in their humiliation of last year. The menu was headed by a photo of the judge who presided over the trial, the serviettes were inclosed in handcuffs, and, as a prelude to the usual dainties, the mealie meal porridge, cooked in water, as served out in prison, was served round, the band playing a solemn funeral march. After that the banquet proceeded in a most satisfactory style. This anniversary is intended to be kept yearly till the roles are reversed.—Cape Times.

"Not to Be."

The rose said, "Let but this long rain be past,
And I shall feel my sweetness in the sun
And pour its fullness into life at last."
But when the rain was done,
But when dawn sparkled through unclouded air,
She was not there.

The lark said, "Let but winter be away
And blossoms come and light, and I will soar
And lose the earth and be the voice of day."
But when the snows were o'er,
But when spring broke in blueness overhead,
The lark was dead,

And myriad roses made the garden glow,
And skylarks caroled all the summer long.
What lack of birds to sing and flowers to blow!
Yet, ah, lost scent, lost song!
Poor empty rose, poor lark that never trilled!
Dead, unfulfilled!
—Augusta Webster in Woman's Journal.

The Dream Town Show.

There is an island in Slumber sea
Where the drollest things are done,
And we will sail there, if the winds are fair,
Just after the set of the sun.
'Tis the loveliest place in the whole wide world,
Or anyway so it seems,
And the folks there play at the end of each day
In a curious show called "Dreams."

We sail right into the evening skies,
And the very first thing we know
We are there at the port and ready for sport
Where the dream folks give their show.
And what do you think they did last night
When I crossed their harbor bars?
They hoisted a plank on a great cloud bank
And teetered among the stars.

And they sat on the moon and swung their feet,
Like pendulums, to and fro.
Down Slumber sea is the sail for me,
And I wish you were ready to go,
For the dream folks there on this curious isle
Begin their performance at eight.
There are no encores, and they close their doors
On every one who is late.

The sun is sinking behind the hills.
The seven o'clock bells chime.
I know by the chart that we ought to start
If we would be there in time.
Oh, fair is the trip down Slumber sea!
Set sail, and away we go!
The anchor is drawn. We are off and gone
To the wonderful dream town show.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 29. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—The idols we are likely to worship.—Ex. xx, 1-6; Luke xii, 13-21.

Idolatry is the curse of the world today. The civilized world has advanced from that state of barbarism where it makes images out of gold and silver, and yet it has not by any means reached a point where God holds first place in the human heart. Our idolatry may differ in form from that which existed in the past and exists in many heathen lands today, but it does not differ in character. It is no less idolatry because we have ceased to bow down to that which represents the things which we love and worship before God Himself.

Idolatry is a most heinous sin. It is placing something else in the place of God. It is in direct violation of the command of God, "Thou shalt have no other gods before Me." The folly of idolatry is supreme. It cannot but appear so to any who will give the matter a serious thought. Why men should have ever made images and have called them gods is a great mystery. We cannot but wonder who made the first idol. It seems such supreme folly for men to have believed that the works of their own hands could do anything for them that it would be incredible did we not know positively that such has been the case. But the idolatry of the modern world is none the less stupendously foolish. It is only a change in form. The thing idolized usurps the place of God in the heart and life, and the folly of so doing is supreme. The human soul needs God. It cannot be satisfied without God.

There are many things which we are likely to worship as idols. The second topical reference suggests gold. How many are worshiping the golden calf today as sincerely and devoutly as the Jesus of old? The greed for gold is and has been almost insatiable. It has caused men to sacrifice honor, position, reputation and everything that men should hold dear in the world. Yet how transient its blessings are. Today we have wealth, tomorrow it is gone, and even if it should last until the end of life we cannot take it with us at death. How foolish to let it take God's place. Pleasure is an attractive idol in the eyes of the young. Many young people live simply for pleasure. They think of it, dream of it and live for it regardless of God and of eternity. Self is another popular god. Selfishness is the controlling principle of many lives. Before God, before others, many place self, and yet the truest life is a life for God and for others. Let us live less for self and more for others, and we will be less likely to fall into idolatry.

Bible Readings.—Ex. xxii, 20; Lev. xxvi, 1-8; Deut. iv, 15-19; I Kings xviii, 25-29; Ps. cxv, 1-8; cxxxv, 15-21; Jer. ii, 26-37; Math. vi, 19-24; xvi, 24-27; xix, 16-26; Acts iv, 8-18; xvii, 22-31; I Cor. x, 14; I John ii, 15-17.

The Bright Side.

The habit of looking on the bright side of things is a good one and is worth a great deal to each one who cultivates it. Certainly one should not cultivate the habit of looking on the dark side, especially when he must draw on his forebodings and apprehensions for a vision of that dark side, and thus see not only what does not exist, but what may never exist. God promises grace for each time of need, but not for each time of worry and anxiety. He promises to be with His people when they pass through the fire, but He does not promise to extinguish the fire before it has been lighted. He says that when His people pass through the waters they shall not overflow them, and we ought to be satisfied with that. If we trust in God, the disasters we dread most will never come, or, if they do, He will change the disaster into benediction.—Churchman.

Welcome the Young Men.

Blessed is that church whose doors are ever being opened by young men anxious to find a place within her fold. You need never tremble for the church whose pews you see filled with young men in love with the gospel message. But you cannot keep them if you allow them to remain idle. They must be put to work. They are anxious that their talents be utilized. They love the church and long to see her prosper, and they crave a place that they may aid in her advancement. This desire should be cultivated and encouraged.—Rev. J. G. Wilson in Philadelphia Methodist.

An Honor to Be Tried.

When the Christian soldier sees those about him who are becoming hardened in worldliness of various forms, living in affluence and luxury, receiving the honors of the world and the attention of society, while he himself is in adversity, obscurity and want, he should not murmur and think that the Lord is a respecter of persons. It is not a mark of divine displeasure, but rather an honor, to be tried.—Helper.

Must Have Something More.

The church of God needs something. The church of God must have something more than she has today, with all her prestige and all her energy. She needs the upper chamber, she needs the tarrying at Jerusalem, she needs the power of the Holy Ghost, she needs a continued Pentecost, and nothing less than this can bring to her the slightest possible particle of power.—B. Fay Mills.

The Christian's Consecration.

There is a blessed reality in the Christian's consecration of himself to the service and glory of God, and in the supreme influence of his indwelling spirit over all our powers, mental and physical, which are "hallowed" unto him.—Moravian.

The Poor Man and the Sabbath.

The Sabbath has been stolen from the poor man. The rich man still has it, but the poor man has not.—Christian Endeavorer.

The Refractometer

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent oculists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.
I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.
F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.
I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.
JACOB GOLDBERG, M. D.

This is a very expensive instrument, but we consider nothing too good for our patrons, and have placed one in our optical room.

BAR ASSOCIATION.

An Important Paper on Bribery—Election of Officers—Adjournment.

Cleveland, Aug. 28.—An important paper on bribery was read by Adolph Moses of Illinois before the National Bar association. He called attention to the decision of the supreme court in the counselman case.

Volume 142 United States reports which caused congress to amend the interstate commerce act in 1893 to effectually grant immunity against the self-incrimination of a witness in testifying before a court.

"The public mind," said Mr. Moses, "has become firmly impressed with the belief that powerful aggregations of capital have had considerable success in corrupting legislative and municipal assemblies and public officials. It behooves the American Bar association as leaders of public opinion and framers of proper legislation to suggest such amendatory legislation as may be effective in compelling bribe givers and bribe takers to testify against each other under promise of constitutional immunity."

A resolution to that effect was adopted and will be reported upon at the next annual meeting.

Nominations for officers for the ensuing year wer reported by the general council as follows:

President, William Wirt Howe of New Orleans; secretary, John Hinkley of Baltimore; treasurer, Francis Rawle of Philadelphia; executive committee, Alfred Hemenway of Boston, Charles Claflin Allen of St. Louis, Charles Mobile Gregory of Wisconsin.

The nominees were elected without discussion.

Among the vice presidents elected were: W. F. Wilcox, Conn.; M. F. Dickinson, Mass.; J. L. Spring, N. H.; James Tillinghast, R. I.; W. E. Johnson, Vt.; J. E. Symonds, Me.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

for those who will go today and get a package of GRAIN-O. It takes the place of coffee at about ¼ the cost. It is a food drink, full of health, and can be given to the children as well as the adult with a great benefit. It is made of pure grains and looks and tastes like the finest grades of Mocha or Java coffee. It satisfies everyone. A cup of Grain-O is better for the system than a tonic, because its benefit is permanent. What coffee breaks down Grain-O builds up. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 15c. and 25c.

ARE HOMEWARD BOUND

The Grand Army Veterans Leaving Buffalo as Fast as Possible.

Roster of Officers Completed at Last Session.

Resolution For Better War Histories In Schools Was Passed.

Buffalo, Aug. 28.—The 31st encampment of the G. A. R. is over and most of the veterans have gone to their homes. The departures began yesterday afternoon and continued all night. Large crowds of citizens were out to bid the old soldiers farewell.

The last function on the long program of events was a reception of the officers and chairman of the women's citizens committee at the women's headquarters last night.

The election of a junior vice commander-in-chief was not accomplished until the afternoon, there being four candidates and several interruptions to the proceedings of the encampment by speeches and the admission of a committee from the Woman's Relief corps.

On the first ballot F. B. Allen of Connecticut, the candidate of the naval veterans, led, with G. W. Carpenter of South Dakota, second; C. L. Knapp of Kansas, third; D. E. Ross of Delaware, fourth, and J. B. Cummings of Oklahoma, fifth.

There was evidently no desire to contest the election beyond the first ballot, as on the second the delegates began going over to Mr. Allen rapidly, and before the roll call had been completed, the adjutant general was instructed to cast the vote of the encampment for him. David Mackaye of Dallas was elected surgeon general, and Rev. Frank C. Bruner of the First Methodist church of Chicago was in a like manner elected chaplain-in-chief.

Past Commander-in-Chief Walker of Illinois was presented with a silver service by the encampment, the address being made by William M. Olin of Boston. A committee from the Woman's Relief corps was admitted to the hall and presented the convention with several beautiful floral emblems, and made a brief report of the W. R. C. work of the past year.

Mrs. Woodley, national president of the Army Nurses association, was also admitted to the convention, likewise "Mother" Ransom of California, 82 years old, the oldest army nurse living, and Mrs. William Seatt, who spoke for the colored veterans who were unable to attend the encampment.

Resolutions Acted Upon.

Among the reports receiving favorable consideration in the executive session of the encampment was that of the pension committee. It recommended a readjustment of widows' pensions, and presented a form of proof and application in pension claims substantially the same as that embodied in the Pickler bill, which has passed the national house of representatives, but has not passed the senate. The report stated that the present commissioner of pensions had consented to adopt new rules substantially the same as those in force during the Harrison administration. The report also recommended that the congress pass a service pension law to apply to all veterans who have reached the age of 62 years. The report of the committee having in charge the memorializing of congress to purchase several of the most important battlefields about Fredericksburg, Va., and connect them by government roads was adopted.

The report of the committee on text books used in the public schools was adopted. The report deals severely with some of the histories used in the South, charging that they mistate the facts as to the cause of the rebellion and present them from a Southern view point.

A regret is expressed that after an examination of all the histories used in the states that were loyal to the government, that in the opinion of the committee, none merit unqualified indorsement of the organization.

The report closed with the following recommendations:

First—That this encampment urge the continued agitation of the question of improved text books in our schools that relate to the history of the United States, especially as to the events of the War of the Rebellion.

Second—That the national encampment authorize the appointment of a permanent committee on the subject of teaching patriotism in our schools, which shall make a report each year.

Third—That is be urged upon each department of the G. A. R. and recommended to the Women's Relief corps, the Sons of Veterans and all allied organizations that they give direct and persistent attention to the selection of proper text books for use in our schools, and the exclusion therefrom of such as are improper.

Following is the new council of administration of the G. A. R.:

Alabama, W. Ackerston; Arizona, D. M. Moore; Arkansas, G. W. Clark; California and Nevada, Major Charles A. Woodruff, U. S. A.; Colorado and Wyoming, B. L. Carr; Connecticut, John H. Thayer; Delaware, Edward Craig; Florida, T. J. Wilmarth; Georgia, James C. Ladd; Idaho, Judson Sheppard; Illinois, Fred W. Scott; Indiana, W. H. Armstrong; Indian Territory, Robert W. Hill; Iowa, Luman L. Cadwell; Kansas, Homer W. Pond; New Hampshire, A. L. Hall; New Jersey, J. J. Kents; Kentucky, James R. Browning; Louisiana and Mississippi, Paul Bruce; Maine, Herbert R. Sergeant; Maryland, U. A. Bryan; Massachusetts, Wilmore R. Blackmar; Michigan, William Jibb; Missouri, F. M. Sterritt; Minnesota, D. B. Searle; Montana, John Halahan; Nebraska, L. J. THE WHITE DOVE.

A FAIRY STORY BY MARTHA M'CULLOCH WILLIAMS.

[Copyright, 1897, by the Author.]

There was no mistake about it—Amelia's grandmother spoiled her. Everybody said so, some under the breath, some in whispers and at one side, a few out loud. The loudest of all were Uncle Joe and his wife, Aunt Lena, who were always shaking the head and sighing over the dreadful way mother was bringing up that poor child. But most people who heard them laughed behind the hand and said, when they were out of the good grumblers' company, how plain it was they were jealous on account of their own girl, Emmy-Belle.

In strict right there might have been some color of justification for the feeling that Emmy-Belle ought to have what was given to Amelia. Emmy-Belle was grandmother's name child, as well as her first granddaughter, a good year older than Amelia. Then Uncle Joe had married prudently, and to the satisfaction of father and mother, whereas his sister, Amelia's mother, had been willful and up headed, running off with a strolling artist, who had hardly a coin to bless himself with, when she might have had young George Wayne and his fine big farm.

"THEY HELD UP HORRIFIED HANDS."

People were hardly sorry for her when she came back three years after, widowed, scarce a ghost of herself, with Amelia in her arms. It was only when she slipped out of life, half a year later, that they felt some contrite stirrings of kindness toward her. Even then they did not wholly forgive her. She ought to have grown rosy and happy again, they thought, and ended by marrying her constant George. That would have been living romance right under their eyes—romance ever so much more satisfactory than this fading out of life with a smile and the dead husband's name the last word on her lips.

"Yes, I suppose dear mother must keep the child. I hate to think of it—such a burden and care at her age—but, you see, there is no one else. I, of course, have Emmy-Belle to consider," Aunt Lena had said to her gossips as they came away from the funeral. One of them, who was childless, offered to take the little one. Mrs. Joe was all for letting her have it, but when the plan was named to grandmother—grandmother whose heart was so full of self reproach there was hardly room for grief—there came a look in her eyes which fairly frightened the other two.

"I was hard to my daughter, and she is dead," she said at last. "All that is left me is to try and make her child happy. I will do it at any cost. You may take the heart out of my bosom easier than part me from my little one."

Now, of course, you understand how the story of spoiling began, and you must know but little of human nature if you do not also understand upon what slight things it throve and fed. Grandmother Gray had her house and her fat lands in fee. When her husband died, three years back, she had wisely divided all he left, giving the ready money to the younger sons, who had chosen a city life, and the upper farm, larger than the home place, to Joseph, the eldest of them. Amelia's mother had been left out. Indeed, she had been left out of everything since the night she went away.

Equitably it appeared that her child would be entitled to receive the grandmother's part, but to Aunt Lena and Uncle Joe such an ending seemed the sum of iniquity, a defrauding not only of themselves, but of Emmy-Belle, which was infinitely worse. So they held up horrified hands when they saw Amelia careering about on her pony or rollicking with the lambs and calves in the big pastures or getting happily sunburned riding upon the hay wagons when she ought to have been learning her lessons or stitching diligently at her sampler.

Naturally the little girl made friends of the dumb creatures. They alone were young and full of tricksy merriment to match her own; full of coaxing ways, too, that led sometimes into mischief, as when the bleating of the hungry calves made her turn them in the pasture with their mothers long before milking time, or when she let the lambs out of the small fold where they awaited shearing for no other reason than that they looked at her with such pitiful eyes. Then, too, she would let Gyp, her white pony, pillage the harvest apple tree, herself standing upon the laden boughs to bend them till the fruit was in reach. Oftenest of all she would filch handfuls of plump wheat from the granary sacks and scatter it to the doves, who were her especial playmates.

There were 50 if one in the dovecot, bluerocks, chocolate ruffs, slate gray fellows, gay splotched ones, ring necks, a few of the purest white. Those Amelia loved best of all. Grandmother had told her how the first pair of them had belonged to Amelia's mother, and how they had drooped and pined when she went away. When one died, of heart break it seemed, his mate flew away, but their blood and brood remained and flourished with the rest.

"You will never make me believe that white hen was not something more than just a hen pigeon," old Marian, who had nursed Amelia and her mother before her, said sometimes, shaking the head and knitting very hard. "I mind how the pair of them came to the cot from nobody knows where, and how shy they were of the rest of us, yet the friendliest, tame things with my nursling. Pretty dear! I can see her now walking about with one on each shoulder, a rose in her hair and a red apple in her hand to let the birds peck at. That is how your father saw her first. He was charmed and begged her to stand while he made a picture of her, and while she stood those pigeons were as still as still could be, yet usually they fluttered every feather at least once in the minute."

Amelia had heard this over and over until she grew to dream of her lost parents, always with the white doves about them. She was very gentle with the grandchildren who wheeled and circled about her every day or stood on the earth at her feet, preening and stretching the wings, yet somehow no one of them felt as near and dear as the mysterious lost white hen, who, if she were truly a dove, must long before this be dead of old age.

"You will see her one day. I am sure of that. She will come back, maybe in an hour of need," old Marian often ran on. When she said it, her eyes glowed. There were people who said she was a witch, or at the least a wise woman, and whispered how it was because of her love for them worldly matters had gone so well with the Grays.

Long lanes turn at last, even prosperous ones. When Amelia was 11, there came for her black days indeed. Fire broke out upon a night of storm and consumed the homestead like dry grass. The shock and fright of it were too much for good Grandmother Gray. She was speechless before they got her into her son's house and dead at morning. Amelia crouched beside her, sobbing her heart out. Old Marian bent above her mistress, trying by every means to rouse her, but all in vain. As the last breath flickered out the serving woman turned and caught up the sobbing child, saying almost fiercely to Aunt Lena:

"I know what is in your heart—to rob my child for yours. Take care! There are some things stronger even than greed."

Aunt Lena sniffed spitefully, but held her peace. She could afford to do it, knowing as she did that Amelia was at her mercy. Her husband had long ago thriftily bought from his brothers their possible reversion in the mother's estate. If grandmother, who had looked to be good for many years, had ever made a will, it was surely burned. The fire had been so swift and fierce not a scrap had been saved from it, and it was unlikely that the woman who had always kept her affairs to herself had put anything so important as a will in the charge of another.

"TAKE CARE! THERE ARE SOME THINGS STRONGER EVEN THAN GREED."

With grandmother safely buried there was need to settle things.

"Understand, you have nothing, nothing at all," Aunt Lena said to Amelia. "If you are not saucy and wait properly on your cousin Emmy-Belle, you may stay here until you are big enough to go out serving. If you are smart and diligent, it is possible my daughter may take you as housekeeper when she marries. She will be an heiress and can look so high for a husband that she must train herself to high ways."

Amelia said meekly, "Yes, Aunt Lena." She was too heartbroken and stunned for anger. Old Marian's eyes flashed, and her brows drew together. But she, too, held her peace and went quietly along when Aunt Lena said:

"Come, let us get to work. Those grapes in the vineyard at the old place want picking. Get knives, all, and baskets. They must be in the wine tub tomorrow."

To reach the vineyard one had to pass through the gate beside the big barn. Storm and fire had spared that, though they had so ravaged all else. As they all came into its gable shadow. Amelia gave a little cry: "Look, look, the white pigeon! Oh, say, Nurse Marian, is it the one that so loved my dear mother?"

"It looks to be"— Nurse Marian began. Aunt Lena gave a scornful laugh. Emmy-Belle, at her shoulder, began to whimper. The white dove overhead cooed low and hoarse. The door into the haymow was hanging open, with wisps of dry grass scattered all over it. The bird had been scratching furiously. Now it dragged something, thin and white from underneath the hay and dropped with it to Amelia's feet.

"Oh, ho! You have found the will for us! I knew there was a will," old Marian said joyously, then crossed and snapped her fingers. At once the bird melted into thin air, but the will remained. Amelia did become a famous housekeeper, but it was for herself and in her own home.

National League.

At Boston—

The Bostons dropped another game to Cleveland yesterday afternoon and thereby lost first place in the league for the first time since June 23. The game was remarkable in that not a strikeout was made by either side. The errors of Lowe were largely responsible for Boston's defeat, two in succession in the third inning, with the bases full, yielding the visitors five runs. The Cleveland team batted and fielded finely, and the Batting of Pickering and Duffy were features.

Party of Four-Year-Olds.

Birthday parties among the little ones seem to be ripe at this time of the year. Little Miss Grace Milberry, aged 4 years, of Wollaston Park, entertained her playmates yesterday afternoon in a manner they will not soon forget. She received many handsome presents for which she showed much appreciation. Mrs. Milberry, who possesses all the qualities of a kindergarten teacher, kept them well in hand and made the occasion one of joy to all.

Miss Clara Merritt, a little tot, gave a number of readings, impersonating in costume Josiah Allen's Wife which was immensely pleasing. Miss Ruth Page sang to the delight of all. After many little games and capricious acts, they feasted on ice cream, cake and other delicacies.

Following is a list of those who were present: Clara Merritt, Edna Merritt, Esther Merritt, Helen Atkins, Ruth Page, Ruth Barstow, Inez Jefferson, Edna Marr Edith Atkins and Helen Croucher.

TODAY'S COURT.

James Balwick was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

The continued case of Louis and John Schatzel for assault on John Schatzel was called and they paid a fine of $10 each.

John Chapman of Braintree was arraigned for neglecting to provide two hogs with necessary sustenance. Case continued until Thursday to enable him to raise his fine of $10.

Nellie Lee was arraigned for assault on Mary Phelan at Quincy. Case continued until next Thursday.

—According to the new law only humming birds outside of Massachusetts may be henceforth worn on hats in this state.

QUINCY BOATS WON.

A Very Successful Open Race Yesterday off Kingston.

It was a great day at the Kingston open race yesterday for the Quincy yachts, for the leading boats of their classes were the Little Peter, Privateer, Rooster, Attila and Yankee.

The Little Peter led her class from the start. The Privateer of the second class gained steadily all the way. She passed the City of Chicago and the Beatrice of the first class on the second leg, and beat out the Little Peter and the Addie on actual time over the course, making the best actual time of the day.

The Rooster got on her regular gait in a moderate breeze, and was showing her saucy stern to the rest after the first tack to windward. She then had things all her own way. She had not the slightest trouble in carrying her sail, and under these circumstances, the boat has yet to be built that can beat the little Quincy flyer. She gained over the rest of the course and won first place bands down.

The order by corrected time was:

First class,—Little Peter, Addie, Eclipse, City of Chicago, Beatrice.

Second class, — Privateer, Arawak, Harolde, Ishtar.

Third class,—Rooster, Tacoma, Speed, Arab III, Nancy Hanks, Wrinkle, Fanny D, Scamper, Hustler.

Fourth class,—Attila, Ideal, Fedora, Winnituxet, Puzzle, Dolphin.

Class A.,—Yankee, Skipjack, Solitaire, Maj. D., Natalia, E. B. Weston, Tom Jeff, Freak, Belle.

Open race today at Plymouth.

—Piqued by his assessment of $2,533,805 by the Tarrytown (N. Y.) assessors, William Rockefeller, the Standard Oil millionaire, offers to sell his country seat for $350,000. He declares that the estate, which is 646 acres in extent, only cost him about $500,000. It is one of the finest along the Hudson.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

CITY — OF — QUINCY.

SEALED proposals for paving and curbing Copeland street in accordance with form of specifications to be furnished by the Commissioner of Public Works of the City of Quincy, will be received at the office of said Commissioner, City Hall, until 2 o'clock P. M., of the First day of September 1897, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read. Each proposal must be indorsed "Proposal for paving and curbing Copeland street," and be accompanied by a properly certified check for the sum of Five Hundred Dollars ($500,) payable to City of Quincy, which will be returned to the bidder unless forfeited as hereinafter provided.

A bond will be required for the faithful performance of the contract in such sum as the Commissioner of Public Works shall determine; such sum to be not more than one-third the amount of the contract; the sureties to be residents of Massachusetts and satisfactory to the Commissioner.

The contract must be signed and bond furnished within six days after the notification of acceptance of the proposal and in case of the failure of the bidder to sign contract and furnish bond within said time, the contract and the certified check accompanying the proposal shall be forfeited to the City of Quincy.

The proposals will be compared on the basis of the following quantities:

Furnishing and laying 7,200 square yards paving.
Furnishing and laying 110 linear feet crossing stones.
Furnishing and setting 3,600 linear feet straight edgestones.
Furnishing and setting 68 linear feet curved edgestones.
Furnishing and setting 7 driveway corners.
Resetting 1,170 linear feet straight edgestones.
Resetting 9 driveway corners.

These quantities are to be considered approximate only and the Commissioner of Public Works expressly reserves the right of increasing or diminishing the same, as he may deem necessary.

The right is reserved to reject any or all proposals or to accept the proposal deemed best for the city.

CHARLES F. KNOWLTON,
Commissioner of Public Works.

FROM FOREIGN LANDS.

Interesting Topics That Engross the Attention of Europe.

So sensational have been the accounts published by the Parisian press concerning the Turin-Orleans duel that the 11 and 12-year-old sons of two socially prominent Parisians were moved thereby to do a little dueling on their own account. Having secured possession of a couple of dueling rapiers, owned by the father of one of them, they fell to fighting one another with quite as much vigor as the two princes, although they had no quarrel and were solely possessed by a desire to win fame and notoriety in the same manner as their seniors. The conflict terminated far more seriously than the ridiculous Turin-Orleans duel, for, whereas Prince Henri has already entirely recovered from his slight wound, one of the boys was run through the shoulder, while his own rapier pierced his adversary's eye, destroying its sight and narrowly avoiding penetration of the brain.

The Danube, like the Thames in England and the Hudson here in New York, is to have a tunnel beneath its bed. The Hungarian government has just completed the necessary arrangements for the construction without delay of a subway beneath the river at Budapest on the same principle as that of the new Blackwall tunnel under the Thames in London. There is to be a footpath for passengers and an electric railroad. The upper way will be reserved exclusively for vehicular traffic, and ventilation is to be provided by electricity.

Dr. Leyds, the Transvaal secretary of state, is now on his way back to Pretoria, his mission to Europe, avowedly undertaken with the object of securing the support of the continental powers in the efforts of the Boers to rid themselves of the suzerainty of Great Britain, having been a failure all along the line. Financial considerations are all important at Paris, and to this must be attributed the fact that the doctor met with so little encouragement from the French government. The economic interests of France are almost identical with those of England in the Transvaal, where both nations suffer from the treatment accorded by the Boers to foreigners. In Germany and at St. Petersburg Dr. Leyds was received with plenty of pleasant speeches, but could get no assurances of support that were of any practical value. Accordingly he betook himself to London, where, after some preliminaries, he became the honored guest of Colonial Secretary Chamberlain, and he has now returned to the Transvaal a sadder and a wiser man.

Enthusiasts of Wagnerian music will be interested to learn that a Richard Wagner museum has just been opened at Eisenach. Among the treasures contained therein are the original manuscript score of "Rienzi" and of other of the great composer's operas, as well as the decree of arrest issued against him by the Saxon government as a "politically dangerous individual" and a "revolutionist" in 1849, when he was conductor of one of the leading orchestras at Dresden.

To what an extent the soi-disant Count Leontieff, who served as Prince Henri's second in the Turin-Orleans duel the other day, is looked upon as an adventurer by the czar's government is shown by the fact that in spite of the services which he has undeniably rendered to the Muscovite cause in Abyssinia it is not he, but Colonel Vlassoff, now consul general at Meshed, in Persia, who has just been gazetted as Russian minister to the court of the Negus. The colonel is to take up his place there in October.

Not only the municipality of Berlin, but also the faculty of the university of the metropolis, has from time immemorial displayed a tendency to resent the disposition to despotism and arbitrariness which is so characteristic of the reigning house of Prussia. It is therefore in keeping with its traditions that the Berlin university has just elected as its rector for the coming academical year Professor Schmoller, who has recently incurred the wrath of Emperor William by the socialistic leanings which he displayed in his lectures while occupying the chair of political economy.

It is not often that the principal law officer of a government, while acknowledging the existence of a statute, publicly and officially declares in parliament that he does not propose to take any steps to enforce it. Yet this is precisely what the attorney general of England has done. In response to a question evoked by the increasing number of Roman Catholic ecclesiastical processions through public streets and thoroughfares he admitted that they were expressly forbidden by law, but added that he had just as little intention of taking any steps to enforce the statute as he had of enforcing the act of 1851 against the assumption of the names of English cities, towns and places as titles for Roman Catholic bishops.

When parliament meets again in England, attention is to be drawn to the unprecedented manner in which private telegrams have been seized and made public during the recent South African investigation at Westminster. There was so much protest raised in parliament years ago when Mazzini's correspondence was opened and examined by the authorities that it seems strange that so many weeks should have been allowed to elapse before anything was heard about the violation by the government of private telegraphic correspondence. In England the telegraphs belong to the state and are under the control of the postoffice, which is just as much bound to observe the sanctity of correspondence by wire intrusted to its charge for transmission as correspondence by letter.—New York Tribune.

TALK OF THE CITY.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

The Floral boat club attempted to have a race on Thursday, but the wind gave out.

Commissioner Knowlton says its a boy; 10 pounds; born yesterday. Congratulations.

Somebody has marked on the Wollaston fence in large letters "A disgrace to Wollaston."

The Unity Circle of King's Daughters have their outing at Highland Park this afternoon.

The hill on Whitwell street is being cut down some, the gravel thus obtained being placed on the Granite street end.

Norfolk lodge, A. O. U. W., initiated four candidates at its meeting last evening; the work being done by a degree team from Boston.

Robert Thompson, a Quincy bicyclist, ran into a carriage on Hingham hill, Wednesday night and received a bad cut over the eye. Eight stitches were taken in the cut.

The street sprinkling tax is not included in the amount set against individuals in the list of heavy taxpayers in this issue, and some will find their tax bills materially larger.

Mrs. Larkin of Atlantic has bought the dwelling house, corner Billings and Prospect streets, formerly occupied by Mr. Melzard, and intends to expend $1,000 on it in repairing and remodeling.

The engine house of the Scandinavian Granite Co., on the line of the Quincy Quarry railroad, was entered by burglars sometime between Thursday night and Friday morning and four bush hammers, valued at $25, taken.

Messrs. Arthur H. Paterson, Kenneth McKenzie and Russell Badger took a ride to Bay View, South Dartmouth, about 5 miles beyond New Bedford, on their wheels Thursday and arrived home between 11 and 12 that night, having greatly enjoyed their trip.

Commissioner Knowlton was seen running about City Square this morning with a loaf of bread under his arm and upon inquiry it was learned that a Commissioner, Jr., arrived Friday at his home and he was going to feed it. Tomorrow he will give the boy watermelon and ice cream.

Parents will be pleased to notice in another column the advertisment of the Greenleaf Private school, announcing the opening of the school on Monday, Sept. 13. The Greenleaf is the oldest private school in this vicinity and has had the patronage of the best families for twenty-five years. The school begins its twenty-sixth year this fall.

HOUGHS NECK.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Long and family, with a few friends, are at one of Stanley Mears' cottages.

Mrs. George H. Hallett and daughter Mildred returned to their home at Milford on Monday after a brief visit.

Mrs. Elbridge G. Sherman and son Kenneth, Mrs. Charles L. Corey and daughter Mabel, Mrs. Charles B. Corey and Miss Martha Hallett of Mansfield spent the week here.

Mrs. Charles E. Wyman and children have gone to their home in Dorchester.

Friday was an elegant day at the Neck, and the beach was thronged with children.

Mr. Petts, Mrs. Petts and Mr. Joe Dolan and Mr. Ryan made quite a haul Friday at fishing. They caught 54 flounders and two dozen perch, off Bayside.

Miss Lottie Reynolds, age twelve years, died today, Friday, at the Harbor Light cottage with Inflammation of the stomach. She was taken sick Tuesday in the morning and was sent to bed and was improving up to Thursday. Then she had a bad turn, the doctor called twice a day. Her death was a shock to her folks, who mourn her loss deeply.

Mrs. Jane M. Emery of the Loretto House met with a serious accident Thursday afternoon. While trying to vacate a chair she slipped and fell on her face, spraining both of her arms and fracturing her nose seriously. Aid was quickly summoned and her bruises were dressed. Mrs. Emery has been on crutches 15 years from rheumatism.

The Houghs Neck Juniors defeated the Hillsides of Braintree yesterday at ball by a score of 16 to 12, on Littlefield's field.

Mr. Frank W. Hollis is a guest of Mr. Joseph Dolan for a few days, he is widely known in the theatrical circle in Boston.

Mr. James R. Honrey of Milton is a guest on Manet avenue for a few days.

The Dooley Daily club of Houghs Neck held a banquet in Cook's pavilion on Thursday. A speech was made by Mr. Vindervate, which was highly appreciated by all. Mr. C. F. Cook was initiated. He had some difficulty in trying to ride the goat, but after a few failures he mounted and rode the hall successfully. The initiation was very hard on Mr. Cook, but he took his medicine like a man. Mr. Hodgkin's goat was used.

Mr. William Lewis, of Brockton is spending his vacation with his folks at the Plymouth Rock cottage, for the season.

Business is rushing at the Casino hall. Dancing and music seems to draw the crowd there.

GIRLS TO THE RESCUE.

Highwaymen Foiled by the Prompt Action of Three Young Ladies.

Highwaymen attacked a young man at Fifth street and Third avenue south in Minneapolis one night recently. They doubtless would have succeeded in relieving him of his valuables had it not been for a group of fearless young women, returning from church, who rushed to his rescue and frightened his assailants away.

The victim of the assault was proceeding along Fifth street about 9 o'clock, the young women following some distance in the rear. As he stepped into the shadow of the courthouse at Third avenue two fellows sprang out from a recess of the building and instructed him to throw up his hands. At the same time one of them clasped his hands over his mouth, to prevent him from crying out, and the other proceeded to go through his pockets.

The single exclamation which escaped the young man before being gagged attracted the attention of the young women, and with a shrill chorus of screams they rushed to the rescue. They laid violent hands on the robbers and continued to call so loudly for help that the highwaymen, concluding that discretion was the better part of valor, released their hold on the intended victim and, shaking themselves loose from the "new" women, made a precipitate disappearance.—Minneapolis Tribune.

LIVED ON GRASS.

A "Wild Man" Who Roamed the Woods and Existed on a Vegetable Diet.

A man who looked like a "divine healer" was arrested at Dingletown, Conn., recently. He was brought before a justice of the peace and held for inquiry into his sanity.

He gave his name as Joseph Mueller and said that he worked last year in New York as a baker. This summer he worked for a farmer in Milford, Conn. He left there because of improper food. He had money when he left, but spent it for bread, cheese and beer.

Lately he has been living on herbs, and when found he had a bushel of grass tucked inside his clothes. He wears loose shoes, no socks, trousers, shirt and a long, torn coat. He is a German, a native of Baden Baden. He is supposed to be the wild man who has been frightening persons at Long Ridge.—Exchange.

New Era For Siberia.

A new era has just begun in the history of Siberia. Since the beginning of August the whole of that vast Asiatic empire of the czar has become endowed with a modern and uniform system of public justice. Law courts have been opened in the various provincial capitals, and the principal tribunal of appeal of Siberia has been established at Irkutsk. Until now there has been no system of legal procedure whatever in Siberia, the entire country being subject exclusively to the arbitrary administration of autocratic officials. True, there is yet room for improvement, since for the present there is to be no trial by jury, while the justices of the peace are to be appointed by the crown instead of being elected by the people of the district. At the same time the new system is certain to constitute a salutary check upon the hitherto unbridled tyranny of Russian officialdom in Siberia.

Gong Gave Him Away.

William Burke bemoaned his hard luck when arraigned in a New York police court recently on suspicion of having committed a burglary. As Burke, while walking along East Broadway, passed Policeman Bruno Stetzer of the Madison street station a gong was heard to ring in unison with each step that Burke took. The policeman followed Burke and located the noise of the gong in Burke's pocket. He arrested Burke and took him to the police station, where a search of his pockets disclosed 14 teaspoons, 2 tablespoons, 2 knives, 2 forks and a table gong. As the silverware was placed on the desk in front of the sergeant Burke said, "Dat confounded bell is wot fixed me."

The Klondiker's Farewell.

I am going far away, far away from you, Jeannette,
Where streams perspire gold enough to pay our nation's debt,
And I'm confident, dear, that ten years' digging surely will Yield me quite enough of gold to pay your millinery bill.

They say it's awfully cold up there, as facts have strongly shown,
But then, you know, since we've been wed we've owned a frigid zone.
'Tis said, too, that starvation in that region will accrue,
But that, love, by your culinary art I'm hardened to.

So I'm going far away, far away from you, Jeannette,
And if I scoop in gold enough I'm coming back, you bet,
To liquefy the damages that follow in the course
Of prosecuting measures for a permanent divorce!

—Boston Courier.

BRAINTREE.

About 4 45 yesterday as Mrs. John Jackson of Front street, Weymouth, was driving up Commercial street, East Braintree, her horse became frightened at a white donkey when near Shaw street, and backing overturned the buggy, leaving Mrs. Jackson under it.

A serious if not fatal accident was averted at the Pearl street crossing at South Braintree Wednesday evening. A young lady employed in D. B. Closson & Co.'s shoe factory was returning from her work and went under the gates at the above crossing. She came near being struck by the 5 02 train from Boston and but for the prompt act of Elmer Copeland, a employe of Stevens & Willis, her life would have been crushed out. Mr. Copeland just reached the young women and pulled her away as the train rushed by.

Margery Loring, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Hayward was christened by Rev. Mr. Hyde of Weymouth Wednesday.

The Hitormisit Tennis club will hold a tournament during the week commencing September 6. The prize will be a gold cup. Those who desire to enter can leave their names with either Barbour, Merritt or Gallagher of the club.

Mrs. Elighty S. Dean died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Foss, on Hancock street yesterday at 4.30. Mrs. Dean was the widow of Otis Dean, who died about thirteen years ago.

The following named ladies went to Fort Point yesterday where they dined at Anderson's: Mrs. W. H. Harrison, Mrs. D. Patten, Mrs. W. M. Morrill, Mrs. E. W. Caldwell, Mrs. N. R. Procter, Mrs. J. F. Hayward, Mrs. C. E. Erench, Mrs. Will W. Mayhew, Mrs. Joseph Shaw, Mrs. Gregg, Miss S. H. Thayer, Miss S. N. Thayer.

The Braintree and Weymouth street railway company has been much annoyed by stones being placed upon the track. A careful investigation reveals the fact that very small children have been doing this just to "see what the car would do." These children should be taught they must not do it.

A committee headed by Chief Engineer Williams of Dedham visited East Braintree last week and thoroughly inspected Combination Hose Wagon No. 1, with the idea in view of obtaining a few modern suggestions to be used on the hose wagon which their town is to have built.

The Union tub will go to Essex on Labor day.

There has been some great fishing on Little pond for the past week. Several large bass have been taken out.

Talk about your horsemen, South Braintree is full of them. Ed. Carter's black Dan won third money at South Weymouth on Saturday and Ed thinks he should have had second prize, for they put in a "ringer" from Boston.

Why does Officer Galvin wear such a broad smile? Why, it's a little daughter!

Superintendent White will soon commence widening Washington street at the south part of the town.

Mrs. Granville Bowditch is very sick. At time of writing she is holding her own. Everything possible is being done, and four doctors are in attendance.

The building formerly occupied by Deacon Steadman in making emery cloth is being moved back forty feet to make room for the new Railroad street.

A new fire alarm box was placed at the corner of Hollis avenue and Ash streets this week. It is number 36, also No. 48 on Franklin street and 24 on Eliot street.

Have you noticed how nicely Mr. O. M. Rogers has graded and fixed up around his houses on Franklin street. The sidewalks and approaches to these houses are models of excellence.

The Union society has decided to purchase the lot near the old brick store, East Braintree, and the treasurer has been authorized to draw a check upon the approval of the committee.

A party of Braintree and Weymouth people have made arrangements to take dinner at Hilda cottage, Whitehead hill, in Hull near Surfside station this Saturday afternoon. An informal hop will be in order after dinner.

There is already considerable interest shown among the members of the Choral society and suggestions are being made for the coming season. The subject of a leader is an important one. Mrs. Martha Dana Shephard of Dorchester has been proposed and if she can be secured, the society would indeed be fortunate.

—It is said that the weaving of threads of aluminum in textile fabrics results in a practically non-oxidizable, inexpensive material, that is free from chemical action, and can be washed without fear of injury. It can be applied to the finest and heaviest fabrics as the thread can be drawn to any degree of thinness, and may be made round or flat, or in any shape convenient for wearing.

—The whole world seems to be in league with the sound-money men to capture the farmers of the United States. Not only are wheat and other farm products still advancing in prices, but the foreign demand for our corn this year is far beyond anything ever before known.

—A returned European tourist who arrived in New York last week gave up his clothes to the government, rather than pay the excessive duty assessed on them. The present indications are that Uncle Sam will have a very large wardrobe on his hands as time creeps on.

HAS MARRIED PATTEN.

Divorced Wife of Dr. Roberts of Bath, Me., a Bride.

She Is Now Suing to Get Her Children.

The Latest Chapter in the Recent Maine Social Scandal.

Boston, Aug. 28.—Hon. John Owen Patten of Bath, Me., was married in Cambridge this week to Mrs. Irene E. Roberts, the divorced wife of Dr. Percy W. Roberts, now a resident of Bath, but formerly of this city and of New York. This news has been kept from the public. Mr. Patten's wife by a previous marriage had been granted a divorce from him, in Bath, earlier in the same day of his second marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Patten are now in Bath, where Mrs. Patten has brought suit to be allowed the entire possession and control of her two little twin daughters by her previous marriage, Marjorie and Nathalie Roberts. By the terms of the agreement, made when a divorce was granted Dr. Roberts last spring, Mrs. Patten says the children were to live three months with one parent and then three months with the other. Mrs. Patten claims that this agreement has not been obeyed, and that she has not been allowed to see the children as had been promised. For this, and for other reasons, she petitions that the agreement be set aside.

The hearing on the petition was begun in the superior court, Bath, yesterday afternoon. Robert T. Whitehouse of Portland and Frank E. Southard of Bath appeared for the petitioner, and ex-Mayor W. H. Newell of Lewiston and John Scott of Bath looked after the interests of Dr. Roberts. The case was opened by Lawyer Whitehouse by reading the petition in which the following facts were set forth:

At the time of divorce an agreement was entered into whereby Dr. Roberts was to pay the petitioner the sum of $150 per month for her maintenance, allow her to have the care of the children half of the time, and also have them for two weeks in May. As only $100 of said sum has been paid, and the other part of agreement not kept and the mother not allowed to see her children, the petitioner prayed for sole custody of said children.

Mr. Whitehouse in outlining the case said that he intended to show that Dr. Robert's home was not a proper place to bring up the children, and that, as the mother had sufficient means to care for them, that she should have them.

Mrs. Patten was the first witness. The case was unfinished when court adjourned for the day.

The outcome of this suit will be watched with the greatest interest, forming, as it does, the latest development in a case which has, during the past year, on account of the social prominence of the parties concerned, and their wide acquaintance, attracted unusual attention even far beyond the borders of New England.

FALL RIVER FRAUD INQUIRY.

An Architect Says Charges Emanated From a Jealous Competitor.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 28.—Architect L. G. Destremps sprung another sensation yesterday afternoon in the session of the bribery investigation committee. After denying all knowledge of any bribery in connection with the recent acceptance of the schoolhouse plans he ascribed jealousy as the cause of Architect Farnham's letter to Mayor Greene, intimating fraud.

Mr. Destremps then told the committee that George Leet, local agent of the Grand Rapids Furniture company, told him that he (Leet) was going to offer money to Alderman Gibney and Councilman Buron. Buron later told him that Leet had offered him money, which was refused. Alderman Gibney told him, in answer to a question, that Leet had not been to him. He said Leet told him he would be willing to give one-half his percentage to get the contract. Destremps was then questioned about the check for $200 which he had given Alderman Gibney. He said he had bought Gibney's household furniture for $500, giving the check for $200 on account. He had since heard a report that the check was boodle, and that Gibney was bought for $200. He denied that the check was for anything but furniture.

Architect Charles H. Farnham was called at the evening session. He brought the charges of bribery which led to the arrest of Councilman Shay. After describing the competition for plans which he had entered, he told of an agreement with Attorney J. M. Morton, Jr., of the citizens' committee to secure evidence against the bribe takers, believing that he had not secured the plans previously because bribery was not practiced. He told a friend that he wanted to secure the award, and that if he knew of any member of the committee who was looking for anything, he might do business with him. This was followed by the visit of Shay to his office to find what Farnham would give for the award. The latter asked how $300 would do, and Shay replied "We've been getting more than that." Then he said he would rather give $400 than to lose the contract, and that sum was agreed upon. After the acceptance of his plan, Shay came to his house and, in the presence of hidden witnesses (detectives), was given $400 by Farnham, who got the money from Attorney Morton. Having secured the necessary evidence of bribe taking, Farnham threw up the contract. He did not believe that any other members of the committee were implicated. Farnham refused to reveal the name of the friend whom he asked concerning members of the committee who were looking for something.

Endeavorers Adjourn.

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 28.—The closing meeting of the Main state Christian Endeavor union convention, which has been in session at the Second Congregational church since Tuesday, was held last night. The auditorium was crowded with Endeavorers and citizens, who gathered to hear the closing address of Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark of Portland, founder of the movement. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Rev. Ellison R. Purdy, Portland; first vice president, Rev. W. B. Shumway, Springvale; second vice president, Rev. S. B. Rideout, Norway; third vice president, Rev. John Nason, Houlton; corresponding secretary, Miss Annie L. Cobb, Saco; recording secretary, Miss Katherine Berry Tilton, Belfast; treasurer, T. B. Stowe, Lewiston; superintendent floating department, C. H. Moseley, Portland; superintendent missionary department, Miss Aldreda Brewster, Friendship; superintendent evangelistic department, Mrs. John R. Boardman, Bangor; superintendent good citizenship department, Rev. W. F. Berry, Portland; junior superintendent, Mrs. E. C. Bryant, Pittsfield. The convention was one of the most successful ever held in Maine.

Patchen's Gallant Effort.

Readville, Mass., Aug. 28.—A large crowd of spectators saw a good racing program at Readville park yesterday, the star attraction for many being the attempt of Joe Patchen (2:01½) to beat the world's pacing record of 2:00½. Owing to the brisk wind that swept up the stretch the trial was delayed till 4 o'clock, and then there was still a stiff breeze prevailing that probably added one or two seconds. The record was not broken, but the time made was very fast, the quarter being passed in 31, half in 1:01¼, three-quarters in 1:31 and the mile in 2:02. The two races left over from Thursday were quickly wound up, the 2:16 trot in two heats and the Massachusetts stake in one heat, G. H. F. taking both the former and Rilma the latter. The 2:07 pace brought out a rattling field of starters, and the heats were all well contested. Louis Victor and Captain Jack had a battle royal in the 2:13 trot, but Victor took three in succession by a small margin each time.

Bar Harbor Pleasures.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 28.—The white squadron was ablaze with lights last night and thousands on the shore viewed the grandest harbor illumination ever given here. Yesterday was regatta day in the squadron and 5000 people watched the crews race for $150 in prizes offered by the Canoe club. The ships were gaily decorated and the harbor was alive with crafts. In the 12 oared barge race for a $40 prize, the Iowa's crew finished first, Maine, second, and Brooklyn, third. In the 10 oared cutter race the crew of the Massachusetts finished first, Indiana, second. The course was two miles. In the sailing race, the Maine's launch alone crossed the line within the time limit, but the crews of nine ships contested. Admiral Sicard and his officers were dined at the St Sauveur last night by William C. Davis of New York. Governor Powers has arrived and Secretary Long is expected.

Colby Football Matters.

Waterville, Me., Aug. 28.—Colby university opens its doors for the 78th year Sept. 22. It seems reasonable that her claim to the strongest football team of Maine is correct. Bowdoin lost by graduation half of her men of '96, Bates was not far behind in this, Maine university's team is intact, but displayed no ability in the past season. Colby in her '96 eleven took the highest average of any team in Maine, tied Bowdoin and lost but one game. Chapman, left tackle is the only man not at the command of Captain Brooks this season, who will put his men at work Sept. 15, entering upon his third year as captain, having shown himself of marked executive ability and with the power to get the best from each individual. Hopkins of Harvard, who did such good work as coach last fall, will probably be secured again

A Six-Mile Railroad.

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 28.—The Haverhill and Salem Electric Railroad company has been organized in this city to build an electric railroad from here to Salem Depot, N. H., the coming year. The Massachusetts corporation has been organized with the following directors: W. B. Ferguson, Malden; Frank E. Lowe, Greenfield; Charles E. Barnes, Plymouth, N. H.; T. C. White, Methuen; Dr. W. P. Robinson, C. H. Burnam and E. B. Fuller of this city. Their capital stock is $60,000, and steps for the completion of the Massachusetts end will be taken at once. In New Hampshire an attempt will be made to build the road under the general law by permission of the railroad commissioners. The intention is to start construction early in the spring. The road, if completed, will be about six miles in length, but will be of unusual importance.

Alleged Poolsellers Arrested.

Dedham, Mass., Aug. 28.—Chief of Police William F. Drugan and Officers M. J. Barrett, John F. Barrett, Irving Donley and Andrew Nolan of Dedham, arrested Henry Smith, George Harris, James Brown, John Roberts and Edward Morse at the Readville trotting park Readville, yesterday afternoon, while the races of the New England Breeders association were in progress. Two others, Henry Johnson and William Jones, were not arrested, they agreeing to appear in court today. The charge made against them alleges that they maintained and conducted a room under the grandstand for the purpose of selling pools and registering bets. After being brought to Dedham Centre they were all admitted to bail in the sum of $200 each.

Tramp Holds Up Boy.

Waterville, Me., Aug. 28.—Joseph Gilman, a lad of 13 years, was waylaid upon Drummond avenue by a tramp and, at the point of a revolver, compelled to give up the posession of a valuabl dog, which he was leading to the home o Parker Hannaford, the dog belonging to Mr. Hannaford's daughter. The boy claims that he stopped to look at the deer in Libby's park, and hearing a noise he turned, to be confronted by an ill-looking intividual, attired in a slouch hat, faded brown coat, drab pants, tucked into long legged boots, who had in his right hand a revolver which was pointed at him. The man demanded the dog and the boy complied with the demand. The officers are now looking for the dog and man.

Boston Street Railway Leased.

Boston, Aug. 28.—At a meeting of the committees of the West End and Elevated railroads yesterday a draft of the lease of the West End to the Elevated railroad was agreed upon. It is understood that the lease is for the usual term of 99 years, and calls for the payment of 8 per cent dividends to the stockholders of the West End street railroad, both common and preferred. Adequate provisions are made for the preservation and return of the property.

UNCLOUDED OUTLOOK.

General Trade Situation Continues to Improve.

The Price of Bread Goes Up With Wheat.

All Staples and Manufacturers' Supplies Are on the Rise.

New York, Aug. 28.—Bradstreet's says: The general trade situation continues to improve, and, aside from the unnecessarily prolonged strike of the soft coal miners, there is little in sight to cloud the outlook.

The feature of the week is the advance in prices of almost all leading staples, beginning with an upward movement all along the line in iron and steel. Steel billets are now $1.50 above lowest figures, bars, $1.50; rods, $3, and plates $1. Bessemer pig iron is up 25 cents, and foundry a like amount. Southern irons are very strong on a continued active export movement. Where wire mills have not advanced prices they have withdrawn quotations.

The statistical position of wheat is the strongest known since the United States beame a considerable exporter, and at its price, as well as that for bread, it is likely to exceed the present week's advances. Following that for wheat, prices are higher for wheat, flour, corn, oats, lard, potatoes, butter, eggs, beans, cheese, leaf tobacco, wool and live stack. Advance for leather, hides, lumber and linseed are also reported.

Cotton, which is up 3-16, reports the smallest world's stock for seven years past at this period, with an improved tone and higher prices for the manufactured production. In spite of crop damage, the tendency of estimates is toward the largest total yield on record, but with probabilities favoring much better prices than those obtained for the crop of 1894-95, the outturn, which was 9,873,000 bales.

Advances are being also asked for reorders of woolen goods at the mills, but print cloths, petroleum and sugar are unchanged for the week, while pork is reported slightly lower than a week ago. No such general or pronounced upward movement of prices of nearly all the leading staples has been witnessed within a week for many years.

August continues its extraordinary record of large weekly totals of bank clearings and promises to show an unprecedented gain over the month a year ago.

This week's clearings for all cities are 18 per cent larger than in the like week two years ago, 40 per cent larger than three years ago, 54 per cent larger than in the corresponding week in the panic year of 1893, 38 per cent larger than in 1892, 10 per cent larger than in 1891, and 4 per cent smaller than in the corresponding week in 1890.

There are 210 business failures reported throughout the United States this week against 221 last week, 320 a year ago, 190 two years ago, 192 three years ago, and 369 in the like week in 1893.

Wheat exports are of large volume, aggregating (wheat and flour as wheat) 5,149,653 bushels for the week, against 5,316,803 bushels last week, 3,281,854 bushels last year.

Pure Food Advocates.

Detroit, Aug. 28.—The assembled pure food commissioners have completed their organization under the name of the National Association of State Dairy and Food Departments. The following officers were elected: J. E. Blackburn of Columbus, O., president; G. L. Flanders of Albany, first vice president; J. A. Lawrence of St. Paul, second vice president; John S. Noble of Hartford, third vice president; E. Grosvenor of Michigan, secretary and treasurer. Resolutions were adopted urging congress to pass laws placing manufactured food products in original packages under state laws wherever sold.

Cleveland a Guest.

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 28.—Ex-President Cleveland was entertained at a clambake at Fort Taber, on Clark's Point, in this city, yesterday afternoon, as the guest of Commander George F. W. Wilde, U. S. N., secretary of the lighthouse board. About 35 guests were present, including Commander R. D. Evans, U. S. N. ("Fighting Bob"), and prominent citizens of New Bedford. Mr. Cleveland was invited to attend the semi-centennial celebration of this city in October, but said that as he should probably leave Gray Gables in September he would be unable to be present.

At Union Park.

Pittsfield, Me., Aug. 28.—The first day of the Union Trotting park meeting showed good races, with a fair attendance. The first event, 3:00 class, purse $100, was won by Meader Boy, b. g., by Pickering; Rocket second, Vulcan third. Time, 2:32¼. The 2:29 class, purse $100, was won in three heats by Erling, b. g., by Viking; Wellington second, Flossie G third. Best time 2:26¼. The 2:24 class, purse, $125, was won in three heats by Duad, ch. s., by Edgemark; Mountaineer second, Westbrook third. Best time 2:23¼.

Skaguay Pass Impassable.

San Francisco, Aug. 28.—R. M. Kay, special correspondent of The Bulletin, writes from Skaguay, Alaska, to the effect that after making the trip over the famous White pass to Lake Bennet, for the purpose of testing its reported impracticability, he and his party of four returned to Skaguay and will now take the Chilcoot pass route to the Klondyke, owing to the wretched condition in which they found the former trail.

Banker Seligman Dead.

New York, Aug. 28.—Banker David J. Seligman died at Hollywood hotel, Long Branch, last night. An operation was performed on him last Wednesday for appendicitis. Mr. Seligman was the oldest son of the late Joseph Seligman, and was the senior member of the banking firm which his father founded.

To Visit Queen Regent.

Washington, Aug. 28.—General Woodford, minister to Spain, has cabled the state department that he will leave Paris on the 31st for San Sebastian, where the queen regent is spending the summer, and will receive the American minister.

SEA LION EATS A DOG.

Small Pug Made but a Mouthful For the Big Beast.

A sea lion devoured a pet pug dog at Glen Island, N. Y., recently, to the great dismay of the dog's owner. It all happened so quickly that those who saw the tragedy could scarcely realize that the canine's career had been terminated.

The sea lions are kept in an elliptical shaped lake near the bridge leading to the big zoo. Around the lake is a donkey drive, and back of this is a rail fence to keep the public from the drive. At the edge of the water is a wire fence to prevent the lions from escaping.

About the hour of noon 13 of the sea lions were basking in the sun on a raft at the south side of the pond. It was near feeding time and they were hungry. The seals and sea lions prefer fresh fish, but when hungry are not averse to gulping down any moving object that looks plump and juicy, so when a sleek, well fed little pug dog shot over the embankment the 13 sea lions made a simultaneous dash into the water.

They immediately sank under the surface, but a moment later one of them appeared within a foot of the dog. The latter was swimming toward shore, apparently unconscious of danger. He turned his head slightly in the direction of the lion. The big brute was seen to open his mouth. There was a squeal from the pug; then both disappeared.—New York Journal.

MAILS TO THE KLONDIKE.

Carriers Will Make Two Trips Per Month to Dawson City.

The postoffice department at Washington recently received from Mr. Coulter, deputy postmaster general for Canada, a proposal for the carrying of mails between Dyea, Dawson City and Circle City, which was accepted by the department, and the Canadian postoffice was so notified. The offer of the Canadian government is to establish a postoffice at Dawson City, appoint a postmaster, and make it an international exchange office. They then agree to carry all the mails of the United States, one trip a month, from Dawson City to Dyea, the United States agreeing in return to carry all the Canada mails from Victoria, B. C., to Dyea. The postoffice department is to pay the Canadian postoffice the sum which it asked from Canada if the United States was to provide for the transportation of the mails.

This is regarded as an exceptionally fair proposal. It will give the United States two mails a month to Dawson City, as there is already a monthly contract in force running from Dyea to Circle City via Dawson City.

Up to this time, while the mail for Dyea from Circle City passed through Dawson City, there being no exchange office there, the pouches were kept closed and no mail could be distributed, nor could any mail be added. The establishment of an exchange office there will change all this.—Exchange.

Double Action Coffins.

The British steamer Niger arrived in Liverpool recently from the island of Fernando Po, on the west coast of Africa, where is situated one of the Spanish penal stations.

She left Fernando Po on July 19, at which time she reports that the Cuban and Philippine exiles were dying so rapidly that coffins could not be obtained in which to bury them.

The authorities supplied some, the bottoms of which opened on hinges. In these the bodies would be placed and lowered into the earth. Then, by a manipulation of the ropes, the coffin would be raised, the weight of the body causing the bottom to open and the body to drop to the bottom of the grave. Then the coffin would be hauled out to be used again when the occasion arose.—Exchange.

A Cup For King Oscar.

After Sept. 18 King Oscar, the head of the Swedish nation, can drink his wine from American silver and gold with the knowledge that he has the well wishes of his former subjects now living in this country, who long to see him international arbitrator.

The cup, which is of Gorham make, has been finished and is a beauty. Voluntary subscriptions from all parts of the land have paid for it. It is a simple tribute to a ruler who is wise, humane and good to his subjects. Minister Ferguson will make the presentation speech, and real Swedish songs from Swedish-American lips will show that expatriation has not lessened the tunefulness of these sons and daughters of the northland country.

Former Slaves Want Pensions.

The territorial convention of negroes which has been in session at Perry, O. T., for two days passed resolutions demanding that congress grant pensions to ex-slaves, their wives and children.

They declared that they had been in slavery 240 years, and they demand pay for it. They denounced lynch law and expressed sympathy for the Cubans. They also want immediate statehood for Oklahoma.

Signs of Falltime.

Gittin clost ter falltime—know it by the way
The wind comes crost the mountains at the breakin o' the day,
An the twitchin in my j'ints is a most unfallin sign
That they're tunin up the fiddle fer the boys ter fall in line.

Gittin clost ter falltime—know it by the way
The smoke is curlin up'ard in the mornin's cool an gray.
You kin hear a whip a-crackin crost a clover field or two,
An you think o' rides by moonlight with a sweetheart clost ter you.

Gittin clost ter falltime. Let it come along!
Spring is rich an rosy, an summer's sweet with song.
Every season's good enough, but give me frost an fall,
An balance ter yer pardners an kiss yer sweethearts all!

INDIAN FRONTIER.

Rebellious Afridis Driven Back to Hills With Heavy Losses.

London, Aug. 28.—A special from Simla says that the Daulatzai tribe of Afridis near Kohat descended from the hills in strong force during Thursday night and attacked and captured the village of Ublan, setting fire to the buildings, nearly all of which were destroyed. General Biggs, commanding the forces at Kohat, having heard of the Afridis' plans, had prepared a force and went out on Friday morning and attacked the enemy. After sharp fighting the Afridis were driven back to the hills with heavy losses. The British loss consisted of one Sepoy killed and a native officer and two Sepoys wounded.

The correspondent cites as an instance of the lack of cohesion in the frontier tribes plans the fact that while the Afridis have dispersed to their homes the Orakzais have begun to move. A party of the latter crossed the Ublan pass, six miles from Kohat, and attacked the Mahmudzai post, which was held by a company of native infantry and the border militia. General Biggs, commanding at Kohat, issued from that place with a field battery and two companies of Scots fusilliers and native infantry. The Orakzais retired to the Ublan Rimge, where they were shelled by the battery. The infantry then stormed and captured the ridge with only one casualty. The government troops occupied the ridge for several hours, but as the tribesmen were in full retreat the force withdrew to the plain.

Colonel Richardson, with a flying column at Hangu, learned Thursday that a post on the Samana range was being attacked. He at once sent a force of native infantry and a section of the Derajatim mountain battery to re-enforce the Samana garrison. The latest reports are to the effect that firing has been heard in the direction of the post, so there is little doubt that this attack will be repelled, as was the one at Ublan.

This rising, the correspondent says, emphasizes the necessity of moving a large force with a view of attacking Tirah. Three columns of probably two brigades each are being organized and other operations on the frontier are being postponed meanwhile.

So far only six Sepoys from Lundikotal have arrived at Jamrud. They reported that they had been disarmed, and it is believed, therefore, that the 350 members of the Lundikotal rifles have been disarmed by the attacking Afridis.

DEATH OF OGDEN GOELET.

Well Known Millionaire Dies Aboard His Yacht at Cowes.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Aug. 28.—Ogden Goelet of New York, one of the best known of American millionaires, died yesterday on board his yacht, the Mayflower.

He had been in feeble health for some months. In fact, his health had not been good for years, and on that account his physicians had ordered him to stay abroad.

His wife, son and daughter, and the Hon. Michael Henry Herbert, brother of the Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, and Mrs. Herbert, who is a sister of Mrs. Goelet, were present when the end came.

The body will be embalmed and taken to New York.

It is said that for some time past Mr. Goelet had been much worried over fam-

Mr. Ogden Goelet was one of the two sons of the late Robert Goelet, and a grandson of the late Peter Goelet, whose sister was the mother of Mr. Elbridge Gerry, and whose estate was one of the greatest in New York city. It was through the increased value of the Goelet farm that the family today owes its great wealth, as the Goelets have made a practice of never, or rarely ever, selling.

He married about 20 years ago Miss May Wilson, the eldest daughter of Richard T. Wilson and sister of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr.

Mr. Goelet was a member of the best-known clubs of New York, among others of the Union, Knickerbocker and Metropolitan, and also of many of the country, sporting and yacht clubs. He was known the world over as a promoter of yachting.

Mr. Goelet a short time ago was rated as third in the list of wealthy men in the United States. His wealth is estimated at about $100,000,000.

To Run Extra Time.

Middletown, Conn., Aug. 28.—Notices were posted yesterday in the factory of L. D. Brown & Co., probably the largest manufacturers of silk fabrics in the state, to the effect that commencing Monday the factory will be run evenings until 8 o'clock, the employes to be allowed time and a quarter for the extra work. The increase in the working hours is necessitated by the large number of orders on hand. Up to within a few weeks ago the factory had been working on short time for two years.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all uffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

LAWN TENNIS SCIENCE.

Study of the Style Played by Champion Larned.

NEW TENNIS STAR IN THE WEST.

Veteran Neel's Defeat at Kenwood by Kreigh Collins—Endurance Has Much to Do With Success—Pacific Coast Players Anxious to Meet Eastern Experts.

The capture of the famous Longwood lawn tennis trophy by William A. Larned of New Jersey is a victory for America and for the highest class of scientific playing. The Longwood prize has been in the air seven years. Larned was the challenger for the bowl for the third time, having had his name inscribed upon it twice. Wrenn was the winner of the trophy last year for the first time. To secure possession of the cup it was required that it be won three times. Last year Larned was abroad, and consequently did not have an opportunity to dispute its possession. The duty fell to Hovey, who was easily floored by Wrenn, the cup being saved for Larned's chance this year.

In his recent defeat of Wrenn, Larned played his usual game of science, so far as it was possible. His telling strokes were in places when playing both near the service line and at net. Wrenn's knowledge of Larned's style led him to lob when he could. This was his style of play almost continually. His high lobs were very effective, and by poor returns by Larned, Wrenn made most of his points, especially in the third and fourth sets, which he took. The fifth set did not give the champion many opportunities for lobbing. The playing was mostly from the back of the court. There were several sprints at the net, in which Larned came out on top. In the five sets Larned passed Wrenn continually, making 81 points to his opponent's 54. In returning Wrenn's high lobs successfully the New Jersey man found no end of trouble, as he made it a point to use the back hand stroke and skim the net if possible. By this practice Larned drove the ball into the net 66 times, against 21 nets for Wrenn. Wrenn's errors by nets were made almost invariably when volleying. Both men drove the ball outside at critical stages. Larned's outs were 57, Wrenn's 51. Nervousness, particularly in the warmest periods of one match—the second and fifth sets—occasioned an unusual number of double faults. Larned had 7 and Wrenn 6.

Kreigh Collins, who recently captured the Western championship from Car Neel, was looked upon as a novice compared to his adversary. This is only his second year, and his victory over Neel at Kenwood, Ills., was won in his fourth tournament. In 1896 Collins participated in two invitation tournaments of the Chicago Tennis club and a third a short while ago this year. Last year he met defeat in both tournaments, while his first essay this year was successful. Notwithstanding that, however, his fellow clubmen dreaded a contest between him and Neel. Collins is 22 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighs 145 pounds. He is of lithe and supple build, has a quick and accurate eye and toward the finish of the game with Neel developed a remarkable endurance and seemed to be as fresh at the finish as when he first picked up his racket.

Tennis experts on the Pacific coast claim that the game played by George and Robert Whitney, Sam and Sumner Hardy and Thomas Driscoll has attained as high a standard as tennis in the east. For this reason there is a general desire to see some of the eastern or European cracks on California courts to test the mettle of the home players. Thomas Driscoll, who won the New England championship, which is next in importance to that of the national championship, is considered to rank below either the Whitneys or Hardys in ability.

An Italian Tragedian Coming.

Ermete Zacconi, the distinguished Italian tragedian, has been engaged for two years by Carl and Theodor Rosenfeld, who first brought Eleanora Duse to this country. Signor Zacconi is a famous actor in his own country, and his appearance last winter in Austria carried his reputation beyond the frontiers of Italy. He was engaged by George Edwardes for a series of performances in London last spring, but he was unable to keep the contract. He is under contract to the Rosenfelds to give 320 performances, and he is to receive $100,000 for them, as well as a proportion of the profits beyond a certain sum. Virginia Ritter, who is an Italian actress of considerable fame in Italy and South America, has acted a great deal with Signor Zacconi and will probably visit this country with him.

Old Style Sulkies Have Gone.

How completely the high wooden wheel sulky has been superseded by the ball bearing pneumatic tire machine was strikingly illustrated in connection with a recent arrangement of a programme of sports at Fleetwood park. Alexander Newburger, who managed the affair, tried to get up a race to include two or three horses in the 2:15 class and others in the 2:20 or 2:21, the former to pull old style sulkies, the latter to race to bikes. The difference in the records is about the estimated advantage the rubber tire has over the hickory wheel. Mr. Newburger secured the horses, but there were no old fashioned sulkies left in the neighborhood, and the scheme fell through.

M'NALLY HAS ENOUGH.

He Declares That Nobody Can Swim the English Channel.

Peter McNally, who recently made a brave but unsuccessful effort to swim the English channel from Dover to Calais, does not hesitate to proclaim that the feat cannot be accomplished by mortal man. "After I had been in the water six hours," says McNally, "I felt as strong as when I first went in. The tide at first was running out, and I made rapid progress. Four men in a rowboat followed me. We tried to make as straight a course for Calais as possible, but the strong tide interfered. It flowed toward the Atlantic with tremendous power, and I was carried to the westward of Calais in spite of all my endeavors. After I had been in the water ten hours I felt that it was slack water. Soon the tide began to turn, and then the hope of reaching Calais was ended. I kept up the struggle for five hours longer, but the wind arose, and there was soon a choppy sea on. The tide, too, was setting toward England with ever increasing swiftness, and it was useless to struggle longer. I was within three miles of the French shore at 2:30 a. m., when I clambered exhausted into the boat. The water, which had registered a temperature of 62 degrees when I started, had fallen to 51 degrees, and I was chilled through. The strength of the tide, too, may be realized when I tell you that the four men in the boat did not gain a boat's length in three hours' hard rowing. We finally landed at Cape Grisnez. The strait is 21 nautical miles wide. In my zigzag course I must have made at least 25 miles. A freight steamer took us back to Dover. To swim the Dover straits I believe to be impossible. Captain Webb has the credit of having done the feat, but I have my doubts on that score. I exceeded Webb's swim, but I have failed. I am going back to Boston, and shall probably not attempt to swim the strait of Dover again."

FISH BY THE SCORE.

A Washington Belle Quickly Catches Twice Her Weight In Trout.

Miss Emma Libby, daughter of Captain Libby of the Puget Sound Boat company, recently caught 81 trout in three hours. The remarkable catch was made in Lake Crescent, south of Port Angeles, with a seven ounce rod and flies tied by a local dresser. The trout were all of the steelhead variety, and none of them weighed less than a pound. The average weight was 3 pounds, which made a total of 243 pounds. The young lady is said to weigh less than 150, so that she caught nearly double her weight of fish during the short time she was at it.

Gentry's Great Effort.

It is understood that John R. Gentry will seriously attempt to beat his record of 2:00½ at Narragansett park in September. Lewis G. Tewksbury has entered into a contract with the directors of the track for such a trial. Gentry and Robert J. will be fitted for track work during the intervening weeks, and the effort will be made to win $10,000. Gentry must make the mile inside of two minutes to win a bonus of $5,000. Tewksbury is to receive $5,000 for the attempt to break the world's record, and he guarantees that the Narragansett track record of 2:03¼ and the world's harness record of 2:01½ shall be broken.

College Football.

Dates are being arranged for the fall campaign of football among the colleges. According to present plans, Yale plays Harvard and Princeton. Harvard plays Yale and Pennsylvania. Princeton plays only Yale and Pennsylvania plays only Harvard. The Quakers will play Cornell at Philadelphia on Thanksgiving day.

MARTHA MORTON.

The Career of the Most Successful Woman Dramatist In the World.

Ask the first ten important theatrical managers you meet in New York or London who is the most successful woman dramatist in the world, and nine of them will unhesitatingly tell you Martha Morton. The other one will probably select Madeline Lucette Ryley.

Miss Morton is no creature of circumstances. She has earned her present exalted position in the world of theatrical literature by dint of hard work, natural ability and indefatigable energy. She is now so much sought after by managers that she frequently is obliged to reject commissions for plays which many dramatists of riper experience would be delighted to accept. It would be difficult to select from Miss Morton's plays her best work. There are those who declare that "The Merchant" will never be equaled by her, but unprejudiced judges assert that several of her works are superior to the play with which she won the rich prize offered by the New York World.

Martha Morton was born in New York about 36 years ago. She studied at the

MARTHA MORTON.

Normal college, but, owing to ill health, was prevented from taking a diploma. She went to Europe with her parents for a change of air, and while in Europe quickly became inspired with a deep love for the fine arts. More especially she paid attention to the drama. In London she moved in literary and theatrical circles and became a friend of the family of Dutton Cook, the English critic. It was partly owing to Mr. Cook's advice that Miss Morton felt encouraged to make a study of the drama.

After leaving London Miss Morton went to Paris and there studied the works of Moliere, Racine, Victor Hugo and other celebrated French writers and dramatists. She next studied the French stage and was a nightly visitor at the leading Parisian theaters. That she was favorably impressed with the work of the French players is made apparent in the first play that she wrote, entitled "Helene; or, The Refugee's Daughter," in which both Clara Morris and Cora Tanner starred with success.

Upon her return to America her services were enlisted for a charitable affair in which society was to take a prominent part. For this event Miss Morton prepared a travesty of the then popular success, "May Blossom." A single performance of her work netted over $4,000. Everybody that witnessed the play was delighted, and several propositions were made for a regular production of the piece. Her success encouraged her to try again, and a few months afterward "Helene" was produced at a special matinee at the Fifth Avenue theater. The success this play achieved induced Miss Clara Morris to buy it and place it in her repertory. Miss Morris in turn disposed of it to Cora Tanner.

"The Merchant" was Miss Morton's next attempt at playwriting. The piece won for her the prize offered by the New York World for the best original American play, and was afterward sold by her for the sum of $4,000. Miss Morton then wrote "Geoffrey Middleton, Gentleman," which the Pitou company produced.

Since then Miss Morton has written "Brother John" and "His Wife's Father" for William H. Crane. Both of these were exceptionally successful, and it is said that her royalty on the two aggregated more than $50,000. For the coming season she has one play for Crane, another for Sol Smith Russell and still another for a prominent London manager. She has never written a failure, and this fact she attributes to her unwillingness to undertake anything which will necessitate a change from her usual slow and painstaking method of writing. It is not at all likely that Miss Morton will have any great trouble in keeping the wolf from the door for some time to come, inasmuch as it is said that her income from her plays is equal to the salary of the president of the United States.

It has recently been announced that this talented playwright will shortly become the bride of a well known society man of Gotham.

Maude Adams' Starring Tour.

The two plays selected by Charles Frohman for Miss Maude Adams' starring season are "The Little Minister," a comedy by J. M. Barrie, who is the author of the book of the same name, and "Phroso," a drama, which is a dramatization of Anthony Hope's latest novel, made by Edward Rose and H. V. Esmond. Mr. Rose is the adapter of "The Prisoner of Zenda" and "Under the Red Robe." The play of "The Little Minister" departs almost entirely from the story of the book and is absolute comedy, without any of the tragic incidents of the original story. Miss Adams' season will begin at the Lafayette Square theater, Washington, Sept. 13, and she will then follow the three weeks' run of "Secret Service" at the Empire theater, New York.

Judge Daly's Sensible Views.

Judge Joseph F. Daly, in a recent speech in New York, said: "No public servant assumes a higher duty than he whose function it is to watch the course of public amusements, to approve what is wholesome and condemn what is harmful, to encourage on the one part the maintenance of a high standard of excellence and on the other part the taste to appreciate it. His is not only a hard task, but a thankless one, unless the large class which recognizes a kindred spirit in his steady adherence to the right resolve to make known to him that they have watched his career, comprehended his design and rejoice in his success."

Flannagan's Greatest Throw.

John Flannagan has the hammer throwing record at his mercy. In an exhibition at Albany he hurled the hammer 157 feet 4 inches. As the rules of the A. A. U. do not recognize any performance made other than in competition, the figures will not count as a record. In a second throw he also beat his record of 150 feet 8 inches by an inch.

Putting the baby to bed is the good-night joy of a happy day to a healthy mother. Many mothers delegate this motherly duty to a nurse. Some mothers hardly see their baby the live-long day. This is not because they are without mother-love or the natural impulses of a womanly woman. It is because of their own ill-health and broken nerves, and because baby is also sickly and peevish. This unfortunate state of affairs might have been avoided had the mother, during the period of expectant motherhood, taken the right care of the delicate organs that make maternity possible. A woman should always keep these important organs well and strong. Her own health and that of her child depend upon it.

The best medicine for prospective mothers is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes healthy and strong the organs that bear the burdens of maternity. It cures all disease and weakness. It makes comfortable the period preceding motherhood and renders the advent of baby easy and nearly painless. It insures a healthy child. The pains and suffering that women endure, as a result of weakness of the distinctly womanly organism, vanish under its use. All good druggists sell it. There is nothing else "just as good."

"I want to tell you," writes Mrs. N. A. Thomas, of 400 Pulaski Street, Little Rock, Ark., "that my daughter, Mrs. Lawrence, who lives in Texarkana, Ark., had been under the doctor's care for four years. I lately sent her word to try the medicine which cured me, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and I have just heard that it has done her more good than all the doctors."

"The People's Common Sense Adviser" explains symptoms of ailments common to every family, and suggests remedies. It has several chapters on woman's diseases and weaknesses. An edition in heavy paper covers will be distributed absolutely free. Send the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of mailing only. Cloth binding may be had for 10 cents extra—31 cents in all.

And when poring o'er books with studious looks,
Despairing of help from a brother,
The eldest of all will not scruple to call
For aid from his bright little mother.

In out of door games every one of them claims
Her presence to strengthen and cheer them,
For the better their luck and the greater their pluck,
They say, if their mother is near them,
With hearty good will and wonderful skill
She champions one or the other,
And the boys oft declare, with a satisfied air,
There's no better playmate than mother.

She joins in their walks, and delightful the talks,
Most sacred and sweet the communion
The mother enjoys as she strolls with her boys,
So loving and loyal their union.
Their future careers, their hopes and their fears,
They would not reveal to another,
Are confided to her, and the lads all aver
The best of companions is mother.

She shares in their games and in all of their aims,
Their faults and their follies correcting,
That they may grow wise and secure the best prize,
True culture and courage reflecting.
And if quarrels take place, as at times is the case,
Alas, betwixt brother and brother,
She soon sets them right, preventing a fight,
For there's no better umpire than mother.
—Josephine Pollard in New York Ledger.

A TROPICAL IDYL.

It is an hour after midday, and the tropical sun is beaming out relentlessly, although the air is tempered by a refreshing breeze. The flowers in the churchyard begin to look a little fatigued, and the roses, heliotrope and geraniums, planted by loving hands, now far away, round the graves of those who have died in exile in this distant land, hang their heads and seem to be longing for a shower or at least for a passing cloud, but the grass is still green on the slope in front of the church, for the dry season has not yet fully set in. The sugar canes in the field across the road wave their long leaves in the breeze, and the woods bordering the ravine, which stretches away to the sea in the far distance, present a refreshing vista of dark green to the tired eye.

The little congregation of English people comes rustling out of the church, and there is a flutter of light draperies, a mingling of pretty colors and a ripple of soft voices and gentle laughter. Over all come floating the strains of an organ from the church behind. Some one is playing Mendelssohn's "Wedding March."

Then the carriages drive up and the congregation disperses. The first to leave are of course the governor and his family. They occupy two carriages. In the first goes his excellency, her ladyship and their eldest daughter, a gray eyed, brown haired English maiden in her first season. The aid-de-camp prepares to follow, as usual, but the cheery voice of his excellency rings out: "Debenham, will you come with us, as you are the greatest stranger? Colville, my dear fellow, would you mind taking care of Miss Spencer and the girls?"

And so the newly arrived private secretary drives off seated beside the eldest daughter, while the aid-de-camp, who has been with her father as long as she can remember, takes his place in the second carriage beside the two younger children and their governess.

"Why does Mrs. Noble play the 'Wedding March?'" says some one.

"Oh, today is the anniversary of her own marriage, I believe, and neither Major Noble nor she has yet arrived at the stage of wishing to forget their wedding day," is the reply.

And so the joyful strains peal forth while the little congregation melts away. The musician and her husband follow, and the church is shut up and left to the care of the native gardien until another Sunday comes round.

Only the aid-de-camp is unusually grave during the rest of the day, for a strange foreboding has come over him, and it seems just a little hard that he, who has remained poor and has begun to grow gray in the service of his excellency, and for love of him and his, should be ousted for a stranger and a newcomer just because forsooth he is heir to a baronetcy and to a fortune.

* * * * * * *

It is evening in the cold weather, and the short tropical twilight is nearly over, the sun having set on one side of the ravine half an hour ago, while the full moon has risen on the other, throwing black shadows everywhere, turning the waterfall to silver and lighting up the mist of spray until it resembles a huge web of gossamer with the dew upon it.

A party of young people have been exploring the ravine. They have clambered up beside the cascade, have followed the river's bank to the limit of the government house grounds and are now returning by the high road.

As they round the corner past the church two of the party linger behind. They are the governor's eldest daughter and the private secretary. The others go on, but presently discover that some are missing, and the aid-de-camp returns to look for them. He approaches gently, walking on the grass by the roadside. He calls, but no one answers. From the church comes the sound of music. The amateur organist has been holding a choir practice and is now playing on in the dark by herself. She plays a low, sweet voluntary, but presently breaks into the "Wedding March."

As the aid-de-camp advances he suddenly descries two figures, close beside him, standing under the shadow of a spreading banyan tree near the church gate. They are the private secretary and the eldest daughter, and their backs are toward him. Before he has time to speak he hears a manly voice say, "That is a good omen, is it not, my darling?" and a sweet, girlish treble replies: "Yes, and I shall love Mendelssohn's 'Wedding March' all my life because it seems so bound up with you and with my happiness. Do you remember that first Sunday"— But the aid-de-camp has turned on his heel and is out of hearing by this time. He reports that the stragglers "are all right and coming on. They have only been listening to Mrs. Noble's playing."

The moon continues to shine and the waterfall to sparkle in her rays and to splash musically down into its rocky bed, but to the aid-de-camp a black shadow of great darkness seems to have spread itself over everything, and the roll of the falling water and the noise of the breeze among the filoa trees have a mournful, moaning sound.

* * * * * * *

It is noon on a brilliant day in Christmas week and consequently in the middle of the hot season. Outside the grass is beginning to look burnt up, and the roses and geraniums are too much exhausted from the heat to put forth any more flowers, but the hardy begonia is still in full bloom, and the oleanders have large bunches of pink blossoms on the tops of their tall, willowy stems, which wave back and forward in the breeze and exhale a delicious perfume, like that of bitter almonds. In one corner of the churchyard a large frangipani tree bears waxy clusters of pale yellow flowers at the ends of its cactuslike branches, while shining out among the foliage in the government house grounds opposite is a tall flamboyant tree, which, with its flame colored blossoms covering the whole top of the leafless tree, looks like a veritable "burning bush."

Inside the church has been turned into a bower, everywhere palms and ferns and sweet smelling white flowers. The bare, barnlike walls are completely hidden by a mass of greenery, the window sills are filled with blossoms and the altar rails festooned with maidenhair and stephanotis, while the lower half of the east window is a perfect bank of ferns and flowers, above which may be seen the clear blue sky, flecked with white clouds, and the tops of the trees.

All is pleasant bustle and confusion within, for a great wedding is about to take place, and all the beauty and fashion of the island colony have been summoned to do honor to the governor's daughter.

The ladies are in the brightest and freshest of toilets, while varied uniforms help to enliven the scene.

Everywhere there is a buzz of subdued, pleasant talk and of delightful expectation.

The bishop is at the altar, the bridegroom and his best man near the rails. The bridesmaids await the bride in the porch, and in and out and everywhere among the congregation—arranging everything, showing guests to their seats, talking to every one and making himself generally useful and agreeable—flits the aid-de-camp. He has been at work since before daylight and yet does not seem at all fatigued, but has a pleasant smile or a kind word for every one.

Now the music strikes up, and presently the bride appears, leaning on the arm of her father. The marriage service proceeds, the bishop joins the young couple's hands, the vows are taken, the ring put on, the hymns sung and the address delivered. Then comes a moment of silence while the newly married pair still kneel at the altar rails, and when one can distinctly hear the champing of the horses in the carriages waiting outside and the sighing of the breeze in the tops of the filoa trees. Then as the young couple rise from their knees there break forth the joyous strains of the "Wedding March."

As they pass down the aisle the bride looks up into the bridegroom's face, and he, stooping over her, murmurs something which only she can hear. The aid-de-camp sees the look and guesses the words, and, with renewed energy, he plunges into the business of marshaling the procession and escorting the guests to their carriages, and throughout that long and busy day no one seeing his bright, pleasant face and hearing his cheery voice could guess that for him the sun was darkened and the light of life and hope gone out, and that to his ears Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" will forever sound like a funeral dirge.—Sketch.

A Practical Joke.

A practical joke that was played on Charles Maurer of Eleventh and Callowhill streets early last spring has resulted in something likely to puzzle the brains of several up town naturalists. Mr. Maurer is a great lover of birds. Last spring one of his canary birds was busy with a nest of eggs, and Mr. Maurer was as much excited as the mother bird. As a joke Curtis Souder removed the eggs and in their place put three of the sparrow variety. Now, in the course of time those eggs were hatched, and both mother bird and master were greatly bewildered at the odd looking birdlets. The joke in some way leaked out, but as the mother bird was treating her foster children tenderly Mr. Maurer decided to let them remain and watch the result. After the sparrows got a little older it was noticed that the canary would put them in a row and chirp to them, after which the sparrows would try to imitate her. Perseverance on the canary's part has resulted in three ugly sparrows that are beginning to sing, and it's a toss up as to whom the joke is on.—Philadelphia Record.

Perfumes.

A new process for extracting the perfume of flowers has been devised by M. J. Passy. He steeps the flowers in water, which is drawn off when charged with perfume and fresh water substituted. This keeps the flowers fresh for a long time, and their life is further prolonged by the use of a saline solution such as the tissues of the plants call for. The charged water is then evaporated by the use of ether. The process has proved successful with many flowers which previously refused to yield up their perfume, notably the lily of the valley.

IS IT KLONDIKE GOLD?

THE OLD FIND IN INDIANA TRACED TO ITS SOURCE.

Ingenious Theory of an Ancient Gold Bearing Glacier From the Klondike Region. Brown County, Ind., Has Been Successfully Worked For the Past Sixty Years.

News comes from Bean Blossom, Ind., that great activity has marked the recent operations in Brown county's goldfields. It is also added that at no time in the past has such success rewarded the labors of miners. Two men from Georgetown washed out quite a quantity along the banks of Salt creek, and a party from Brownstown, the county seat, are going to organize a company to buy up all the gold land and put in new machinery for the rapid and economical separation of the gold from dust and gravel. The gold beater at Bean Blossom has more work than he can do and thinks of securing help from Indianapolis or Bloomington. Every one in Brown county, north of Weed Patch hill, seems to think the day of jubilee has come.

Sounds like a vagary, does it not? The idea of gold in Indiana! And Bean Blossom, Salt creek, Weed Patch hill—they can be nothing but fancied creations of some imaginative writer. Yet these names are all mentioned in your atlas. Brown county lies south of Indianapolis and is cut across from east to west by a range of hills, the only considerable elevation between Canada and Kentucky. Bean Blossom is the name of a postoffice and town "north of the ridge," and there is a gold beater with a long established business in the place. Salt creek does flow down the north country, near the foot of the ridge, and Weed Patch hill is the highest peak in the range.

And there is gold in Brown county. Of this there is no room for question. More than one state geologist of Indiana has taken note of the fact, and Geologist Owen, with others, has recorded his opinion that the gold came down from the north in the glacial age and was deposited here to the north of the ridge in that period—perhaps centuries in duration—while the glacier, caught and lodged against the range of hills, melted at the bottom and deposited the soil it had dragged loose in the northwest country.

There is no easily discoverable gold south of the ridge. There is none anywhere else in Indiana or any of the region roundabout. The glacier which hid its treasures against this Brown county ridge no doubt had lost its last yellow dust before it reached the hills of Kentucky and Tennessee. Of course in every acre of ground it is probable some trace of gold may be found by chemistry. There is a trace of each mineral in all the minerals. But this Brown county soil—north of the ridge—is really so rich that a man may readily earn from $1 to $2 a day mining.

In the light of the recent northern discoveries it is curious to reflect that doubtless the glacier which made this Salt creek deposit must have gripped in its icy hands the original Klondike claim and have slowly carried it from the tributaries of the Yukon to the tributaries of the Wabash. There is no gold bearing quartz "north of the ridge," nor anywhere nearer than Colorado. There is nothing but the scattered flakes of free gold through the dark gravelly soil. But every woman and every girl child in Brown county has a ring or a pin or a brooch or a bracelet fashioned by the gold beater at Bean Blossom and of Brown county gold.

All that is the lighter marvel. The notable thing is that every one "north of the ridge" expects a marvelous discovery; that the first thing in the child's consciousness is the probable imminence, the ultimate certainty, of "finding the gold." Smart youth may revise its views as to the wisdom of father, the justness of laws, the accuracy of history and the very divinity of Christ. But the youth of Brown county knows there is gold in the hills. Hard life may teach a skeptic doubt of better times, of greater ease "some day," of the railroad so often promised, so often expected in vain, but no adversity, however long drawn out, can dull the expectation of that glorious day when the gold shall be found—not found in these meager measures. The people believe there is a storehouse in the hills, bulging to bursting with mysterious gold, from which some truant flakes slip down the streams. And some day the spring will be touched, to the magnificent enriching of the people. And this is no new thing. Gold was discovered here before Marshall found it at Sutter's fort. Robert Dale Owen knew of it as early as 1835, as he mentions it in his letters, and belief in a greater treasure, still hidden, has existed from the first.

So it seems probable that the first of the Klondike gold was found on the slopes of the Brown county hills.—Chicago Times-Herald.

New Way to Light Matches.

A new and profitable noonday pastime among the gamins who frequent the vicinity of the Reading terminal in Philadelphia never fails to draw a large and interested crowd. One of the boys will lay ten matches in an even row on the hard asphalt. The heads of the matches all point the same way and the matches are about an inch apart. Then the youngster swings a cord on the end of which is fastened a piece of lead.

Swinging the cord rapidly, he handles it so deftly that he hits at will the head of each match and sets it blazing. He makes an agreement with the crowd that if he succeeds in igniting in this manner each of the ten matches without missing he is to have 10 cents. Usually the business men who watch the performance are so well pleased that the gamin gets considerably more than a dime for his trouble and skill.—Philadelphia Press.

CRIM DAYS AHEAD AT KLONDYKE.

Food Supply Insufficient for Those Now There —Dangers of White Pass.

St. Michaels, Alaska, Aug. 16.—Starvation will stare the miners in the face during the coming winter, if all signs do not fail, as little more food has been sent up the river by the two transportation companies this year than last, and there will be at least three or four times as many persons to feed. Those who are now there will exhaust every pound of food, if reports as to the number on the Yukon, brought down by reliable men, are to be believed. Many of them know well by last winter's hard experiences with hunger and scurvey what is in store for others. Large numbers go over on the Chilkoot pass as poorly prepared as were those who went last year with short supplies, heedless of all warnings. They will find themselves battling for life against hunger and cold, and cut off from all chance of relief from the outside world.

R. T. Lyng, local agent of the Alaskan Commercial company at St. Michaels, declares that there already 2000 idle men in Dawson City, and new parties arriving every day, via Chilkoot pass, while the total amount of freight landed there this year will not exceed 4000 tons, of which not more than three-fourths is provisions. Miners returning from the Klondyke, who left there in July, report that the food was running very low then, and it was disposed of as fast as discharged from the steamers. Old timers realize the situation and predict distress and death as a result of th Klondyke craze.

William Ogilvie, Dominion land surveyor, who has been making topographical surveys of the British possessions along the Klondyke, has been recalled by the government for consultation as to important matters affecting the new gold fields, and he is now en route to Ottowa, via San Francisco. He will make a report embodying suggestions for new mining laws, governing the sale of liquor and taking wood for fuel, etc. He made a census of the new fields and finds 23 claims produced $826,000, and says that $70,000 is no exaggerated estimate of the amount that will be produced by 180 claims on bonanza, Hunkers and El Dorado in three years.

Thomas Magee, a well known real estate man of this city, who is en route to the Klondyke gold fields with a party of San Franciscians, writes from Lake Bennett, B. C., under date of Aug. 15, confirming previous reports of the terrible conditions of the White pass trail from Skaguay, and relating the almost insurmountable difficulties to be encountered by the gold hunters who prefer that route to the more formidable Chilkoot pass. He and his party left Skaguay on Aug. 10 with nine burros, and during the four and one-half days consumed in making the trip of 40 miles to Lake Bennett, met with innumerable adventures.

Twenty-five times some of their pack animals were bogged up, necessitating not only the unpacking of each load, but also the lifting of the animals bodily from the mire. Another trouble was the narrowness of the trail in places, which necessitated the unpacking of the burros and the transporting of the supplies by hand over these spots.

The Magee party took a boat up from San Francisco in sections, but was compelled to leave it at the beach at Skaguay, as it was utterly impossible to carry it over the trail. At the head of Lake Bennett, however, they found a firm of boat builders, who charged no more for good boats than would be paid in San Francisco ($140).

Mr. Magee thinks that the majority of the crowd now at Skaguay and Dyea will have to abandon all hope of getting into the Yukon country this year, and is certain that the late comers have no chance of doing so.

The Portland Arrives.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 30.—The steamer Portland arrived here yesterday morning from St. Michaels. She carried 13 miners, each of whom brought only a small part of his stake. The total amount of dust on the vessel is perhaps $575,000. The Portland was delayed by the failure of the P. B. Weare to arrive at St. Michaels and by a storm on the North Pacific ocean. The miners on board with the amount of their total mining profits, part of which were brought with them, are as follows:

J. Rowans, $50,000; Jim Bell, $45,000; Joe Goldsmith, $35,000; N. W. Powers, $35,000; W. W. Caldwell, $35,000; W. Oler, $30,000; C. K. Zilly, $25,000; F. W. Cobb, $25,000; W. Zahn, $15,000; A. Buckley, $10,000; M. S. Lansing, $15,000; B. W. Farnham, $10,000; M. R. Camler, $15,000.

Rush Not Warranted

Victoria, Aug. 30.—J. Peterson, an Alaskan trader, who left Dawson City on July 28, with his partner, Bradbury Cole, arrived here on the steamer Islander yesterday, they having come out to the coast over the Lowelton trail. Petersons says that there are certainly some rich diggins in the Yukon country, but nothing to warrant the rush that is taking place. Henderson creek, three miles below Stewart river, where the reported rich strike had been made has all been staked off, but the miners did not record their claims as the ground was not considered rich enough. Before Peterson knew that the Portland had arrived, he had said she would bring between $150,00 and $200,000.

On Aug. 1, 150 men had passed Fort Selkirk on their way to the mines. These are the men who left the coast cities before the excitement had commenced.

Of the men who left only 50 have crossed the passes, the trails getting worse every day, and it being hard to say which one is the best. Men are leaving Dyea for Skaguay and visa versa. The latter trail is blocked with horses, and in attempting to pass many horses are thrown over the precipices and killed. A half dozen men came down on the Islander who have given up hopes of getting to the lakes. On the trip down the Islander picked up four men, Frank A. Brown, Juneau; Gregmire, Portland; W. Murdock, Nanaimo, and J. Dudley, Nanaimo. They were clinging to a capsized sail boat on Aug. 23, in which they and four others had left Juneau for Skaguay on Aug. 1. On the morning of the 23rd at 4 a. m. the boat capsized, and James Armstrong, Seattle; W. McDonald, Nanaimo; Thomas Trevyland, Nanaimo, and Hugh McLaren, Nanaimo, were drowned. Having been unable to get a steamer at Skaguay they had taken a sail boat, and, with their outfits, had started for Skaguay. While jibing their boat it capsized.

The Refractometer

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent occulists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.
I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.
F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.
I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.
JACOB GOLDBERG, M. D.

This is a very expensive instrument, but we consider nothing too good for our patrons, and have placed one in our optical room.

NOTABLE REUNION.

President McKinley Will Attend Meeting of His Old Regiment.

Fremont, O., Aug. 30.—The first and second days of September will have noted events here, at both of which President McKinley will be in attendance. Sept. 1 occurs the wedding of Ensign Smith and Miss Hayes, the daughter of the ex-president, and on Sept. 2 occurs the reunion of the regiment in which Hayes and McKinley served during the war.

The Twenty-third Ohio regiment claims the distinction of having among its officers more men who attained high positions during and after the war than any other regiment in the United States—E. B. Hayes and William McKinley; one reached the office of United States senator and associate justic of the supreme court of the United States—Stanley Matthews. Its first colonel, W. S. Rosecrans, was appointed brigadier general in the regular army before his regiment reached the field. The next in command, E. P. Scammon, was afterward made major general of volunteers, and was equally successful in business life. The fourth colonel, James M. Comly, was mustered out with the regiment and afterwards was known as a distinguished journalist. Lieutenant Colonel Russell Hastings, now a resident of the Bermuda islands, is known as a successful man of business in Ohio since the war. Captain G. B. Giddings was appointed major in the United States army. Lieutenant B. P. Kennedy was later lieutenant governor of Ohio and also a member of congress.

President McKinley rose from the ranks to second lieutenant Feb. 7, 1864, and to captain July 25, 1864, and was afterward breveted major.

The regiment saw severe and trying service in the mountains of West Virginia and participated honorably in the engagements of South Mountain and Antietam in 1862. It was especially conspicuous at the celebrated battle of Cedar Creek Oct. 19, 1864, when Sheridan made his ride to Winchester.

Paris His Klondyke.

New York, Aug. 30.—Dr. Thomas W. Evans, the famous American dentist who for the past 40 years has been the dental operator in Paris of most of the crowned heads of Europe and many celebrities, returned to this country yesterday. He came over with the body of his wife, which is to be interred in Woodland cemetery, Philadelphia. Dr. Evans is now 75 years of age, and is worth $35,000,000. About $5,000,000 of the property is in New York city real estate, the remainder in Paris and elsewhere. This fortune has been gathered since Dr. Evans first went to Paris from Philadelphia in the forties. During the empire of Napoleon III his fame as a dentist was world wide. In that capacity he served Napoleon, the Empress Eugenie and all the monarchs of Europe, except Queen Victoria and the present Sultan of Turkey. Victoria's children and the present Czar of Russia, when children, were his patients. Dr. Evans has orders and decorations innumerable. It was in his carriage that the Empress Eugenie escaped from Paris after the battle of Sedan. The wife of Dr. Evans died on June 17 last at their residence in Paris.

World's Harvest Estimate.

Buda-Pesth, Aug. 30.—The ministry of agriculture has issued its annual estimate in which it describes the world's harvest as extraordinary light. The total yield of wheat is placed at 573,760,000 metric hundred weight, while the present annual requirements are estimated at 655,150,000 metric hundred weight. It is calculated that for 1897 and 1898 there will be a shortage of 50,800,000 hundred weight. The stocks remaining on hand from 1896 are approximately estimated at somewhere between 38,000,000 and 45,000,000. The total supply for the year reckoning both the present stocks and the harvest is estimated at from 610,000,000 to 651,000,000 metric hundred weight.

Massachusetts Benefit In Pern.

Lima, Peru, Aug. 30.—The collapse of the Massachusetts Benefit Life association of Boston is regarded here as disastrous. The only security that the policy holders here have is 30,000 sols local gurantee and this is scarcely sufficent to cover 25 per cent of the liabilities.

Disorderly Meeting at Paris.

Paris, Aug. 30.—A disorderly meeting of 6000 members of the Revolutionary Socialists was held here yesterday. Many of the speakers denounced the policy of Premier Meline and urged communal control of the wheat and bread trade.

Grade Crossing Fatality.

Buffalo, Aug. 30.—An Erie passenger train, while going at the rate of 65 miles an hour, struck a wagon containing five people at a crossing just outside of the city limits last night. Melville H. Valentine was instantly killed and M. C. Weider, Mrs. Weider, Eddie Weider, 4 years old, and George Cole, were all severely injured. Mrs. Weider and George Cole may die. The party started to cross the tracks just after a freight train had passed. They did not hear or see the passenger train coming in an opposite direction.

Loss $75,000.

New York, Aug. 30.—Twenty steamers, one-third of the number belonging to the fire department of this city, were kept busy for over two hours yesterday afternoon pumping water into the six-story factory building at 478 and 480 Pearl street, which had taken fire from some unknown cause and was threatening to ignite the Five Points Mission home on Park street. After a stubborn fight the flames were confined to the premises in which thew originated. The structure was destroyed, however. The total loss is estimated at $75,000.

AMESBURY FARMER NEARLY BUNCOED.

The Local Bank Saved Him a Loss of Ten Thousand Dollars.

Amesbury, Mass., Aug. 30.—Joseph W. Mason, a wealthy farmer living on the Whitehall road, called at one of the local banks a few days ago, and, presenting securities to the amount of $10,000, asked that he be paid the cash for them. The bank officials were suspicious, however, and refused the money. It now transpires that had they complied with Mr. Mason's request that gentleman would probably find himself just $10,000 out of pocket at the present time.

On the day in question Mr. Mason was called upon by a finely dressed man, who, he said, wanted to buy a farm. He had already looked at several farms, but this particular one suited him best, and an offer was made to purchase it. During their conversation the two men wandered back into the field, where a third man was met. After a brief talk one of the strangers showed a large roll of bills and suggested a game of cards. Mr Mason declining on the ground that he did not know how to play cards. Then one of the strangers offered to play for Mr. Mason, and after a few games Mr. Mason was nominally the winner of $10,000, but in a short time he had lost the $10,000 and several thousand more. The strangers demanded the money they had won, but Mr. Mason asserted he had no money with him, and emptied his pockets to prove his assertion. Foiled at this point they demanded his notes, and seeing that he was far from his house and in the company of desperate men he told them to go to the house with him and he would straighten matters out.

Arriving at the house he gathered up his securities and came to this city for the purpose of getting them converted into cash, but in this he was unsuccessful. Meantime the two strangers became suspicious and made themselves scarce. No good description of them can be obtained, and although the police are in possession of the facts the matter has been kept very quiet.

NEW WORLD'S RECORD.

Star Pointer Goes a Mile In 1:59 1-4 on the Readville Track.

Boston, Aug. 30.—Star Pointer's mile in 1:59¼, Saturday, in Readville, was the talk of the horse world yesterday, and an occasion for congratulation all around that the magic mark of two minutes for the mile had been passed at last. His performance was so clean cut and conclusive, no question of a quarter of a second remaining to mar the certainty of the feat, that drivers and trainers generally were much in the state of a patient having successfully passed the crisis.

When the horse appeared to make his trial against John R. Gentry's record of 2:00½, the crowd which filled the grandstand and surroundings felt that now, if ever, the two-minute mile would be done. The track, weather and other conditions were perfect, and Star Pointer has been looked for all along as the horse to do the trick.

As the successive quarters of 30s., 59¾s., 1:29 and finally the supreme mark of 1:59¼ for the mile went on, the enthusiasm of the gathering grew in fervor, and at the conclusion the great pacer was greeted with a furor of applause.

David J. McLary, who drove Star Pointer to a record of 1:59¼, is 32 years old, and was born in London, Ont. His father, John McLary, is a farmer, now living in Westlawn, a small town in Ontario, on the shore of Lake Erie. David has two brothers and two sisters living. None of the family are particularly fond of fast horses except David, although one brother, John, whose home is in Ontario, is a dealer in horses and cattle.

Anarchists' Morals.

New York, Aug. 30.—H. M. Kelly of Boston read a paper last night before the New York Debating society on "Anarchists' Morals." He said that morals of anarchists are based on the propogation of species. They have no standing of morality. Each man or woman must establish his or her own standard. The anarchist doctrine is as much in favor of maintaining a high standard of morality as society seeks to have, said Kelly, but even you restrain men they show a desire to do directly opposite to that required of them. This accounts for some of the perturbations of anarchists.

GOOD LADY GONE.

Mrs. Green, Formerly One of the Proprietors of the Patriot.

At her summer home at Houghs Neck last night, Mrs. M. Elizabeth Green passed away peacefully after an illness of several months, not having enjoyed good health since a shock sustained three years or more ago. Another shock Friday rendered her unconscious.

As one of the proprietors of the Quincy Patriot for about 34 years and of the Daily Ledger during its earlier years, she made many acquaintances and warm friends, and it was a pleasure to meet her at the newspaper office or at her home.

She had a smile and a good word for all, and it was largely her influence which makes the Patriot of today the prosperous newspaper that it is. It was always her policy not to abuse any one in print; to conduct a newspaper which would be prized by the family; never sensational and always reliable. The Quincy Patriot was established by her husband in 1837, and was published by him, with the exception of two years in the 50s, up to the time of his death in July, 1861.

Mr. Green died quite suddenly leaving his widow, in embarassed circumstances with three small children. While Mrs. Green was wavering as to what she should do she was advised by Mr. James Beckford to continue the publication of the Patriot. This she undertook and with the help of Mr. George W. Prescott she made it a success. Mr. Prescott had entered the office May 1, 1853, and previous to the death of Mr. Green had managed the business largely. From 1861 to 1869 he was foreman for Mrs. Green, then a partner until 1895, when feeble health obliged Mrs. Green to relinquish active duties, and she sold out her interest.

Although associate editor and financially interested in the Quincy Advertiser since the above dissolution, she has not been able, except for a few weeks occasionally, to assume any of the responsibilities, owing to ill health.

Mrs. Green's three children survive her, viz: Mrs. Walter A. Metcalf and Mr. John A. Green of Boston, and Mr. Frederick F. Green of this city. Mrs. Green was the owner of a valuable estate on Hancock street and other property. Unfortunately she was one of the members of the defunct Massachusetts Benefit Life Association, and has paid large sums into the association for a number of years to get no returns.

Mrs. Green was born in Boston, April 26, 1824, her maiden name being Margaret Elizabeth Kirk. She was married on her birthday April 26, 1842, by Bishop Alexander A. Griswold. She was therefore in her 74th year. Funeral services will be held on Wednesday.

AT SHOOTING BOX.

President Bryant Entertains—Something About the New Retreat.

President Bryant of the City Council entertained in a royal manner fourteen members of the Sportmen's club of Wollaston, on Saturday afternoon, at his new shooting box, which is located on the shores of the beautiful Whitman's pond in Weymouth.

The shooting box is built on a point of land which juts into the water from the Lovell's Corner shore, commanding an unobstructed view of the whole pond. This sheet of water, which is one of the largest in the county, is a famous resort for wild geese and other water fowl when they are on their semi-annual migrations. For years this pond has been gunned by strangers as well as by natives. President Bryant is an ardent sportsman. Recently he has obtained control by purchase and lease of a large part of the land which surrounds this pond.

It is upon this land that the ledge is located from which the stone for the ashler work of the new Weymouth High school is being taken. The ledge is over 400 feet long, 300 feet wide and indications are that a fine front of 75 feet deep can be worked. The stone is not light enough to dazzle the eye nor dark and gloomy. It works well and is apparently susceptible of a high finish.

One of the curious ledge formations on this property is a huge bowlder appropriately called "House Rock." It is of granite formation and of about the size of an ordinary two and a half story dwelling house. Through its centre is a cleft about eighteen inches wide, thirty feet high and extending through the rocks for a distance of something like 65 feet, terminating in a sort of a well. Access to the top of the rock is gained by some scrabbling and hard climbing on the part of the tyro who is taking the 331 degree, as each member of Sportsmen's club had to do on Saturday.

The shooting box itself is a picturesque, low studded, one story building 30 feet by 14 feet in size, stained a moss green to harmonize with the surrounding foliage. It is surrounded by the customary low, tight board fence such as surrounds all shooting stands. This as well as the building will be thatched or covered with some perennial trees.

The house is entered by a low door which opens into an ante-room, opening from this room on the left are the pantry and sleeping room. The sleeping room is supplied with six bunks, with hair mattresses on springs. Next comes the living room. Although not elaborate it has an air of quiet comfort with its immense leather covered cushions spread over wide transoms.

Each room has small windows, screened and protected by heavy shutters.

Before the party left for home a lunch was served.

Steward Williams of the Duck's Nest acted as scout of the expedition.

TODAY'S COURT.

Peter B. Connor was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Matt Johnson was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Josephine Griffin was arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth. She was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction.

Charles Murphy was fined $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Mary A. Woodsum was arraigned for disturbing the peace at Weymouth. She was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction.

John McDonnell was sent to the House of Correction for three months for drunkenness at Randolph. Appealed.

Joseph H. Hill was arraigned for having ten short lobsters in his possession at Quincy and was fined $50.

Banciqu Pasili and Koapriel Wit were fined $5 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Moses Budiro was fined $8 for disturbing the peace at Milton.

The continued case of Martin G. Holbrook for violating the liquor law at Randolph was called and he paid a fine of $50.

The continued case of Joseph Whiting for violation of the liquor law at Braintree was called and he was fined $50.

The case of W. S. Clark for violating the liquor law at Braintree was placed on file.

All for Bro. Jacobs.

The contest at the annual session of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows on Thursday is over the election of grand warden. There are two candidates for the office, and one is Past Grand Franklin Jacobs of Mt. Wollaston lodge of this city. He is a very active worker and popular with the members of the order. He has served as deputy for several years, and is now deputy of Mayflower, Bethesda and Hobah lodges. The other name mentioned is Mayor F. H. Fish of Taunton, a member of Sabbatta lodge of that city. Quincy and vicinity is a unit for Bro. Jacobs.

Great Was the Fall.

A lady, a gentleman, two bicycles and a stone post were the elements that figured in a little accident in City Square this morning. They were riding along peacefully; the lady wanted to show the gentleman that she could ride as fast as he could. She forced her wheel ahead with a sweet smile that spoke louder than words. Suddenly there was a crash as the lady ran plump into a stone post, and great was the fall. The only damage was a badly bent bicycle jack.

THE ROOSTER FLEW.

Not Only First in Plymouth Race But Into McDowell's Camp.

Again the Quincy boats at the open race at Plymouth on Saturday took first prizes, viz, the Little Peter, Privateer and Rooster. The order by corrected time was as follows:

First class, Little Peter, Addie, Eclipse, Beatrice.

Second class, Privateer, Ishtar, Harolde, Arawak, Future.

Third class, Rooster, Wrinkle, Tacoma, Arab III, Nancy Hanks, Fanny D. Hustler, Edith.

Fourth class, Demon, Atilla, Ideal, Winnituxet, Trouble, Fedora.

Spritsails, Major D, E. B. Weston, Solitaire, Yankee, Thelma.

The achievement of the Rooster was too much and it flew away from Mayor Adams right over the fence into Commodore McDowell's yard. Mr. McDowell purchased the crack craft immediately after the race, and took her in tow to her new stamping grounds. It is said Mr. Adams will sail the Rooster in the race for the Fanny Davenport cup at Duxbury on Thursday, this being one of the stipulations in the sale.

The Rooster was built in '95 from designs by Purden and Mr. Adams. She is a fast boat, but many yachtsmen give as much credit to the crew as to the boat for the record she has attained, and say that the Rooster without the Adams boys will be like a jug without a handle.

The Last Was First.

The third handicap race of the Quincy Yacht club was sailed off Houghs Neck on Saturday afternoon. The air was so light that four out of the seven starters were compelled to withdraw. Dr. Frederick E. Jones was the judge.

The summary:

Name and owner.	Actual time. h. m. s.	Corrected time. h. m. s.
Tantrum, Robbins	3 01 12	2 46 12
Thisbe, Whittemore	2 55 24	2 49 36
Princeps, Whiton	2 52 02	2 52 02

The Princeps made the fastest actual time over the course.

On the Starboard Tack.

The Swallow won the championship race of the half raters at Cohasset on Saturday.

Mr. Harold B. Faxon and Miss Faxon were out in the Sunbeam on Sunday.

The Savin Hill club will hold an open race on Saturday under rules of the Massachusetts Yacht Racing Association, for liberal prizes.

Knockabouts will have a race at Cohasset on Friday afternoon.

Open race off Nahant by the Lynn yacht club on Labor day.

The Vigilant and Navahoe will have a match off Newport on Saturday.

Real Estate Sales.

C. H. Johnson reports these sale:

Lot on Sea street, Houghs Neck, containing 5500 square feet,, property of John M. Dunn of Boston, to Charles P. Peterson of Quincy.

Keith's Theatre.

Few living artists have had a more interesting career than Mme. Marie Basta Travary, the celebrated Russian prima donna, who inaugurates a brief engagement, commencing today, at Keith's popular continuous performance theatre, Boston. Her artistic triumphs in the grand opera houses of Milan, St. Petersburg, and Paris, Cove Garden in London, and the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, are all matters of record. She has been classed by the critics as in every respect the equal of Christine Nilsson in her best days. Mme. Travary will sing selections from her favorite operas, and also some of the most favored songs in the language, and with the accompaniment by the members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, music lovers of New England are offered the rarest treat of the season. In the Biograph there will be a fine list of pictures, including some amusing comedy scenes.

WON IN THE TENTH.

An Interesting Game With Exciting Plays on Saturday.

The undefeated Quincy and Boston base ball club played on Saturday one of the finest games of ball that has ever been played at Wayside park, South Framingham. They had as their opponents what was called the home team, but in reality it was a picked team of the vicinity and also four Bowdoin college players. Sayers, the crack pitcher of the Brockton league team, pitched for the Waysides, and J. Duffy and Hayes were the battery for Q. and B. Duffy pitched a better game than the Brockton pitcher.

The game was full of exciting plays from start to finish, the score standing 1 to 0 until the eighth inning when the home team made one run on Hayes error at home plate. Then came the ninth inning and the excitement was at a high pitch, but both sides were retired without a run. The Waysides scored three runs in the tenth and were perfectly satisfied they had won the game, and that the undefeated Q. and B. team had met their first defeat. Cunniff came to the bat in the tenth and he and Cantfill both went out on grounders batted to pitcher Dunn was hit by a pitched ball and stole second. Murphy made a base hit and Dunn scored. H. Faircloth hit safe for one base placing Murphy on third and H. Faircloth reached second on a throw to hold Murphy on third. They both scored on a two base hit by J. Faircloth and tied the score. Then J. Faircloth stole third and scored a victory on a passed ball by catcher Paul, thus ending the most exciting game of ball ever played at Wayside park.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

CITY —OF— QUINCY.

SEALED proposals for paving and curbing Copeland street in accordance with form of specifications to be furnished by the Commissioner of Public Works of the City of Quincy, will be received at the office of said Commissioner, City Hall, until 2 o'clock P. M., of the First day of September 1897, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read. Each proposal must be indorsed "Proposal for paving and curbing Copeland street," and be accompanied by a properly certified check for the sum of Five Hundred Dollars ($500,) payable to City of Quincy, which will be returned to the bidder unless forfeited as hereinafter provided.

A bond will be required for the faithful performance of the contract in such sum as the Commissioner of Public Works shall determine; such sum to be not more than one-third the amount of the contract; the sureties to be residents of Massachusetts and satisfactory to the Commissioner.

The contract must be signed and bond furnished within six days after the notification of acceptance of the proposal and in case of the failure of the bidder to sign contract and furnish bond within said time, the contract and the certified check accompanying the proposal shall be forfeited to the City of Quincy.

The proposa's will be compared on the basis of the following quantities :

Furnishing and laying 7,200 square yards paving.

Furnishing and laying 110 linear feet crossing stones.

Furnishing and setting 3,600 linear feet straight edgestones.

Furnishing and setting 68 linear feet curved edgestones.

Furnishing and setting 7 driveway corners.

Resetting 1,170 linear feet straight edgestones.

Resetting 9 driveway corners.

These quantities are to be considered approximate only and the Commissioner of Public Works expressly reserves the right of increasing or diminishing the same, as he may deem necessary.

The right is reserved to reject any or all proposals or to accept the proposal deemed best for the city.

CHARLES F. KNOWLTON,
Commissioner of Public Works.

TALK OF THE CITY.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Miss Bertha Nichols is visiting in Woburn.

Mrs. L. Livingstone and Miss Annie Kellay have been at Hyannis.

Mrs. Eaton of Cleverley court is at home from her visit to Maine.

The fall drill of the Fifth regiment will take place at Waltham Oct. 6.

Mr. C. T. Merrick and family have returned from a visit to North Brookfield.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Linscott of Goffe street are at Maplewood, Maine, for a week.

Miss Edith Hardy of East Boston is the guest of Miss Ada Harding of Atlantic.

The Quincy and Boston are making rapid progress on laying their rails on Newport avenue.

The Granite Railwy Co.'s defeated the nine from Maguire and O'Heron's Saturday by score of 12 to 11.

Edwin S. Brown and family are in town for brief visit. Mr. Brown is manager of the Gold Saver Mill Co.

Major W. E. Morrison of the Fifth regiment has been assigned by Col. Whitney to Companies A, H, K and D.

A parrot has been lost by a lady in Norfolk Downs. Wlil the finder please return to Mrs. Vigneau and obtain reward.

St. Augustine Cadet band of Boston, forty pieces, gave pleasing concerts Sunday afternoon and evening at New Downer Landing.

The young lady clerks at City Hall returned from their vacations this morning and the administrative offices look natural again.

Mrs. John Robbie and Mrs. James Malcome have mastered the bicycle so that they were able to go to Manet beach Sunday on their wheels and enjoyed it very much.

A little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. H. Totman passed away yesterday morning after an illness of three weeks. It was a hard blow to the fond parrents. Funeral on Tuesday at 2 P. M.

The Quincy Yacht club has lost one of its most famous racers, Melbourne McDowell of Duxbury having bought of the Adams Bros. the jib and mainsail boat Rooster. The Rooster is the fastest boat of her class in the association, ranking highest in the third class.

The Young Institutes of Quincy went to North Weymouth Saturday and played ball with the North Weymouths on Anderson's field. In the sixth inning the score stood 10 to 1 in favor of the home club. As the last three innings are the Institutes famous ones they won out by a score of 14 to 12

A civil service examination is being held at City Hall today of inspectors and foremen employed upon the sewer. When the work commenced upon the sewer the comissioners were permitted to employ the necessary inspectors and foremen until such time as the civil service commission could hold an examination.

There was much disappointment Saturday night that a band concert was not given in City Square. There had been none advertised but the people had become accustomed this summer to band concerts on Saturday nights and a large number were out supposing that there was to be one. The crowd gathered about City Hall and waited and waited for the concert but none came.

Rev. Joseph Dawson, of the Gilford Ave., Methodist church of Baltimore, Md. occupied the pulpit of the Washington Street Congregational church on Sunday morning. Mr. Dawson preached one of the most soul-inspiring sermons ever heard from the pulpit of the church. This seemed to be the unanimous opinion of the congregation.

Miss Bessie Brown has returned from her visit to Hanover.

COUNTY AND VICINITY.

Westwood, formerly West Dedham, has long been out of the world, and now that a street railway company is desirous of a location it opposes the route that another village may be taken in. It promises to stay out in the cold by such a policy.

—The people of Islington and Ellis villages, the first in Westwood and the other in Norwood, near the Westwood line, are very generally signing an agreement consenting to the consolidation of the Islington and Ellis stations on the New England railroad.

—The Hull yacht club has held the last of its promenade concerts.

—Mrs. Annie Poole of South Weymouth while on her way from the South Hanson depot on Saturday to visit friends was held up by two tramps and gave up her watch and purse.

QUINCY'S SOLID MEN

And Some Women Too Who Pay a Big Tax This Year.

Quincy has many solid men and women and business firms as will be seen by a list of all who are this year called upon to pay into the city treasury $50 and upwards. The tax rate is $18.80 so that a tax of $50 represents a valuation of over $2500, and a tax of $100 a valuation of over $5000. The instalment today include those names having property in Ward Five; the cents in addition to the amount given are omitted for convenience:

TALK OF THE CITY.

Fair and warmer.

The heavy taxpayers of Wollaston will be continued in Tuesday's LEDGER.

No date has yet been fixed by the Quincy Republicans for holding their caucuses.

Work on the Copeland street section of the sewer is progressing slowly but surely.

Miss Ethel Fish of Boston is spending a few days as the guest of Miss Alice K. Prescott.

One reads with surprise in a recent Globe that the five months old daughter of a certain family was their youngest child.

Deacon Brothers have made and erected a handsome monument of Quincy granite on the Avery O. Dunham lot in the Spring Brook cemetery at Mansfield.

Officer Injured.

Officer David J. Barry is confined to his home from injuries received early Sunday morning while in the discharge of his duties as night patrolman.

Officer Barry had charge of the station Saturday night and between 1 o'clock and 2 o'clock Sunday morning word was received that two men in a carriage were creating a disturbance on Adams street.

Officer Barry mounted his bicycle and gave chase. He overtook the fellows and stopped them. While talking to them they turned their horse onto him. They knocked him down and while down the fellows drove over him smashing his wheel and injuring him about the arms and body. After running over him the fellows drove off leaving him upon the ground.

He was so badly injured that he could make no further effort to stop them. He however managed to make his way back to the police station, where he called a physician. He remained at the station all night and in the morning went home and to bed.

The physician found that no bones had been broken but he is badly bruised and may be injured internally. He can give no description of the men in the carriage.

Political Potpouri.

The Republican conventions in which Quincy is especially interested this year will be entitled to the following number of delegates: Norfolk county, 127; second councillor, 256; first Norfolk senatorial 59; State, 1991.

Election officers in cities must be appointed on or before Sept. 30.

Preliminary voting lists will be posted on or before Oct. 2.

Oct. 2 is the last day for designating polling places for the State election.

Registration will be closed Oct. 13.

State election Nov. 2.

Brockton Tax Rate.

The assessors of Brockton fix the tax rate for this year at $20 70, an increase of $1 over 1896, and the highest rate ever imposed. The total valuation is $25,640,272, a net gain of $94,121. The loss in personal estate is $64,670, partially accounted for by the formation of corporations in shoe factories formerly taxed as individuals. The total number of polls is 10,088, an increase of 271.

International Challenge.

It is generally understood in yachting circles that the Quincy Yacht club will issue next season on behalf of one of its members, a challenge for the international Sewauhaka challenge cup which was recently won by the Glencairen II. of the Royal Canadian Yacht club.

HOUGHS NECK.

Yesterday was the pleasantest Sunday this summer. The tide was just right to allow the would-be sailors, a chance on the water, to show their "dirty ducks." The booths were all open, doing a rushing business. The Cambridgeport Cycle Club, made use of the free checking system at Harvey's pavilion.

Residents are getting their decorations ready for tomorrow and are kept busy pumping water to have it on hand in case of fire.

The Mascot cottage has been decorated, and when it is finished we wouldn't be surprised if it took first prize. It's immense.

Mr. C. F. Cook, the photographer, has commenced to decorate with flags and bunting. We think he is celebrating over his victory in riding the goat.

Entries are being made for the children's races with a rush. The young folks of Houghs Neck would be very much pleased to learn that the non-residents of Houghs Neck are excluded from the races.

Mr. John Dolan, the "star" Jack of all trades, wants to show his ability in pitching that ball. Illumination Day and we'll give him a chance next year.

Mr. Harry Ranard of Roxbury, Mr. Leo Mac Masters of Quincy, Mr. George Ryan of Jamaica Plain, and Mr. Charles Devine were the guests of Mr. Joseph and William Dolan at the Bijou cottage.

Mr. Forrest Clark, Master Frank Smith, Master Eddie and Frank Brandt. Mr. George and Charles Voorhees of Dorchester, are guests at the home of Mr. Brandt on Bird street, and many more are expected.

Tide today just right to take a bath.

The Eagan Club of South Boston had an outing on Sunday and were entertained at the cottage of Mr. Eagan near the Linden. The American Cadet band of fifteen pieces, which accompanied them rendered some fine music, which the people at the beach enjoyed. Cars at 7.30 took the club home.

The two ball teams that play ball tomorrow are the Great Hills and Houghs Necks, Mr. Whittemore captain of the former and Capt. Dolan of the latter.

Mr. John Crowley of Roxbury will have his annual illumination blow-out that night and a great many sports will be preasent.

Miss Alice Tierney, Miss Alice Martin, Miss Lulu Nortan and Miss Keough have arrived at the Loretto Hotel for a week.

At Pierce's Hotel, the new arrivals are Miss Jennie Shoon, Mr. Geo. Hosmer of rowing fame, Mrs. L. F. Keough, all from Roxbury.

At Mear's Hotel, Mr. John Mears, Mr. I. Newell from New York, Mrs. Y. P. Londen of Pittsfield, Mass. and Master Ben. Sargent of Roxbury, all to stay a week.

Mr. L. J. Downing is a guest at the Unicorn for Illumination day.

The time of the tides for a week:

	A. M.	P. M.
Monday,	12.22	12.43
Tuesday,	1.04	1.26
Wednesday,	1.49	2.13
Thursday,	2.37	3.04

Saturday,	4.38	5.14
Sunday,	5.51	6.28

☞ Blue flame oil and Gasolene Stoves. To make more room, our entire line is at your command, one-third from regular prices. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

Illumination Day.

The programe of Tuesday, at Houghs Neck includes:

Base ball at 10 A. M. sharp, between local nines. A handsome prize for the winning team.

Ice cream and cake for the children at Cavanagh's hall from 10.30 to 12.

Sailing for children from 11 A. M. to 3 P. M., off Shear's wharf.

Field sports from 3 to 5 P. M., in field opposite Harvey's ice cream pavilion.

Cottagers are expected to light lanterns at 7.30 P. M. sharp.

Magic Lantern views will be exhibited near Casino.

Band concert afternoon and evening, Fireworks in the evening.

☞ The Wabash Railroad continues to cater to the travellig public in the most up-to-date way with through sleeping cars from Boston to Chicago and St. Louis, vestibuled trains, parlor and dining cars, and rates as low as any for such service. Its freight service shows the same desire to serve the public. Daily merchandise cars are run from Boston to St. Louis and to Kansas City and Denver, making on the Wabash rails an average running time, including stops, of 21 miles per hour. Shippers, to obtain this service, should see that their shipping receipts are marked "via Wabash Railroad." 22-tf

A DOG THAT EATS ICE.

Queer Habit Acquired by a Restaurateur's Precocious Pup.

One of the best known all night restaurants in New York always has one or more dogs around, especially in the hours between 3 and 7 in the morning. Patrons at those hours are apt to be kindly disposed to the canine attaches, and there is more or less frolicking. Recently a plain brindle and white pup about 6 months old was added to this pack, and now it attracts more notice than any of its fellows in the restaurant kennel. It is known as the "ice eating dog."

Every morning when the ice wagons roll up in front of the restaurant and unload the day's supply of huge cakes of ice that pup takes its place at the door and watches proceedings with an eye to business. When a cake of ice becomes chipped, the brindle pup lights on the broken pieces and devours them with as much relish as the ordinary dog does raw meat or chicken bones. It does not finish its meal until the operation of unloading ice has been completed, and if a piece is swept off into the roadway the ice eating dog chases it and retrieves it in spite of cabs and cable cars.

Pat, the night manager of the restaurant, says that when the brindle pup first displayed this appetite for ice it took a big chunk back in one corner and hid it, after the fashion of dogs when dealing with a particularly choice bone. When the pup returned to the hiding place later, of course there was nothing but a wet spot. Then the pup set up a howl that could not be quieted until one of the waiters, who had studied the dog's habits, gave it another chunk of ice.

PLAGUED BY PIRATES.

The United States Government to Be Asked to Protect American Shipping.

A prominent shipping man says that the United States government will be requested to station one of the cruisers of the Mediterranean squadron near the coast of Marocco to protect vessels carrying cargoes from American ports from Arabian pirates, who have again become very active and have recently plundered a vessel bound from Philadelphia to Mediterranean ports.

The pirates are mountaineers who live in caves back in the hills and come forth only when a vessel approaches the coast. Then they swarm out to her in small boats, murder the crew and steal the cargo. It makes no difference to them of what the cargo consists. If it is something for which they have no use themselves, they sell it cheaply and pocket the proceeds.

Occasionally they scuttle or burn a ship, but they more generally send her adrift to become a wreck on the reefs. When they are pursued, they scatter among the hills, where it is impossible for troops to follow them. They are as bloodthirsty a set of scoundrels as ever sailed under the black flag and are desperate fighters. It is thought that one of the new cruisers will have an opportunity to try her long range guns on them.—Philadelphia Press.

Cardinal Vaughan at Lambeth.

To those who recall the antipopery riots in England in the early part of Queen Victoria's reign, the news that Cardinal Vaughan has recently been dining and attending evening receptions at Lambeth palace as the guest of the archbishop of Canterbury will appear almost incredible. And yet such is the case, the new primate of the state church of England displaying the same good sense and breadth of view as the late Dean Stanley of Westminster, at whose house, within the precincts of the Abbey of Westminster, the venerable Cardinal Newman was an always welcome guest. Archbishop Temple, while being the first of the English primates since the days of the Reformation to introduce a total abstinence regime at Lambeth palace, hitherto famous for the excellence of its wines, may be said to have made amends for his strictness in the matter of drink by establishing in his metropolitan palace on the Thames a smoking room for those of his guests addicted to the social weed.

Victoria Abandons the Postilion.

Queen Victoria now announces her intention to abandon the practice of postilion driving altogether, a picturesque custom which will be regretted greatly. She is becoming more and more nervous with increasing age, and save on ceremonial occasions of late has insisted on her carriage being drawn by a pair of horses driven from the box by her coachman, Harvey, who now, for the first time, has a footman seated by his side. The queen is of the opinion that the carriage is under better control when driven from a box. Besides it is far easier for her majesty to communicate her orders to him than to the postilions, who can be reached only by causing one of the equerries cantering beside her carriage wheel to gallop forward abreast of the leaders. This, of course, entails loss of time, which sometimes is inconvenient and occasionally is even dangerous.—Chicago Record.

New Fireproof Enamel.

A wonderful discovery of a new fireproof enamel, in comparison with which asbestos would be classed as a combustible, has been made by Mrs. Francis Shaw of Chicago. In a few weeks the discovery and the results of the tests of chemists are to be announced. Mrs. Shaw's experiments were carried on in the basement of a boarding house.

Two small frame houses have been coated with the new enamel, and as soon as the chief of the fire department returns from his vacation a test will be made to ascertain whether the buildings are fireproof. The enamel looks like white shellac.

A stock company has just been formed to carry on further experiments and to place the enamel on the market.—Chicago Post.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

George Moody & Co. are building a new shoe shop in Kingston, N. H., which will give employment to 100 men.

All the gunboats of the Anglo Egyptian expedition have passed the fourth cataract of the Nile. Spies report that the enemy have evacuated Berber.

P. L. Underwood, a prominent and wealthy resident of Chicago, who was summering at Harwich, Mass., died suddenly of heart failure Saturday.

A measure has been sanctioned by the Emperor of Russia providing that after Jan. 1, 1900, all coastwise trade of Russia must be carried in Russian vessels, with the exception of salt from the Black and Azov seas to ports on the Baltic.

The peaceful demonstration in which 3000 persons, headed by the mayor and several deputies, participated, took place at Marseilles yesterday. It was decided to send a resolution to the government in favor of the abolition of the duty on corn.

A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Cape Town says it is reported from Lourenzo Marquero that the arbitrators at Berne, in the Delagoa bay dispute, have decided against Portugal, and have awarded the Delagoa railway an indemnity of £3,500,000.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all uffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

THROUGH TREACHERY

The Capture of Fort Lundi-Kotal Was Accomplished.

Khyber Rifles Belonged to Hill Towns.

Gates Were Opened From Inside and Garrison Laid Down Arms.

Simla, Aug. 30.—A strong column of native troops and the royal Irish regiment, with four guns, under command of Colonel Richardson, has started for the relief of the Kurum valley fort and another force has been sent to the assistance of the Shimwar garrison.

It has developed that the capture of Fort Lundi-Kotal was accomplished through treachery, and that the original reports that a fight lasting two hours took place within the walls of the fort is unfounded. The 350 Khyber rifles who were stationed there belonged to various clans and included a number of men from the Peshawur valley.

After fighting for a desultory nature some of the Shinaris dropped from the walls and fled to their homes. The Afridis on the walls soon began to exchange greetings with the beslegers of the fort, whereupon the gates were opened from the inside and the enemy poured in. Some of the defenders fled and others remained and fraternized with the beslegers. The Peshawuris were disarmed. Six of them were held as prisoners and the remainder, to the number of 50, were allowed to go free.

It was this news which led to the disarming of a portion of the garrison at Jamrud. It is believed that the Khyber Rifles garrisoning the forts in the Khyber pass have acted in a similar manner.

EAST INDIAN REBELLION.

Attack on Shimwari Repulsed--Afridis Quarreling Among Themselves.

Bombay, Aug. 30.—Little fresh news has been received here from the frontier. An attack has been made on Shimwari, in the Samana range, but the attacking force was repulsed, losing five killed and many wounded. There is considerable excitement among the tribes along the Bolan route to Quetta, and the telegraph wires have again been cut. It is reported that the tribesmen are gathering near the Ziaret sanitarium, and much anxiety is felt regarding the safety of the ladies and children there, as the railway officials are asking for military protection for their property. If the route is considered safe the ladies and children at the sanitarium will be brought away, but otherwise troops will be sent from Quetta to protect them.

The column under Colonel Gordon, which was dispatched to the Samana district yesterday, is composed entirely of native troops, and is fully equipped with medical commissariat and transport services. It has orders to force the Kehat pass if necessary.

Rumors are current tending to throw doubts upon the genuineness of the Ameer's reply to the viceroy of India regarding the complicity of Afghan subjects in the uprising.

The disarming of the Khyber rifles, which formed a part of the garrison at Jamrud, was a complete surprise, but the orders were obeyed without any trouble.

Much individual firing into the camp at Jamrud has taken place, as many as 100 stray shots having been fired at the outposts in a single night. Some of these shots were fired at so short a range that three native officers, who were on watch, were killed. It speaks well for the discipline and obedience maintained in the camp that not a single shot was fired in reply. The hot weather is extremely trying, but the health and spirits of the troops are good. Fears are expressed of the fall of Eustam, northwest of Mardan, the whole district being in the hands of the enemy.

General Wodehouse has gone from Mardan to Rustam, where the force which now amounts to 2000 men, with two guns, will be strengthened.

Confirmation has been received of the rumors that the Afridis are quarrelling among themselves over the division of the booty taken from the captured forts. Only about 500 of them have been left to guard the Khyber pass, the others having dispersed to seek supplies of provisions. This is probably the reason for the cessation of hostilities.

The general idea here is that if further delay occurs in punishing the Afridis, for which purpose at least 20,000 men are required, there will be a general uprising on an enormous scale, extending from Orakzalland to Zaimukht, beyond Kuram and into Wariristan, despite the presence of the British field force in the Tochi valley, east of Rustam. Between Buner and the Indus the tribes appear to be disinclined to join the rebellion.

Paris Decorated.

Paris, Aug. 30.—The city is growing into a frenzy of enthusiasm over the welcome to be extended to President Faure on his return tomorrow from his visit to Russia. All the principal streets and buildings are decorated with flags and bunting. A group of tradesmen held a meeting and resolved to erect a grandstand and a triumphal arch, and committees are busy in all quarters of the city. All the vehicles seen on the streets on the day of the president's return will be decorated with the tri-color, and there will be a gratis performance of "Don Juan" at the opera and free performances at the various theaters. All the cafes and wine shops will be permitted to remain open all night and outdoor balls will be held in every square.

Chinese Smuggling.

Washington, Aug. 30.—The treasury department is conducting an investigation of charges that Chinese are being smuggled into the United States at Port Townsend. The reports upon which the investigation is based were received here about a week ago, and Assistant Secretary Howell immediately ordered Special Agent Cullom to proceed to Port Townsend. The report indicated that the Chinese had made use of forged certificates, but no charges were made against the customs officials at Port Townsend, except by implication. Owing to the friction that has been caused between officials of the treasury department and the department of justice over the methods of enforcing the Chinese exclusion acts, the secretary of the treasury and the attorney general will this week issue a joint circular to immigration inspectors and United States attorneys and marshals, instructing them in the future not to arrest Chinese whose papers give them prima facie right to admission until they reach their ultimate destinations in the United States. Heretofore they have been arrested as soon as they crossed the border, and when taken before United States commissioners were frequently discharged despite the protests of the inspectors. It is believed that if they are not arrested until they reach their destination the chances of collusion between magistrates and those interested in getting Chinamen illegally into the country will be reduced to a minimum.

By Kerosene Route.

Tampa, Fla., Aug. 30.—Marie, the 14-year-old daughter of Mrs. Frances Valdez of Port Tampa City, went into the kitchen to start a fire yesterday afternoon. She poured on kerosene and instantly there was a deafening explosion, followed by the girl's agonizing cries as she ran from the room on fire. Mrs. Valdez at once went to her daughter's assistance. While she was attempting to extinguish the flames her own clothes caught fire and the two ran screaming from the house. Both were burned to a crisp. The house caught fire from the flames and was destroyed. A small boy was burned in the house. His body has not been recovered. The fire spread rapidly, and five houses owned by the Plant Investment company were burned, there being no fire protection. The department from Port Tampa turned out, but could do no good, there being no water.

Murderer Confesses.

Charleston Aug. 30.—Christopher Slack, now serving a term in the penitentiary for burglary, has confessed that about two years ago he and about half a dozen others met a pedlar, John Wiseman, on the road and killed him for his money, getting in all $85 in cash and other valuables. They burned the flesh off the bones and then buried them. Slack made the confession under the impression that the murder was about to get out and he would be hanged. He turned state's evidence to save himself. Officers have gone up the river to arrest the persons named by Slack as accomplices.

Cisneros Case.

Havana, Aug. 30.—It is asserted here that it was the intention of Captain General Weyler, as the result of quiet and friendly influence on the part of Consul General Lee, to issue an order dismissing the case of Evangelina Cossio Cisneros in a short time, but in view of the publicity given the case and the many contradictory assertions made in regard to it the captain general has decided to postpone action for the present. The military commander of the Isle of Pines recently stated that many of the statements made with reference to Senorita Cisneros were without foundation, and that, so far as he could judge, no extreme sentence would be imposed upon her.

Miners' Families Starving.

Nasonville, O., Aug. 30.—The destitution among miners here is very great. Mayor Buckley says 1260 persons, the entire mining population of the town, have absolutely nothing to eat, and 100 of these are sick. In this immediate vicinity there are 7000 destitute people, a large number of whom re children. Local charity has helped them till its means are gone. Gardens supplied the wants of these people until recently, but that resource is now exhausted. Relief committees have been appointed for the entire district, but they are powerless on account of the lack of supplies. A citizens special committee is exerting itself to secure temporary relief.

Greek Question.

Athens, Aug. 30.—The government is waiting the result of the appeal made to the chamber of deputies last Monday for a vote of confidence before replying to the note of the powers. Some apprehension is felt that a cabinet crisis may occur, but should a vote be obtained the government will indicate its readiness to appropriate the tobacco and stamp revenues as a gurantee for an indemnity loan, and it readiness also to agree to the appointment of the ministers of the powers in Athens alone to control the revenues.

CUT IN ABDOMEN.

Thomas Ney Fatally Stabbed by Thomas Donahue at Waterville.

Waterville, Me., Aug. 30.—Thomas Ney, a native of Providence, was fatally stabbed by Thomas Donahue of Massachusetts on Saturday night at Albert Simpson's, on the Vassalboro road to this city, there being present some 20 men who are employed at the Vassalboro woolen mills. Donahue escaped to the woods. Deputy Sheriff Getchell, with a number of others, is makin a search for him.

The party was drinking in the rear of the store. Donahue wanted to fight Benjamin Callberg, and, drawing a jackknike attacked him just as Ney entered the door. Ney endeavored to separate the pair, when he in turn was struck, receiving a jab in the centre of the abdomen, which penetrated his bowels. Some person or persons them grabbed him and threw him through a back window, breaking sash and glass, Ney landing on the brass out side.

In the scuffle which ensued, Pat Finnegan received a slash in his back, arm and breast, Billy Crawford a cut on the wrist, Ed Gordon was slashed in several places, and then Jim Carruthers struck Donohue down, knocking the knife from his hand, but not before he received a long cut on the side of the face.

ASSASSIN ESCAPED.

Burton L. Hotchkiss Shot While Playing With His Child.

Killingsworth, Conn., Aug. 30.—Sheriff Brown and State Attorney Murdock spent the greater part of yesterday investigating the brutal and cold-blooded murder of Burton L. Hotchkiss of Rockland, who was shot while playing with his child. The assassin fired through the window. No clew upon which an arrest might be based was discovered.

The widow of the murdered man is not certain that she saw two men running away from the house just after the shot that killed her husband was fired, and is inclined to think there was only one. She stated to Sheriff Brown that, owing to a family feud, her husband and a man named George Goodale of South Farms, a suburb of Middletown, had some trouble about two years ago in which Goodale was worsted, and that Goodale at that time told her he would some day shoot her husband. Sheriff Brown followed up this clew and learned that Goodale spent Friday in Durham and arrived at his home in South Farms at 6 o'clock in the evening, and was only away 10 minutes after that during the night.

A peculiar circumstance recalled by this clue is the fact that about two years ago Goodale was alleged to have shot a man named Kelly at South Farms in much the same manner that Hotchkiss met his death, using a shotgun and shooting through a window. Kelly was not seriously injured, and when the case was heard in the superior court Goodale was discharged for lack of evidence. Sheriff Brown attaches little importance to these facts and does not believe that Goodale is in any way connected with the murder, but said he would further investigate Goodale's whereabouts on the night of the murder.

Salem Startled.

Salem, Mass., Aug. 30.—About 9:30 o'clock Saturday night a blinding flash of light, followed by two loud explosions, one directly after the other, caused considerable fright and much speculation among the residents of Wenham, Hamilton and Asbury Grove. The occurrence could not be accounted for and the mystery was not solved until yesterday. Yesterday morning, when John H. Butman, who controls the boating privilege at Idlewood lake, reached his house he found that a floating wharf and three boats had been literally blown to pieces with dynamite. Mr. Butman is more or less at a loss to know who could have perpetrated the deed, but as a building belonging to him was burned a few weeks ago under suspicious circumstances it seems to be evident that he has an enemy somewhere. Idlewood lake is about a mile from the Methodist camp at Asbury grove, and is freely patronized by camp meeting attendants and cottagers who live in the grove during the summer.

Shooting Accident.

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 30.—Frederick McDougall of South Manchester died at the Sacred Heart hospital yesterday from the effects of a shooting accident, which occurred Saturday night. McDougall, with two companions, George and Joseph Gabriel, were hunting eagles on an island in the Merrimack river, when George Gabriel's gun became accidentally discharged and the shot took effect in McDougall's right leg. He died from the loss of blood. McDougall was employed as a loom fixer in the Amoskeag mills. He was 35 years old, and leaves a widow and one child.

Double Drowning.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 30.—A double drowning occurred at Flax pond yesterday, the victims being Thomas Hayden, 32 years of age, a bartender, and Nicholas Gabarino, an Italian, residing on Barret street, Boston, both employed in D. J. Hayden's saloon in this city. These men, in company with Thomas Walsh of this city went to the pond and engaged a rowboat. When they were about 200 feet from the landing the attempted to change seats and the boat tippled over, throwing them all into the water. Walsh managed to swim ashore, but the other two men went to the bottom.

Attleboro Man Killed.

Attleboro, Mass., Aug. 30.—Frank Fontneau, a jeweler, living at 65 Carpenter street, was killed in the tracks of the Pawtucket and North Attleboro electric road about midnight Saturday night. He had evidently collided with some unknown wheelman, and being knocked senseless up on the track, was struck by the last car from Pawtucket for North Attleboro.

Missing From Home.

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 30.—Mrs. Minnie Gosselin, 34 years old, of 181 Hanover street, has been missing from home since last Friday night. She leaves three children without a protector, the oldest being 14 years old and the youngest a child of 2. The police are trying to find her.

Michael and Lesna to Race.

Boston, Aug. 30.—Lucien Lesna, the French rider, who cut down the 25-mile paced record at Charles River park on Saturday, has been matched for 25 miles with Jimmy Michael, the Welsh wonder, for Labor day at Charles River park.

WEEKLY CROP REPORT

Tobacco Suffered From Unfavorable Weather All the Season.

Potato Yield Is Light and of Poor Quality.

Fruit Also Injured---Corn Still Unripened Haying Completed.

Boston, Aug. 31.—The weather during the past week, although not exactly ideal, was far more favorable than for a long time past. The week witnessed generally pleasant weather, interrupted briefly by occasional showers in scattered localities. The chief rainfall was on the 24th; this storm was quite general and heavy over the entire district. The day temperatures were, as a rule, warm, but not excessively so, and the nights were too cool for successful growth.

Special reports concerning the tobacco crop have been received, and indicate as follows: The crop has suffered greatly from the unfavorable weather ever since it became well started. In the Connecticut river valley of Massachusetts the crop is now mostly cut, where it is worth cutting. A large acreage will be left uncut, and on all low lying land the yield is much below normal, while on higher land some good to extra crops have been harvested.

In the tobacco district of Connecticut the recent fair weather has been utilized by the growers, but the crop is spoken of generally as poor, notwithstanding an unusually large increase in acreage over last year. Early set pieces have made fair growth, and late set pieces and reset plants are small, topping out low, with small number of leaves. Cutting is well advanced and with another week of sunshine the harvest will be made. The entire crop is estimated to be about two-thirds of ordinary, and is of a yellowish color.

Poor reports are also at hand from the cranberry district of Massachusetts, one correspondent stating that the berries do not pay for raising. Picking has already begun, but the crop is light and of inferior quality.

Maine.

The potato crop will evidently be almost a total failure; in some sections not more than enough for domestic purposes will be sound enough to dig. The haying season is practically finished, with a good to excellent crop secured in favored localities. Corn is picking up a little; it is beginning to ripen in southern sections, but not with well filled ears; this crop is immensely dependent upon the character of September weather. Considerable grain is going for fodder on account of lodging; early sown that did not lodge is heavy, late sown is badly rusted. Rust is striking beans. Apples very small and poor.

New Hampshire.

The last four days have improved corn, but it continues to grow foliage and the grain part will be very light; many correspondents doubt its ripening. Potatoes are being dug, but rot and rust have doomed the crop and the expectation is for not more than half the usual yield. A light second growth of grass is indicated in Sullivan county; on the other hand a good second crop seems certain in Cheshire, Hillsboro and Merrimac counties. Grain harvesting is in active progress. Apples small and scattering; peaches light; grapes nearly a failure; pears generally abundant.

Vermont.

Weather continues too cool for corn; its progress is slow; much of it will require 10 days or two weeks to place it beyond injury by frost; the ears are not filling large, and the crop is bound to be below average in any event. Ensilage corn is now being cut. Oats mostly harvested. Potatoes very small. Apples few, but plenty of pears; a few varieties of plums have endured the wet and fruited well.

Massachusetts.

The progress of the season as indicated by the coloring of the Concord grape shows that the present is five days later than the average for 41 years—(Dr. J. Fisher, Fitchburg). Blight and rot have placed the potato crop the lowest for years. Considerable corn will mature if frost holds off, but at the best the crop will be light; sllage is the best use for it this season. Market garden stuff, such as tomatoes, cucumbers, squash, beans, etc., are reported as light; also onions. Rowen has come to an unusually good growth, and will in part make up the loss on hay. Pears and plums are abundant; apples the opposite. Fall seeding is being done in Middlesex county.

Rhode Island.

Digging of late potatoes is going on, with general complaint of rot and small supply. Rowen is a fine crop on many meadows, but some of it has been "caught" and will make poor hay. Corn is about the same condition as elsewhere. Turnips looking well. A week of fine, dry weather would result in a great and general improvement in crops.

Connecticut.

The rot which earlier seriously affected peaches, plums and grapes has mostly subsided, so that fruit prospects are on the mend. Late varieties of corn will require from three weeks to a month to mature, and unless frosts are delayed very little will ripen sufficiently for seed purposes. Fall grain and forage crops are in good shape and feed for stock will undoubtedly be plentiful. Potatoes are a discouraging crop. Onions blighted somewhat; buckwheat and turnips promising. Plowing for winter rye has commenced in the extreme south, but sowing will not commence before Sept. 15.

VETERANS AT THE WEIRS.

Opening of Twenty-First Annual Encampment of New Hampshire Soldiers.

The Weirs, N. H., Aug. 31.—The 21st annual encampment of the New Hampshire veteran soldiers began at The Weirs today. The hotels are resplendent with flags, bunting and streamers. Corporal James Tanner and wife and H. L. Johnson and wife of Washington, guests of the association, arrived yesterday, the latter being the historian of the Sixteenth New Hampshire regiment. Tomorrow will be G. A. R. day and Thursday will be governor's day. The congressional delegation is expected to be present and be among the speakers at the campfire, held on Thursday afternoon. The camp will be under charge of Charles E. Buzzell of Lakeport, who is camp commandant; Colonel John C. Linehan will be musical instructor. The firing of the salutes morning and evening will be under the direction of Major S. S. Piper of the First New Hampshire battery.

The New Hampshire Veteran association camp is named in honor of William Ide Brown, major of the Eighteenth New Hampshire volunteers, who fell in the battle of Fort Stedman in front of Petersburg, Va., March 29 1865, being one of the last of the officers of the state who gave his life for the preservation of the Union. Major Brown was a native of Attleboro, Mass., but came to Penacook when 4 years old. When the call for volunteers came he began recruiting for the Ninth regiment, New Hampshire volunteers, and on the organization of the regiment was commissioned as second licutenant. Promotion came in due time, and in Nov. 1, 1863, he received his commission as adjutant, remaining in that position until the fall of 1864, when he accepted the position of major of the Eighteenth regiment. The Grand Army post at Penacook bears his name.

ROBERTS-PATTEN CASE.

Courtroom at Bath Packed to Suffocation. Yesterday's Sensations.

Bath, Me., Aug. 31.—The third day of the Roberts hearing for the custody of the 5-year-old twins was resumed in the supreme court yesterday morning. The courtroom was literally packed with sectators, and standing room in the corridors and ante-rooms was at a premium. Many ladies stood through the long session of the afternoon, and it was almost impossible for the court officers to move about from place to place to attend to their duties. The interest in the case is intense.

In sensations the case has abounded yesterday. It was a dramatic scene yesterday forenoon when Hon. John O. Patten rose in his seat during the cross-examination of his wife by Counsel Newell, and, raising his right arm aloft, asked the court that his wife be protected from the "brutality of that man," referring to Mr. Newell. Some of the testimony yesterday was in regard to the alleged criminality of Mr. Patten and Mrs. Roberts.

During the day there were a number of attempted demonstrations on the part of the spectators, and at one time there was such an outburst of applause that Judge Whitehouse said that if it was repeated he would have the courtroom cleared by the officers.

Embezzlement Charged.

Boston, Aug. 31.—On information presented by Henry V. Cunningham, counsel for William H. Baker, vice president of the Postal Telegraph company, and others, who hold 1000 shares of stock in the United Telegram company, Judge Brown granted a warrant in the municipal court yesterday for the arrest of Robert Franklin Straine, president, and Charles A. Lampson, treasurer, of the latter company. The warrant alleges "conspiracy to commit larceny to the extent of $73,731.17." President Straine was arrested and taken to police headquarters. Treasurer Lamson got word that the warrant had been issued and secreted himself until bondsmen could be found. The bondsmen appeared at headquarters last evening at 9 o'clock. Ten minutes Mr. Lamson surrendered himself to Chief Inspector Watts. President Straine had not obtained bail at an early hour this morning.

Thieves' Harvest.

Portland, Me., Aug. 31.—Marshal Sylvester has sent a schedule of stolen articles to chiefs of police throughout the New England states, which shows that thieves reaped a rich harvest in Portland during the New England fair week. The biggest haul was made at a hotel where they rifled several rooms and secured over $600 worth of jewelry. Several private residences were also entered and in nearly every instance the loss was considerable.

Ministers' Institute Opened.

Lewiston, Me., Aug. 31.—The ministers' institute opened in Roger Williams' hall at Bates' college yesterday and will continue in session until Tuesday, Sept. 7. The session was largely attended, but owing to President Chase's absence his lecture on "Self-Direction" was postponed, and Dr. Howe delivered an address on "The Modern Minister." President Butler of Colby, Professor Anthony and others will give lectures during the meetings.

Killed by Vigilantes.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 31.—An unknown man has been shot on the Skaguay trail by a committee of vigilantes and his bones are now rotting on a pile of rocks within a few rods of the pass. This news was brought down by the steamer Utopia, which arrived yesterday from Skaguay. The Utopia left Skaguay Aug. 24. The story in general is all that can be learned, the details being unknown among the Utopia's six passengers. Some time ago a sack of flour was stolen. Suspicion pointed to a man who was encamped near the summit. A committee of six was chosen to ferret out and punish the thief. These men went to the tent of the suspected man and found the missing sack. The man begged for mercy, but the committee, convinced of his guilt, decreed that he be killed. The man was dragged from the tent and tied up tightly to a pole. The committeemen stood off a short distance and shot together. The thief's body was pierced with a dozen bullets and he died instantly.

No Contest.

New Orleans, Aug. 31.—Jack Everhard and Kid McPartland fought at catch weights before the St. Bernard Athletic club. Twenty rounds were fought. McPartland displayed the most science, drew blood early, kept pegging away with his left, punishing Everhard and escaping any great damage to himself. But he could not give Everhard enough punishment to put him out. At the end of the 20th round the fight was declared no contest.

More Troops For Cuba.

Madrid, Aug. 31.—At a cabinet council, held yesterday, it was decided to summon the next class of 80,000 reserves, 27,000 of whom will be sent to Cuba and 13,000 to the Philippine islands. The ministers, when questioned, denied that the council was occupied with the subject of colonial reforms or with political questions.

Mrs. John Drew Is Dying.

New York, Aug. 31.—Mrs. John Drew is dying. The veteran actress, who has wooed both tears and laughter from three generations of playgoers, is peacefully passing away at Larchmont, N. Y. The end may come at any moment. Mrs. Drew, who has been spending the summer months at the Bevan house, has for several years been a sufferer from kidney and heart troubles. No immediate alarm was felt until a month ago.

TRIAL OF LUETGERT.

Testimony Begins In Case of Alleged Wife Murderer.

His 12-Year-Old Son Causes a Sensation.

Defendant's Brother-In-Law Was First State Witness.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—The trial of Adolph Luetgert, the sausage marek, for the alleged murder of his wife on May 1, began in earnest yesterday. Two witnesses were examined—Diedrich Bicknese, brother of Mrs. Luetgert, and Louis Luetgert, the 12-year-old son of the accused. The testimony of Bicknese tended in the main to show the alleged indifference of Luetgert to the fate of his wife, and the alleged disinclination to report to the police the matter of her disappearance.

Luetgert was calm and confident looking when brought into court, and he had apparently been greatly refreshed by Sunday's respite from the daily courtroom ordeal.

District State Attorney McEwan formerly opened the case for the state. On the wall close to the jury were hung large maps of the Luetgert sausage factory and the Luetgert home and surroundings.

The first witness called was Diedrich Bicknere, brother of Mrs. Luetgert. He told the jury of his visit to the house of Luetgert May 4 to see his sister. There he met the sausage maker and talked with him for some time before he was informed that Mrs. Luetgert had disappeared. Bicknere said Luetgert told him he did not know what had become of his wife. He had last seen her at 8 o'clock the Saturday evening previous. Luetgert said he did not believe she had gone away with some other man, but thought she had wandered away. The witness said he asked the prisoner what he had done to find his wife and was informed that he had not told the police of her disappearance. Instead, he said, he had paid two private detectives $5 each, and they would do more than the police would accomplish. The witness said Luetgert told him he had not looked to see if his wife had taken any clothing with her except the dress she had on when he last saw her. He had not visited any place or made any inquiries.

Bicknere told his story in a simple, straightforward way that made him an impressive witness.

Louis Luetgert, the 12-year-old son of the accused, followed Bicknese on the witness stand.

Louis Luetgert, who is a remarkably bright lad for his age, caused something of a sensation in concluding his testimony, and it is believed made the counsel for the prosecution regret having placed him on the stand. The boy had already been examined twice as to his knowledge of his mother's disappearance, and in neither case did he refer to having heard his mother about the house after he had been sent to bed.

Yesterday he recounted how he had gone to a circus on the evening of his mother's disappearance. He returned home about 10:30 and found his mother, to whom he described what he had seem at the circus. While engaged in this conversation, he said, his father entered the room and ordered him to bed. Later, he said, he heard his father descending the rear stairs in the direction of the sausage factory. This portion of his testimony was identical with that given at the preliminary hearings but he continued by saying that after he had been asleep for a long time he was suddenly awakened by hearing a rustling of skirts in his bedroom. He called out: "Is that you father?" but his mother's voice answered: "No, it's me."

The lad declared that it was his mother's voice which replied to his query and he soon went to sleep. The state's attorney asked Louis why he had not told this part of his testimony before, and he replied that no one had asked him if he had seen his mother after retiring. The defense refused to cross-examine the boy.

Annual Reunion.

The editor and ladies had the pleasure yesterday of attending the Monmouth California Tourists' reunion at Barnes' cafe, Revere Beach.

After receiving a cordial welcome from Brother E. H. Pierce, of the Revere Journal, and other brothers, who went on the California excursion in 1892, we inspected the new State Bath House.

The Superintendent, Mr. John L. Gilman, very courteously showed the editors and ladies through the building, which they found conveniently fitted up for bathing purposes.

The ladies were much surprised at the facilities for washing, ironing and drying the bathing suits. When they have 4,500 bathers, as on Sunday last, it is no small job to take care of the suits.

After enjoying a fine bath with other members of the association, we went to Barnes' cafe and partook of a first class fish dinner, which was served in good taste.

After partaking of the good things provided on the tables, speeches were in order and other amusements made the day pass most delightful.

CLAIMS DAMAGES.

Henry H. Faxon Injured by the Sewer Construction.

Mention has been made in the LEDGER of wells running dry during the construction of the sewer on the Newcomb street extension, and now it seems that Henry H. Faxon will claim damages for loss of water at the wells and too much water upon his lands. He has written letters to Mayor Adams, Commissioner Knowlton, and also to the Board of Sewer Commissioners, reading as follows:

QUINCY, Aug. 30, 1897.

To the Sewer Commissioners, Quincy, Mass.

GENTLEMEN: This is to notify you that for any damages arising from the pumping of water upon my land, in the construction of the sewer, and indirectly draining the wells upon my estates in that vicinity, I shall hold the city responsible.

Respectfully yours,
HENRY H. FAXON.

An investigation shows that several wells have run dry, which were never dry before, and some of these are a long distance from the work on the sewer, those at the old Spear farm at the corner of Canal and Brackett streets, at the residence of Mr. Cook on Canal street, and at the Wheble estate on Field street.

The work on the Newcomb street extension is practically completed, but an engine is still at work night and day near the foot of Faxon avenue. It has been pumping from 600 to 800 gallons per minute, as much as the average daily consumption of the entire city during some months last year, as shown by the Water Department figures.

Most of this water when pumped flows upon the low lands of Mr. Faxon off Coddington street and he claims the meadow is damaged, and the culvert under Coddington street has been blocked, and it is possible there may be in winter good skating on "the ditches" as years ago.

Mr. Faxon says that damages have been recovered under similar circumstances in other cities, and does not seem to worry over what has been done. If the water comes back into the wells his claim cannot, however, be very large.

Engineer Branch when seen in regard to whether it was the custom for cities when building sewers to pay damages because of the drying up wells and for pumping water onto property, said that there was a legal point as to whether or no cities were liable, but it was a fact that there were cases where damages had been paid, and cases where damages had not been paid. The Quincy board had the question under consideration but had reached no decision as yet. In regard to Mr. Faxon's case he had allowed them to go upon his property and had raised no objection.

Where the sewer effected Mr. Faxon was on the Coddington street end. As a matter of fact this section was completed and an inspector went through it this morning to see that it was all right. The pumping there would probably stop today.

Birthday at the Park.

Gertie the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Cleaves, of East Elm avenue, celebrated the tenth anniversary of her birthday on Saturday. Her little friends to the number of eleven met at her home and had a very enjoyable time. Games of various kinds were indulged in during the afternoon. At 4 o'clock ice cream, cake and fruit was served, after which all went home happy. Miss Gertrude was the recipient of many useful and pretty presents. Those present were: Helen Willett, Helen Saunders, Edith Chapman, Susie Page, Louise Ross, Edna Mountain, Bula Loud, Ethel Marr, Anna Bell Marr, Nettie McCloud, Rena Grant.

Little Peter First.

The Little Peter, Thordis and Arab III were the winners of first prizes in the open regatta at Provincetown on Monday. In the first class the Asahi was first on actual time, but was 4 seconds below on corrected time. The Addie and Eclipse were far behind. The Privateer was second in the second class, and had her match in Hanly's, Thordis, which has won the thirteen races in which she has entered this year. The Arawak, Harold, Future and Ichtar were in this class. The order in the third class was Arab III, Nancy Hanks, Hustler, Demon and Gee Whiz.

Our Congressman Abroad.

Congressman Barrows of this district is at the Inter-Parliamentary Conference for International Arbitration in Brussel. He received a warm welcome. In his address upon the affairs of this country he explained why the proposed treaty of arbitration between Great Britan and the United States had not been ratified, and to show that it had the approval of the heads of the nation, said that it was concluded under the presidency of Mr. Cleveland and was warmly commended to the Senate by President McKinley.

CAN THEY CONNECT?

A Question Raised as to Street Railway Location.

There is a difference of opinion between certain members of the City Council and the street railway as to just what the words, "To point of connection," as used in the locations granted by the selectmen in 1888 and now being built upon by the street railway means.

In that grant the vote in relation to the line through Squantum, Farrington street, etc. reads: "Thence along Squantum street to point of connection upon Hancock street."

At that time the tracks on Hancock street opposite Squantum street were on the west side of the street. Since then the location has been changed and the opinion of certain members of the Council is that the street railway have a right to connect with the side of Hancock street at the above point but have no right to go to the centre of Hancock street to connect the tracks.

If this is true then there is a few feet over which the railroad can not build without the Council vote to grant the location over this point.

On the other hand the railroad claims that inasmuch as the original grant reads to point of connection on Hancock street but does not state whether that point of connection shall be on the west or east side, or the centre of the street at this point, they have a right to build to their location in the centre of the street.

It is purely a technical point, but will, if possible, be used by those opposed to the Wollaston loop to prevent the railroad from connecting the two lines.

The City Solicitor will probably be called upon to give his opinion upon this point.

THOUSAND MILE SCHEDULE

Diary of a Bicycle Trip from Quincy to Washington, D. C., and Return.

Mention has been made in the LEDGER of the bicycle trip of Mr. John Wilder to Washington and return, and the daily schedule of the fifty-year-old tourist will be of interests to bicyclist. It is from the Bicycling World:

ILLUMINATION DAY.

Sports, Music, Sailing Parties and Refreshments Today.

A better day for the annual illumination at Houghs Neck than today would be hard to find and the several committees are consequently happy.

The cottagers began a day or two ago to put up their decorations. Quantities of flags and bunting are being used and thousands of lanterns are being placed in position for tonight, and at sundown, or rather at 7 30 when the candles are lighted, the scene may equal previous efforts on the part of the cottagers.

The crowds began to arrive early and every car after 12 o'clock went down loaded. Extra cars will be run later this afternoon and evening and good transportation will be afforded.

First on the programme was the ball game between the Great Hill and the Beach nines. This was an exciting game and was won by the Beach nine by a score of 16 to 12.

While this game was in progress ice cream and cake were furnished to hundreds of children at Cavanagh's hall.

The field and water sports were held shortly after 1 o'clock but the result was not announced in season for today's issue.

The result of the field and water sports will be published in Wednesday's LEDGER, together with a good story of the gala day in general.

Complimentary Party.

Miss Corlew, the popular teacher of dancing, gave a complimentary party on Monday afternoon from three until five to the members of her three classes last winter, and it was a very pleasing reunion for about sixty young people, and was enjoyed quite as much by the fond mammas. The party was in the attractive new hall in the Savings Bank building. Miss Corlew's regular pianist is away, but Miss Richardson was a good substitute, and the young masters and misses participated in the polka glide, two step, waltz, Berlin, galop, caprice, heel and toe polka, minuet, and schottische as though a term was just closing, not having forgotten the steps during the summer. A feature was the German with bon bon favors. "Harvey," Miss Corlew's right hand young man was there of course, and looked out for the wants of all. He also served lemonade with fruit. It was a pretty as well as enjoyaable party, and large classes are assured the coming fall.

Will be 110 Feet Wide.

Monday the board of street commissioners of Boston laid out Columbia road from Franklin park to Marine park. This will complete the magnificent chain of parkways which now encircles the city. Columbia road is at present a narrow country highway, beginning opposite Franklin park on Blue Hill avenue and known as Columbia street. It extends to Boston street, the latter extending to Edward Everett square or what is popularly known as "The Five Corners." From here the road extends over the Dorchester way road over the tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, and runs parallel to the road to Mercer street to East 9th street to Marine park.

People will talk . . about the things that interest them, and it follows, therefore, that if a merchant wishes his establishment to be favorably mentioned he must contrive to interest his patrons to some extent in himself and his affairs.

We have followed that policy for years—and with success.

We realize fully that the best advertising in the world is of a personal character—what one satisfied customer tells another.

It has been our aim, therefore, to make people talk about Boston Branch variety, Boston Branch prices, Boston Branch promptness, Boston Branch enterprise, Boston Branch reliability, Boston Branch cleanliness and a few other Boston Branch characteristics.

The result is that we practically do the grocery business of Quincy.

Of course in the small space allotted to us in the Ledger it is not possible to talk about many of the goods we have to offer. It needs a personal interview to give an idea of the extent of our stock and variety carried.

STRICTLY PURE EXTRACTS are something every housewife wants to be sure of. We will not sell at any price any but what are pure, preferring not to sell even at a cheap price any other.

The same applies to SPICES. We will pay a liberal reward to anyone finding any adulteration in our spices.

This the season when SARDINES, OLIVES, SALAD OILS, SALAD DRESSINGS, etc., are much used. Look at our stock if you want any of these goods.

TALK OF THE TOY.

Over 600 passengers were conveyed to Squantum, Sunday.

Miss Mabel Drew of Walker street is spending a week in New York.

The Tubular Rivet and Stud Co. are running three evenings a week. Orders ahead demand it.

Mrs. G. A. Waterhouse of Squantum street has chaperoned a few young ladies of Atlantic to Onset, for a few days.

The boys at the Wollaston Yacht club are making great preparations for their annual cruise which begins Saturday.

One of the horses of Austin and Winslow's express was killed by order of Inspector Johnson on Monday. It had the glanders.

Politics have begun to warm up a little in Ward Two and it looks now as though there would be a hot time in this ward this fall.

Mrs. George A. Sidelinger and children arrive home today from Middleport, N. Y., where Mrs. Sidelinger has been visiting her mother the past five weeks.

Mr. G. Mayer, vice president of the Cincinnatti Milling Machine Co., has returned to his Ohio home, after a two weeks' visit with his brother V. A. Mayer of Wollaston Park.

Mrs. E. A. Mansfield, Miss May Scates, Master Carle and Miss Clara Mansfield of Davis street, Wollaston Park, returned Monday from a two months' visit at Gorham, N. H.

Masters George and Myron Stebbins of Broomfield street, Wollaston Park, tell the boys that Woodstock Valley, Conn., is the boss place to spend a vacation. Their rosy cheeks confirms it.

Mr. George A. Evans, engineer on the steam yacht Illawara, with Miss Green and Miss Trask of Boston as guests, called at the Wollaston Yacht club float, Sunday, on the steamers handsome vapor launch.

The grounds about the residence of Mr. John Given on Hamilton street, are kept the nicest and look the handsomest of any in the Park. Mr. and Mrs. Given are both experts in the art of land-scape gardening.

BAD BRITISH BREAD.

HEAVY LOAVES NOT THE FAULT OF AMERICAN FLOUR.

We Will Feed England In Spite of English Criticism—The Lancet's Argument Against Foreign Foods Will Not Affect the Sale of Our Wheat.

The task or privilege of feeding England during the next 12 months will fall, as is already widely known, chiefly upon America. The Russian wheat crop is a failure, and export of grain has been forbidden by the czar. The market for the enormous superfluous yield of American cereals is thus provided by one of nature's fortunate compensations, and all concerned are happy or should be. It is curious that just at this moment a new warning or argument against the use of foreign grown food should be put forward by that acknowledged authority upon all questions affecting the physical well being of man, The Lancet. Its assertion amounts to this—that the healthiest food for any people is the product of its local or native soil.

The average ignorant layman is no doubt of the impression that wheat is wheat and beef is beef the world over. Far from it, says a correspondent of The Lancet, whose views are indorsed by the editor of the great organ of medical science in an interesting article. It is, of course, well understood that climatic conditions have a great deal to do with the suitability of food. The appetite for fat in the arctic and for fruit in the tropics affords the commonest example.

"The same principle," the editor of The Lancet points out, "is illustrated even in the comparatively narrow range of climatic conditions in this country. Who has the same inclination to eat a large, underdone, juicy steak in the broiling days of our short summer as in winter? We rather have recourse to salads, fruits, vegetables, and if to meat at all it is in sparing quantity and generally cold. But, as an agricultural correspondent has most ably and pertinently pointed out to us in a recent very interesting communication, the subject may be pushed a step further and considered from a point of view which in its general bearings on the question of food supply is of unquestionable importance. As he has observed, the same plant varies in its feeding properties when grown at a different altitude or on a particular soil or in a different climate. In other words, the nutritive value of a plant or its fruit, be it seed or leaf, is influenced by soil and climate. Herbage composed of grasses and clovers—i. e., pasture—has a marked influence upon the health, development and early maturity of sheep and cattle according to geographical position and geological character of the soil. Thus 'storeland' and 'feeding land' are terms used to express the relative character of the soil, and, as our correspondent, who is a farmer, points out, these varying conditions have a well known influence in altering or modifying the type and character of breed or pedigree. Is it a design in nature, he asks, that plants growing in any particular country shall be more suitable food for animals in that particular country than foreign food or that grown in a different country? As an illustration, linseed or flaxseed produced in one country is full of oil, and in another the proportion of oil is distinctly less. A sample of seed in one country, again, is rich in mucus, while in another it contains very little mucilage, the difference in this respect in Russia, Indian and English seeds being considerable. Again, he asks, does Assam tea afford a more healthful beverage to the Chinaman than Indian tea? Yet the character of the two decoctions made from these respective teas is quite different.

"To come nearer home and to touch upon the economic side of the question as closely affecting our own agricultural interests, is English wheat made into bread a better food for the people in this country than bread made from foreign flour? The baker selects foreign flour because the resulting loaf is lighter, and the flour will take up more water, and a sack will yield a greater number of loaves than an English sack. There could hardly be opened up for discussion a more interesting phase of the subject, and our correspondent has written very pertinently upon a very important question. It is just possible, on studying and reflecting upon the issues he has raised, that another rational and powerful argument in favor of the consumption of home grown food may be found."

The Lancet's argument may be "rational and powerful," but I do not believe it will diminish the sale of American wheat in England by a single bushel during the coming autumn and winter. The point incidentally brought out that foreign flour will yield more bread, weight for weight, than English flour is quite potent enough to decide the question in every bakery in England. If The Lancet would devote itself to an agitation of the question how to make bread with any flour, it might accomplish a great and glorious reform in this baker ridden country. If a more discouraging, unappetizing object can be produced as a product of the culinary art than the English "household loaf," as it is called, I have failed to discover it.—London Cor. New York Sun.

Hatpins Must Go.

Owing to the fact that there have been two cases recently of persons having their sight destroyed by the enormous hatpins that are now worn by women, the newspapers have started a crusade against the fashion.

A man who was riding in an omnibus had one of his eyes pierced by a pin in the hat of a woman sitting next to him, her head being thrown against his face by a sudden jolt of the vehicle. In the other case a girl was blinded by a pin in the hat of a companion with whom she was playing.

TODAY'S COURT.

Jeremiah Desmond was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Patrick J. Whalan was sentenced to two months in the house of correction for drunkenness at Randolph.

James Lee was fined $7 for drunkenness at Randolph.

The continued case of Edward Sullivan for drunkenness was called and he paid a fine of $5.

James D. Taber was arraigned for permitting Joseph A. Delory, a minor, to play billiards at his rooms in Weymouth without a permit from his parents. Delory testified that he was 16 years of age and that his father had not given a permit. He had, however, written a permit and signed his father's name to it, which he gave Mr. Taber, telling him that his father had written it. The complaint alleged that the boy played there Thursday night Aug. 26, but there was no evidence to that effect. Mr. Taber and his witness testified that the Delory boy gave him a written permit to play, which the boy said his father had written. The court continued the case until Saturday.

The liquors seized from Richard McKee's Hingham's express were forfeited. Appealed.

The continued case of Timothy Murphy for the illegal sale of intoxicating liquor at Quincy was heard. This is the case where Murphy is alleged to have been holding parties in an unoccupied house at West Quincy where fifty cents entitled one to go in and dance and have beer.

A large number of witnesses were examined upon both sides, after which the case was continued until Saturday for judgment.

S. Y. C Social.

A few members of the Squantum Yacht club held a sociable at the residence of Wm. H. Dickenson, Norfolk Downs, on Thursday evening of last week. A jolly good time was enjoyed. Mr. Frank E. Bugbee sang numerous coon songs. Games were indulged in throughout the evening and a collation was served. Among those present were: Mr. Ham Flood, G. S. Hallowell, Capt. J. G. Brown, John H. Osborne, Guy G. Chadbourne, Benj. Sargent, Geo. H. Varney, W. S. Dunham, John Butters, Frank E. Bugbee.

Republicans Meet.

The Republican City Committee met Monday evening, and selected Wednesday Sept. 22, as the date for the caucuses to choose delegates to the various conventions.

It was voted to hold caucuses in all wards under the Australian system which has recently been in use.

Headquarters have been secured on the second floor of the building between the Kincaide block and the new Music hall.

Granite Cutters Out.

About 100 cutters, employed by the Smith Granite Co., in Westerly, R. I., went on strike Monday afternoon on account of difference in opinion in regard to cutting a stone. The work of C. J. Murphy, secretary of the local union, was called into question and the strike resulted. It is thought the trouble will be adjusted soon.

Labor Conference.

St. Louis, Aug. 31.—The conference of abor leaders which began here yesterday had a busy day, and the end is in sight. What the conference has accomplished, if anything, is in doubt. It is not believed that the leaders have attained any definite result, and, in fact, the president of one of the national organizations said last night that the failure of the conference was a foregone conclusion. Mr. Ratchford's plan of petitioning President McKinley to convene congress in extra session to enact measures providing for the settlement of the present labor difficulties or, as he put it "To define the rights of citizens, if any," did not meet with the approval he had hoped for, and it is not believed that the idea will be incorporated in the platform.

Speedy English Rider.

London, Aug. 31.—The bicycle race for the gold vase which was begun at Catford on Saturday, when A. E. Walters beat Stocks by one mile in six hours' riding, continued last evening. Last night Walters did the first 33 miles in 1 hour 3 min. 58 3-5 seconds, still breaking the world's record, and repeatedly lapping Stocks. Walters covered 60 miles and 770 yards in 2 hours and 88 miles 905 yards in 3 hours. This ended the second stage of the competition. The score for the nine hours was: Walters, 251 miles and 1685 yards; Stocks, 246 miles and 220 yards. Walters did not stop at the end of the nine hours, but continued riding in an attempt to break the record for 100 miles, which he succeeded in doing, covering the distance in 3 hours 25 min. 53 3-5 secs.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all uffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. G. Durgin.

A KNOTTY QUESTION.

Section 22 In Tariff Gives Treasury Department Great Concern.

It Involves a 10 Per Cent Discriminating Duty.

Problem Arises From Slight Change In Language of Former Laws.

Washington, Aug. 31.—The startling news is given out that a far more important and irksome task devolves upon the United States attorney general than that of deciding in regard to a discriminating duty on goods conveyed merely through adjoining countries into the United States. It is whether such 10 per cent duty shall, by the terms of the new tariff, be laid upon imported goods brought in foreign vessels to American ports in cases where no expressed treaty stipulations exist to determine the matter. The consequences dependent upon Mr. McKenna's decision on this particular question, it will be readily seen from the subjoined account, are of almost thrilling interest to the world of trade.

This other question has almost escaped public notice, but it is giving the treasury great concern. It was referred to the attorney general by Secretary Gage for interpretation along with the other features of section 22 which are in controversey. It involves the question of whether the discriminating duty of 10 per cent does not apply to all goods imported in foreign vessels landing at United States ports, which are not exempt from discriminating tonnage taxes by express treaty stipulations.

The question arises from the language of previous provisions in section 22, which, if made intentionally, would seem to indicate that it was designed to discriminate against three-fourths of all the big trans-Atlantic and trans-Pacific steamship companies as welt as many South American lines.

In all previous laws the section corresponding to section 22 of the new law, after providing for the 10 per cent discriminating duty on goods imported in vessels not flying the United States flag, provides that this discriminating duty shall not apply to goods wares or merchandise which shall be imported in vessels not of the United States, entitled at the time of such importation "by treaty or act of congress," to be entered in ports of the United States on the payment of the same duties as shall be then payable on goods, etc. imported in vessels of the United States

The new law omits "acts of congress," and substitutes "convention," so as to make it read not exempt by "treaty or convention."

It is in pursuance of an act of congress (section 4228) that presidents in the past have by proclamation exempted the vessels of many countries from this discriminating duty. The question now before the attorney general is whether the omission of the words "act of congress" does not repeal section 4228. If it does it will strike a tremendous blow at all foreign lines now exempt by presidential proclamation and confine the exemption strictly to the vessels of countries with which we have treaties granting such exemptions.

The vessels of countries which could not be affected by an adverse decision, that is, countries with which we have treaties covering this specific subject, are: Sweden, Germany, Austria ,Brazil, Denmark, Italy, Greece, Chili, Argentina, Hati, Hawaii, Holland, Russia and Turkey. Several of these countries have no merchant marine salling to American ports.

The countries now enjoying exemption from the discriminating duties, either wholly or in part, under the proclamations issued in pursuance of section 4228 of the revised statutes, are: Great Britain, France, Spain, Portugal, Japan, Nicaragua and Mexico. Of course the largest class of vessels which might be affected are the English lines which come to the United States, not only from British ports, but from the Oriental countries, as India, South America, and in fact from every country on the globe.

If British vessels should be thrown back on their treaty exemptions, which are contained in the treaty of Washington, the goods of all British vessels sailing from the ports, except the territorial possessions in Europe, would have to pay the additional 10 per cent tax. More than that, all goods shipped in vessels not the products or manufactures of Great Britain's European possessions, even though shipped from English, Scotch or Irish ports, would be subject to the discriminating duty, as the treaty gives exemption only to such goods.

An adverse decision would, therefore, affect the Cunard, Anchor, Arrow, Trans-Atlantic and other trans-Atlantic lines to that extent, the French line, the Phelps line, running to Mediterranean ports; the two Portugese freight lines (except products of Portugal), several of the South American lines, including what are known as the Green line of steamers; the Japanese, the Canadian Pacific and the Oriental and Occident steamers on the Pacific, besides hundreds of tramp steamers.

A curious question would arise in the case of the French lines were an adverse decision rendered. Before General Grant issued his proclamation, exempting the cargoes of French vessels by our treaty with France, they paid a discriminating duty of $3.75 per ton, and cargoes imported into France by vessels of the United States paid a discriminating duty of 20 francs per ton. If section 4228 is repealed, then the question would arise as to whether a 10 per cent discriminating duty should be imposed or the $3.75 per ton provided for by the treaty.

Should the attorney general decide that section 4228 is repealed by the new law, of course the steamers of the several lines plying between the United States and foreign ports, which might be affected, could escape injury by a change of nationality and flag to that of Belgium or Holland or some other country whose treaty gives them full exemption.

The Refractometer

Is the latest invention for testing the sight. In the hands of a competent refractionist, obstinate cases, which would require an hour to test by the old method, and exhaust the patience of both optician and patient, can be diagnosticated in a few minutes. Read what prominent occulists say concerning it:

CAMBRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1896.

I am so far well pleased with De Zeng's Refractometer, and when I become its full master I expect to find it still more useful. I find it of especial value in diagnosis when I am uncertain as to the trouble—whether 'tis defective refraction or obscure nervous conditions.

F. E. LEWIS, M. D.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18, 1897.

I consider De Zeng's Refractometer indispensable to every refractionist desiring full knowledge of his cases without the use of mydriatics, and after having used the instrument for nearly one year cannot recollect a single instance in which it did not give me perfect results, and save both the patient and myself much time.

SKAGUAY JAM BROKEN.

Indescribable Mass of Humanity Moving. Alaska's Boom Town.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 31.—The following letter was received per steamer Utopia yesterday:

Skaguay, Aug. 23.—The jam is broken on the Skaguay trail. A number of outfits have gotten over and there is a steady stream of moving humanity, mixed up in an almost indescribable mass of horses of all sizes, ages and conditions; mules, steers, milch cows, goats and dogs, also vehicles of every kind and description. Three steamers are now unloading on lighters, which will convey the freight as near the shore as possible before it is unloaded on the waons or anchored above high tide.

The Utopia is unloading at the only wharf, a very shaky structure. Two pile drivers are at wark on another dock which is intended to be a substantial affair. A small mill got up steam for the first time this morning. Rough lumber is worth $27 per 1000, but it cannot be got half fast enough. The city of tents is not being displayed, but reinforced by a city of "shacks" of all sizes and degrees. Skaguay is the boom town of Alaska. Every man whose heart failed him when he experienced the first hardship has turned township boomer. Four weeks ago Skaguay was not known, today there are not less than 4000 people, in addition to those on the ships in the harbor. They have surveyed the town site and the first comers had first choice. The United States commissioner is using some kind of a certificate, fee $5, surveyor another $5, then the squatter sticks up his tent, shack or corral, and is ready to skin th first tenderfoot that comes along. Transfers by quit claims are quite common, and as high as $200 has been paid for a choice location.

Skaguay has all the useful accompaniments of a frontier mining town. Dance halls, roulette, faro, stud poker and crap find devotees.

There is no danger of a famine here, though there may be shortages in certain lines. There are not less than 2000 horses at work on the Skaguay trail, but it is hard to get anyone to contract to get you over the summit. The packers at this end do not like to contract farther than the first hill, six miles out.

At Dyea the Indians are moving the freight in an almost unbroken stream from Dyea to Lake Linderman, and it is not much trouble to contract to ge one's entire outfit over at one trip for 20 to 35 cents ner pound.

No one should come expecting to get over this fall at less than three rates, and none should bring boats.

Cleveland could not hit Nichols yesterday. That was the real secret of Boston's victory. Powell was batted for three runs in the first inning, but after that he kept the Boston's well in hand. Ray Making Good Time.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Captain Ray, who was sent to the Klondyke region to make an inspection for the war department, is making excellent time on his journey. Yesterday Acting Adjutant General Breck received the following telegram from him, dated Unalaska, Aug. 16, via Seattle, 30th: "I report my arrival here and departure in two hours for St. Michaels. The steamer Cleveland carries 168 passengers and provisions for 3300 persons for one year. They expect to land one-half of the provisions at Circle City and above before the river closes."

KOHAT PASS CLOSED.

Strong Force of Afridis Holds It---The British Advance Checked.

Peshawur, Aug. 31.—A strong force of Afridis, it is just anounced, has closed the Kohat pass, and, therefore, the order for the advance of a column of British troops through that pass has been countermanded. With the Khyber and Kohat passes in the hands of the enemy the gravity of the situation increases.

It transpires that several of the native officers at Fort Lundi-Kotal showed the utmost loyalty and valor when that post was attacked. One of them, who received a bullet wound in his shoulder, continued, despite his injury, to fight and encourage his men until the fort was captured.

The cubadar which conducted the defense of Fort Lundi-Kotal was killed during the fighting. Among the attacking force were two of his sons, while another son fought by his side.

The subadar who commanded the Mullagoln company when the enemy entered the fort collected his men and gallantly cut his way through the ranks of the attackers. He lost several men, but reached the road to Jamrud without the loss of a single rifle.

It appears that only a small section of the Khyber rifles stationed at Jamrud were disarmed. They were on guard when the news of the fall of Fort Lundi-Kotal was received, and the officers fearing that some of them might desert with their rifles disarmed them and placed other tribesmen on guard. The other Khyber rifles are still trusted.

The arrest at Quetta on Aug. 24 of three Beluchistan surdars is considered a most important step, as two of them, Mehrullah and Yarmuhamed, were the instigators of recent raids in that quarter. Their arrest will prevent much trouble in Beluchistan.

A majority of the Beluchistan chiefs have visited Quetta and all declare that there is no further reason for anxiety on the part of the government.

The column under Colonel Richardson and a detached party which were sent to relieve the public posts at Lakka and Saifaldara found them hard pressed by Orakzais. A sharp conflict ensued between the relieving force and the rebels, resulting in the repulse of the latter with considerable loss. The posts were relieved and their garrisons withdrawn.

DESPERATE MOONSHINERS.

Two Deputy Marshals Killed and Four Wounded In Pope County, Ark.

Little Rock, Aug. 31.—Six men were probably massacred in the wilds of the mountains of Pope county Sunday afternoon. Two were killed outright, two were fatally wounded and left for dead and two have mysteriously disappeared, and are either dead or being held captive by the outlaws who committed the crimes. The killed are:

Captain B. F. Taylor of Searcy county and Joseph Dodson of Stone county.

The fatally wounded are two brothers named Rentrew of Searcy county.

The names of the missing men are not known, but they are supposed to be deputy sheriffs from an adjoining county The victims were all officers, deputy United States marshals and deputy sheriffs, and the murderers are moonshiners of the boldest and most desperate character. The scene of the crime was a ravine in the mountains of Pope county, 35 miles from Russellville, the nearest telegraph office, and 10 miles from Will Springs. The region has for years been a rendezvous for counterfeiters and moonshiners, and is considered the worst and most dangerous section in the state. The officers for a long time have been trying to break up the lawlessness in that vicinity, and many battles with the desperadoes have occurred.

Valid Marriages.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Assistant Secretary of the Interior Webster Davis has rendered an important decision in a pension claim involving the definition of a valid marriage. The policy laid down affects a great number of cases. The issue is made in the case of the widow of William B. Thomas, who served in company A, New York volunteers, heavy artillery. Mr. Davis holds. "Where it is shown by the evidence that both parties fully intended and consented to the maintenance of bona fide marital relations at and subsequent to the time when they were competent to sustain such statutes by removal of a pre-existing impediment, and did consent to the maintenance of such marital relations by constant and continuous cohabitation, acknowledging each other as husband and wife, and being universally recognized as such by the community in which they lived, joining in church membership, uniting in deeds and conveyances as husband and wife, deporting themselves generally in accordance with good morals, a valid marriage is essentially established."

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The 26th annual meeting of the White Mountain Methodist Camp Meeting association commenced on their grounds in Groveton, N. H., yesterday.

Lord Salisbury's proposal for a joint gurantee indemnity to be paid to Turkey by Greece has fallen through, owing to Russia's reluctance and Germany's jealousy.

George W. Cole of Farmington, Me., has received notice of his appointment as deputy collector and inspector of customs at Lowelltown. Mr. Cole is a prominent Mason.

The first sod in the work of construction of the Chinese Eastern railroad was cut in Chinese territory near Stanitzapoltavskaya yesterday. A number of Chinese authorities were present.

Yesterday's announcement that Lesna and Michael had been matched to race at the Charles River park, Boston, on Labor day proves to be incorrect. The men will race Sept. 25. Michael will ride at Hartford on Labor day.

The American Social Science association, founded in 1865, began its general meeting at Saratoga last night. The annual address was made by Judge Simeon E. Baldwin of New Haven, professor in Yale law school, on absolute power. F. B. Sanborn of Concord, Mass., made his final report as general secretary.

There is no music like the melody of health. When every life-string is in perfect tune, and the pure, rich, red blood dances through the arteries to the quick-step of health, life is truly worth living. But the human body is the most delicate and intricate of all instruments. Just one little string out of tune will make a general discord. The body may apparently be in the best of order in every way, save that there is a slight disorder of the digestion. The sufferer hardly notices it, and does not think it worth troubling about. It is just one little string out of order, but it soon puts every organ in the body into a jangling discord. The blood no longer receives the proper supply of life-giving elements with which to build up new and healthy tissue. Instead it receives the poisons thrown off by improperly digested food and the effete material with which the intestines are clogged. Diseases of the blood and skin or wasting diseases like consumption are the result.

The best of all known medicines is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It keeps every life-string in perfect tune. It corrects all disorders of the digestion. It invigorates the liver. It makes the appetite hearty and keen and assimilation perfect. It fills the blood with the vital-elements that build new and healthy tissues, firm muscles, and strong, vibrant nerve fibers. Acting through the blood it tears down inert, half-dead tissues and causes them to be carried off and excreted. It acts upon every organ of the body driving out impurities and disease-germs. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It cures every kind of humor from the common simple blotch or eruption to scrofula. It cures eczema, salt-rheum, and all skin affections. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. Thousands have testified to its wonderful merits. All good druggists sell it.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure Constipation.
